The Witness: Judge, I would like to answer this question, that these records were not union property.

Presiding Inspector: Now, assume, as a matter of fact, that Mr. Innes gave the testimony that was read. Does it in [2131] any way refresh your recollection or make you want to change anything that you have testified about these papers?

The Witness: It makes me want to clarify one point, yes sir.

Presiding Inspector: Very well, do it.

The Witness: The point is that the testimony——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) I didn't hear——

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) He said it makes him want to clarify one point.

Mr. Gladstein: That he stated?

Presiding Inspector: That he stated.

The Witness: The statement of the witness there makes it very clear that it was not Pete Innes that stole the records, that it was Joe Curran that stole the records from the strike headquarters of the union hall, took them to his own house, sent Peter Innes and another guy up to burn them, to destroy property which actually belonged just as much to Innes as it did to Curran. That is a habit of that kind of people anyway.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I think that doesn't clarify very much.

The Witness: That is what he read. It says that there.

Presiding Inspector: That is all right.

Now, Mr. Gladstein, I get the impression from this [2132] answer that he doesn't want to change anything.

Mr. Gladstein: That he doesn't what, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Doesn't want to change anything.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. McCuistion, I get an impression from your testimony—and I wish to ask you whether it is a correct impression——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I object to the form of the question. We are not concerned with what impression counsel gets.

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

Presiding Inspector: Let's hear the question. It may be very unimportant; then, you won't object to it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Is it correct that you were in a position of, shall we say, greater confidence with the leaders of the Communist Party when you were not a member of that organization than when you were a member? A. It is actually a fact, yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't any further questions.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. Call the next witness.

Do you wish to ask him anything further?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, I do, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. [2133]

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if the Court please, in cross examination this witness concerning his testimony before the Dies Committee counsel did not read the entire testimony in that place and I would like to ask the witness these questions:

Presiding Inspector: That you may do.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Beginning at the bottom of page 6745 of the hearings before the Committee on Un-American Activities, House of Representatives, 67th Congress, counsel read the last question appearing on that page, only the first part of it, and stopped with this:

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

"I told him I had been put out and I was going to go on a long trip to the Orient and think it over."

Now, Mr. McCuistion, did you also in reply to that question say "He said,—" —referring to Bridges, I assume "—that won't ever do; you will have to go to work here; you will have to continue your work and activities here."

"I said, 'What do you mean by work and activities?'

"He said, 'We have discussed this and the only way you can really contribute to the work here is to begin to work.'

"And I said, 'No.' I was intent on going.

"Then he said, 'If you do we will see that you never get in the Party again.'

"I told him that I did not want to get into the Party.

"He said, 'You don't now, but you will want to come back [2134] in.'"

Then, a question by Mr. Thomas: "At that time, Mr. McCuistion, do you know whether Bridges was referring to the union work or work of the Communist Party?"

By Mr. McCuistion: "My work as a Communist on the waterfront."

And by Mr. Whitley: "And he told you that if you did, as you had planned, and did not stay there and continue your work on the waterfront you would never get back into the Party?

"Mr. McCuistion. Yes.

"Mr. Whitley: That is the Communist Party?

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

"Mr. McCuistion. Yes.

"Mr. Thomas. He was referring to the Communist Party; you are sure of that?

"Mr. McCuistion. Very definitely; yes.

"Mr. Whitley. Did you have any subsequent conversation with him, Mr. McCuistion?

"Mr. McCuistion. The next conversation I had with Harry Bridges was the one I related, at Madison Square Garden, the time of the Madison Square Garden meeting when we discussed the Communists generally, and also the question came up in the course of that time that while I was pretty well straightened out why I did not come back to the Party. [2135-36]

"I said, 'No; I was satisfied out of the Party.' That if the Party put out a program that I thought was all right I would support it but I would not join anything; that I would never join it again."

Now, Mr. McCuistion, did you give such testimony before the Dies Committee?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that at variance with the testimony you have given here? A. Not at all.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I think——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well, I think that is for the final arbiter here to determine.

Mr. Gladstein: We don't have any objection to him saying "No" as a matter of fact, because——

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute. I am not asking you what——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well, now,

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

you have asked him whether that is the testimony he gave and he said it was.

Now, do you want to ask him whether it is true?

Mr. Del Guercio: I want to ask him if he reconciles that with the testimony he gave at this hearing here.

Presiding Inspector: Well, that is for the arbiter in the [2137] proceeding, I suppose, to determine.

Mr. Del Guercio: But counsel for the defense here has asked the witness that question.

Presiding Inspector: Well, you can ask him whether this requires any reconciliation of the testimony that he has given, in his judgment, if your want to. It is hardly a legal subject for evidence but if you want to ask it you may.

The Witness: I think the wording was, perhaps, a little different, but the meaning was the same.

Mr. Del Guercio: No, I won't ask the question; never mind.

Presiding Inspector: He has already said the testimony he gave before the Dies Committee was true.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. McCuistion, I am reading from page 6522 of the same Dies Committee report, on the bottom of page 6522. Counsel directed your attention to this question by Mr. Voorhis but did not receive your answer.

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

"Mr. Voorhis. Mr. McCuistion, how do you know that Bridges was a Communist at that time?"

Your answer: "Mr. McCuistion. I know it merely by the fact the leading members of the Communist Party told me he was a Communist."

Was that your testimony in this hearing?

A. Yes, sir. [2138]

Q. "—and their authority over him was shown by the fact that he subsequently did accept and did come to the meeting."

Was that your testimony in this hearing?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gladstein: One moment.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, what meeting did you refer to?

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment.

Mr. Del Guercio: Do you want to make an objection?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I want to ask a point of information through the Court.

When Counsel says "this hearing" is he referring to the Dies Committee hearing or the present hearing?

Mr. Del Guercio: I am referring to this proceeding here.

Presiding Inspector: The present proceeding.

Mr. Gladstein: Oh!

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. "Mr. Voorhis. He did come?

"Mr. McCuistion. And at various other times

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

I have discussed Communism with Harry Bridges myself, and Harry Bridges has upbraided me for not returning to the Communist Party as an active member." [2139]

Have you so testified in this proceeding?

A. Yes sir, I have so testified.

Q. And did you so testify before the Dies Committee? A. I did; yes, sir.

Q. And the next question appears by Mr. Whitley: "Later on Mr. McCuistion will discuss his own personal conversations with Bridges, but I want to develop this in chronological order.

"Now, will you continue with your testimony on the Madison Square Garden rally and the events leading up to it?"

Was that question asked you by the Dies Committee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And by Mr. McCuistion: "We decided, first, to hold the meeting on December 14th, but the Garden was not available at that time and we had to take the night that the Garden had off, which was the night of December 16th."

Presiding Inspector: Well, don't think you have covered this? There has been no cross examination on this particular point.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, he was——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) As to what was said before the Dies Committee?

Mr. Del Guercio: As I understand it—maybe my understanding is incorrect—counsel has alleged here to the Court that the witness' present testimony was inconsistent with the testi- [2140] mony given in the Dies Committee hearing.

Presiding Inspector: I don't understand that.

Mr. Del Guercio: And he has taken portions of the testimony in the Dies Committee and confronted this witness, and I am trying to read——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) That doesn't go any further than when the confrontation occurred. That doesn't open the door to you showing consistent statements made some other time.

[2141]

Mr. Gladstein: Which would be self-serving.

Presiding Inspector: It wouldn't be competent or material in a legal sense to show that there were similar statements made at another time, unless you brought them in the case.

Mr. Gladstein: Right.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, where you brought a part of the question into the case possibly it is proper for him to read the rest of the question or the rest of the answer.

Mr. Gladstein: I didn't object.

Presiding Inspector: And you didn't object.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. McCuistion, you testified in this proceeding that the Communist Party has threatened and been after you ever since you testified before the Dies Committee?

A. Yes, sir. In fact, ever since I started actively opposing them.

(Testimony of William C. McQuistion.)

Q. Did you so testify also before the Dies Committee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you testify before the Dies Committee —I will read from page 6751.

Mr. Gladstein: I think that comes clearly—before counsel starts—within the ruling you have just made.

Presiding Inspector: I shouldn't think it was competent, but I will allow him to ask the question. I will also ask the witness not to answer. [2142]

Mr. Gladstein: The page number, please?

Mr. Del Guercio: If I can get a ruling on this maybe it won't be necessary to ask the witness this.

Counsel here for the defense has tried to show, by reading portions of the witness' testimony before the Dies Committee, that his testimony here in these proceedings was not correct.

Presiding Inspector: In certain respects.

Mr. Del Guercio: The witness has said that if the entire testimony before the Dies Committee was taken it would show no variation, no inconsistency, with his testimony in the present hearing. In order to meet that, counsel's implications and counsel's charges, I am trying to bring this in now.

Presiding Inspector: I think that goes too far. It takes us too far afield.

Mr. Gladstein: We don't object because the very statement counsel is about to read is inconsistent with the witness' testimony and I join with counsel in a request that the statement should be read.

Presiding Inspector: Whether or not it is inconsistent would be a question for the arbitrator of the trial.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes; but we think it is inconsistent and, therefore, we have no objection to it. In fact, we request that he read that part of it.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is very nice of you.

[2143]

Presiding Inspector: I don't know which way—first, it was objected to and then it was suggested that I could rule, even before the question was asked, and then I said I would hear the question, and the question hasn't been fully put; then Mr. Gladstein says he would like to have it read. You don't have to read it. Go ahead. Read it if you want to, or leave it out if you wish.

Anything further?

Mr. Del Guercio: May I have a moment?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly.

Mr. Del Guerdio: If the Court please, I have one more from this report of the hearing before the Special Committee, and that is the question that counsel read at the bottom of page 6745 in support of his apparent contention that the testimony in that regard in this hearing varied with that in the Dies Committee.

"Mr. Whitley: Will you describe some of those conversations and the meetings?

"Mr. McCuistion: The first conversation that I ever had with Harry Bridges at any length of time was in 1935 at San Francisco. This was shortly before Bridges was taken to the hospital with a perforated ulcer. And Bridges and I met just before the meeting of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, and at that time I was introduced to Bridges by Pyles of the Radio Telegraphists, and several others, and Bridges [2144] proceeded to ask me why I was there and what I was doing on the west coast."

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you recall that question being asked you?

A. Yes, it seems that I do.

Q. Did you necessarily refer to the very first conversation you had with Mr. Bridges in answer to that qeustion?

A. I considered all conversations I had held that day as the first conversation. I can't place them in the order. I might have talked to him two or three times that day. I might have even forgotten a few words I said to him.

Q. Were you asked if you had any other conversations on that day? A. No, I was not asked.

Q. Was the answer that I have just read to you your answer to the Dies Committee?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Recross Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. McCuistion, after the answer that you gave to the Dies Committee about the first conversation that you ever had with Harry Bridges, the one that Mr. Del Guercio read, you were asked, were you not, this:

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

"Did you have any subsequent conversation with him, Mr. [2145] McCuistion?"

A. If it is in the testimony there, I was asked that. I testified for four days and I would have to be a pretty brilliant man to remember every question and every answer. But if it is in the Congressional Record I certainly was asked the question. If the answer is in there it is most certainly my answer.

I think the answer has already been read.

Mr. Gladstein: Would you read back, Mr. Reporter, and get for me the page reference that Mr. Del Guercio made at the time that he was going to ask Mr. McCuistion a question concerning threats and Communists? I would like to have that page reference if I may.

Mr. Schofield: 6751.

The Reporter: 6751.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did I understand you to say that the records that you introduced in the Dies Committee did or did not include official and confidential union matters?

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, that matter has been gone over too and this isn't proper——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) It may not be strictly proper recross examination, but I ask the indulgence of the Court on it. It won't take long on this.

Presiding Inspector: I think he testified to that.

[2146]

(Testimony of William C. McCuistion.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did it or did it not?

A. It contained both personal and official records, but they had been removed from the Union hall long before I got them, or before Innes ever got them.

Q. Did they include minutes of the membership meeting of the Marine Firemen's Union?

A. Yes. They were distributed to the membership when we used to have a democratic constitution.

Q. Did it include resolutions adopted by the Union? A. Yes.

Q. Did it include financial records?

A. Very definitely; yes.

Q. Did it include strike records, strike committee records, and strike records? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not at the National Convention of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, held in San Francisco in the year 1939 you were included, together with others, in a resolution adopted by that convention condemning the group in which you were included, as labor spies and agents of employers?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: Excluded. [2147]

Mr. Gladstein: I am asking for his knowledge.

Presiding Inspector: Excluded. It doesn't make any difference whether he knows about it or not. How can that be of any materiality? Suppose anybody of people shouted out denunciations against any witness, how is it competent in a court of Justice or in an Administrative proceeding?

Mr. Gladstein: I would say that ordinarily your Honor is correct, that it doesn't make any difference what one person or group calls another person.

Presiding Inspector: In our State even an indictment by a grand jury isn't competent.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished. When a witness takes the stand and testifies that attacks directed against him are attacks made by the Communist Party, and Communists, and he limits himself to that, and that the reason, as he implies, or states specifically, is that he is fighting the Communists, it then becomes material to show that the witness has been condemned as an anti-Union person, an employers' agent, a labor spy, by one of the largest labor organizations in the United States, —that is the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is a mere charge and not binding on him in any respect.

The Witness: I have——

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. I have hard enough [2148] time to talk with counsel.

I will exclude it as immaterial, irrelevant and too remote.

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is all.

Mr. Del Guercio: No further questions.

Presiding Inspector: You are excused.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Call your next witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now?

Presiding Inspector: I think you had better call your next witness. We have another quarter of an hour.

Mr. Schofield: Let me see the resolution you were referring to.

Mr. Grossman: You want to see it when you objected to it?

Mr. Gladstein: Did your Honor hear the remark made by Mr. Connelley when we refused Major Schofield the right to examine the resolution?

Presiding Inspector: I did not hear it.

Mr. Gladstein: I think your Honor should admonish Mr. Connelley, here representing the Government, for turning around and saying, "Go to hell." Even if the Court did not hear it he intended that we should hear it.

Presiding Inspector: I think you are out of order.

Mr. Gladstein: I think Mr. Connelley was out of order. [2149]

Presiding Inspector: But you are out of order.

I am not ruling on Mr. Connelley. I heard nothing, and I wouldn't have known anything about it except that you put it on the record.

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Connelley certainly intended by his remarks——

Presiding Inspector: I think you should apologize to the Presiding Examiner for misconduct, but I don't insist on it.

Mr. Gladstein: If I am guilty of misconduct in calling to your Honor's attention——

Presiding Inspector: It was something I said I didn't hear.

Mr. Gladstein: If I am guilty of misconduct in calling to your attention, even if you didn't hear it, the fact that Mr. Connelley got up and turned on us and told us to "Go to hell," then I apologize to you.

Presiding Inspector: I accept the apology.

Now, we will go on. I am afraid we are having our nerves a little on edge today.

Call your next witness.

Mr. Schofield: I didn't hear it either.

Mr. Del Guercio: Take the stand, Mr. Innes.

Presiding Inspector: Stand up and raise your right hand. [2150]

Upon Appeal from the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of California, Northern Division

called as a witness on behalf of the Government, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Mr. Del Guercio: Do you want to talk to me?

Mr. Grossman: I asked if you had something to say to me.

Mr. Del Guercio: If I do I will tell you.

Presiding Inspector: Just a minute. Ask the witness to state his name.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Please state your name?

A. Sergeant Peter J. Innes, of the U. S. Army.

Q. Where were you born?

A. In New York City.

Q. And of what country are you a citizen?

A. The United States.

Q. Mr. Innes, during the period of December, 1935, what was your occupation?

A. December 1935 I was a sailor.

Q. Were you a member of any union at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. In December 1935?

A. No, sir; not until January of 1936.

Q. Do you recall the strike—I may not have the name of the strike correctly—but the strike of the rank and file [2151] seamen of the east coast about that time?

A. Yes, sir; that took place in March of 1936.

Q. And you were a member of that strike committee?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I became a member of that strike committee on April 22, 1936.

Q. Do you recall a rally held in Madison Square Garden at that time?

A. That rally was held in the fall strike of 1936 and 1937. It was held on December 17, I believe it was; December 16, 1936.

Q. I had the wrong year. I meant to say 1936, instead of 1935. What was your occupation at that time?

A. In 1936, around December?

Q. Yes.

A. I was Pacific Coast representative of the Seamen's Defense Committee of the Atlantic and Gulf.

Q. And did you, in connection with that position —were you sent out to the West Coast?

A. I was sent out to the West Coast in July of 1936 from New York.

Q. And where did you go?

A. I arrived on the steamship President Taft in August, well, in August of 1936, in San Francisco, with credentials on the letterhead of the Seamen's Defense Committee, signed by Joseph Curran, the Chairman of the Committee, and Ralph Emerson, [2152] the Secretary, who was Secretary of the Committee. I reported to Earl King, the Secretary of the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders Union of the Pacific, here in San Francisco.

Q. Who gave you instructions to contact Earl King?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. Before I left New York, when I got my credentials, I was given instructions to report to Earl King by Tommy Raye and Joseph Curran.

Q. Were you told to contact any other person or persons?

A. I was told that Earl King would introduce me to the proper people.

Q. Did you meet Earl King on the Pacific Coast?

A. I did.

Q. Where did you meet him?

A. In the Marine Firemen's Hall on Commercial Street, I believe it is, in San Francisco.

Q. Was there anyone present at that time?

A. Two or three people there, but I didn't know who they were.

Q. About when was this?

A. That was, if I am not mistaken, I believe it was August 22 when I arrived in San Francisco and I immediately reported to the Union hall in the afternoon of August 22nd.

Q. And did you tell Earl King——

A. (Interposing) Earl King had a copy of my credentials with my picture on it that had been sent out here from the [2153] Atlantic Coast.

Q. Did you tell Earl King of the instructions that had been given to you by Joe Curran and Tommy Raye?

Mr. Gladstein: May I suggest that it would be much better if, on direct examination, Mr. Del Guercio asked the witness what took place, instead of asking him some direct and leading and suggestive question?

Presiding Inspector: You shouldn't lead.

Mr. Del Guercio: If I do it is in the interest of time.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What conversation did you have with Earl King?

A. I reported to Earl King, in accordance with my instructions, and we left there, the Union hall, and went to some little hotel up town here, where the Maritime Firemen's agent from Portland, Ferguson, was staying.

From there we went to District Council No. 4 Meeting. After the meeting, after I had presented my credentials to the meeting and was seated as a fraternal delegate to District Council No. 4, when the meeting was over I was introduced to Harry Bridges, Mervin Rathborne, Jimmy O'Neill, Henry Schmidt, and several others that I don't exactly recall who they were.

Q. By whom were you introduced to Harry Bridges? A. By Earl King.

Q. And did you have any conversation with Harry Bridges at that time? [2154]

A. At that particular time, no; not until the next time.

Q. When did you next meet Harry Bridges?

A. I met Harry Bridges when he returned from some place upstate here. He came back by airplane from some place up state—not up state—from some place in the northwest, I believe, where he had delivered a speech, or something, up there. I don't recall.

Q. Where did that meeting take place?

A. That took place at the Ferry Building, on the Embarcadero, where the Negotiating Committees had been meeting in some hall, or office, down there.

Q. Who was present at that meeting?

A. Well, at that particular meeting the entire negotiating Committee of the combined unions, was present.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Bridges at that time?

A. Not in particular at that time; no, sir.

Q. When did you meet him the next time?

A. The next time I met him,—I met him practically every day as I was in and out of this office, at 112 Market Street.

Q. Did you have any conversations with him then?

A. I had several conversations with Bridges and Rathborne. As I was green to the labor game, my orders were to contact all the intercoastal ships here for the purpose of [2155] organizing the crews on them for the strike that was due to come in the fall. So I used to go to Bridges and Rathborne for instructions on how to exercise the proper technique. I found I couldn't get on the ships——

Q. (Interposing) We are not concerned with what you were doing, only in relation to Harry Bridges in this case.

A. Yes.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Had you any instructions at any time to secure the services of Harry Bridges to speak at the Madison Square Garden meeting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you receive those instructions?

A. I received those instructions in the first week in December; I believe it was December 3rd or 4th. I am not sure of the date. I received a telephone call from Jack Lawrenson, the Secretary of the Marine Strike Council in New York——

Q. (Interposing) Where were you when you received such instructions?

A. I was in San Pedro at the time in my office down there.

Q. What did Jack Lawrenson say?

A. He stated they had decided to hold a rally in Madison Square Garden.

Q. That who had decided to hold a rally there?

A. He didn't say who. He said "They" had decided to [2156] hold a rally in Madison Square Garden in New York and wanted me to contact Bridges to find out if he would come there.

I sent a teletype from San Pedro to Bridges' office at 112 Market Street. He wasn't in. Mervin Rathborne got the teletype. I stated they wanted to hold the rally on the 14th of December in Madison Square Garden and wanted to know whether Bridges could be present, and that I desired an immediate answer.

Q. Did you get an answer?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I did not. So the next day I received another phone call and they wanted to know what the answer was. I said, "I didn't get an answer."

Q. Who did you receive the second phone call from? A. Albert Rothbart.

Q. Where was he at the time?

A. In New York.

Q. Where were you?

A. I was in San Pedro. He said, "Well, you go to San Francisco and get the answer."

So I came to San Francisco and I went to Bridges' office. I asked if he was going to New York.

Q. You asked who? A. Bridges.

Q. Who was present?

A. Mervin Rathborne.

Q. You asked him in Mervin Rathborne's presence? [2157] A. Yes.

Q. You asked him what?

A. What his answer was regarding going to New York.

Q. What was his answer?

A. He told me "No"; that he didn't want to get mixed up in the mess; that he had enough trouble with Lundeberg and a few others.

Q. Did he indicate if he would reconsider that?

A. No, sir; his answer was definite.

Q. What happened after that?

A. While we were there talking a telephone call came in for me—that is, the telephone rang and Rathborne answered the phone and said, "It is for you." That was speaking of me. It was in Rathborne's office that the call came through.

So I answered the phone and Bill McCuistion was on the other end of the wire. He said Tommy Raye was there and wanted to talk to Bridges; and that we were to go to an outside phone and call the number, a Watkins number—whatever it was—in New York.

Q. When Bridges said that he refused to appear as a speaker at the Madison Square Garden meeting did you convey that information to anyone?

A. Did I convey that to anyone?

Q. Yes. [2158]

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you go downstairs with Mr. Bridges?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you go?

A. I don't know whether it was in the same building, but it was in either one of those little cigar stores or a drug store.

Q. Just a minute. Did you tell Bridges that Tommy Raye wanted to speak to him?

A. I went into his office and I said, "New York called me and Tommy Raye wants to talk to you on the telephone. We are to go to an outside phone and call the number back."

Q. Proceed.

A. And we went to this pay station, in either a cigar store or a drug store—I don't recall exactly—and I called the number back. McCuistion answered the phone and he asked if Bridges was there. I told him, "Yes." He said, "Put him on. Tommy Raye wants to talk to him."

I couldn't hear the conversation, but I heard Bridges tell him "No." Then they conversed for four or five minutes and he hung up and says, "It looks like I got to go to New York."

Q. Did you subsequently go back east? —

A. Did I go back east?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes; I left San Pedro to go to the same rally. I [2159] arrived in New York on December 13, on a Sunday morning.

Presiding Inspector: I think we will stop here.

(Whereupon, at 12:30 P. M. a recess was taken until 2:00 P. M. of the same day.) [2160]

After Recess—2:00 o'Clock P. M.

Presiding Inspector: You may proceed.

PETER J. INNES

called as a witness on behalf of the Government, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct Examination—(Resumed)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. Innes, I believe the last question was when you arrived—when did you arrive in New York after the conversation you testified to over the telephone in San Francisco?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I arrived in New York on December 13, 1936.

Q. Do you know if Bridges arrived in New York after that?

A. He arrived Monday, December 14th.

Q. How did he arrive, do you know?

A. Sir?

Q. Do you know how he arrived?

A. He arrived by plane.

Q. Did you meet him at the plane?

A. I did.

Q. Who was with you?

A. In the car that I was in was Joseph Curran, and the boy driving the car was a kid by the name of Jo-Jo Curran.

Q. Was there anybody else present? [2161]

A. There were two other cars. In one of them there was a fellow by the name of Leeds, Krumbin, and Raye.

Q. Is that Tommy Raye?

A. That is right.

Q. And is that David Leeds?

A. I believe that was his first name.

Q. Did you see them?

A. They were in another car. In the third car was Albert Rothbart, and somebody else that I don't remember exactly.

Q. Did they also meet Bridges at the airport?

A. They didn't meet him personally; no.

Q. But they were there?

A. They were there.

Q. Did they get out of the car?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. No, sir; not to my knowledge.

Q. How got out of the cars?

A. Curran and myself, and we waited until the newspaper men had got through with Bridges. And I believe it was Mr. Merriweather was with him, of the MEBA.

Q. What happened after that?

A. Well, we left there and went to the Victoria Hotel.

Q. Who left?

A. That is, Bridges, Curran, myself and Merriweather.

Q. Did Bridges get into the car in which you had to [2162] drive?

A. Yes, sir, he went with us.

Q. What happened to the other two cars that were involved?

A. They arrived later. I don't know whether they followed us over or arrived later. We went directly to the Victoria Hotel where Bridges registered.

Q. On what day was this, if you know?

A. December the 14th, 1936.

Q. All right. Now, you went to the Victoria Hotel? A. That is right.

Q. What happened there?

A. Well, after we got upstairs, why, the fellows that had gone to the airport, together with Hudson, came into Bridges room one at a time, where the program for the coastwide tour that he was to make was outlined.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Well, now, just a minute. Did Bridges register in the Victoria Hotel?

A. He registered at the Victoria Hotel.

Q. Did you all go to his room?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were all in the room?

A. Well, before the meeting was over——.

Q. (Interposing) Was there a meeting there?

A. Well, I would call it a meeting or a conclave or [2163] caucus, or whatever you want to call it. It was not a formal meeting. It was where the policy was outlined that he was to follow up and down the coast.

Q. Who was there in that room at that time?

A. There was Bridges, Roy Hudson, Tommy Raye, Al Lannon, Joe Curran, myself, and I am not positive whether Rothbart was there or not.

Q. All right. Do you know whether Roy Hudson was a member of the Communist Party at that time?

A. At that time Roy Hudson was in charge of the Marine Section of the Communist Party.

Q. Was he a member of the Communist Party?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Tommy Raye a member of the Communist Party? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, was there anyone else present besides those three I have mentioned, besides Bridges and yourself?

A. Was anybody in that room?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. There was Hudson, Raye, Al Lannon.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Was Al Lannon a member of the Communist Party?

A. Al Lannon is a member of the Communist Party.

Q. And who else was there?

A. I am not sure whether Rothbart was there or not.

Q. Do you know if Rothbart was a member of the Communist [2164] Party?

A. Albert Rothbart?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir, he is a member of the Communist Party.

Q. What discussion was had in that room at that time?

A. The general discussion—the outline was that they couldn't get the Garden for Monday night and that they had arranged for——

Q. (Interposing) That who couldn't get the Garden?

A. Well, they said "they."

Q. Well, who was speaking, if you know?

A. That was Raye that was doing the talking.

Q. Yes.

A. They couldn't get the Garden for a Monday night, that they had arranged for it for Wednesday, which was December the 16th, and that night Bridges and Curran were to go to Philadelphia. I was to stay for another coastwise conference in New York, and Tuesday we were to go to Boston, Wednesday in New York and Thursday in Baltimore.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Now, all these were discussed in the meeting at the Victoria Hotel?

A. That is right.

Q. The day that Bridges arrived?

A. That is right, and that the line of his talks were in an attempt to——[2165]

Q. (Interposing) The line of whose talk?

A. Bridges' talk was to be along the line in an attempt to bring the longshoremen out on strike, to tell the strikers on the Atlantic Coast that the West Coast would back them up and strike with them until they got what they were after.

Q. Now, you mentioned something about going to Philadelphia. A. Sir?

Q. Now, you mentioned something about going to Philadelphia? A. Sir?

Q. Did you say something about going to Philadelphia? A. That is right.

Q. Who was going to Philadelphia?

A. Bridges and Curran.

Q. Who told Bridges and Curran? Who said that Bridges and Curran were to go to Phildelphia?

Mr. Gladstein: This again is leading and suggestive, your Honor.

Mr. Del Guercio: He has already testified to that conversation, if your Honor please. I am just asking him who said those things.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I am objecting to the question on the ground it is leading and suggestive.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I don't quite——

[2166]

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Well, the implication is that somebody told Mr. Bridges that he had to go some place, and Mr. Del Guercio is putting that in the witness' mouth. All that Mr. Del Guercio has to do is to ask him how did this conclusion happen to be arrived at, or something of that sort, instead of raising the implication by saying who said Bridges was to go to Philadelphia.

Presiding Inspector: Did anyone say anything about Bridges going to Philadelphia?

The Witness: Yes, sir; the program was outlined to him.

Presiding Inspector: Well, now, you may ask your question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, now, who said that?

A. That he was going to Philadelphia?

Q. That Bridges was to go to Philadelphia?

A. The lay-out was given by Tommy Raye.

Q. Well, did he say that to Bridges?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Bridges go to Philadelphia, do you know? A. He did, yes, he did.

Q. Do you know what he did there?

A. He addressed a strike rally.

Q. Do you know who paid—was any mention made of expenses in that meeting in the Victoria Hotel in New York?

A. The expenses were talked about in the original [2167] teletype that I had sent to San Francisco, that is, expenses were to be paid by New York.

Q. By New York. A. That is right.

Q. Pay whose expenses? A. Bridges.

Q. From where?

A. From Frisco to New York and during the time he was there and back again.

Q. Now, who told Bridges that he was to go to Boston?

A. At this same meeting he was told that himself, Curran and myself were to go to Boston Tuesday.

Q. By "him" you mean Bridges?

A. That is right.

Q. Who told him that? A. Raye.

Q. Was anything said about Bridges going anywhere else, to any other city?

A. Yes, sir; to Baltimore on Thursday.

Q. Who told him that? A. Raye.

Q. That was the Tommy Raye whom you say was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Tommy Raye, who was directing the operations for the Communist Party; that is right. [2168]

Q. Do you know if Bridges spoke at Philadelphia?

A. Of my own knowledge I don't, except what I read in the paper the next day that he had addressed a meeting in Philadelphia.

Q. Do you know if he spoke in Boston?

A. I do.

Q. Do you know if he spoke at Baltimore?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I do.

Q. Do you know if he spoke in Madison Square Garden in New York? A. I do.

Q. Where were you? A. I was there.

Q. Were you there after the Rally in Madison Square Garden? A. I was.

Q. Where were you?

A. I was in one of the ante-room, what you might call a dressing room, or something.

Q. Was that after the meeting?

A. After the meeting was over; yes, sir.

Q. Who was in the ante-room?

A. Originally Bridges was in a room with newspaper reporters. After they left he went into the room next door with me, who was with him at that time, and Curran. In that [2169] room was Bill McCuisition, David Leeds, Raye, Lannon. I am not positive whether the Bishop, or Hudson, rather, was there.

Q. Who was the Leeds that you mentioned?

A. Leeds at that time, I didn't know, but after we had left there I asked and I was informed that he was the Financial Secretary, or Treasurer, of the New York District of the Communist Party.

Q. Was any conversation had in that meeting in the ante-room? A. That is right.

Q. McQuistion came in with the money that had been collected at the collection in the Garden, together with the pledges and checks, and the money that had been taken in at the admission gate.

Q. Who did he turn over that money to?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. He turned over that money, over the take, to David Leeds.

Q. Was there any conversation?

A. Well, Bridges wanted to know about his expenses.

Q. What did he say about his expenses?

A. He asked point blank, "Who is going to pay those expenses of mine?"

Q. Who did he say that to?

A. He said that to Raye. Raye told Leeds to take care of it. [2170]

Q. Tommy Raye? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he say?

A. Raye told Leeds to take care of Bridges' expenses.

Q. What else was said in that connection?

A. About money?

Q. About the expenses that Bridges wanted?

A. Leeds didn't say anything further. He counted out $400 or $500—I don't know the exact amount—and gave it to him.

I hollered, myself, I wanted to know what about my expenses.

Bridges says, "You can go outside. I will take care of you later."

Q. Did you go outside? A. I left.

Q. Was anything else said in the room before you left?

A. No, sir; not to my knowledge, because I left immediately.

Q. Do you know how the arrangement had been made for the hiring of Madison Square Garden for this particular rally?

A. I only know what Al Lannon told me.

Q. You don't know that of your own knowledge?

A. Not of my own knowledge; no, sir.

Q. Now, returning for a moment, Mr. Innes, to the [2171] time you first met Mr. Bridges at his office here in San Francisco. I believe you testified that you met Bridges in his office and that while you were in his office Rathborne was present?

A. Correct.

Q. Was there anybody else in the office?

A. There was Bridges and Rathborne and Roy Pyle came in while we were there.

Q. Who was Roy Pyle?

A. At that time he was, I believe, connected with the American Radio Telegraphists Association here in San Francisco.

Q. Do you know who Mervin Rathborne is, as to whether or not he is a member of the Communist Party?

A. Certainly, he is a member.

Q. Was he at that time?

A. He attended all the Party meetings where all the big shots were so——

Q. (Interposing) Was Roy Pyle then a member of the Communist Party?

A. Pyle was a member.

Q. Now, Mr. Innes, did you testify before the Dies Committee?

A. I did.

Q. Did you testify before any other Committee?

A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Have you ever been arrested? [2172]

A. Yes; I was arrested once for loitering.

Q. Where? A. In New York.

Q. Were you formally charged?

A. I was fined $5.00 or 10 days. I paid the fine.

Q. That was your only arrest?

A. That is all.

Q. Have you ever been on relief?

A. No, sir.

Q. At any time? A. Never.

Q. Anywhere? A. No.

Q. I believe you testified early in your testimony that you are at present in the U. S. Army?

A. I am at present a Sergeant in the Army, yes, sir.

Q. Where are you stationed?

A. I am stationed at Headquarters Company, Governor's Island, New York.

Mr. Del Guercio: You may cross examine.

Mr. Gladstein: May we have a moment, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Innes, before testifying on the stand today did you talk to Mr. McCuistion about the testimony you were [2173] going to give?

A. I did not.

Q. Never at any time?

A. Never at any time.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Have you ever discussed with Mr. McCuistion, prior to today, the events concerning which you have testified here today?

A. Have I ever discussed it with him?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Have you ever talked with him about the Madison Square Garden meeting concerning which you have talked about here?

A. If I may qualify I may answer it.

Q. You can qualify it any way you like after you answer it. Can you first answer it "yes" or "no"? A. Yes.

Q. That is, you have discussed this with him, haven't you? A. Yes—if I may qualify it.

Q. Now, you can go ahead and qualify it.

A. I discussed it with him after the Madison Square Garden meeting, but I have not discussed the meeting with him in the last three years.

Q. All right. Have you discussed with Mr. McCuistion [2174] at any time prior to today, any of the other matters concerning which you gave testimony today? A. May I qualify that?

Q. Any way you wish.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the Court will instruct the witness that he can qualify his answers.

Presiding Inspector: You will have an opportunity to qualify your answers.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't object to him asking whether he can qualify his answer.

A. Yes, I discussed the event during the event itself or immediately afterwards, but I have not discussed any events with Bill McCuistion concerning matters testified to here, or anywhere else, within the last two or three years; two years and a half.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Those events that you testified about here today occurred in 1936, you say?

A. 1936; that is correct.

Q. All right. So it is your testimony, is it, that, never since the year 1936 have you discussed with Mr. McCuistion any of the matters concerning which you have given testimony her today, correct?

A. No, it is not my testimony—never since 1937.

Q. When, in 1937, was the last time?

A. Well, now, that is pretty hard to answer. I haven't [2175] seen McCuistion since December of 19—January of 1938, up until the time I saw him the day I finished testifying before the Dies Committee, and until I met him yesterday here in San Francisco.

Q. Let me see now—you saw him at Madison Square Garden, that meeting there, in December of 1936? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you see him within a short period of time thereafter?

A. Yes. I saw him the next morning.

Q. I know, but up to what point, would you say, up through some time in January 1937?

A. No; because I came back to San Pedro and arrived there December 23rd.

Q. So that you would have seen him for the last time as of that month prior, some time prior to December 23, 1936? A. That is correct.

Q. When was the next time you saw him?

A. I think it was after he returned from Spain. I am not positive; I wouldnt' swear to it.

Q. When?

A. It was during the NMU election—I know that—in 1938.

I made an error there before—I think it was in January 1939 the last time I saw McCuistion.

Q. Well, now, you say you saw him in 1938 some time?

A. Yes; when he came back from Spain.

Q. Approximately when, in what year?

A. Well——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, the witness has already testified it was when McCuistion returned from Spain. Does he know what month or what year McCuistion returned from Spain?

Presiding Inspector: It is understood that if a witness cannot give these dates—they are difficult to give ordinarily—he will say so. Can you fix it any nearer?

A. In the summer. That is the closest I can come to it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In the summer of 1938?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you discuss with him on that occasion, or during that period of time, any of the events concerning which you have testified here today?

A. Not to my recollection. We had things of more importance to discuss at that time.

Q. Is it your best recollection that you did not, on that occasion, or in that period of 1938, discuss with Mr. McCuistion any of the events or things concerning which you have given testimony here today? [2177] A. In 1938——

Presiding Inspector: As I understood it, he answered that, but you may ask him.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question?

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. To the best of my recollection the answer would be "No".

Mr. Gladstein: All right. When was the next time that you saw Mr. McCuistion?

A. I can't recall discussing the matter with him.

Q. At any time? A. At any time.

Q. Prior to today?

A. I do not recall discussing the matters with Bill McCuistion at any time during 1938.

Q. How about 1939?

A. In 1939 I didn't see McCuistion. [2178]

Q. How about 1940?

A. I didn't see McCuistion except for an hour when I got through testifying before the Dies Committee. I didn't discuss the matter with him.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. You saw him after you testified before the Dies Committee?

A. Before the Dies Committee, that is correct.

Q. I say, you saw him after your testified before the Dies Committee? A. That is correct.

Q. Not before? A. Not before.

Q. Did you ever turn over to Mr. McCuistion any materials, documents, letters, records of any kind of the N.M.U. or the Marine Firemen's Union?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever turn over any such material to anyone? A. Property of the union?

Q. Correspondence that concerned union affairs?

A. Well, you will have to explain what you mean by "correspondence or records." Possibly I might have given somebody some of my own records.

Are you inferring that I turned over union records?

Q. Just a moment. I will withdraw that last question. [2179]

I believe you said you came to San Francisco August 22nd, 1936?

A. I said approximately. I didn't specify the exact date; I am not sure of it.

Q. How did you arrive?

A. I arrived on the steamship President Taft of the Dollar Line.

Q. Where did you disembark?

A. Pay-off, you mean?

Q. Yes. A. In San Francisco.

Q. In what capacity were you on that ship?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I was engineer's yoeman on that ship, having relieved Al Yates on orders of the Communist Party that he get off and give me the job.

Q. Were you taking orders from the Communist Party?

A. No; I took my orders from Joe Curran.

Q. Were you a member of the Communist Party? A. I was not.

Q. Now, after you came to San Francisco how long did you remain here continuously before departing to some other place?

A. I believe I stayed in San Francisco until November the 4th, although I made one trip to San Pedro in between November the 4th I departed for San Pedro, California.

Q. How long did you stay in San Pedro after arriving [2180] there on the 4th of November?

A. Of course, I made several trips back and forth to San Francisco, but to the best of my knowledge, I left San Pedro, I believe, February the 7th, 1937—no—yes, 1937, about three days or four days after the strike ended.

Q. Would it be correct to say that your headquarters, so to speak, from November 4th, 1936 until the date in February 1937 that you have mentioned, would be San Pedro? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, after arriving in San Pedro on November 4th do you remember when it was that you took the first trip to San Francisco?

A. It was either the last week in November or the first week in December—I am not sure of it—sometime in between.

Q. Do you recall the occasion?

A. No, wait a minute; it was in November.

Q. When in November?

A. That I can't tell you but I know it was in November, possible a week or ten days after I had gone to San Pedro.

Q. And what was the occasion? A. Yes?

Q. What was the occasion for your leaving San Pedro?

A. I came up to see Bridges, Rathborne and Zack Brown and a few others up here to let them know what the situation was in San Pedro in regards to the East Coast men. [2181]

Q. How long did you remain in San Francisco on that occasion?

A. Oh, probably a day or two; I don't know.

Q. Did anything else of significance occur on that occasion that you can recall now?

A. Nothing except that I caught blazes about opening up my own—what they called my own mob down there instead of allowing them to amalgamate with the Communist controlled unions here.

Q. Did you then return to San Pedro?

A. I did.

Q. When is the next occasion when you came to San Francisco?

A. When I came to find out what Bridges' answer was regarding going to Madison Square Garden.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. When was that?

A. The first week in December; I am not sure of the date.

Q. And why did you come ot San Francisco on that occasion?

A. To find out what Bridges' answer was concerning his going to Madison Square Garden, when I didn't get a reply to the teletype that I sent up.

Q. Had you sent a teletype? A. I had.

Q. What was the general substance of the contents of it? [2182]

A. I said that New York wanted to know whether Bridges could be available or would—New York wanted to know whether Bridges would appear at Madison Square Garden on December the 14th to speak, and they wanted a reply immediately.

Q. To whom did you send the teletype?

A. I asked for Bridges on the teletype and the answer came back that he was not available, that Rathborne was there, and Rathborne got the teletype.

Q. And you would date that as sometime in the early part of December?

A. In the first week in December, yes.

Q. You say you didn't receive a reply?

A. I didn't receive a reply within the next twenty-four hours and I had another phone call from New York wanting to know what the answer was. I told them I didn't get a reply. They told me to go to 'Frisco and get one.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. That is when you came to San Francisco?

A. That is right.

Q. How did you travel?

A. I traveled by car.

Q. And when you came to San Francisco where did you go?

A. I went right to Bridges 'office.

Q. How long did you stay in San Francisco on that occasion? [2183]

A. I left immediately.

Q. You mean you came to Bridges' office and then you left?

A. How long did I stay? Well, well, probably ten or twelve hours, but I mean I left the same day that I arrived.

Q. And where did you go then?

A. Went back to Pedro.

Q. When is the next time you came to San Francisco after that, do you recall?

A. Under orders from the strike committee in New York and in accordance with arrangements that had been made in New York when Bridges and the rest of us were there, I arrived in San Francisco right after Christmas on a Coastwise tour.

Q. Well, I was not referring to a trip from the East to San Francisco.

A. No, no; I am talking about the Pacific Coast, on a Coastwise tour. In other words, I was doing what Bridges done on the East Coast. I was making a tour up here to let everybody know what they were doing over there.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. No, no, Mr. Innes. I am referring now to the next occasion when you left San Pedro to come to San Francisco. Was there any such occasion?

A. I told you I arrived here a couple days after Christmas. Oh, from San Pedro to San Francisco?

Q. Now, you said that on the occasion when you came to San Francisco to see Bridges you were here about ten or twelve [2184] hours.

A. On what occasion was that?

Q. To get him to go to New York.

A. About that, I would say: I am not positive of it.

Q. Is that the day on which there was this telephoning that you testified about?

A. That is correct.

Q. The day on which you talked to McCuistion?

A. The day on which I talked to McCuistion.

Q. And you say that after you talked to McCuistion Bridges took the phone?

A. No. McCuistion said to tell Bridges that Tommy Ray wanted to talk to him and we were to speak from an outside phone. The first call I received at Bridges' suite up there at 112 Market Street.

Q. Well, when you made the call on the public telephone—— A. (Interposing) Yes.

Q. (Continuing) ——you spoke to McCuistion?

A. McCuistion answered the phone, that is right.

Q. Then, you turned the phone over to Bridges?

A. McCuistion said "Tommy Ray wants to talk to Bridges."

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Did you turn the phone over to Mr. Bridges? A. I did.

Q. All right. And after Mr. Bridges left the phone booth [2185] did he tell you anything?

A. Yes. He says, "It looks like I got to go to New York."

Q. What else, if anything, happened in connection with his trip to New York?

A. Well, I asked him about when he was going to leave. He said he didn't know but he would probably go by plane.

Q. Well, did you make any further arrangements about that? A. With him?

Q. Yes.

A. No; I figured New York had taken care of it.

Q. Did you do anything further on the question of getting Bridges to go to New York after Bridges had said to you, that, as a result of the telephone call, he had to go?

A. I teletyped New York to let them know that he had accepted because I didn't know whether the records in the union hall—after all, this call was not from the strike headquarters. The teletype—or I called New York, rather. The teletype in San Pedro—San Pedro notified New York officially anyhow, I know that, that he was coming to New York, over our own station.

Q. They were anxious to get him back there, weren't they? A. They were anxious.

Q. To get Bridges as a speaker? [2186]

A. It appeared that way.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Well, don't you know?

A. I would assume. I was not there; I was here.

Q. Well, after Bridges told you that he guessed he had to go you say you teletyped San Pedro?

A. San Pedro, that is correct.

Q. Then, San Pedro teletyped New York?

A. No, I don't know what they done. All I know they notified New York he was coming because that was my orders to the Secretary of our strike committee to notify New York officially that Bridges was coming.

Q. You did nothing further in connection with notifying anybody about Bridges coming?

A. I did not, to the best of my knowledge.

Q. Now, Mr. Innes, as a matter of fact, weren't you in San Pedro at the time that you were requested to get hold of Mr. Bridges for this meeting? A. I testified to that fact.

Q. And isn't it a fact that you remained in San Pedro and got your answer from Bridges, as to whether he would go East, by teletype while you were in San Pedro?

A. You are not inferring that I am perjuring myself, are you?

Presiding Inspector: No, no, no.

Is that a fact? [2187]

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question, please?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: Now, there is a double inference.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw the question.

Presiding Inspector: Wait until I suggest to you: There were two answers of Bridges, weren't there, according to the testimony, one that he would not go and one that he would go?

Now, which did you refer to? That is what I had in mind.

Mr. Gladstein: I understood from the witness that Mr. Bridges left the telephone booth and told Innes that he would have to go.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes, that is what you are referring to?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. Now, I asked him what he did and he said he teletyped to San Pedro and told them that Bridges was going to go East and that San Pedro notified New York, in what way he was not sure.

Presiding Inspector: I understand that. I wonder if the witness does.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. All right. Now, Mr. Innes, isn't it true that while you were in San Pedro you teletyped Mervin Rathborne asking [2188] him to get Bridges to consent to go to the Madison Square Garden?

A. I testified to that effect.

Q. I am asking you a question. Please answer it yes or no.

Mr. Del Guercio: He has answered it, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is an affirmative answer.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Counsel can't argue with the witness and try to intimidate him.

Presiding Inspector: No, you shouldn't say those things. I think that is an affirmative answer. I so took it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Isn't it a fact while you were in San Pedro you got a response from Mervin Rathborne, to the effect that Bridges was willing to go?

A. No, it is not a fact.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you, receiving such a teletype from Rathborne then notified New York that Bridges was willing to go to Madison Square Garden? A. No, it is not a fact.

Q. Have you read your testimony that you gave before the Dies Committee before taking the stand here? A. Have I read it?

Q. Yes. [2189]

A. I read it when the Volume came out but I haven't read it since.

Q. Well, when did you read it?

A. Oh, probably six or seven months ago, whenever the Volume came out anyway.

Q. You were sworn when you gave that testimony, weren't you? A. Uh-huh.

Q. To tell the truth? A. Uh-huh.

Q. Did you tell the truth? A. I think so.

Q. Is there any doubt in your mind about it?

A. Not in my mind.

Q. I want to read you from your testimony before the Dies Committee, Volume 13, page 8046. I will begin early enough so that you can get the general gist of it, Mr. Innes.

Near the top of the page:

"Mr. Thomas. Have you got the date of the Garden meeting?"

Do you remember who Mr. Thomas was?

A. You mean Congressman Thomas, Parnell Thomas in New Jersey?

Q. You remember him, don't you?

A. Yes, I recall him very distinctly. [2190]

Q. You remember Mr. Voorhis was there?

A. Yes, of California.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Lynch was there?

A. Mr. Lynch was the counsel that cross examined me.

Q. He what?

A. Mr. Lynch was the cousel that cross examined me, the counsel for the Committee.

Q. He cross examined you?

A. Well, he questioned me, whatever you want to call it.

Q. All right.

"Mr. Thomas. Have you got the date of the Garden meeting?

"Mr. Innes. The Garden meeting was held in December—I have a flyer on it here somewhere; I have it right here.

"Mr. Voorhis. You mean the Madison Square Garden?

"Mr. Innes. Yes, December 16, 1936. It has Bridges' picture on it.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

"Mr. Thomas. Harry Bridges was the chief speaker there?

"Mr. Innes. Him and Vito Marcantonio.

"Mr. Lynch. What was the other fellow?

"Mr. Innes. That was Curran.

"Mr. Lynch. Now, may I ask you a question before you go into this? Was a teletype system installed between the Pacific coast and New York?

"Mr. Innes. The teletype arrangement. There was a tele- [2191] type in Bridges' office in San Francisco, there was one in Seattle, there was one in Portland, one in San Pedro, and then I paid to have one put in the office in New York so we could have conference calls on it and all get on the wire together.

"Mr. Lynch. In other words, this is one of the teletypes which was used?

"Mr. Innes. That is correct.

"Mr. Lynch. By you from the Pacific coast to New York?

"Mr. Innes. That is correct.

"Mr. Lynch. And from New York to the Pacific coast?

"Mr. Innes. Yes, sir.

"Mr. Lynch. Now, is this the one that has to do with the instructions with regard to Bridges coming East?

"Mr. Innes. When this message was sent it was sent to Bridges, but as it states later on he wasn't there and it was given to him. And then I have others where he confirmed the date of arrival in

New York. This one is dated—there is no date on it, but it is from San Pedro, California, to the District Council No. 2, San Francisco, 104, on the teletype, attention Rathborne, and it states:

"Due to phone call from here I had to leave without seeing you again. Talked to New York on phone this A.M. They desire to know whether Bridges will come to New York, expenses paid, to be on the platform, Madison Square Garden, [2192] December 14th. They desire he notify them yes or no immediately as John L. Lewis is to be there. The above is strictly confidential. Ask him to notify Joe in New York in writing as they also have made arrangements for Francis J. Gorman to be there also.

"And it is signed by me. Rathborne's answer:

"Okay. Have already discussed question with H. B. re going back to New York. Think perhaps he can go. Confirm date December 14.

"And that is signed by Rathborne."

Did you give that testimony?

A. Sure I gave it.

Q. Is that testimony true?

A. That is correct.

Q. Were you in San Pedro when you got the teletype telling you that Bridges would go to the East?

A. That doesn't say he would go East. I never got no teletype saying he would go East.

Q. Did you or not, while you were in San Pedro, teletype the message I have just read, to San Francisco?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I testified to that this morning, that I did send it, that is right.

Q. Please answer the question.

A. I answered it.

Mr. Del Guercio: He has answered the question, I submit. [2193]

Mr. Gladstein: Do you consider that an affirmative answer?

Presiding Inspector: I think it is an affirmative answer.

You mean yes?

The Witness: I said yes, yes, your Honor.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you receive that reply?

A. I did. That reply was all part of the same teletype; it didn't come in after.

Q. Is it your testimony that the arrangement for Bridges to go to New York was made by any other method than teletype?

A. Yes; I didn't arrange for him to go to New York. He got his orders from New York to come there, according to what he said over the phone.

Q. So at the time you testified before the Dies Committee you knew, did you, that Bridges was in communication by telephone with Tom Ray?

A. I did. [2194]

Q. Did you tell the Dies Committee that?

A. I did not.

Q. Why not?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I wasn't asked. I answered any questions that I was asked, the same as I would answer to you.

Q. I will read to you from page 8076 of the testimony you gave before the Dies Committee—withdraw that. That isn't the page I have in mind.

I read to you from page 8068, near the bottom of the page:

"Mr. Lynch: Do you know whether or not Bridges or Rathborne were communicating with Tommy Ray on the East Coast?

"Mr. Innes: Whether or not they were?

"Mr. Lynch: Yes.

"Mr. Innes: As far as I know, at that time the only direct communication that Bridges had with the Atlantic Coast was all carried on through me. As I later surmised when I got things together and started to work it out in my own mind, in the event the strike blew up the only people that would be actually involved or incriminated when the seamen would not be members of the Communist Party, it would be myself and Curran at the time if it blew up and the men didn't come out on strike—we would be the fall guys."

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please——

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished yet. Do you say I am misreading from the record? [2195]

Mr. Del Guercio: Go ahead—I will not say anything.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

You can go back and repeat if you want.

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——" . . . would be myself and Curran at the time if it blew up and the men didn't come out on strike—we would be the fall guys.

"Mr. Lynch: Now, the fact that there was a countermand of that agreement which was made with McGrady, would that indicate to you that there were private conversations had between Bridges and Rathborne with the East Coast directing them what to do?

"Mr. Innes: I would assume that Mr. Ray overruled the matter of a referendum.

"Mr. Lynch: Somebody overruled it, didn't they?

"Mr. Innes: That is correct.

"Mr. Lynch: And you did not know who overruled it?

"Mr. Innes: Yes, sir."

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Innes, did you give that testimony?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please, because counsel hasn't called the witness' attention to the fact that this refers to an earlier strike, as indicated by the testimony just above it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Does it refer to an earlier strike?

A. It refers to an earlier date. [2196]

Q. Does it refer to an earlier strike?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. An earlier date.

Q. Does it refer to an earlier strike?

Presiding Inspector: Don't answer. What difference does it make?

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Del Guercio said it referred to an earlier strike.

Presiding Inspector: We don't pay any attention to remarks of that kind. If it refers to an earlier strike I suppose the witness would say so. Does it?

The Witness: No, sir.

Presiding Inspector: That straightens it out. I didn't suppose there was an earlier one when this man had just gone out there.

Mr. Gladstein: There was an earlier strike in the spring prior to his arrival in San Francisco.

Presiding Inspector: Not after Mr. Innes got to California.

Mr. Gladstein: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: I see Mr. Del Guercio misspoke on that.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. I apologize to the Court for doing it. There is no reference to the Madison Square Garden meeting. [2197]

Presiding Inspector: Then there was nothing misleading in what Mr. Gladstein said.

Mr. Gladstein: Thank you.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Innes, have you been a member of the National Maritime Union?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. Yes. I was a member of the National Maritime Union.

Q. When did you first become a member of the National Maritime Union?

A. I helped organize it.

Q. I didn't ask you that. I asked you when.

A. You asked me the date I became a member—whatever date the Union came into existence—I don't know—but I helped organize the Union.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I think counsel should be admonished not to antagonize the witness.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I suppose that arousing antagonism is one method of cross examination.

Mr. Del Guercio: One of whose methods?

Presiding Inspector: Of cousel in general. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Will you read the last question?

(The last question and answer were read by the reporter as above recorded.) [2198]

Mr. Gladstein: Wasn't there another question?

The Reporter: No.

Presiding Inspector: There was a lot of talk in which the Presiding Officer took part.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I will ask the same question: When?

Presiding Inspector: You mean by date?

Mr. Gladstein: I am not asking for the exact date.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Presiding Inspector: Approximately.

A. 1937.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you remember about when in 1937?

A. The date that the Union was formed; the date we withdrew from the International Seamen's Union, A.F. of L., and went into the CIO. What the date was I don't know. It was in 1937.

Q. Can't you give an approximation?

A. In the spring, or summer, or fall—I don't know.

Q. And for how long did you remain a member of that Union?

A. Until I quite in 1939, January.

Q. Where were you when you quit?

A. In New York.

Q. And how did you quit?

A. I just up and quit; that it all. [2199]

Q. Did you formally resign or take any——

A. (Interposing) No.

Q. (Continuing.) Please wait until the question is finished.

A. Sorry.

Q. ——or take any action indicating your desire to quit?

A. Did I indicate my desire to quit d the question again.

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Gladstein: I will reframe the question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you formally resign, or take any action indicating to the Union that you were quitting?

Presiding Inspector: "Yes" or "No"?

A. Well, it is "Yes" and "No".

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Make it "yes" or "no" and go ahead and qualify it.

Presiding Inspector: Tell us which is "yes" and which is "no"?

A. As Bridges no doubt knows, I went to the hospital, after I had brought charges against Finky Smith, over there, Ferdinand Smith, the Vice President of the Union, and as a result [2200] I met with Communist tactics and I got dumped, in plain English. So I went to the hospital with a fractured skull. I came out of the hospital—in the meantime the comrades had access to my stocks, and so forth, and things didn't check up the way they were when I left, when I came back to take the job over, and I so informed the Secretary-Treasurer of the Union. I couldn't get any satisfaction from Curran, or anybody else, so on Saturday night I locked the safe, left my keys there, and quit.

Q. Did you take any other action to indicate to the Union that you had resigned from it?

A. No.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Innes, that you were expelled by the Union?

A. I didn't get that.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you were expelled for 99

years by the Second Annual National Convention of the National Maritime Union of America, held between July 3 and July 14, 1939?

A. I wouldn't know. I was a coal burning fireman on a ferryboat at that time, and I wasn't at the convention.

No, Brother Bridges, it wasn't a scab ferryboat. I got Union wages.

Presiding Inspector: Never mind.

The Witness: He whispered that loud enough to his counsel for me to hear. I am not a scab. (Laughter)

Presiding Inspector: We will have to have order in [2201] the court room.

We want no remarks from you except in reply to questions of counsel.

The Witness: Sorry.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Innes, that your expulsion from the Union, for the period of 99 years, was on the charge of absconding with Union funds?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I don't think that is——

The Witness: (Interposing) I can answer the question.

Presiding Inspector: If he can, let him answer.

A. I wouldn't know that I was expelled. I know I am suing the Union for mentioning the fact in the "Dirty" Worker that I had absconded with funds, but I don't know anything about my expulsion. I never received any notice of expulsion, trial, charge, or anything else.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You have learned, have you, that you were charged by the Union with absconding with Union funds?

A. All I know is what I read in the "Dirty" Worker that I had absconded with funds. I read that after my Dies Committee testimony.

Q. Have you heard whether or not the second convention of the NMU took action against you?

[2202]

A. I wouldn't know. I wasn't there.

Presiding Inspector: When was that?

The Witness: That was in July, counsel said.

Mr. Gladstein: July 1939.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You mentioned a few moments ago something about having your skull fractured?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall an incident in the Union offices of the NMU when you and some others had baseball bats?

A. Do I remember the incident?

Q. Yes. A. Very well.

Q. And you and these others who were with you attacked certain people who were in the offices of the—wait, I haven't finished.

A. I haven't answered yet.

Q. (Continuing) ——and you and the others

with you who had the baseball bats attacked certain office employees and others in the offices of the NMU? A. No.

Presiding Inspector: The question is, do you remember the incident?

The Witness: Do I remember the incident when certain people were attacked in the Union by me and a group carrying [2203] baseball pats?—— I don't recall any such incident.

Presiding Inspector: Ask the next question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You don't remember that?

A. Remember persons being attacked? I said, I don't remember any such an incident.

Presiding Inspector: That answers the question. Go ahead.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You say you were arrested once?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you ever commit any act which you knew to be a criminal offense?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment——

A. (Interposing) I decline to answer that question.

Mr. Del Guercio: Don't reply until I submit my objection. That question is not proper, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: He takes advantage of his privilege.

Mr. Gladstein: Privilege?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I will admit that it would be proper to take advantage of his privilege had he not previously testified about it but if, without claiming the privilege, he tells the Dies Committee about committing illegal acts, telling them he knew they were illegal, then I think he waives his privilege.

[2204]

Presiding Inspector: I don't know anything about what he stated before the Dies Committee, except what you have read from certain portions.

Mr. Gladstein: I know that portion.

Presiding Inspector: I rule he has taken advantage of his privilege.

Ask the next question.

He says in substance that the answer might tend to incriminate him, or would tend to incriminate him.

The Witness: No, sir, your Honor, I don't take advantage of my privilege. Even if I did take advantage of my privilege the answer would still be "No". I will have to qualify the answer.

Presiding Inspector: He withdraws his privilege then and the answer is "No".

The Witness: With qualifications.

Presiding Inspector: Let us hear the qualifications.

The Witness: Counsel is inferring I testified——

Presiding Inspector: No, no, no. We don't care about counsel's statement.

The Witness: I testified I have been arrested once. He asked if I ever have done anything, committed any act, any felonies, and I say that is an improper question.

Presiding Inspector: Just a minute. I ruled with you.

The Witness: I never committed any acts nor felonies, [2205] crimes, or otherwise, to my knowledge.

Presiding Inspector: All right. I think it has been sufficiently confused now in the record.

Ask the next question.

Mr. Gladstein: Would your Honor care to take the afternoon recess now?

Presiding Inspector: All right. We will take a short recess.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

Presiding Inspector: All right, Mr. Gladstein.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, the teletype that I read to you from your testimony in the Dies Committee was one that you sent from San Pedro, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And to that you received an answer from Mervin Rathborne, correct?

A. No. That was all part of the same teletype. In other words, I sent the message from that end and that came right back at the same time. It wasn't a separate answer.

Q. They were all on the same sheet?

A. Correct.

Q. But a part of that sheet represents what you were saying while you were in San Pedro which you were saying to San Francisco?

A. That is right. [2206]

Q. And the balance of the sheet represents what Rathborne in San Francisco was saying to you while you were in San Pedro?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. Now, what did you do after that teletype conversation had concluded?

A. Nothing; because it wasn't definite and I couldn't call New York and tell them "Yes" or "No". So I did nothing.

Q. How long did you continue to do nothing about this?

A. Until the next day when I received a telephone call from New York wanting to know what the answer was, and I told them I hadn't received any answer from Bridges, which I hadn't received. The answer from Rathborne didn't speak for Bridges.

Q. Did you use, through the 1936 strike, the teletype arrangement between San Pedro and San Francisco pretty much?

A. Oh, yes; fairly often.

Q. When you wanted to talk with Bridges, or get in touch with him, to whom would you send your teletype message?

A. I would address it to him in his office. There was a teletype kept in his suite up there at 112 Market Street. I didn't use the Federation set-up, on Golden Hill, or Golden Gate, whatever you call it, at Sacramento and California Streets.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. You say there was a teletype in Bridges' office?

A. In his suite of offices. There were three offices. [2207] I don't know, wouldn't say it was in his office; it was in part of his office. The District Council office and the ILA office were there together.

Q. Who occupied the other offices?

A. A stenographer, Rathborne and Bridges.

Q. Wasn't the teletype in San Francisco in Rathborne's office?

A. It was in the outer office. You go in the door, and the teletype was in Rathborne's portion of the suite; and the other one, the other part of the suite was occupied by Bridges. It was in the District Council office, if you want to put it that way.

Q. Do you remember the approximate date of that teletype the one we are now discussing?

A. I believe it was in the first week in December; I don't know the exact date.

Q. Then you say after that about a day or so later you got another telephone call from New York and so you came to San Francisco?

A. Not a day or so later; I got it the next day.

Q. After receiving the telephone call how long did you wait before you came to San Francisco?

A. I left immediately for San Francisco that night.

Q. And when did you arrive in San Francisco?

A. The next morning, or the next day. [2208]

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Did anybody come with you?

A. The kid that was driving the car.

Q. Who was that?

A. His name was Theodore Widdows, a cadet off the California.

Q. He was then a cadet off the California?

A. Correct; he was a striker.

Q. And do you know where his residence was?

A. No; except somewhere on the east coast. I didn't know the address and don't now.

Q. Of what Union, if any, was he a member?

A. He was not a member of any Union. At that time it was not the policy of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association to allow cadets to belong to the Union.

Q. Do you know whether he subsequently became a member of the Union? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know what his residence was?

A. I do not. His residence here was in San Pedro, one of the dormitories that our particular group maintained, but for his home address, I don't know where that was; except it was on the Atlantic Coast.

Q. He was one of the strikers off the California? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, you arrived in San Francisco the following [2209] morning? A. That is right.

Q. Where did you go?

A. Proceeded directly to Bridges' office. Parked the car in front there and went upstairs.

Q. Were you alone?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. Was I alone; — yes.

Presiding Inspector: Haven't you asked him about the meeting in Bridges' office? I thought you asked him about this since we came back from lunch.

Mr. Del Guercio: He has, your Honor.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Let me ask you this question: After you talked about New York in Bridges' office where did you then go?

A. After I had talked—after I had received the phone call from New York?

Q. Yes. A. In his office?

Q. Yes.

A. We went outside, that is, we went to another phone.

Q. Do you know where?

A. I don't recall whether it was in the same building or next door or across the street. I know it was quite handy. It was a little cigar store, I believe, or it may have been a [2210] drug store. I am not exactly positive. It was a pay phone anyway.

Presiding Inspector: You went over this also.

Mr. Gladstein: Not the questions I want; I mean, I have talked on the subject.

Presiding Inspector: Up to this time you had covered them.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know whether the call to San Francisco when you were in Bridges' office was person to person to you?

A. I do not; I never asked. In fact, I can answer that "No", it was not, because I had New York directly on the phone. Person to person I would have an operator.

Q. What is that?

A. On a person to person call the operator asks if it is so and so and you answer if it is. If it is a station to station call you have your party immediately; they talk to anybody.

Q. Well, who made the call?

A. Well, when I got on the phone McCuistion was on the phone on the other end; Rathborne answered the phone.

Q. Which end of the phone made the call?

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, he has testified——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Let's find out which telephone you are talking about.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. The one in Bridges' office; is that what you understand? [2211]

Presiding Inspector: That is before they went to the——

The Witness: (Interposing) Outside.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Didn't you so understand, Mr. Innes?

A. I didn't get that.

Q. Do you understand that we are now discussing the telephone——

A. (Interposing) I am discussing the call that came to me; I am not discussing any other.

Q. When you were in Mr. Bridges' office?

A. That is right.

Q. And you say that your recollection is that Rathborne answered the phone?

A. That is my recollection; it was not Bridges that answered the phone.

Q. And then after Rathborne answered the phone you were put on the phone?

A. Rathborne says "They want you on the telephone."

Q. And then you talked to McCuistion?

A. I talked to McCuistion; he was on the phone.

Q. And then you hung up after the conversation?

A. That is right. The conversation lasted probably a moment.

Q. Except for Rathborne answering the phone and you [2212] taking it over after that nobody else on your end spoke on the phone?

A. No, sir.

Q. Then, where did you go?

A. I then told Bridges that New York called and said that Tommy Ray wanted to talk to him, and we were to go to an outside telephone. Then we went outside to—I don't recall whether the pay phone was in 112 or next door; I am not positive exactly of the location.

Q. Did you go directly from Mr. Bridges' office to the public phone?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute, if your Honor please. that has been gone over now, it seems to me, three times.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, I think at least three times, but you may have it.

A. Yes, I don't think we stopped anywhere on the way except waiting for the elevator.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you remember where you went, where the public telephone was?

Mr. Del Guercio: I repeat the objection.

Presiding Inspector: He has told you repeatedly he didn't know if it was a drug store or——

The Witness: (Interposing) I don't recall whether it was in the building itself or next door. If I recall correctly, [2273] it is a little cigar store.

Presiding Inspector: I think he has answered that at least four times in reply to your question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. All right, you went directly from Mr. Bridges' office to the public telephone?

A. That is true.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is the same thing all over again.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Presiding Inspector: That is just what you have asked.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Then, you made the telephone call to New York?

A. I did, yes; I called the number they had given me to call.

Q. Do you know how much it cost you?

A. I didn't pay for it; I sent it collect.

Q. You mean you used a public telephone and sent it collect on the other public telephone?

A. That is correct, that is correct.

Q. Yes. Now, you mentioned a little while ago that you had a suit against the National Maritime Union.

A. I have a suit against Joseph Curran as a co-defendant with the National Maritime Union.

Q. You were suing that union for libel and slander?

A. I am suing that union on nine counts of libel in conjunction with Joe Curran, for slander and libel.

Q. Are you asking for damages in that suit?

[2214] A. I am.

Q. Will you state, please, ho wmuch in damages you are requesting? A. $25,000 on each count.

Q. And there are how many counts?

A. $225,000 worth.

Presiding Inspector: That doesn't impress me particularly if the practice is the same here——

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) You mean as to the request?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, as in New York. They always put the sky as the limit.

Mr. Gladstein: Oh, I understand that, your Honor.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In addition to that you are also involved in other litigation concerning the National Maritime Union, aren't you?

A. I believe I was; I don't know. They brought suit against me but I have never heard anything about it since I answered it. I don't know anything about it.

Q. Didn't they bring suit against you to replevin certain materials which it was charged you had unlawfully stolen from the union? A. No.

Q. What did they charge you with?

A. They didn't charge me with stealing them. They charged me with having them unlawfully in my possession.

Q. All right. Do you know whether a judgment was ever [2215] obtained in that case?

A. I answered the subpoena, that is, my attorney answered it, and I have never heard anything about it. I don't think they even put it on the calendar.

Q. And isn't it true that in the suit that the National Maritime Union brought against you it was charged that the things unlawfully in your possession included minutes of meetings, letters, records of purchases and sales, books of account, sales slips, receipts, vouchers, due stubs, dues receipt books and union books, and documents?

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. What materiality has that unless it is admitted that there was a judgment?

Mr. Gladstein: I am not able to say at this time, your Honor, whether an actual judgment was obtained.

Presiding Inspector: Then, we better not go into it until you find out. If he admits it in his answer, that will be all right.

Mr. Gladstein: It is my belief—well, I could ask him that. I am simply asking him whether he was charged with——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well, what he was charged with wouldn't make any difference. I might charge anyone with any offense.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I will put it this way:

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You did have certain materials in your possession, [2216] did you not?

A. Well, you will have to tell me what you mean by "materials".

Q. Well, did you have——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Papers?

The Witness: I had a twenty-year collection of Communist Party literature, if that is what they are talking about. I would like to know what he means by "materials".

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Presiding Inspector: You had papers?

The Witness: I had papers in my possession, yes, sir.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you have letters that were connected with the Union?

A. I had letters written personally to me, yes, in which union matters might be discussed.

Q. Did you have minutes of meetings?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I will object to this line of questioning. Are we going to try that suit here?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know; I don't think so, but I think, I will let the witness answer.

A. Yes, I had minutes of meetings.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you have records of purchases and sales of the union? A. I did not—— [2217]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Just a moment.

According to the argument, or contention, as I surmise it, it is claimed that some illegal act was done here, some criminal act, and that might affect his credibility if it is proved. Therefore, I will allow this testimony as bearing on credibility.

Mr. Del Guercio: I assume that counsel is reading from the transcript that was filed.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I know, but the complaint itself isn't of any—that is merely a charge in a civil suit for damages, suppose.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: It is an affidavit.

Presiding Inspector: Or for the possession of these articles.

Mr. Gladstein: It is an affidavit to replevin certain union property.

Presiding Inspector: I will ask you for information off the record.

(Discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, the suit that you brought against the union was based on, among other things, the fact that the union had officially accused you of stealing union property, of accepting rake-offs, of accepting the highest bid when you should have accepted the lowest bid as a trusted union official, and [2218] of engaging in other activities of a similar nature; isn't that true?

A. That was one of the complaints, yes, one of many.

Q. You were prior to the time that you left the National Maritime Union occupying the position known as purchasing agent, weren't you?

A. That was one of the positions I occupied in my service in the union, yes.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Gladstein, I don't wish you to misunderstand my ruling. I don't prevent your examining him as to the facts, but using the complaint in this as proof of the facts, that is all.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I understand, I understand.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, I think I asked you whether you had ever been a member of the Communist Party. You said "No." A. That is correct.

Q. You have never taken orders from them?

A. (No response).

Q. You have never taken orders from them?

A. You will have to explain what you mean by "taking orders from them."

Q. Have you taken orders from the Communist Party?

A. Well, you will have to explain that question.

Q. Don't you understand it? [2219]

A. No, not the way it is delivered, I don't. I have taken orders from people who are members of the Communist Party, if that is what you mean.

Q. Well, have you ever taken orders from the Communist Party in the sense that a member of the Communist Party would take and carry out their orders? A. No.

Q. You said a while ago that Mervin Rathborne was a Communist. A. That is right.

Q. You said he was a member of the Communist Party. A. That is right.

Q. You said you knew it.

A. I don't know whether I said it or not that way. You will have to have it read back.

Q. Do you know it?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. Do I know that he is a member of the Communist Party?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. You mean by seeing his membership book or a card or something like that?

Q. Can't you answer the question? Do you know?

A. Well, I don't know how you mean the thing. Do I know it? You mean have I seen physical proof of it?

Presiding Inspector: No; just as you would know things in [2220] ordinary life.

The Witness: Yes, as I know things in ordinary life, yes, I know it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You have knowledge of it? A. Yes.

Q. What is that knowledge? A. Well——

Q. This is first-hand knowledge now?

A. I didn't find out such a thing.

Presiding Inspector: No, any kind of knowledge.

The Witness: I asked you to explain that.

Presiding Inspector: What you would call knowledge in things of ordinary life.

The Witness: I would——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): You know the witness asked you to explain it.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I will put it this way.

Presiding Inspector: No, it is on the record now.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I don't care what is on the record. I asked him the question do you know.

Presiding Inspector: I will stop the examination and ask the question that you asked.

How do you know it?

The Witness: I know it the same as I know that certain [2221] people are members of other groups. I know it from the fact that Mervin Rathborne has met with Roy Hudson. I know it from the fact that Mervin Rathborne takes orders from Tommy Ray when he was an official of the union, that is, Rathborne. I know it from the fact he takes orders from Roy Pyle who directs operations and who was an admitted member of the Party.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You say you know it among other reason because Rathborne met with Hudson?

A. Rathborne met with Hudson and took orders from him, yes.

Q. Did you ever meet with Hudson?

A. Have I ever met Hudson?

Q. Yes.

A. I have met Hudson; certainly I have met him.

Q. Did you ever meet with Hudson?

A. I have been present, but any meetings that I was present with the hierarchy of the Party, or directors, would be—I was not allowed to participate in the discussion. I was very quickly shut up.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Well, were you present in Communist meetings with Hudson?

A. In Communist meetings? Yes, I attended one fraction meeting in 1936, in my hunting for Patrick Whelan, I walked into a Firemen's Section of the Communist Party headquarters, [2222] the first time I was ever inside of the joint and the last time, and Hudson was present, or came in during that meeting, and Tommy Ray was the Chairman of the meeting dictating as to who were to be the delegates from there to the C. P. Convention.

Q. How long were you at that meeting?

A. Well, I couldn't get out after I got in until the meeting got going. I would assume I was there an hour and a half or two hours. That is when they asked me to join the Party; I refused.

Q. Did you engage in the discussion?

A. I did not.

Q. When was that?

A. That was the early part of June 1936. To the best of my recollection it was either the last week in May or the early part of June.

Q. That was a Communist fraction meeting?

A. That was a Communist fraction meeting held on West—or East 13th Street in the C. P. headquarters.

Q. Did you ever meet with Hudson at a Communist meeting?

A. In a Communist meeting?

Q. Yes. A. No.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. I mean a Communist fraction meeting?

A. Well, I don't know what you would call a fraction. [2223] I have met when the—as I stated before when the hierarchy were all together. I was, you might say, the only outsider that was present.

Q. Well, we have had testimony here, for your benefit, Mr. Innes, about meetings which are called fraction meetings, and testimony that these meetings are Communist meetings.

Now, have you, with the exception of the one you have just told us about, ever met with Roy Hudson in any fraction or Communist meeting since that time?

A. As I stated before, I don't know what you would call them. I am not that much acquainted with it. During the strike when the top shots of the Communist Party, like the meeting in Bridges' room in the Victoria Hotel, now, if you want to call that a fraction meet, I met various Communist Party members at a fraction meeting. I would call it just a place where you got your general orders and carried them out.

Q. Well, now, was Hudson there in the Victoria Hotel?

A. I don't exactly remember. I would have to give that some thought for a moment.

Q. Well, think about it.

A. I believe he came into the Victoria Hotel while we were in there.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Well, then, you would say he was at that meeting?

A. What is that? I would say he was at that meeting? That is correct. [2224]

Q. That makes two meetings you had with Hudson? A. That is right.

Q. Any others?

A. Yes; one here in San Francisco when Joe Curran was out here.

Q. When was that?

A. October, 1936.

Q. When in October?

A. Curran arrived here either October the 20th or the 21st——

Q. (Interposing): Did you have a—excuse me.

A. (Continuing): Of October. You asked me: I am trying to answer you.

Q. Excuse me. I withdraw that. Go ahead.

A. In 1936; it was either October the 20th or 21st.

Q. But you had a meeting with——

A. (Interposing): I didn't say that I had the meeting with Hudson. I said that is the date that Curran arrived here.

Q. Well, when did you have your meeting with Hudson?

A. I believe it was the next night in Mervin Rathborne's house up on Pine Street.

Q. Was it a Communist meeting?

A. In the sense that you have just defined a Communist Party meeting I would say it was.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Were you a Communist then? [2225]

A. I have stated I never belonged to the Party?

Q. Well, then, you said a little while ago that one reason, among others, that you know that Rathborne was a Communist was because he met with Hudson. Now, your meeting with Hudson in this kind of a meeting that you have described didn't make you a member of the Communist Party, did it?

A. No, because I didn't take orders from Hudson?

Q. Where is the Victoria Hotel located?

A. The Victoria Hotel is across the street from the Taft, which, I believe, is—I will tell you exactly where it is at. It is on Seventh Avenue and 52nd Street, in New York City.

Q. When were you first contacted by the FBI to testify in this case? A. In October 1940.

Q. And where did this contact occur?

A. The contact occurred at my residence.

Q. Where?

A. I don't believe I am required to give my address, except that it took place in New York.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see any harm in it.

The Witness: Well, you don't understand the Communist Party, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: No, perhaps I don't, but I understand the rules of examining witnesses. I think you may answer. [2226]

The Witness: All right, it was on 52nd Street

in New York City, the West side; they came to my home.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What was the address, please?

A. 309 West 52nd Street. [2227]

Q. Who came? A. The agents' names?

Q. If you remember?

A. I don't think I am required to answer the agents' names except I know they were representatives of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. They identified themselves.

Presiding Inspector: If you can, you better give the name, if you know the name.

The Witness: I know the name of one of the agents.

Presiding Inspector: Well, tell us the name.

The Witness: His name was Malley, M-a-l-l-e-y.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you recall the name of the other?

A. I do not.

Q. How long were they there?

A. I should judge probably 20 to 25 minutes.

Q. What occurred? A. They asked me——

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, what occurred with respect to what? Are we going all over again as to everything that occurred?

Presiding Inspector: Probably.

Mr. Del Guercio: Or limit it to some kind of an examination here?

Presiding Inspector: Oh, well—— [2228]

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein (Interposing): You will recall, your Honor, I introduced this line of questioning by asking the witness when he was first asked to give information concerning Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. It is about that subject?

Mr. Gladstein: It is obviously that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Didn't you so understand it, Mr. Innes?

A. Well, if that is what you claim, that is the way I will understand it, answer it.

Q. Did you or did you not so understand it?

Presiding Inspector: You understand it now?

The Witness: I understand it now, yes, your Honor.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. All right. Now, tell us what took place.

A. Agent Malley asked me if I was the Peter Innes that testified before the Dies Committee and I said I was, and he asked me if I knew that the Department of Justice was investigating an Alien by the name of Harry Bridges and I said I had read something of the matter in the newspaper, and he then asked me if I would be willing to go to their office and tell them anything I might know concerning Bridges, or answer their questions, and I said I was perfectly willing to go to their office, and I did that.

Q. Did they take a statement from you at that time? [2229] A. They did.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Did you sign it? A. I did.

Q. When is the next time that you met with any representatives of the FBI?

A. The day that I left New York City when I was informed by my commanding officer to report to Agent Malley at the FBI office.

Q. Now, prior to the time that you met with the FBI, outside of the testimony you gave before the Dies Committee, did you ever give any statements as to what you knew about Harry Bridges?

A. To who?

Q. To anybody?

A. Why, I might have; I don't know.

Q. Do you recall any?

A. Why, in the general course of conversation, why, I might say something about Bridges.

Q. No; I mean did you give any comprehensive statements with respect to what you claimed to know as to Bridges' political affiliations?

A. To who?

Q. To anybody? A. I don't remember.

Q. Any written statements? [2230]

A. I don't remember that either.

Q. Did you ever talk to the Immigration and Naturalization Service or representatives from it?

A. No; not until they served a subpoena on me to come out here.

Q. At the time that you were first contacted by the FBI at the New York address that you have just given were you living there alone or with anyone else? A. I was living alone.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. I think you said that when Bridges went back East he went there with Merriweather?

A. I believe it was Merriweather.

Q. Who was he?

A. Merriweather was the head of the MEBA here in San Francisco, Marine Engineers Beneficial Association.

Q. And I think you said that you drove Bridges and Merriweather up to the hotel?

A. No, I didn't. I said that Bridges rode in the car with Curran and myself to the hotel; I didn't drive.

Q. Well, where did Merriweather go?

A. I don't recall whether he rode with us or whether he went on up on some other business to the MEBA office.

Q. Do you know whether Merriweather went to the same hotel that Bridges went to?

A. That is something I couldn't answer except I know [2231] that the day we left for Baltimore or the day we left for Boston and Baltimore that Merriweather was in the room when I arrived there. Whether he was living there or not I don't know.

Q. In the Victoria Hotel?

A. In the Victoria, that is correct.

Q. In whose room was that now?

A. It was the room that Bridges had, but whether Merriweather was living at the hotel or living with Bridges, I don't know.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Were you present when Bridges registered at the hotel?

A. I think I stayed outside to talk to the two bodyguards that men—that were uptown or—yes, they came to the place and I talked to them. That was Walter Carney and Bill Cunningham. They were to be assigned to Bridges.

Q. Now, you mentioned this morning that one of the things that you discussed in the teletype system with the East, with —New York, was the question of expenses. Will you elaborate on that a little bit, Mr. Innes, and tell us how that happened to come up and what you did about it?

A. I never made no such testimony here.

Q. I mean expenses for Bridges' trip to Madison Square Garden?

A. I never made any such testimony here that I teletyped [2232] or communicated on the teletype with New York concerning Bridges' expenses.

Q. Did you have anything to do with that at all?

A. I said I never made any such testimony here.

Q. Let me ask you this: Did you do anything or commit any act of any kind in connection with arranging for obtaining expenses for the trip that Bridges was to take to the Madison Square Garden?

Presiding Inspector: In advance, you mean?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

A. From Frisco to New York?

Mr. Gladstein: From any place?

A. I paid his expenses from New York to Boston by plane and I paid his expenses from New York to Baltimore by train. That is the only arrangements I made concerning his expenses. I paid it out of strike fund money that I had with me.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't think Mr. Gladstein is asking you about that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I am asking you now, Mr. Innes, about the question of expenses before Bridges left the West Coast.

A. I had nothing to do with his leaving the West Coast. As I stated before I could not, or I did not make the arrangements for him to leave here to go to go to New York. [2233]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I want to know now whether you ever communicated with New York, anyone in New York, communicated in any form prior to Bridges leaving San Francisco for the Madison Square Garden meeting on the subject of Bridges' expenses and how they would be met?

A. All I know is what I communicated by teletype to Mervin Rathborne in New York City that they would pay his expenses. Aside from that I didn't know a thing about it. I had nothing to do with it; I made no arrangements and I don't know.

Q. Where you when you delivered that communication to Rathborne?

A. The teletype says San Pedro and I sent it from there; I assume that I was there.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Where was Rathborne when you sent that message to him?

A. Well, he got it in San Francisco. He may have been over in Oakland; I don't know.

Q. And do you recall what the subject of that was, what it said?

Presiding Inspector: We have been all over that.

A. You read it to me out of the record there.

Presiding Inspector: Haven't we been all over that?

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know if I have. [2234]

The Witness: You read it out of the Dies Committee report.

Presiding Inspetor: You read the teletype.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Innes, some of the things which the National Maritime Union was attempting to replevin from you in the suit brought against you were letters and other written documents which you had obtained from the apartment of Joe Curran; isn't that right?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, that has been gone over before.

Mr. Gladstein: Not that way.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think quite that way. It has been rather——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) In a little different form.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I wouldn't say that. The bill of complaint didn't mention Joe Curran's apartment.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you have in your possession letters or other documents which you had obtained from the apartment of Joe Curran?

A. When?

Q. At the time that you were sued?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, just a minute, please. [2235]

Your Honor I want to know if counsel here was reading from the complaint at the time——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well, he can't use the complaint.

Mr. Del Guercio: I beg your pardon?

Presiding Inspector: He can't use it. As I understand, he is not now using the complaint.

Mr. Del Guercio: He says the complaint mentions —Joe Curran's name, he took something from Joe Curran's apartment.

Presiding Inspector: Didn't the witness say that Joe Curran's name was not mentioned in the complaint?

The Witness: That is right, sir.

Presiding Inspector: The witness said that.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know. I still have a question that I am asking. Would you hear the question?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly, I will hear the question.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

The Witness: When are you talking about?

Presiding Inspector: Now, wait; let's get the question: Let's hear the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

The Witness; You say Joe Curran's apartment or otherwise? Am I correct there, Mr. Gladstein?

[2236]

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Did you have letters or documents which you obtained from the apartment of Joe Curran and did you have them in your possession?

The Witness: At the time I was served——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) At the time suit was brought?

The Witness: At the time suit was brought?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know why that is particularly material.

The Witness: No, I didn't have them in my possession at the time the suit was brought.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Had you previously had them in your possession?

A. Documents that had formerly been in Joe Curran's apartment?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you dispose of those documents?

A. No.

Q. Did you give them to somebody?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. No.

Q. Well, you say that at one time they were in your possession, that thereafter they were not?

A. They were not at the time the suit was brought; that is what you asked me. [2237]

Q. All right. Will you explain the circumstances under which you gave up possession of those documents?

A. I didn't give up possession. They were in the safe deposit box.

Q. Where was the safe deposit box?

A. I refuse to answer that on the grounds I have a suit pending in New York which the Court will decide, whether or not I have to surrender those documents.

Q. Was this a safe deposit box which you had arranged for your safe keeping of the documents?

A. That is correct. [2238]

Q. Is it correct then that since the date that you obtained these letters and documents, whatever they were, from Joe Curran's apartment they have always been either in your possession or in the place where you had then stored? A. No.

Q. At any time have they been in somebody else's possession? A. Correct.

Q. Whose?

A. They were in the possession of the Dies Committee.

Q. Who delivered them to the Dies Committee?

A. I believe Jerry King or Ralph Emerson did.

Q. How was that arranged?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. That was arranged when they asked me if they could have the use of them for the Dies Committee, and I told them "Absolutely."

Q. Can you describe in a general way what these documents and letters were?

A. Yes. You mean the ones from Joe Curran's apartment.

Q. Yes.

A. They were original copies of the reports that I had made to Joseph Curran while I was on the Pacific Coast. He had ordered Carney and myself to go up to his apartment and destroy the financial records of the strike, and in the course [2239] of destroying those records I came across these original reports that I had made and, as I had the carbon copies, I put the originals in my pocket, and still have them. I didn't burn them up with the financial records.

Q. You were asked by him to go up and destroy those things? A. By Curran?

Q. Yes.

A. We were told to go up and burn them up.

Q. And instead of which you took them?

A. I didn't take the financial records. I destroyed them.

Q. But you——

A. (Interposing) As long as the original reports were of no value to him, and he wanted them burned up, I put them with my carbon copies and still have them.

Q. Instead of which you took them, correct?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. Yes, I took them.

Q. Is it your testimony that the only thing that you took were the originals of the reports and letters that you had sent to Curran?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute.

Presiding Inspector: He said "Yes."

Mr. Del Guercio: That has been asked and answered. [2240]

The Witness: That is all I took.

Mr. Del Guercio: Wait until the Court rules.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. He said that was all he took from that place.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. That was from Joe Curran's apartment?

A. Yes; it was a furnished room.

Q. You didn't take any financial or strike records, or Union records, from there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you take any financial or strike, or union records from any other place?

A. No, sir.

Q. From the Union itself?

A. No, sir.

Q. Would it be correct to say that you have never supplied to Jerry King, or Emerson, or William McCuistion, or anybody else, any Union records, or strike records, or financial records of the NMU or the Marine Firemen?

A. NMU or the Marine Firemen?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. That is right.

A. You say Union records? I want to get it straight now before I answer it.

I will have to have you say that again.

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question. [2241]

Presiding —Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the question is too confusing.

Presiding Inspector: If the witness understands it he may answer.

A. The answer is "No." I never supplied any Union records. —

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Innes, could you, in a brief way, state what your attitude is toward the Communist Party?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I submit that question is improper. The witness here has testified he never belonged to the Communist Party. It isn't an issue here as to what he believes about the Communist Party.

Mr. Gladstein: It is material.

Presiding Inspector: It it?

Mr. Gladstein: I think it is.

Presiding Inspector. It might possibly have some bearing on his credibility or bias.

"Yes" or "no", can you state in a word what your attitude is toward the Communist Party?

The Witness: Can I state it?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Just a minute. Are you asking me. I am asking you whether you can state it, whether you are able [2242] to state it.

The Witness: Well, I am able to state my opinino of the Communist Party but—— Presiding Inspector: Are you interested in his opinion?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want it?

Mr. Gladstein: Sure.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I don't believe that the witness' opinion of the Communist Party is proper.

Presiding Inspector: It is his attitude and I suppose it is based on his opinion.

Mr. Del Guercio: Do we want to get into his opinion of the Communist Party?

Presiding Inspector: Well, his opinion of it might be one of love and friendship, or maybe to the contrary. On the other hand, it might be one of indifference. If he can state it we will take it.

A. I think that anybody who belongs to the Communist Party, that Congress ought to vote an appropriation and an escort and send them to Russia where they can do what they want—that is my opinion.

Presiding Inspector: That is quite definite.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you think the same thing during 1936?

A. The latter part of 1936, yes; and the early part of [2243] 1936 I had formed no opinion except

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

I stated I would not join the Party because I didn't believe in its policies or polities.

Q. Can you state in a general and brief way what your attitude is towards Harry Bridges?

A. I got nothing against Harry Bridges. In fact, I think I still owe him twenty bucks that he loaned me.

Presiding Inspector: Does that generate hostility?

The Witness: I don't think so.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What attitude do you have concerning his policies in the trade union movement?

A. I don't think, as I am not a member, or ever was a member of his union, I can state my attitude toward his policies in his union.

Q. That is the only reason that you feel you are disqualified, because you have never been a longshoreman?

A. I am not qualified to answer statements as to policies in the ILWU because I never belonged to it.

Q. I am asking you what your attitude is concerning his policies in so far as they affect the labor movement?

A. At the present day?

Q. Today, or at any time heretofore.

A. Well, at one time I used to think his policies were all right, but starting in 1936 I didn't agree with him any more; and I still don't agree with his policies regarding the labor [2244] movement today.

Q. Has this disagreement been pretty continuous since the time it began? A. Yes.

Q. You think his policies are bad for the labor movement.

A. I think I just expressed that opinion.

Q. That is what you meant to say?

A. That is right.

Q. Do you think he ought to be deported?

A. I refuse to answer that. That is not for me to decide.

Mr. Gladstein: I think I should have an answer to that question.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the answer is clear enough.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that is quite proper. You have asked whether he has any hostility. I do not think he should form a judgment as to——

Mr. Gladstein: I will put it this way, your Honor.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you think that the labor movement in America would be better off if Bridges were out of the country?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question, if your Honor please.

Mr. Gladstein: It goes to the question of his attitude, [2245] the attitude of the witness.

Presiding Inspector: He has expressed it pretty fully, hasn't he?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: But he hasn't answered the question, and if he can answer I think I am entitled to the answer.

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. Let me think about it.

I really don't think it has much bearing.

Mr. Gladstein: Why?

Presiding Inspector: If you really want to know this witness' attitude in this respect I think I will let him state it.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I be heard?

Presiding Inspector: I do not think it is necessary for you to be heard.

Mr. Del Guercio: You don't?

Presiding Inspector: No.

The Witness: May I have the question again, please?

Presiding Inspector: The question is this: Do you think the labor movement would be improved by the removal of Mr. Bridges from the country?

A. I will answer, but I want it understood, with qualifications that, as I have stated before, I have no personal animosity toward Bridges, but I think the Country and the labor movement as a whole—if it is proven to this Board that what I [2246] contend is correct—that the country would be better off without him.

Presiding Inspector: That is your answer.

Mr. Gladstein: That is what I thought the answer would be and I wanted it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Are you disappointed.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I don't feel disappointed.

Your Honor, there are some things that I would like to have an opportunity to check on this witness. He was put on late this morning. He comes from New York City. We have not had an opportunity to check on this witness. While I will not say that he is a surprise witness——

Presiding Inspector: I wouldn't think so.

Mr. Gladstein: No—nevertheless, we would like, in view of the testimony that he gave today, to have an opportunity to study the transcript and make a check, and we would like to have him remain over until Monday morning.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I object strenuously to that procedure. The witness is here. Counsel has admitted that he has not been taken by surprise. They have a lot of records and apparently had everything that they thought they wanted here concerning this witness, and to make this claim now I believe is unreasonable.

Presiding Inspector: I will treat their witnesses when you ask, if you do, in the same way. [2247]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object on the further ground——

Presiding Inspector: We will go on tomorrow morning and you can finish the examination tomorrow morning.

Mr. Gladstein: I doubt, if your Honor please, whether between now and tomorrow morning we will get the information we want. You remember this witness comes from New York.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Presiding Inspector: I know. There is a teletype between here and New York.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: How long have you been in the Army?

The Witness: I have been in the Army since February, your Honor, and I am under orders to report back in time to go to Washington the first of the month.

Mr. Gladstein: When, the first of the month?

The Witness: I have to be in Washington.

Mr. Gladstein: He will certainly be back by that time. You, no doubt, were released to come out here and stay during the hearing, whatever time was necessary, under Court orders?

The Witness: I was detached to come here to answer a subpoena. At the same time there was a set of orders made out the early part of the month for me to go to Washington.

Mr. Gladstein: If he was released to testify here I suppose it was with the understanding that he——

Presiding Inspector: I think you had better keep him over until Monday morning. [2248]

We will now take a recess until Monday morning at ten o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 4:05 P. M. an adjournment was taken until Monday, April 28, 1941, at 10:00 A. M.) [2249]

Court Room 276,
Federal Building,
San Francisco, California,
April 28, 1941.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10:00 A. M.

[2250]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Del Guercio, will you call back the witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: Mr. Innes is here.

Mr. Gladstein: Take the stand, please.

In connection with Mr. Innes, we have no new subjects——

Presiding Inspector: Pardon?

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——we have no subjects, no new subjects to which we want to inquire, but there are a few places in the record that we would like to have clarified. The questions will be very brief.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

PETER J. INNES

called as a witness on behalf of the Government, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross Examination (Resumed)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You mentioned in your testimony that when you first came to the west coast you met Mr. King. You had reference to Earl King?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. Yes, Earl King, Secretary of the Firemen's Union.

Q. And he introduced you to Mr. Schmidt, Mr. Rathborne, Mr. O'Neil and Mr. Bridges?

A. In the course of the week that I saw him, before he was arrested, he introduced me to various people on the coast [2251] here.

Q. What were the Union positions, or in what connection were the men whose names have just been mentioned, connected with the trade union movement on the West Coast?

A. Well, at that particular time, as I stated, King was Secretary of the Firemen's Union. I don't recollect exactly the position that Henry Schmidt held, except he was connected with the ILA in some capacity. Rathborne was Secretary of District Council No. 4 of the Federation of the Pacific. Mr. Bridges was President of the ILA out here, of course. Gene Burke was Secretary or Treasurer of the Cooks and Stewards.

Aside from that I don't quite get what you are driving at.

Q. You omitted Mr. O'Neill. What was his position? A. Jim O'Neill?

Q. Yes?

A. He was a member of the Negotiating Committee of the Firemen's Union.

Q. All right. Now, when you left for New York how did you go, by plane, train or auto?

A. You mean the trip in December?

Q. To the Madison Square Garden meeting.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

A. I went by train.

Q. Do you remember when you left?

A. Well, I know I got—I think it was the Golden State Limited, I believe it was, out of Los Angeles and it was [2252] the train that arrived in New York on December 13th.

Presiding Inspector: That was Sunday?

The Witness: Yes, sir; Sunday, December the 13th.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, I just want to sumarize this and see if this is correct. Is it a correct summary of your testimony that after you got to New York at this Victoria Hotel gathering Mr. Bridges' itinerary or tour was arranged and that he was to go to Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore as well as to speak in New York.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute! I object to that, if your Honor please. I object to the form of the question summarizing the evidence.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I suppose—is this just the end?

Mr. Gladstein: That is all. I want a summary on that to see if that is correct.

Mr. Del Guercio: He has already testified concerning the matter.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it will harm just to take this question.

A. Do I understand the question to be if that is the itinerary that was laid out?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I don't mean in order.

A. No, but if that was the itinerary that was laid out? [2253]

Q. Yes. A. That is correct.

Q. All right. Now, you mentioned that Mr. Bridges received some four or five hundred dollars. Do you recall that testimony?

A. After the Madison Square Garden meeting?

Q. That is what you meant, is it? That is what you meant?

A. That after the meeting he received four or five hundred dollars?

Q. Yes. A. That is correct.

Q. What was that money for?

A. It was supposed to be to pay his expenses, or that was in payment of his expenses from the Pacific Coast along the Atlantic and back to the Pacific.

Q. That would include traveling expenses?

A. I would assume as much.

Q. Had there been open disagreement between you and some of the leaders in the West Coast Unions beginning some time in November, 1936, concerning your policy of handling the East Coast strikers who were in San Pedro?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute! I object to that question, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: This is new matter.

Mr. Del Guercio: Being irrelevant and immaterial to [2254] the issues in this case.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I don't see how it could be irrelevant and immaterial. It would definitely go to credibility. I think this is a preliminary question which within a question or two will clearly reveal its materiality.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see it at present but, as you say, it is preliminary. I will let you have it.

Mr. Gladstein: Thank you.

Presiding Inspector: On your statement, subject to a motion to strike out.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You want the question read?

A. No. I think you asked me if there had been open disagreement between me and various West Coast leaders early in November due to my policy in handling the East Coast strikers.

Presiding Inspector: No, in November.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In late November. Some time in November, let us put it.

A. With qualifications, yes. The disagreement was not open. The disagreement that I had with the various leaders on the Pacific Coast took place at strategy meetings, but it was not open where it would appear to the strikers.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact that at a meeting of San Francisco District Council of the Maritime Federation you had an [2255] open split on the question of whether your were going to tie up certain ships?

A. When did this take place?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. Some time in November 1936 or earlier.

A. I don't recollect.

Q. Did I understand you to say that you paid the fare for Bridges in one or more of his trips when he was in the east to——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Just a minute!

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished yet.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move to strike the questions and answers regarding the witness' disagreement.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see that it has the slightest materiality so far.

Mr. Gladstein: Does your Honor wish to hear argument on the motion to strike?

Presiding Inspector: Well, I would like to know why it is material.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. I will tell you why. It is apparent from the witness' answer, first, that there had been some disagreement in November, 1936; secondly, that he doesn't recall, but we will prove that he was practically thrown out of the meeting in November 1936——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I am not sure that you will prove that. You might offer to prove it. Whether [2256] you prove it is another matter.

Mr. Gladstein: We will offer to prove that he was almost thrown out of a meeting in November, 1936 because of his disagreement with policy. In view of such disagreements we are going to ask your Honor to weigh the testimony of this witness as to the extremely confidential types of telephone and other types of communications that he claims to have participated in, and for that reason it is material.

Presiding Inspector: I still don't see any pertinency to it.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, if your Honor please, if I have an open disagreement with Mr. Del Guercio and he and I are obviously hostile to each other on Union or other types of policy, the question is whether it is credible that I would allow Mr. Del Guercio to participate in alleged confidential phone communications to which I am supposed to be a party. That is the question.

Presiding Inspector: You would have to go much farther than you have gone to show that.

Mr. Gladstein: The witness says he has no recollection.

Mr. Del Guercio: That doesn't prove anything, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: That doesn't show that there is anything at all.

Mr. Gladstein: But why should it be stricken out in [2257] view of the fact that we are entitled to an opportunity to establish the thing that the witness says he has no recollection about?

Presiding Inspector: I am just not sure that it is competent to show it by any means.

Mr. Gladstein: It is a question of showing hostility or violence.

Presiding Inspector: Suppose there is hostility? What difference does it make?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Is your Honor inferring that if the witness is hostile it doesn't make any difference what the question is?

Presiding Inspector: I will answer that when you put it in a courteous way.

Mr. Gladstein: I am sorry. I mean to be courteous.

Presiding Inspector: It didn't sound courteous.

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw the tone of the remark. But isn't the hostility of the witness to be taken into consideration by the Presiding Magistrate?

Presiding Inspector: To certain bodies, certainly, but in this Union undoubtedly there would be disagreement with different people. You might say to the other people, Didn't they agree with this witness? "Didn't you disagree violently with this witness?" What does it all amount to? You have got to go farther. [2258]

Mr. Gladstein: How much farther would your Honor say I would have to go?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know how much farther.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know what, in addition, you have to show on that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it makes any difference. We will let it stand. So far the testimony, in my judgment, doesn't amount to anything. So far, you understand?

Mr. Gladstein: I understand.

I think I propounded a question, or started a question, to which there was no answer. I will withdraw that question and put it another way.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. When you were in the east did you pay any of the fare or expenses of Mr. Bridges on any of his itinerary? A. I did.

Q. When, and which ones, please?

A. I paid the plane fare for him and Joe Curran and myself to Boston, Massachusetts.

Q. From where to Boston?

A. From New York to Boston.

Q. All right.

A. I paid the expenses of the auto from Boston to New [2259] York. I paid the railroad fare from New York to Baltimore.

Q. From whom did you get the money, if anyone?

A. I had, when I left the Pacific Coast, $300. That was voted to me by the strikers in San Pedro to pay my expenses, and upon my return I think I returned something like $60 or $70 left out of it.

Q. Would it be correct to say that the expenses or fare that you paid for Mr. Bridges came out of the $300 that was voted by the strike committee into your possession or custody?

A. Let us get this straight. The strike committee in San Pedro that I am talking about was the east coast strike committee—it was not the strike committe of the Port of San Pedro—and it was their money. The expenses that I paid for Bridges came out of East Coast money from San Pedro.

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

Q. That is, East Coast Seamen?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that money covered what, both your expenses and the fare or expense that you paid for Bridges?

A. No; that money was voted for my expenses and out of it, because the east coast strike committee was broke and couldn't advance the money to pay Bridges' expenses on the Atlantic Coast, that is, touring expenses, I paid for it.

Q. Now, I will ask you one more question. On page 8076, [2260] at the bottom of the page, of Volume 13, of the Dies Committee reports, that begins a question, which I would like to read to you, together with the answer and one or two questions thereafter, and I will simply ask you whether you gave this testimony:

"Mr. Lynch: Refreshing your recollection, Mr. Innes, with regard to telegrams and correspondence, who controlled the orders and outlined the demands which would be made for the east coast strikers?

"Mr. Innes: The demands for east coast strikers, the policy, was outlined in Bridges' office in San Francisco between Mervin Rathborne, Bridges and myself, and was transmitted to New York.

"Mr. Lynch: By telephone?

"Mr. Innes: By telegram and teletype both, and by telephone.

"Mr. Lynch: And was the arrangement for Bridges to go to New York also made by telegram and teletype?

(Testimony of Peter J. Innes.)

"Mr. Innes: Teletype."

Were those questions asked of you and those answers given by you before the Dies Committee?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Gladstein: I believe that is all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Del Guercio? [2261]

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. Innes, you mentioned Jim O'Neil as being one of the persons to whom you were introduced by Earl King upon your arrival on the west coast. What Jim O'Neil is that? What position did he occupy?

A. The Jim O'Neil that I have in mind was a member of the Negotiating Committee of the Marine Firemen's Union and a member of that Union.

Q. Was he the Jim O'Neil that was employed as Publicity Director for the CIO in Bridges' office?

A. I wouldn't know. The Jim O'Neil that I am talking about is a great big, tall, thin fellow.

Q. Now, this testimony given before the Dies Committee, that counsel has just read to you, did anyone ask you, anyone on the Dies Committee ask you whether you had had a telephone conversation from New York regarding Bridges?

A. No. If they asked me it I would have answered it.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Mr. O'Neil.

Presiding Inspector: Raise your right hand.

[2262]

called as a witness on behalf of the Government, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: Give your name and address to the reporter.

The Witness: James D. O'Neil—O-'-N-e-i-l.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. O'Neil?

A. 1275 Washington Street.

Q. Mr. O'Neil, a subpoena was served upon you on April 19, 1941, here in San Francisco to appear as a witness in this case the following morning, is that a fact?

A. I believe there were two subpoenas served on me.

Q. The first one——

A. (Interposing) The first one was to appear at 311 Sutter Street, if I am not mistaken.

Q. Were you told to appear in court the next morning?

A. I believe I was supposed to come in court.

Q. Did you appear? A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. And a second subpoena was served upon you some time later, on April 23, 1941, was it not?

A. It was.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. To appear at this Court here on the same day? [2263]

A. To appear in Judge Louderback's court.

Q. No. I show you—you refused to accept service of that subpoena, did you not?

Mr. Gladstein: May we interrupt to ask whether counsel has the subpoenas?

Mr. Del Guercio: I have a copy.

Mr. Gladstein: May we see the first one you already referred to, Mr. Del Guercio?

(The document referred to was passed to Mr. Gladstein.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't exactly understand the purpose of this.

Mr. Del Guercio: To show that this witness here is a hostile witness.

Presiding Inspector: That doesn't show it. He may not be hostile when it comes to testimony.

Mr. Gladstein: I think the record should show that the first subpoena, that Mr. Del Guercio called the first subpoena, the one he handed to me when I asked for the first subpoena, though dated April 19, 1941, appears to have a service of that subpoena accepted on the 22nd day of April, 1941, and that subpoena does not say anything about appearing in court. That subpoena says that Mr. James D. O'Neil is required to attend at room 1729, 111 Sutter Street, San Francisco, California.

Now, I question whether this is a subpoena. I didn't understand that any hearing of this matter was taking place [2264] in room 1729 at 111 Sutter Street.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know anything about it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't want to give counsel here an opportunity to use this Court as a forum every time he stands up here to make a speech. If he had paid any attention to what I said he would have noted that I said I had told the witness to appear here in court at the time the subpoena was served.

Mr. Gladstein: That doesn't make it a subpoena, your Honor.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, if Mr. Del Guercio is to be permitted to use the term "subpoena" in asking these questions we request a legal ruling as to whether an order from the FBI to appear at the FBI offices is a subpoena; otherwise Mr. Del Guercio is misrepresenting the facts and is not entitled to ask the witness such questions.

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't, by calling it a subpoena, make it so. He merely refers to the document.

Mr. Grossman: He should refer to it as a document. The witness is not required to answer a question about a subpoena if there is no subpoena. Your Honor has corrected us in the past many times on the basis that we had misrepresented a document or a fact to a witness in a question.

Mr. Del Guercio: Are you saying that I have misrepresented the document? [2265]

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: Just a minute—let me run this.

Mr. Grossman: All I am saying is that we don't know whether this is a subpoena or not. We think it isn't. We would like a ruling by your Honor if Mr. Del Guercio is to continue using the word "subpoena" in his questions.

Presiding Inspector: We will have it marked for identification. Mark the instrument for identification.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will offer at this time for identification a subpoena issued April 19, 1941, and served upon this witness April 22, 1941, in San Francisco.

(The document referred to was marked for identification as Government Exhibit No. 254.)

Presiding Inspector: I want to say to Mr. Grossman that—I do not remember exactly his language that he used stating, in effect, that I had charged you with introducing deceptive matter, or something of that kind. I never made that charge.

Mr. Grossman: I didn't say quite that.

Presiding Inspector: What I meant was I thought the questions were ambiguous and they had implications, which may have been very natural to you, but which I thought the witness should be warned against. I have made no charge, or accusation, and I don't want you to understand anything of that kind.

Mr. Gladstein: We understand that. But I think what Mr. Grossman had in mind, and extainly I make this mention now, [2266] is that you have on several occasions pointed out to us the duty of counsel not to use language that was deceiving a witness. I think you have appropriately done that.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly I have.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. And we have tried to comply with that admonition. But that is precisely what we are pointing out now; that when Mr. Del Guercio calls this document a subpoena, about which we, as lawyers, have very grave doubt as to whether it is entitled to that title at all, but if he is permitted to use the title "subpoena" to a layman, a lay witness, that witness doesn't know, probably, what it is, and that is the reason we raise the question.

Presiding Inspector: We now have the instrument marked for identification. Whatever Mr. Del Guercio does it doesn't make it anything different from what it is.

I think the witness understands?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: There is no implication as yet as to whether or not it was, it had any compelling force; the only matter was that this instrument was served on the witness. [2267]

Mr. Del Guercio: I called it a "subpoena" if your Honor please, and I still call it a "subpoena." In that connection I will read from Section 16 of the Immigration Act of 1917. That is 8 U.S.C.A. 172:

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

"Said Inspector shall have the power to administer oaths and to take and consider evidence touching the right of any alien to enter, re-enter, pass through or reside in the United States, and where such action may be necessary to make a written record of such evidence and any person to whom such an oath had been administered under the provisions of this Act who shall knowingly or wilfully give false evidence or swear to any false statement in any way affecting or in relation to the right of an alien to admission or readmission to or pass through or reside in the United States shall be deemed guilty of perjury and shall be punished as provided by Section 100," and so forth.

"All aliens coming to the United States shall be required to . . ." I shall skip that portion of it. Continuing:

"Any Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization or Inspector here in charge shall also have power to require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses before said Inspectors and the production of books, papers, documents touching the right of any alien to enter, re-enter, reside in or pass through the United States." . . .

Now, I submit that there is nothing in the Act that re- [2268] quires us to subpoena a witness in relation to the right of any alien to be in the United States at any particular place or time, but any place that we, the issuing officer, may designate.

Presiding Inspector: I am not going to rule on this because I don't think it is properly before me to rule upon.

Mr. Gladstein: May I call your Honor's attention——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) We will have this understanding: That when you mention this as a "subpoena" you refer to the instrument which has now been introduced for identification.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. O'Neil,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) As to that instrument. There may be others.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. (Continuing) ——you were directed by——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Of course, I should think the orderly way to do it to examine him, not as to whether or not he obeyed the subpoena or not, but take his testimony. I don't know what object this has except to affect his credibility adversely.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, I will proceed then.

[2269]

Presiding Inspector: It may be necessary, if he proves to be hostile, when we come to it. But he hasn't shown himself to be hostile yet.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever been a member of——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I mean by testimony.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever been a member of the Communist Party, Mr. O'Neil?

A. No, sir; I have not.

Q. Have you attended Communist Party meetings? A. No, sir.

Q. Never? A. Never.

Q. At any time? A. At any time.

Q. And you have never been a member of the Communist Party at any time or place?

A. No, sir.

Q. By the "Communist Party," of course, I mean the Communist Party of the U. S. A. Is that what you understand?

A. I understand so, yes.

Q. Have you ever been a member of any organization [2270] associated with or affiliated with the Communist Party of the U.S.A.?

A. No, sir

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment! I am going to object to that question in so far as it uses the word "associated," which is a word which is ambiguous and vague and has no meaning to this case.

Presiding Inspector: Well, he answered it in the negative.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you join the Communist Party in December of 1936 at the instance of Dave Craig?

A. I did not.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Do you know Dave Craig?

A. I know him, yes.

Q. Who is Dave Craig?

A. He was my landlord at the first house where I had a room when I came to San Francisco.

Q. When did you first meet Dave Craig?

A. I believe we first met in San Bernardino.

Q. When?

A. I couldn't say exactly when. If I am not mistaken, it was in the summer time either that year or the year previous.

Q. And was Mr. Craig then the Director of the Federal Writers Project in San Bernardino? [2271]

A. He was.

Q. He was? A. Yes.

Q. And did he secure a position for you on the Federal Writers Project?

A. I went to work—I had an application in when Mr. Craig came down there.

Q. And he acted upon it?

A. He acted upon it, yes.

Q. And did he appoint you as Assistant Director? A. Yes.

Q. And how long did you continue in that position under Dave Craig?

A. I don't think it lasted any longer than two months.

Q. And did you again meet Dave Craig in San Francisco following that?

A. Yes, because I told him I was coming to San Francisco in the fall sometime and he mentioned that if I did come up here to look him up, which I did.

Q. And did Dave Craig then tell you that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No. I was not aware of any——

Q. (Interposing) What?

A. I wasn't aware of his party affiliations or didn't know anything at all about his political feelings at the time. [2272]

Q. When did you become aware of his affiliation with the Communist Party?

A. I never did become aware of it. I don't know now that he was a member of the Communist Party.

Q. At no time? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you take a trip on the Polarine?

A. I did, yes.

Q. Upon your arrival in San Francisco or sometime after that?

A. Sometime after that.

Q. Who obtained the job for you on the Polarine?

A. I went down to the shipping office of the Fish Reduction Workers, which was an A. F. of L. Union at that time, and I think I remained down there about three weeks spending the entire day there waiting for any replacements that might come in on the Fish Reduction fleet.

Q. Were you a member of any union at that time?

A. No, I was not. But I had applied for a permit in that union.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Did you get a permit?

A. Oh, yes. I got a permit when I got the job.

Q. Who obtained it for you?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Who obtained it for you?

A. It was issued to me when I got in the office and I [2273] was the only person who came in and they issued it to me.

Q. Who issued it to you?

A. The Secretary of the Union.

Q. Do you know his name?

A. That goes back about five years. I don't believe I could tell you his name.

Q. Were you ever at 121 Haight Street?

A. When I was doing publicity work for the CIO I occasionally took publicity releases up there to the Western Worker, the same as I did to other newspapers.

Q. You took what?

A. Publicity releases, stories that were issued by the office.

Q. And to whom did you deliver them?

A. To the Western Worker, to anybody who happened to be in there.

Q. Did they have offices at 121 Haight Street?

A. Yes.

Q. And you know that 121 Haight Street was the Communist Party headquarters?

A. Yes, I was aware of it.

Q. And to whom did you deliver these releases?

A. To anybody who happened to be in there at that time. It might have been a reporter, it might have been one of the editors. [2274]

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. One of the editors of what? The Western Worker? A. Yes.

Q. How many times did you take such releases to 121 Haight Street? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Approximately?

A. I couldn't even say approximately because I was calling on all the newspapers in town at one time or another on that very same errand.

Q. Was it five times?

A. I could not state definitely how many times.

Q. More than five?

A. I have just told you I could not state how many times.

Presiding Inspector: He doesn't ask you definitely. He wants your best judgment, if you have any.

The Witness: I couldn't say approximately, Judge, because I was working in that position for about two years and there was a good many times when the boys would drop in and get their publicity releases. Sometimes if they wanted the story to make the morning issue it would be taken to them.

Presiding Inspector: An indefinite number of times?

The Witness: An indefinite number of times.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And who directed you to take these publicity re- [2275] leases?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. It was part of my job to take them to every newspaper in town.

Q. Under whose direction were you working?

A. I was working under Mr. Bridges as publicity director.

Q. When did you obtain this position as publicity director?

A. About—it was the middle of 1937.

Q. The middle of 1937. And through whom did you obtain the position as publicity director?

A. I obtained it through Mr. Bridges.

Q. Did he get it for you?

A. Yes. He was opening West Coast offices, and he employed me in that capacity.

Q. And where did you have your offices?

A. 593 Market Street.

Q. Is that the offices that Mr. Bridges occupied?

A. The same place; the CIO headquarters for the West Coast.

Q. And for how long a period did you remain in that capacity?

A. I believe I was up there about two years. That would be an approximate guess, but I think it was about two years.

Q. And you then left that employment? [2276]

A. Yes. But you see, after I left there I still retained a connection with the broadcast of the CIO news reporter. I still handled the broadcasting for them.

Q. Now, did you become closely associated with Harry Bridges during that period of time?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. Yes. I knew him pretty well.

Q. Did you answer Mr. Bridges' mail during that period of time?

A. Well, if we got a request for a story or something that had to be written up, I would write the thing and then submit it to him and see if it was satisfactory.

Q. Did you answer requests for Mr. Bridges to speak?

A. No. He answered his own requests to speak.

Q. Would you answer requests for articles of Mr. Bridges?

A. Yes. When he wanted them written I would write them.

Q. And did you become Mr. Bridges ghost writer?

A. Well, I suppose you could use that term?

Q. You wrote his speeches. You did this during the period that you were employed as publicity director? A. That's right.

Q. Who paid your salary?

A. It was paid by the CIO headquarters in Washington.

Q. Did you during any time that you were so employed [2277] in Mr. Bridges' office walk into his office one day and saw on Bridges' desk a Communist Party book in which Mr. Bridges was putting assessment stamps?

A. No. At this point I want to say that that is exactly what I told the FBI men that questioned me.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Now, just a minute! I haven't asked you that. I am asking you if you saw him.

A. I did not.

Q. You did not? A. No.

Q. Did you see Mr. Bridges putting assessment stamps in a Communist Party book about 2:00 P. M. in Bridges' office in the Balboa Building at 593 Market Street sometime in 1937?

Presiding Inspector: He answered "No."

A. I did not.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were you at any time connected with the Voice of The Federation?

A. Yes. I was editor of the Voice of The Federation.

Q. When did you become associated with that?

A. It was around the first of the year in 1937.

Q. And who obtained the—what position did you hold? A. Editor.

Q. Editor? How did you become editor of that paper?

A. I went down and applied for the job at 24 Califor- [2278] nia Street and I was elected by, I believe, the Executive Board of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific.

Q. Were you elected or appointed?

A. I was elected. I believe it was an election because all of the members were there and they voted as to whether or not to appoint me. They voted on the appointment. That was about the way it happened.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. For how long a period of time did you hold that position as editor?

A. I believe just about six months.

Q. And then what happened?

A. I was ousted by the Portland Convention of the Maritime Federation.

Q. Do you know why?

A. At the instance of Harry Lundeberg. There never was any charges preferred against me as required by the Constitution of the Maritime Federation, nor was I ever advised of the reason. They simply came down and took over the paper, practically between editions.

Q. Now, Mr. O'Neil, were you interviewed by an Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on October 7, 1940 at the Radio Station KQW?

A. I was interviewed at the Radio Station on two different occasions, and I came down to 111 Sutter Street and [2279] I was interviewed down there.

Q. Do you recall the date of the interview had on October 7, 1940?

A. No, I couldn't be sure of the date.

Q. You couldn't be sure of the date?

A. No.

Q. But you do recall an interview?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the names of the Agents that interviewed you?

A. One of them, I believe, was Mr. Cassidy. I don't know who the other was.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Was it H. A. Smith?

A. It might have been.

Q. And did you on that same day appear at the FBI offices? A. No, I did not.

Q. At 10:15 P. M.? A. No.

Q. You did not?

A. No. It was a previous time that I went down there.

Q. What do you mean "a previous time"?

A. Later on.

Q. When were you first interviewed by the Agents of [2280] the Federal Bureau of Investigation?

A. I couldn't tell you the exact date that they came in there because I don't remember, but they came into KJBS on two different occasions to see me and they asked me to come down to 111 Sutter Street. I informed them then that I had no information of this case that would be of any value to them. But I went down to 111 Sutter Street.

Q. Wasn't it Radio Station KQW?

A. KQW and KJBS have the same studios in San Francisco. One is identical with the other.

Q. What happened on the occasion that you went to the FBI offices following the interview there at the Station?

A. I was asked a long series of questions in which practically every name of every individual that had ever been prominent in the labor movement on the West Coast, particularly in connection with the Maritime Labor Unions, were brought in and asked whether they were not Communists.

Q. And what was your reply?

A. My reply was that I didn't know whether they were Communists or not, and a remark would be made to me that some witness mentioned some of those names—I certainly can't recall because I never knew him—had made a statement that they had been seen in Communist meetings with me. And my answer to that was that I had never attended a Communist [2281] meeting.

Q. And do you recall that at the time that you first appeared at the offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here in San Francisco that there was a stenographer present?

A. That is correct.

Q. And did you dictate a statement to that stenographer?

A. I did not dictate a statement to that stenographer. The questions were being asked of me, and if this is one of the questions that you have read back here, then that is the statement in which I said the only credible evidence against Harry Bridges or anybody else——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Answer the question and don't volunteer.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you dictate a statement?

A. I did not.

Q. Just a minute! Wait until I get through with my question. Did you dictate a statement to a stenographer?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: He said "No".

By Mr. Del Guercio?

Q. In the FBI offices?

Presiding Inspector: He has already said "No."

By Mr. Del Guercio: [2282]

Q. Now, Mr. O'Neil,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Was there a stenographer present, you said?

The Witness: There was a stenographer present, yes, she was——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) And was the stenographer taking notes during the time that this running conversation occurred?

The Witness: That is correct, yes.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know, but did you hear the answers he gave to my questions?

Mr. Del Guercio: No, I didn't.

Presiding Inspector: Just read them, Mr. Reporter.

(The questions and answers referred to were read by the reporter as above recorded.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And what agents were present at that time, Mr. O'Neil?

A. Cassidy was there and another chap whose name I don't know.

Q. You don't know. So that there were three:

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

yourself, two agents of the FBI, one of whom you have identified as Cassidy, and a stenographer?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you at that time, Mr. O'Neil, dictate to the [2283] stenographer that you had first met Dave Craig in the City of San Bernardino in the summer of 1936?

A. I believe I said that I had met him there, yes.

Q. Did you so state to the stenographer that was present?

A. I so stated to Mr. Cassidy, yes.

Q. Did you also state that, referring to Dave Craig, that he had just been appointed Director of the Federal Writers Project for San Bernardino, Riverside and Imperial Counties?

A. I believe that was his position and I so told Cassidy, yes.

Q. Did you also state as follows:

"I was anxious to obtain a position on the Project and he was the man to see"?

A. That's correct.

Q. That is correct. Did you also state "I was appointed to the Federal Writers Project and became Assistant Director under Craig, who incidentally was in ill health and seldom able to appear at the office"? A. Yes.

Q. Did you so state? A. Yes.

Q. Did you also state as follows:

"I kept this position for several months"? [2284]

A. Yes.

Q. That is true?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. I believe I did, yes.

Q. You so stated?

A. That is an outline of how I came to San Francisco.

Q. Now, just a minute, please! Did you also state as follows: "I then left to take a publicity job at the Riverside County Democratic Central Committee?" A. Yes.

Q. Did you so state?

A. I believe I did so state in answer to a question from Mr. Cassidy.

Presiding Inspector: Answer in words so far as you can, so the reporter can hear.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you also state as follows: "While I was on this job Craig returned to San Francisco and the Federal Writers Project was closed"?

A. I believe that happened about that time.

Q. Did you so state? A. I believe I did.

Q. Did you also state as follows: "Approximately six days later after the 1936 November Presidential election I came to San Francisco, having previously made arrangements by letter with Craig to stay at his home and pay room and [2285] board"? A. That's right.

Q. Did you so state?

A. I did, in answer to a question.

Q. And did you also state as follows: "As soon as I came to 2048 Ellis Street in San Francisco Craig frankly told me that he was a member of the Communist Party and I at one time or another became acquainted with practically everybody of consequence in that Party, meeting most of them at his home, including Bill Schneidermann, California Secretary of the Party, his wife, Rose, Walter Lambert, head of the waterfront section of the Party, one Ross, editor of the Western Worker, the entire staff of the Worker, Pop Hanoff, Minnie Carson, Oleta O'Connor, Frank Spector, Mike Quinn, Henry Schmidt, John Shoemaker, Germain Bulcke, and others"? A. I did not.

Q. You did not make that statement?

A. No, I did not make that statement. I was asked the question if I had ever met the men at Craig's home and I stated that I had not.

Q. And you did not dictate——

A. (Interposing) I did not dictate.

Q. (Continuing) ——to the stenographer that was present [2286] at that time——

A. (Interposing) I did not.

Q. (Continuing) ——that statement that I have just read?

A. I did not. No, sir. The question is——

Q. (Interposing) Just a minute, please. Did you then state as follows:

"I joined the Communist Party in either the latter part of November or the first part of December, 1936 under the name of Ben Harrison. My purpose in joining the Party was the assurance that I would have employment, which I immediately obtained on the S.S. Polarine. This job was obtained through the Craigs and through Ross of the Western Worker, who at that time was posing as the husband of Oleta O'Connor. Oleta O'Connor's sister is Gloria, Lee, now secretary to the secretary of the San Francisco Industrial Union Council. At that time she was Secretary of the Fish Reduction Workers Union, San Francisco local. Through her I obtained the position on the Polarine which was a fish reduction boat."

Did you so state?

A. I did not.

Q. And did you so dictate?

A. I never made any such statement.

Q. And did you so dictate to the stenographer that was [2287] present in that room at that time?

A. No. You asked——

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, just a minute!

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, could I make a suggestion? In the first place, this is direct examination. In the second place, when a witness gives an answer "I did not" and starts to make an explanation, heretofore in this case witnesses have been permitted to complete their answers. Now, I don't see why the witness should not be permitted to complete his answer without Mr. Del Guercio's saying, "Now, just a minute!". The witness apparently has something that he wishes to add to complete his answer. I think we are entitled to hear it.

Mr. Del Guercio: He has made a denial, your Honor. That doesn't require any other explanation at this time.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: Of course, that last question included a great many statements. It might be that he made some of them and didn't make the others.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I will ask you that question. Did you make any of those statements that I have read to you?

A. I did not make any of those statements. I was asked if those people had appeared at the house. One by one they were called off to me and I answered "No, I did not meet them". Some of them I have never met. I haven't to this day met them.

Q. But you did not make the statement as I have read [2288] it to you?

A. I certainly did not.

Q. Did you state "I joined the Communist Party in either the latter part of November or the first part of December, 1936 under the name of Ben Harrison"?

A. I did not make any such statement and I never have joined the Communist Party.

Q. Did you state that "My purpose in joining the Party was the assurance that I would have employment, which I immediately obtained on the S.S. Polarine"? A. No.

Presiding Inspector: Well, you did obtain the employment?

The Witness: But I obtained it by staying in the office for two weeks.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: You obtained the employment as you have already stated?

The Witness: Yes, through my own efforts.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you state that "this job was obtained through the Craigs and through Ross of the Western Worker who at that time was posing as the husband of Oleta O'Connor"? A. I did not.

Q. Did you state that Oleta O'Connor's sister is Gloria Lee, now secretary to the secretary of the San Francisco Industrial Union Council"?

A. No, I did not make that statement. [2289]

Q. Did you state that at that time she was secretary of the Fish Reduction Workers Union, San Francisco local? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you state that "through her I obtained the position on the Polarine, which was a fish reduction boat"?

A. No. May I point out at this time that these statements that you are reading back to me were originally given to me in the form of questions which I denied. I made a statement that I had not met these people. "Wasn't it true that you knew this person or the other person? Didn't you meet them when you were living at this house" That's the way those things appeared, not as a statement. [2290]

Q. Did you make this statement, dictate it to the stenographer in the room, and in the presence of Mr. Cassidy and Mr. Smith:

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

"I was on that ship about a month, and when I came ashore I was informed there was an opening as editor of the 'Voice of the Federation.'"

Did you make that statement?

A. I might have told them how I got the job on the Voice, and that was the way I got it.

Q. Did you make that statement?

A. I believe I probably did state that, yes, because that is a correct statement of how I got the job on the Voice of the Federation.

Q. Did they ask you if you had ever been employed on the Voice of the Federation?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they tell you how they found out you had been employed on the Voice of the Federation?

A. No. My name was on the masthead, and I was the editor for six months.

Q. Did you also dictate this to the stenographer:

"I went to the 'Voice of the Federation' office and was informed that even at that moment the Maritime Federation Executive Board was meeting at 24 California Street to pick an editor." [2291]

Did you make that statement?

A. I undoubtedly did, because that is exactly what happened.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"I went down there, introduced myself to Scotty Kelly, who was Secretary of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, showed him my Guild card, as I had joined the Newspaper Guild in San Francisco before going to sea, and then I asked him to permit me to use the typewriter in the office to write up my qualifications and background."

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Did you make that statement?

A. No, I don't believe I went into that complete detail at that time about the Voice of the Federation.

Q. Did you make this statement just read at that time and place? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"I dashed them off and gave them to Kelly and that afternoon was interviewed along with several other applicants and told to return the next afternoon, as the Newspaper Guild had two candidates it believed especially qualified for the job."

Did you make that statement?

A. No. I believe the statement that I made down there came to an end when I told them I had gone to 24 California [2292] Street and obtained the job there.

Q. Is it your testimony now that you did not make that statement?

A. That is correct. I have been interviewed by the FBI on different occasions and——

Q. (Interposing) I am speaking about the occasion, your interview on October 7, 1940.

Mr. Gladstein: I think the witness should be permitted to finish his answer to the question. Apparently he has something to add to his answer. I cannot see why the witness is permitted to be choked off by Mr. Del Guercio as he is his own witness. In the second place as the witness is in the middle of a statement and has not completed his answer, I do not think counsel should be permitted to interrupt if it is obvious that the answer is germane to the question.

Mr. Del Guercio: Before we get through we will show that he, in reality is Mr. Gladstein's witness.

Presiding Inspector: Don't argue.

Is there anything else you want to say?

The Witness: No, except that that alleged statement which is being read to me probably comprises interviews and odd answers that I have given in, I believe, six different meetings with the FBI, and during which questions were thrown at me, and the answers have all been massed together into [2293] one statement making it appear that I gave those answers or statements in one statement, which is not true.

Presiding Inspector: All right. Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you also make this statement—these statements that I am reading now were all made at the same time, the same date, and at the same place, in the presence of the same persons.

Did you also make this statement:

"I was not one of them. The following day, which was the day before New Year's, 1937, the full Executive Board of the Maritime Federation narrowed the applicants down to three."

Did you make such a statement?

A. No, I don't believe I did. I believe, as I stated, that I ended the talk about the Voice of the Federation when I said I went to 24 California Street.

Q. Might you have made such a statement and not recall it at this time?

A. No. I believe if I made such a statement I probably would recall it.

Q. Your testimony is that you did not make such a statement at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"One represented the Lundeberg faction, and one the [2294] Bridges faction, and the third one was myself."

Did you make such a statement? A. No.

Q. Did you make the following statement:

"Presumably on the theory that to appoint either of the two men of the Bridges or Lundeberg faction would merely start the old fight over again, the Board voted 6 to 2 to put in the stranger, myself."

Did you make such a statement at that time and place? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you make the following statement at the same time and place?

"That night I was invited to attend a New Year's Eve Party at 121 Haight Street by Craig, at whose home I was living, and while there I was introduced to Pop Hanoff, Frank Spector, Amy Schechter."

Did you make that statement at that time and place?

A. No. The only time I went to 121 Haight Street was on business.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Your testimony is that you did not make that statement at that time and place?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you make the following statement:

"Both Miss Schechter and Frank Spector expressed amazement that I was the new editor of the 'Voice,' and they hurriedly [2295] sent for Pop Hanoff and demanded to know what I was doing there."

Did you make such a statement at that time and place? A. No.

Q. Did you make the following statement:

"A long argument ensued, and I insisted on having dinner there, and then at the request of practically the entire San Francisco Communist Party I withdrew."

Did you make that statement at that time and place? A. I did not.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"They felt very strongly that the editor of the 'Voice of the Federation' should not be seen at Communist Party headquarters."

Did you make that statement at that time and place? A. I did not.

Q. Did you make the following statement:

"On the 'Voice of the Federation' I succeeded Henry Schrimpf, who as Trustee of the Maritime Federation had been operating the paper in the interim between Barney Maas and my own appointment."

Did you make that statement? A. No.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Did you make this statement:

"I remained as editor of the 'Voice of the Federation' [2296] for approximately six months."

A. I might have said I was on the Voice six months at one time, in the course of the questioning about how I came to San Francisco, but I don't recall that I went into that detail on that occasion.

Q. Would you say whether or not you made that statement?

A. Yes, I would say, off-hand, that I did not make it.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"On New Year's Day following my appearance at the Communist Party Headquarters I drove into the driveway at 2048 Ellis Street and was met by Mrs. Craig, who informed me that a very important person was waiting to see me in the house."

Did you make that statement? A. No.

Q. Did you make that statement at that time and place? A. No.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"I went inside and in the kitchen I immediately recognized from his pictures Harry Bridges, who was accompanied by Joe Ring."

Did you make that statement?

A. I did not, because I met Harry Bridges in his own office several months later for the first time. [2297]

Q. Did you also continue as follows:

"This was on January 1, 1937?"

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. Pardon?

Q. "This was on January 1, 1937." Did you make that statement? A. No.

Q. And did you continue as follows:

"Bridges outlined his views as to how the 'Voice of the Federation' should be conducted, detailed at great length his troubles with the previous editor, Barney Maas, asserting that due to Maas' action the longshoremen would be compelled to accept much less than they had originally demanded in the 1936-1937 strike and that Maas' editorship was entirely unsuitable for the 'Voice.'"

A. I did not. I met Bridges later in January.

Q. You deny you made that statement?

A. I certainly do.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"I assured Bridges that it was my intention to run the paper with the columns open to everybody affiliated with the Maritime Federation."

A. No.

Q. You did not make that statement?

A. No, I didn't make that statement.

Q. Did you make this statement: [2298]

"In all fairness to Bridges he never asked any more than that during my editorsrip, and I found by going over back issues of the 'Voice' that the columns of the 'Voice' had been closed to Bridges and the longshoremen during the previous editorship." Did you make that statement?

A. Not at the time I went down to the first meeting of the FBI, I did not.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Did you ever make such a statement?

A. Oh, yes, I made such a statement.

Q. You made that statement?

A. Not at that time.

Q. Not at that time, but at some other time?

A. I made that statement, I assured Harry Bridges, on our first meeting when I was in his office down on lower Market Street, the columns of the paper were open to him.

Q. You remember now making that statement some time?

A. Yes, but not at this time that this meeting took place, because I didn't meet him there.

Q. Did you make the following statement:

"By running news from the Longshoremen's Union and accepting letters from Harry Bridges, which I ran in the 'Letters to the Editor' column, I earned the lasting enmity of Harry Lundeberg, Secretary-Treasurer of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, and at the end of six months Lundeberg at the Portland Convention of the Maritime Federation in June, 1937 [2299] succeeded in having me removed as Editor."

Did you make that statement? A. I did not.

Q. Did you make that statement at that time and place?

A. No. I had Lundeberg's enmity from the time I came to San Francisco and that is one of the few things I had to be proud of.

Q. Do you deny that you made that statement to the agents of the FBI on October 7, 1940?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. That is right.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"No charges were ever filed against me; I was simply removed by vote of the Convention."

A. I have already outlined about that. That might have been said before, might have been on the way from Marysville, or in any one of the other six different occasions.

Q. But you deny you dictated that statement to the stenographer at the offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on October 7, 1940?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you also make this statement:

"After an interval of two weeks I was named Publicity Director of the Western Region of the Committee of Industrial Organization."

A. I might possibly have answered that question at that [2300] time as to when I went to work for the CIO, which was about two weeks after I left the Voice.

Q. Would you say whether you made that statement at that time and place?

A. I probably did.

Q. Did you make the following statement:

"I held that position for more than a year, handling all the publicity for the Western states for the CIO, writing the Daily radio broadcast and giving it myself six days a week, answering practically all of Bridges' mail, both personal, requests to speak, requests for articles, wrote magazine articles for him, generally ghosted for him. I was paid out of Washington by check."

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Did you make those statements?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you make the following statement:

"I left the CIO to go to work for radio station KYA, where I was in charge of news broadcasting for eight or nine months."

Did you make that statement?

A. I might possibly have done so because that is what happened.

Q. Would you say you made that statement?

A. I probably did. Just a moment, Mr. Del Guercio. That is one thing that I want to explain about this. To ask [2301] me, "Did I make this statement," and "Did I make that statement," when there have been six different meetings, at any of which these statements might have been made, it is difficult to pin myself down to this one specific occasion.

Q. This statement that I have, and I am reading from, was made all at one time, on October 7, 1940, at the offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in the presence of Smith, Cassidy, and a stenographer.

Mr. Grossman: You say that is true.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. I state that as a fact.

Presiding Inspector: Well, we cannot accept that as evidence.

Mr. Del Guercio: We will show it is a fact. Counsel asked me if I stated it as a fact.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: I do not think you ought to say it is a fact. You are asking this witness on what purports to be such a statement.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: It will require a later time to prove it as a fact.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you make this statement——

Presiding Inspector: I am not criticizing you, but I am simply emphasizing that at this time there is no evidence of it being a fact. [2302]

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. I understand.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you make this statement:

"During this time I also handled the CIO broadcast."

Did you make that statement?

A. I don't recall when any such statements were made because these interviews dated over a long period of time. These statements, any I did make, were not made in any one statement.

Q. I am asking you if you made this statement in the offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on October 7, 1940, in the presence of H. A. Smith, Mr. Cassidy and a stenographer.

A. I am unable to recall that any such statement took place.

Q. Do you deny that you made such a statement?

A. I have already answered that, explained that this is a conglomeration of six different meetings and sessions with the FBI, all appearing in one typewritten statement.

Q. Is it your testimony that you did not make that statement at that time and place?

A. I can't be sure whether I answered that question at that time or at some other time.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"I wrote and delivered broadcasts myself, obtaining my [2303] material from the CIO headquarters and the headquarters of Unions affiliated with the CIO which might be involved in disputes of various kinds requiring the labor interpretation in the broadcast."

A. I explained that in one of the sessions but which one I couldn't say definitely.

Q. Would you say whether or not you made this statement at that time and place, on October 7, 1940?

A. I couldn't state definitely what time that answer was given.

Q. Did you also make this statement:

"On numerous occasions Harry Bridges would call me and tell me what he wanted emphasized."

A. No; I don't recall that statement.

Q. Would you say whether or not you made that statement? A. I don't believe I did.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"I left KYA and after an interval of possibly eight or ten weeks I went to work as news broadcaster for radio stations KJBS and KQW in San Francisco, where I am still employed."

Did you make that statement?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. I believe that statement was made in my first meeting with them.

Q. Did you make that statement? [2304]

A. Yes. I answered the question. I went to work for KJBS and KQW, and I don't believe that time——

Q. (Interposing) Not at that time. I am speaking about the meeting in the offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and in the presence of a stenographer? A. No.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"At this point I would go back to my first meeting with Bridges at the Craig home."

Did you make that statement? A. No.

Q. Did you make that statement?

A. No, I did not. The first meeting was not at Craig's home with Harry Bridges.

Q. Did you make this statement:—I am not asking you if the statement is true or correct. I am asking if you made the statement.

A. The answer is "No."

Q. Did you make this statement:

"Present at that meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Craig, Bridges, Joe Ring, and myself?"

A. No.

Q. You did not make that statement?

A. No.

Q. Did you make this statement: [2305]

"At that time I was introduced by Craig to Bridges with these words, 'Comrade Bridges, meet Comrade O'Neil.'"

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Did you make that statement?

A. No such statement was ever made.

Q. You didn't make that statement?

A. No.

Q. At any time, any place, anywhere?

A. May I add at that point——

Q. (Interposing) Will you answer the question?

A. I answered already.

Q. You didn't make that statement at any time, any place, anywhere?

A. No; except that I brought out the fact that on the waterfront "Red baiting" had become so bad that at one time Henry Schmidt bought a flaming red hat and wore it publicly, and the men were referring to each other as "Commissar" and "Comrade".

Mr. Del Guercio: I move to strike the answer as not responsive.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will let it stand.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you make this statement:

"Naturaly, I assumed from this that Bridges was also a member of the Communist Party."

Did you make that statement? [2306]

A. I did not make that statement.

Q. At any time, any place?

A. At any time or any place: no, sir.

Q. Did you also make this statement:

"On another occasion I walked into Bridges' office, it always being my privilege to do so after first having assured myself that he was alone, and on his desk was a new Party book, which had just been issued and into which Bridges was putting assessment stamps."

Did you make that statement?

A. I did not make that statement.

Q. At any time?

A. At any time; no, sir.

Q. At any place, anywhere? A. No.

Q. Did you follow it by this statement:

"This was about two o'clock in the afternoon in Bridges' office in the Balboa Building, 593 Market, Room 509, in 1937."

Did you make that statement?

A. I did not.

Q. At any time, any place?

A. At no time, no place; no, sir.

Q. Did you follow it by this statement:

"I expressed amazement that he was doing this openly with the book in plain view on top of his desk; however, he [2307] nonchalantly continued to put the stamps in place and then returned the book to his pocket."

Did you make that statement?

A. I did not make any such statement. I wouldn't have been amazed—I would have dropped dead if such a thing would have happened.

Mr. Del Guercio: Are you through?

Mr. Gladstein: Laughing, you mean?

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you ever make that statement to anyone?

A. This is the third time, and I am saying no, I didn't.

Q. You deny making that statement to the stenographer there on October 7, 1940?

A. I certainly do.

Q. In the offices of the FBI here in San Francisco? A. Yes.

Q. Did you continue by making this statement:

"I knew this was a Communist Party book because I had one myself and it was just like it."

Did you make that statement?

A. No, I did not make any such statement.

Q. You didn't make that statement at that time and place? A. No. [2308]

Q. And did you continue by stating:

"It was the general practice to pay your dues to the Communist Party dues collector and, in return to receive stamps which he tore off from a block and which you inserted in your book at your leisure." A. No.

Q. You didn't make that statement?

A. No; at any time or any place.

Q. Did you follow, continue by making this statement:

"There is no doubt in my mind but what that was Bridges' membership book in the Communist Party."

A. No. I am certain I never made any such statement.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. You didn't make it at that time and place?

A. I did not.

Q. And in the presence of the stenographer?

A. I have answered that I didn't.

Q. In the presence of Cassidy and Smith?

A. I have already said "No."

Q. And did you continue by making this statement:

"I came in to Bridges one morning and outlined to him that I was unable any longer to tolerate the mental gymnastics of the Guild Fraction and he recommended that I transfer into the waterfront section, which I did through Walter Lambert."

Did you make that statement?

A. I never made any such statement as that in my life. [2309]

Q. You didn't make such a statement at the time and place?

A. No, nor at any other time or place.

Q. Did you continue by making this statement:

"The transfer was arranged through Connie's Restaurant, one block from the Golden Gate Theater."

Did you make that statement?

A. No, I never made such a statement. I don't even know—I have never been in there or don't know there is such a place.

Q. Did you make that statement at that time and place? A. No.

Q. Did you continue by making this statement?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

"I told Bridges at the time of the transfer that after having been the 'man on the flying trapeze' in the Guild I would rather go some place where there was a net under me."

A. I did not make any such statement.

Might I point out at this point that I was asked if I ever belonged to what they called a Guild Fraction of the Communist Party which I denied, and I was asked if I had ever transferred to the Waterfront Section, and I stated that I had not.

Q. And you have not made the statement I just read?

A. That is correct; I didn't make it. [2310]

Q. Did you continue by stating this:

"As I remember, I called Lambert that morning from my own office, and it was arranged through him."

A. I never made any such statement.

Q. You didn't make it at that time and place?

A. No; or any other time.

Q. Did you continue by making this statement:

"On several occasions Bridges reminded me that I had not been attending Party meetings and asked me, "What's the score?" "

A. No, I didn't.

Q. You didn't make that statement?

A. No.

Q. And did you continue by stating this:

"I think I told him it was 0 to 0 in the last of the 9th as far as I was concerned and as far as the Party was concerned, and he advised me to take it easy and not let my own feelings obscure my judgment?"

Did you make that statement?

A. No, no such statement.

Q. You didn't make such a statement?

A. I didn't.

Q. And did you make this statement:

"It is my belief that Bridges never at any time attended any Communist Party meetings."

Did you make that statement, Mr. O'Neil? [2311]

A. I have made that statement repeatedly.

Q. You remember making that statement?

A. I don't know whether it took place there, or at other times; it has taken place many times.

Q. But you might have made it at the time of this particular meeting I am talking about, that is, on October 7, 1940?

A. It is possible. I know I made the statement the first time.

Q. Did you make it in the presence of the stenographer, and Agents Cassidy and Smith?

A. The question undoubtedly was asked whether he had ever attended any Communist meetings to my knowledge.

Q. And you made that statement?

A. In all probability, because they have asked that so many times I can answer it in my sleep.

Q. Did you continue by making this statement:

"It was always tacitly understood and assumed that such was the case."

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Did you make that statement?

A. No.

Q. You didn't make that statement?

A. No.

Q. At no time or place?

A. Let me get this, that such was the case—I don't understand. [2312]

Q. I will read the two sentences together.

A. That would be better.

Q. Did you make this statement:

"Bridges never stated to me that he was a member of the Communist Party. It was always tacitly understood and assumed that such was the case."

Did you make that statement?

A. No; absolutely not.

Q. You made the first statement, the first sentence, that Bridges had never stated to you that he was a member of the Communist Party, but you did not make the second part of the statement, "It was always tacitly understood and assumed that such was the case."

Is that your testimony?

A. May I point out that you have got one part of the statement where apparently I walked in and saw a man putting stamps in a Communist Party book and then in the second place Bridges never told me he was a member of it. Would you mind telling me how you can reconcile such a thing?

Q. I am asking the questions.

A. The thing is silly, I think.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. I don't care what you think.

Did you follow it by this statement:

"On frequent occasions Bill Schneiderman took exception to my publicity work, to the type of pamphlets I was issuing, [2313] to the tenor of editorials that might be appearing in the 'Labor Herald' or in the 'Voice of the Federation' in my editorship."

Did you make such a statement?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you continue by stating:

"Schneiderman very early in the game learned that the way to stop me was to go to Bridges, and I can't now recall any time when Bridges sustained Schneiderman in his complaints."

Did you make that statement at that time?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you follow it by continuing:

"This dispute about the type of publicity which I was issuing came to a climax when Bill Schneiderman, Revels Cayton of the Marine Cooks and Stewards, Lou Goldblatt, Bridges' assistant, and Bridges' gathered in Bridges' office in the Balboa Building."

Did you make that statement?

A. No.

Q. You never made that statement?

A. No.

Q. And did you continue by stating:

"Schneiderman demanded that more pressure be brought to bear on the Sailors' Union of the Pacific."

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Did you make that statement? [2314]

A. I did not.

Q. Did you continue by stating:

"We had spent several thousand dollars in pamphlets and publicity broadsides urging them to cooperate with the CIO."

Did you make that statement?

A. No.

Q. You didn't make that statement?

A. No.

Q. And did you continue by stating:

"I was flatly against any more such expenditure."

A. I did not.

Q. Did you make that statement?

A. No.

Q. Did you continue by making this statement:

"Bridges sent for me at that time and when I walked in the door he was telling Schneiderman he thought I had every right to be at such a meeting because it was my work that was under fire."

Did you make that statement?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you make the following statement:

"He then turned to me and asked me for my opinion as to any publicity aimed at the S. U. P."

A. No, I did not. [2315]

Q. Did you continue by making this statement:

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

"I told him it would be good money gone after bad."

A. No.

Q. Did you continue by making this statement: "I believe I told Harry Bridges at that time that the only thing that would bring any sense into the S. U. P. would be a pickaxe,"——

A. No.

Q. ". . . whereupon Bridges said 'I agree with you,' whereupon Schneiderman jumped to his feet and said, 'There you are, that's the very thing I've been talking about. Is that the Party line? Is that what we're supposed to do?' "

A. No.

Q. You didn't make those statements?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you continue by making this statement: "I told Schneiderman it probably wasn't the Party line because it made good sense."

A. No, I did not.

Q. You did not make that statement?

A. No.

Q. Did you continue by stating: "Bridges backed me up in this, whereupon Schneiderman said that I was a bad influence in the CIO and should be removed that Bridges was listening to me too much." [2316]

A. No.

Q. Did you make that statement?

A. I did not.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Did you continue by stating:

"Everybody in the employ of the CIO and the Unions with their headquarters in the Balboa Building, with one exception, were members of the Communist Party."

A. No; but that question was asked me.

Q. Did you make that statement?

A. I did not make that statement, but the question was asked, if everyone up there wasn't a member of the Communist Party.

Q. And you replied what?

A. I replied not to my knowledge; that I had no belief in any such thing.

Q. And your testimony is that you didn't make the statement that I read to you?

A. I don't remember any such statement as that.

Q. Did you follow it by making this statement:

"This I know because I attended meetings with them, paid dues at the time they did."

A. I did not.

Q. Did you continue by stating:

"There was no secret, no bones made about it at all. The one exception was Herman Stuyvelaar."

A. No, I didn't. [2317]

Q. Did you continue by making this statement:

"When a vacancy occurred in the personnel of the CIO headquarters that vacancy was invariably, without exception to my knowledge while I was was there, supplied after consultation with Schneiderman from the Communist Party headquarters."

A. I did not.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Did you continue by making this statement:

"During the 1937 Maritime Federation of the Pacific Convention at Portland, Oregon, a hole was bored in the wall of Bridges' room adjoining the telephone bell box which was level with the molding in the Multnomah Hotel."

Did you make that statement?

A. No. That was a story that appeared on the front page of the Voice of the Federation, however, to that effect. It didn't appear as a statement from me.

Q. You deny making that statement at that time and place?

A. I do.

Q. Did you continue by stating:

"After his return to San Francisco from the Portland Convention we discussed the planting of the microphone in his room, and he told me that it had been in operation for a day and a half at least before his attention was called to plaster on the floor and the microphone outlet was discovered."

Did you make that statement? [2318]

A. No.

Q. Did you continue by stating:

"I remarked at the time that he was lucky to have discovered it, and he replied, 'Yeah, not so lucky.'"

Did you make that statement?

A. No.

Q. Did you continue by stating:

"'Those guys had been listening in for a day and a half before we discovered it.'"

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Did you make that statement?

A. No.

Q. Did you continue then by stating:

"He then stated that letters from Moscow, and other obvious red scare, had been openly read or discussed in the room so as to clutter up the record in the next room. Bridges said that Fraction meetings had been conducted in the room during the time the microphone was hooked up.

Did you make that statement?

A. I did not.

Q. And did you continue by stating:

"By this he meant Top Fraction meetings of the Communist Party."

A. No.

Q. And didn't you continue by making this statement:

"When the microphone was discovered the 'letters from [2319] Moscow' heretofore referred to were merely figments of the imagination and were read so they would be copied on the record in the next room just to make it appear so completely ridiculous that it would be of no value to those who were tapping the meeting."

A. No.

Q. You didn't make that statement?

A. I did not.

Q. At that time?

A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. O'Neil, after the stenographer had read to you the statement that I have——

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Mr. Grossman (Interposing): That is assuming something not in evidence.

The Witness: There is no such statement.

Presiding Inspector: The witness has taken care of your objection. He said there was no such statement.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did the stenographer read back your dictation?

There was at no time that I made any dictation to be read back.

Q. Did you indicate certain corrections to be made to the stenographer at that time?

A. I did not.

Presiding Inspector: Did the stenographer read anything to you? [2320]

The Witness: No, sir. I was aware that the questions were being taken down, but at no time was anything read to me.

Presiding Inspector: We will take a short recess.

[2321]

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Del Guercio, you may proceed.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. O'Neil, did you appear at the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at 111 Sutter Street, San Francisco, on the night of April 22, 1941?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. I can tell you better if you can tell me on which day of the week it was.

Q. Well, I don't have a calendar here.

A. I came in there Tuesday night from Marysville.

Q. You are able to recall that?

A. I can't remember the date.

Q. That was sometime last week? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall who were present at that time?

A. I believe you were present and I believe—I believe there was a chap, Mr. Schofield, or some such name as that.

Q. Did you remember your being introduced to Major Schofield? A. Yes.

Q. As head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service?

A. I believe that was his title.

Q. Did you remember Mr. Connelley being there, the Assistant Director of the Bureau of Investigation?

A. Yes. He is sitting in the chair. [2322]

Q. Do you remember my being there?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember Mr. Cassidy being there? A. I believe he was there, too.

Q. And do you remember our having a conversation at that time? A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember my stating whether you were willing to appear to testify in this proceeding? A. Yes.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Do you recall what your answer was?

A. Yes. I told you that I was not.

Q. And do you recall my asking you why you didn't want to appear to testify? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall what your answer was?

A. Yes. I believe I told you that I had nothing to add to the case at all.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you stated at that time in the presence of Major Schofield, Mr. Connelley, Mr. Cassidy and myself that the reason you did not want to appear to testify in these proceedings was because you had been such a close friend of Harry Bridges that, if you did testify against him, you would be called a "rat"? A. No.

Q. By everybody on the Coast? [2323]

A. No, sir. No such statement was ever made.

Q. You deny that you made such a statement at that time?

A. I believe—I do. I believe I told you at that time that I had been a member of the labor union since way back in 1919 when I joined the Sailor's Union; that my record in the labor union had always been a clean one and that absolutely I was going to have no connection with this case.

Q. Do you remember, Mr. O'Neil, that at that time I told you we were interested in having witnesses in the case only to testify what they knew of their own knowledge and that I wanted nothing but the truth? Do you remember my telling you that?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. I believe you did make such a statement.

Q. And do you recall my asking you if you had been interviewed by Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation? A. Yes.

Q. And whether you had made certain statements to them?

A. I believe you asked me if I had been interviewed by Agents of the FBI, yes, and I told you that I had.

Q. And what was your answer?

A. I believe I told you that I had been on five or six different occasions. [2324]

Q. Do you remember my asking you at that time if what you had told the Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was true?

A. Yes. I think you did ask me that.

Q. And do you remember your answer being that it was? A. That it was.

Q. That it was true? A. Yes.

Q. You did make that statement, didn't you?

A. Yes. I told you that I told them the truth.

Q. Do you remember you stating at that time and place and in the presence of the persons that I have mentioned as follows: "I have told the truth to Cassidy, but I am not going down there under any condition because I don't intend to". Do you remember making that statement?

A. I believe I did make that statement.

Q. And do you recall making this statement: "I made a statement to Cassidy and at that time I told the entire truth". Do you remember making that statement?

A. I said I answered Cassidy's questions and the questions of the other agents.

Q. And do you remember stating what you had told them was the entire truth?

A. Yes. [2325]

Q. And do you remember stating that Cassidy told you that they were looking for the facts?

A. I believe that's what Cassidy said, yes.

Q. And do you remember you stating that you had been a newspaper man for twenty-five years and "now I am a radio man at Marysville"?

A. That's right.

Q. And do you recall making the statement in the presence of the persons I have mentioned, "Harry Bridges is a Communist, and I saw him paste stamps in his book with his name in the book"? A. No.

Q. Do you remember making that statement?

A. No.

Q. You didn't make that statement?

A. No, I did not.

Q. In the presence of Mr. Schofield, myself, Mr. Connelley and Mr. Cassidy? A. No.

Q. And do you remember making——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): He is asking you about last Tuesday night.

The Witness: Yes. Tuesday night at 111 Sutter Street.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And do you remember making this statement at the [2326] same time and place this Tuesday night and in the presence of the same persons: "It was his right, his own name"?

A. It was what?

Q. "It was his right, his own name".

A. "It was his right, his own name?

Q. That's right.

A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. You don't understand what I mean?

A. What was right?

Q. Referring to the Communist book you saw?

A. I certainly did not.

Q. And do you remember making this statement in the presence of the same persons at the same time and place: "I quit the Communist Party. I seemed to lapse—I just seemed to lapse."

A. No. No such statement was made at that time, or at any other time.

Q. And did you make this statement at the same time and place and in the presence of the same individuals: "I personally——" "I am personally opposed to the Communist Party now. They have tried to get me to head the Bridges Defense Committee". Did you make that statement?

A. I did not say that. I said at that time that I had been called by Harry Bridges myself to go on the Bridges Defense Committee. [2327]

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Well, did Harry Bridges ask you to go on the Defense Committee? A. Yes.

Q. When did he ask you that, Mr. O'Neil?

A. He asked me that before I left here to go up to Marysville.

Q. It was after you had been interviewed by the Agents of the FBI, was it not?

A. What was the date of the first interview by the FBI men? I can't be sure when the——

Q. (Interposing) Yes, we want you to be sure.

A. I intend to be.

Q. The first interview was on October 7, 1940.

A. I believe that I was asked after that time.

Q. After that?

A. But understand, Mr. Del Guercio, there is one thing: Before I went down to 111 Sutter Street on the occasion when we spent the evening down there, that I went down and saw Harry Bridges before I went there.

Q. Oh, you did? A. Yes.

Q. And what did you tell Harry Bridges at that time?

A. I told Harry Bridges that I had been asked to go down to the FBI that night at 111 Sutter Street.

Q. And who else was present at the time you saw Harry [2328] Bridges?

A. I believe that Mike Quinn was there.

Q. And who else? Anyone else?

A. I don't think so.

Q. And where did you see Mr. Bridges?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. CIO headquarters.

Q. CIO headquarters? A. That's right.

Q. No one else was present? A. No.

Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Grossman?

A. In connection with the—no, I didn't.

Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Gladstein: Is this on this occasion?

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. After you had been interviewed by the FBI Agents at any time? A. Oh, yes.

Q. How many times did you see Mr. Gladstein?

A. I believe I saw him once. It might have been twice.

Q. And did you go up to his office voluntarily or did he ask you to go up there?

A. I went up to his office voluntarily after I had [2329] been brought down here and put under $2500.00 bond and forced to appear here. I thought it was time I had counsel.

Q. Is that the only time you saw Mr. Gladstein?

A. I might have seen him—let me see! I think I saw him the following day when the bond had to be arranged.

Q. Did you see him before that time?

A. You mean before I went down to the FBI?

Q. Before you were brought into Court here and plead guilty to contempt of Court?

A. No, I had not.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. I am quite certain of it.

Q. Did you see Mr. Grossman——

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil,)

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Your Honor, may I ask this? The questions now that are being put to the witness be put in such a way so that the witness can understand the chronology of the dates.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Here's what is happening. What the witness has in mind is the time when he went to Marysville or—now, wait a minute!. No, that is not correct. Mr. Del Guercio asked him about the time that he spoke to Harry Bridges and that, the witness said, was before he went down to the FBI offices. Now, he has the witness—he wants to [2330] ask the witness as to whether the witness has seen us. Now, the witness has in mind the occasion that has just been testified about.

As far as seeing Mr. Grossman or myself, the facts are, and we don't question it, that Mr. O'Neil came to our office on Thursday night of last week and we are voluntarily making the statement, and we have seen him since that time.

Mr. Del Guercio: Are you making that for the benefit of the witness?

Mr. Gladstein: I am making that for the benefit of the record.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, you haven't been asked yet, I submit, if the Court please. He hasn't been asked for any such statement.

Presiding Inspector: I think the statement would come in better a little bit later. If there is any doubt about the chronology here, you may, of course, ask that you be informed.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

The Witness: Yes, that it be straightened out.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you recall the evening on Tuesday night, I believe you said, that you appeared at the office of the FBI? A. That's right.

Q. And that there were present Major Schofield, Mr. Conneiley and myself and Mr. Cassidy?

[2331]

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember that night? A. Yes.

Q. That was on Tuesday night last week, was it not?

A. That was the night I was brought down from Marysville.

Q. At any time before that occasion, before that meeting, and after you had been first interviewed by Agents of the FBI did you see Mr. Gladstein?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you see Mr. Grossman? A. No.

Q. Did you see Mrs. Carol King?

A. I did not.

Q. At no time?

A. No, not afterwards. Just a moment!

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment! He said at any time between certain dates. Well then, you say "at no time".

Presiding Inspector: You mean at no time between the first interview with the FBI men?

Mr. Gladstein: He didn't say it.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: Well, that's the way I understood it.

Mr. Gladstein: So long as the witness has it clear.

By Mr. Del Guercio: [2332]

Q. But you did see Mr. Bridges?

A. Yes. I saw him before the meeting and I saw him immediately after the meeting.

Q. When before the meeting did you see him?

A. I think it was around sometime in the afternoon.

Q. Can you place it definitely?

A. More definitely?

Q. Yes.

A. It would have to be approximately, well, around one or one-thirty because I would have to be back at work at three.

Q. Now, in relation to this meeting that we had in this office here on Tuesday last week, when did you see Harry Bridges?

Mr. Gladstein: Now the question is ambiguous. Is Mr. Del Guercio referring to the time that Mr. O'Neil went to see Mr. Bridges?

Presiding Inspector: No, no. I don't think it is capable of that understanding.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you understand the question?

A. I am trying to, but they are a little bit mixed up.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: Read the question again.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will withdraw the question, if the Court please, and put it—— [2333]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well now, you are being asked a second time or a third time or more about when it was before the meeting of last Tuesday evening, how many hours or whatever it may have been, that you saw Mr. Bridges.

The Witness: After the meeting of last Tuesday night?

Presiding Inspector: Before the meeting of last Tuesday.

The Witness: Before the meeting of last Tuesday night I was up in Marysville and had been for some six or eight weeks.

Presiding Inspector: I understood you to say that before you went up on last Tuesday night you saw Mr. Bridges.

The Witness: No. Before I went to 111 Sutter Street the first time, which was away back in October.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, then I am confused.

The Witness: That was Thursday night in the presence of Mr. Bridges and in the presence of his attorneys.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, then you did see Mr. Bridges in the presence of his attorneys, Mr. Gladstein and Mr. Grossman? A. Oh, yes.

Q. When was that?

A. That was Thursday night when I was served with a Federal Court subpoena and a warrant was served on me and I was under bond.

Q. Do you recall when you were first questioned by the Agent of the FBI on October 17, 1940?

A. Was that at the Radio Station? [2334]

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Did you see Mr. Bridges at any time after that date and prior to Tuesday of last week?

A. Yes, certainly I did.

Q. Now! Now we are getting somewhere.

A. I don't know where!

Mr. Gladstein: He said that before.

Presiding Inspector: I thought it was immediately before the meeting of last week.

The Witness: Listen!

Presiding Inspector: Before the meeting when the stenographer was present that you have been through.

Mr. Del Guercio: No, he stated——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Let's find out.

The Witness: Let me answer that, Judge, in my own way instead of saying "Did you see him Monday" or "Did you see him last week"?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: I went down to see Harry Bridges on the afternoon of the day that I was going to 111 Sutter Street for the first time, which, I believe you stated, was last [2335] October. That may or may not be so. I told Harry that I had been asked to go down there voluntarily, and I agreed to go. Harry said they were asking everybody on the front to do the same thing. After the meeting that night I went down to see Bridges and I told him what had taken place.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you tell him everything that went on before the FBI? A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell Harry Bridges that you had seen his Communist book on his desk in his office sometime in 1937? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you tell him that you had told the FBI men that you believed you knew Harry Bridges to be a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, I told him what had happened.

Q. And was that the time that Mr. Quinn was present also?

A. I don't know whether Mr. Quinn was present the second time. He was present the first time because it was in his office that we met.

Q. Did you see him at any other time after that before last Tuesday?

A. I didn't see him last Tuesday.

Q. Well, did you see him at any other time?

[2336]

A. I saw him Thursday night of last week.

Q. Before Tuesday of last week?

A. No. I don't recall that I did see him.

Q. Now, to go back to this last Tuesday evening about 8:00 P. M., in the presence of the persons that I have just told you, Major Schofield and Mr. Connolley and myself and Cassidy, did you make this statement "I could go down now and head the Bridges Defense Committee"? A. No.

Q. "I am very friendly with Bridges". Did you make that statement?

A. No, I did not. The Bridges Defense Committee was completely functioning and has been for weeks, to my knowledge.

Q. And do you remember Mr. Schofield asking you this question: "Do you know why he never became a citizen", referring to Bridges?

A. No. I don't recall that because I wouldn't know the answer to it.

Q. You don't recall that? A. No.

Q. And do you remember making the reply "I heard in the first time he was in Washington, and the second time I don't knew why Harry Bridges did not prosecute the case." [2337] Do you remember that statement?

A. It's possible that I might have been asked that question and given that answer because I never was fully informed or never knew anything about the circumstances.

Q. And do you recall my asking you "Do you believe that an alien Communist should be deported?"

A. No. If I remember you asked me, did I believe that Harry Bridges should be deported? using the name.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Do you recall my asking you "Do you believe that an alien Communist should be deported"?

A. No, that was not the way the question was asked.

Q. And do you recall your answer, that your answer was in the affirmative?

A. No, you asked me if I thought that Harry Bridges should be deported and I said "No."

Q. And do you recall my asking you "Why do you object to doing your duty as I believe all ordinary citizens should, O'Neil"? Do you recall my asking you that?

A. Yes. I believe you did ask me that.

Q. And do you remember your reply as follows?

"Well, I will be frank about it. I was very closely associated with the labor movement and I still am. I do not belong to any union now. It was before"—"I was before a member of the American Newspaper Guild. I was on the 'Voice of the Federation', which is the paper for the [2338] Maritime Federation up and down the Coast. I was on this until I became West Coast CIO Regional Director, Publicity Man. I bought the typewriters, chairs, desks and everything was bought by me. I am not afraid". Do you remember your saying that?

A. I believe I did answer the question that way.

Q. Do you remember saying that?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember my asking you then

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

"There must be some reason you do not care to testify"? Do you remember my asking you that?

A. Yes, I believe you did.

Q. And do you recall your replying as follows:

"It happened by accident. I had to put on a CIO radio program on KSAM. The station was off the air for a time. They tried these voices and some of them were good. Then for two years I was radio reporter, news, 15 minute program, each day. After that I went to KYA, KJBS, and handled their news over there. You can not divorce yourself from your voice, and to testify would ruin myself. No, I cannot agree. I have discussed that with Brunton. I am now working for KMYC, Marysville, only broadcast news, also general master of ceremonies on various programs. These people do not know I was a member of the Communist Party. That is the only reason I do not care to testify."

[2339]

A. No.

Q. Do you remember making those statements?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember making any of those statements?

A. Do you remember asking me if it wouldn't be possible if I wanted to get on the witness stand here and tell whatever I was supposed to answer, whatever answer you particularly wanted, if I couldn't go to some other part of the country? Do you remember that?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Do you mind my asking the questions for a moment or two?

A. No. There was no such——.

Q. (Interposing) You have no objection to my asking you some questions?

A. No. But I want to get it straight. This is a little bit important.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Schofield telling you that if we did give you assurance they will not fire you would you testify? Do you remember Mr. Schofield asking you that?

A. Yes. But that happened later out in the hall when he told me that he had ways and means of assuring me that nothing would happen in Marysville.

Mr. Gladstein: Could I hear that answer, please?

Presiding Inspector: I think he answered it fully.

Mr. Gladstein: Could I hear it, please?

Presiding Inspector: Read the answer, please.

[2340]

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

The Witness: Mr. Schofield's statement did not take place in the room. It took place down the blind end of the corridor where he said "We have ways and means to assure you that your job is O.K. in Marysville".

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And do you remember your reply as follows:

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

"Well, they will be on there. I have not been threatened by anyone. Mike Cassidy is a friend of mine. No Government officer has threatened me at any time. I am the one who can place Bridges in the Party. I saw him put his stamp in his own book." Do you remember making that statement, Mr. O'Neil? A. No sir, I did not.

Q. You did not make that statement in our presence? A. No, I did not.

Q. And do you remember my asking you: "You saw him put his stamps in his own book? You saw his own name in the book?" Do you remember my asking you that?

A. No, I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall that. I might have asked you? A. I don't think you did, no.

And do you remember your reply as follows:

"Yes, I walked into Harry Bridges' office, and I said, 'You g.d. fool!' He was relaxed and with his feet on the desk, and he said, 'I did not have time today.'" And then you demonstrated with your thumb on the desk how Bridges pasted the [2341] stamp in his Communist Party book? Do you remember your saying and doing that?

A. Wait a minute! I want to understand that. I walked in there? That statement says I walked in and found him with his feet on the desk and using his thumb to put stamps in a book?

Q. No, no. Then you demonstrated with your

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

thumb how you saw Harry Bridges put his assessment stamps——

A. (Interposing) And the time I walked in his feet were on the desk? That must have been quite a performance.

Q. We have this statement here as we believed you said it.

A. Yes. Well, you haven't got it correct by any manner of means.

Q. And do you remember you further saying "I said, 'You g.d. fool! You are nuts!'" Do you remember your saying that? A. No.

Q. You didn't say that? A. No.

Q. "And he said, 'I am O.K.'" Do you remember you saying that? A. No.

Q. "It was under the name of Dorgan." Did you say that? [2342]

A. No. I have been asked whether there was such a book as Dorgan.

Q. I am asking you now about this conversation in the presence of Mr. Schofield, myself, Mr. Connelley and Cassidy.

A. And the answer to your question is "No".

Q. On the evening of Tuesday of last week, or the evening of April the 22nd.

Presiding Inspector: He says, "No".

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And do you remember your continuing as follows:

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

"That is where you fellows are wrong." Did you make that statement?

A. That is where what fellows are wrong?

Q. "You fellows", referring to us, Mr. Schofield, myself, Mr. Connelley and Mr. Cassidy.

A. I might have made that statement. I have been thoroughly convinced of it for quite a while.

Q. You have? A. Yes.

Q. "It was an Irish name", do you remember using that? A. No, no, absolutely.

Q. You didn't make that statement? [2343]

A. Absolutely not.

Q. But you did make the other?

A. What?

Q. "That is where you fellows are wrong"?

A. I think I made the remark, "That is where you are wrong, "where you asked me about whether I believed Harry shouldn't be deported.

Q. And do you remember your continuing that "He was very proud of it"? A. What?

Q. Proud of the name "Dorgan"?

A. I never discussed the name "Dorgan with him at any time in his entire life or my own.

Q. And do you recall your continuing "His card in this was green, a small green", then you demonstrated on the calendar that the size was about three by four inches?

A. No, I don't recall anything like that.

Q. You may have said that?

A. No. I did not. I might not have said it.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

did not say it. There is no possibility of it being said.

Q. And your testimony is that you did not say those things? A. That's right.

Q. And do you recall continuing: "I went to work for [2344] him, I believe it was 1937, possibly 1937 or 1938"? Do you recall your saying that?

A. No. I don't recall that I did. Most of that evening was spent, what I admit now, is a very stubborn determination on my part that I was not going to be dragged into this case.

Q. But do you recall making that statement in our presence? A. No, no.

Q. Will you say that you did not make it?

A. Yes, I am stating now that I did not.

Q. And do you recall your continuing "I went to work for the unions in 1936. It was in 1937 or 1938. They later changed the color of the card"?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember making that statement?

A. I did not make it.

Q. And do you recall that you continued "It was a deeper green later"? A. No.

Q. You did not make that statement?

A. I did not make any such statement at that time or place.

Q. And do you recall that you continued "I could not get a job anywhere. They would say, 'The g.d. Communist is still got his Communist ideas'"? Do you remember making that [2345] statement?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. No. That was the point where you asked, I believe it was Mr. Schofield asked me, if I couldn't go to some other part of the country and get a job.

Q. Do you deny, then, that you made the statement that I just read to you?

A. Yes, I certainly do. I have done it now several times.

Q. And do you remember my then asking you, "Did you make a statement to anybody"?

A. Did I make what statement?

Q. My asking you in these words, "Did you make a statement to anybody"?

A. No, I don't remember any such question as that.

Q. Well, do you deny that I asked you that at that time and place?

A. Yes, I would.

Q. And did you reply "They do not know I made a statement to the FBI"?

A. No.

Presiding Officer: I don't quite get that. They know——

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. (Interposing) "They," referring to Bridges and his counsel, attorneys, "do not know I made a statement to the [2346] FBI"?

A. No.

Q. "They know they were following me around"? Do you remember making that statement?

A. "They know"—"They know they were"——

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. "They," referring to Bridges and his counsel, Mr. Gladstein, Mr. Grossman and Mrs. King. Do you remember making that statement?

A. That they were following me around?

Q. No, that the FBI men were following you around.

A. Yes.

Q. You made that statement?

A. I believe I said that Bridges was aware of it.

Q. But how about Mr. Gladstein and Mr. Grossman?

A. No, I wouldn't include them because I had no conversation with them about the hearing that I attended.

Q. And then you recall Mr. Cassidy asking you this:

"Do you recall telling me of Grossman calling you"? Do you remember Mr. Cassidy asking you that at that time and place, I am referring to last Tuesday night, in the presence of Major Schofield, Mr. Connelley, myself and Cassidy?

A. No, I don't recall that.

Q. Would you say that you didn't, that Mr. Cassidy didn't ask you that at that time and place?

A. I would certainly say that I don't remember being [2347] asked that question.

Q. And do you remember your reply as follows:

"They called me, and I said I had been up to see them but they did not follow it up." Do you remember your saying that?

A. No, I don't recall I did.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Well, would you say that you didn't make that statement?

A. Yes. I would at this time say that I didn't make that statement.

Q. You deny that you made that statement?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall your further stating "After this they first offered me the head of the 'Timber Worker' and then later they offered me a job of the head of the Harry Bridges Defense Committee"? Do you remember making that statement?

A. No.

Q. In the presence of Major Schofield, myself, Mr. Connelley and Mr. Cassidy?

A. No, I didn't make that statement.

Q. You deny having make that statement?

A. I do.

Q. And do you remember my asking you, "Is Mr. George Wilson a Communist?" Do you remember my asking you that?

A. I don't recall that you did.

Q. Would you say that I didn't ask you? [2348]

A. I would say off-hand that you did not.

Q. And do you recall your reply made in the presence of the gentlemen I have just mentioned "George Wilson is not a Communist but his wife was"? Do you recall making that statement?

A. No, I did not make any such statement.

Q. You didn't make it? A. No, no.

Q. "That is, Betty Ballentine"? A. No.

Q. Do you remember making that statement?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. No, I didn't.

Q. And do you recall that you continued "I did not call them, but later Harry Bridges called me on the telephone" referring to Bridges' counsel, Mr. Gladstein and Mr. Grossman, "Called me on the telephone and said he wanted me to head this job, and I told him, 'I can't,' that, 'If people knew you and I were connected it would end me.'"? Do you remember making that statement?

A. No. Why should I make such a statement as that when I was on the air every night of the week for the CIO?

Q. I don't know. I am asking you whether you made such statement in our presence.

A. No, I didn't make such statements. [2349]

Q. And did you further continue "I was out of a job here and the Marysville job materialized after I talked to you" turning around to Cassidy, "and said that I did not know what to do as I was out of a job and did not have any reason for turning the job down"? Do you remember saying that?

A. No, I stated the reason I didn't head the Bridges Defense Committee was because I had accepted a job in the North. I had gone when the first offer of the job came.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you were out of employment when Mr. Bridges first asked you if you would accept the job to head his Defense Committee?

A. Yes. I believe he had just heard that I was out of a job at the time.

Q. And he offered you a salary?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. No, there was no mention of salary. What he told me at that time was, if I could get a job I had been negotiating for in the Northwest, to go ahead and get it. He said that he didn't blame anybody for doing as good for themselves as they could, but if I would be around and available they would like to have me.

Q. Didn't you continue as follows: "I don't want to testify and will not testify, but I have actual visual knowledge of his membership," referring to Bridges, "and I know he was a member of the Communist Party." A. No.

Q. Didn't you make that statement? [2350]

A. No. I did make a statement that I don't want to testify and I am not going to testify.

Q. But did you make this statement "that I have actual visual knowledge of his membership"?

A. No.

Q. Referring to Bridges' membership?

A. No.

Q. "And I know he was a member of the Communist Party"? A. I did not.

Q. You didn't make that statement in the presence of Major Schofield, Mr. Connelley, Mr. Cassidy and myself? A. No.

Q. Tuesday evening?

A. No. I have answered "No." How many times do we have to go over it?

Q. And, to continue, did you further state "I have discussed this with him and Harry would discuss the matter with me. He would discuss the Party line and sometimes he would digress from it"? Did you make that statement?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. No, I did not.

Q. In our presence at that time? A. No.

Q. And did you continue as follows: "You have a lot of witnesses testifying who do not know what a real top fraction meeting is"? Did you so testify?

[2351]

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you so tell us at that time?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. And didn't you further state, "A top fraction consisted of Bridges, Gladstein," referring to Mr. Gladstein, "Schneidermann"? Did you make that statement in the presence of Mr. Schofield, myself, Mr. Connelley and Mr. Cassidy?

A. Not in anybody's presence at any time. I did not.

Q. And didn't you also continue "I know Gladstein is a member of the Communist Party," then you said something obscene, "for a long time"?

A. No.

Q. Didn't you make that statement in the presence of Major Schofield, Mr. Connelley, Mr. Cassidy and myself?

A. No, I did not.

Mr. Del Guercio: Huh? You don't deny it, do you?

Mr. Gladstein: I certainly do. And you are a fool!

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please,——

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: Let's not have these exchanges back and forth.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Inaudible).

Mr. Gladstein: Say it out loud!

Mr. Del Guercio: You heard me!

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment! Stop this talking [2352] back and forth.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think counsel should have been admonished.

Presiding Inspector: Now, address your remarks to me, and the same with you, Mr. Gladstein.

By Mr. Del Guercio.

Q. Now, didn't you also——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I want to ask a question.

Was there a stenographer present at this meeting?

The Witness: I believe this gentleman over there at the table (indicating) was taking notes, yes.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And didn't you continue by saying also "Also I know Grossman is a member of the Party"?

A. I did not.

Q. You did not make that statement?

A. No.

Q. And didn't you also continue "I know he was a member of the Communist Party—that he is a member"? A. No.

Q. Do you remember making that statement?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. No, I didn't make it.

Q. You didn't make that statement?

A. No. [2353]

Q. And Del Guercio—do you remember my asking you this: "Is King a member"? And do you remember your reply, "Absolutely, no question"?

A. Is who a member?

Q. King, referring to Mrs. Carol King.

A. No, I didn't make any such statement about Mrs. King.

Q. And you didn't make that reply, "Absolutely, no question"?

A. As a matter of fact, I have never been introduced to Mrs. King. I have conducted everything through Mr. Grossman or Mr. Gladstein. I never met the lady.

Q. And do you recall you further stated "When he, Harry, would go to New York City I would make arrangements and he would see, I know, Joe Curran."?

A. I know Joe Curran.

Q. Did you make the statement?

A. I did not, but I happen to know Joe Curran. I have been twice offered the job as editor of the newspaper which he heads.

Q. Did you make the statement at that time that I just read? A. No.

Q. And did you continue as follows "He never mentioned Browder, but he also talked to Minor and Curran"? A. No. [2354]

Q. Do you remember saying that?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. No.

Q. And do you recall saying that "He would discuss this with me later"?

A. I never made such statement at any time in the presence of anybody or any place.

Q. And do you recall, continuing, at the same time and place, "When you asked if Gladstein is a member of the Party, that is foolish—it makes me laugh." Do you remember saying that?

A. No, I don't I was asked if Gladstein was a member of the Party and I replied that "it is foolish," that makes me laugh?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't recall that there was any discussion about the matter.

Q. Would you say that you didn't say that?

A. Yes. I would say definitely that I didn't say it.

Q. And didn't you continue as follows: "Of course, Gladstein, Grossman, Margolis are all members of the Communist Party"? Did you make that statement?

A. You mean in one statement I said it made me laugh to think that Gladstein was a member, and in the next statement I said "Of course, Gladstein is a member"? [2356]

Mr. Del Guercio: Read the question, please.

The Witness: Read the one before, too.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is material here.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Sir?

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is very material here.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, it is material in this sense, if the Court please: Here is a witness who has made, and we will show he has made, those statements to certain Agents of the FBI and who sometime later, months later, made the same statements, similar statements, in the presence of Major Schofield and myself.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, we do not——

Presiding Inspector: I didn't hear anything about Mr. Gladstein or Mr. Grossman or Mr. Margolis in the earlier statement that you purported to read from, and I don't see that it is very material.

Mr. Grossman: This is one occasion where we agree with Mr. Del Guercio. We think this is quite material because it shows how the FBI will falsify statements that were not made, and we therefore do not object to it going in and ask that the whole thing go in.

Presiding Inspector: I haven't ruled it out, Mr. Grossman. [2356] but I was calling Mr. Del Guercio's attention——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I hope——

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——to the fact that it wasn't very material.

Mr. Del Guercio: I hope that Mr. Grossman can back up his statement that the FBI are falsifying reports. That is an accusation—a criminal accusation, your Honor.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: Let us go on with the trial: "Hearing," I suppose. It is not a "trial." Ask the next question.

Mr. Del Guercio: Do you want to hear me on the materiality as to whether Grossman and Gladstein are members of the Communist Party?

Presiding Inspector: No. I don't see that it is material, but that is my present view. Now, if counsel for the Alien does not object and you think it is material——

Mr. Del Guercio: I think it is very material.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——I will take it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And did you continue as follows, Mr. O'Neil:

"I have attended at least five Communist Party meetings with Bridges and Hanoff was at all of these."

Presiding Inspector: Now, just a moment! I was confused about a question and the witness asked to hear the question [2357] and answer a couple of questions back, and I would like to hear them, too.

The Witness: The questions were in regard, as I remember, Judge,—the first question was where I was alleged to have stated that Gladstein was not a member of the Party and had made me laugh, then I said that all the counsel were.

Presiding Inspector: I am sure that that implication is not necessary, although I understand you are taking it.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Just read that about making him laugh. I think that counsel—well, I won't say.

(The questions and answers referred to were read by the reporter as above recorded.)

The Witness: It is clear. In one question read to me I have given one answer and in the next one I have presumably given another, both contradictory.

Presiding Inspector: You can take another implication. The suggestion is, if I may say it, that it was so conspicuously so that you laughed at their even asking the question.

The Witness: That wasn't the impression I got out of it.

Presiding Inspector: That, I think, is the impression that counsel suggests to the question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And then did you continue by making this statement "I have attended at least five Communist Party meetings with [2358] Bridges and Hanoff was at all of these. I never attended any meetings with Pritchett"? Did you make such a statement?

A. No. But you did ask me a question about Pritchett being a member of the Communist Party, and I said that I never met him.

Q. You deny at this time that you have made the statement as I have read it?

A. I certainly do.

Q. And do you recall continuing as follows, "I have yet to meet Pritchett"?

A. Yes, I was asked——

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. (Interposing) Do you remember that?

A. Yes, and I said I had never met him and I never have.

Q. And do you recall saying that "I have not met Mickey Orton"?

A. No, I didn't make that statement, because I have met Mickey Orton.

Q. You have met Mickey Orton? A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember your making this statement regarding Mickey Orton "He belonged, but as to that I am not sure."

A. No, I did not because there has never been any question about Mickey Orton at all. [2359]

Q. You didn't make that statement at that time and place? A. No.

Q. And do you recall your continuing as follows: "I never attended meetings with either Pritchett or Orton?" Did you make that statement?

A. No, I did not make that statement.

Q. And do you recall making this statement "I would take the daughter of Bridges home from the Bal Tabarin. He would toss me the keys, and I would take her home. This was social"? Do you recall making that statement?

A. I believe in answer to that question I did state that we had been out for the evening at the Bal Tabarin and that I did take his daughter home, yes.

Q. And do you remember your continuing "The meetings I attended with Bridges were closed Communist Party meetings"?

A. No, I did not make that statement. I have never been to a Communist meeting of any kind in my life.

Q. I am talking about Tuesday night in the presence of Major Schofield, Mr. Connelley, Mr. Cassidy and myself.

A. So am I. I already said "No" to it. Apparently I have to say "No" four or five times.

Q. I want to be sure that you understand the questions.

A. I understand it thoroughly.

Presiding Inspector: I think there is a good deal of [2360] repetition.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I think there should be because we want to make certain——

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it makes it any stronger.

The Witness: Might I state at this time that I just got out of the hospital a week ago for pneumonia, and this is a little bit trying, and I don't like to answer the same questions three or four times which I have been doing all morning.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And do you remember your continuing "I have only been at four or five, and sometimes there was no reason for me being there"?

A. I didn't make any such statement.

Q. You didn't make that one? A. No.

Q. And do you remember making the statement "They would call me when it concerned the waterfront"?

A. No, I didn't make that statement.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Do you remember making that one?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember making the statement that "I was Regional Director of the CIO publicity and was getting $50.00 a week"? [2361]

A. Somebody asked me and I told them what the salary was.

Q. Then you did make that statement?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you make the statement that "I got paid from Washington"?

A. I understand we are talking about the meeting of last Tuesday night, and I don't recall that the question of salary came up the other evening at all.

Q. Do you recall making the statement "The union went in the CIO. It would be 1937—it was after the strike"? Do you recall making that statement?

A. What union went into the CIO?

Q. Do you recall making the statement as I read it?

A. No. It doesn't make sense as you read it to me.

Q. Do you recall making this statement "In June he was named Secretary of the CIO, and I called him for a job and took my job as publicity director and I got my salary then from Washington"?

A. No, I don't recall any such statement as that on Tuesday evening.

Q. And do you recall your continuing "Prior to that I got my salary from the 'Voice of the Federation', $50.00 per week paid for five years' experience as a newspaper man, the [2362] salary paid for this"?

A. No, I don't recall that that subject came up at all. That was discussed and covered at other meetings, but not at that one.

Q. Do you recall that you continued, "I came here in the fall of 1936, which was the time I took over the paper. I came to the State of California possibly twelve or fourteen years ago, I would say off-hand"?

Do you remember making that statement?

A. No, I didn't. I don't believe that that is correct, of when I came to California.

Q. Do you recall making this statement "I have told you guys the truth, and on the stand tomorrow it will be a different situation. I will go up on the stand and say that to testify is a crucifixion"? Do you remember making that statement?

A. I did not make any such statement.

Q. And do you remember then my asking you if you intend to go on the stand and tell the truth? And do you remember your reply "I cannot do it"?

A. I made no such statement.

Q. What?

A. I made no such statement. Do you recall bringing in a subpoena that particular evening because I said I would not [2363] take the stand?

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that that be stricken upon the ground it is not responsive.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, strike it out. Just answer the questions.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. O'Neil, do you remember making a telephone call from a pay telephone on Balboa Street to Mr. Cassidy on March 18, 1941?

A. March 18?

Q. Uh-huh (affirmative); this year.

A. No, but I believe I informed him—I believe I called him from home to tell him that I was leaving San Francisco.

Q. About March 18, 1941?

A. It would be approximately around in there someplace.

Q. And do you remember telling him in that telephone conversation, telling Mr. Cassidy, that if you were called as a witness you may as well jump in the Bay and have it over with?

A. No, I don't recall any such statement.

Q. Did you ever make such statement to Mr. Cassidy over the telephone?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. You never did? [2364] A. No, no.

Q. And did you make this statement to Mr. Cassidy over the telephone, that same telephone conversation that on the previous afternoon, Monday, March 17, 1941, you had received a telephone call from Harry Bridges who asked you if you would take over the job of running the Bridges Defense Fund?

A. I did not. I made that statement directly to Cassidy and not over the phone. I made a brief statement that I was leaving San Francisco, because

I didn't want to leave any impression that I was running away or in flight from anyone. That was why I called.

Q. And did you further state at the same time over the telephone, March 18, that Mervin Rathborne would continue as the nominal head of the fund, that Harry wanted you to do all the actual work?

A. I made no such statement over the phone.

Q. You made no such statement. And didn't you over that telephone conversation ask for advice as to whether you should accept the position as head of the Defense Committee,

A. I did not ask for any such advice, no.

Q. And didn't you say—also say at that time and place that you could act as an informant and in that way the Bureau would have a pipeline to all of the activities trans- [2365] piring in regard to the Defense Fund?

A. I certainly made no such statement.

Q. You didn't make any such statement?

A. No.

Q. To Mr. Cassidy?

A. No. If I could have played a dirty game like that, I wouldn't be here under $2500.00 bond the way I am. I don't play that game.

Does a chance come later, Judge, to explain some of these things?

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Gladstein will ask you the questions.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And didn't you further state that you would accept the job only if you could be assured that you would not be used as a witness?

A. I did not make any such statement.

Q. And that with that understanding you would furnish the Federal Bureau of Investigation with any information of possible value that you might obtain? A. I did not.

Q. And didn't you also say in that same telephone conversation that you needed the work and that you could offer Bridges no plausible reason for not accepting the position as [2366] you had been unemployed since November 22, 1940 when you lost your job at the broadcasting station?

A. I did not, because he told me to take the job in the North rather than to go to work on the Defense Committee; because it would presumably be permanent. You have seen to it that it wasn't. [2367]

Q. And did Mr. Cassidy call you back later on that same day?

A. He did not. As I recall it I made the call from my home.

Q. I mean did he call you back that day, or the following day, on the telephone?

A. I don't believe so.

Presiding Inspector: He doesn't believe so. I suppose he means he has no such recollection.

Mr. Del Guercio: I am trying to refresh his memory.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you recall if Mr. Cassidy told you over the telephone shortly thereafter, that is, the previous telephone conversation, that he did not know whether you would be used as a witness in the Bridges case?

A. No; I don't recall we discussed it. I stated I was leaving and my reason for going.

Q. And that the matter of calling you as a witness would be entirely in the hands of the officials who were to present facts to the Examiner?

A. I believe he told me that personally one time, but not in connection with this telephone conversation.

Q. And did Cassidy also tell you that the question of your accepting the position offered you as head of the Bridges Defense Fund was a matter that you would have to decide for [2368] yourself?

A. No, because I didn't call up to discuss that. I called to say I was leaving town.

Q. Now, Mr. O'Neil, when were you served with a court subpoena—and by a court subpoena I mean a subpoena issued by a Judge of the U. S. District Court, to appear in this proceeding to testify?

A. I believe that was Wednesday.

Q. Wednesday? A. I believe so.

Q. And you did not appear, did you?

A. I did not. I planned to come down in the afternoon but a warrant was issued for me before noon time.

Q. And what did you do that evening, on the evening that the court subpoena had been served upon you?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. I went down to see Mr. Grossman and Mr. Gladstein at their office in the Mills Building.

Q. And what time did you go there?

A. I couldn't say positively. It was fairly early in the evening; possibly around—I couldn't venture an exact guess on that.

Q. Well, had anyone telephoned you to go up to see Mr. Gladstein and Mr. Grossman?

A. No. I called on them.

Q. Did Mr. Gladstein—did you go to Mr. Gladstein's [2369] office? A. Yes.

Q. Where is that?

A. In the Mills Building.

Q. What time did you arrive there?

A. I just told you I can't be positive.

Q. Was it at night?

A. Yes; it was in the evening.

Q. Was it dark when you arrived there?

A. Yes.

Q. Who were present there in Mr. Gladstein's office?

A. Harry Bridges, Mr. Gladstein, Mr. Grossman, my wife and myself.

Q. Was Mrs. King there?

A. I don't recall if she was in there when I was discussing this matter with them.

Q. How long did you remain in their office that evening? A. Possibly a couple of hours.

Q. What was discussed?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. We talked about this subpoena which had been issued.

Q. Is that all?

A. We talked about the case in general.

Q. What do you mean, "about the case in general?"

A. Just exactly that—about the case in general.

Q. What was said about the case?

A. As to why I was down here and why they particularly [2370] wanted to question me.

Q. As to who——

A. (Interposing) As to why I was going to be questioned.

Q. Questioned by whom?

A. At the hearing here.

Q. Who did you tell that to?

A. I answered these gentlemen; they asked me.

Q. Did they give you a reply, did they say why you were coming down here?

A. They asked me why I was coming down here.

Q. Did you tell them?

A. I told them I had been in Marysville working when two FBI men came up there and insisted that I leave immediately and come down here immediately. They had no subpoena for me, but I knew it would be a waste of time to argue for they would come back the next day, so I came down.

Q. You came down voluntarily from Marysville?

A. Yes, sir; no sense taking any other tactics.

Q. Did they threaten you? A. No.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. What else was said in Mr. Gladstein's office that night?

A. We discussed subpoenas, and I was advised the best thing to do was to appear.

Q. Who advised you to do that?

A. Mr. Gladstein or Mr. Grossman. [2371]

Q. You didn't appear?

A. No. I planned to appear in the afternoon, but I didn't appear.

Q. What else was said about the Bridges case and about your testimony?

A. I can't recall, except I believe that Bridges said the advice he gave me when I went to 111 Sutter Street the first time was still good.

Q. What advice was that?

A. To get up and tell the story as it happened.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Gladstein and Mr. Grossman and Mr. Bridges there that you had already made a statement to the FBI?

A. No, I didn't because I have not made a statement.

Q. And that you had had conversations with them?

A. Yes, conversations; questions had been put at me.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Gladstein, Mr. Grossman and Harry Bridges there that you had dictated a statement to a stenographer in the FBI office?

A. No, I did not, because I did not dictate one.

Q. What else did you talk about during these two hours you were up there?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. Well, I think that pretty well covers the ground.

Q. Do you mean that is all you talked about in the two hours?

A. That, and the general aspects of the case; yes. [2372]

Q. What were the general aspects—let me have some particulars in that connection. What was said about the Bridges case generally?

A. I couldn't recall exactly what was said there that particular evening because I was too completely upset about what had taken place.

Q. Did you make any statement to Mr. Gladstein, Mr. Grossman, or Harry Bridges, any written statement? A. I believe I did; yes.

Q. Did you dictate it?

A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. What was the statement concerning?

A. I don't recall now what was in it.

Q. You don't recall? A. No.

Q. Did a stenographer take down what you were saying? A. Yes.

Q. Was a stenographer present? A. Yes.

Q. And you signed the statement?

A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. How long was the statement?

A. I don't recall how long it was.

Q. Did they read it back to you? A. Yes.

[2373]

Q. Was it true, everything that you said in the statement? A. Yes.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. And you signed it? A. Yes.

Q. Were you given a copy?

A. No, I don't believe I was.

Q. Did you ask for a copy?

A. No, I don't recall that I did.

Q. Did you see them again that evening, or the following day, that is, Mr. Gladstein, Mr. Bridges or Mr. Grossman?

A. No—that is Thursday evening you are talking about?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes. On Friday there had to be a change made in the bond and I went to their office again.

Q. Who furnished your bond?

A. I believe it was the Bridges Defense Committee.

Q. The Bridges Defense Commitee?

A. Yes.

Q. You were found in contempt of Court, were you not, Saturday morning? A. That is right.

Q. And your sentence has been suspended, is that correct? A. That is right.

Mr. Grossman: If your Honor please, I would like to correct [2374] that. I do not know of my own knowledge, but it was in the newspapers that sentence has not been suspended, but that judgment has not been given yet.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, judgment has not been given. That is what I meant—it was postponed.

The Witness: Postponed until they could see what they thought of my testimony here. That was the statement.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is that what Judge Louderback told you?

A. That is correct. That is what either Judge Louderback said, or the Federal Attorney standing there said, and the Judge agreed.

Q. Who was the U. S. Attorney there?

A. I don't know him.

Q. Was it Mr. Licking?

A. I believe that was the name.

Q. And he made what statement to you?

A. He made the statement—first off, they wanted to pass the sentence on Tuesday. I think Mr. Licking made the suggestion that it come up Wednesday morning instead, pending my appearance on the stand and my attitude at that time.

Q. He said pending your attitude at the time you appeared on the stand?

A. I couldn't say his exact words, but the statement was to the effect that what I had to say here would depend on what [2375] happened at that time.

Q. Were all of the statements that you made in the presence of myself, Major Schofield, Mr. Connelley and Mr. Cassidy, on Thursday night—I mean on Tuesday night of last week, true and correct?

Mr. Gladstein: We have been all through those statements one by one.

Presiding Inspector: I think he may say whether they were—not the statements that were read—he is asking whether he truthfully answered their questions. That doesn't mean those statements.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Mr. Gladstein: I understand.

A. That is correct. I answered the questions truthfully.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. All these statements that you made that night?

A. All the things you asked me I answered to the best of my ability.

Q. I am not asking you that. I am saying all of the statements—pay close attention—that you made in the presence of Major Schofield, Mr. Connolley, Mr. Cassidy and myself on Tuesday night last week, were all those statements true and correct?

A. You have just read off a purported list of——

Presiding Inspector: No, no, no. He asked you whether what you told them, in answer to questions and also those state- [2376] ments which you made not in answer to questions, whether your answers and statements were correct.

The Witness: They were correct.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And were all of the statements that you made to the Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation from time to time true and correct?

A. I answered their questions to the best of my ability and told them the truth.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Your answers, they were correct?

A. That is right; yes.

Q. Mr. O'Neil, when you arrived at Mr. Gladstein's office Thursday night of last week, did Mr. Gladstein or Mr. Bridges tell you that they had that same afternoon, or evening, tried to come down to your home, but didn't go in because they saw a car there with some officers in it?

A. I don't recall that statement was made, but the car was there.

Q. The car was there—you knew that?

A. Yes, sir. The house was picketed.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Gladstein that the car was there?

A. I believe I did. In fact, the car followed us down to his office.

Q. Did you call Mr. Gladstein up when you saw the car standing in front of your house? [2377]

A. I don't recall that I did; no.

Q. You don't recall. Would you say that you did or did not call?

A. I couldn't be sure as to whether I called or not.

Q. It is possible that you did call?

A. It is possible that my wife might have called.

Q. Is it also possible——

I didn't get your last answer.

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I will ask you the question again: Is it possible that you might have called that evening, might have called Mr. Gladstein, Mr. Grossman, or Harry Bridges, after you saw the car in front of your house?

A. No, I don't believe I called.

Q. You are not sure?

A. I wouldn't want to be certain.

Q. How did you go to Mr. Gladstein's office from your home? A. We went down in a car.

Q. Your own car? A. I have no car.

Q. Whose car was it?

A. I couldn't be sure about that. [2378]

Q. You are not sure whose car it was?

A. No. Just a minute—I want to explain here that I have been thoroughly confused for the past few days. I think you are aware that I got out of a hospital with pneumonia, and I have been arrested and put under $2500 bond, and such things as whose car did I go in, and so forth, and so on——

Presiding Inspector: Is this material?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see the slightest materiality. He testified that he didn't call up Mr. Gladstein's office heretofore.

Mr. Del Guercio: No; he said he might have.

Presiding Inspector: His last answer was that his best recollection was that he didn't, but that he wouldn't be certain.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Mr. Gladstein: I might as well say that my knowledge is that Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil came to our office in a Yellow taxicab and I think they left the same way.

Presiding Inspector: I don't suppose you ought to volunteer that.

Mr. Gladstein: It has no materiality.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think that is improper.

Presiding Inspector: It is improper.

Mr. Gladstein: What is the materiality of this?

Presiding Inspector: I can't see any materiality of it.

Mr. Del Guercio: No materiality when he went to Mr. Glad- [2379] stein's office?

Presiding Inspector: Not at all. I can't see, whether Mr. Gladstein, Mr. Bridges, or anyones else took him there, I do not see that it has the slightest materiality. This case isn't going to be tried or determined upon such suspicions or anything of this kind. It is going to be tried and determined upon the evidence.

If you remember why you may state it, but if you can't that is all there is about it.

The Witness: I can't be certain.

Presiding Inspector: Have you any recollection at all on it?

The Witness: I remember I went down there.

Presiding Inspector: You went in a motor car?

The Witness: Yes; in an automobile. There were a lot more things worrying me than the make of the car and who was driving it on that particular evening.

Presiding Inspector: I can't see any materiality to it. If you want to press it you may press it still further.

Mr. Del Guercio: In view of the statement of the Court I won't press it further.

May I make this request—we are about ready to adjourn, I assume?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I request that the witness be admonished [2380] not to talk to anyone during the noon recess.

Presiding Inspector: I think it would be wise for him not to talk to anyone. I won't admonish him.

Mr. Gladstein: I might mention that we have no objection to that. But I think the record should show that heretofore every witness that Mr. Del Guercio has put on has been in the custody of the Government during all recesses, even during cross examination by us.

Presiding Inspector: This case isn't going to be determined on that.

Mr. Gladstein: I know, but I want to point that out for the record. We do not know what they have been doing with the witnesses during our cross examination.

Presiding Inspector: All I say is that I think it would be wise for Mr. O'Neil not to talk to anybody during the noon recess about this case.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I think counsel should be admonished as to his choice of words. No witness has been in custody, if the court please, and let the record show that.

Presiding Inspector: We will recess now until 2:00 P.M.

(Whereupon, at 12:35 P.M. a recess was taken until 2:00 P.M. of the same day.) [2381]

After Recess.

2:00 O'Clock P.M.

Presiding Inspector: All right, Mr. Del Guercio. You may proceed.

JAMES D' O'NEIL

called as a witness on behalf of the Government, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (Resumed)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. O'Neil, you testified this morning that you had been interviewed by Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation a number of times, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. During any of these interviews were you intimidated or threatened by the FBI agents?

A. Well, I don't know what you call it, but Major Schofield, in that meeting, said that if I didn't turn out to be a reluctant witness that my job would be perfectly safe, whereupon my job was lost the following day when I did turn out to be a reluctant witness.

Q. I am calling your attention to the interviews that you had with the Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation during the several interviews with the Agents, and am asking you if you were in any way intimidated or coerced or threatened?

A. The agents were in on that hearing. [2382]

Q. What?

A. The agents were in on that hearing that I am referring to, the one down there in your office.

Q. Is it your testimony that you were coerced and threatened by the agents?

A. I regard it more or less of an intimidation to say "Your job is all right provided you turn out to do the thing we want you to."

Q. Is that the only thing you have in mind?

A. That is the only thing I can recall at the moment.

Q. Do you recall anything else—I will give you all the time you want to think about it.

A. I don't believe I do right now.

Q. Can you recall anything else?

A. No, I can't.

Q. You weren't threatened? A. No.

Q. Or coerced? A. No.

Q. You weren't intimated, other than the statement you made that Major Schofield is purported to have said? A. No.

Q. That is the only thing?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. That is the only thing that I can recall.

Q. And that refers to all the interviews you had with [2383] the FBI agents, the Government agents?

A. I would say so.

By the way, would you consider it an interview up at the house there when they were coming up the back stairs and also up the front and hammering on the door and demanding admittance, cars parked outside the apartment house?

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that that be stricken, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: No. I think I will allow that.

If you consider that an interview would you say there was any coercion in that?

The Witness: I would certainly regard it as coercion; yes, sir.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And when did that occur?

A. That occurred, if I am not mistaken,—I can't be dead sure about the date, but I believe it was on Wednesday when I had failed to respond to the first subpoena to appear in 111 Sutter Street.

Q. That was Wednesday of last week?

A. And Thursday.

Q. And Thursday? A. Yes.

Q. And that was after you had made the statements to the FBI, the statements in the presence of Major Schofield, Mr. Connelley, myself and Cassidy? [2384]

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. That was after I had answered their questions.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. You may cross examine.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. O'Neil, during the examination that Mr. Del Guercio conducted this morning you at one time turned to Judge Sears and said, substantially, "May I explain how this happened?" Judge Sears said "You may make your explanation when Mr. Gladstein examines you." I will now ask you to explain in your own words beginning at the beginning with your first interview with the FBI and telling in chronological order as nearly as you can all of the incidents connected with your various interviews with the FBI. Will you please do that?

A. Well, the first two interviews were conducted at Radio Station KJBS. I was employed there at the time. That took place in an audition room down the hall. At that time the opening statement was "When did you cease to be a member of the Party?" My reply to that was that I had not ceased to be a member of the Party, that I was not a member of the Party and never had been." Whereupon at that time they began asking me questions about a number of people who are prominent in the waterfront labor movement. As I recall,—I can't recall them all because some of them I had never heard of. They obviously were from some place other than San Francisco. Henry

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Schmidt's name was mentioned, Bridges, Mervin Rathborne, officials of the [2385] Newspaper Guild; in fact, officials of practically every Union with which I came in contact during my two years at the CIO.

At the end of the first interview, which consumed, I should say, possibly an hour and a half, somewhere around there, I was asked who the callers were.

Q. Who asked you that?

A. Mr. Brunton at the radio station. I informed him who they were and what their purpose was. As I recall, he made the remark that if I knew anything I should go down and I could become the biggest figure on the Pacific Coast by proceeding to "turn in" Harry Bridges. I said I knew nothing of Bridges which could be of any value to the people. I believe another interview was held—at that time I was asked to come down to 111 Sutter Street, and I saw no particular reason for not going except I think the night they asked me to go down there was the night that John L. Lewis was speaking in the election. He was coming out with an important statement. I didn't want to miss it, so I postponed the meeting until the following evening. I think it was the following evening.

In the meantime I contacted Harry Bridges. Harry laughed when I told him what had happened, that I was going to be called down. He said "You are only one of several who worked down at the front who have had the same thing". He said "The only thing is to go down and tell them the truth. You have nothing to worry about." Which I did.

[2386]

In the course of the meeting, which was read as a statement, paragraph by paragraph, the questions that were asked me now appear to be questions that were asked me corroborated by myself. Let me see! That was, I believe, the third meeting, if I am not mistaken. Two took place at the radio station. The third one took place at 111 Sutter. There were two subsequent meetings at the house. On that occasion I was called on the phone and asked if I would come down to 111 Sutter, and I felt and I said that I felt I had nothing to add to what had already been said. Well, they came out to the house anyway on two different occasions. I couldn't say exactly how long, but I believe that one of the sessions up there when they were going over names, calling up names of men and women both, who were prominent in the labor movement, "Did I know that they were affiliated with the Communist Party?" "Did I ever attend Communist meetings with them?" The answer was that I had not. "Well, so and so," and somebody would be brought in who I might or might not know. When I say "brought in", their name brought in and I was told that they had said that I had been at such meetings.

Well, I stated that they were meetings of Labor's non-Partisan League, they were meetings of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, they were meetings of the CIO Council. The meetings were a great many varied labor groups, at which I was present and in which these figures were present because, for [2387] instance, I believe at that time Henry Schmidt was the President of the Local of the ILA at one time and later on of the ILWU. Certainly I attended such meetings but they were not Communist meetings. And I so stated. And yet time and again, you understand, once a question was answered that wasn't the end of it. It was brought up at the subsequent meeting, or possibly the same evening with the statement that "this man" or "that man" was reported to have seen me, or "It was reported that you were seen there, Jim, and it was a Communist meeting." That is why this statement this morning is a composite picture of the entire six interviews and not of any one particular one.

Now, when I mentioned a few moments ago "intimidation" or meetings that were held at the house, I regard it as intimation when two of the agents stormed up the back stairs the other day to try to convince me that I should come down to the hearing. I regard it as nothing less than intimidation if a man came up there, I believe that was to serve the Federal Court warrant and he slammed on the front door of the apartment so loud that it could be heard all over the entire building. When we opened up the thing he dashed into the room and served the paper on me.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

I was due to appear at ten o'clock in the morning, and it was right around noon time that the warrant was served on me and I was brought down.

[2388]

Q. Have the agents of the FBI been watching your home?

A. They have been parked outside in a car.

Q. Have the agents of the FBI been following you around town and shadowing you?

A. Yes: they followed me the night I went down to your office.

Q. Proceed with your story, Mr. O'Neil, telling us what else happened.

A. At the time that I left San Francisco to go to Marysville I did contact Mr. Cassidy because I wanted it understood why I was leaving town. I had previously talked to Harry Bridges and he had mentioned that it would be a good idea if I did go to work for the Bridges Defense Committee, but he also made the statement, "If you can get yourself a better job, or a more permanent job, go to it," because he didn't blame a man for doing the best he could do for himself.

So I took a job up in the northern part of the State.

I have been up there for some six weeks. When I was taken sick I had to go to the hospital and I just got out of the hospital less than a week ago.

Q. What were you in the hospital for?

A. Bronchial pneumonia. I got out of there on

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Saturday and the following Tuesday the agents appeared.

Q. Do you remember which agents they were?

A. Cassidy, and the other chap's name I don't recall. [2389] I don't know—I think I was introduced to him, but I don't remember his name. I don't see him here today.

They had a car with them. I had to go on the air at the time, had a broadcast to take care of at 12:25, followed by another one at 12:30. I completed those broadcasts and I realized there was no sense in trying to evade coming down here because I knew I would be served with a paper compelling my appearance. So I came down voluntarily.

I was told at that time—I said, "I have absolutely nothing that would be of any value in this particular case, as you fellows know."

They said, "There is no harm in coming down and talking to the bosses."

I said, "I have talked to the boys before and there is absolutely nothing left to be said to the boys or anybody else."

I came down here. As soon as I got down here, as soon as my attitude was found to be that I had nothing to say and I didn't intend to cooperate—I suppose that would be the word to use—I was served with a subpoena, which I signed for at the time and accepted the service of it.

Q. Since the time that you came down from Marysville, Mr. O'Neil, and didn't show the kind of cooperation that Mr. Del Guerico wanted, have you lost your job at Marysville? A. I have.

Q. Tell us about how your job was lost? [2390]

A. I was informed by phone, the day after I failed to appear, by the manager of the station, that he was sending my check down and didn't care to have in their employ a man who had been associated with Bridges.

Q. Now, at the time that you were at the office of the FBI on Tuesday, of last week—withdraw that.

First of all, let me ask you this question: At the time that you were there at 111 Sutter Street, on Tuesday of last week, and after the discussion, did I understand that you and Major Schofield then had a conversation between yourselves?

A. Yes. We were leaving the room, and I was going down the hall toward the door leading out from the office there. At the far end of the corridor there is a table and a chair—it might have been a desk and a chair—and Mr. Schofield called me back and said, "The main thing about it is that you are afraid about your job in Marysville, aren't you?"

I said "I don't know. I imagine it is not going to do me any particular good, all this."

He said, "Never mind, we have ways of taking care of that. That can be fixed up. You don't have to worry about that."

It was the following day that it was fixed up, as I have testified.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. O'Neil, that the reason you told the FBI you didn't want to testify in the case was because [2391] you felt that you had nothing to add to the Government's case in this case, but that the mere appearance of yourself as a witness against Bridges would be played up in the press in such a manner as to blacken your name in the labor movement regardless of the fact that you had no information against him?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, your Honor, as being suggestive.

Mr. Gladstein: This is cross examination.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is putting words in the witness' mouth.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. You may answer.

A. I testified this morning that I had been a member of labor unions since 1919, and I said then that I didn't want any part of this hearing: that I didn't want to be connected with it as a Government witness against Bridges; not that there was any fear on my part, because there wasn't and there isn't, but it doesn't do a man any good to get his name in the headlines, "So and so subpoenaed to appear against Harry Bridges," because many men in the labor union who don't read beyond the headlines would say; "Jim O'Neil has been called to testify against Harry Bridges," without knowing the true statement of the condition of affairs.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Would the answer to the question I asked you be "yes" [2392] then? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gladstein: We have no further questions, your Honor.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. O'Neil, you testified here, in answer to counsel's questions, suggestions, rather, that you had been followed by agents of the FBI. How did you know that they were agents of the FBI?

A. Because I was thoroughly satisfied that they were, because a man stepped out of the car and came up to serve that paper, and later on I saw that same car out in front.

Q. You are as sure of that as you are of some of the other statements you have made?

Mr. Gladstein: Don't answer that question.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that is proper.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did they tell you they were agents of the FBI?

A. They came in and officially served the papers on me.

Q. Did they tell you they were agents of the FBI?

A. I don't recall that they did, but it was on official business of this hearing.

Q. Do you see them in court here? [2393]

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. No, I don't recall that I do. There are a good many agents who talked to me that are not in court.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. O'Neil, wasn't it the U. S. Marshal that appeared at your home to serve the subpoena on you?

A. Some official, but I couldn't say who it was.

Q. And didn't you, or your wife, and in your presence, ask to see his credentials?

A. I believe she did.

Q. What did your wife see, did she tell you?

A. No, I don't believe—I was in bed at the time.

Q. But your wife, did she see the credentials of the person that served the subpoena on you?

A. I don't know that she did.

Q. Why didn't you ask to see them yourself?

A. Because I was in bed at the time the paper was served on me.

Q. Were you awake?

A. I was awakened by the arrival of the man.

Q. You were awake when the Marshal appeared?

A. Yes; that was the noise of getting in the house that awakened me.

Q. You didn't ask for his credentials, to see his papers? A. I don't believe I did; no.

Q. Now, what is the name of the manager of the station [2394] where you were employed at Marysville? A. Walter Conway.

Q. When did he tell you that you had lost your job?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

A. He phoned me—I believe the call was made either Wednesday or Thursday.

Q. Wednesday or Thursday. It wasn't the day following the interview at the FBI office on Tuesday night, was it?

A. It could have been—but I couldn't be sure. whether it was Wednesday or Thursday; one of those two days.

Q. What time of the day were you called?

A. I believe the call came in around close to noon.

Q. That you were called at your home?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you report for duty there at that station Wednesday morning?

A. No. I was down here Wednesday morning.

Q. Why didn't you report for work Wednesday morning?

A. Because I had been down here talking to you gentlemen.

Q. Well, you were under subpoena to come here to appear here in court and you didn't appear, isn't that a fact?

Mr. Gladstein: That is not a correct statement in accordance with the record. The first subpoena that I saw didn't tell him to come into court at all. It said to go to 111 Sutter Street.

Presiding Inspector: Subpoena to come somewhere. [2395]

Mr. Gladstein: That is a little different, but that is misleading the witness.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: We will make it that way.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where did you go Wednesday morning?

A. I went home.

Q. And you stayed there all day?

A. I believe I did; yes, sir.

Q. You didn't go anywhere?

A. No; I don't recall that I did.

Q. In any event, you didn't go back to Marysville to report to work? A. No.

Q. Did you call up your boss?

A. I called him back, after the first time, to tell him that if that was the situation I wanted my belongings sent down to me; they haven't arrived yet.

Q. Have you been at the FBI offices, or any other Governmental office, since Tuesday night of last week, to the time you were taken in custody by the U. S. Marshal?

A. No; because there have been agents at the house.

Q. Now, what did the manager there of the station tell you over the telephone?

A. I have already testified to what he said.

Q. Will you report it again?

A. Yes. He said, "I am sending your check down, Jim. [2396] I am sorry. Mr. Thomas said" —Mr. Thomas is the man who owns the station— "that he didn't want to have in his employ a man who has been associated with Bridges."

Q. Did he say anything else?

A. No; that is all.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Q. Did he say that any Government officer had been down to see him?

A. No, I don't recall that he did.

Q. You don't recall? A. No.

Q. Well, I will give you a little time to think about it now.

A. No, I believe I told you the complete conversation.

Q. Well, would you say that he told you that some Government agent had been down to see him?

A. No.

Q. What? A. No.

Q. Mr. Bridges, was any mention made of CIO meetings——

A. (Interposing) I think you have me mixed with the defendant. My name is O'Neil.

Q. I beg your pardon, Mr. O'Neil. My mistake—it wasn't intentional, but a slip.

At the time you were interviewed at the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on Sutter Street on Tuesday [2397] night of last week, did you make any mention of any CIO meetings of any kind, or were you asked any questions concerning any CIO meetings?

A. No, I don't believe I was. My attitude during the entire meeting was that I was completely through with the matter.

Q. Were you asked anything about meetings of the Non-Partisan League?

A. I don't believe I was, no.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Mr. Gladstein: One more question.

Recross Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You mentioned in your cross examination, Mr. O'Neil, that you had during your two years or so association with the labor movement attended many meetings of Labor's Non-Partisan League, the Maritime Federation of the Pacific and, I think you mentioned, some other trade union organizations. During the course of the various interviews that you had with the FBI agents did you tell them about the fact that you had attended meetings of this trade union character?

A. Oh, yes, yes.

Q. How did that come up?

A. Well, I mentioned, for instance, when I told that I had been seen at meetings at which Bridges and Smith and Mervin Rathborne and other such men had attended, which were [2398] Communist meetings, I said that I had been in many such meetings but they might have been at labor's Non-Partisan League, of the Maritime Federation or of any one of a number of labor meetings which I would be naturally required to attend since I was writing up pamphlets for them and handling the publicity of those unions.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

May the witness be told that we may still require his presence here?

(Testimony of James D. O'Neil.)

Presiding Inspector: How long do you want him to stay?

Mr. Del Guercio: Until tomorrow morning.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Next witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Does that mean the witness stays in court?

Mr. Del Guercio: Have you any objection?

Mr. Gladstein: Not at all.

Mr. Del Guercio: The next witness is coming up, your Honor.

GERTRUDE SEGERSTROM

called as a witness on behalf of the Government, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: Give your name to the reporter.

The Witness: Gertrude Segerstrom—S-e-g-e-r-s-t-r-o-m. [2399]

Presiding Inspector: You will have to speak louder.

The Reporter: Gertrude Segerstrom,—S-e-g-e-r-s-t-r-o-m

Direct Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And by whom are you employed, Mrs. Segerstrom?

A. By the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. In what capacity?

A. As a stenographer.

Q. And for how long a period have you been so employed? A. For four years.

Q. Were you so employed on the day of October 7, 1940? A. Yes, I was.

Q. Were you present on that date at the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at 111 Sutter Street? A. Yes, I was.

Q. At the time a James O'Neil, Agents Smith and Cassidy were present? A. Yes.

Q. And what time of the day was that, Mrs. Segerstrom?

A. It was in the evening between nine and ten o'clock.

Q. And who called you into the office?

A. As I remember, it was Mr. Cassidy.

Q. Mr. Cassidy. And did he ask you to do anything?

A. He told me that Mr. O'Neil was in there and that they would like me to take down what he had to say. [2400]

Q. And did you take down what Mr. O'Neil had to say? A. Yes, I did.

Q. In longhand or in shorthand?

A. In shorthand.

Q. Now, did you take down—I will ask you this question. Strike it out, please. Did Mr. O'Neil dictate to you a statement at that time?

A. Yes, he did.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Do you have your original notes of that statement that Mr. O'Neil dictated to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Are these the original notes?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. And they were taken at that time in the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation?

A. That's right.

Q. On October 7, 1940? A. Yes.

Q. And they were taken down when Mr. O'Neil was speaking? A. Yes.

Q. Will you read them, please? A. Yes.

"I first met Dave Craig in the city of San Bernardino in the summer of 19——"

Q. (Interposing) Will you speak a little louder, [2401] please, we can't hear you?

A. "I first met Dave Craig in the City of San Bernardino in the summer of 1936. He had just been appointed Director of the Federal Writers' Project for San Bernardino, Riverside and Imperial Counties. I was anxious to obtain a position on the Project and he was the man I had to see. I was appointed to the Federal Writers' Project and became Assistant Director under Craig, who, incidentally, was in ill health and seldom able to appear at the office. I kept this position for several months. I then left to take a publicity job at the Riverside County Democratic Central Committee. While I was on this job Craig returned to San Francisco and the Federal Writers' Project was closed. Approximately six days after the 1936 November presidential election I came to San Francisco, having previously made arrangements by letter with Craig to stay at his home and pay room and board.

"As soon as I came to 2048 Ellis Street in San Francisco Craig frankly told me he was a member of the Communist Party and I at one time or another became acquainted with practically everybody of consequence in that Party, meeting most of them at his home, including Bill Schneidermann, California Secretary of the Party, his wife, Rose, Walter Lambert, head of the waterfront section of the Party, one Ross, editor of the Western Worker, the entire staff of the Worker, 'Pop' Hanoff, Minne Carson, Oleta O'Connor, Frank Spector, Mike Quinn, Henry Schmidt, John Shoemaker, Germain Bulcke, and others. [2402]

"I joined the Communist Party in either the latter part of November or the first part of December, 1936 under the name of 'Ben Harrison'. My purpose in joining the Party was an assurance that I would have employment, which I immediately obtained on the S. S. Polarine. This job was obtained through the Craigs and through Ross of the Western Worker, who at that time was posing as the husband of Oleta O'Connor. Oleta O'Connor's sister is Gloria Lee, now secretary to the secretary of the San Francisco Industrial Union Council. At that time she was secretary of the Fish Reduction Workers Union, San Francisco Local. Through her

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

I obtained a position on the Polarine, which was a fish reduction boat.

"I was on that ship about a month, and when I came ashore I was informed there was an opening as editor of the Voice of the Federation. I went to the Voice of the Federation office and was informed that even at that moment the Maritime Federation Executive Board was meeting at 24 California Street to pick an editor. I went down there, introduced myself to Scotty Kelly, who was Secretary of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, showed him my Guild card, as I had joined the Newspaper Guild in San Francisco before going to sea, and then I asked him to permit me to use the typewriter in the office to write up my qualifications and background. I dashed them off and gave them to Kelly and that afternoon was interviewed along with several other applicants and told [2403] to return the next afternoon, as the Newspaper Guild had two candidates it believed especially qualified for the job. I was one of them * * *"

Correction: "I was not one of them. The following day which was the day before New Year's, 1937, the full Executive Board of the Maritime Federation narrowed the applicants down to three. One represented the Lundeberg faction, one the Bridges' faction, and the third one was myself. Presumably on the theory that to appoint either of the two men of the Bridges' or Lundeberg faction would merely start the old fight over again, the Board voted 6 to 2 to put in the stranger, myself.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

"That night I was invited to attend a New Year's Eve party at 121 Haight Street by Craig, at whose home I was living, and while there I was introduced to 'Pop' Hanoff, Frank Spector, Amy Schechter. Both Miss Schechter and Frank Spector expressed amazement that I was the new editor of the Voice and they hurriedly sent for 'Pop' Hanoff and demanded to know what I was doing there. A long argument ensued, and I insisted on having dinner there, and then at the request of practically the entire San Francisco Communist Party I withdrew. They felt very strongly that the editor of the Voice of the Federation should not be seen at Communist Party headquarters.

"On the Voice of the Federation I succeeded Henry Schrimpf, who as trustee of the Maritime Federation had been [2404] operating the paper in between the interim of Barney Mayes and my own appointment. I remained editor of the Voice of the Federation for approximately six months.

"On New Year's Day following my appearance at the Communist Party headquarters I drove into the driveway at 2048 Ellis Street and was met by Mrs. Craig, who informed me that a very important person was waiting to see me in the house. I went inside and in the kitchen I immediately recognized from his pictures Harry Bridges, who was accompanied by Joe Ring. This was on January 1, 1937. Bridges outlined his views as to how the Voice of the Federation should be conducted, detailed at great length his troubles with the previous editor,

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Barney Mayes, asserting that due to Mayes' action the longshoremen would be compelled to accept much less than they had originally demanded in the 1936-'37 strike, and that Mayes' editorship was entirely unsuitable for the Voice. I assured Bridges that it was my intention to run the paper with the columns open to everybody affiliated with the Maritime Federation. In all fairness to Bridges, he never asked any more than that during my editorship, and I found by going over back issues of the Voice that the columns of the Voice had been closed to Bridges and the longshoremen during the previous editorship. By running news from the Longshoremen's Union and accepting letters from Harry Bridges, which I ran in the 'Letters to the [2405] Editor' column, I earned the lasting enmity of Harry Lundeberg, Secretary-Treasurer of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, and at the end of six months Lundeberg at the Portland Convention of the Maritime Federation in June, 1937 succeeded in having me removed as editor. No charges were ever filed against me. I was simply removed by vote of the convention.

"After an interval of two weeks I was named publicity director for the western region of the Committee of Industrial Organization. I held that position for more than a year, handling all the publicity for the western states for the CIO, writing the daily radio broadcast and giving it myself six days a week, answering practically all of Bridges' mail, both personal, requests to speak, requests for articles; wrote magazine articles for him; generally ghosted for him. I was paid out of Washington by check.

"I left the CIO to go to work for Radio Station KYA, where I was in charge of news broadcasting for eight or nine months. During this time I also handled a CIO broadcast. I wrote and delivered the broadcasts myself, obtaining my material from the CIO headquarters and the headquarters of unions affiliated with the CIO which might be involved in disputes of various kinds requiring the labor interpretation in the broadcast. On numerous occasions Harry Bridges would call me and tell me what he wanted emphasized.

"I left KYA and after an interval of possibly eight or ten weeks I went to work as news broadcaster for Radio Stations KJBS and KQW in San Francisco, where I am still employed. [2406]

"At this point I would go back to my first meeting with Bridges at the Craig home. Present at that meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Craig, Bridges, Joe Ring and myself. At that time I was introduced by Craig to Bridges with these words, 'Comrade Bridges, meet Comrade O'Neil.' Naturally, I assumed from this that Bridges was also a member of the Communist Party.

"On another occasion I walked into Bridges' office, it always being my privilege to do so after first having assured myself that he was alone, and there on his desk was a new Party book, which had just been issued and into which Bridges was putting assessment stamps. This was about two o'clock in the afternoon in Bridges' office in the Balboa Building, 593 Market Street, Room 509, in 1937. I expressed amazement that he was doing this openly with the book in plain view on top of his desk. However, he nonchalantly continued to put the stamps in place and then returned the book to his pocket. I knew this was a Communist Party book because I had one myself and it was just like it. It was the general practice to pay your dues to the Communist Party dues collector and, in return, to receive stamps which he tore off from a bloc and which you inserted in your book at your leisure. There is no doubt in my mind but what that was Bridges' membership book in the Communist Party.

"I came in to Bridges one morning and outlined to [2407] him that I was unable any longer to tolerate the mental gymnastics of the Guild fraction, and he recommended that I transfer into the waterfront section, which I did through Walter Lambert. The transfer was arranged through Connie's Restaurant, one block from the Golden Gate Theater. I told Bridges at the time of the transfer that after having been the 'man on the flying trapeze' in the Guild I would rather go someplace where there was a net under me. As I remember, I called Lambert that morning from my own office, and it was arranged through him.

"On several occasions Bridges reminded me that I had not been attending Party meetings and asked me, 'What's the score?' I think I told him it was nothing to nothing in the last of the 9th as far as I was concerned and as far as the Party was concerned, and he advised me to take it easy and not let my own feelings obscure my judgment.

"It is my belief that Bridges never at any time attended any Communist Party meetings. He might have met with one or two of the trusted and highest officials of the Party, as that would be all that would be necessary to conduct any business he had with them.

"Bridges never stated to me that he was a member of the Communist Party. It was always tacitly understood and assumed that such was the case. On frequent occasions Bill Schneidermann took exception to my publicity work, to the type of pam- [2408] phlets I was issuing, to the tenor of editorials that might be appearing in the Labor Herald or in the Voice of the Federation in my editorship. Schneidermann very early in the game learned that the way to stop me was to go to Bridges, and I can't now recall any time when Bridges sustained Schneidermann in his complaints. This dispute about the type of publicity which I was issuing came to a climax when Bill Schneidermann, Revels Cayton of the Marine Cooks and Stewards, Lou Goldblatt, Bridges, assistant, and Bridges gathered in Bridges' office in the Balboa Building. Schneidermann demanded that more pressure be brought to bear on the S.U.P. We had spent several thousand dollars in pamphlets and publicity broadsides urging them to cooperate with the CIO. I was flatly against any more such expenditure. Bridges sent for me at that time and when I walked in the door he was telling Schneidermann he thought that I had every right to be in such a meeting because it was my own work that was under fire. He then turned to me and asked me for my opinion as to any publicity aimed at the S.U.P. I told him that it would be good money gone after bad. I believe I told Harry Bridges at that time that the only thing that would bring in any sense into the S.U.P. would be a pickax, whereas Bridges said, 'I agree with you,' whereupon Schneidermann jumped to his feet and said [2409] 'There you are! That's the very thing I have been talking about! Is that the Party line? Is that what we are supposed to do?' I told Schneidermann it probably wasn't the Party line because it made good sense. Bridges backed me up in this, whereupon Schneidermann said that I was a bad influence in the CIO and should be removed and that Bridges was listening to me too much.

"Everybody in the employ of the CIO and the unions with their headquarters in the Balboa Building, with one exception, were members of the Communist Party. This I know because I attended meetings with them, paid dues at the same time they did. There was no secret, no bones made about it at all. The one exception was Herman Stuyvelaar. When a vacancy occurred in the personnel of the CIO heaquarters that vacancy was invariably, without exception to my knowledge while I was there, supplied after consultation with Schneidermann from the Communist Party headquarters.

"During the 1937 Maritime Federation of the Pacific Convention in Portland, Oregon a hole was bored in the wall of Bridges' room adjoining the telephone bell box which was level with a molding in the Multnomah Hotel. After his return to San Francisco from the Portland convention we discussed the planting of the microphone in his room, and he told me that it had been in operation for a day and a half at least before his [2410] attention was called to the plaster on the floor and the microphone outlet was discovered. I remarked at that time that he was lucky to have discovered it and he replied, 'Yes, not so lucky. Those guys have been listening in for a day and a half before we discovered it.' He then stated that letters from Moscow, another obvious red scare, had been openly read and discussed in the room so as to clutter up the record in the next room. Bridges said that fraction meetings had been conducted in the room during the time that the microphone was hooked up. By this he meant top fraction meetings of the Communist Party. When the microphone was discovered the letters from Moscow heretofore referred to were merely figments of the imagination and were read so they would be copied on the record in the next room just to make it appear so completely ridiculous that it would be of no value to those who were tapping the meeting."

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Now, Mrs. Segerstrom, did you read the statement that you have read back to James O'Neil?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did he indicate to you any corrections that should be made?

A. He made a couple of corrections.

Q. What were those corrections?

A. Well, on the first page the first time he said "William Lambert" when I read it back he said that should be "Walter Lambert". [2411]

Q. Any other corrections?

A. Then when he first dictated, right after that he said that where he said that he had become acquainted with practically everybody in consequence at that party, meaning most of them, at his home including Bill Schneidermann and so forth, he included Henry Schrimpf's name at the end. When I went back and read it to him he told me to "cut that out".

Q. Any other corrections that James O'Neil suggested?

A. Well, I had the name of Barney Mayes wrong the first time. I thought he said "Bonnie" and when I read it back he corrected it to "Barney Mayes".

Q. Now, Mrs. Segerstrom,——

Presiding Inspector: Let me see. There may be some others.

The Witness: Well, I have another correction here. Where he said "naturally I assumed from this that Bridges was also a member of the Communist Party", the first time he said "naturally I assumed from this that I was meeting another member," and I asked him to clarify that for my own, at that time, right then, not when I read it back, that for the first time he said that "Bridges was also a member of the Communist Party". I believe that's all the corrections there are on here.

[2412]

Q. Now, are the notes that you have just read the statements of any person other than James O'Neil? A. No, they are not.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all. You may cross examine.

Presiding Inspector: Had there been questions asked him in your presence before this?

The Witness: Occasionally, as he was dictating this to me, he turned to Mr. Cassidy and Mr. Smith and made a few remarks in explanation. He may have asked a few questions then, but I was taking down merely what he said as he was dictating to me.

Presiding Inspector: Where have you kept those notes?

The Witness: These notes have been in the files of Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Presiding Inspector: They were in a book?

The Witness: In an envelope.

Presiding Inspector: They have been in your control?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

The Witness: No, they haven't. I signed them on the bottom before.

Presiding Inspector: You recognize the whole statement as in your stenographic—I don't know what you call it?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is there a statement made by yourself appearing at the end of those notes? [341²]

A. Yes. I endorsed them when I took them.

Q. Will you read the statement?

A. (Reading) "San Francisco, California, October 7, 1940. These are my notes taken in room 901, 111 Sutter Street from 8:55 P. M. to 10:05 P. M. on October 7, 1940. The contents were dictated by James D. O'Neil in my presence and in the presence of Special Agents M. J. Cassidy and H. A. Smith, of the FBI."

Signed by me.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Are you married? A. Yes, I am.

Q. What is your husband's name, please?

A. William T. Segerstrom.

Q. Is he employed? A. Yes, he is.

Q. Where is he employed?

A. In Los Angeles.

Q. What kind of work does he do?

A. He is in the paper business.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. You mean he owns the business?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to this as immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. [3414]

A. No. He is Sales Manager for the Brown Paper Goods.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. How long has he held that position?

A. He has been with them since the first of March.

Q. Before that what did he do?

A. Before that he was a salesman for a merchandise brokerage concern in Seattle.

Q. How do you spell your last name, please?

A. S-e-g-e-r-s-t-r-o-m.

Q. "n" or "m"? A. "m".

Q. Is that your married name? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been employed by the FBI? A. Four years.

Q. And where have you worked?

A. In Seattle, mostly.

Q. When did you come down to San Francisco?

A. I came down here on a special assignment on this case.

Q. When?

A. I was down here last fall and I came down against here last month.

Q. When was the first time you came down to San Francisco? A. Last September.

Q. How long were you here then? [2415]

A. Until the 10th of December.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. What kind of work did you do during that time? A. Stenographic.

Q. Can you be more specific about the kind of work you did?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I submit that is none—I was going to say it was none of counsel's business, but I won't say it in those terms. It is not pertinent to the inquiry at hand.

Presiding Inspector: If she can tell in a general way what her work is I will allow it. I suppose that includes taking notes and transcribing them, doesn't it?

The Witness: It does.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't understand counsel was trying to qualify her as an expert in shorthand.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose he wants to know what kind of work she did.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Have you been taking letters and writing them up? A. Yes.

Q. During that period of time when you were in San Francisco? A. Yes.

Q. Have you been taking statements from witnesses or possible witnesses? [2416]

A. Yes.

Q. You said you came down to San Francisco on a special assignment. Can you tell me what that special assignment was?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. It was in connection with the Bridges investigation.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Has all the work you did in San Francisco been connected with the Bridges case so far as you know? A. Most of it; yes.

Q. Since you came down for the second time?

A. When was it?

Q. When you came down for the second time, that is recently——

A. (Interposing) As far as I know they didn't tell me when they sent for me.

Q. When they sent for you—when did they send for you?

A. I came down here, I believe it was the 20th of March.

Q. Were you told what you were sent for?

A. No.

Q. What have you been doing since you came down here in March?

A. I have been doing—— [2417]

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I will object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. This is an examination as to credibility. I think I will allow it. This is rather a crucial matter, I think—I understand it to be so.

A. I have been doing stenographic work.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Taking statements?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. I don't believe I have taken any statements since I have been down here this time.

Q. Since you have been working on the Bridges case statements of how many different people have been taken by you?

A. I couldn't tell you definitely.

Presiding Inspector: Both times?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I am a little in doubt and I thought she might be too.

A. I took several when I was here before. I don't remember how many exactly.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Have you taken statements from any persons except Mr. O'Neil?

A. Yes. I don't know as I could give their names.

Q. I didn't ask for the names.

How long have you been a stenographer? [2418]

A. About ten years.

Q. What is your speed at taking shorthand accurately?

A. Up to about 200 words a minute.

Q. Accurately? A. Accurately.

Q. What are your regular working hours—what were they in October of last year?

A. My regular working hours?

Q. Yes. A. 9:00 to 5:00.

Q. On the evening when you took this statement from Mr. O'Neil how did you happen to be in the office at the time the statement was taken?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. Because I was there practically every night all the time I was down there last last fall.

Q. Did you come down naturally each night without being told, or were you instructed to be there?

A. I was not instructed just to be there. We came down because there was work to be done.

Q. On the night that we are concerned with when you say you took this statement from Mr. O'Neil, were you in the office because you had been instructed to be there? A. No.

Q. Were there any other girls working in the office, any other stenographers at the time you were asked to come into [2419] the room to take this statement? A. Yes.

Q. How many others?

A. Well, there were two other girls and about four boys.

Q. Did you see Mr. O'Neil come into the office that night?

A. I don't remember seeing him; no.

Q. At what time were you asked to come into the office to take this statement?

A. It was about nine o'clock.

Q. How do you fix the time?

A. Because I wrote on the end of my notes it was from 8:55 to 10:05 P. M.

Q. And you remember that you went into the office immediately after you were asked to come in? A. Yes.

Q. Who asked you to come into the office?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. As far as I remember it was Mr. Cassidy.

Q. Exactly what did he say, if you remember, when he asked you to come in?

A. He told me that Mr. O'Neil was in there and that they would like to have me take down his statement.

Q. Did he tell what form the statement would be in? A. No, he did not.

Q. Then you stepped right into the office, did you? [2420] A. I went right in; yes.

Q. When you got in there what were you told?

A. I was introduced to Mr. O'Neil, and then Mr. Cassidy told me that Mr. O'Neil would give me a statement in his own words and that I was to take down what he told me.

Q. Did you have a seat? A. Yes.

Q. Where were you sitting?

A. I was directly, sitting directly across the desk from Mr. O'Neil.

Q. Which side of the desk—would you be on the side where the person at that desk normally sits?

A. No. Mr. O'Neil was sitting there and I was sitting as if sitting across the table from you.

Q. Did Mr. O'Neil sit in the seat that is occupied generally by the man who occupies that desk?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there any preliminaries before Mr. O'Neil started making his statement?

A. Not that I remember. Mr. Cassidy told him I was there to take the statement; that he should tell in his own words what his story was and that I would take down what he said.

Q. During the time that he gave that statement was he asked any questions? [2421]

A. Occasionally, as he was dictating, he would turn to Mr. Smith and Mr. Cassidy and perhaps make some explanation of what he had said.

Q. I asked whether he was asked any questions.

A. And perhaps, as he did that, they may have asked him a few questions. However, he then would turn to me and give me his version of, that is, a shorter version of what he had just said.

Q. How did you happen to leave out everything but what Mr. O'Neil said?

A. Because I was taking it directly from him and I took only when he was talking directly to me.

Q. Is that the only reason you left out the other conversation? A. Yes, it is.

Q. You weren't instructed to leave out the other conversation? A. I was not.

Q. Is it a practice in your office ever to take down other conversation except that of the person who is making a statement?

A. That depends on whether the person is making a narrative statement like this, or whether he is making a question and answer statement.

Q. Did anyone tell you that this was going to be a narrative statement as against a question and answer statement? [2422] A. Yes.

Q. Who told you that? A. Mr. Cassidy.

Q. When did he tell you that?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. When I came in there.

Q. You mean after or before you got in?

A. Probably after I got in.

Presiding Inspector: Now, do you want to explain that in any way?

The Witness: What I mean was he said that Mr. O'Neil would dictate his own statement and that I was to take it down as he said it.

Presiding Inspector: You have already said that.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Where did you get the notebook in which you took this down?

A. It is standard equipment in the field office.

Q. Was it a new notebook?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. When were these pages torn out?

A. Immediately after I took the statement I tore them out myself.

Q. Did you staple them together?

A. No. I put a paper clip on them, as you see.

Q. Did you sign them at that time? [2423]

A. Yes, I did.

Q. After you took the statement what did you do with it?

A. I put it in with the rest of my work and then I transcribed it the following morning.

Q. How many copies did you make?

A. I don't remember; probably ten or twelve.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Are you guessing, or do you have a hazy recollection?

A. The standard practice at that time was to make, I believe, it was 12 copies of everything.

Presiding Inspector: He asked you a question, whether you were guessing.

The Witness: No, I am not guessing.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you recall how many copies you made?

A. It was either 10 or 12; probably 12.

Q. Then what did you do with your notes?

A. I put them in a manila envelope and handed them to the chief clerk to put them in the file.

Q. What did you do with the copies?

A. With the copy of the statement?

Q. With the ten or twelve copies?

A. They were put in a regular report.

Q. To whom did they go? A. The reports?

Q. To whom did you give them? [2424]

A. Well, they were placed with the rest of the material that was later assembled into a report.

Q. Did you give them to anyone?

A. Well, I don't remember who I gave them to. I may have given them to Mr. Cassidy or I may have given them to the chief clerk—I don't know.

Q. Did Mr. O'Neil talk too fast for you to take it down accurately? A. No.

Q. Did you have any trouble at all that you can remember? A. Not that I remember. [2425]

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Did you make a draft first before you did your final copy, before you typed it out?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Is it your testimony that you took down verbatim in your book every word that Mr. O'Neil said when he was talking to you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you put a title on the statement in your book?

A. On this? All I have at the top is "James D. O'Neil" and the date.

Presiding Inspector: What typewriting, stenographic system do you use?

The Witness: Gregg.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. After you finished taking this statement did you read it over to Mr. O'Neil?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you make any other corrections except those that you have indicated?

A. Not unless I missed some of them when I went through here.

(Examining notes). No.

Q. Your answer is "No other corrections".

A. No other corrections.

Q. How long did it take you to write down everything you have there in your notes? [2426]

A. Well, I have at the end here, it took between 8:55 and 10:05. That is an hour and ten minutes.

Q. Would that be the taking down alone?

A. Yes; from the time I started until I ended.

Q. I beg your pardon.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. That would be the time it took for him to dictate the statement.

Q. Would that include the reading back time?

A. It might and it might not. I don't remember exactly, but that wouldn't take so very long.

Q. What is your practice as to the time that you put on the end of your statement? Is it the time that you take to write it or is it the time that is taken in the interview?

A. I don't know as I ever put the time on the end of the statement.

Q. How did you happen to put the time on the end of this statement?

A. Because Mr. O'Neil indicated he would not be willing to testify, and so I testified to these notes, that they were mine and the length of time it took to take them.

Q. Is there something in the statement concerning Mr. O'Neil's unwillingness to testify?

A. No, there isn't.

Q. How do you know that he indicated that he would be unwilling to testify? [2427]

A. I heard him.

Q. You heard him what? A. Say so.

Q. When? A. Then.

Q. You mean during the time when you were taking those notes? A. When he was through.

Q. You mean after you had taken all these notes? A. Yes.

Q. Will you give the conversation please, in which Mr. O'Neil said that?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. I don't remember exactly what he said. He said that that was a true statement of facts, but that he did not want to testify.

Q. And at that time you had not yet signed the statement, or had you?

A. I had not yet signed the statement, no.

Q. At that time had you put the time on the statement? A. Not that I remember.

Q. When did you put the time on the statement?

A. Immediately thereafter.

Q. You mean after O'Neil made that statement about not being willing to testify?

A. Uh-huh—(Affirmative). [2428]

Q. What is your answer, please? A. Yes.

Q. Did any FBI representative tell you that Mr. O'Neil did not wish to testify?

A. Not before then, as far as I know.

Q. At any time?

A. Perhaps afterwards. They may have said no.

Q. Please don't answer "perhaps", I only want your best recollection. A. I don't know.

Presiding Inspector: That is her best recollection. That is a mere manner of speech.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. You do have some recollection of it?

A. I have some recollection that he may have.

Q. Please! I don't want your "may have". I want to know if you can recall.

Presiding Inspector: Well, if she can give it any more accurately. You are asking a very pressing question about a very immaterial point and you are trying to search her memory. Now, if she can't remember very definitely she can say so.

Mr. Grossman: I recognize that, but the words indicate to me that she may have figured that out rather than recall it.

Presiding Inspector: Not to me. I think that that is an [2429] unnecessary conclusion.

Mr. Grossman: I think I have a right to be definite about it.

Presiding Inspector: I said you could be definite of it, but you can't press for recollection when there isn't any.

Mr. Grossman: I want to be sure there is.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you now have any recollection as to whether any representative of the FBI told you that O'Neil was not willing to testify?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. Well, it was after I took the statement.

Q. After you had left the room? A. Yes.

Q. After you had written down the time on the statement?

A. Yes. I wrote that down as soon as I came out of the room.

Q. Do you remember what time it was when you came out of the room?

A. It was right after ten o'clock.

Q. While you were in the room was Mr. O'Neil asked to sign the statement? [2430]

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. No, he—as I remember, he was not——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing): You mean to sign the notes?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: The stenographic notes? (Continuing): Not to sign my notes.

Presiding Inspector: Well, the statement wasn't written out then.

Mr. Grossman: I will separate it.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you recall Mr. O'Neil being asked to sign your notes? A. He was not asked to.

Q. Do you recall Mr. O'Neil being asked to sign the statement after it had been transcribed?

A. I don't. I don't know whether he was or not.

Q. May I see your notes, please?

A. Yes (Handing notes to counsel).

Q. Did you ask Mr. O'Neil to spell each name that he mentioned?

A. I did if I didn't already know how. You will find them written out usually there where I wasn't sure of the spelling.

Q. Do you recognize the transcription you made from these notes, or would you recognize the transcription you made from these notes if you were shown it? [2431] A. Yes, I would.

Mr. Grossman: I would like to ask leave of the Court to ask through the Court for Mr. Del Guercio to hand over that document which he was using, which I think purports to be a transcription, so that I can ask this witness to identify it.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Mr. Del Guercio: It hasn't been offered in evidence and I refuse to give it to counsel.

Presiding Inspector: Did you offer it in evidence?

Mr. Del Guercio: I did not.

Mr. Grossman: It seems to me, your Honor, that we have a right to——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): You have had it all translated to you. Do you want to compare with what he asked? Is that the idea?

Mr. Grossman: I want to ask this witness to identify——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): I think you should be allowed to identify it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Not according to what was announced at the beginning of the trial.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will look at it myself. It may not have been transcribed by her. It may be a copy of it or what purports to be a copy of the copy.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I have no objection if you ask the question because, if this is not her transcription, [2432] I am not interested in it.

Mr. Del Guercio: The Court may ask if it is.

Presiding Inspector: I think it would be useful, Mr. Del Guercio. But if you don't want to do it, why, there is no mark on this paper. What I wanted to look for, except the figure "2" in one place, and that has no significance.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, may I approach the bench?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Here followed informal conference between the Presiding Inspector and Mr. Del Guercio.)

Presiding Inspector: It wasn't material, I don't think, what was said there. He simply gave a reason which I didn't think was particularly valid.

Mr. Crossman: Am I to be permitted then to have that statement?

Presiding Inspector: I suggest that they introduce it in evidence.

Mr. Grossman: Well, of course, I would like to use it for my examination now.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, certainly. Give him a moment.

Mr. Grossman: Oh, I see.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I have no objection to letting the witness see this and ask her if it is a true transcript of her statement. [2433]

Presiding Inspector: Very well. Do that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will show you a copy of what purports to be a copy of the transcription.

Presiding Inspector: Let me ask her first.

Mr. Del Guercio: I thought the Court asked me to do it.

Presiding Inspector: Can you say whether or not that is your transcription?

The Witness: Yes, it is.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Presiding Inspector: Is that the original or a copy?

The Witness: This is a copy.

Presiding Inspector: Is that the first copy?

The Witness: No, it is not.

Presiding Inspector: It is a later copy. Then I think the counsel may see it.

Mr. Del Guercio: All right.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. May I ask you how you have identified this?

A. How I have identified it?

Q. Yes.

A. I know that because I made that myself.

Q. What is there about that that distinguishes it from something that someone else might have done or did do?

A. Well, there is no mark on here except that I know that I typed it up like that and put that statement at the [2434] top. I did that.

Q. You mean there is something about the form that makes it possible for you to state definitely that you did that typing? A. Yes.

Q. What is there about the form?

A. Well, the mere fact that I made this copy myself either yesterday or Saturday.

Q. You made this copy yourself either yesterday or Saturday? A. Yes.

Q. Then this is not the transcription you made as soon as after taking down this statement?

A. No, this is not. However, it is verbatim, the same as the other.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. How do you identify this as the copy you made a few days ago?

A. Because I gave it to a member of our Bureau this morning myself and he brought it down here.

Q. You mean you identify this solely on the basis that this was handed to you by Mr. Del Guercio when you previously have handed it to a member of your Bureau? A. Yes.

Q. Is that the sole basis for your identification?

A. I could have initialed it this morning, I suppose, [2435] but I didn't.

Presiding Inspector: What difference does it make? You have had this read from the stenographic notes. You are going to have the stenographic notes and you can have some expert in stenography undoubtedly read them. I don't quite understand the point.

Mr. Grossman: I am interested in the statement that was typed out from the notes. Therefore, I can go to that statement from this, because this purports to be a copy of at least a part of it. I am not interested in this. I am interested in the original typewritten statement.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know why you are interested in that more than you are in the notes.

Mr. Grossman: We can come to that later, your Honor. I am sure we have the right to go into it.

Presiding Inspector: I don't say that you haven't, but I would say that it is a very immaterial point.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Mr. Grossman: I would rather not go into my theory at this time, your Honor. I think it is relevant enough so that I can ask the question.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Is this an exact copy of the typing up of your notes that you did as soon as after taking the statement from Mr. O'Neil?

Presiding Inspector: I think that is ambiguous. That [2436] implies or may imply to the witness that she copied this from the other transcription.

Mr. Grossman: All right. I will correct that.

Presiding Inspector: What you mean is, Is this an accurate transcript of the notes, and was the other one an accurate transcription of the notes?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is your testimony as to how the statement given by Mr. O'Neil was put into typewritten form?

A. How was it put into typewritten form?

Q. Yes. A. The first time?

Q. Yes. Did you do it? A. Yes, I did.

Q. How soon after the statement was taken did you do it? A. The next morning.

Q. Did you ever see any of the typewritten copies of the statement that you had typed up after the typing that you did? A. Yes.

Q. When was the next time after doing the typing that you saw any of those statements?

A. I have seen it in the file. [2437]

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. You haven't examined it, though? It was incidental to your doing some other work?

A. Yes.

Q. And you actually carefully examined it, have you? Have you carefully examined any of these statements since the typing of them?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. For what purpose did you examine them?

A. I examined them to see that they were an accurate transcript of my notes.

Q. When did you do that for the first time?

A. It was either Saturday or Sunday, I have forgotten which.

Q. You mean last Saturday or Sunday?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you at any time before that compare the typewritten copy prepared from your notes with your notes?

A. Not since the first time I transcribed that, no.

Presiding Inspector: You mean by that what the stenographer usually calls "reading them back"? At least they do in the East.

The Witness: Well, I think I know what he means.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I make an offer at this time that counsel may read into the record from the transcript of this copy to compare with what the witness has [2438] already testified.

Presiding Inspector: Probably he doesn't want to do that.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Mr. Grossman: I am not interested in doing that at this time.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, they needn't accept the offer unless they wish it.

Mr. Del Guercio: If they don't, I would like the return of the document right now.

Mr. Crossman: You may have it when I finish examining.

Presiding Inspector: We will have it returned to you.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Is there any difference between the typewritten statement that I asked you to identify a few moments ago and the typewritten statements you prepared from your notes soon after taking the statement from Mr. O'Neil?

A. There is just one difference.

Q. What is that difference?

A. There is a word in there that when I typed that statement up the first time I misread "applicants" for "applications". However, it will make no material difference. I will read it back to you if you want me to. The place where O'Neil said down there at the "Voice of the Federation", "The following day which is the day before New Year's, 1937, the full Executive Board of the Maritime Federation narrowed [2439] the applicants down to three." The first time I transcribed that I read that "applications down to three". You see, there is no material difference.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Did you compare this statement that you were asked to identify in typewritten form from your original notes from the first typewritten transcription that you had made?

A. I took the first transcription that I made and compared it word for word with my notes, and then I made a copy of that transcript, which is what you see, with the one change from "applications" to "applicants".

Q. Will you look at your statement, please, and see if you can tell me whether Mr. O'Neil spelled "Barney Mayes" for you when he gave you this statement?

Presiding Inspector: We have been over that once.

A. Yes, he did.

Presiding Inspector: She testified to that.

Mr. Grossman: I want to be sure on this.

Presiding Inspector: In answer to your question, I think. Maybe it was an answer.

Mr. Grossman: I know there was a correction on it, but I am not sure as to whether he did the spelling.

The Witness: Yes. I had "Bonnie". I thought he said "Bonnie" the first time; but he said "Barney", B-a-r-n-e-y "Mayes", M-a-y-e-s.

Q. And he did the spelling then of the name for you? [2440] A. Yes.

Q. And you testified that he did the spelling when you were reading it back to him?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. When I was reading it back I read it back wrong.

Q. Would you repeat again what was the correction that was made by him with respect to the name "Lambert"?

A. He said "William" the first time and when I read it back to him he corrected it to "Walter Lambert".

Q. Did he spell the last name for you at any time?

A. "Lambert"? No, he didn't. The only time he spelled them was when I wasn't sure of the spelling.

Q. Do your notes show what names were spelled for you by Mr. O'Neil? And will you read all of them from your notes where the names were spelled out by him for you?

A. He spelled "Germain Bulcke" for me, G-e-r-m-a-i-n B-u-l-c-k-e; Amy Schechter, S-c-h-e-c-h-t-e-r; Barney Mayes. I remember his spelling both names because those were names that I was not familiar with. He may have spelled "Oleta O'Connor" for me, O-l-e-t-a. I am not sure of that.

Q. Were any of these names spelled for you by any of the FBI Agents?

A. I don't believe so; not as I remember.

Q. What was Mr. O'Neil's condition so far as being nervous of not nervous is concerned at the time you took the statement? [2441]

A. Well, as far as I could see he wasn't nervous. He apparently is naturally a fast talker.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Is there anything about his appearance or his demeanor that seemed to you to be unusual?

A. No, there wasn't.

Q. Did he seem to be perfectly at ease when he was making the statement to you? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember any time when any of the FBI men corrected the statement that Mr. O'Neil was making to you? A. No, I don't.

Q. When the statement was read back to do you remember any correction being made by any of the FBI men?

A. No. Mr. O'Neil made the corrections. I told you that before.

Q. Yes. But I am asking you whether you remember any of the FBI men making or suggesting any correction? A. No.

Q. When I say "suggesting" I mean suggesting to O'Neil or to you.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I think the witness understands and has answered it.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. I think she has answered it.

Had you ever seen Mr. O'Neil before?

The Witness: No, I hadn't. [2442]

Presiding Inspector: Have you ever seen him since until today?

The Witness: No, I haven't.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you see Mr. O'Neil today?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. You said you did not? A. Today?

Q. Yes? A. No.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Can you describe Mr. O'Neil to me?

A. Well,——

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, we could have Mr. O'Neil come in the Court room and have her identify him.

Mr. Grossman: May I suggest that I am conducting this examination?

Presiding Inspector: I know, but under my supervision. And if I think it is best to have him come here and have her identify him that way, I will do it. But I will let you ask the question first, if she can describe him.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Can you describe Mr. O'Neil for us?

A. He's a very stocky individual, ruddy face. He wore glasses, as I remember. I wouldn't want to guess exactly his age. I would say he was——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Don't be afraid about [2443] it. It is not a woman, you know.

A. (Continuing): He's somewheres between 40 and 50, but I wouldn't know exactly how old he is.

Q. I beg your pardon? Have you finished?

A. Yes. [2444]

Q. At the time you took the statement did he seem to be sober or intoxicated?

A. He was sober.

Q. You are sure of that? A. I am sure.

Q. Did he seem to have command of all of his faculties at the time you took the statement?

A. He did.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Presiding Inspector: Would you like to have him come in?

Mr. Grossman: Not particularly. I don't object to it. I am not asking for it.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, perhaps so. Tell him to come in.

Mr. Del Guercio: They tell me he has gone home. He will be back tomorrow morning, if the Court please.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I don't think it is very material anyway.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Now, how did you happen to prepare this last transcription which you have identified for us?

A. I prepared it because I was asked to.

Q. By whom? A. By Mr. Cronin.

Q. What did Mr. Conin ask you to do? [2445]

A. He asked me to make a copy of the statement that Mr. O'Neil had given to me last fall.

Q. Did he ask you to compare it with the typewritten copy previously prepared?

A. Yes; he asked me to compare my notes with that former transcript I made to be sure it was an exact transcript, and I did.

Presiding Inspector: Is that all?

Mr. Grossman: No. I have a few more questions.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. On how many different occasions have you re-read those notes after you prepared the first transcription?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

A. I didn't re-read them until Saturday—I believe it was Saturday—when I checked with that other transcript I made.

Q. That was last Saturday or the week before?

A. No; it was last Saturday.

Mr. Grossman: May we have a recess? I understand we are past the time. We would like to discuss this witness and decide whether there are any further questions.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Before we recess, I think that we should have the stenographic notes marked for identification.

Mr. Del Guercio: I am not offering them, if the Court please. [2446]

Mr. Grossman: Yes; let's have them marked for identification.

Presiding Inspector: I would like to have them both marked for identification.

Mr. Gladstein: This (indicating) should be marked for identification too.

Presiding Inspector: Both should be marked for identification.

We will take a short recess.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

Presiding Inspector: I would like to have those both marked for identification. Do you object to marking them for identification?

Mr. Del Guercio: No, but I wanted to substitute photostatic copies for the notes.

Presiding Inspector: I would like to have the original marked.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Did you say that Mr. O'Neil was to be available?

Presiding Inspector: I thought you said he would be available.

Mr. Del Guercio: I said afterward that he would be here.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is necessary for him to be here for identification. I do not think it is necessary, that is my impression, unless counsel questions the [2447] identification.

Do you question the identification of Mr. O'Neil as being the person referred to by Mrs. Segerstrom?

Mr. Grossman: Frankly, I don't know. We have no opinion on it.

Presiding Inspector: I want these documents marked. Photostatic copies may be substituted.

Mr. Grossman: I cannot agree to that at this time.

Presiding Inspector: It will be the ruling of this Examiner.

Mr. Grossman: May I say something?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: With reference to these notes, and with reference to the typewritten material, we have no position at the present time as to what we desire to do. It may be we will desire to have a handwriting examination made. If so, a photostatic copy would not suit our purpose as to the notes.

Presiding Inspector: A handwriting examination as to her handwriting?

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Mr. Grossman: No; as to the notes, not as to her. But as to the notes it might be we would want to make some kind of an examination. I am informed that an examination of a photostatic copy is not the same by any means.

Presiding Inspector: We will have a photostat made and it may be substituted in the record finally. [2448]

Mr. Grossman: With the understanding that if we desire an examination we will have the original here for that purpose?

Presiding Inspector: You can do the same as we have done in the other cases; yes.

(The transcript of the statement referred to was marked Government's Exhibit No. 255 for identification.)

(The shorthand notes referred to were marked Government's Exhibit No. 256 for identification.)

Presiding Inspector: Mark the shorthand notes on each page.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Is it your testimony that these pages of your notebook have been clipped together?

A. Yes.

Q. When I say "had been" I mean between the time you put them in the file for the first time and the time that you took them out for the first time?

A. I believe I clipped them together.

Q. You don't have any recollection of this, do you? A. No, I don't know definitely.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Where did you work before you went to work for the Federal Bureau of Investigation?

A. I was attending the University of Washington at that time. [2449]

Q. Have you attended any business school to study shorthand? A. Yes, I have.

Q. What school did you attend?

A. The Metropolitan Business College in Seattle.

Q. When did your leave that school?

A. In 1931.

Q. What is the maximum speed that you have ever attained with accuracy in a stenographic test?

A. 200 words.

Q. When was that?

A. That was when I was in business college.

Q. Have you ever had any test since 1931 with reference to the speed that you can take dictation at accurately?

A. Well, you have to pass a 120 word test to get in the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Q. How many words did you do when you took that test to get in the Federal Bureau of Investigation?

A. I don't know how many. They dictate at 120 words a minute and you take it down.

Q. Is it your testimony that you can now take 200 words a minute accurately?

A. That would depend on the kind of material.

Q. Well, with the kind of material——

A. (Interposing) I believe I could.

Q. I am concerning myself now with the kind of material [2450] that is embodied in this statement of Mr. O'Neil's. Can you take 200 words a minute accurately with such material?

A. I believe I can.

Q. How many different times have you read over your notes before testifying?

Presiding Inspector: You have been over that.

Mr. Del Guercio: That has been asked and answered.

Mr. Grossman: Not for this reason, we have not. I asked her on how many different occasions, but I have not asked her how many different times she has read them over on the last occasion.

Presiding Inspector: Perhaps so. All right.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I am concerned with how many different times you read your notes over on this last occasion that you examined them?

A. I read them over once when I checked them with the transcript.

Q. Just once?

A. Just once when I checked it.

Q. What is the total number of times, not occasions but times, that you have read or re-read your stenographic notes before testifying here?

A. Not more than—I read them over when I made the first transcript, naturally; I read them over Saturday when I [2451] checked the transcript; and I read them over just this afternoon before I came in here and that is all. I didn't completely read them over. I just glanced at them.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Then you have not read entirely through these notes more than three times?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Returning to a subject. I asked your a few questions on, which is the subject of the statement you made and your signature at the end of these notes, at exactly, what time, with reference to when you finished taking the statement, did you write out your statement that appears at the end of the notes?

Mr. Del Guercio: That has been asked and answered.

Presiding Inspector: You have gone over that.

Mr. Grossman: I want it for clarification.

Presiding Inspector: We won't go into that again unless you have something more than you have already received from the witness.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I believe that one is entitled on cross examination, on what counsel believes to be an important point, to ask generally similar questions at least twice.

Presiding Inspector: I think you have asked twice.

Mr. Grossman: I don't think I have. I think this is the second time. I recognize I have asked these questions be- [2452] fore, but since it is cross examination, as your Honor knows, sometimes counsel is allowed to go many times over an important point. I, therefore, ask your indulgence to go over this, at least for clarification.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Presiding Inspector: I suppose this is crucial and I will allow it.

Mr. Grossman: I am referring only to her statement at the end of the notes.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Exactly when did you write out this statement?

Presiding Inspector: That doesn't mean the hour, unless you can give it.

A. I can't give the hour. It was immediately after I took the statement.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I ask counsel to handle those notes with care because they are going to be used again.

Mr. Grossman: I am sorry.

Presiding Inspector: Yes; especially there at the top.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Was this statement put on there after you had taken the notes, at the same time, or immediately after you had read back the statement?

Presiding Inspector: Wait a minute. That doesn't cover the whole field—or immediately after she left the room.

By Mr. Grossman: [2453]

Q. Yes—which of those three, if any?

A. Immediately after I left the room.

Q. Did you write everything that is written at the end of the statement, including your signature, at one time? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Is it your testimony that when you wrote this you had not yet been told by any representative of the FBI to do so? A. Yes.

Q. And that it is not your practice to write things like this at the end of statements without being told by FBI representatives to do so?

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. Is there any such testimony?

Mr. Grossman: I am asking—I may be wrong—but I think I have a right to ask it in that way and she can either answer it is correct or incorrect.

Presiding Inspector: If you can, answer. Of course, there is an implication there.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Is that correct?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know that you intended it.

Mr. Grossman: I will ask it again.

Presiding Inspector: I think she has said she hadn't done this in any other case.

By Mr. Grossman: [2454]

Q. Is it your testimony that you had never done this in any other case?

A. I have never had occasion to do it before.

Q. Have you ever done it on any other case?

A. No.

Q. How many different statements have you taken on the Bridges case or for the Bridges case?

A. I have taken several; I don't recall exactly how many.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Q. Can you give me some kind of an estimate?

A. It would probably be anywhere up to half a dozen.

Q. Can you estimate or can you tell me how many different persons are involved in those statements that you estimated at half a dozen?

Mr. Del Guercio: I think that has been answered.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will allow that.

A. That would be as one person to each statement.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Can you tell me how many different systems of shorthand generally in use there are?

A. No, I can't.

Q. How many different systems do you know of? A. Just one—that I know of?

Q. Yes. A. I know of several.

Q. One is the Gregg that you use? [2455]

A. That is right.

Q. What others do you know of?

Presiding Inspector: Not that you know, but know of.

A. Naturally, I have heard of Pittman. I don't write it; I don't know anything about it.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What others do you know of?

Presiding Inspector: Graham?

A. No, I haven't heard of that. I have heard of Chartier's. I don't know of any others off-hand that I can tell by the name. There are two kinds of Pittman, I know.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you know whether Gregg is slower or faster than Pittman?

A. I don't know that because I have never taken Pittman.

Q. I believe it is your testimony that the transcript which I hand to you was prepared by you, is that correct? A. Uh huh (affirmative).

Q. When you finished preparing that transcription did you do anything to connect the pages together?

A. Did I do anything to connect it? I stapled it up here.

Q. Is it possible for you to say whether the present stapling is the stapling that you yourself put on?

A. No, it's not. I haven't had this in my possession all [2456] the time, naturally.

Q. I don't know how you would know.

A. I don't know either.

Q. But is it possible to state?

Presiding Inspector: No. She said it isn't possible to state absolutely.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I call your attention to the fact that there are holes appearing on those pages which appear to be, but which may not be, a result of a previous stapling that has been removed. You you tell me whether when you stapled those pages together you stapled them more than once and whether those holes were caused by you?

A. No. I stapled them once. That was no paper that was stapled together.

Q. And can you state whether or not those holes which appear on the paper in which there are no staples were on the paper or in the paper at the time you turned over this copy which you have in your hand to one of your superiors?

A. Not when I first put it together. Now, how many times, if it had been taken apart between the time I put it together and the time that it was taken out of the office this morning, I don't know.

Q. But when you handed it over—that is what I am concerned with—were those holes there?

A. No. [2457]

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, the document isn't even in evidence.

Presiding Inspector: No, but I will let him ask.

Mr. Del Guercio: I have had it since then.

Presiding Inspector: You what?

Mr. Del Guercio: I have had it since then.

Mr. Grossman: Could I have the answer read back?

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't see the point to it when we have had the notes read.

Mr. Grossman: There may be a point, your Honor. If we assume the correctness of all this, there is no point. If we assume the incorrectness, there is a point.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Presiding Inspector: Well, you haven't suggested any incorrectness so far.

Mr. Grossman. Oh, yes. we have. The testimony of Mr. O'Neil.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, aside from that.

Mr. Grossman: Well, I don't think he have to have.

Presiding Inspector: That goes to the whole matter.

Mr. Grossman: That is correct.

Presiding Inspector: There isn't any detail about it.

Mr. Grossman: I agree. We are not challenging this in detail, your Honor. We are not saying a word is wrong. [2458]

Presiding Inspector: It seemed as though it sounded that way. You seem to suggest there is some page that has been put in.

Mr. Grossman: It seems to me that we have——

The Witness: (Interposing) You can check them with the notes yourself.

Mr. Grossman: May I have that read back, please?

(The answer referred to was again read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment, please.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Del Guercio may want to ask you a question.

(Testimony of Gertrude Segerstrom.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I believe that is all. Thank you.

Presiding Inspector: All right.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Next witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: I have one more witness, if your Honor please and he will take about, oh, I should say on direct not more than a half hour. Of course, on cross examination I won't even speculate.

Presiding Inspector: Would you like to recess now until tomorrow morning?

Mr. Del Guercio: I think it would be better.

Presiding Inspector: Tomorrow morning. [2459]

(Whereupon, at 3:55 o'clock P. M. an adjournment was taken until Tuesday, April 29, 1941, at 10:00 o'clock A. M.) [2460]

Court Room 276,
Federal Building,
San Francisco, California
April 29, 1941.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10:00 A. M. [2461]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: You may proceed.

Mr. Del Guercio: Take the stand please, Mrs. Segerstrom.

GERTRUDE SEGERSTROM

a witness recalled on behalf of the Government, having been previously duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, we have the witness on the stand this morning only for one purpose, the purpose of identifying Mr. O'Neil.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mrs. Segerstrom, you testified yesterday that you took dictation from a certain James O'Neil on October 7, 1940. Do you see that James O'Neil in the court room?

A. (Surveying court room) Yes, I do.

Q. Where is he?

A. Over there (indicating) in the corner.

Mr. Del Guercio: Will you stand up, Mr. O'Neil?

Mr. O'Neil: (Standing) Yes, sir.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is that the Mr. O'Neil that dictated a certain statement to you on October 7, 1940 in the office of the local Federal Bureau of Investigation?

A. Yes, sir, it is. [2462]

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Mr. Grossman: No questions.

Presiding Inspector: That is all. You do not want Mr. O'Neil further, do you?

Mr. Del Guercio: No.

Presiding Inspector: You are excused so far as this Presiding Inspector is concerned.

Mr. O'Neil: Thank you.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, before we begin with this witness I have a request to make.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: We desire to have a photostatic copy made of each of the last two exhibits, which would be the stenographic notes and the transcription. We desire this photostatic copy made, though, from the originals and not from a photostatic copy because there are certain blurs that take place. Now, we understand that the notes have been withdrawn for the purpose of the Government's making a copy to be substituted. Therefore, we request that the notes be handed back to the reporter for one day so that he can have made for us a photostatic copy and that he be allowed to——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) They should not go out of the hands of the reporter at any time.

Mr. Grossman: Yes, I am stating that. [2463]

Presiding Inspector: Yes, that is understood.

Mr. Grossman: Therefore, the reporter will have both the notes and the transcription for the one day for the purpose of having copies made.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. That is understood.

You present this witness, Mr. Del Guercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Will you step on the platform there and raise your right hand?

ALGIA E. REESE

called as a witness on behalf of the Government, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: I am waiting for the reporter to get certain exhibits.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, I beg your pardon.

Mr. Del Guercio: If I may proceed to ask several questions.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where do you live?

A. Eureka.

The Reporter: Your name, please?

The Witness: A. E. Reese.

The Reporter: Spell the last name, please. [2464]

The Witness: A-l-g-i-a E. R-e-e-s-e.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever been a member of the Industrial Workers of the World? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you join the Industrial Workers of the World. A. 1918.

Q. And for how long a period did you remain a member?

A. I left them in 1920; the latter part of '20.

Q. And have you ever been a member of the IWW since that time? A. No, sir.

Q. During the time that you were a member of the IWW did you become familiar with its literature? A. Most of it.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Mr. Grossman: Any particular songs you are referring to?

Mr. Gladstein: Are you going to have the witness sing?

Mr. Del Guercio: Don't get too wise!

Your Honor, I object to counsel making remarks without addressing the Court.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't hear him. Don't indulge in these conversations back and forth. We will get along better. [2465]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. Reese, I show you a pamphlet headed "The Revolutionary IWW," by Grover H. Perry, published by the IWW Publishing Bureau, 112 Hamilton Avenue, Cleveland, and ask you if you have ever seen such pamphlet? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see that pamphlet at the time you were a member of the IWW? A. I did.

Q. Where?

A. Well, I saw it all over the country—through the middle states.

Q. Was it distributed and circulated by the IWW? A. It was.

Q. At the time you were a member of the IWW?

A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I offer this in evidence as Government's Exhibit next in order.

Mr. Grossman: We are going to object to that because—we will make no objection if proper foundation has been laid for these documents. We do not feel that the testimony of a man who has not been qualified, except as an individual member of the IWW, with such general testimony as the IWW did circulate this, is sufficient foundation. We think there has to be more of a tie; in the first place, more knowledge on the part of [2466] this witness with the functioning of the IWW as an organization, more of a tie with the organization as such. We claim no proper foundation has as yet been laid.

Presiding Inspector: I think it would be well to identify it further.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, let us have this understanding: Under the 1918 Act membership in an organization which publishes, circulates and distributes literature advocating certain things is made a ground for deportation.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Knowledge of the contents of the literature on the part of the Alien, or anyone else, is immaterial. That is another charge. So on that ground I think it is sufficient.

Presiding Inspector: You don't show that was distributed during the time that Mr. Bridges was in this country. Are you going to show that this has continued to be——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I think it is sufficient, if your Honor please—and I may be wrong—that if we establish the nature of the organization, a certain organization at a particular period, there is a rule of presumption that that status continues until it is shown to the contrary.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Presiding Inspector: I was going to ask whether you relied on that.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, we do. That status continues until [2467] the contrary is shown.

Presiding Inspector: How are you going to connect this up with Mr. Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: We will show that Mr. Bridges admitted that at one time he was a member of the IWW.

Mr. Grossman: I think——

Presiding Inspector: This is a matter for cross examination, subject to a motion to strike out.

Mr. Grossman: I am assuming that the statute must be interpreted to mean that the organization as such, not an individual member, or not a small local group, has published documents before this portion of the statute will come into application. True, this witness has testified that the organization, presumably meaning the entire national organization, has published these. But he has not indicated that he had the experience or the position so that he could state this of his own knowledge. He may have been in such a position so he can state the national organization did that. Not having laid such a basis I think we have to assume that he doesn't have the personal knowledge that the entire organization has done that, or that he may be referring to a local organization. Therefore, I say that no proper foundation has been laid unless he indicates that he has of his own knowledge information that the national organization of the IWW had circulated these documents.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

So we renew our objection that no proper foundation has [2468] been laid.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is somewhat doubtful, Mr. Del Guercio:

Mr. Del Guercio: I think in our opening statement, if the Court please, we made an effort——

Presiding Inspector: I remember that he spoke of that.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. This witness has testified that he was a member of the IWW at that time.

Presiding Inspector: Let us find out where he was a member, what kind of membership he had, whether he had anything to do with the local chapters, or lodges, or whatever they may be called. I don't know what they do call them, do you?

Mr. Del Guercio: No—locals, I suppose.

Presiding Inspector: What number it was, and where it was.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where did you join the IWW, Mr. Reese?

A. I joined in the harvest fields.

Q. Where?

A. In the harvest fields.

Q. Where? A. Kansas.

Q. What particular place?

A. I think it was around Hoisington.

Q. And did it have a name, that is, the local that you [2469] belonged to?

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

A. No; I belonged to Local 600, Industrial Union 600.

Q. Did you receive a membership book?

A. I did.

Q. I will show you a membership book——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) May we see it first?

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. (Continuing) ——Industrial Workers of the World, official membership, issued by authority of the General Executive Board of the IWW, and ask you if at the time you joined the IWW you received a book similar to this?

A. (Examining book) I did.

Q. Will you look it over and see whether it is exactly similar to that one, except with the exception of the stamps and written matter therein?

A. (Examining book) It is apparently the same.

Q. Mr. Reese, as a member of that local, whatever it was, were you a member of the national or international IWW? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this book that I have shown you, and which you have identified, was it distributed by the International Workers of the World as an organization? A. It was.

Mr. Gladstein: May I interrupt for a moment to ask whether we could hear the previous question and answer read, the question [2470] and answer before the last question and answer?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(The question and answer referred to were read by the reporter as above recorded.) [2471]

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. By whom was this pamphlet here, the "Revolutionary IWW," circulated and distributed?

A. Well, by the membership of the IWW.

Q. Do you know what the IWW publishing bureau is?

A. Well, at one time they had a publishing bureau or printing plant at 1001 West Madison Street where they printed their own materials.

Presiding Inspector: Chicago?

The Witness: Chicago.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And w[illegible]hat?

A. The IW[illegible]itself.

Q. Was it owned by the IWW organization?

A. It was.

Q. And do you know if this booklet that I have shown you here, the "Revolutionary IWW," contains the accepted doctrines and teachings of the IWW at the time you were a member of it?

A. Yes.

Mr. Grossman: I object to that question upon the ground no proper foundation is laid.

Presiding Inspector: I will let him answer "Yes" or "No."

"Yes" or "No"? [2472]

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I offer it in evidence, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: You have only asked the question whether he knows.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Whether this booklet contains the accepted doctrines and teachings.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, whether he knows. You haven't asked him whether it does.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, does it contain the accepted doctrines and teachings of the IWW at the time you were a member? A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Grossman: We make the same objection.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive it.

(The booklet referred to was received in evidence and marked Government's Exhibit No. 257.)

Mr. Del Guercio: And I also offer at this time this membership book in the IWW.

Presiding Inspector: It may be received.

(The book referred to was received in evidence and marked Government's Exhibit No. 258.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I show you the booklet called "The IWW Songs to Fan the Flames of Discontent," bearing the symbol or label here "Industrial Workers of the World, IWW, Universal, Joe Hill [2473] Memorial Edition, Published by the IWW Publishing bureau, 1001 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois," and ask you if you are familiar with that pamphlet?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that pamphlet distributed and circulated by the IWW organization during the time that you were a member? A. It was.

Q. Are you familiar with any of the songs printed in this booklet?

A. Well, I have read most of them, but not being a singer I didn't take a great deal of interest in them.

Q. Were any of the songs contained herein sung at any of the meetings that you attended?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you say that all of them were?

A. I wouldn't say all of them, no.

Q. This booklet indicates that it was published by the IWW publishing bureau at 1001 West Madison Street. Is that the address you have previously given? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: I offer this book in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Grossman: We make the same objection.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive it.

Mr. Del Guercio: And I refer the Court particularly to [2474] pages 10, 13, 14 and 15 of this book.

The reporter has not apparently brought in the exhibits that were introduced last week yet.

Mr. Grossman: Before we continue, your Honor, I have just examined this exhibit with particular reference to the pages Mr. Del Guercio indicated he wanted to call to the Court's attention. As a result of that examination I want to make an additional objection to its introduction upon the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial because, having read each of these songs, I am unable to find anything in those songs which were particularly called to your attention at least which would in any way indicate that the IWW violated the provisions of this Statute. Songs dealing as far away as:

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

"You will eat, bye and bye,
"In the glorious land above the sky;
"Work and play, live on hay,
"You'll get pie in the sky when you die."

Songs that are pretty generally sung and, so far as I am able to find, have no relationship to a violation of the statute. So I make that additional ground for its introduction into evidence.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, I haven't ruled on anything like that.

Mr. Grossman: I would ask you to rule as to whether [2475] they were incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: Let me see them.

Mr. Grossman: I believe the pages were 10, 13, 14 and 15.

(The Exhibit referred to was passed to the Presiding Inspector.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Reading those songs, if your Honor please, particular attention must be had to the verses of them as indicated on the cover "To Fan the Flames of Discontent."

Presiding Inspector: Well, even so, I don't suppose that that is a fault within the meaning of the statute.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Mr. Del Guercio: That particular book has been introduced and accepted in many United States District Courts as evidence of the revolutionary nature of the IWW.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. I will just read this.

Mr. Del Guercio: And particularly in the Haywood trial, if the Court please.

Mr. Gladstein: Was that a trial for—was that under this statute?

Mr. Del Guercio: Address your remarks to the Court! Don't talk to me!

Mr. Gladstein: I will ask the Court whether counsel intends the Court to understand that the Haywood trial that he has just referred to and in which he said this document that [2476] your Honor now has in your hand was introduced in evidence. I am asking whether he intends to imply that the Haywood trial was held under this statute.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no. I don't think so. I don't so understand. That is a matter of general history.

I would like to have a little time to read these verses.

What were the other pages besides 10?

Mr. Del Guercio: 13, 14 and 15.

Does that book contain the song entitled "Casey Jones, The Union Scab"?

Presiding Inspector: "Casey Jones"? I will have to look in the index. Yes, that is page 32.

Mr. Del Guercio: I refer particularly to the last part of that song wherein Casey sings "Let me alone, you'd better take a hike. Then someone put a bunch of railroad ties across the track, and Casey hit the river with an awful crack."

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Maybe they could sing that, a quartet.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see any evidence of favoring an overthrow of the Government by force in that book. I will reject it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Sir?

Presiding Inspector: I will reject that book.

Mr. Del Guercio: Reject it?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I won't admit it in evidence. I don't see anything that goes so far as to show that they [2477] favor the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force and violence.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, it isn't our contention that it does. It is our contention that this IWW literature which we are now introducing advocates and teaches the unlawful destruction of property and sabotage.

Presiding Inspector: That may be.

Mr. Del Guercio. Not the overthrow of the Government of the United States.

Presiding Inspector: That is what we are aiming at here.

Mr. Del Guercio. Oh, no. I beg to differ with the Court, if the Court would excuse me.

Presiding Inspector: I understood that was so from the opening address.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Mr. Del Guercio: No charge as yet—no ground for the Alien's deportation is contained in the Warrant regarding his membership in the IWW. We intend to at the proper time urge that additional charge. The charge—and we have that right under the law——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Continuing)—and under the rules.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, I know.

Mr. Del Guercio: We are introducing this now as a foundation for the lodging of the additional charge. And I repeat again, that we do not intend to show that the IWW advocates and teaches the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force [2478] and violence, but we do——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I thought that was the point of it.

Mr. Del Guercio: No, if your Honor please. Only that it advocates and teaches the unlawful destruction of property and sabotage.

Presiding Inspector: Let me see the statute. You have got it right there. [2479]

Mr. Del Guercio: 41 Stat. 108. It is amended by the Alien Registration Act of 1940.

Presiding Inspector: Yes; I understand.

(The statute book was passed to the Presiding Inspector.)

Presiding Inspector: Where is it?

Mr. Del Guercio: I refer to sub-sections (d) and (e) of that number.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Presiding Inspector: (d) and (e)?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, the last reference to aliens writing and publishing, and so forth, in the last sentence.

Presiding Inspector: I see.

(Referring to portion indicated.)

Now, which is the——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I think I can show the Court the statute prescribes four types of organizations under sub-section (e).

Presiding Inspector: I have read that.

What is the Act you are proceeding under?

Mr. Del Guercio: The Act of 1918 as amended.

Presiding Inspector: The Act of October 16, 1918?

Mr. Del Guercio: Correct; Section 137, U. S. Code.

Presiding Inspector: May I see the Warrant?

Mr. Del Guercio: It was entered as Exhibit 1.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Let me see Exhibit 1.

(Government's Exhibit No. 1 was passed to the Presiding [2480] Inspector.)

Presiding Inspector: The only charge against the Alien up to the present, the charge on which the deportation is predicated, is being a member of or affiliated with an organization and so forth, that believes in, advises, advocates or teaches the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States; further, that after entering he has been a member of or affiliated with an organization, association, society, or group that writes, circulates, distributes, prints, publishes, or displays, or causes to be written, circulated, distributed, printed, published, or displayed, or that has in its possession for the purpose of circulation, distribution, publication, issue or display, written or printed matter advising, advocating, or teaching the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Mr. Del Guercio: That is correct, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: If you want to amend the warrant, I think, under the rule, you are entitled to do so.

Mr. Del Guercio: I told the Court I intended to do so. I said we are not relying, we are not stating, nor do we intend to prove that the IWW is an organization which comes within the present charges in the Warrant. But I intend—I will do it now and I believe that will clear it up.

I lodge the additional charge at this time and I make that request now. [2481]

Presiding Inspector: What is the request?

Mr. Del Guercio: I request the Presiding Inspector to notify, to place the Alien on notice, that in addition to the charges contained in the Warrant of Arrest, his deportation is sought on the following grounds:

That he is an Alien who, after entering the United States, became a member of an organization, association, society or group, which advised, advocated and taught the unlawful damage, injury or destruction of property and sabotage.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

And as an additional ground, further, ground, that after entering the United States he became a member of an organization, association, society or group, that circulated and distributed written or printed matter advising, advocating or teaching the unlawful damage, injury, or destruction of property and sabotage.

Presiding Inspector: Now let me see the rules of the Department about amendments to the Warrant. I know there is a provision there.

(Whereupon the rules referred to were passed to the Presiding Inspector.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Section 19.6 (i) of the new regulations governing the arrest and deportation of Aliens.

Presiding Inspector: It is (1) instead of (i).

Mr. Del Guercio: Is it?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Is there any objection to an [2482] affirmative ruling on this motion?

Mr. Grossman: We have no objection except that it may mean we will make certain requests for a chance to prepare against that. We have no objection.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow the amendment, and I will advise the Alien, and notify him, that this additional charge is lodged against him, and we will proceed with the hearing upon this charge, as upon the matters charged in the Warrant of Arrest originally.

Mr. Grossman: May we have a reading of it?

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes. The reporter will read it?

No, perhaps I ought to read it because the provision was that I should read the charge in the Warrant.

Now, Mr. Bridges, listen to this.

It is charged that you are an Alien who, after entering the United States, became a member of an organization, association, society or group, which advised, advocated and taught the unlawful damage, injury or destruction of property and sabotage, and that you are a member of an organization, association, society or group, that circulates and distributes written or printed matter advising, advocating or teaching the unlawful damage, injury or destruction of property and sabotage.

Now, the second part brings it down to the present. Is that what you meant? [2483]

Mr. Del Guercio: I read it in the past, "circulated and distributed."

Presiding Inspector: "that you have been a member of an organization"——

Mr. Del Guercio: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: That should be "have been" instead of "are".

It should read, "and that you have been, since your arrival in this country, a member of an organization that circulates"—

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) "circulated."

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——"that circulated and distributed written or printed matter advising, advocating or teaching the unlawful damage, injury or destruction of property and sabotage."

(Testimony of Algja E. Reese.)

We had better change those into the past—"circulated and distributed" and "that you are or have been"—is that the way you want it?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: There is no objection to amending it so that it covers what Mr. Del Guercio means it to cover?

You understand what I have read to you?.

Mr. Bridges: I do.

Presiding Inspector: And you don't want it read again?

Mr. Bridges: No. I understand it perfectly.

[2484]

Mr. Del Guercio: In view of the additional charges lodged against the Alien I again offer the last booklet mentioned in evidence.

Presiding Inspector: I will have to read the "Casey Jones" song again.

Mr. Del Guercio: There are several more I would like to call the Court's attention to: "Should I Ever Be a Soldier?"; and "Christians at War."

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor.——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I think it is of very little importance.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, may I say this?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: We make the additional objection to its introduction upon the ground that songs in general and these songs in particular are not such vehicles as can constitute the violation of the statute advising, advocating, teaching, because you can take judicial notice of the fact that songs constituting and advocating—that many of our popular songs would be constituting certain immoral and criminal acts, and I think it is generally considered that songs are not of that character.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Presiding Inspector: You mean like "Frankie and Johnnie"?

Mr. Grossman: I am not making any specific—

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) We have a judicial [2485] opinion on that in the State of New York in the Court of Appeals.

Mr. Grossman: At any rate, we make that additional objection to the introduction of this volume of songs.

Presiding Inspector: I don't believe it is of sufficient importance to put it in the record. I will reject this. The good taste of the songs may be doubted.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I will show you here Government's Exhibit 252 "The IWW, its History and Structure," and ask you if you saw that book during the time you were a member of the IWW or a book similar to it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was it distributed and circulated by the IWW during the time that you were a member?

A. It was.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. And does it contain the accepted doctrines, practices and teachings of the IWW during the time that you were a member of the organization of the IWW? A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I believe this book has already been introduced in evidence, if your Honor please, subject to a motion.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. [2486]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I now show you——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) Just a moment! We make our motion to strike at this time on the ground of the first objection that I made, which was that no proper foundation has been laid.

Presiding Inspector: At that time?

Mr. Grossman: At this time. Also we think that no proper foundation has been laid at this time.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I will receive it now and deny the motion to strike. It has already been received tentatively.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I will show you also a booklet, Government's Exhibit 253 for identification, entitled "Sabotage, its History, Philosophy and Function", on the front of the back cover of which appears: "IWW Literature, IWW Publishing Bureau, 1001 West Madison Street, Chicago; pamphlets 10 cents each or $3.50 per hundred," and among the pamphlets shown are the "IWW History, Structure and Methods, St. John, Revised," and "Sabotage by Smith," and ask you if you are familiar with this document?

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

A. I am.

Q. Was that booklet distributed and circulated by the [2487] IWW during the time that you were a member? A. It was; yes, sir.

Q. And was it accepted as a doctrine of the IWW during the time that you were a member?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will offer this in evidence, if your Honor, please, and refer——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will receive it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will offer it in evidence first.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive it.

Mr. Grossman: We wish the record to show our same objection previously made and our same motion to strike.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, certainly. And the same ruling.

(The booklet referred to was received in evidence and marked Government's Exhibit No. 253.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't refer to any particular part of this book. I refer to the entire book as advocating and teaching sabotage.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did this booklet here have a popular name; that is, have a name other than the one indicated on the cover?

A. They call it the "Sab-Cat."

Q. The "Sab-Cat"? A. Yes. [2488]

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. Who called it the "Sab-Cat"?

A. The membership.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all. You may cross examine.

Mr. Grossman: May we have an intermission at this time so we can discuss the cross examination?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. We will take a short recess.

(Whereupon, a short recess was taken.)

Presiding Inspector: You may proceed, Mr. Gladstein.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Reese, when in 1918 did you join the IWW? A. I didn't get that.

Presiding Inspector: When in 1918 did you join the IWW?

The Witness: Sometime in June.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I think you said you joined in the harvest fields somewhere in Kansas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how did you join? What were the mechanics of your joining? Would you state that just briefly?

A. Well, the same as joining a lot of organizations I presume. You laid your $2.00 down and you received a dues book.

Q. Were there dues to be paid?

A. 50 cents per month. [2489]

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. I think you said you joined a local called "Local 600"? A. 600.

Q. Where were its offices? A. In Chicago.

Q. How did you pay your dues thereafter?

A. Delegates in the field.

Q. For how long did you continue to pay dues?

A. About two years.

Q. And you would say that you paid dues and were a member of the IWW from about June, 1918 to about June, 1920? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you dropped out in June, 1920?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you resign or did you just stop paying dues? A. I just stopped paying dues.

Q. During the time that you were in the organization did you attend meetings?

A. Some.

Q. Can you state where these meetings were held?

A. I attended a couple of meetings in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Q. Was there anything outstanding about these meetings? I mean, were these simply local gatherings of fellow members of the IWW or were they conventions or what? [2490]

A. Just local meetings.

Q. Did you ever attend a convention of the IWW? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever attend any important conclave or gathering of the leaders of the IWW?

A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question, your Honor. There is nothing to indicate what is an important conclave or meeting of the IWW.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, I will take it. It is indefinite.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Were you ever a member of any governing committee or body of any kind in the IWW?

A. I don't—(Pause).

Q. Did you ever hold an office in the IWW?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What office did you hold?

A. Well, I was the local Secretary at one time.

Q. Where was this? A. Chicago.

Q. And during what period of time?

A. I think it was around the summer months of '20.

Q. Can you be more definite about that?

A. Well, it was probably from January until July, 1920.

Q. How did you obtain that office? [2491]

A. By election.

Q. Election of whom? A. The members.

Q. What were you? Recording Secretary?

A. No, I was the Industrial Union Secretary.

Q. What were your duties in a general way?

A. Oh, just oversee the membership records and so forth.

Q. Anything else? A. That's all.

Q. Did you ever hold any other office?

A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. You were never on the Executive Board or whatever the name of it was of the IWW itself?

A. No, sir.

Q. After you dropped out did you retain any interest in the kind of literature that was circulated by the organization? A. No, sir.

Q. During the time that you were in the organization you said that certain documents which were shown to you here this morning were circulated. Did you mean from one member to another?

A. They were sold in book stores, circulated amongst the membership. [2492]

Q. Where were these book stores?

A. In nearly every city they had a book store —Minneapolis had them, Chicago had them, Kansas City.

Q. Do you know how these book stores were run? A. I do not.

Q. In other words, your knowledge as to how you would go in and get books from a book store would be the same knowledge, for example, that I would get if I walked in as an outsider and wanted to buy some books, is that correct?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question as being clearly improper.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. This is cross examination.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want the question read?

The Witness: Please.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. The organization had some of its own book stores in their halls, local halls.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Where?

A. Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis.

Q. When you say "book stores" what do you mean?

A. They were also sold on the open market.

Q. You mean that some of these pamphlets and other [2493] publications could be found in any ordinary book store or public library?

A. I wouldn't say as to that.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. Is your knowledge of the doctrines taught by the IWW based entirely upon what you read in their literature? A. Mostly.

Q. Would you say substantially all?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you wish to testify, Mr. Reese, that every document ever published by the IWW, or any officer or member of the IWW, was intended to represent the official position of the IWW?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to the form of the question—"Do you wish to testify?"

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw the first part of the question about "do you wish to testify".

I am asking the question as to whether it is his testimony, whether that is the fact, as he wants to put it.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Why not ask the question then as to what he knows?

Presiding Inspector: I don't think I fully understand the amended question.

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw it, your Honor. [2494]

Presiding Inspector: Ask it again.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know whether every pamphlet or document put out by the IWW Publishing Bureau, or put out by any officer or member of the IWW, during the time that you were in it, was intended to express the official position of the organization?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question as being immaterial, irrelevant to any issue in this case.

Presiding Inspector: We have testimony that this book was put out by the IWW. You didn't ask him whether this represented the principles, did you, of the IWW?

Mr. Del Guercio: Sir?

Presiding Inspector: You didn't ask whether these exhibits represented the principles of the IWW.

Mr. Del Guercio: I did, at the time he was a member.

Presiding Inspector: Then I will allow it.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want the question read?

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

The Witness: Please.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: You asked an earlier witness definitely that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't recall.

A. I couldn't say it was. [2495]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Reese, isn't it true that the IWW Publishing Bureau used to put out a lot of documents that did not represent any official position of the organization, but simply represented the personal viewpoints of the people who were writing those documents?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as being immaterial, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: If he knows he may answer.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object on this ground: The charge, as it will be noted, is that the Alien here was a member of an organization that circulated and distributed certain literature. Whether or not it represented the view of the officials of the organization, whether or not it represented the views of the organization as such, I say is immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: But I asked you that very question, and you said you did ask the witness whether these pamphlets represented the principles of the IWW. Now, as meeting that question that you asked, I will allow this. It may not be pertinent on the other point but, nevertheless, you having opened the door I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want the question read?

The Witness: Yes.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as [2496] above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: If you know—go ahead.

A. I do not know.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Isn't it true that the IWW, during the time that you were in it, believed in not having any central body exercising control or discipline over its members, but on the contrary, allowing all members to express any viewpoint they liked, through publications of the IWW Publishing Bureau?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question on the ground that no proper foundation has been laid for it.

Presiding Inspector: He is asking him—if he knows he may answer.

A. I have no knowledge.

Presiding Inspector: He says it isn't true. He says he don't know.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know what the theory of the IWW was while you were in it on the question of control or discipline of members?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to this as not being proper cross examination.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Presiding Inspector: If he knows he can answer.

A. I could not say.

Presiding Inspector: He doesn't know. [2497]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Reese, isn't it a fact that during the World War the General Executive Board of the IWW passed an official resolution disavowing sabotage and damage to property?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. You don't know of such a thing?

A. No.

Q. Isn't it a fact that at an official convention of the IWW such a resolution as I have described was officially approved?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: If he knows he may answer.

A. I do not know.

Presiding Inspector: He doesn't know.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know Walker C. Smith—do you know who he was?

A. I did not know the gentleman.

Q. Do you know whether he ever occupied any kind of a position with the IWW? A. No.

Mr. Gladstein: I call your Honor's attention to the fact that the exhibit which the Government has introduced as No. 252 entitled, "Sabotage" purports to have been authored [2498] by Walker C. Smith.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know Grover H. Perry—do you know who he was? A. I didn't know the man.

Q. Do you know whether he ever held any official position as spokesman for, or an officer of the IWW? A. No.

Mr. Gladstein: I call your Honor's attention to the fact that Government's Exhibit No. 257 in evidence entitled "The Revolutionary IWW," purports to have been authored by Grover H. Perry.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you believe in sabotage while you were in the organization? A. Not necessarily.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. No.

Q. You mean you didn't believe in it?

A. Yes.

Q. You didn't practice it? A. No.

Q. And you could be a member of the IWW without believing in or practicing sabotage, is that correct?

A. I was never asked whether I did or did not.

Q. I am asking you, whether it is a fact that you were [2499] and could have been a member of the IWW without either believing in or practicing sabotage?

A. I didn't believe in it and I didn't practice it, and I belonged.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. When you joined the organization did you think at that time that you would be required to practice sabotage? A. No.

Q. Did you believe at that time that you would be required, or advised to advocate or practice violence? A. No.

Q. During the time that you were in the IWW did you believe in violence? A. No.

Q. Did you practice it? A. No.

Q. Did you believe in the unlawful destruction of property? A. No.

Q. Did you advocate it? A. No.

Q. Did you use it? A. No.

Q. Did you believe in the use of force and violence to overthrow the United States Government?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever practice the use of force and violence [2500] for such an overthrow?

A. No.

Q. Do you have a distinct recollection of seeing this pamphlet entitled "Sabotage" any particular place before you came here today?

A. Before I came here?

Q. Yes. A. Positively.

Q. Where?

A. I saw it in Chicago, Kansas City,—in fact, I used to own one.

Q. And where in Chicago and Kansas City did you see this? A. 1001 Madison Street.

Q. Where in Kansas City?

A. I don't know the address.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. Did you see these in the possession of members of the IWW?

A. I saw them in the possession of members and also on the book shelves.

Q. While you were in the IWW did you feel that you were a good loyal member of the organization?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

The Witness: I didn't get that. [2501]

Presiding Inspector: When you were a member did you feel yourself to be a good and loyal member of the organization? A. I did.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. And that you carried out its principles and its work?

A. I don't understand that question.

Q. And did you feel that you were carrying out the principles and work of the organization while you were in it?

A. From my point of view, yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. That is what I wanted to know. Where do you live, Mr. Reese? A. Eureka.

Q. Eureka, what? A. California.

Q. And your business? A. I have none.

Q. Well, how do you make your livelihood?

A. I am working for the WPA.

Q. When was the last time that you had employment in [2502] private industry?

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

A. 1931.

Q. When is the first time that you were asked by the Department of Justice or the FBI to be a witness in this case?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to this line of questioning, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. It is a matter of his credibility.

A. About two weeks ago.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you ever testified before on the IWW?

A. No, sir.

Q. In any Court? A. No, sir.

Q. Anywhere? A. No, sir.

Q. All right. Now, where were you at the time that you were contacted about two weeks ago?

A. I was in Eureka.

Q. In your home? A. No, sir; working.

Q. Who contacted you?

A. A Mr. Holland, I believe.

Q. Who is he?

A. Immigration Department. [2503]

Q. Did you have a conversation at that time with him? A. Very little.

Q. What was the substance of it?

A. He asked me if I belonged to the IWW and I told him I did.

Q. And that was all? A. Practically all.

Q. Did he mention to you how he happened to come to you? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. Did he tell you what he wanted of you?

A. He did when he left.

Q. What did he say?

A. He said they might want me to come down here and testify?

Q. And then there was more conversation than you indicated before? There must have been some discussion about this case, is that right?

A. There was.

Q. What was the discussion?

A. The only thing he said was, he wanted to know if I could identify literature of the IWW.

Q. What did you say? A. I said I could.

[2504]

Q. Did he have literature with him?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any knowledge of your own as to how Mr. Hollard came by the information that you had been in the IWW?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that as having been asked and answered and on the further ground that it is immaterial either in this case or any other case.

Presiding Inspector: We are only interested in this case.

Mr. Del Guercio: Then what difference does it make how the information was obtained?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want the question read, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

A. No, sir.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. He says he has no knowledge. Before I ruled.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. On what note did that first conference end, Mr. Reese?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, please, as being indefinite. "On what note."

Presiding Inspector: I think it has been asked before, not of this witness, but that kind of question "On what note". Of course, this man says he doesn't think, but that— [2505] I don't think he understands the question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you understand the question?

A. No.

Q. Then I will put it in a different way. Was there any arrangement between you and Mr. Hollard at this first conversation for you to see him again? A. No, sir.

Q. Or for you to go to see somebody else?

A. No, sir.

Q. That was the end of it?

A. That was the end of it.

Q. When was the next time you saw anybody in connection with testifying here?

A. When I was subpoenaed.

Q. When was that?

A. The 21st of this month.

Q. And whom did you see at that time?

A. I don't know the gentleman's name.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. Was there any conversation at that time?

A. None; just handed me the subpoena and told me to be here.

Q. Did he have any documents with him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What documents did he have? [2506]

A. He had his identification card.

Q. Did he have any publications of any kind with him? A. No, sir.

Q. All right. What happened after the 21st when you were subpoenaed? Did you come down here?

A. I did. I am here, aren't I?

Q. All right. When did you come down?

A. I came down last Wednesday morning.

Q. Whom did you see then, the first person you saw in connection with your testimony.

A. Well, I don't know the gentleman's name.

Q. Where did you see anybody?

A. 111 Sutter Street.

Q. And how many people were present at that time? A. I didn't count them.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. You don't know whether it was one person or five or ten?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, the witness has said he don't know. And what difference does it make whether there were a hundred present?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

By Mr. Gladstein: [2507]

Q. Well, can you summarize briefly what took place up there? A. (No response.)

Q. Did they show you any documents at that time? A. Not at that time, no.

Q. When did they?

A. I think it was about last Friday.

Q. Last Friday. Where were you shown documents? A. In the office.

Q. The same office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is 111 Sutter Street?

A. 111 Sutter Street.

Q. Do you know who was present then?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or how many people were present?

A. I didn't count them.

Q. You didn't count them. Now, what publications or documents did they show you?

A. Well, it was a song book, membership book and that "Sab-Cat" and several others.

Q. And when they showed these documents to you what did they tell you about them?

A. They asked me if I could identify them.

Q. And what did you say?

A. I said I could. [2508]

Q. And what did they say then?

A. I think he sang a song.

Mr. Gladstein: What is that?

The Reporter: "I think he sang a song".

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Who sang a song, Mr. Reese?

Q. Whom sang a song, Mr. Reese?

A. I did.

Q. You sang a song? A. Yes.

Q. What song did you sing?

Presiding Inspector: Do you remember?

The Witness: No, I don't.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was it one of the songs in the song book?

A. No.

Q. Haven't you any idea of what song you sang for them? A. No.

Mr. Del Guercio: What difference does it make what song he sang.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know.

Mr. Gladstein: I am trying to find out what happened and he said he sang songs. [2509]

Presiding Inspector: I think it is——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Is that cross examination as to what songs the witness sung?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know. Mr. Gladstein thinks it is.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What happened after you sang the song?

A. It didn't happen.

Q. What didn't happen?

A. What happened.

Presiding Inspector: Nothing happened. Go ahead. Ask the next question.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What do you mean?

Presiding Inspector: Oh, never mind! That was just persiflage. It was the kind of answer that you would expect to the question that you asked.

Mr. Gladstein: What was the question?

Presiding Inspector: And the way you asked it.

Mr. Gladstein: Let us hear the question.

Presiding Inspector: No. Go ahead. Ask something else.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You mean you didn't sing a song at all, is that it?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that line of questioning. [2510] I think that counsel should cease along those lines.

Presiding Inspector: I rather think so, too, but he may go on. He is trying the case, not you or I. Go on, Mr. Gladstein.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. They asked you if you could identify certain books and you said you could. What happened as to that?

Mr. Del Guercio: As to what? I object to the question. Anything may have happened. Happened in connection with what.

Mr. Gladstein: In this conference.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You understand that, don't you, Mr. Reese?

A. No, I don't know what you are getting at.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Q. Well now, let us go back to the time you went up to 111 Sutter Street, not the first time but the second time, when documents were shown you. Do you have your mind on that occasion?

A. Yes.

Q. You have already mentioned the names of some of the documents they showed you. Correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said they asked you if you could identify them. Correct? A. Correct. [2511]

A. And you said "Yes, I can"? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what did they say next?

Presiding Inspector: If they said anything.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. If anything.

A. Well, I suppose "You will have a chance to do so".

Q. Anything else happen then? A. No.

Q. Not a thing? A. No.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well!

Presiding Inspector: Is that all, Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Gladstein: Perhaps so, your Honor. Just one second.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Gladstein, did you in looking through this song book read this song on page—I have closed the book. Just a minute! Read that one. (The song book was passed to Mr. Gladstein.)

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't heard that one before.

(Testimony of Algia E. Reese.)

Presiding Inspector: Do you think that could be taken as advocating sabotage?

Mr. Grossman: I made the objection, your Honor, that a [2512] song could not be——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I know. I believe I will receive the book in view of that song, on the distribution theory of literature. I hadn't read that song before. It is in a little different vein from the others.

(The book referred to was received in evidence and marked Government's Exhibit No. 259.)

Mr. Gladstein: That is all.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all. May the witness be excused?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly. You are excused.

The Witness: Thank you.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if the Court please, I have shown this to counsel before. I have an affidavit of Miss Ethel Mulleney, who at the present time is employed as booking agent for the Madison Square Garden Corporation at 307 West 49th Street, New York City and who was so employed in that capacity in the year 1929, and to this affidavit she attaches certain photostatic copies of leases and other documents in connection with the bookings of the Madison Square Garden, with particular reference to that rally held on December 16, I believe.

Presiding Inspector: Do you offer it?

1936. We do not, of course, have Miss Mulleney present. We could do so, but I thought to save time and money that the affidavit would serve that purpose. [2513] If counsel here for the Alien objects, why then, of course, we will produce Miss Mulleney to identify the documents.

Mr. Del Guercio: I offer it in evidence.

Presiding Inspector: What do you say, Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Grossman: We are perfectly willing to agree to the introduction of affidavits in lieu of personal attendance on the part of evidence of the Government if they will agree that they will allow us to put in our evidence by affidavit, but to suggest that we should grant them that favor, which the rules don't allow incidentally, and them not grant us the same favor when we have much less money than they have available and our money comes directly from workers who can hardly afford it, it is asking too much. If they will agree that we can put in such evidence as will be a hardship for us to produce by individuals by affidavit, we will make the same agreement in this case.

Mr. Del Guercio: By this offer, your Honor, I had no intention to give counsel an opportunity to stand up and make a speech. In view of counsel's statement I withdraw the offer.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. That is finished.

Mr. Del Guercio: And ask, of course, that we be given an opportunity at a later time to bring in Miss Mulleney and have her identify this document.

[2514]

Presiding Inspector: Yes. When you finally rest your case, cover it with the exception of the identification of this document.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. And now, if the Court please, I desire to introduce in evidence all of the Alien's statements against interest—instead of "statements against interest" I will say "admissions by the Alien against interest" in the former deportation hearing held here in San Francisco on August 19—I think it began on July 10, 1939 and continued for some time. I am offering all of the admissions on particular subjects, as follows: All of the Alien's admissions in connection with the Marine Workers Industrial Union; secondly, all of the Alien's testimony, admissions concerning his connections with the Waterfront Worker; all of the Alien's testimony, admissions of testimony in connection with the IWW, and the IWW; those four subjects.

Mr. Gladstein: Only three.

Mr. Del Guercio: Three only? Let's see. The Waterfront Worker, the Marine Workers Industrial Union, the IWW. I believe those three were all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Have you got the pages?

[2515]

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, I have.

On the IWW I refer to Volume 16—I believe counsel has a copy of that volume.

Mr. Gladstein: We don't have it here. We have a copy at the office, of course. We have a copy of the transcript of the entire proceeding, but not here.

Mr. Del Guercio: Volume 16, page 2488.

Mr. Gladstein: 2488?

Mr. Del Guercio: That is right.

On this particular portion of the Alien's testimony on the IWW I refer to the following:

"By Mr. Schomacker:

"Q. Did you ever belong to the"——

Addressing the question to the Alien.

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) May I interrupt to suggest this: Rather than have Mr. Del Guercio read these things into the record, we would like to have an opportunity to examine that which he intends to offer. It may be that what he intends to offer is incomplete and torn from the context. We don't know. So I would make the suggestion, if it is agreeable to your Honor, that Mr. Del Guercio announce those pages and those portions of the pages, simply saying "Starting with line 5 to line 8," whatever it may be, he wishes to introduce, and that we have an opportunity to examine these pages in order to formulate our legal position. [2516]

Would that be fair?

Presiding Inspector: What do you say to that, Mr. Del Guercio? He asks for you to announce the pages and then proceed with the matter after the noon recess.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't believe I have any objection to that, your Honor. I would be glad to do it.

Presiding Inspector: Give him the pages. I think it will expedite the matter.

Mr. Del Guercio: All right. Volume 16, on the IWW, page 2488 and 2489.

I cannot give the lines because they are not numbered, unless I took the time to count them.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is enough.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all right.

Mr. Del Guercio: And also page 2525.

Mr. Gladstein: Same volume?

Mr. Del Guercio: Same volume.

There was another subject, your Honor—I know there were four—and that is regarding the Alien's admissions that he purchased Communist literature at a certain address in San Francisco, and that is contained in Volume 16, pages 2527, 2528, 2472. Volume 18, pages 3097; volume 16, page 2580; Volume 34, pages 5965, 5966, 5967; Volume 16, pages 2508, 2509, 2511, 2512; Volume 17, pages 2741 and 2742.

On the Waterfront Worker, Volume 18, pages 3065, 3073, [2517] 3074; Volume 17, pages 2720, 2721, 2722, 2723, 2724, 2725, 2726, 2727, 2728, 2729, 2731, and 5953. That must refer to another volume. I don't have the number of it here. Then Volume 17, page 2703.

On the Marine Workers Industrial Union, Volume 16, pages 2617 to 2628, inclusive; Volume 16, pages 2489, 2607 to 2613, inclusive; Volume 18, page 3076; Volume 16, pages 2515, 2516, 2589, 2590, 2591; and Volume 17, page 2663.

Mr. Gladstein: There was one with reference to Volume 18, a couple or so back, on the MWIU—will you repeat that page number?

Mr. Del Guercio: 3076.

With this offer, of course, if counsel objects to the introduction of that in this form it would be necessary to subpoena the reporter, who is present, and——

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that that is the point. Counsel merely wants to examine this and prepare to introduce the balance, or unfinished statements, or other statements perhaps that would have some bearing on the matter.

Mr. Del Guercio: We have no objection to introducing all the evidence on that particular subject. We have tried to do that but we may have missed some pages.

Presiding Inspector: They may find something.

Mr. Del Guercio: With the introduction of this in evidence the Government rests its case with this reservation: [2518] That upon the return of Major Schofield we desire to, of course, reopen the Government's case for the purpose of introducing his testimony.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Do you also want to reserve the identification of those documents?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, those documents covering the rental of Madison Square Garden for that particular meeting.

Presiding Inspector: With these exceptions the Government rests its case.

What do you want to do?

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, when we thought this was imminent last night we gave some consideration to this question of beginning our case, and we have some matters we want to bring to your attention which you may not have considered in this light.

It appears, though we naturally could not anticipate whether it would be such or not, it appears that most of the witnesses that have appeared in this case on behalf of the Government have come from some distance. Tabling this we find the average has come from quite a distance to San Francisco. For example, there are one, two, three, four witnesses who are residents of New York City; there is one witness from Milwaukee; there was one witness from Port Arthur, Texas; there were approximately—I won't give the exact number though I have it—approximately three or four witnesses [2519] from Seattle, which is about a thousand miles, I think; there were two witnesses from Portland which, I think, is about 600 miles—I am just guessing; there were three or four witnesses from the vicinity of Los Angeles, which is 420 miles.

Now, although I am not stating that all of the witnesses of the defense will come from the same cities as the prosecution witnesses—obviously all of our witnesses, although we have not been able yet to determine the proportion, but a large number of our witnesses will, of necessity, be from the same cities as these witnesses.

You also must bear in mind that many of these alleged meetings took place in these various cities, as well as the witnesses living there.

That obviously requires bringing witnesses in many cases from those same cities.

It so happens that a transportation system has not yet been developed to the extent that we can transport people those distances in no time at all. Frankly, we do not intend, and I don't think that the defense should be required, to transport our witnesses by airplane. Frankly, here is the result: We did not know until today when the Government was going to end its case. True, the newspapers reported that perhaps they would. Though we had no official notice, the newspapers reported perhaps Mr. Bridges would be put on the stand. Ob- [2520] viously, if that had been done we would have expected it would have taken two or three days. Mr. Del Guercio didn't give us any advance notice. All we knew was it might happen and we couldn't have prepared for that.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I told Mr. Gladstein——

Presiding Inspector: You can correct him later.

Mr. Grossman: I am not accusing Mr. Del Guercio of misrepresenting it because anyone knows that you cannot tell in advance, or may not be able to tell when you are going to end.

I call your Honor's attention to the fact that we were once told by the Government they expected to end their case the middle of last week. We are not holding them to it.

I am saying on the basis of such a statement we cannot have our witnesses in San Francisco. If we had had them here they would have had to be waiting four, five, six, seven days, and we can't be expected to do that.

Therefore, we had to wait until we were certain the case was ended. Obviously, we could not be expected to get in touch with our witnesses, assuming we could get in touch with all of them today, and state "You must leave the first thing in the morning." They have jobs they will have to report to in the morning, and it would take a day or two to do that. As a practical matter, we couldn't expect them to leave the first thing in the morning, though some may be able to leave tonight. [2521] As a practical matter, in the event that some witnesses could leave the first thing in the morning, considering these distances it would be, in some cases, four or five days before they could arrive. Then we would have to have some time to talk to them before they went on the stand; and in some cases it would take two or three days.

I call your Honor's attention to something else. I call your Honor's attention also to the fact that today we were presented with an amendment to the charge, which we are not in position to discuss now. We do not know how much and what type of work that will require. Obviously, when an additional ground has been given for deportation, which is in effect an amendment to the charge, it requires some preparation. Whether there will be witnesses or not I cannot state, but some preparation is necessary.

I also call your Honor's attention to the fact that when we were discussing in chambers the question of briefs your Honor indicated that you wanted us to work as expeditiously as we could in the preparation of briefs. You requested us, and so far as possible we have complied with that, to as much as possible prepare our briefs as we were going along. We must recognize the fact that this detracts to some extent from the preparation of our witnesses to go on the stand because time spent in reviewing the record takes away from preparing witnesses, and lining up witnesses, and to the extent [2522] that we have done that it has slowed down our preparation of witnesses.

Now, considering all those facts that I have mentioned, the distance and the time that is necessarily involved, considering the preparation we have had to do in connection with our brief, considering the new charge that has been filed, considering all these things and considering your Honor's statement, which I know you are going to still except and will carry out, that no hardship will result and that enough time will be given to properly make an answer to this, renewing the reference to the fact that we started this case with no knowledge and we have had to prepare as the witnesses went on, considering all these facts, we consider, though we could use more time, we consider a reasonable time, considering all these facts, for us ot begin our case will be next Monday and we, therefore, make that request, that we be permitted until next Monday to begin our case.

Presiding Inspector: I won't rule on that now. After lunch we will determine about this testimony of Mr. Bridges that they have indicated they want to introduce these admissions, and then I will hear Mr. Del Guercio after that on your motion. Until that is done I won't make any ruling.

You haven't anything else in relation to this testimony, or anything else? [2523]

Mr. Del Guercio: There is one matter. The stenographic notes, Government's Exhibit No. 256 for identification, was not introduced in evidence. I believe—I may be mistaken—they were only offered for identification.

Presiding Inspector: You are referring to the stenographic notes?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want to offer them in evidence?

Mr. Del Guercio: Of course, having only been offered for identification counsel are not entitled to make any photostatic copies of the notes.

We have no objection to offering the notes in evidence with this admonition: That at no time are the notes to go out of the hands of the reporter.

Presiding Inspector: That is understood.

Mr. Del Guercio: And that care will be taken in preserving them.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive the stenographic notes.

The transcript the same way—was that offered?

Mr. Del Guercio: No. The transcript was only offered for identification. I don't believe they are entitled to it.

Presiding Inspector: It was only marked for identification? [2524]

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Don't you want to offer that?

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't believe so. I see no special reason for it.

Presiding Inspector: It was practically read into the record anyway.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: All right.

Mr. Del Guercio: I offer a photostatic copy of the stenographic notes.

Presiding Inspector: Received the same way as before.

(The photostatic copy of the stenographic notes referred to was received in evidence and marked Government's Exhibit No. 256.)

Mr. Grossman: We ask whether the ruling that you made that we would be permitted to have a photostatic copy made still applies to the transcription.

Presiding Inspector: You want the transcription too?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Is there any objection to that?

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't believe that they are entitled to it. It has only been offered for identification.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see why they shouldn't have it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is there any reason why they should?

Presiding Inspector: They want to spend some money on it. [2525]

Mr. Gladstein: It was used in the examination.

Presiding Inspector: It has been read into the record. I think you had better offer it in evidence.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will offer it in evidence.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive it.

(The document referred to was received in evidence and marked Government's Exhibit No. 255.)

Presiding Inspector: We will take a recess until 2:00 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12:05 P. M., a recess was taken until 2:00 P.M. of the same day.) [2526]

After Recess
2:00 O'clock P.M.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Gladstein: You asked us to confer during the recess and determine our position on the offer that Mr. Del Guercio made of certain pages of the transcript. We have glanced at some of those pages. We have not been able to read all of them.

Presiding Inspector: No.

Mr. Gladstein: We noticed this in our quick perusal: That is, that they touch on matters which are also discussed in other portions of the testimony of Mr. Bridges during the last trial.

For example—this is simply by way of illustration—some of the pages Mr. Del Guercio offers, in which there is a discussion of the Marine Workers Industrial Union, if taken by themselves, would not give the complete picture drawn by Mr. Bridges in the last hearing of the situation that obtained on the waterfront in San Francisco in 1934, showing the relationship of the Marine Workers Industrial Union to the longshoremen and to the strike and to the general situation.

Presiding Inspector: I thought probably that would be the situation.

Mr. Gladstein: So we would make this suggestion: We would suggest that in order to make the picture complete, and not have any of these pages torn from their context, the [2527] entire record of Mr. Bridges' testimony, both on direct and on cross examination, be introduced in this hearing think his testimony embraced a period of approximity, the benefit of that testimony.

I may say by way of brief description, that I think his testimony embraced a period of approximately three days, but they were three days which, I think, were shorter than three days in this hearing, and there were some recesses. But in any event there would be no more than three full days of testimony.

That is our position. I think, in fairness, that that should be the position of the Court.

Mr. Goodwin: May it please your Honor,——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Let me say in answer to that, that if the counsel for the Government were to accept that suggestion, of course there is no objection on the part of the Presiding Inspector. But I wouldn't attempt to direct the counsel as to how they should present their case.

Mr. Gladstein: No.

Presiding Inspector: Any more than I would attempt to suggest how you should present your defense.

Mr. Gladstein: I understand.

Presiding Inspector: I am trying to keep the scales here as even as I can. [2528]

Mr. Gladstein: I understand, your Honor.

Mr. Del Guercio: I reject that offer on behalf of the Government.

Presiding Inspector: Very well, then. You may proceed as you wish to. That is, you may read those parts and you will be free to read any other parts bearing on the same subject in the entire examination of Mr. Bridges.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, could I make a suggestion then, simply by way of short cutting? It seems to me that any portions or the entire testimony of Mr. Bridges in the last hearing could well be incorporated by some kind of reference in this proceeding and that it would simply be a waste of time to have somebody read to this reporter pages from the transcript of the previous hearing, because I don't suppose there would be any question about the way in which they read. There might be some slight errors or mistakes. That happens in any long protracted hearing, but at least in general let us assume that the pages of the transcript are correct. Rather than have them read into this record they could be incorporated by some kind of reference.

Presiding Inspector: Well,——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): I also reject that offer, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Judge Goodwin?

Mr. Goodwin: Well, your Honor, may I make this sug- [2529] gestion? These excerpts are offered not as part of Mr. Bridges' testimony.

Presiding Inspector: I understand that.

Mr. Goodwin: They are offered as admissions by the defendant, and, as such, they are admissible. Now, in fairness, if there is some other part that refers to that same thing and in fairness that should go along with his admission, we have no objection to that being presented. But that should be regularly presented in exactly the same way that this has been presented and an opportunity given to us to object. If it does not relate to anything that is covered by the portion of the evidence we put in, we will not object to it.

Presiding Inspector: Well, go ahead, Mr. Del Guercio. There is no ruling I can make, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Gladstein: Well,——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): There is no ruling that I can make.

Mr. Gladstein: There is only one suggestion that I have at this time, your Honor: I think it is one that you might well take into consideration. As I say, we feel that in all probability that all of the testimony that Mr. Bridges gave in the last hearing would be relevant in this case, if any portions of his testimony are read into the record by Mr. Del [2530] Guercio. If it is your Honor's suggestion that we then at a later stage read in those portions which we feel should be added by way of supplementing the material already read into the record it may well be that we will be standing here and reading here tremendous portions of Mr. Bridges' testimony. I merely make that statement in advance, your Honor, because I think it would really be absurd for that to happen.

Mr. Del Guercio: Of course, that can't happen, in the first place. We are getting in certain portions of the testimony relating to certain fixed subjects and nothing else. That is all we are offering it for at this time. Now, we could proceed——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Of course.

Mr. Del Guercio: Sir?

Presiding Inspector: Of course, Mr. Del Guercio, you will find when the counsel for the Alien begin to read that there will be differences of opinion between you as to whether other matters are related to what you produce. We will have to take those up when the time comes. Following the practice that I have pursued, and which I intend to pursue and which I will pursue on your behalf also when you come to correcting, amending, attacking, or otherwise treating evidence produced by the Alien, I shall rule liberally on the introduction of such testimony, and when you are on the cross examining side I shall rule liberally in your favor. [2531]

Mr. Del Guercio: We have two methods of approach here. We may, of course, call Mr. Bridges here on the stand.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, you are quite within your right.

Mr. Del Guercio: If that is what they have in mind, why, we will proceed in that manner.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no. You are quite within your rights to proceed in the way that you suggest. I will receive your testimony.

Mr. Goodwin: I should guess that they might very well at the proper time submit a statement of the parts that they would like to have introduced in the evidence and let us do what they did today: Look them over.

Presiding Inspector: We will see about that when you reach it.

Go ahead, Mr. Del Guercio. I shall hear your testimony. [2532]

Mr. Grossman: Mr. Del Guercio naturally has the right to, I suppose, read this into the record, because we have adopted that policy, and we don't want to object to it; but we do wish to point out that it is my guess, at least, that reading all these pages that he has referred to will probably take half a day, and if any stipulation is needed that any pages correctly represent the record, we have no objection. We suggest you might consider the desirability of not reading at this time. And, of course, if he doesn't read we won't read when we introduce anything, but merely offering for the record written copies of the record which we can stipulate to.

Now, we understand we cannot prevent, nor perhaps can you, him from reading these pages. It is a suggestion because it may save half a day of the Court's time and everyone's time.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will rule, as I have already suggested, that we will follow the practice that Mr. Del Guercio wishes.

On the other hand, when it comes to introducing other matter, subject to their objection and the ruling of the Court, we will adopt a similar practice and you may proceed as you see fit.

Proceed, Mr. Del Guercio.

Both sides are going to be treated alike.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will first start with the IWW, if your Honor please. Volume 16, page 2488, dated August 2, 1939. [2533]

Mr. Gladstein: What page?

Mr. Del Guercio: 2488.

This testimony was given by Mr. Bridges at that hearing, on Angel Island, San Francisco, California, August 2, 1939.

Presiding Inspector: If there is any mistake in reading you are perfectly at liberty to interrupt.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Mr. Del Guercio: By Mr. Shoemaker.

"Q. Did you ever belong to the I.W.W.?

"A. I took out a membership card once for a short time.

"Q. Where, please?

"A. In the south.

"Q. Whereabouts in the south?"

Continuing on page 2489:

"A. It was in New Orleans.

"Q. Do you recall when that was?

"A. I think that was during the seamen's strike.

"Q. What year was that, please?

"A. 1921.

"Q. Do you know what the aims and purposes of the I. W. W. were at that time?

"A. I wasn't very familiar with them. When I found out what they were I got out of it fast.

"Q. How long were you in?

"A. For a period of a few months, I think. I wasn't a [2534] very good member. It did not agree with my views."

Reading again now from page 2525, the second question from the bottom of the page:

"Q. I think you said a while ago that you had been a member of the I. W. W., or Industrial Workers of the World, for a short period.

"A. Right.

"Q. Do you know anything about the aims and purposes of that organization at that time?

"A. Well, I knew at that time, and not to any great extent. I found out after I was in a short while. I know what they are now. I disagreed with them.

"Q. Would you tell us wht you thought the aims were at the time you joined it, and what you know about it?

"A. Well, their aims are syndicalistic, I think. They are more or less an Anarchist group. In other words, they prate and carry on under a program of the extreme rank and file-ism, and all they succeed in doing is creating a lot of general disruption and bogging down the advance of labor generally under a cloak or a guise of democracy.

"I believe they are disruptive. I don't like their program. Instead of trying to explain it generally, I can give specific examples.

"We have, for example, in the Northwest still a lot of I. W. W.'s at the present time in the woods. They believe [2535] more in a program of direct action to settle every dispute instead of other types of action.

"Q. What do you mean by 'direct action'?

"A. Strikes. In other words, we believe in strikes, and we believe in direct action under the proper circumstances and at the proper time when it is the best thing to do. But there comes a time that you can go a little too far with direct action. The I. W. W. philosophy was never to sign an agreement, for example: never to arbitrate; never to mediate; never to consolidate. The reason that the I. W. W. was broken up was because they are a splendid fighting bunch up to a point. They gained many improvements and benefits for the people they represent, the workers generally, but they tried to carry on the same tactics and they didn't consolidate. They are absolutely opposed to any type of political action. The philosophy of the I. W. W. can generally be expressed that they are going to take over the means of production by economic measures.

"In other words, they propose that one of these days everybody will be organized into industrial trade unions without any political activity whatsoever; and that at the proper time all the trade union workers will walk out of the factories and, I presume, in that way cause a collapse of the financial and general system, and that they will return and operate the factories themselves, and what-not."

[2536]

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Del Guercio, I would like to ask you to go back to page 2526, a question at the top of the page. Does it read in your transcript, "Would you tell us what you thought the aims were at the time you joined it, and what you know now about it?"

Mr. Del Guercio: That is correct. Is that what I read?

Mr. Gladstein: I think you omitted the word "now".

Mr. Del Guercio: If I did, I did it inadvertently.

Now, Mr. Bridges' testimony on the purchase and reading of Communist Party literature, Volume 16, page 2527: By Mr. Shoemaker.

"Q. Were you ever, so far as your recollection serves, at 37 Grove Street, San Francisco, when it was the headquarters of the Communist Party?

"A. No.

"Q. Did you ever know it was the headquarters of the Communist Party?

"A. I knew it; yes.

"Q. Would that number be correct?

"A. 37 Grove Street—I am familiar with it.

"Q. You have never been there in your life—withdraw the question. That isn't exactly what I want to ask.

"Were you ever there when it was the headquarters of the Communist Party? [2537]

"A. Yes. I was going to correct that statement. At that time 37 Grove Street was also a big bookstore. I mean they used to sell Communist literature there, as well as other literature. I just happened to remember that in passing by there, or going directly there, I have dropped into purchase literature or pamphlets on a couple of occasions.

"I used to live up in that general direction, and lots of times I used to walk home from the waterfront, and I would say that outside of such visits as that there was no other visits."

Now reading from page 2528. I have some from both 2527 and 2526—continuing on page 2472 of the same volume, about the third question from the bottom of the page.

"By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. Do you receive at your home any literature pertaining to Communism?

"A. Well, when you say 'receive', do you mean, Do I receive it through the mail?

"Q. Yes; through the mail or any other wise.

"A. Sometimes I have, yes.

"Q. Do you make any yearly subscriptions to Communist papers."

Continuing on page 2473:

"A. I do not.

"Q. Have you ever in the past made any?

"A. I have. I have subscribed to the Daily Worker and [2538] I subscribed to the Western Worker.

"Q. Any other papers?

"A. That is all.

"Q. Do you subscribe to the—what was that first paper?

"A. The Daily Worker.

"Q. (Continuing): ——the Daily Worker now?

"A. No, not now. I read it. Our office has a subscription and I read it."

Now Volume 18, page 3097, on that same subject of Communist literature, the second question from the top of the page.

By Mr. Gladstein.

"Q. Now, you testified that you used to subscribe to the Daily Worker and the Western Worker, and that your office now does subscribe to those newspapers. Can you tell us why?

"A. I subscribed personally to the Daily Worker and the Western Worker. At that time, in 1934 and 1935—I think the press has undergone quite a change. The metropolitan press, daily press, realizes that labor news today is news and they carry statements from a trade union. But it was practically an unheard of thing in 1934 and 1935 for any metropolitan daily to carry a true statement of any union dispute, or any publicity statement released by a union. They would print their own distorted, biased stories. I cannot recall; except possibly the New York Times, where there was any amount of labor news printed. The only paper [2439] at that time you could get any labor news out of was a labor paper, or the Daily Worker, or the Western Worker. I subscribed to those.

"The thing is still more or less correct today. If you want to find labor news from all over the country you don't buy the Hearst papers, or any other metropolitan daily. You buy a labor daily and a labor paper."

Now, going back to Volume 16, page 2580, on the same subject, the purchase of Communist literature, and beginning with the second question from the top of the page.

By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Do you know Lawrence Ross?

"A. Lawrence Ross?

"Q. Yes. A. Yes.

"Q. Is he a member of the Communist Party?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Do you recall when you first met him?

"A. Yes.

"Q. When was it, please?

"A. 1934. Ross was the leader of the delegation that came down to our strike headquarters and appeared before the strike committees on the occasion that I have already spoken about. He was one of the delegation that proposed that the union accept the help of the Western Worker as their official [2540] papers. I think he was the editor of the Western Worker at that time." [2541]

Now, on the same subject I go to Volume 34, page 5965, the last question on that page, question by Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. I think you testified also, when you were on the stand before, with regard to Lawrence Ross—page 2580 of the transcript—that you met Lawrence Ross during the 1934 strike?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Do you recall where it was that you met him?

"A. He came down in connection with an offer of the Communist Party to make available the Western Worker to us.

"Q. Came down from where?

"A. To the strike headquarters, the I. L. A. strike headquarters. They offered to put out a special daily bulletin through the Western Worker carrying strike news. That offer was afterwards accepted and approved. My first recollection of Ross was being a member of that delegation with Hanoff and somebody else.

"Q. Did you have anything to do with the acceptance of that offer?

"A. Do you mean did I favor it?

"Q. Yes. Did you have anything to do with the acceptance of it? I mean by that, did you accept it yourself or did you——

"A. (Interrupting): It was accepted and officially approved by our strike committee. If you mean did I favor the acceptance of it, I certainly did." [2542]

Continuing on page 5967:

"Q. Were you on the strike committee?

"A. I was Chairman of the Strike Committee. That was the only source—we had two papers of that sort, one being the Catholic Leader and the other the Western Worker.

"Q. Did you advocate the acceptance of that offer to the members of the Strike Committee?

"A. Certainly I advocated that, and also the other paper.

"Q. With regard to Lawrence Ross, do you recall where it was that you met him here in San Francisco, when you first met him here in San Francisco, when you first met him?

"A. That first time?

"Q. Yes.

"A. At the strike headquarters, as far as I remember.

"Q. Do you recall whether he was connected with the Western Worker then or not?

"A. I think he was. I am not quite sure, but I think he was the editor, or definitely connected with the Western Worker.

"Q. You don't recall what month it was in 1934, do you, that you met him?

"A. May. It was after the strike broke out. The strike took place May 9. This was very shortly afterwards, as I recall it.

"Q. How frequently they did you see him, do you recall, [2543] during the strike period?"

And continuing on page 3968:

"A. Off and on. I don't recall how many times."

Now, going to Volume 16, page 2508, beginning with the first question at the top of the page.

By Mr. Shoemaker.

"Q. Will you tell us the circumstances under which it was decided to use the Western Worker as the official organ of the strike committee?

"A. Well, very simple. The strike broke out. We had no funds. We started the strike with $300 in the treasury, and the press—all the press predicted that we would be licked in two days, that we would be driven back to work broken and worse off than when we started.

"All the press predicted dire happenings and foolish leadership and predicted that this was not the way to handle the affairs; that we should have taken the offer which had been offered to us, which meant nothing at all. It would have meant the end of our union.

"The entire press was hostile, much worse than it is today—and it is bad enough today. Therefore, in the middle of all this or the beginning of all this, there was only one labor paper that sponsored us in any way in so far as the strike issues were concerned.

"There was another a little later, but the Western [2544] Worker printed the official releases from the strike committee, which the other papers did not. All they printed was the official releases from the employer. Because the workers knew that they could get the Western Worker and read their own official releases and the true story, they became somewhat in support of the Western Worker and then, inasmuch as we had no funds or any other facilities, when we got an offer of this particular paper that had printing presses and what-not, to print an official daily strike bulletin carrying the news of the strike down to not only our own members, but to the members of the other unions, it was eagerly and officially accepted and appreciated.

"Q. What do you mean by 'officially accepted'?

"A. Passed by the strike committee and ultimately approved by the membership of the union in its regular meeting.

"Q. Did you get up any of the releases?

"A. Did I get out any of the releases? We had a publicity committee.

"Q. Did you have anything to do with any of the releases at all yourself?

"A. Oh, undoubtedly I did. I was the chairman of the strike committee and, as such, ex-officio member or chairman of each committee and each sub-committee. In many of the cases the releases that were prepared were prepared under my direction and with my help. [2545]

"Q. Do you know about how many times you would do that?

"A. I can't say. That was only in the very early days of the strike. After a while the publicity committee that was charged with the duty of getting out releases functioned efficiently and did not need any further assistance or supervision from me."

Continuing on page 2511.

"Trial Examiner Landis: Before you leave that question, Mr. Shoemaker, was the Western Worker then an organ of the Communist Party?

"The Witness: The official organ of the Communist Party of the West Coast, I believe.

"Trial Examiner Landis: At this time?

"The Witness: In 1934, yes.

"Trial Examiner Landis: When you say that you 'officially adopted' it as your organ, what does that mean?

"The Witness: I think the editor of the Western Worker, a delegation of three Communist officials, including, as I remember, the editor of the Western Worker, wrote us a letter saying that they had—wrote the strike committee a letter saying that they had a proposition that they would submit to the union, and if it was approved by the union they would be glad to carry through.

"The proposition was that, inasmuch as we were badly in need of media of publicity for releases, not only for the [2546] strikers, but other trade unions, that they would print a daily special bulletin. It wasn't exactly a full paper."

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) "full paper?"

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

(Continuing) "It was like a one sheet of the Western Worker that was solely given to strike news and the reports of various happenings of the strike. This would be done daily at no cost to the union."

Turning to the next page, 2512, and continuing.

"Trial Examiner Landis: In return for what?

"The Witness: In return for nothing.

"Trial Examiner Landis: For nothing?

"The Witness: They wanted to see us win the strike, I presume. That is all they ever got out of it.

"Trial Examiner Landis: They would do it without any notice to you, or it must be in return for furnishing them with news or in return for suggestion to your members that they should subscribe to the Western Worker, or something of that nature?

"The Witness: I believe undoubtedly that that is true; that by doing this, by demonstrating to the trade unions on strike that they would create a lot of sympathy and support for their paper. Undoubtedly they would be able to carry on a drive for subscriptions. At that time I urged subscriptions to the Western Worker myself." [2547]

"Trial Examiner Landis: Did the union ever subsidize the Western Worker?

"The Witness: I think that was brought up in the testimony once. I know that it came up before the union. As to whether the union was to subsidize them or give a donation to them——

"Trial Examiner Landis: Yes, that is what I mean.

"The Witness: As to whether that motion was passed or not, I don't know; but I know it was on the union floor asking for a donation."

Continuing at Volume 17, page 2741, beginning with the first question of Mr. Shoemaker on page 2741.

"Q. I think, Mr. Bridges, the other day—you recall you made a speech down at Cleveland?

"A. At where?

"Q. Cleveland; is that correct?

"A. Cleveland? I have never made a speech at Cleveland as far as I know, in my life.

"(Whereupon a certain photostatic document was handed to the witness by Mr. Shoemaker.)

"The Witness: That picture (indicating) is Cleveland. This article deals with—I think the article refers to New York.

"By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. That is where this picture was made? Read it and see.

"A. I will have to read it. Do you refer to this state- [2548] ment here (indicating)?

"Q. Yes.

"A. That wasn't a speech; that was possibly a statement to the press, as I understand it; and as I read it there I believe generally that it is more or less an accurate statement.

"Q. Inaccurate?

"A. An accurate statement. I think it said quoted in the Daily Worker, so that is what makes me think it is accurate.

"Q. Are you always satisfied with the quotations from the Daily Worker?

"A. I mean, compared with some of the other press we are familiar with, I put my faith with the Daily Worker as far as accuracy is concerned. Its policies are another thing."

Now, the next subject has to do with the Waterfront Worker. The first reference is Volume 18, page 3065, the second question from the bottom of the page:

"Q. (By Mrs. Carol King): When did the men start to organize a union which was not a company union?

"A. There was more than one attempt to break away from the company union.

"In 1928, for example, the American Federation of Labor approached the longshoremen with a proposition that they would give a charter to the company union and they asked us to take [2549] a vote. The various labor officials at that time were in favor of it. Paul Scharanberg, the Secretary of the State Federation of Labor, and John O'Connell, of the San Francisco Labor Council, and that group, they were in favor of chartering the company union.

"The men didn't want it. A group of us agitated against having this company union given an A. F. of L. charter because it kept the same constitution, the same officials, and we knew the same tie-up with the employers. That was just another move to gloss it over with a veneer of bona fide unionism.

"After that there was no real attempt to organize until the M. W. I. U. came around in 1930 or 1931. The I. W. W. was around there for a while. But neither of those groups was accepted to any degree by any amount of the working longshoremen on the waterfront.

"There was really no start toward real organization until September, 1932, when we started our waterfront paper. The waterfront paper generally dealt with the ills of the longshoremen. In other words, these various straw bosses, or gang foremen along the waterfront, who we used to call slave drivers, they were written up in the paper in their various habits. The paper immediately found wide support among the longshoremen.

"Then, of course, we had no set plan. All we used to [2550] say in the paper was 'to organize' ".

Continuing on page 3073, the last question on the bottom of that page, a question by Mrs. Carol King.

"Q. Now, all the time the Waterfront Worker was running along, is that correct?

"A. That is right.

"Q. And was it the first organ of the men on strike?

"A. That is right.

"Q. The only organ they had?

"A. Yes.

"Trial Examiner Landis: I didn't get that question.

"Miss King: I asked whether the Waterfront Worker was the only organ of the men on strike.

"The Witness: That is right. At that time it was more or less officially adopted by the men. I think it would be after the strike, or before the strike, it would be more or less officially adopted by the men in the union, because they started to take up collections for it and they collected a fund of around $500 that they turned over to the Waterfront Worker, and that was invested in typewriters and mimeograph machines for the full report being made in the paper.

"By Miss King:

"Q. Outside of the funds the men raised themselves, did they get any financial support from anyone?

"A. All the funds for that paper came from the contribu- [2551] tions we put in ourselves. We used to sell the paper for 2 cents, but lots of the men would say, 'Well, here is 5 cents, or 10 cents;' and later on, as I say, we voluntarily took up a collection in all the waterfronts, various gangs, and I think it amounted to $500."

Now, going to Volume 17, page 2720 on the same subject, the Waterfront Worker, beginning with the third question from the top of the page, question by Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. Who controlled the publication of the Waterfront Worker?

"A. The men on the waterfront.

"Q. Do you know who, for instance, was editor?

"A. Well, I guess it doesn't hurt to say now. It was pretty dangerous at that time. I think that there were eight editors. I was one of them.

"Q. You were?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Who else?

"A. Schmidt was another one? Schomaker was another one—there were four or five more but I forget their names off-hand.

"Q. How long were you editor?

"A. From the very start of it. I started it.

"Q. How long ago? [2552]

"A. It was first the M. W. I. U. publication. The M. W. I. U. tried to make it go on the waterfront. It didn't go over at all. I knew it wouldn't go over. So when they quit publishing it we started up in exactly the same way and we made it go.

"Q. I don't know as I correctly understand you. You say you started it. It had been going before you got control of it, is that the idea?

"A. It had been going, the paper was published by the M. W. I. U., and then they stopped it.

"Q. Do you know for how long a period it was not published, that is, between the time they stopped and the time you began?

"A. About five or six weeks.

"Q. And then you took it over?

"A. We started it up separate and apart and independent from the M. W. I. U. It was published by a bunch of us on the waterfront.

"Q. You were editor? You say you started it?

"A. There was no specific editor. Everybody edited it.

"Q. Everybody edited it?

"A. Well, everybody did.

"Q. You mean everybody wrote pieces for it?

"A. It was a democratic paper, in other words.

"Q. I don't suppose the Immigration boys got in on that? [2553]

"A. The Immigration boys?

"Q. If it was a democratic paper—in any event, did it continue to be known as the Waterfront Worker?

"A. Yes.

"Q. When you took it over?

"A. Yes—for quite a while it kept the same name, except we changed the ume of who it was put out by. After the M. W. I. U. discontinued it for a few weeks why we got the idea— of course, I had spoken to them. They had told me about it, that they were not going to print the paper any more, and I asked, 'Why not?' Well, they couldn't make enough money to afford to have it printed. It was dependent on the funds they received from the sale of it and what-not.

"Q. So they said——

Mr. Gladstein: That is not a question.

Mr. Del Guercio: No. That is the same answer: part of the same answer.

"So they said they weren't going to continue it and then we took it over as I have said.

"Q. Do you recall when you took it over?

"A. September 1932; I think either September or October 1932.

"Q. Would that be the first part of September?

"A. That is pretty hard to recall. [2554]

"Q. Had Jackson been editor of that paper before that?

"A. I think, if he was not editor, he was very closely connected with it.

"Q. Was he editor of it after you took it over?

"A. He had nothing to do with it after we took it over. I recall I would meet Jackson on the waterfront and he tried to suggest some ideas, but it was pretty much of a joke. We pointed out that they had their chance, and couldn't make it go, and that we were making it a waterfront paper, which it finally became, and we never accepted any advice. The success of the paper was that it was written by working longshoremen on the job and edited by them, and put out by them.

"Q. Did you pay anything to the M. W. I. U. for it?

"A. Not a thing.

"Q. What press did you use?

"A. A mimeograph machine.

"Q. Did you buy the mimeograph machine?

"A. We bought it.

"Q. From the M. W. I. U.?

"A. No. We put up the money ourselves to buy it. We rented it first and later on we bought it outright.

"Q. Did you give a post office box on it?

"A. We did.

"Q. Do you recall what it was?

"A. No. [2555]

"Q. Do your know in whose name it was put out?

"A. It was put out by a group of longshoremen in the local union. It was not advisable by any means to put our names on it at that time. Afterwards, however, afterwards it generally became known who was publishing it and who was behind the paper.

"Q. And who was it—you mean your organization?

"A. They knew I had a big finger in it, and they knew that Schmidt, and the rest of us on the waterfront that had been pretty active in all the affairs of the union, had a lot to do with it. Of course, we denied it at that time. It wasn't advisable to admit it. It was more than our jobs were worth. We would have been kicked off the waterfront by the shipowners. The employers would have paid one million dollars to have found out who was behind that paper as of that time."

Continuing on page 2725 of the same Volume:

"Q. Did you write any articles for it?

"A. Plenty of them.

"Q. Do you have any copies of it?

"A. I have.

"Q. Will you give us some of the——

"A. (Interrupting) I will pick out the copies I can get. I haven't any. Somewhere there is a full file of it. I think one of the fellows has a full file. I do have some loose copies in my office and I will get them all and bring [2556] them along.

"Q. Will you enumerate the articles you wrote?

"A. That would be impossible.

"Q. Some of them.

"A. I wrote articles dealing with, analyzing, for example, the decision of the conventions, analyzing the strategy that should be used on the waterfront, analyzing and advising, or putting forth a program in regard to something that was taking place. I distinctly remember at the time the tendency towards direct action at all times, instead of beginning to utilize the agreements we had secured. Many things like that I wrote articles on. In other words, general policy, and general strategy, and my idea as to what should be followed.

"Q. Did anyone edit the articles that went in there before they were put out?

"A. No; they went in as they were.

"Q. Nobody took any responsibility for them?

"A. The only people that edited them were the people that were working longshoremen on the waterfront.

"Q. Did you ever edit any of them?

"A. If you will look at the paper I think it is kind of noticeable.

"Q. I have read none of them. [2557]

"Mr. Gladstein: I was going to suggest that you probably could get a full file of those from the San Francisco Industrial Association.

"The Witness: They were on the mailing list.

"By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. Who are they?

"A. The San Francisco Industrial Association was——

"Trial Examiner Landis: I think there is already testimony in the record as to who they are. I think Mr. Bridges testified yesterday as to who they were.

"The Witness: Right.

"Mr. Shoemaker: I missed it, your Honor.

"By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. How long did you continue to run that paper, the Waterfront Worker?

"A. I have forgotten. I think it went out of business, or we put it out of business, is the proper term, around the spring or early summer of 1936.

"Q. From 1932 to 1936?

"A. Right.

"Q. Was it succeeded by any other paper?

"A. No. We put it out of circulation. It was my idea. There was a lot of opposition, especially among the men on the waterfront, and among a lot of people that had been [2558] with it since it started. It was my idea that it should be put out of business. It had served its purpose. It was a bulletin that had been carried on and, as I say, it was more or less anonymous. The only excuse for its being anonymous was the threat of the blacklist and reprisals from the employers, or the reactionary union leaders. When that threat had disappeared there were only two things to do with that bulletin: To put it out of existence, or to come out and publish the names of the people behind it. I was in favor of doing the latter. However, it was eventually decided that the thing would be put out of existence and that was done.

"Q. If it were anonymous itself, Mr. Bridges, it could have been regarded as a threat on the other side, you see. You can understand that?

"A. How do you mean?

"Q. There was no responsibility attached to the paper, as I understand it. Am I correct? No one knew who was publishing it. No names appeared in it, as I understand it, is that correct?

"A. That is not correct. It became general knowledge on the waterfront among the men who was publishing that bulletin.

"Q. Did anybody outside the waterfront know it?

"A. Yes. I am pretty sure that the police department and the Industrial Association, and all such groups, knew it. [2559] I am pretty sure they knew it. But it was a question of having a waterfront rank and file paper.

"Q. Did Harry Jackson ever take that paper over after you got into it at all?

"A. No. Some time afterwards an official paper of the Communist Party appeared on the waterfront called the Maritime Worker.

"Q. I have seen that."

Continuing on page 2729:

"A. That was some time afterwards, as far as I know. Oh, I think that—no, I think that paper appeared before the Waterfront Worker went out of business.

"Q. The paper was just about the same size, wasn't it?

"A. Just about.

"Q. Do you know who put that out? The Communist Party?

"A. The Communist Party. I think I have seen copies of it; the Waterfront Section of the Communist Party.

"Q. Did you ever write any articles for that?

"A. Never.

"Q. Did you ever read it?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Was it conducted in the interests of union labor, or in the interests of the Communist Party?

"A. It was more—dealt more with political questions [2560] than it did with trade unions.

"Q. I didn't get that.

"A. I say, it dealt with wider and broader issues more than it did with waterfront or trade unions, as I recall the last copy I have seen. For example, the greater part of the paper was taken up with the international situation, the question of an embargo on scrap iron and munitions to Japan, the question of the position of Russia in the international arena, and the matter of the grabbing of various democracies over there. It had a line like that. I recollect that because there was more of that in there than there was questions directly relating to the unions on the waterfront.

"Q. Well, the Waterfront Worker was a successor to the Maritime Worker, is that correct?

"A. No, that is not correct.

"Q. Well, the Maritime Worker, then, preceded the publication of the Waterfront Worker, is that correct?

"A. I don't—I am not sure.

"Q. It may have and it may have not?

"A. It may have started before the Waterfront Worker went out of business, or it may have started afterwards. I am not sure.

"Q. Well, it didn't run concurrently, did they?

"A. You mean that the Waterfront Worker finished and the other one started?

"Q. No, I mean they didn't run at the same time, the [2561] two papers, did they?

"A. I think they did. I might be mistaken on that, but I have got an impression that the Maritime Worker was being issued at the same time as the Waterfront Worker.

"Q. You didn't have anything to do with the Maritime Worker, did you?

"A. No. Towards the last I had nothing to do with the Waterfront Worker, to any great extent."

Continuing on page 2731:

"Q. Did you read it?

"A. Yes, religiously.

"Q. Did you prepare any article for it?

"A. Yes, I would write articles and send them in.

"Q. Were they published?

"A. They generally were."

Now, going to Volume 34, page 5952——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) 59 what?

Mr. Del Guercio: 52. This is a question by Mr. Shoemaker, the first question at the top of the page:

"Q. Do you know how long the Waterfront Worker had been running at the time when you first took it over?

"A. Not very long. It is pretty hard to remember. If I recall, we took it over around September or October 1932, or it was running then and we took it over later, I can't [2562] set the exact time. I would have to get the original issues and check it up.

"Q. I think you said, Mr. Bridges, in your prior testimony, about September 1932. Something like that. But the point I want to know is about how long it had been running prior to that time.

"A. I can't remember. Maybe a month or two. My first recollection of ever seeing it was September of 1932.

"Q. Did they have a Post Office box?

"A. Yes.

"Q. After you took it over, did you people take the same Post Office box?

"A. I don't know if we took the same Post Office box or got another one. We used the same method.

"Q. You what?

"A. We used the same method. We used the Post Office box the same way. It was an anonymous paper. I don't recall whether we used their box or took over another box.

"Q. I think you said in your testimony that you would bring copies of it that you had in your office. Did you bring them?

"A. I have had quite a time getting them. I have a few copies, but I was especially looking for copies you are after there, the early copies, and to acquire that you would have to [2563] have a full file. Now, there is a file in existence, and I have been chasing it down and have been unable to make contact. I can bring over a dozen copies, but they are scattered dates and they are along in 1936, and I thought it would be much better if I could bring the original copies from the day it started.

"I can still bring the copies, if you wish them; I can still bring what copies I have.

"Q. Well, I wanted to get some of the articles you wrote in that Western Worker, that you recall distinctly yourself.

"A. I think I could pick out some of the articles.

"Mr. Grossman: You mean the Waterfront Worker?

"Mr. Shoemaker: Yes.

"The Witness: I think I could pick out some of the articles I wrote.

"By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. And you will bring them to the hearing? Strike that last question.

Mr. Gladstein: It ends with "I think I could pick out some of the articles I wrote."?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, ending with "I think I could pick out some of the articles I wrote".

Turning to Volume 17, page 2703, the third question from the top of the page, a question by Mr. Shoemaker: [2564]

"Q. Did you ever use Herman Mann as a messenger to contact Walter Lambert, Sam Darcy?

"A. I have used Herman Mann as a private investigator——"

I only want the first question and answer on that point, the question by Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. Did you ever use Herman Mann as a messenger to contact Walter Lambert, Sam Darcy?

"A. I have used Herman Mann as a private investigator——"

Mr. Gladstein: Just the one question and answer, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. Now, the next subject is regarding the Marine Workers Industrial Union, beginning first reading from Volume 16, page 2617, the first question at the top of the page:

"By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. Mr. Bridges, did you ever see a membership book of the M.W.I.U.?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Will you look that over and tell me what that is?

"A. Yes, this is a membership book.

"Q. I just want to read you a little bit out of the preamble of this book, Mr. Bridges.

"The Marine Workers' Industrial Union is organized to unite all workers in the marine industry and lead them in their struggles against the employrs for better work- [2565] ing and living conditions and for the ultimate freedom from wage slavery. This fight between the marine workers and the shipowners, bosses, et cetera, is only one front of the class struggle which rages ceaselessly between the whole working class and the whole class of employers—the capitalists. Victory in this struggle can be won only by the most relentless, militant, and revolutionary struggle for the whole working class.'

"I won't read it all.

"'While striving constantly for the immediate betterment of all living and working conditions of the marine workers, the M.W.I.U. does not limit itself to immediate economic demands alone, but declares that the liberation of the marine workers from exploitation is only part of the revolutionary struggle of the whole working class against the capitalist system.

"'The M.W.I.U. urges upon all its members the most active participation in the general struggles of the working class, economical and political, directed toward the goal of the establishment of a revolutionary workers' government.'

"You, of course, heard what I have read. What is your construction of what I have read? Does that mean anything to you?

"A. Not particularly. [2566]

"Q. That does not make any impression upon you?

"A. It doesn't seem very practical to me.

"Q. Does it sound communistic to you?

"A. I would say it sounds revolutionary.

"Q. What do you mean by revolutionary'?

"A. Well, I think it speaks for itself.

"Q. No, that does not necessarily speak for itself.

"A. I will give you my impressions, then.

"Q. Go ahead.

"A. Here you have an organization that is a trade union and, as such—and, as I believe it should be—should be primarily interested in the improvement of the conditions of the workers. When it goes further and, separate and apart from those particular troubles that it has, it goes onto a program that becomes more a program of theory than a program of practical application in so far as improving the workers' conditions are concerned, I think that that is something that is way in the future. We have too much trouble at the present time even getting a few wage increases to spend any time upon that particular front.

"Q. Do the words 'victory in this struggle can be won only by the most relentless, militant and revolutionary struggle of the whole working class', mean anything to you in so far as the taking, for instance, of property by force or taking anything by force is concerned? [2567]

"A. I don't know. I wouldn't know that.

"Q. Would you place any construction of that kind on those words?

"A. Well, I think if you took—I don't know what the whole preamble is there. I know that that was the book.

"Q. You can read it, if you want to.

"A. You can read the whole thing and with a chance to analyze it, I could place my own construction on it.

"Q. Would you read it and place your construction on it?

"A. The preamble says:

"'This fight between the maring workers and the shipowners, bosses, et cetera, is only one front of the class struggle which rages ceaselessly between the whole working class and the whole class of employers—the capitalists."

"I think, generally speaking, that is correct. That, as far as you fight for our economic demands is concerned, you can't let it go at that, but because it has been our experience that when you win things through economic struggle the employing groups immediately move to take them away from you through legislation, and such things as that. Therefore, I certainly agree in that respect.

"As far as 'victory in this struggle can only be won by the most relentless, militant and revolutionary struggle of the whole working class', I don't agree. We have won a couple of things in our trade unions and we didn't have to go through a relentless and militant struggle of the whole working class. [2568] We had to fight some of the working class, as a matter of fact.

"So, from the light of what I know by practical experience, I don't agree with that.

"Q. Does 'revolutionary' in your judgment, include the use of force?

"A. No. It depends, I say, on the circumstances.

"Q. In the advocacy there of a certain thing, does it mean the use of force?

"A. I wouldn't think so.

"Q. Go ahead.

"A. I am looking at that as a Marine Workers' Industrial Union, which I took it, was a trade union. I advised many people to join this union, and lots of times they used to say, 'Look at that there!'.

"I said, 'Listen! The way you change it is by joining the union. You can't change it by not joining the union. The way to change it is by joining the union. That is very easily done. You are joining a trade union organization, you can change it.'

"That's the way I used to argue on those things. I didn't believe in this, and when I advised that they join this union and they raised that objection, that was my answer to them, and I say that the same thing is still true.

"Where it goes on to say, 'For this reason the M.W.I.U. [2569] does not limit itself to narrow craft interests in the matter of the A. F. of L. Unions, but considers itself always as an integral division of the forces of the working class,' I would say that is correct. It is just a statement of fact.

" 'It rejects and condemns the treacherous 'class-collaboration' policy of the A. F. of L. which seeks to delude the workers into believing that it is possible for them to live 'in peace' with the capitalists, and betrays them into surrendering their organizations to the control of their employers.'

"That is only partly true and partly untrue. Our unions practice what can generally be termed as 'class collaboration,' and we find that many of those forces that are linked up with the employers attack us from the left because they attack us as selling out the workers because we practice class-collaboration. There have been people testify in this hearing that are lined up with those forces where we are not attacked as militants or progressives.

We are attacked as reactionaries and attacked from the left, and we are attacked becuse we believe in arbitration, believe in collective bargaining, and such things as that.

"Q. What part of that latter would you say was true and what part of it was untrue?

"A. The refusal to narrow its organizational activities to craft set-ups and to move along industrial lines is correct. It is our policy, the policy of the Union I belong to, the [2570] policy of the CIO, to reject and condemn the treacherous class collaboration policy of the A. F. of L.

"That, taken as a flat, general statement, I would say, is untrue and incorrect and would not receive our support. It is true that the class collaboration program can go to the point where workers can be misled and the employers to take over their unions, and we have all too many such unions in the country today. Therefore, we have the struggle between the CIO and the A. F. of L. But it is only partly true, and I do not believe that class collaboration can be condemned in a flat, general statement such as this.

"You can read on and say: 'While striving constantly for the immediate betterment of all living and working conditions of the marine workers, the M.W.I.U. does not limit itself to immediate economic demands alone.'

"That's quite proper, I think, and practical. There are other things besides just wages, hours, and working conditions. There is the question of democracy, civil liberties; there is the question of the persecution of racial groups in other lands. They are all our business, and we definitely and are actively conscious of it. I believe they are correct, in my opinion, if that is what they mean in that respect.

'But declares that the liberation of the marine workers from exploitation is only one part of the revolutionary struggle of the whole working class against the capitalist system.' [2571]

"I would assume that that is correct, that the liberation of marine workers or any other type of workers from exploitation is only one part of any struggle of the whole working class. However, when it becomes a question of, say, the whole working class against the capitalist system I think I would say that is correct, too.

"Regardless of whether we like it or not, there is a struggle against the present system. If that's regarded as a struggle against the present Government, I think it is incorrect. But the present system of exploitation, the present profits system, it is something that is here. We can't ignore it. When people point it out in words it doesn't do any good to hide your face and say, 'We don't want anything to do with it' because it is something we have to face, and that struggle is here and going on.

"I think a statement like that, 'That the struggle of the whole working class against the capitalist system', is only one part of the struggle against the whole capitalist system. I think that is a statement of fact.

"'The M.W.I.U. urges upon all its members the most active participation in the general struggles of the working class, economic, and political.'

"I think that part of the statement is correct.

"However, when you get down to 'directed toward the goal of the establishment of a revolutionary workers' government,' [2572] I will say that that takes further analysis and explanation. It is the method that you are going to use, then, that we have to go into. If this means the establishment of a revolutionary workers' government by force of arms, especially against a democracy, I would not believe in it or support it and would be absolutely opposed to it. If they mean, however, the establishment of a revolutionary workers' government by democratic means, I don't see who could object to it. If that is what the majority of the people want, they will eventually get it. As long as it is done in democratic fashion, it seems to me that is provided for in the Constitution or the regulations of any democratic set-up.

"Q. You knew that that was in there, did you not?

"A. Yes.

"Q. You advocated it?

"A. I advocated what?

"Q. That people join the M.W.I.U.?"

"A. I advocated that people join that union at the time I did and under the circumstances.

"Q. You did not know what construction they placed on that last paragraph, to which you have just referred, did you?

"A. No, or gave it no thought. We were concerned in getting the workers at that time into an organization to win our strike, that was our only concern.

"When the regular union that was in the field that I [2573] preferred to see the workers join—when that union took the position that they were not going to support our strike, that their orders to their union men was to 'Stay on the job and strike break', I took these men to the only other organization of the seamen in existence, which was the M.W.I.U., to get them into an organization where they could be organized and fight and be talked to and support us and win the strike.

"Q. Mr. Bridges, then if these words meant what you do not know—and you do not know just what they did mean, for you practically admitted that——

"Mr. Gladstein: I don't want to object before the question is finished, but it has already reached a stage where I think it is so vague as to be meaningless.

"Mr. Shoemaker: Not at all. I think I can clarify it to your mind. I certainly have it clearly in my mind, and I am hopeful.

"Trial Examiner Landis: I think you might object after the question has been reframed, not before.

"Mr. Shoemaker: The M.W.I.U. urges upon all its members 'the most active participation in the general struggles of the working class, economic and political, directed toward the goal of the establishment of a revolutionary workers' government'. I think Mr. Bridges testified that he didn't know exactly just what that did mean, and it would depend on what it did mean. Well, he didn't know; that is clear. Yet, he advocated men [2574] joining an organization which believed in revolutionary change of conditions. Now, if that revolutionary change contemplated a revolution with force, it was certainly pertinent to this issue, which is obviously presented here in the charges and the warrant of arrest, and that is the point I want to bring out.

"Trial Examiner Landis: I do not think there is any objection on the part of Mr. Gladstein from your inquiring along that line.

"Mr. Gladstein: Oh, no; there wasn't.

"Trial Examiner Landis: I think the objection was to the particular phraseology with which you began the question.

"Mr. Shoemaker: Read the question, please.

"(The question referred to was read by the Reporter, as follows:)

"'Q. Mr. Bridges, then if these words meant what you do not know—and you do not know just what they did mean, for you practically admitted that——'

"By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. (Continuing) ——would you think that it were right to advocate a man joining an organization where, as in this instance, it might have meant the violent overthrow of the Government?

"A. I think it would be improper.

"Q. You did not concern yourself apparently much with it, [2575] did you?

"A. I did not. We had our immediate issues to take care of. I have already explained that. Three or four months after I was advocating—and more than advocating, practically insisting—they get out of the Union. We laid there in a deadline. I think it was the end of the year that every M.W.I.U. man would have to get out of that Union and get a card in the regular Union, or he would get no further support from us. But at that time it was expedient to get these workers into that or any other organization for the purpose of winning our fight, and that is all I cared about at that time."

Now, turning to Volume 16, page 2489,—may we have a short recess?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Page 2489, beginning with the fifth question from the top of the page:

"Q. Were you ever a member of the M.W.I.U.?

"A. Never.

"Q. Not at any time?

"A. Never.

"Trial Examiner Landis: You mean the Maritime Workers——

"The Witness: (Interrupting) Marine Workers—I worked very closely with them, but was never a member."

Continuing at the top of the page, a question by Trial Examiner Landis: [2576]

"Before you move to another subject I would like to just refer to James Branch. *** *"

Mrs. King: Pardon me. What page is this, Mr. Del Guercio:

Mr. Del Guercio: Page 2605.

"Did I understand you right a moment ago when you said these speakers, referring to Branch particularly, and perhaps also to Darcy, urged the men to join the M.W.I.U.?

"The Witness: No; not those speakers. They were speaking for the Communist Party, but the M.W.I.U. also had organizers that used to speak down there too.

"As a matter of fact, along the waterfront, and elsewhere in the city, there was quite a fight developed around that time as to the rights of free speech. We were sympathetic to their right to speak, without believing in everything they said, or everything they advocated.

"Trial Examiner Landis: I interpreted your remark to the effect that these fellows urged the men on the waterfront to join the M.W.I.U. and that you were against it. That would be an incorrect interpretation of your earlier remarks?

"The Witness: Yes. I think that is correct. I was against the longshoremen joining the M.W.I.U., and was fairly well known by my position on that subject, and I couldn't see it that way. [2577]

"The Communist Party speakers at times did make reference that they needed organization on the waterfront and spoke against the company union but the main trend of their remarks was to join the Communist Party.

"Trial Examiner Landis: I am confused, Mr. Bridges. I thought I had heard you say this morning that though you were not a member of the M.W.I.U. you urged other men to join it.

"The Witness: I never have.

"Trial Examiner Landis: Then I am incorrect.

"The Witness: As a matter of fact, I was instrumental in seeing that the Union was dissolved.

"Trial Examiner Landis: I am incorrect in my recollection along that line?

"The Witness: Yes.

"In this connection—I am talking now of the longshoremen—later on when the strike broke out I urged the men to join the M.W.I.U., but that is an entirely different story, an entirely different period and under different circumstances.

"I am setting now the period prior to May, 1934, within a period of 1931 and 1932, when the M.W.I.U. was trying not only to organize the Seamen and Longshoremen—it was an industrial union—with the theory, of course, that the longshoremen, teamsters, engineers and seamen were all in one Union, should be in one Unions. I opposed that.

"I am dealing with longshoremen. I was against the long- [2578] shoremen joining.

"Later on, when the strike broke out, the first union that came to our assistance was the M.W.I.U.

"At the first two or three weeks of the strike, I not only advocated the men joining the M.W.I.U.

but I personally escorted groups of men up there to join.

"Trial Examiner Landis: So it would be longshoremen?

"The Witness: Seamen only.

"All the longshoremen were in our Union, the A. F. of L. Union.

"Trial Examiner Landis: You urged them to join the M.W.I.U. Did they have a union at that time?

"The Witness: There was a Union in the field at that time which was engaged in trying to keep the men on the ships, despite the fact that we were on strike. And for the first couple of weeks of the strike I led groups of men into the headquarters of the International Seamen's Union personally and asked the officials to sign them up.

"They said, 'No, we won't sign them up. As far as we are concerned we are not on strike.'

"Then I led those men to the headquarters of the M.W.I.U. where they were signed up.

"Trial Examiner Landis: If a man was a longshoreman, we will say, a working longshoreman, you wouldn't have urged him to join the M.W.I.U.?

[2579]

"The Witness: No.

"Trial Examiner Landis: Was Detrich a working longshoreman?

"The Witness: Yes."

Strike that. That doesn't pertain here.

Mr. King: Mr. Del Guercio, do you stop with the word "No", there?

Mr. Del Guercio: I think it should go in because it relates to the other.

"Trial Examiner Landis: Was Detrich a working longshoreman?

"The Witness: Yes.

"Trial Examiner Landis: Did you ever urge him to join the M.W.I.U.?

"The Witness: Never. He knew nothing about Unions until we got him in our group and started to teach him something.

"Trial Examiner Landis: That is all.

"The Witness: He didn't know the difference between the two types of Unions.

"By Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. Do you remember when the M.W.I.U. was dissolved, Mr. Bridges?

"A. It is hard to place it with accuracy. I would say in the winter of 1935. [2580]

"Q. Do you remember——"

Mrs. King: Mr. Del Guercio, does your copy show "1936"? Mine shows "1935."

Mr. Del Guercio: I have "1935" here. Did I say "1936"?

Mrs. King: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I am mistaken. It should be "1935".

"Q. Do you remember the circumstances under which they dissolved?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Will you tell them to us, please?

"A. The longshoremen organized and struck the ships on May 9, 1934.

"On May 10, 1934, the Marine Workers Industrial Union struck. They, at that time, had the largest membership of any seafaring Union.

"The International Seamen's Union, composed of sailors, firemen, marine cooks and stewards, had a total membership of some 400 or 500.

"Altogether on the Coast this Marine Workers Industrial Union had a membership of some 2,000. As I say, they followed our strike and struck in sympathy with us the next day, or in support of us, the next day.

"The sailors, or the Seamen's Unions, did not strike until May 15. They were forced to strike because of pressure of the [2581] M.W.I.U. The officials were mainly engaged in trying to keep the men on the ships.

"Q. The officials of which organization?

"A. The International Seamen's Union, affiliated with the AF of L, the ranking officer on this Coast at that time being Paul Sharanberg, and some other people. They tried to keep the men on the ships.

"Because of the M.W.I.U. being organized on many of the ships we were able to effectively tie up those ships by pulling or striking the crews on the ships. The majority of the men were in the International Seamen's Union. Their officials managed to keep them on the ships. Eventually, through pressure—we brought enough pressure on the Seamen's Union so that they voted a strike in this fashion: They voted to strike all lines, except two or three of the large lines, which meant no strike at all.

"Finally, on May 15; in a meeting that I had a lot to do with of 24 men, the Seamen's Union officially voted a strike, that is, the International Seamen's Union. But there were only 24 men in the meeting.

"The point is that the Marine Workers Industrial Union was the first Union to strike and they were the ones that really forced a strike of the seamen.

"The International Seamen's Union ultimately did strike.

"During the course of the strike a campaign of intimidation [2382] terror, and whatnot, was carried on, under the red herring set-up, cry of Communism, and whatnot. There was started a deliberate drive on the members of the Marine Workers Industrial Union as being Communists. I doubt if 2 per cent of them were Communists at that time. But to wear a button of the Marine Workers Industrial Union anywhere in the city was just looking for trouble and asking to be slugged by the police, and the police were there ready to do it. So they drove every man out except the most hardened ones out of the Marine Workers Industrial Union, and, that is, as far as attending any meetings were concerned, and whatnot."

Continuing on page 2611:

"Now, there was no union of seamen. In other words, we had, say, 5,000 seamen on strike in San Francisco. A couple of thousand of them might have belonged to the Marine Workers Industrial Union, and maybe 1,000 belonged to the International Seamen's Union. When this drive came to purge the M.W.I.U. we finally prevailed on the International Seamen's Union—the issue never carried—— On these seamen as well as all seamen. The Seamen's Unions were not organized until early in 1935, or late in 1935; they were not even organized. They had probationary members. So when the strike was over, July 31, 1934, and the seamen returned to their ships, the majority of them were not yet members of any union.

"Q. You mean—— [2583]

"A. (Interrupting) The majority of the seamen were not yet members of any union. They had pledge cards saying 'We agree' or 'authorize the International Seamen's Union to represent us.' That was all But they had no union books, or anything else.

"And then after the strike was over, because the International Seamen's Union was in control of reactionary officials they started, these reactionary officials, started a drive to purge every former M.W.I.U. member off the ships despite the fact that the Marine Workers Industrial Union men were first on the picket line and stayed there all during the strike, and when they tried to go back on their jobs they left to go on strike the officials of the International Seamen's Union attempted to collaborate with the ship owners and keep people off the ships because they had formerly been members of what they termed a dual union. Therefore, we had members of the Marine Workers Industrial Union being thrown off the ships, with the collaboration of the Union officials, and the employees appealed to us as longshoremen for help. In many cases we helped them. We stopped them from being discriminated against because they had formerly been members of the M.W.I.U.

"Finally I was instrumental in advising all members of the M.W.I.U. and bringing it about, that the International Seamen's Union, that is, that all of these members would be allowed to join the Seamen's Union without any discrimination, provided they disassociated themselves entirely with the [2584] M.W.I.U. Of course, when that occurred the M.W.I.U. was finally dissolved. I think that took place towards the end of 1935.

"Q. At that time did you know many of the M.W.I.U. members?

"A. Not many.

"Q. Approximately how many?

"A. That would be very difficult to say.

"Q. Ten or 20?

"A. You can put it from that number. They were all seamen off the ships.

"Q. Would that be excessive, ten or 20?

"A. I don't think so; I would say 10 or 20.

"Q. I think you said about two per cent of them would be Communists?

"A. I am pretty sure of that. They were just ordinary rank and file workers off the ships. They didn't know what Communism was all about. They joined up. I took them up there.

"The other Union would not take them. They told these men to go to the ships and be a strike-breaker. The men themselves, lots of the members that were in the Seamen's Union, tore up their books in front of their officials, and said 'We are going over to join the M.W.I.U.'

"Q. Did you know anything at that time about the aims and purposes of the M.W.I.U.?

"A. Industrial unionism. They had a lot of aims and [2585] purposes that, of course, at that time were cold Communistic and that were supposed to epitomize Communism.

"Q. Supposed to be what?

"A. Supposed to be the very height of Communism.

"In 1933 and 1934 industrial unionism was Communism. Anybody that talked industrial unionism at that time was declared a Communist.

"For example, if you supported the release of Tom Mooney in most of the Unions you were declared to be a Communist.

"At that time the employment insurance bill, known as the Lundeen Bill —"

Mrs. King: Isn't that the "unemployment insurance bill"?

Mr. Del Guercio: "Unemployment insurance bill, known as the Lundeen Bill for Unemployment Insurance, was pending in Congress. I presented resolutions in support of the same to our meeting in support of that bill and they were voted down because they were said to be Communistic. The AF of L was on record against unemployment insurance at that time and claimed it would wreck the union. Their convention in 1933, or 1932 at that time condemned the resolution for unemployment insurance."

Turning to Volume 18, page 3076,——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) It just occurs to me that when we want to read portions of the record in, portions un- [2586] doubtedly which immediately precede or immediately follow what Mr. Del Guercio reads into the record, the things that we want to read won't make any sense unless we read over everything that Mr. Del Guercio has read and it is going to take a lot of time.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't believe it will, if your Honor please. I think that we have gone over this pretty carefully and have taken out all of the portions of Bridges' testimony that relate to these specific subjects.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I said before that I thought there might be a difference of opinion on that. I haven't read this part of the record, of course; in fact, I haven't read any of it. I don't know, but I should surmise that differences of opinion will occur along that line.

Mr. Goodwin: Your Honor, as Mr. Del Guercio suggests, we have tried to cover everything on these topics that are material. We had a right to call attention only to those things that we thought were favorable to the Government, but we have tried to cover it all. Now, if there are other things that counsel finds that would fit in they will undoubtedly call your Honor's attention to it. If, perchance, they find that we have omitted things favorable to the Government, I trust they will call attention to those things also.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, I shall expect that. [2587]

Go on, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think we will eliminate that volume 18, page 3076 and go to Volume 16, page 2515. I think we are getting near the end. Beginning with the first question on the top of the page, a question by Mr. Shoemaker:

"Q. Do you recall Harry Jackson?

"A. I do.

"Q. Do you recall when and where you first met Harry Jackson?

"A. My recollection of first meeting Harry Jackson was in 1932 on the waterfront.

"Q. Do you recall how many times you have seen him since?

"A. Oh, I have seen him as often as I have seen Lambert, maybe more often. I had many contacts and conferences and meetings and what-not with Jackson, especially during the '34 strike and afterwards.

"Q. Is Harry Jackson a Communist?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Do you know him to be such?

"A. Yes, he has told me.

"Q. Did you ever pay to Harry Jackson at any time any money?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Will you tell us the circumstances and when and where? [2588]

A. Well, I can't recall specifically when and where. I can say that I have paid him money in San Francisco and possibly any other places."

Continuing on page 2516:

"When I say 'paid,' it has been more in the nature of a loan or a gift. My first acquaintance with Jackson went back to, as I say, either 1932 or 1933. At that time we had a company union on the San Francisco waterfront. Jackson was one of the Communist Party people—no, he wasn't at that time. He was an organizer for the Marine Workers Industrial Union. They used to speak on the waterfront and attempt to organize the longshoremen into the Marine Workers Industrial Union. They didn't have much success. Many of us were very sympathetic to Jackson. They would come down there, for example, on a motor truck. They would be speaking about five minutes and then the police would rush in and either throw them off the truck and generally beat them up and what-not. Naturally, they had the sympathy of a lot of longshoremen. We believed that they had a right to speak. We were always inflicted with other speakers, such as supporters of Herbert Hoover and Mayor Rossi and people like that; but when somebody came there to preach against the company union the police were right on the job and used to do a pretty good job on those fellows.

"He was fairly well known. Eventually, of course, [2589] as the trade union movement got going and the Marine Workers Industrial Union was disbanded; Jackson—I think he is blacklisted in possibly every port in the United States because of trade union activity."

Continuing on page 2589, or the last question of page 2589:

"Q. When did you first meet Sam Telford?

"A. 1934."

Continuing on page 2490.

"Q. Do you remember the circumstances?

"A. Yes. He was one of the officials or one of the strike leaders for the Marine Workers Industrial Union.

"Q. Did he ever tell you that he was a member of the Communist Party?

"A. I have the impression that he did.

"Q. Do you remember how many more times you met him?

"A. Oh, frequently.

"Q. What do you mean by 'frequently'?

"A. Well, I mean in 1934 and for quite a period in 1935 it was necessary for me to see Telford, and he was still an official of the Marine Workers Industrial Union. Since that time, however, I have only seen him occasionally by accident.

"Q. Where did you meet him, please?

"A. Oh, do you mean in 1934, for example?

"Q. Yes. [2590]

"A. I met him at the headquarters or the office or at the Marine Workers Industrial Union.

"Q. In what place?

"A. At that time?

"Q. Yes.

"A. I think it was 65 Jackson Street at that time.

"Q. In this City?

"A. And then they formerly——

"Q. In this city?

"A. Yes. Before that they had a pleace on Market Street, and then the hall was dispensed with and the union became a more or less intangible affair prior to the time it went out of business, and I met him here and there. He came down to my union office or I would run into him here or there."

Turning to Volume 17, page 2663, it appears that heretofore some questions concerning Sam Telford appeared, and this question appears on the bottom of page 2663:

"Q. Sam Telford?

"A. I think was a member of the Marine Workers Industrial Union and the Sailors Union of the Pacific.

"Q. Roy Hudson?

"A. The only Union I think he was a member of was the Marine Workers Industrial Union."

I believe that is all of the former case. I believe the Court wants to take up the matter of—— [2591]

Presiding Inspector: I think you can go on with the examination of this record tomorrow morning, can't you?

Mr. Gladstein: Of the record?

Presiding Inspector: If you want to supply anything to what has already gone in——

Mr. Gladstein: Does it have to be tomorrow morning?

Presiding Inspector: No.

Mr. Gladstein: We much prefer to put on witnesses, because this is something which could be done in a relatively short space of time, I take it, and could be sandwiched in during delays, if any.

Presiding Inspector: You will be able to go on to some extent tomorrow?

Mr. Gladstein: No, we are not. We wish an adjournment until Monday of next week, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: What are you going to supply for the Court to do during those days?

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, perhaps I can help out on that. I have been worrying for some days on the problem of these statements that the Government hasn't furnished on its witnesses, and doing a little night work on preparing a memorandum.

Presiding Inspector: What statements?

Mrs. King: The statements of its witnesses that were taken in the FBI offices, and our right to inspect those state- [2592] ments. Although you have ruled against us on that, I am now making an application for reconsideration of that problem so that we may have those statements in connection with any possible examination of witnesses from here on, because we believe that we have a right to those statements

Mr. Del Guercio: That has already been taken up, if your Honor please, and there has been a refusal and there is no need to go into that any more.

Presiding Inspector: That is true. At the same time if Mrs. King would like to have me examine her authorities I will be glad to do it.

Mrs. King: Yes.

(Whereupon a memorandum was passed to the Presiding Inspector and Mr. Del Guercio by Mrs. King.)

Presiding Inspector: I will look at it.

I dislike very much to hold everybody over until Monday morning if we can possibly go ahead, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Gladstein: If we do, your Honor——

Presiding Inspector: I have already told you it is in the interest of everyone that this case should be progressed as rapidly as possible. I do not want to force it to such an extent that it would really mean delay, and such things are sometimes possible.

Mr. Gladstein: I understand that, but, as Mr. Grossman stated today, we are not in a position to start with our [2593] defense until the first of next week.

Presiding Inspector: So far as the new specification in the Warrant is concerned, you did have some notice of that because in Judge Goodwin's opening he said:

"We will show that the Alien"—giving his name—"shortly after he first entered this country in 1920 became a member of the Industrial Workers of the World, an organization which believed in, advised, advocated, and taught the unlawful damage, injury and destruction of property and sabotage."

Of course, it wasn't within the pleadings, if we call a warrant a pleading.

Mr. Grossman: I cannot state how much work must be done, but quite obviously this gives some legal basis for the necessity of our examining the law on it and the facts on it. Frankly, we did not feel that the IWW came within the specifications of the Warrant. We certainly were not required to prepare for a possible amendment to the Warrant. We had enough to do without doing that. Frankly, if we had some spare time we might have.

As I stated before, we may or may not put on witnesses. At least, it opens a new field which we must investigate by reason of this. Every new field means that much more work that must be done before the case is completed.

I think, however, the primary reasons for the delay are the reasons I have given. Let us take them up very prac- [2594] tically.

Let us assume that we could get in touch at best, and you recognize that is not possible, at best we could get in touch the first thing in the morning, because the times are against us in the eastern cities, with some representative of ours. Let us assume that they were at best able to get in touch, the first thing in the morning, with witnesses. Let us assume somehow or other those witnesses could leave their jobs on about twelve hours notice. Let us suppose the first thing Wednesday morning, maybe Thursday morning, those witnesses got on the train. Let us assume for the most part that these places are almost 24 hours, on the average at least away. Seattle is 26 hours away by travel. They couldn't get here before Friday Morning. Certainly, if we are going to put on a full day of witnesses, or even a half day, we are going to have to have a certain number of hours to talk to these witnesses, no matter how well prepared by others. Even if this worked out perfectly that is the earliest we could get anybody here. We cannot wire the people to leave their jobs without giving them some notice.

As a practical matter, I do not see how we could proceed before Monday. We have cut this down to a minimum, considering the transportation difficulties.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Grossman, this frankly comes to me as somewhat of a surprise. I thought you might ask for a [2595] day's adjournment, but I had no idea that you would ask for five days, three days of court hearing time, and Saturday and Sunday beyond.

Mr. Gladstein: May I say that we are asking for three court days. It happens that there is a week end, but we are asking for only three court days. I think that it is not unfair of us to ask, in a hearing where the Government has occupied three full weeks and part of the fourth week, for us to ask for three days' recess in a hearing which will last all together somewhere around seven or eight weeks, or in that neighborhood. I do not think three days' time is unfair.

In the last hearing we were given, I think, three days, that is my recollection, before we put on our defense; that is, three trial days.

I submit, your Honor, that is a fair request particularly in view of the difficulties that have been expressed heretofore by Mr. Grossman.

You must remember too, Judge, that we have had to meet these things as they came along. We haven't been accorded privileges which we felt we had a legal right to, but which the Government felt they had a right to deny us, and the denial to us of the privileges that we have requested from time to time of knowing in advance who the witnesses were, has made it simply impossible for us to prepare in advance to put on a defense the minute the Government closed its case. [2596]

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I want to state on behalf of the Government, that we are opposed to the granting of any recess. I haven't heard a single thing here today that would justify the granting of the recess. There are three of counsel, and they have had ample opportunity to meet everything that the Government has presented. They were given notice in our opening statement of everything that we intended to prove, and we have kept pretty closely to that opening statement.

In addition, the Court must remember that they knew long in advance of the beginning of this trial what was coming. It was publicly known that the Bridges case was going to be reopened. The Warrant of Arrest was issued some time in February and was served some time in that month. So that the defense had ample opportunity, even after the service of the warrant, to prepare to meet anything the Government may have had.

In addition to that, they had one full week after the case began within which to further prepare.

For those reasons, and there are many others I won't take time to state, I oppose the granting of the recess.

Presiding Inspector: Can you give me assurance, any reasonable assurance, in case this request is granted, that there will be no further requests for adjournments and that we will be able to proceed right along?

Mr. Gladstein: I think we can, your Honor. We will [2597] certainly exert every possible effort not to request any further recesses.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, something might occur, such as illness, or something of that nature, but as far as you can foresee can you assure—as far as you can reasonably foresee—can you assure me there will be no further requests for adjournments?

Mr. Gladstein: I will say to your Honor, as counsel of the Court, that when we start on Monday of next week to put on our defense we will continue through five trial days each week until we are through.

Presiding Inspector: And you feel, Mr. Del Guercio, that Major Schofield can be here? You suggested you wanted him as a witness. Do you feel that he can be here by Monday?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, I think so.

Presiding Inspector: I will grant the motion and we will recess until Monday morning of next week.

(Whereupon, at 4:15 P. M. an adjournment was taken to Monday, May 5, 1941, at 10:00 A. M.) [2598]

Court Room 276,
Federal Building,
San Francisco, California,
May 5, 1941.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10:00 A. M.

[2599]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mr. Del Guercio, I understand that you have rested except for two matters that you have reserved.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is correct, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: And that you will cover those two matters as soon as the witnesses arrive.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: With that understanding then you will proceed, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the court please, there is another matter that I would like to take up at this time. I note, in going over the transcript of Volume 15, that there appears what we believe to be a misspelling of one particular name at the time that the witness, Mrs. Segerstrom, was on the stand. The transcript of the record shows, particularly on page 2405, and again on page 2412, and again on page 2440, the name "Mayes" spelled "M-a-y-e-s." We believe that the witness testified and her notes show that the spelling of that name should be "M-a-a-s."

I talked to the reporter here this morning and he is of the opinion that he heard it as "M-a-y-e-s." I have a distinct recollection that it was "M-a-a-s," and there are others who have that recollection. If there is no objection I move that the record be corrected to show the proper spelling "M-a-a-s," [2600] instead of "M-á-y-e-s."

Presiding Inspector: What is the significance?

Mr. Grossman: It may be of some significance. I won't say that we want to agree to it. We want to examine the record first and we will state our position as soon as we can.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. That will be all right. Bring it up tomorrow morning.

Mr. Grossman: Although it is out of order, because we wish to make some legal arguments, as a matter of convenience, we will put Chief Dullea on the stand first.

Will you take the stand, Chief?

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

CHARLES W. DULLEA

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is your name and official position.

A. Charles W. Dullea, Chief of Police of San Francisco.

Q. And you are appearing here, are you not, in response to a subpoena directing you to bring with you certain records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And will you please state what the subpoena asked you to bring to this Court? [2601]

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

A. The subpoena directs me to report a record of arrest or conviction of Sam Diner in the files of the Police Department, in the Police Department of the City of San Francisco. "You are being subpoenaed at the request of the counsel for Harry Bridges, Attorneys Richard Gladstein, Aubrey Grossman, Carol King".

Q. In response to that subpoena did you examine the records of your Police Department?

A. I did.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, at this time I move—apparently now counsel has brought out that he has subpoenaed certain arrest reports of the witness Sam Diner. Now it is apparent that that is a collateral attack or they are attempting to attack the witness Sam Diner on a collateral matter, and your Honor has ruled repeatedly that that would not be permitted.

Presiding Inspector: No. I think this is direct impeachment.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't think so.

Presiding Inspector: To show conviction. They always can show conviction.

Mr. Del Guercio: They can show——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I never heard of showing arrest before, but it has been introduced by both sides [2602] here without objection. I think I will take this testimony. This is direct impeachment, not a collateral matter. I will take it. It goes to his credibility. Go ahead.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Mr. Grossman: I don't recall whether my last question has been answered. To save time I will repeat it.

Q. Did you find in the records of your department any arrests or convictions of Sam Diner?

A. I did.

Q. And do you have that record with you or copy of that record?

A. Yes, sir; the original record.

Q. May I see it, please?

A. Yes, sir. (Producing records)

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if the Court please, I repeat my objection. Counsel has also included arrests, not only convictions.

Presiding Inspector: You put them in repeatedly. "Have you ever been arrested?" And no objection was taken to that. I will rule that in this proceeding they must show as direct impeachment arrests as well as convictions, although the effect that there will be given to such evidence will, of course, remain for me and for those who afterwards review the testimony. In the State where I come from arrests are not competent.

Mr. Grossman: Would you like to examine this?

[2603]

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't think they are competent in this proceeding.

Presiding Inspector: I know, but they have been shown right along without objection. Arrest, of course, is nothing but a charge.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Mr. Grossman: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: And the charge—anyone can make a charge. So that will be taken into consideration. But I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I have here what appears to be a report of a San Francisco Police Department.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, I don't suppose that this witness here knows who made these entries in the docket here.

Presiding Inspector: I understood this was an official record of the department in your charge?

The Witness: It is, and I have the man with me who made the entries.

Mr. Del Guercio: At best it will be hearsay.

Presiding Inspector: We take hearsay in this proceeding.

You have offered a good deal of it. I will take it, Mr. Grossman.

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Q. Now, Chief, do you have any other records respecting——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) What are you going [2604] to do? Offer this in evidence?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. You want to further identify it?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Chief, do you have any further records besides this with respect to any arrest or conviction of a man named Sam Diner or Solomon Diner?

A. Well, I have some duplicate reports. I was unable to get all of the originals on account of the removal of our records from the Hall of Justice to the Richmond Station, and the records are being looked up now and they may arrive any moment. However, I have one original arrest report and three copies that were kept in the individual offices that participated in the arrests.

Q. Then you have some fuller or more information than appears on this document you have handed me?

A. These reports substantiate those arrest records.

Q. May I see those, please?

A. Yes, sir. (Producing records).

Q. As I understand it, the reports you are now handing me are the original documents from which the first document [2605] you handed me was made?

A. They are duplicate copies, carbon copies.

Mr. Grossman: I see.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I understood that this is offered for the purpose of impeachment.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: The witness Sam Diner never testified that he wasn't charged with any felony.

Presiding Inspector: It isn't that kind of impeachment. It is a direct impeachment of his character. That is some evidence that he has been guilty of wrongful acts.

Mr. Del Guercio: To have been charged with a crime?

Presiding Inspector: No, I don't think so. If you hadn't already frequently asked witnesses "Have you ever been arrested?" I wouldn't allow the arrest. It is only the conviction which seems to me pertinent. But in view of the way that the hearing has been conducted I am going to take it into the record. It doesn't mean that it will have any effect or that it won't have any effect. That I am going to consider later, but I will take it into the record.

I don't know whether I talk too fast. I will take it into the record for what it is worth. These are all arrests and not convictions. [2606]

Mr. Grossman: Pardon?

Presiding Inspector: These are arrests and not convictions.

Mr. Grossman: If is possible for us to prove convictions, I suppose, by the records of the Police Department. In many cases they may not show convictions even if they occur. We will probably have to follow these further in the courts to prove convictions proper.

Presiding Inspector: You understand the Examiner has said——.

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) I understand—in some of these cases we may follow them to see if we can get court records.

Presiding Inspector: As far as the arrests are concerned as being contradictory statements, or statements of anything of that kind, I should think that was very doubtful. The only purpose of this is to affect the character of the witness.

Mr. Grossman: I recognize, your Honor, at this time you are not ruling.

Presiding Inspector: No, sir.

Mr. Grossman: We do offer them at this time for two reasons: One is, that you stated in so far as they do, if they do, reflect the character of the witness; second, we offer them as contradictory to the record.

Presiding Inspector: I will reject them on that ground. I don't say they haven't some relevance. I say the relevance is [2607] so remote it would be of little, if any importance. But as they are going to be received I will reserve that too.

You understand, Mr. Del Guercio—all counsel understand—that in this kind of an investigation we are not bound by the rules of common law evidence, although well established rules of relevance and pertinence should be given weight, and I intend to give them weight. But I am not absolutely bound by this rule that there can be no contradiction on collateral points. In general, I think it should be included. I have already stated that in the record. I said there might be exceptional cases. Now, I take this primarily here as reflecting on the credibility as to direct impeachment. Whether it really has that result or not will be something that I will later consider.

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor's statements are correct, and we agree with them. We say we are bound by the rules of reason. We do not want to see this hearing turned into a smear hearing.

Presiding Inspector: You are quite right about that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the Court should oppose any smearing tactics on the part of counsel.

Presiding Inspector: I am going to endeavor to keep this hearing within reasonable limits. But in view of the way the trial has been conducted up to this time I will take this evidence. [2608]

Mr. Grossman: We intend to, and we will file with your Honor, a memorandum of law showing on the second point that I raised this is not collateral evidence. I recognize the rule that on collateral matters a witness cannot be impeached. We intend to submit a statement on that.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Chief, I notice on the first document that you handed to me, which is a summary of your records, apparently, there are certain descriptions of the man who is described as Sam Diner—Solomon Diner. Can you tell me how those descriptions were prepared and from what source they were obtained?

A. They were prepared at the time of the arrest of Sam Diner.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the form of the question. The Chief has stated that he doesn't know how these were prepared; that he didn't prepare them. The question should be how they are generally prepared, if at all.

Presiding Inspector: I understand that is the question.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. You are reasoning, I suppose, from the general practice in the department, are you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the general practice in the department with respect to preparing such information on such reports?

A. The person arrested is fingerprinted. The classifi- [2609] cation appears on this record card, and his general physical description is taken by the officer who is engaged in that particular duty at that time while viewing the subject.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Q. Now, Chief, would you be very much embarrassed in your work if I introduced these reports in evidence and saw to it that you got them back after we made a photostatic copy within a day or two?

Mr. Del Guercio: I think that is an improper question.

Presiding Inspector: They are public records. Can't they be read into the record?

Mr. Grossman: It will take a good deal of time. If it is agreeable to you, Chief, and you don't mind letting us have them—we do not mind meeting the cost—we would like to have them photostated and then hand them back.

I think we should have them photostated. There is no reason to keep the original documents in the record.

Presiding Inspector: They may be treated as other documents are.

The Witness: The only record I am particularly anxious to withdraw is this record (indicating) which belongs to the Identification Bureau.

Mr. Grossman: You will have the assurance of the Court that you will get them back.

Presiding Inspector: They will not go out of the hands of the reporter. [2610]

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. The arrest reports that you have handed me, which are four in number, were they prepared also—I hand them back to you—in the regular course of business of your police department and in the regular way? A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Q. And they are regular records of your police department? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Grossman: I now offer in evidence these five documents.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to them being introduced on the ground that they are immaterial, irrelevant and do not contradict anything already in the record.

Presiding Inspector: I will overrule the objection and receive the documents with the understanding which I have already stated.

Mr. Grossman: There are five documents—I will make that correction—and they are to be given, I assume, the exhibit numbers next in order, and they are to be withdrawn and photostatic copies substituted, with the reporter to return them to Chief Dullea.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object on the further ground they are copies and not the originals.

Presiding Inspector: I will take them. [2611]

(The documents referred to were received in evidence and marked Alien's Exhibits 7 to 11, inclusive.)

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

I would like to call your Honor's attention to certain portions of these reports which appear to be relevant, if any portions of these reports are.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Reading from the Summary Report, 9-8-14, being the date, "Sam Diner, #4613, arrested, Oakland"—

I am going to have to ask the Chief to read this because some of the abbreviations may not be clear to me.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Will you, reading from the document, read everything dealing with any 1914 arrests of Sam Diner?

A. His record — "9-8-14, as Solomon Diner, #4613"—that would be his gallery number—"arrested, Oakland O.M.F.P."—obtaining money under false pretenses.

It says, "11-16-14"—several days later—"released on his O.R."

And then "4.6.1915. Discharged"——

Presiding Inspector: That means "own recognizance"?

The Witness: Yes, sir; own recognizance.

"4.6.1915. Discharged by Judge Samuels." He is a Judge in Oakland, California.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Is that the last entry with respect to that arrest? [2612] A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Grossman: I can read the additional that I want to call your Honor's attention to.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

The substance of this report is as follows:

"February 2, 1932. This date booked Samuel Diner enroute to Sonoma County on warrant charging violation of Section 701 of the Penal Code.

"Sheriff of Sonoma County notified by wire.

"Description: White, 43 years, 5 ft. 7 inches, 145 lbs., blonde streaked with grey, slightly bald, blue eyes."

Presiding Inspector: Do you know what that section of the code provided?

The Witness: I don't remember.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you remember, Chief?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Or what it was in 1932? A. No.

Mr. Grossman: I don't know, but I can find out and bring it to your attention after checking.

No more questions. [2613]

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Chief, you testified, I believe, that the person to whom these records refer was fingerprinted? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, was he fingerprinted on all occasions of his arrest? A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. Whether they were for misdemeanors or felonies?

A. That is right. To establish the identity they are fingerprinted.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Q. Do you know if that was done in the case of this person represented by these records?

A. Well, as a general practice it is.

Q. I mean, do you know if every time Solomon Diner or Sam Diner was fingerprinted do the records so show?

A. Of my own knowledge I don't know.

Q. And do the records show?

A. Inspector O'Neil in charge of the Identification Bureau is here. He could answer that.

Q. I mean in looking at the records?

A. No. The records do not reflect that at all.

Q. The records do not show? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know who the Sam Diner is who is represented [2614] by these records?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is he?

A. He was a man who was arrested by our department.

Q. I mean, do you know him personally?

A. I have seen him; yes, sir. I have had him in the "show-up". I had him down in the Hall of Justice.

Q. Do your records show as to whether or not Sam Diner was convicted of a felony?

A. He was never convicted of a felony.

Q. He what?

A. He was never convicted of a felony.

Q. Was he ever charged with a felony?

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Do the records show that he was arrested for a felony?

A. Well, he was charged with a conspiracy, but it was a conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor.

Q. A conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor. So that, so far as your records show, the records that you identified here, Sam Diner was neither convicted of a felony nor charged with any felony?

A. I don't think so, no. May I consult that record once more?

Mr. Grossman: The reporter has it. Just a moment. I will give it to you. [2615]

The reporter has it.

The Witness: I am quite sure that he was never charged with or convicted of a felony, though.

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, in view of the testimony of this witness I move to strike out all the testimony.

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand.

Mr. Grossman: I would like to state this: The Chief obviously is testifying as best he can, but I don't think he knows off-hand whether Section 701 is a felony or not, or whether obtaining money under false pretenses was or it might have been. I mean, the Chief is doing the best he can, but it is a legal question.

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you know the difference between being charged with a crime and being accused of a crime?

A. Yes. I think I do.

Q. What is the difference between being accused of a crime and being charged with a crime?

A. I think if a man is charged with a crime he is arrested. Many people are accused but not charged.

Q. Would you say that when a person is picked up or arrested that he is charged with any crime?

A. I would say so, yes.

Q. By whom is he charged? [2616]

A. By either the arresting officer or the complaining witness.

Q. When would the arresting officer charge a man with a crime?

A. When an offense is committed in his presence.

Q. Do you know if any of the offenses that are listed on this book were committed in the presence of the arresting officers?

A. I would say so, yes.

Q. Is there anything on the record to indicate that?

A. On the arrest for violation of the Anti-picketing Law. That was an arrest made in the presence of the officer.

Q. I refer you particularly to the arrest of this 2/2/32. I believe your report shows that he was arrested enroute to Sonoma County, California "on warrant– threats against life" and delivered to the Sheriff Flohr, Oakland, 4613. Would you say that that offense was committed within the—— A. (Interposing) Oh, no.

Q. What? A. No, sir.

Q. Then you don't know whether he was charged then with that offense, do you?

A. I communicated with the Santa Rosa authorities this morning and they have no record of a conviction up there.

Q. Who charges a person with an offense?

[2617]

A. Well, the complaining witness; the person that he has offended.

Q. And to whom does he make that complaint? To the Police? A. To the Court.

Q. Not to the Police, though?

A. Originally, yes, sir.

Q. Well, if a man makes a complaint to the Police is a man formally charged with a crime?

A. It depends on the character of the crime.

Q. What? Well, have the Police the authority to charge anyone with a crime not committed in their presence?

A. Upon reasonable grounds, yes, they have according to the Code upon a charge made.

Q. What?

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

A. Upon a charge made and there is reasonable cause to believe a crime has been committed, a felony committed, they can arrest him and charge him.

Q. Isn't it a fact that under the California law a Magistrate can only commit under certain circumstances in the Superior Court?

A. That is the only one who can. Either a Grand Jury can indict or the Magistrate can commit, make a holding.

Q. Then the Police can't make a charge and prosecute one? [2618]

A. Maybe we don't understand each other's meaning. I have arrested persons and charged them with felonies and signed the complaints and there has been a holding.

Q. Is a person ever tried on a charge made by the Police? A. Solely?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, not unless they were the offended person.

Presiding Inspector: Well now, isn't the rule different with respect to felonies than with respect to misdemeanors?

The Witness: Oh, yes; quite.

Presiding Inspector: A felony has to be prosecuted under an indictment by the Grand Jury. Do you have information by the District Attorney?

The Witness: Information after a holding. We charge here on the complaint.

(Testimony of Charles W. Dullea.)

Presiding Inspector: But for misdemeanors?

The Witness: On a complaint.

Presiding Inspector: On a complaint?

The Witness: Yes, sir. Filed in the office of the Bond and Warrant Clerk, and that is the vehicle that takes him into the Police Court.

Presiding Inspector: I thought it was substantially that.

The Witness: Yes, sir. [2619]

Presiding Inspector: I think that the law can be clarified by reference to the same.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Q. Do your records show whether this Sam Diner was ever so accused of crime, that is, either by information or by indictment?

A. No. I don't think he ever went into the Superior Court. That is my recollection without refreshing my recollection from the record.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: That is all, Chief.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Call your next witness.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, as Mr. Grossman said earlier, we called this witness out of order for his convenience and so as not to delay him in the Court room this morning. However, we should like to be heard with reference to some of the legal points in this case before we call the next witness.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mrs. King: I should like at this time to make a motion to dismiss this proceeding upon the ground that it is now apparent from the evidence introduced by the Government in this case that Harry Bridges is being subjected to double [2620] jeopardy in this case and, further, that the matters are res judicata.

This was, we thought, fairly evident when the case opened. It has become far more evident from the Government's evidence in the case.

Presiding Inspector: Well now, there is no necessity for arguing that because I will deny the motion, which I suppose in technical form should be a motion that I, as the Examining or Presiding Inspector, report to the Attorney General my advice that the hearing be discontinued and the Warrant quashed. I suppose that is the real form of it.

Mrs. King: Yes, I suppose it would be.

Presiding Inspector: Well, without regard to the form I hold, first, that I have no power to quash this Warrant and that it would be improper for me to pass upon this matter even so far as advice is concerned without hearing all of the evidence. So I am going to deny your motion.

Mrs. King: In connection with this motion I should, however, like to read into the record at least portions—I should prefer to read all, but I am going to be reasonable in the matter—I should like at least to read portions of the Landis Report which will call to the attention of, if not your Honor, the reviewing authorities in this case the fact that the time covered by the present charge—I mean, the evidence in support of the [2621] present charge against Mr. Bridges is identical with the time covered by the hearing in the last case. In other words——

Presiding Inspector: Well, I——

Mrs. King: (Continuing) To put it simply——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Yes.

Mrs. King: (Continuing) ——there has been a great deal of talk about a new statute under which the Attorney General has brought this proceeding. Under that new statute, if it is held constitutional, it is possible to deport an Alien for past membership in certain proscribed organizations.

At the time of the last hearing——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, I are going to interrupt here because I don't believe this should go into the record. It is not the proper place for it.

Presiding Inspector: She can make any motion that she sees fit. Counsel have a right to make motions and put them on the record.

Mrs. King: At the time of the last hearing it was possible in view of the decision in the Strecker case, only to deport an Alien for present membership in a proscribed organization. Curiously enough, in this proceeding the present membership charge covered by the Landis Report is identical in point of time with the past membership charge contended in the present case. In other words, you have Mean Landis and the then Department of Labor, which was in charge of the case, [2622] considering whether Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party between approximately 1934 and the early part of 1938, and the evidence which is summarized in Dean Landis' Report makes it plain that that is the period under consideration.

The witnesses in the present proceeding have testified to incidents and events of approximately the same time; that is, from approximately the water-front strike of 1934 to the early part of 1938.

Now, it is true that there was some evidence introduced with reference to 1932 to 1934. That is also true in Dean Landis' Report, and he so mentions it.

It seems to me, furthermore, that he is not only considering the same point of time, but especially in view of the so-called "admissions" which were read into the record on the last day of the Government's case that you are covering precisely the same set of facts. It is not only the same charge but the same evidence on the same charge.

Now, it seems to me that for the preservation of the record we are entitled to show in these proceedings, which the Government contends is a new and different proceeding from the last one, what was then held so that if our claim of res judicata and of double jeopardy is a sound claim that we are entitled to have appear in the record the holding of the last hearing with reference to matters that are at issue in this [2623] hearing, so that the reviewing authorities may know just what disposition was made then and what is presented at this time.

Now, I should like particularly to——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well, you don't have to——

Mrs. King: (Continuing) ——to call to your attention——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You wouldn't have to have this in the evidence, would you?

Mrs. King: I don't see how they would have it before them otherwise.

Presiding Inspector: Isn't this a public record, this report?

Mrs. King: But it seems not to be a part of this record. We have to make it a part of this record. The transcript is as much a public record, I should think, because in the ordinary case—of course, it was different in the Bridges case—the decision is not a public record and, in fact, even the attorneys generally speaking, can't obtain decisions in deportation matters. This is the only case I know of where the attorney in the case was permitted to obtain a copy of the decision. And I don't know whether it is a public record or it isn't, but it certainly isn't a part of this record and I should like to make it a part of this record.

Presiding Inspector: Well, under the rules at present the decision of the Presiding Examiner or Inspector has to be [2624] delivered to the Alien.

Mrs. King: Yes, that was not then true.

Presiding Inspector: It was not then true?

Mrs. King: And, as a matter of fact, we never did receive this decision. We went out and bought it. We never received any notice from the day the hearing closed in San Francisco until we saw in the newspapers what the decision was.

Presiding Inspector: This is purely a technical matter and the motion is in essence made to others than to the present Presiding Magistrate, Presiding Inspector. I think you ought to be entitled to have enough in the record so as to make your claim elsewhere. Of course, as to my own decision, my advice would be against your contention.

Mrs. King: Well, thank you, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I think further that I will say in explanation that I think you confuse evidentiary findings with conclusory findings and, as I read the report, the only conclusion, which is a judgment or in the nature of a judgment at all, would be that final sentence, after the word "conclusion."

Mrs. King: It seems to me that when you are dealing with res judicata you do deal not only with conclusory findings, as you so well denominate them, but also with evidentiary findings because, after all, the Presiding Inspector——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Not usually.

Mrs. King: I should like particularly to——

[2625]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) But I still agree with you: that you ought to have the record in shape so at the proper time and place to present this question.

Mrs. King: Thank you, your Honor.

I am reading now from page 102 of the Findings and Conclusions of the Trial Examiner in the matter of Harry R. Bridges under the heading "The Maritime Workers' Industrial Union."

"A brief reference to some of the events of this strike is necessary. The International Seamen's Union in 1934 was neither very active nor very militant. A number of the unlicensed seagoing personnel were then members of the Maritime Workers' Industrial Union. This union was organized along industrial lines, had been chartered by the Trade Union Unity League, and was unquestionably considerably more left wing than the normal trade-union."

Where it is stated "A number of the unlicensed seagoing personnel were then members of the Maritime Workers' Industrial Union," this is apparently an error for Marine Workers' Industrial Union, which correctly appears at other points in the report.

"Its policy and its program undoubtedly attracted into its fold many maritime workers who were either members of the Communist Party or were sympathetically inclined with its aims. Its constitution spoke in more radical and revolution- [2626] ary terms of the necessity of remedying the plight of the worker and of the impossibility of doing so other than by resort to at least economic force."

Then there is a footnote 53, which reads as follows:

"The constitution of the M.W.I.U., for example, contains phraseology of this character: 'Victory in this struggle (the revolutionary struggle of the whole working class against the capitalist system) can be won only by the most relentless, militant, and revolutionary struggle for the whole working class. * * * It (the M.W.I.U.) rejects and condemns the treacherous class-collaboration policy of the A. F. of L.

which seeks to delude the workers into believing that it is possible for them to live 'in peace' with the capitalists. * * *' "

Back on the text:

"It dwelt upon the class struggle and the iniquities of the bosses in sharper and more bitter terms than the manner in which those subjects are today touched upon in the constitution of the American Federation of Labor."

Footnote 54, which reads as follows:

"Compare the following from the preamble of the constitution of the American Federation of Labor: 'Whereas the struggle is going on in all the nations of the civilized world between the oppressors and the oppressed of all countries, a struggle between the capitalist and the laborer, which grows in intensity [2627] from year to year and will work disastrous results to the toiling millions if they are not combined for mutual protection and benefit;

" 'It, therefore, behooves the representatives of the trade and labor unions of America in convention assembled, to adopt such measures and disseminate such principles among the mechanics and laborers of our country as will permanently unite them to secure the recognition of rights to which they are justly entitled.' "

Back on the text:

"It undoubtedly had a number of Communist in important official positions. In the minds of many people the M.W.I.U. was a Communist or Communist-controlled union, despite the fact that a contrary conclusion was reached on January 3, 1934, by the Solicitor to the Department of Labor and confirmed by the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization."

Footnote 55, reading:

"See U. S. ex rel. Boric v. Marshall, 290 U. S. 709."

Back on the text:

"It would be impossible on this record to determine the communistic or noncommunistic character of the M.W.I.U.; nor is it necessary to do so.

"On May 9, 1934, the longshoremen went on strike. The M.W.I.U then had a large number of men in the seafaring group——

There seems to be a typographical error.

Presiding Inspector: "Larger," probably.

[2628]

Mrs. King: But it says "large number of men in the seafaring group than the International Seamen's Union. The M.W.I.U. went out on strike on May 10, 1934, in sympathy with the longshoremen. Bridges claimed that it was largely the pressure of the M.W.I.U. that forced the seamen's union officially to join the strike on May 15. Bridges relationships with the M.W.I.U. were always friendly. Claiming that the International Seamen's Union neither welcomed members nor was an effective union until after the 1934 strike, Bridges admitted that he had frequently urged seamen, who were seeking some organizational nucleus, to join the M.W.I.U. possibly before the strike and certainly during the period between May 10 and 15. Here the testimony of Detrich and Bridges was contradictory. To Detrich the M.

W.I.U. was a Communist union and Detrich claimed that Bridges had urged him to join it."

Footnote 56:

"Detrich testified that he 'believed' Bridges was a member of the M.W.I.U. No effort was made to probe the basis of that belief. It probably stemmed from the activities noted above in which Bridges indulged."

Back on the text:

"Bridges admitted freely that he had urged seamen for the reasons stated to join the M.W.I.U., but had not urged the longshoremen to do so, . . . "

Footnote 57, reads:

"Detrich was a working longshoreman." [2629]

Back on the text:

" . . . that he had welcomed the help of the M.W.I.U. and had worked with them, but that since the longshoremen had an effective union to which they could turn, he had not suggested that the longshoremen should join the M.W.I.U.

"Bridges' admittedly friendly attitude toward the M.W.I.U. was demonstrated also by his subsequent actions. Following the termination of the strike the seamen's union still was opposed to the M.W.I.U. It started to pursue a policy whereby it both refused admittance to seamen who had become members of the M. W. I. U. and also discriminated against those of its members who had joined the union. Because of the help given the longshoremen by the M.W.I.U. Bridges protested this policy and claimed to have been instrumental in getting the seamen's union to accept members of the M.W.I.U., provided that they would then dissociate themselves from the M.W.I.U. This, according to Bridges, was responsible for bringing the eventual dissolution of the M.W.I.U."

Then this is a sub-head:

"IV. The International Labor Defense."

Mr. Goodwin: May it please your Honor, I don't want to interrupt unnecessarily, but I do not see the propriety of reading into this record the report of Mr. Landis at another hearing involving different issues under a different statute. [2630] It doesn't seem to be the time or the manner in which this may properly be—when such a point may properly be presented.

Presiding Inspector: Well, her motion, as I understand it, is that at this point on the basis of something like res judicata that I advise the Attorney General to quash or vacate the Warrant. I suppose that is her motion. Now, in order to show that this matter is res judicata she is offering it in evidence to establish that fact. I don't think it establishes it and I have already ruled to that effect, but I do think that she is entitled to have it in some way in the record so that she can argue this matter in——

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) Is reading from this document putting it into the record?

Presiding Inspector: Pardon?

Mr. Goodwin: Is reading from this document putting it in the record?

Presiding Inspector: I understood she offered this as a part of the evidence.

Mrs. King: That is correct.

Mr. Goodwin: I think that—I do not think that that is the way to prove it.

Presiding Inspector: Probably not, if objection is made.

Mr. Goodwin: Well, I should make the objection I do not think that—we would have the question then, if it is offered in evidence, then we may have an opportunity to have your Honor rule on that question, and I am suggesting this, [2631] your Honor: Is she—I would ask counsel, Has she any authority to present to the Court that the conclusions of an administrative officer appointed to pass on the question of present membership or other membership can come within the rule of res judicata? Res judicata is the solemn pronouncement of a Court, not the conclusions of an administrative officer, and unless she has some authority suggesting that the conclusions of an administrative officer in an informal hearing at this time have the binding force of a judgment the whole matter is in—it proves that it is entirely immaterial.

Mrs. King: May I——

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) I think that is a preliminary question.

Mrs. King: Judge Goodwin, when this case opened I submitted to his Honor Judge Sears, and I believe I served upon Mr. Del Guercio a memorandum dealing with this specific question, and in that memorandum I cited the following cases dealing with the fact that the decision of an administrative officer could be considered as res judicata. The case of Re. Borich——

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) Pardon me. May I have it? May I look at the document? What is it?

Mrs. King: It is my only copy in Court this morning.

Mr. Goodwin: I don't want it. I just wanted to know what [2632] the question of res judicata is.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you offer the report?

Mr. Goodwin: I do not know.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you offer the report in evidence?

Mrs. King: I would be glad to offer the full report in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that upon the ground that it is immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: Offer it in evidence on the point of res judicata simply, not as proof of any fact therein contained. Is that the offer?

Mrs. King: I offer the whole thing on two grounds:

1. Res judicata, and

2. On the ground of double jeopardy, the charge at this time being the same as the earlier charge.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive the document, but I will hold in due season that there is no double jeopardy and that there is no judgment except that —there is no binding findings—I won't say "judgment"—on any point except possibly membership in an organization which favors the overthrow of the Government by force at the time that the earlier Warrant was issued, and even on that point I am also going to hold that the doctrine of res judicata does not apply so far as my advice may be considered—may be concerned.

I will receive it. [2633]

Mr. Del Guercio: May the Court please, on both the grounds and first of all——

Presiding Inspector: I have ruled in your favor.

Mr. Del Guercio: I want to get in the record, and have counsel understand it, that in the first place Judge Landis had no authority, either under the law or under the rules to render either an opinion or a decision; that the decision in cases of this kind is made, and was made at that time, by the Board of Review and by the Secretary of Labor; and that the decision in this case will likewise be made either by the Board of Immigration Appeals and by the Attorney General. So that the grounds upon which counsel offers this, of course, falls of its own weight.

Presiding Inspector: Perhaps she will continue by offering the affirmatory decision of the proper official.

As I understand it, and you will correct me if I am wrong, there was no review of Dean Landis' recommendation?

Mrs. King: That is correct. There was not, as I understand it, a review by the Board of Review. It is my understanding that when these findings of fact and conclusions of law were presented they were presented directly to the Secretary of Labor. I may be mistaken about that, but I know that it is one of the few occasions where there was no opportunity to be heard before the Board of Review. No notice of any such hearing was given to the attorneys for the Alien. [2634]

When Dean Landis' report was filed he sent along with it a letter of transmittal, which is dated December 28, 1939. The decision in this case of the Secretary of Labor was January 6, 1940, and it seems unlikely that there was any determination by an intermediate body between the transmittal of the findings of fact and the conclusions of law and——

Presiding Inspector: I didn't get the date.

Mrs. King: The letter of transmittal is dated December 28, 1939. The decision of the Secretary of Labor was—I was wrong the last time. I said January 6th. I should have said January 8.

On January 8 the Secretary of Labor, Frances Perkins, cancelled the warrant of arrest upon the basis of the findings and conclusions in the Trial Examiner's report.

Mr. Del Guercio: I challenge that statement, if your Honor please. There is nothing to indicate that.

Presiding Inspector: She hasn't got that far.

I will receive the report in evidence, but rule against the conclusions you seek to draw from it. I will receive it so that the whole thing may be before future official bodies having to do with this proceeding.

(The report referred to was received in evidence and marked Alien's Exhibit No. 12.)

Mrs. King: May I call attention specifically to the formal charges in the first deportation proceedings, which [2635-36] are referred to on pages 1 and 2 of the Landis report.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. But I think you ought to refer to the case which we have heard so much about in the Supreme Court of the United States confining decisions in such cases to the time when the warrant was issued.

Mrs. King: That decision is cited in that portion of Dean Landis' opinion, with a brief discussion of its implications.

Presiding Inspector: And then despite that you contend that he decided, which was excluded from the power of decision by the authority of the Supreme Court decision.

Mrs. King: I contend that he decided that in 1938, and immediately prior thereto, Harry Bridges was not a member of the Communist Party; that there has been not a scintilla of evidence introduced in this hearing with reference to the connections of Harry Bridges at a period subsequent to 1938, nor at a period prior to 1932, which was as far back as Dean Landis went. In other words, that the period of time covered by the evidence in this case is, as I have said before, identical with the period of time covered in the Landis Report; and that although he was determining present membership, that the present membership situation in the 1939 proceedings was identical with the past membership situation in the present proceeding. In other words, what is now past was then present.

So that the period of time is identical and [2637] the situation is identical.

All that has happened is that one or two further witnesses have appeared for the same period of time.

I contend that in the memorandum dealing with res judicata, which I have submitted to your Honor, efforts were made in certain cases to reopen, because of new evidence, and the courts held, on habeas corpus, that the matter having been determined that was settled, and that the aliens—in those cases Chinese aliens,—were entitled to the benefit of the rule and could not be properly retried.

I am contending for the proposition that at this time Mr. Bridges cannot properly be retried, or we will have no end to litigation, and that there is really nothing new in this situation, and that the talk of a new statute is a mere smoke screen behind which the Government has introduced evidence, all of which could have been introduced at the prior hearing, and which is now introduced simply in what we consider an effort by the FBI to get Mr. Bridges, and not in a real effort to investigate a situation which was thoroughly and completely investigated in 1939.

If I may, I would like to go on and point out——

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) May I ask a question at this time?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly. The question is directed to Mrs. King?[2638]

Mr. Goodwin: I am directing it to your Honor. Have I interrupted discourteously?

Presiding Inspector: Not at all.

Mr. Goodwin: I am asking if your Honor hasn't ruled that the question is not for you and, if it is not for you, should we not proceed with the hearing?

Presiding Inspector: The question is not for me, but, at the same time, I have received this in evidence so that she may go as far as she can to make this point. She has done that. She is simply emphasizing it, as both counsel have done heretofore, by reading pertinent parts. I think I will let her go on.

Mr. Goodwin: If we are to have arguments they should be more or less formal arguments, but still the question is not for you.

She has already introduced this in evidence.

Presiding Inspector: True, but you will remember that at numerous times documents were received in evidence, for instance, when Mr. Gitlow was testifying, and then counsel read for the convenience, I suppose, of the Presiding Inspector the pertinent parts of it.

Now, in the same way, Mrs. King has introduced a document which has been received for a certain limited purpose. Now she is calling attention by reading certain pertinent parts of it. I think the situation is almost identical and if it is [2639] criticized now it ought to have been criticized before.

Mr. Del Guercio: We have had no opportunity to cross examine the person who has introduced that document. There hasn't been anybody on the witness stand to introduce any document through.

Presiding Inspector: You don't question Dean Landis' report?

Mr. Del Guercio: I question it as far as the effect of such a report is concerned.

Presiding Inspector: I have ruled with you on that, but I am going to let her make her record so she can have it properly reviewed.

Go on.

Mr. Goodwin: Then it is understood that our silence—we do not care to enter into the argument—does not indicate our acquiescence in the validity of anything said?

Presiding Inspector: Absolutely not.

Mr. Goodwin: We don't wish to enter ~~into~~ the argument.

Mrs. King: I want to read the conclusion of this report, which says:

"The evidence therefore establishes neither that Harry R. Bridges is a member of nor affiliated with the Communist Party of the United States of America."

That appears on page 134.

Presiding Inspector: That would seem to be in legal [2640] terms a decision of non-suit. That wouldn't be res judicata even.

Mrs. King: Well, in these immigration cases——

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't say that he is not a member. It says, doesn't it, "is a member"?

Mrs. King: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: That wouldn't even be res judicata.

Mrs. King: It seems to me that that, followed by the cancellation of the warrant of arrest, establishes that, in the opinion of the Department of Labor, there was no case against Harry Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: It establishes at least, without answering your suggestion directly, it establishes at least that the Department of Labor did not care to prosecute the matter further.

Mrs. King: That is correct.

It is my contention that where a situation like that is presented that the Department of Justice has no right to reopen a case of that kind, where the period of time covered by the evidence is identical with the period of time covered by the evidence at the last hearing.

Now, to make that clear I would like to read what the formal charges were against Bridges, which appear on pages 1 and 2:

"On March 2, 1938, a warrant was issued by the assistant [2641] to the Secretary of Labor for the arrest of Harry Renton Bridges, an alien. This warrant recited that it appeared that Bridges was subject to deportation pursuant to the provisions of section 2 of the Act of October 16, 1918, as amended by the act of June 5, 1920, 8 U. S. C. section 137, ordered that Bridges should be taken into custody and that a hearing should be granted him enabling him to show cause why he should not be deported in conformity with law.[1]"

Then there is footnote 1:

"This warrant was served on Bridges in Baltimore on March 5, 1938. Pending further proceedings Bridges was released from custody upon his own recognizance."

Now back on the text:

"See 8 U. S. C. section 155.

"The specific charges made in the warrant against Bridges were four in number:

"(1) That, after he entered the United States, he became a member of an organization that advises, advocates, and[2]"—then there is a footnote reading:

"The warrant reads 'and'; the statute reads 'or.'"

"* * * teaches the overthrow by force and[3]"—

Footnote 3:

"The warrant again reads 'and;' the statute reads 'or.'"

"* * * violence of the Government of the United States;

"(2) That, after he entered the United States, he became affiliated with such an organization;

[2642]

"(3) That, after he entered the United States, he became a member of an organization that causes to be written, circulated, distributed, printed, published, and[4]"——

A similar footnote:

"The warrant again reads 'and;' the statute reads 'or.'"

"* * * displayed printed matter advising, advocating, and[5]"——

A similar footnote again:

"* * * teaching the overthrow by force and[6]"—

With a similar footnote.

"* * * violence of the Government of the United States;

"(4) That, after he entered the United States, he became affiliated with such an organization.

"On June 12, 1939, following the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Kessler v. Strecker, 307 U. S. 22, the warrant was amended[7]"——

Footnote 7:

"The amended warrant was served on Bridges in San Francisco on June 12, 1939."

"The only change made in the specifications of the grounds upon which the warrant was issued was that all four charges in the amended warrant were framed to state that Bridges both was and is a member of or affiliated with the organization described.

"Preliminary to the hearing counsel for Bridges filed a [2643] request for a bill of particulars, asking, among other things, for the name of the organization referred to in the warrant the date when and the place where Bridges was alleged to have become a member, the written documents, if any, tending to prove that membership, and numerous other particulars. The Government opposed the granting of this request save as to the name of the organization referred to in the warrant, which was stated to be the Communist Party of the United States of America. The Government's contentions in this respect were upheld on June 27, 1939, by the examiner in a written opinion which is attached hereto as appendix I."

I am now reading from page 5 of the Landis Report, subdivision 3. "The issues and the nature of the defense."

"A. Alienage of Bridges.

"No question is made as to the alienage of Bridges. A native Australian, he entered the United States in April 12, 1920, at San Francisco. He filed first papers for naturalization in 1921. Application was made for final papers in 1928 but the application was deemed too late upon the ground that the 7-year period for filing had elapsed. He filed first papers again in 1928, but these were again permitted to lapse. He filed first papers for the third time in 1936. His application for naturalization is thus still pending.

"B. Issues in This Deportation Proceeding.

"The deportability of Bridges hinges upon the proof as to whether (1) he is (a) a member of or (b) 'affiliated with' [2644] the Communist Party of the United States of America, and (2) whether, if a member or so affiliated, that party (a) believes in, advises, advocates, or teaches the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States' or (b) 'causes to be written, circulated, distributed, printed, published, or displayed written or printed matter advertising, advocating or teaching the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States.'[16]"

Then footnote 16 reads as follows:

"Misunderstanding of the statutory basis upon which the deportation of the so-called alien radicals rests seems peculiarly rife. Harper L. Knowles, who was respectively a member for some 4 years of the Special Americanism Committee, the Subversive Activities Commission, and the Radical Research Committee, committees created by the California American Legion, as well as being chairman of two of them, though concerned constantly and actively with the deportation of alien radicals, testified that he thought they could be deported upon the mere ground that they were 'undesirable.'"

"Both issues involve findings of fact upon which,"—

Presiding Inspector: Testified in this proceeding?

Mrs. King: Yes; in that proceeding.

"Both issues involve findings of fact upon which, if there is any evidence to sustain the findings, the determination of the Secretary of Labor is by law made final." [2645]

Citing United States ex rel. Vajtauer v. Commissioner of Immigration, 273 U. S. 103, and two other cases, as well as the Code Section 8 U. S. C. Section 155.

"That the finding with reference to the question of Bridges' membership or affiliation with the Communist Party is a finding of fact is obvious. Also it is a question of fact whether the Communist Party of the United States as of a particular time falls within the statutory ban of advising, advocating, or teaching the overthrow by force and violence of the Government of the United States is also a question of fact."

Right after the words "particular time" there is a citation to the Kessler decision and also to another decision.

"That many decisions of a Federal Courts[18]"—at this point there is a footnote reference—"have sustained previous findings of the Department of Labor that the Communist Party of the United States of America is within that ban, though persuasive, especially when based upon essentially similar evidence, is not conclusive of the question at the present time."

Citing the Strecker case and Ungar v. Seaman, 4 F. (2d) 80.

"Not only is there the possibility that the characteristics and objectives of the Communist Party of the United States of America have changed, but it is possible, in the light of changing economic and political conditions, to view the type of radical advocacy indulged in by that party as now so indefinitely related to force and violence as to cast doubt upon its appro- [2646] priate inclusion within the ban of the statute. See Antolish v. Paul, 283 Fed. 957, 959. Constant re-examination of the theses and aims of such radical organizations is thus under the statute the responsibility of the Secretary of Labor.[19]"

There is a footnote which says:

"Thus in 1934 the Department of Labor, despite the fact that its prior conclusion to the effect that membership in the Trade Union Unity League was a ground for deportation, had been upheld by the courts (see cases in note 18), upon the advice of its then Solicitor, Charles E. Wyzanski, Jr., changed its policy and directed that thereafter no warrant for the deportation of any alien should be issued solely upon the ground of such alien's membership in the Trade Union Unity League and other specified left-wing labor organizations. See United States ex rel. Boric v. Marshall, 290 U. S. 709."

Then we come to "C", Nature of the Defense.

"The alien's response to the charges against him was a complete and unequivocal denial. Not only did he deny that he was a member of the Communist Party, but he also denied that he had ever been a member of that party."

Mr. Goodwin: In order to give learned counsel an opportunity to check up whatever she was checking up, may I suggest that this does not come within the rule that your Honor suggested because what Mrs. King is doing, what learned counsel is doing, is not to call your Honor's attention to various excerpts [2647] from the report of Mr. Landis, but to read it. I think that is entirely unnecessary. If there are certain specific things she wants to call to your attention why I should think that would be within your Honor's ruling; but this in evidence now. She may comment on this in her brief or at any time. I do not see how it serves any useful purpose to read it all again.

Presiding Inspector: I question whether it does. Are you going to read the whole report?

Mrs. King: Not the whole report. Perhaps if you will call the morning recess now maybe we can reach some agreement during the recess about how much should be read.

Presiding Inspector: We will take a short recess.

Presiding Inspector: Mrs. King, have you made arrangements.

Mrs. King: (Interposing) I have decided we can cut down some, but if your Honor will hear us we do feel that some parts of this belong in the record. I will from now on incorporate certain things by reference, when possible, rather than read them in full, but I should like——

Presiding Inspector: Of course, Mrs. King, your claim is potentially one of res judicata. You have got the document in. I am not going to be impressed by it because I have already ruled I am merely allowing this for the purpose of giving you a complete record. Understand that?

Mrs. King: Yes. If your Honor feels that this reading [2648] is unnecessary——

Presiding Inspector: I really do think it is unnecessary, Mrs. King.

Mrs. King: I would like then merely to refer specifically, if I may, by pages to various portions, without reading them in.

Presiding Inspector: All right. Do that.

Mrs. King: Now, before this recess I was reading from page 7 under the heading "C. Nature of the Defense," and I read the first paragraph.

I should like to incorporate the second paragraph, which ends at the foot of page 7.

I would like to incorporate all of "III. Meaning of Affiliation," beginning on page 10 and running along through page 11, dealing with the meaning of the affiliation.

And beginning on page 122, arabic 13, headed "Harry R. Bridges," and I would like to incorporate everything after that on page 122, all of page 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, all the way through page 131, which ends that chapter or subdivision of the report.

Also I would like to incorporate Roman numeral V, beginning on page 132, and dealing with "Conclusions on Remaining Matters," through page 134, which is the end of the report as such.

I should also like to state that in reading, obviously, small errors in punctuation were made and I would like to arrange [2649] to have the reporter copy from the original report and compare it.

Presiding Inspector: He doubtless will do that. There will be no trouble about it anyway.

These cases do not go on dotted i's or the absence of dots.

Mrs. King: Now, if your Honor please, I would like to go on with the legal discussion, but on an entirely new matter.

Mr. Del Guercio: If this is a new matter may I interrupt, if your Honor please?

Inasmuch as reference has been made to the Marine Workers Industrial Union, quoted in argument by counsel from the Landis report, I think, in all fairness, that the following matter should go into the record too; and that is the occurrence, or certain statements that were made by counsel in chambers regarding the manner in which the Solicitor, Department of Labor, reached its decision. If I remember correctly it was to the effect that it had been represented to the Solicitor, and to others, by certain persons, that the Marine Workers Industrial Union had disassociated itself, or to use the words of counsel, disaffiliated itself from the Red International of Labor Unions.

There is evidence in this record to the effect that the Marine Workers Industrial Union never did disassociate itself from the Red International of Labor Unions. There is no evidence here to controvert that.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is a subject we are [2650] going to have testimony on. I don't know.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, the attorneys for Mr. Bridges still regard this disassociation as something which was, as we said in chambers, and which I would not have brought up if Mr. Del Guercio had not brought it up, was testified to, or brought up at least by Mr. Honig, in the testimony in the Chatham Shoe Case. We have been unable to secure that testimony. We have located, not a letter to the American Civil Liberties Union, but a letter to another organization, which we are producing when we get it down from the office, or producing at least an excerpt which we have, to the effect that the decision of the Department of Labor was reached at least in part as a result of representations made by Mr. Honig, who, as your Honor knows, was the witness who at this proceeding testified to the fact that there was no such disaffiliation. Whether we can secure, from either the Department of Labor, which was then in charge of Immigration, or from the Department of Justice which is now in charge of Immigration, anything which will substantiate this letter which was written by the Department of Justice, and in which it was clearly stated that their conclusion was reached in part on the representation of Mr. Honig, I don't know. But I do feel, in view of what Mr. Del Guercio said, that we should be permitted to introduce into this record the opinion of Mr. Wyzanski with reference to the TUUL and its subordinate organizations, and the decision of Commissioner [2651] McCormick, because that ties right up with the matter which I intend to bring up in addition, which is the fact that the attorneys for Mr. Bridges contend that he is being denied equal protection of the law in that now since 1934 no one has been ordered deported for membership either in the TUUL or certain groups of subordinate organizations, and in the course of this proceeding, apparently there is a suggestion that there should be a rule of law changes. This is not only true with reference to the TUUL and its subordinate organizations, or the Marine Workers Industrial Union, which has been referred to in this hearing as the MWIU, but it is also true with reference to the Industrial Workers of the World.

That matter was up for consideration by the Department of Labor back in 1920 and it is my understanding that there has never been a deportation for, exclusively for membership in the IWW; and at the same time the Department of Justice at this time is seeking to deport Mr. Bridges for membership in an organization in which thousands of workers have been members, and have been members without being interfered with by the Department of Labor.

And you have the fact that in Fiske v. Kansas, the United States Supreme Court held that as far as the constitution of that organization was concerned there was nothing in it which warranted holding that the organization advocated the overthrow of the Government by force and violence.

[2652]

Now; there have been certain exhibits which were introduced at this hearing, which exhibits, in our opinion, were never properly identified and never properly introduced, but that is a matter for later consideration.

But we do feel that to have Mr. Bridges deported for membership in organizations such as the MWIU, or affiliation with such an organization, where you have testimony of the Government's own witnesses that there were 10,000 members of that organization, and since Wyzanski's opinion in 1934 there has been no effort to deport any single individual, and for an effort to deport him for membership in the IWW, where you have had, I don't know how many thousands of members, and no effort made to deport any of them, it seems as though it is clear that the Government is discriminating against Bridges; that he is not being treated like any other alien, and there is no reason to close our eyes to that fact and to assume because the forms of a deportation proceeding are being observed that the substance is being observed.

In the last proceeding we did ask what organization Mr. Bridges was charged with either having been a member of, or affiliated with, and perhaps wrongly, we assumed that when this deportation proceeding was instituted at least they were the same organizations; and we further assumed, in view of the charge, and in view of the fact that the Government, in handling this case for months and had a great number of people working [2653] on it, that it would not be necessary, in the middle of this hearing, to substitute, or rather to add a new charge. We feel that we are well within our rights in calling to your Honor's attention the fact that Harry Bridges is being denied equal protection of the law; that he is being discriminated against in this proceeding and is being treated differently than other aliens in the United States.

We believe that this is a deliberate policy and one which your Honor should not lend himself to.

Mr. Goodwin: I was waiting for counsel to pause for her breath, but she didn't.

Now, there is one thing that I want to interrupt to call your Honor's attention to.

The question of whether these organizations come within the statute is obviously a question of fact and has been so ruled upon. It has been held that because the courts have held in former cases that an organization came within the classification of the statute was not binding on some other court when the case arose. That is, the Government can't go in and seek and obtain the deportation of someone on the ground that he has been a member of the TUUL purely on that ground without showing that the TUUL is one of those subversive organizations.

In exactly the same way, because they have held in some other case that the evidence before the Court did not justify [2654] the Court in holding that the TUUL was such a subversive organization, does not prevent the Government from showing that now.

So far as discrimination is concerned, you cannot repeal a statute, you cannot nullify a statute, by failing to bring action on account of membership in a subversive organization if it subsequently transpires that it is a subversive organization and that anybody who belongs to it is subject to deportation. Mere failure to find the evidence, to produce the evidence over a term of years does not—what shall I say?—does not give immunity to anybody who belongs to that particular organization if the evidence is finally and properly presented.

We have a situation here where formerly it was only necessary to show that membership in these organizations made the member subject to deportation. Then we had a ruling that the evidence was not sufficient in certain cases for that purpose.

Now, we have that same question. It is no more proper to say that because of that one ruling, or a certain ruling, that the evidence there did not show it, therefore, the court ought to hold that it is not a subversive organization. It would be just as logical for us to go back to the former rulings and say, "Your Honor, in such and such cases it was held that membership in the TUUL, or in the Marine Workers, was sufficient," and ask your Honor to rule on that.

What we are actually asking is that your Honor examine the evidence and determine now whether membership in those [2655] organizations constitutes reason for deportation. That is a question open to you which cannot be precluded by any departmental ruling or any ruling even of a court on other evidence in another case.

That is all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Your motion is that I find and advise the Attorney General that this proceeding is a denial to Mr. Bridges of equal protection of the law?

Mrs. King: Yes

Presiding Inspector: I will deny that motion.

[2656]

Mrs. King: In that connection, although I am sorry to suggest that I should do some more loud reading, I would like to suggest that the opinion of Mr. Wyzanski and the ruling of the Department of Labor with reference to the TUUL, which is not a public record, and which, as far as I know, is not available generally, should be put into this record. And I, therefore,——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Now, let me see. This was an advisory opinion of Counsel Wyzanski to the Commissioner of Immigration and Department of Labor, is that it?

Mrs. King: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: What did he have before him? What appears? Did he have any particular case?

Mrs. King: Yes. I believe, if your Honor please, although I am not sure, that this was rendered in connection with the Borich case but that the Commissioner at the conclusion of this Solicitor's opinion makes a general ruling in which he orders that all cases against Aliens who are members of certain specified organizations, which organizations are not exclusively the organization involved in the Borich case, should be discontinued and as a result of that such membership was from then on until now, as far as I know, and I am reasonably sure that I am speaking accurately, there [2657] has been no effort to deport for membership in any of these organizations, all of which—no, not "all of which", but many of which including the M.W.I.U., the Marine Workers' Industrial Union, went out of existence in 1935. There were some of the organizations referred to in Commissioner McCormick's ruling.——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): I will allow you to have the Exhibit marked for identification, that is, the Wyzanski opinion and the opinion or direction or departmental ruling of Commissioner McCormick so that there may be no question of what you refer to.

Mr. Del Guercio: I haven't seen it.

Presiding Inspector: They are going to present it. But I am going to rule then that they are incompetent and immaterial in this proceeding and, assuming all the facts which you have stated to be true, I will deny your motion that there has been legal infringement of the provision of the Constitution in respect to guaranteeing to all equal protection of the laws.

Now, that will cover it very broadly so that you will have the opportunity to raise the question elsewhere if you deem it proper.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, I am in this position: That the only copy of the Wyzanski opinion and Commissioner McCormick's ruling as a result of that opinion I have informally [2658] annexed to a brief, and I am wondering for that reason whether I can at least read Commissioner McCormick's ruling and later to-day, perhaps, furnish the Wyzanski opinion or perhaps read that, too, into the record.

I do not have, in other words, a copy which I can easily furnish to the reporter for identification.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I don't believe that that would be proper. We have no way of knowing whether that is correct or not, but I believe that a reference to it is sufficient for this purpose, that it is a departmental matter.

Presiding Inspector: I rather think a reference to it is sufficient. Can't you have yours marked for identification?

Mrs. King: With reference to the problem of a reference to it being sufficient, your Honor, it is my understanding that these opinions and rulings are not readily available. Now, I don't even know if it came over from the Department of Labor to the Department of Justice and I have a feeling that, if this was only marked for identification and did not become a part of the record, we might find that at some later date is was not available in Washington because the Department of Labor has never published the opinions in cases and they are very difficult to secure. As a matter of fact,—

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Well, all that I want [2659] to assure you is that on any review this matter shall be fully open to you to argue, and I think that this opinion is so clearly incompetent as a binding piece of evidence that it should not be received. However, in order that you may have the point, I think that you might have it marked for identification. My ruling is going to be broad enough, and I will handle that directly on the record, that I am ruling on the assumption that you could connect this up and show it to be the document which you in fact claim that it is. I don't want you to be caught in any technical omission here or error of any kind because that is not the basis of my ruling at all, that you haven't authenticated it.

Mrs. King: Thank you, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I don't take your view as a matter of law, and this is a matter of law which you are bringing up and not a matter of fact.

Mrs. King: Yes. If your Honor please, I would like specifically to offer in evidence the ruling of the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, Samuel W. McCormick, with reference to this problem and I would like to read at least so much——

Mr. Goodwin (Interposing): May I see what you propose to offer in evidence?

(The proffered document was passed to Judge Goodwin.)

Presiding Inspector: Off the record. [2660]

(Remarks outside the record.)

Presiding Inspector: On the record.

Mr. Del Guercio: What counsel has apparently shown me is a brief written by I don't know whom, in the matter of Renton Bridges, in which it is purported to quote from a letter of Samuel W. McCormick, Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization. It is undated. Now, I don't say, mind you, that this is an incorrect quotation from the letter, but this isn't the letter itself; it isn't a copy of it. It just purports to be copied from a letter.

Now, I think that my suggestion, the suggestion that was made heretofore, should be followed and that is that a reference to the letter—it is available in the department. I believe I have a copy of it myself somewhere, and I believe that that should suffice rather than to have this admitted in evidence. It is nothing at all.

Presiding Inspector: If you have anything else I think you should produce it.

Mrs. King: I have nothing else, your Honor, with reference specifically to this opinion. Now, you have the situation here that this opinion, and I think I am right in saying that it is not a letter but it is a decision based upon the opinion of Wyzanski, the opinion of Mr. Wyzanski was in the form of a letter dated January 3, 1934 to the Commissioner [2661] of Immigration and Naturalization and at the close of that letter there is a ruling, as I see it, of the Commissioner with reference to this matter.

These are all within the control, I assume, of the Immigration Service which Mr. Del Guercio represents. This is all that we have ever gotten. We got these on request from the then Solicitor of Labor, as I recall it. I wrote a letter to the Immigration Service asking for a copy of the opinion in the Borich case, and this was forwarded to me and copies were made for the brief. I do not have anything which further authenticates the [illegible]er, but I assume that Mr. Del Guercio has everything on this point. I also assume that——

Mr. Goodwin (Interposing): Are you offering this in evidence, Mrs. King?

Mrs. King: I would like to read it into the record, yes.

Mr. Goodwin: Are you offering it in evidence?

Mrs. King: Yes.

Mr. Goodwin: May we see it?

Mrs. King: It is exactly the thing you did see a moment ago.

Mr. Goodwin: I understand.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to it upon the ground that the document hasn't been properly identified and it isn't a document at all, it is a brief. What counsel is reading from [2662] is a brief.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Del Guercio, I am going to exclude this, but I think that we will take a very long time unless we have it understood that this may be marked. If I exclude it under a technical objection here we won't get along at all.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't know, if the Court please, whether it is correct or not. I have no way of checking it here now. If I had the document I would offer it.

Presiding Inspector: I am going to reject it, don't you understand? I am not going to receive it. I am going to relieve her, if I can, from the necessity of trying to show the correctness of it because, assuming it is correct, I am with you. I am with you, Mr. Del Guercio, and I am going to reject it. Now, are you going to want me to rule on a technical point?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. I think that would be proper.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I will overrule the technical objection, but I will reject it on the main ground, as already stated, that it is not competent here, and even if it were introduced in evidence it would not establish that there had been any denial of the protection of the law.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, I ask leave to have copies struck off of this opinion of Mr. Wyžanski and what I conceive to be the decision of Colonel McCormick, so that I [2663] may have them marked for identification.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, you may do that.

Mrs. King: Which will be brought into Court as soon as that can be done.

Presiding Inspector: All right.

Mrs. King: I should also like to request, and I think I am within my rights in requesting, from Mr. Del Guercio, who has control of this, a copy of any regulations or rules that were forwarded to the local stations as a result of this decision of Colonel McCormick. It is my understanding that immediately after that decision was rendered the local Immigration Officials were instructed in accordance with that decision that arrests of Aliens who were members of certain organizations were to be cancelled, the proceedings were to be discontinued.

Now, I do not have access to those regulations and I assume that Mr. Del Guercio does have access, and I ask that I be furnished those regulations and any rules and instructions that were issued as a result of this decision so that I can establish for the purposes of the record, as your Honor has permitted me at this point to have this opinion and this order marked for identification, to show what the procedure of the Immigration Service was with reference to persons who were members of these organizations.

I would also like to make a demand or a request upon Mr. [2664] Del Guercio and the Immigration Service for any rules and regulations with reference to persons who were members of the I. W. W. I believe that such regulations were promulgated. I am not quite sure, but that is well within their control, and it seems to me that the Government of the United States should not lend itself to keeping from counsel documents which are relevant simply because they have control of them. And so I ask that any documents that were promulgated by the Immigration and Naturalization Service with reference to persons who were members of the Marine Workers Industrial Union or the Trade Union Unity League or any documents relating to persons who were members of the I. W. W., that is, instructions to local Immigration Officials, be furnished to the attorneys for Mr. Bridges so that we may more adequately present the question of law as to whether Mr. Bridges is or is not being discriminated against in these proceedings and can show what the usual and general procedure of the Immigration Service is with reference to membership in the organizations specified.

Presiding Inspector: Well, if Mr. Del Guercio wishes to produce anything of that kind it is his privilege. I shan't instruct him one way or the other. This is a subject for the Department of Justice.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please,——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Do you want to say [2665] anything?

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no rule or regulation on the question that Mrs. King is talking about. The rules and regulations are printed by the Government printing office and are available to counsel as well as to us.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, I am not referring to the printed immigration laws and rules or to the recent mimeographed rules that your Honor has seen, but to the intra-departmental instructions which were issued in 1934 to take care of this situation. And I should also like to add to my request a request for the disposition of then pending cases of persons who were members of this organization. In other words, there were instructions sent out from Washington in individual cases referring to the opinion of Mr. Wyzanski or the decison of Colonel McCormick and suggesting that warrants of deportation be cancelled in view of that opinion and that decision. And I ask that Mr. Del Guercio be requested to furnish those to the attorneys for Mr. Bridges so that we may have adequately before your Honor the suggestion that was presented and the fact that in all cases involving membership in the Marine Workers Industrial Union and the Trade Union Unity League such warrants of arrest, if issued, were cancelled and such proceedings were not instituted in cases where investigation had been initiated but warrants had not as [2666] yet come forth.

Mr. Del Guercio: I believe that should be addressed to Mr. Lemual Schofield and Mr. Schofield has already given his reply. Mr. Schofield is the departmental official in charge of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. I am not.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, we have made a motion upon which is based a claim that certain constitutional rights of Mr. Bridges have been denied. We are now, of course, in the process of producing or attempting to produce evidentiary material supporting those constitutional rights. We have made a request in the form we have made it, not because of necessity it must be made that way, but because it is the most courteous way to begin. We insist, however, on having definite rulings or statements, if we can obtain them, for the purpose of determining our future conduct because we intend to in one manner or another produce evidence showing the thing that Mrs. King has referred to in her argument; that is, evidence of the policy and rulings of the Department of Labor, and her argument was based on the premise that we would produce and we will produce such evidence.

Now, we consider that the most courteous way to raise the question and the simplest way is by requesting your Honor to obtain or to ask Mr. Del Guercio to offer the items of evidence that we have referred to. We would, therefore, like, in order [2667] to know how to go ahead since we contemplate using the subpoenas, if we cannot obtain it any other way,—we here at this time request that your Honor rule whether you will make such request to Mr. Del Guercio or yourself obtain them in some manner. And, second, we would like to have, if we can have, a statement of Mr. Del Guercio whether he will comply because, assuming that we cannot obtain this evidence in either of these two ways, we intend to prepare an application for a subpoena, which will certainly be unnecessary if either of these are complied with.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you make an offer of proof and I will rule on the offer of proof?

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, we don't like to make an offer of proof for this reason: We don't know exactly in detail what these records show, and if the subpoena is not granted or it is not honored: if, for any reason, therefore, we can't get the subpoena, then we will make the offer of proof. But since we do not know all the facts in such accurate form as is necessary to properly present such a constitutional question as this, we intend not to make it. Therefore, we would like to have a ruling as to whether it is necessary, in other words, by yourself, whether you will make such a request or order. Then, if we can have it from Mr. Del Guercio.——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): No, I won't make such [2668] a request. If your application for a subpoena is along the lines which you have suggested I shall hold, first, that I have no power to subpoena anyone in the Department of Justice: and, second, that I deem the evidence which you have outlined in a general way immaterial anyway.

Mr. Grossman: Well, as I say,——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): I think perhaps you should present such a request to me so as to have it clearly within the record.

Mr. Grossman: Then I will assume that it will be necessary, unless Mr. Del Guercio will state that he will produce or will have produced such evidence as we are concerned with—if so, that will be unnecessary, of course, so as to apply for a subpoena.

Presiding Inspector: He said that he shouldn't feel that he should answer that until he should have an opportunity to talk with Mr. Schofield.

Mr. Grossman: I think he said a little more.

Presiding Inspector: That is the basis of it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I said that Mr. Schofield is in charge of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Presiding Inspector: You feel that the request should be directed to him?

Mr. Del Guercio: To him rather than to me. If I have [2669] the documents that they are speaking of I will be glad to make them available to counsel. I do not have them, and, as I understand it, the Court has ruled that they are irrelevant.

Presiding Inspector: I think that they are irrelevant.

Mr. Grossman: Well,——

Presiding Inspector: Because even if there had been such a ruling I do not see any pertinency in this particular case.

Mr. Grossman: It is your Honor's suggestion, then, that the best way to proceed is at this time by application for a subpoena, which we would ultimately have to use if these are not furnished us without subpoena? So we will prepare an application for a subpoena specifying as well as we can the evidence that we desire.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, and I will rule on your application.

Mr. Grossman: Now, your Honor, we have miscalculated the time required for the arguments and, therefore, our witness is not available here. My suggestion is one of the two following procedures: Our witness is available in town and we can bring him here in about fifteen minutes.

There is a matter that we must discuss in chambers, the matter of our request for withdrawal of a certain Exhibit that we discussed last Friday, I think it was, or last Thursday, which we consider timely and would rather discuss as soon as [2670] possible, which we might take up at this time if your Honor is willing.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: If not, we are prepared to come back early in case you want to adjourn at this time. But we suggest the desirability of meeting in chambers now on this other matter.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. We will adjourn, then, until 2:00 o'clock.

(Whereupon at 12:15 o'clock P.M., a recess was taken until 2:00 o'clock P.M., of the same day.) [2670a]

After Recess

2:20 O'clock P.M.

Mr. Goodwin: May it please your Honor, there is a matter which, on inspection during this noon hour, has led me to conclude that there is something that I should say about it at the present time.

I have not had an opportunity to consult with my associates and colleagues on account of the long conference in chambers.

But the suggestion has been made that by including the N.W.I.U. and the T.U.U.L. and the I.W.W. there has been discrimination against the Alien.

Now, your Honor, I wish to say that I share full responsibility for the inclusion of those organizations in my opening statement and in this proceeding.

I call your Honor's attention to the fact that the evidence which prompted that inclusion in my statement, and in this proceeding, falls from the lips of the Alien himself.

Now, when the Attorney General was confronted with that evidence that he had been a member of the I.W.W., and associated with the M.W.I.U. and the T.U.U.L., there was, in my opinion, no course that he could pursue but to include them in this statement in this proceeding.

It is perfectly true, your Honor, that at the time the [2671] witness testified those circumstances were not grounds for deportation, but in 1940 in the Act of June 28, I believe it was, 1940, relating to Aliens, requiring the registration of Aliens, it was provided that former membership in these organizations should be a ground for deportation. That was a matter for the discretion of Congress, with which the Executive Department had nothing to do. I say only this: That that change in the law was evidently obviously compelled by the present emergency, and when the Attorney General is confronted with a state of facts that brings an Alien within the class of deportable Aliens, he has no discrimination or choice in the matter.

That is all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I have already ruled that, assuming all the facts that were stated by counsel, Mrs. King, I still was of the opinion that there was no discrimination and I adhere to that.

I say, I have taken this position and ruled that, assuming the facts that she has stated about the decision of the Department of Labor, assuming those facts to be true without proof, that there still was no discrimination within the meaning of the law, no denial of the equal protection of the law.

Mr. Goodwin: Thank you, your Honor.

Mr. Gladstein: Are you ready to proceed, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: I think so. [2672]

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Bernstein, will you please take the stand?

Presiding Inspector: David Bernstein, B-e-r-n-s-t-e-i-n.

Mr. Gladstein: And the first name is David.

Presiding Inspector: David.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. That is in the City of Los Angeles?

A. It is in the County of Los Angeles.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. It is outside the city limits. It is Los Angeles County.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. Los Angeles County. How long have you been a resident of Los Angeles?

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Bernstein, speak a little louder so that they can hear you.

The Witness: Your Honor, I will do that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. How long have you been a resident of Los Angeles County?

A. About thirteen and a half years.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. I am a cloak operator.

Q. Cloak operator? A. Righto.

Q. That is in the garment trade, is it?

A. Yes, sir. [2674]

Q. How long have you followed that trade?

A. Thirty-one years.

Q. In following your occupation have you been a member of any trade union? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What trade union or trade unions have you been a member of?

A. I have been a member of the I.L.G.W.U. since 1909 until about 1930.

Q. You say "I.L.G.W.U." Is it correct that those initials stand for International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union? A. Correct.

Q. Now, you say that you were a member of that organization during what period?

A. Since 1909; about the middle of 1909 until 1930.

Q. And then did you become a member of another trade union?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. Yes. Then I was a member for just a short while from the Industrial Union while our union broke up in Los Angeles.

Q. You say that your union was broken up in Los Angeles?

A. Yes; then for a while. It was during the depression, yes. [2675]

Q. Did you become a member of the I.L.G.W.U. again? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what year? A. In August, 1933.

Q. Have you remained a member of that union since that time? A. Ever since.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Thomas Laurence? A. Yes, I do.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. Since about 1932 or the beginning of 1933. I do not remember the exact date or month.

Q. In what connection did you first make his acquaintance? A. As an officer of the union.

Q. What office did he hold?

A. That is, I was holding office at that time when I first met Tommy Laurence. I was a member of the Executive Board of my local.

Q. You were a member of the Executive Board of your local? A. Of my local union.

Q. What was the name of that local?

A. Local 65.

Q. How many local unions of the I.L.G.W.U. were there in [2676] Los Angeles at that time?

A. At that time? I think it was three locals.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. Did you hold any other office besides being a member of the Executive Board? Did you represent your local union to any central body?

A. Yes. For two years I was a member of the Central Labor Council in New York—I mean, Los Angeles.

Q. That is, the American Federation of Labor Central Labor Council? A. Righto.

Q. You were a delegate from your local union to the Council, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That council is and was at the time that you are speaking of a central body composed of delegates from various trade unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor who had local unions in Los Angeles and vicinity?

A. Correct.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please. Is the witness answering the question or is counsel answering?

Mr. Gladstein: It is not the heart of the matter and I thought it would save time. But if counsel objects, I——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Yes, don't lead. Let the answer stand, but I say, Don't lead.

By Mr. Gladstein: [2677]

Q. I think you said at the time you first met Thomas Laurence you were a member of the Executive Board of your local union?

A. When I first met Tommy Laurence, if it was in 1932 at that time I was not a member of my local union yet, but if it was in '33 I was a member of my local union and also a member of the Executive Board.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. I see.

A. I was elected—while I was a member of my local union six months I was a member of the Executive Board.

Q. All right. And during that period it was when you first became acquainted with Laurence?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, what dealings, if any, did you have with Mr. Laurence from time to time?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment! I object to that, if your Honor please. There is no foundation laid for the purpose in asking that question.

Presiding Inspector: It is pretty broad, I think.

Mr. Gladstein: I beg your pardon.

Presiding Inspector: It is pretty broad, I think. Bring it down to the subject matter of the case.

Mr. Gladstein: I wanted to establish the acquaintance of the witness.

Presiding Inspector: You have already established it. [2678]

Mr. Gladstein: Oh, all right. I just established when it first began, but I haven't established how it continued.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose it is presumed to continue. He seemed to know him well enough to call him by his first name, his nick name, "Tommy".

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Is that the name by which he is generally known? A. Yes, Tommy Laurence.

Presiding Inspector: You haven't ceased to know him?

The Witness: No. I know him all the time.

[2679]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Bernstein, do you know what sort of a reputation Mr. Thomas Laurence has among his fellow workmen in the industry covered by the ILGWU in Los Angeles for——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I object to the question.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished the question yet.

Presiding Inspector: Do not answer yet. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Will you repeat the question, Mr. Reporter, as far as I went?

(The incomplete question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. (Continuing) ——for truth and honesty? That is the question.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: For truth and veracity.

Mr. Gladtsein: I will change it to "truth and veracity."

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know what his reputation is for that?

The Witness: May I get a meaning of "veracity"?

Mr. Gladstein: Will you explain that, your Honor, inasmuch as you suggested it?

Presiding Inspector: Veracity means about the same thing as truthfulness.

By Mr. Gladstein: [2680]

Q. Do you know what his reputation is for truth and veracity?

Presiding Inspector: It means honorable truth.

A. Then I can answer that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know what it is?

A. Yes. I——

Presiding Inspector: Nothing further. You do know it?

The Witness: I do.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to it, further on the ground that it is not proper examination. Here we are trying to attack the witness, Thomas Laurence, and certainly it is not——

Presiding Inspector: You offered him as a witness. His veracity is subject to direct attack. That is what they call direct impeachment.

Mr. Gladstein: Correct.

Mr. Del Guercio: We may produce witnesses to show what his reputation for truth and veracity is.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Presiding Inspector: To a limited number; and Mr. Gladstein is also limited to a limited number.

Mr. Gladstein: And also if he can find any.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that statement from counsel and ask that it be stricken.

Presiding Inspector: That wasn't proper. Go ahead.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't ask about him. I asked about [2681] the witness, Thomas Laurence.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Bernstein, you have already said that you do know what the reputation of Thomas Laurence is among his fellow workmen in Los Angeles in that industry. Will you please state what his reputation for truth and veracity is, whether it is good or bad?

A. It is bad. Now I can——

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. Do not volunteer until you are asked further questions.

It is bad, he says.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Based on that reputation, of which you just testified that you have knowledge, would you believe Thomas Laurence under oath?

A. I would not.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: It is a proper question in the classical form.

Mr. Gladstein: In fact, ——

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) He hasn't been qualified as an expert on this subject.

Presiding Inspector: He doesn't have to be. If he knows his reputation from the mouths of people associated with him he [2682] may tell whether that reputation for truth and veracity is good or bad. Then he may follow that up by asking whether he believes him under oath. That is the classical set of questions.

Mr. Gladstein: As a matter of fact, the United States Supreme Court has suggested just that form.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. ——

Presiding Inspector: He may have stated his answer. I did not hear it.

Mr. Gladstein: Will you read the answer, Mr. Reporter?

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Bernstein, have you had occasion from time to time to discuss Mr. Laurence's reputation with his fellowmen in Los Angeles?

A. I have.

Q. Will you tell us in general what those discussions with respect to his reputation for truth and honesty have been?

Mr. Myron: I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: Don't you think you ought to leave that to cross examination?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Mr. Gladstein: I will leave it if they want to cross examine on it.

Presiding Inspector: You have the positive statement that [2683] he knows his reputation from the mouths of the people associated with him.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, have you ever had occasion—withdraw that. First of all, are you acquainted with the defendant, Harry Bridges?

A. Not to talk to him. I saw Harry Bridges once or twice, to be correct.

Q. Will you state where and what the circumstances were when you saw him?

A. The first time I saw Harry Bridges was at the state Convention—some convention but I am not sure whether it was the State Convention or not—at the Royal Palms Hotel, in Los Angeles.

Q. What kind of a convention was that?

A. The CIO convention.

Q. A trade union convention? A. Yes.

Q. When was the other occasion when you saw him?

A. At a mass meeting at Gilmore Stadium, Los Angeles.

Q. Gilmore Stadium?

A. Gilmore Stadium.

Q. Do you remember what the occasion of that mass meeting was? [2684]

A. I am not positive, but I think it was one of the Tom Mooney defense meetings.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. One of the Tom Mooney meetings. Did you see Mr. Bridges on both these occasions merely as a speaker? A. As a speaker; yes.

Q. You have no personal acquaintance with him? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any interest in this proceeding as far as he is concerned? A. No.

Q. Now, have you ever discussed—withdraw that. Have you ever heard Thomas Laurence speak on the subject of Harry Bridges?

A. Many a time.

Q. Under what circumstances have you heard him discuss Harry Bridges?

A. Discussing him with various workers of the trade——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I object to that as immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: Well, he has heard it. He hasn't gotten to the crucial question yet.

Mr. Gladstein: Not yet. I am laying the foundation.

Mr. Del Guercio: The witness, Laurence, wasn't asked any questions about this witness here.

Presiding Inspector: He asked him what he has heard. He [2685] now says he has heard discussions of him. I will allow that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. These are discussions, are they, Mr. Bernstein, that you have heard, that is, statements that you have heard Mr. Laurence make concerning Harry Bridges, is that right? A. Yes.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. And where have these statements been made in a general way?

A. In the office in the Union hall.

Q. Can you state in general what the substance was of the statements that Mr. Laurence made on those occasions?

Presiding Inspector: "Yes" or "no".

Mr. Myron: We object to that question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Can you state that? A. Yes.

Q. Will you please do so?

Mr. Myron: We object to that.

Presiding Inspector: You object to it on what ground?

Mr. Myron: On the ground that no foundation has been laid for what he is going to say. We don't know what it is offered for.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose it is offered as direct evidence on bias. Supposing, for example, that he said, "I am going to kill this man when I get a chance." It certainly [2686] would be admissible.

Mr. Myron: I think a proper foundation must be laid.

Presiding Inspector: It isn't to show a contradictory statement. It is to show direct evidence of bias.

Mr. Myron: If that is the purpose——

Presiding Inspector: That is the purpose, isn't it?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Mr. Gladstein: Of course it is. It is very evident.

Mr. Myron: It isn't evident.

Mr. Gladstein: It may not be to you.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it and if it doesn't show direct evidence of bias we will strike it out.

You may answer.

Mr. Gladstein: Would you like to have the question read?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, I am asking you to state what the substance of those statements by Mr. Laurence, concerning Mr. Bridges, was.

Presiding Inspector: This is offered over the objection of the Government.

Mr. Gladstein: I understand.

A. Yes. It was usual, whenever Tommy Laurence discussed with the workers in the Union hall on any general question, that when the workers would make any statement at all that did not [2687] coincide with Tommy Laurence's opinion, as far as the trade union was concerned, he was always labeled a Red and a Communist, or a liar; especially when the question came up about Harry Bridges, without discussing anything about the Bridges case, he always used to turn red in his face and his eyes used to get actually bloodshot; he used to use the most violent names whenever he mentioned Harry Bridges. He also stated that "That man has to be deported."

Mr. Gladstein: You may cross examine.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Del Guercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, may we ask that this witness be held until tomorrow?

Mr. Gladstein: Now, your Honor, the same question arises. When we first asked that the Government objected, and consistently with one exception, and that in the case of Mr. Chase, your Honor required us to immediately begin our cross examination. Now, your Honor will recall that in the case of Mr. Chase he was giving direct testimony of a material character in the case on the direct issues of the case. The present witness on the stand now is in the category known as a character witness. I do not see how the Court can, consistent with its previous ruling, grant the request of Mr. Del Guercio in this respect, and we object to it.

I also have this further statement to make to the Court: I am informed by Mr. Bernstein that he must be in Los Angeles in [2688] order to leave that city for Chicago on a matter of great importance to him, and that he must conclude his testimony today.

Now, I will listen to anything that counsel wants to make with respect to taking a deposition at some future date, or anything of the kind. In other words, I am willing that the Court grant to Mr. Del Guercio the same courtesy that was granted to us, namely, that on one witness they shall have time, but since we were allowed that, only one witness, we don't feel that the Government should be entitled to an unfair advantage over us. [2689]

Presiding Inspector: I think you can go on to some extent.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the shoes is on the other foot now.

Presiding Inspector: I think you can go on to some extent. If it proves necessary I am going to hold this witness despite his engagement. I am sorry to do it, but I am going to grant you that privilege. Now, you can go ahead to some extent. I haven't found out yet whether it will prove necessary.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. Bernstein, where were you born?

A. I was born in Russia.

Q. You were born in Russia. And of what country are you a citizen?

A. A citizen of the United States.

Q. When did you become a citizen?

A. About two years ago.

Q. Where? A. In Los Angeles.

Q. And in the United District Court at Los Angeles? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any difficulty? [2690]

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. No difficulty whatsoever.

Q. At that time—wait until I ask my question.

A. Oh, I am sorry.

Q. Did you or did you not?

A. No, I didn't have any difficulties at all.

Q. Have you ever been investigated by any Immigration Officers anywhere? A. No.

Q. Never? A. Never in my life.

Q. Never in your life?

A. Never in my life.

Mr. Gladstein: Let me ask this question. I suppose the question is meant to elicit information within knowledge of the witness.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, within his own knowledge.

Mr. Gladstein: It is quite possible for anybody to be investigated without knowing it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: You may all have been subject to that indignity.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, even counsel, I might say.

Presiding Inspector: Or the Court. Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Are you an admirer of Harry Bridges?

A. As a union leader I think that he is to my liking. [2691]

Q. What do you mean he is to your "liking"?

A. As a union leader.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. As a union leader. Well, as a member of the Communist Party is he to your liking?

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment, Mr. Bernstein. Don't answer that question.

If your Honor please, I don't think the grounds of objection for a question of that sort have to be stated. I think counsel should be admonished for asking a question of that sort.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the evidence, if the Court please, has shown that Mr. Bridges is a member of the Communist Party. There has been no evidence here introduced as yet to controvert that.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I don't think——

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment, please!

Mr. Gladstein: I will wait for you. I will wait for you.

Mr. Del Guercio: We have made—the Government has made a prima facie case. I think it has, that Mr. Bridges is a member of the Communist Party and has been; that he has been affiliated, been a member of and affiliated with an organization, the Marine Workers Industrial Union, which is an affiliate of the Trade Union Unity League and of the Red International of Labor Unions and no evidence has been intro- [2692] duced so far to controvert that evidence. And certainly it is a proper question to ask this witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Are you through? Are you through, Mr. Del Guercio?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, I am through.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, if your Honor please, the question assumes the very issue involved in this proceeding and is not properly placed before any witness.

Presiding Inspector: One of the issues.

Mr. Gladstein: Or one of the issues, that is true. And is not properly placed before the witness. In the first place, look at the question. "Do you admire him as a member of the Communist Party?" That is the question that was asked.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whether the witness recognizes him as a member of the Communist Party.

Mr. Gladstein: There is no evidence to indicate that.

Presiding Inspector: No. I don't see how the witness could answer that question.

Mr. Del Guercio: He has answered the question there that he admires him as a trade union leader. How does he know he is a trade union leader?

Presiding Inspector: I suppose that he knows that from his associations in trade unions and a matter of history. I don't think you ought to ask that question, quite as baldly as [2693] you do. I think I will exclude the question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How long have you been in this country, Mr. Bernstein?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. Since the 20th of June, 1909.

Q. Since the 29th of June, 1909? A. Yes.

Q. Now, for how long a period did you know Thomas Laurence?

A. About eight years or so.

Q. Eight years. Over what period of time?

A. I don't get that question.

Q. In what years?

A. I met him around 1932.

Q. Where did you meet him?

A. In the union.

Q. In the union? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever work with him?

A. No. I never worked in the same shop.

Q. You never worked alongside of him in the same shop? A. No.

Q. Did you ever visit him at his home?

A. Once.

Q. Did you meet his wife?

A. Yes, I know his wife. [2694]

Q. Did you meet his children?

A. I don't think he has any.

Q. You don't think he has any?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you have any social contact with Mr. Laurence at all? A. No.

Q. Never?

A. Just sometimes go to a restaurant and have a cup of coffee together. That is about all.

Q. And you say that you have known him for a period of about eight years from 1932, say, to about 1940? A. Up to date.

Q. Were you friendly with him during that period of time?

A. We played cards together only about six weeks ago.

Q. And what kind of cards did you play?

A. Oh, just a friendly game.

Q. For money?

A. No, no money involved.

Q. What kind of game did you play?

A. Played rummy.

Q. Who else was present?

A. Who was present? Two fellow members of the union. [2695]

Q. Two more members of the union. Is that the only time you played cards with him?

A. To my best recollection.

Q. Did you play any other games with him?

A. No.

Q. Are you in the habit of playing cards with men that in your opinion have a bad reputation for veracity and for truth?

A. Well, I happen to be a good card player myself and they wouldn't put anything over on me.

Q. You happen to be what?

A. I happen to be a good card player myself and they wouldn't put anything over on me.

Q. I didn't get that.

A. I am a good card player.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Presiding Inspector: "And they wouldn't put anything over on me".

A. (Continuing) And they wouldn't put anything over on me.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, did he put anything over on you during that game?

A. No, no. He couldn't do it.

Q. Did you watch him?

A. Well, I was very careful about it. [2696]

Q. How long did you see him during that period of time that you say you knew him during those eight years? How many times about did you come in contact with him?

A. Sometimes probably ever day in the week and at times probably two or three times a week.

Q. When? A. In the office of the union.

Q. In the offices of the union. That is during the time that you were a member? A. Yes.

Q. But you weren't a member of any union in 1932, were you?

A. No. I stated before in my cross examination, I stated that if I met Tommy Laurence in 1932 I was not a member of the union then.

Q. Don't you know when you met him? You say "if" you met him.

A. I don't remember correctly whether it was in 1932 or '33.

Q. For how long a period—how many times would you see him within those eight years that you knew him? A. About how many times?

Q. Yes.

A. I can hardly remember. It would probably come up to [2697] the thousands.

Q. It probably would come up to the thousands. Did you ever tell him that you didn't believe in his truth and veracity?

A. Well, yes. We had quite a few arguments about it.

Q. You had arguments with him?

A. Various things.

Q. What kind of arguments?

A. Oh, as far as trade union activity.

Q. Well, how many of those arguments did you have?

A. Again I cannot recall how many times. Quite a few times.

Q. Well, you mean by "arguments" that you didn't agree with his policy in trade unions, or what?

A. Yes. It was in regards to when he was Business Agent of the union and somebody complained about his behavior as a Business Agent in his local union.

Q. What was his policy in connection with trade unions?

A. His policy was that workers used to come over to me, being that I was a member of the Executive Board, and forward stories and complaints to me about Tommy Laurence. And I told them that I am not in a position—I used to forward them to the proper channels of the Joint Board. That is where all the grievances used to belong.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. I am speaking about the arguments that you had with [2698] Thomas Laurence. You said that you had arguments with Tommy Laurence.

A. Then I used to argue about these complaints in just an informal manner.

Q. Would you talk about those matters with Tommy Laurence?

A. Yes. Other times when other workers were along. Usually whenever I approached Tommy Laurence telling him about these complaints there was quite a disturbance many times.

Q. Tommy Laurence——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Just a moment! Just a moment! The witness hasn't finished.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, don't——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Just a minute! I think the witness hadn't finished his answer.

Presiding Inspector: I thought he had quite finished, although perhaps not.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How long did——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Just a moment!

Mr. Del Guercio: Don't get excited, Mr. Gladstein.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Presiding Inspector: Read the answer, please.

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.) [2699]

Presiding Inspector: He seems to have answered completely. It isn't very responsive, but then——

Mr. Gladstein: That is why I thought the witness hadn't finished, that this was the witness' method of——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I am not sure. Getting started?

Mr. Gladstein: Possibly it is.

Presiding Inspector: Well, it is a bad method.

Mr. Gladstein: Could we have the question read to him?

Presiding Inspector: Anything else you wanted to say?

The Witness: I wanted to conclude something.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is it in answer to my question?

A. Not completely.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a minute! The witness obviously misunderstood.

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: Now, would you talk about those matters? These are these complaints.

The Witness: This is just what I wanted to bring out. The only time I approached Tommy Laurence—many times there was a disturbance and commotion in his office, and while I was an officer of the union myself—not a paid official, but [2700] an officer of the union—I walked in. Workers used to approach Tommy Laurence and tell him that his complaints were not attended properly. His reply to these workers was "You are nothing but a bunch of liars, Communists and Reds". That is the time that I as a officer of the union started to speak about it calmly and again I was attacked, or whoever approached him was attacked. But I personally had quite a few talks with Tommy Laurence about these matters.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did he ever accuse you of being a Red?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you a Red? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what is a Red?

A. A Communist is a Red. That is the way I understand it.

Q. Did he ever accuse you of being a member of the Communist Party?

A. No. But he called me a Red and a Communist.

Q. And you resented that?

A. Certainly I resented that.

Q. Or did you? A. I resented it.

Q. Did you tell him so?

A. In various ways.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. In what way did you tell him that you resented being [2701] called a Red?

A. This was my answer to him: "Tommy, the trouble with you is that anyone who doesn't agree with you you immediately label a 'Red', a 'Bolshevist' and a 'liar' ".

Q. And what?

A. And also he called me a liar and other workers.

Q. Oh, he called you a liar?

A. Not personally, but as far as my union activities went.

Q. Well, did you ever hear him call you a liar?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times?

A. Oh, on a few occasions.

Q. And you called him a liar?

A. Well, I don't remember. Of course, my reply to him was just the way he attacked me.

Q. Did you ever have any fist fights with Mr. Laurence? A. No, sir.

Q. What? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever a member of the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union?

A. Yes, for a short while.

Q. For how long a period?

A. I will have to do a little figuring. I think about [2702] seven or eight months.

Q. Seven or eight months. Who induced you to join, if anybody, the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. I didn't get your question, sir.

Q. How did you come to join the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union?

A. It was at a time when our local here—formerly it was Local 25 in Los Angeles. When that local during—there was some trouble nationally as far as our union goes and there was no assemblance here. I don't remember the exact thing, but I think that our local at that time was expelled from the Central Body; that is, from the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, and the bulk of the membership joined the Industrial —Trade Union Industrial—I don't remember exactly the name, and I was one of those who joined.

Q. You testified previously here that you weren't a member of any union in 1932.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment! That is a misstatement of the evidence.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, it isn't a misstatement of the evidence. If your Honor please,——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Well now, that is not only a misstatement of the evidence, but it is a false statement, Mr. Del Guercio.

Presiding Inspector: Now, just a moment. [2703]

Mr. Gladstein: Now, your Honor, may I——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Of course, we are all subject to forgetting these things.

Mr. Gladstein: I realize we are.

Presiding Inspector: And we misunderstand.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Mr. Gladstein: But Mr. Del Guercio doesn't want it understood that he possibly has overlooked this.

Mr. Del Guercio: Not from you, anyway!

Mr. Gladstein: As I understand it, your Honor—let us see if we have this right, because I object to the question as assuming something not only not in evidence but the contrary of the evidence.

It is my impression that the witness testified that he joined the I.L.G.W.U., oh, many, many, years ago, that he remained a member until sometime in 1932; that he then became a member of an industrial union; that after he was a member of that industrial union for a short period of time, then he rejoined the I.L.G.W.U.

Presiding Inspector: Is that quite right?

The Witness: Not quite right.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Inaudible).

Presiding Inspector: It shows that——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Well, that doesn't prove that you are right either. [2704]

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment! I was saying something to the witness.

Mr. Gladstein: I am sorry.

The Witness: May I conclude?

Presiding Inspector: We want to know how those dates were.

The Witness: Then, while I was a member of the Needle Trades Industrial Union and the things in the trade was very bad. So in the year of 1932, at the very beginning of 1932 I was part owner of a gasoline station. That was during the Olympic Days in Los Angeles.

Mr. Del Guercio: I can't hear, your Honor. It is difficult to hear.

Presiding Inspector: He says early in '32 he was a part owner of a gasoline station.

The Witness: Of a gasoline station over on Tenth and Hope in Los Angeles.

Presiding Inspector: And you got out of the union?

The Witness: At that time I got out of the union.

Presiding Inspector: And how long were you out?

The Witness: I was out about a year.

Presiding Inspector: That is from early in '32 to early in '33?

The Witness: About, oh, it was just about early in '33. I don't remember the dates exactly. [2705-6]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Then for about a year you were not a member of any union and from the early part of 1932 to sometime in 1933 you were not a member of any union?

A. Until 1933 I was not a member of any union.

Q. When did you join the Needle Trades Workers Industrial Union?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. I think it was in '31.

Q. Now, you "think". Do you know for sure when you joined?

A. I cannot remember exactly the date.

Q. Well, were you a member of the other union in 1931? A. In 1931?

Q. Yes. A. I don't think so.

Q. Well now, ——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I think we are confused on the dates. Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. When did you cease being a member of the I.L.G.W.U.?

A. I think it was the end of 1930 when our local was expelled. I don't remember the dates exactly.

Q. When your local was expelled. Expelled from what?

A. When our local was expelled from the international Ladies' Garment Workers Union. [2707]

Q. Why were they expelled?

A. I don't remember the reason.

Q. Were you a member of the Executive Board at that time?

A. Not at that time. I became a member of the Executive Board of Local 65, which is the I.L.G.W.U.

Q. Let me see if I have it straight. You weren't a member of any union. That is, you left—strike that out, please.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

You first became disconnected with the I.L.G. W. U. in 1930. Is that your testimony?

A. About; about 1930.

Q. About 1930.

A. I don't remember the exact month or the date.

Q. Would you say it was the first part of the year? A. I cannot recall.

Q. And now were you a member of any other union during the year of 1930 after you left the I.L.G.W.U.?

A. For a while I was a member of the—when our local here, the bulk of the membership for a while—we had no charter at all, and for a while when our local was re-formed here in Los Angeles under the leadership of the trade union industrial, whatever it was called, then I rejoined with the bulk of the membership until I bought the gasoline station. [2708]

Presiding Inspector: When was that?

The Witness: I think it was about the latter part of 1930 until about the middle of '31. I don't remember exactly.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And who were the leaders that did that?

A. Our local leaders?

Q. Yes.

A. I think a fellow by the name of Willansky.

Q. The Reporter: Spell it, please.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

The Witness: I can't spell it. I think he calls himself "Willans".

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Does he have more than one name?

A. I think when he was naturalized he changed his name from Willansky to Willans.

Q. Who were some of the other leaders?

A. They also had an Executive Board. There was a Secretary.

Q. Were you on the Executive Board?

A. No, not there.

Q. And was that affiliated with the American Federation of Labor? A. No, sir.

Q. With whom was it affiliated?

A. That I don't know. [2709]

Q. Did you inquire?

A. I was just an ordinary rank and file and I didn't know any of the affiliation of that union.

Q. Who asked you to join?

A. The shop where I worked.

Q. The shop where you worked. Who in the shop where you worked?

A. The shop Chairman.

Q. Where was your shop at that time?

A. At that time I worked for—let me think. Sax Bros.

Q. And what was the union known as?

A. We of the rank and file usually called it the——

Q. (Interposing) The what?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. The "industrial union".

Q. The "industrial union"? A. Yes.

Q. Are you sure it was the industrial union?

A. I believe it was called the "industrial union".

Q. When you say you "believe", do you know for sure?

A. I can't think of any other name.

Q. Is that the only reason why you say it was the "industrial union"? Because you can't think of any other name?

A. I think it was called the "industrial union". [2710]

Q. Was it affiliated with the Trade Union Unity League?

A. I don't know of any affiliations of our local union.

Q. You do know about the Trade Union Unity League, don't you? A. No, I don't.

Q. What? A. No, I don't.

Q. How do you know whether it was affiliated or not?

A. I don't know whether it was affiliated or not.

Q. It might have been?

A. It might have been.

Q. Would you care whether it was or not?

Mr. Gladstein: Well now,—just a minute! If the Court please, I think that question is not only remote——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I think it is very competent.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it leads anywhere.

Mr. Gladstein: No.

Presiding Inspector: I will let him answer.

Mr. Gladstein: It is immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: Do you care one way or the other about it?

A. I wouldn't care.

Mr. Del Guercio: You wouldn't care.

Mr. Gladstein: How does he know what it means? The pro- [2711] per foundation for the question hasn't been laid.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is worth talking about.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. I will allow the answer.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How long did that organization remain organized? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. For how long a period did that union continue?

A. I really don't know because when I stepped out, when I bought that gasoline station it was still in existence.

Q. When did you step out?

A. It was either late in '30 or the middle of '31. I don't remember the exact month.

Q. It might have been in 1931?

A. It might have been in 1931.

Q. Yes. What did you do after that?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. I was part owner of a gasoline station.

Q. You were part owner of a gasoline station?

A. A gasoline station.

Q. For how long a period.

A. About eleven or twelve months.

Q. And during that period of time were you a member of any union? [2712] A. No, sir.

Q. And in what year was that?

A. That was in the year—up to about the end of 1932. It was right after the Olympic Days. I don't remember when the Olympic Days were in Los Angeles.

Q. Would it be correct that you were not a member of any union in the year 1932?

A. In the year 1932 it would be correct.

Q. Were you a member of any union in the year 1933?

A. I re-joined this union on the 17th of August, 1933.

Q. Which union?

A. The union that I am at present a member of.

Q. And that is the——

A. (Interposing) Local 65.

Q. Of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union?

A. International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, correct.

Q. Now, you say that you were a member of the Needle Trades Workers Industrial Union for a period of time. When was that?

A. That was in the year of—around, I think it was in the beginning of 1930, but I don't know if it was after the end of the 1930 or I stepped out of it after the beginning of 1931. I don't remember exactly. I know it was less than a year that I was a member there.

Q. Are you sure of the year 1930 or 1931?

[2713]

A. Yes. I am sure about '31, that it was part of 1931. I don't remember exactly whether it was a few months in 1931 or a month more or a month less. I don't remember that.

Q. Why did you drop out of the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union?

A. I dropped out of the Needle Trades at that time because I dropped out from the trade entirely. I bought a gasoline station then and I was out of the trade and I dropped out of the union.

Q. I thought you previously testified that you dropped out of the International Garment Workers Union just before you took your service station?

A. No, I stated that I dropped out from the I. L. G. W. U. when our local here was expelled from the parent body, and then while the whole shop joined the Industrial Union—I think it is the Needle Trades Industrial Union, something like it—and I rejoined with the shop together.

Q. Was it the Industrial Union then that is now the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union?

A. Something like that. We usually called it the "industrial union".

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. You knew that that was a Communist organization, did you not? A. I did not.

Q. What? [2714] A. I did not.

Q. At that time? A. I didn't.

Q. Do you know it now?

A. Even now I don't know.

Q. Huh?

A. Even at present I don't know.

Q. Did you ever find out that it was affiliated with the Trade Union Unity League?

A. Later on, of course, there was talk that there was some affiliations. But from the time that I was there I didn't know anything about it.

Q. Well, I mean do you know now? Have you ever found out as to whether it was ever affiliated with the Trade Union Unity League?

A. I know that there was accusation by our present leadership that it was a Communist organization, but I didn't know about it.

Q. Was there any accusation made by Laurence to you that the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union, of which you had been a member, was a Communist organization?

A. Well, I never discussed that question with Tommy Laurence.

Q. Did Tommy Laurence know that you had been a member of the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union? [2715] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was it because of your affiliation with that, your membership in that Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union, that he called you a Red?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. No.

Q. Huh? A. No.

Q. He knew about it, however?

A. He knew that I was a member. It wasn't anything secret about it.

Q. And you knew that Tommy Laurence knew that the Trade Union Unity League was a Communist organization? A. That I didn't know.

Q. Did you not?

A. That I didn't know.

Q. Do you have a membership card?

A. From the union? Yes, I have it with me.

Q. In the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union? A. Do I have it now?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. What did you do with it?

A. I turned it in when I——

Q. (Interposing) To whom did you turn it in?

A. To the local union. [2716]

Q. When was that?

A. That was sometime in '31.

Q. Who signed that card, your membership card in the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union?

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. I think this entire line of examination is immaterial, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Will you answer that question?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Presiding Inspector: This is cross examination, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Gladstein: I realize that, and I wouldn't object if I didn't think——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I want to allow the cross examiner broad latitude.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: If you can tell. If you can't tell, just say so.

The Witness: What is the question again?

Presiding Inspector: Who signed the card?

A. That I don't remember.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Didn't it state on the card, on your membership card, that the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union was an affiliate of the Trade Union Unity League? [2717]

A. I don't remember that.

Q. It might have?

A. I don't know. I wouldn't say.

Q. Didn't you look at your card?

A. No, because I was not an active member at that time at all and I just paid my dues to get some protection in the trade. I always joined the trade union regardless of what trade union takes care of my particular trade.

Q. You said that you paid dues. Did you pay dues continuously during the time you were a member of it?

A. No, I think at the time I turned in my card

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

I was in arrears for three months or so. I didn't pay much dues for the time that I belonged.

Q. You read English, of course.

A. Yes, sir; I do.

Q. If I show you a membership card in the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union would you recognize it?

A. I think I would if I would see it, because although I didn't see it for about eight years or so, nine years probably. [2718]

Q. Now, has anyone else ever accused you of being a Red? A. No.

Q. You are sure? A. Positive.

Q. At any time or place?

A. Well, I don't know how to answer that. At times there have been quite a few that took sides in the Union? If you did not agree with certain trade union policies that one section of the workers proposed they are in the habit of immediately calling somebody a Red some time or other, but I personally was not called that.

Q. I take it from your answer that others have accused you of being a Red, other than Thomas Laurence? A. No, not personally.

Q. "Not personally"—what do you mean by that?

A. It never came up that anybody should call me personally a Red but because of the discussions as far as trade union policies were concerned, there was somebody calling workers "Reds," or "Communists," or whatever it may be.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. If Mr. Bridges here were a member of the Communist Party would you still have that admiration for him?

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment. I think that question calls for conjecture and assumes something——

Presiding Inspector: If he can't answer he can say so. I [2719] will allow it.

Mr. Gladstein: I want the record to show that I object to the question as being improper, as being incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, as calling for conjecture and speculation.

Presiding Inspector: No. It is calling for a state of mind. I will take it.

Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. If Mr. Bridges were a member of the Communist Party, and if he were to be a member of my union and tried to disrupt the work of our union, for the benefit of the workers in the trade, I would fight Harry Bridges on that principle.

Mr. Del Guercio: That doesn't answer the question.

Mr. Gladstein: I submit——

Presiding Inspector: It may stand.

Mr. Gladstein: I submit the statement of counsel should be stricken. I think it does answer his question, but the reason is that he just didn't like the answer.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Presiding Inspector: We are not very much interested in the opinions of counsel at this time; maybe when it comes to sum up.

I will allow the answer even if it wasn't very responsive.

It was a question that could have been answered "Yes" or "No". [2720]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were Harry Bridges a member of the Communist Party, and were he in your union, and were he following what you believed to be the union policy, would you still admire Harry Bridges?

The Witness: Please repeat that question.

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Gladstein: I submit that the question is ambiguous and compound. I don't know what an answer of "Yes" or "No" would mean to such a question.

Presiding Inspector: Perhaps the witness will know.

Mr. Gladstein: I submit that even if he did give an answer it wouldn't mean anything in the record.

Presiding Inspector: Let us see if he understands the question. Do you understand the question?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor, I understand the question; but to answer "Yes" or "No" is hard for me to do.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Presiding Inspector: You can't answer it "Yes" or "No"?

The Witness: No, I cannot answer "Yes" or "No".

Presiding Inspector: There is no objection to his explaining it?.

Mr. Del Guercio: No objection to an explanation of the answer in any way he wants to. [2721]

A. I would not hold against any one of my superior officers, regardless of their political affiliations, if their policy, as far as the trade union questions are concerned, is correct and for the benefit of myself and the rest of my co-workers in the shops.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think that is satisfactory.

Presiding Inspection: Is that all.

Mr. Del Guercio: No.

Presiding Inspector: I beg your pardon. I thought you said that was all.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't know whether I have asked this question or not, your Honor, but if I did I will withdraw it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever been a member of the Communist Party? A. No, sir.

Q. Of the Communist Party as such, under either your name or under any other name?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever used any other name?

A. No, sir. The only other name I use is Dave or David Bernstein at times.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Presiding Inspector: That is the same name?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever contributed money to the Communist [2722] party? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever subscribe to the Daily Worker? A. No, sir.

Q. You know what the Daily Worker is?

A. Yes.

Q. What is it?

A. It is a Communist paper, but I never subscribed to it.

Q. How do you know it is a Communist paper?

Mr. Gladstein: I submit that is immaterial.

A. Because of the fact that we have it in our library in our union, the Daily Worker, the same as any other newspaper.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Does the Union subscribe to the Daily Worker?

A. It is right there in the library. I don't know whether it is—there are times we had the Daily Worker there, and we had the Hearst Press, and all the publications.

Q. Did you ever subscribe to the Western Worker? A. No.

Q. Do you ever read any Communist literature yourself? A. No.

Q. Do you ever buy any Communist publications?

A. I used to read the New Masses, but if it is a

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Communist paper—as far as I am concerned it may be a Republican paper, but I read it just as good. [2723]

Q. Have you ever been a member of the American League against War and Fascism?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever been a member of the American League for Peace and Democracy?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever contributed money to those organizations?

A. I don't remember; I don't remember at all.

Q. You may have contributed?

A. At times, probably, maybe to the Tom Mooney Defense Committee—I want to be truthful—to the Tom Mooney Defense Committee. They had some boxes collecting money, but I don't know. I never paid any attention to the boxes. I used to throw in a dime or a nickle.

Q. If you did contribute money to any of those organizations, the American League against War and Fascism, the American League for Peace and Democracy, you would know about it?

A. I wouldn't, because whenever I went to a labor meeting I figured if they were collecting money for something, and maybe it wasn't important, but from the point of view as a union man I used to put a nickle or dime in the box.

Q. Did you ever subscribe to the People's World? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. How many times, did you say, you had met Bridges? [2724] A. Twice.

Q. Did you have any conversations with him at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever ask him if he was a member of the Communist Party? A. Pardon?

Q. Did you ever ask him if he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I never spoke to Bridges in my life.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Gladstein, counsel here?

A. Mr. Gladstein—I met him today.

Q. For the first time?

A. For the first time; yes.

Q. Do you know Mr. Margolis?

A. I met Mr. Margolis yesterday in Los Angeles.

Q. Do you know Mr. Leo Gallagher?

A. Not to talk to him. I also met him at some meetings.

Q. At what meetings?

A. One of the Tom Mooney defense meetings most of the time, because I was a member of the Tom Mooney Defense Committee from our union, from the ILGWU.

Q. Do you know Mr. Al Wirin?

A. Al Wirin—yes, but not to talk to him. That was when they had the Civil Liberties Forum in Los Angeles several years ago. Dr. Taft used to conduct those forums. [2725]

Q. Who asked you to testify in this case?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. Who asked me to testify in this case?

Q. Yes.

A. When we were discussing, you know, the members of the union were talking about this——

Q. (Interposing) Can't you answer the question, who asked you to testify?

Mr. Gladstein: The witness started to answer.

Presiding Inspector: If you tell, you can tell directly; if you cannot tell you may explain.

A. I said to some of the union there that if it would be necessary to give my true statement as far as Tommy Laurence's behavior is concerned in the union, I would do it.

A few days later I had a call from the defense office, from the Bridges Defense office. Somebody called me up at my house. I told him whatever I knew about Tommy Laurence.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Who called you?

A. A fellow by the name of Samuels.

Q. Samuels?

A. Yes; Samuels. I think he is connected in Los Angeles with the Bridges Defense office.

Q. What did he say?

A. He asked me if I am a member of that particular union and "Do you know Tommy Laurence?" I told him "Yes." I told [2726] him some things and he jotted it down.

Then Sunday night, to be correct, Saturday night, Mr. Margolis called me up at the house.

Q. Who called you? A. Mr. Margolis.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. Margolis?

A. Yes. And yesterday I went out to see him.

Q. Where, in Los Angeles?

A. In Los Angeles. And I told him what I know about Tommy Laurence and that I got it through our union as a member of the Union.

He took notes. And then he asked if I, whether I would be willing to come up to San Francisco today to testify. I told him it would be hard because I was all packed to go away—it was just a family affair—to Chicago, and I would have to be there the 10th.

Q. But you had previously let it be known that you were willing to testify?

A. I didn't know until yesterday that I would have to come up here. I simply told him what I knew about this case. I have never appeared as a witness in court before. This is my first experience.

Q. What were the names of those union men you say you were talking to about Thomas Laurence?

A. Quite a few; I don't remember their names.

[2727]

Q. Don't you remember the names of any?

A. Well, a fellow by the name of Cooper—C-o-o-p-e-r.

Q. What is his first name?

A. I think it is—I don't know his first name. He is just called "Cooper".

Q. Cooper—C-o-o-p-e-r? A. Correct.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. Is he is a member of your Union?

A. Yes; a member.

Q. Who else?

A. Who else was around—I really can't recall. There were quite a few around, but I can't recall all these names.

Q. Cooper is the only one that you remember?

A. There were quite a few, but I don't remember. I think they forwarded my name to the Defense Committee—I don't know who.

Q. Who forwarded your name?

A. I don't know; that I wouldn't know. There was quite a group there.

Q. By "quite a group" how many men were around?

A. There were about ten or twelve around.

Q. When did this occur, when you were talking about Thomas Laurence with these men?

A. It was about the latter part, not of last week, but the previous week, week before last, about the latter part, I [2728] think it was. I don't remember the exact date.

Q. It was after Thomas Laurence had appeared to testify in this proceeding?

A. Yes, it was after that; right shortly afterwards.

Q. Where did this take place?

A. In the office of the union.

Q. In whose office—anybody's in particular?

A. Our headquarters has offices around, and there is a place where the workers congregate and talk about different things.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. Was it in the big assembly hall or in a small office?

A. It was right in the union headquarters; and in the big assembly hall would be more proper.

Q. Who started the discussion about Thomas Laurence?

A. When I got there they were discussing it already.

Q. Do you know who were discussing it?

A. Those workers standing around there, but I don't remember exactly who it was.

Q. What were they saying?

A. They were just talking about Tommy Laurence, and each one expressing his opinion, and the way he always expresses himself about Harry Bridges, and it wasn't no surprise that that was the general opinion of all the workers.

Q. What did they say—when you got there what were they saying? [2729]

A. When I got there—this was the very thing and that is why I stopped to hear what they were talking about—they were saying they would be surprised if Tommy Laurence would not testify against Bridges, or anybody else, in order to get a few dollars. That is the remark I heard. I don't know who said it.

Q. What did you say?

A. I didn't pass no comment on it at all. I was just standing there and listening. Finally I told them, "As far my association with Tommy Laurence is concerned, and as much as I know Tommy Laurence, I would not be a bit afraid or ashamed to go up and tell what I know of my experiences as a union officer, as far as Tommy Laurence is concerned, and as far as his disappearance from office was concerned, about a year and a half ago, without any explanation, and the general conduct." So I figured if this would help in any way to clear matters up as far as Tommy Laurence was concerned, I would do it.

Q. Help whom, help Harry Bridges

A. No, no—just to prove to the State, or whoever it may be, whoever may call me, as far as the behavior and the character of Tommy Laurence was concerned. I wasn't concerned about Bridges then at all.

Q. Did you ever talk to any Government Agent about this? A. No, sir.

Q. Why didn't you go to a Government Agent?

[2730]

Mr. Gladstein: I submit that is immaterial, and it is argumentative. I object to it as being improper.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is argumentative, but I will take it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Why didn't you tell the Government Agent?

A. If a Government Agent were to call on me I would extend them the very same courtesy as I extended the attorneys for the defense. And I would extend the same courtesy to the United States Government.

Q. You had heard Thomas Laurence had been called by the Government as a witness, hadn't you?

A. I didn't know it until I was shown the newspaper, the Los Angeles Times. I didn't know he was called as a witness until then.

Q. Who showed it to you?

A. A paper was there at the time all the workers were discussing this matter.

Q. At the time they were having this discussion?

A. Yes.

Q. That is the first time that you had known that Thomas Laurence had appeared as a witness?

A. I knew it a day or two before; either on a Friday or on a Monday.

Q. Then you did know about it before you saw it in the [2731] Times?

A. I don't know whether it was on Monday or Friday that I saw it the first time, the picture of Thomas Laurence in the Los Angeles Times.

Q. And you saw it for the first time when you were having this discussion at the union?

A. The discussion took place a day or two days later; I don't exactly remember.

Q. Did you know that Thomas Laurence was a member of the Communist Party while he was a member of your union?

A. No, I didn't know that. There were rumors that he was a member of the Party at that time.

Q. Did you take any action after you heard the rumor that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. We usually take action, as members of the Executive Board, whenever a certain complaint is filed. It was not within my jurisdiction to take action on Tommy Laurence. He was not a member of my local union. It was only the Joint Board, which consists of delegates of all executive boards, that could take action upon a matter pertaining to a member of a different local.

Q. Thomas Laurence was never a member of your local union? A. No.

Q. At any time? A. At no time. [2732]

Q. Didn't you think it strange, Mr. Bernstein, that Thomas Laurence, a member of the Communist Party, would call others "Reds"?

The Witness: May I answer?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

A. Tommy Laurence, I was told, was a member of the Communist Party until around possibly '34 or thereabouts.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Who told you that?

A. Some workers in the Union were always saying that he was. He was accused many times. Whenever a question was taken up on the floor of the union it was brought out by some that he was a member of the Communist Party.

Q. Did you ever attend union meetings in which Thomas Laurence was present?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. I could not attend any of his local meetings. Whenever it was a mass meeting, or a joint executive board meeting, those are the meetings I attended. I didn't attend any of the local meetings of his union.

Q. In what capacity did you attend those meetings?

A. The joint executive board meetings. I attended in the capacity as a delegate from my local union to the executive board.

Q. Did you participate in the discussions?

A. Yes; right along.

Q. Did Thomas Laurence ever participate in those [2733] discussions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it in any of those discussions that he accused you of being a Red?

A. No. He never accused me directly. Whenever he talked he always called everybody, every member in the union who did not agree with him on trade union questions, he used to call them a Red; but not me directly.

Mr. Del Guercio: May we have a recess now?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Whereupon a short recess was taken.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. Bernstein, were you ever a member of the Unemployed Relief Workers Union?

A. No, sir.

Q. At any time? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know if Thomas Laurence had ever been arrested? A. I don't know.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. What? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever make it a point to find out if he had been? A. No.

Q. Were you interested in finding out if he had ever [2734] been arrested? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Laurence was a member in good standing of the union to which he belongs?

A. I think he is a member in good standing.

Q. And always was during the time that you knew him?

A. I think he was. He is not a member of my local. I think he was a member in good standing.

Q. Could a person be a liar and be a member in good standing in a union? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He could? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Could a person be a Communist and be a member of a union? A. That I don't know.

Q. Have you ever been arrested?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever had any trouble with the police at any time? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever been held for investigation?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever participated in any demonstrations? A. No, sir.

Q. You know where the Plaza is in Los Angeles?

[2735]

A. I pass there in my car, my automobile, almost every day, the Plaza.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. Did you ever stop to listen to speeches there in the Plaza? A. No.

Q. Have you ever attended Communist Party meetings?

A. I never attended Communist Party meetings.

Q. At any time in Los Angeles, or anywhere else? A. At no time, nowhere.

Q. Have you lived in Los Angeles all the time?

A. All the time in Los Angeles.

Q. Have you ever had any dealing, business or otherwise, with Leo Gallagher? A. No, sir.

Q. You know who he is?

A. I know who he is; yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever been a party to any suit?

A. No, sir.

Q. In any court?

A. No. This is my first experience in court.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. The expression "good standing in a union" simply means that a man is paying his dues? [2736]

A. Paid up to 13 weeks, a man is in good standing.

Q. And it doesn't have anything to do with his character or reputation, does it? A. No, sir.

Q. When you mentioned that the Daily Worker was in your union reading room, were you referring to the ILGWU?

A. Referring to the ILGWU.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. Now, you used the expression, "Olympic days," when you were talking about the time you had a gasoline station in 1932 or thereabouts?

A. Yes.

Q. That is a reference to the time that the Olympic Games were being held in Los Angeles?

A. Correct.

Q. When your local union of the ILGWU was expelled from the International, and you joined this other industrial union, I want to ask you whether, in order to keep their jobs in the industry, it was necessary at that time for the bulk of the membership of the former ILGWU local to join the new industrial union?

A. It was for the benefit of those that joined, for the benefit of any member to join a labor union that existed at that particular time, and then this was the union that existed at that particular time.

Q. In that industry? A. Yes. [2737]

Q. Was there any other trade union in that industry and covering the shops in which you and these other workers were employed, that you could have joined?

A. While I had a gasoline station then the old local was reorganized; but I was not in the trade then.

Q. But during the period that you were in the industrial union was there any other union that you could have joined which would have given you protection of your job in the shop where you were working?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. There was some kind of an office, but no shops whatsoever for a short period of time, controlled by any other union to my knowledge.

Q. Except the one that you joined?

A. Except the one I joined.

Q. Now, you mentioned, in answer to Mr. Del Guercio's questions, that on some occasions when you went into the office you found Tom Laurence engaged in conversation with workers who were making complaints to him. Is that correct?

A. Correct.

Mr. Del Guercio: That was not in answer to my question.

Presiding Inspector: He testified to that, I think.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you state whether, during those occasions the workers were accusing Laurence of lying to them? [2738]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, your Honor, as being improper.

Presiding Inspector: I think you opened the door to it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't ask that question at all, if he had ever heard any conversations with Thomas Laurence, and the record will so show. Counsel started that and you ruled it out.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, he couldn't show that as direct matter, specific instances. He was confined in the first instance to conversations. But you went into the subject of conversations.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Conversations where a group of union men were gathered around.

Mr. Myron: I think you are wrong. I think the only conversation brought out in regard to his testimony here——

Presiding Inspector: He said—I don't mean direct conversations, but in general—didn't this witness say that they would be on opposite sides of arguments and that Thomas Laurence called them "Reds," his opponents, "Reds," and "Communists," and "Bolsheviks," and he gave it back to them?

Mr. Del Guercio: He testified that he never heard Laurence directly call him a "Red".

Presiding Inspector: Not him, no; but he called those [2739] with whom he was having controversies "Reds," and I understood him to say that he gave it back to them.

Mr. Gladstein: I think your Honor is correct in his recollection.

Presiding Inspector: That is my recollection. I think I will take it. If I am wrong in that you may move to strike it out.

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question, please.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q. Will you state whether during those occasions the workers were accusing Laurence of lying to them?")

A. Yes.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you understand the question?

Presiding Inspector: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: Yes, I understand the question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. All right. Answer.

A. (Continuing) Just briefly, yes. On several occasions workers approached Tommy Laurence and tell him as their representative that their complaints as far as the shops were concerned were not attended to properly or not attended to at all by Tommy Laurence. So that was the time commotions started because, as I stated before, he, in turn, [2740] would call them "Reds", "Communists", and "You are nothing but a bunch of liars." Then it was proven that these complaints were actually never attended to.

Presiding Inspector: There was a good deal of bantering back and forth?

The Witness: Just on trade union matters, yes.

Presiding Inspector: They called each other "Communists"?

The Witness: No, but——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Is that right? Did they call each other "Communists" and "Reds"?

The Witness: But these workers——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) "Liars" and other "polite" things like that?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

The Witness: No. These workers did not come back at Tommy Laurence because he was their superior officer and probably at times for fear of losing their jobs they would not. That was where I used to step in and tell Tommy Laurence that he is not acting right as a union official to abuse the workers the way he does. Then at that time he used to come back at me, too.

Presiding Inspector: So you had it back and forth?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is all.

Recross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio: [2741]

Q. Do you know if any of the persons whom Laurence accused of being Communists were or were not members of the Communist Party?

A. Many of these here workers that he used to accuse——

Q. (Interposing) Of your own knowledge?

A. Many of these here workers that he used to accuse I can vouch that they were absolutely very far from it, because on many occasions, if they thought somebody is trying to bring in at one time or another some political questions in the union, the very same workers would oppose those workers that try to bring in political questions in the union.

Q. Are you opposed to Communism?

A. I don't know anything about it. I never made a study of it.

Q. So you are not opposed to it?

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

A. I never made a study of it.

Q. You never made a what?

A. I never made a study of Communism.

Q. "Story"? A. Study.

Mr. Gladstein: Study.

Presiding Inspector: He never made a study of it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. So your answer is that you were not opposed to Communism because you never made a study of it? [2742]

A. I never made a study of it because I don't know anything about it, pro or con.

Q. Would you say that Communism is good for the United States?

A. I don't know what it is. I know about the New Deal or NRA because I was for it.

Q. The NRA was for Communism?

A. No. I made a study of the NRA. It was good for the workers. It is good for the citizens of the United States.

Presiding Inspector: He has left Communism. He is talking about the NRA.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all. Just a minute, if your Honor please.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you ever write an article for the Western Worker? A. Never did.

Q. Do you know of any other David Bernstein?

A. No.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Q. Huh? A. I don't know.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all, your Honor, at the present time. We want an opportunity to investigate this man's character.

Presiding Inspector: With every single one of the witnesses you will have this same request. He is only a [2743] character witness. He doesn't know anything about the main subject here.

Mr. Del Guercio: I have in mind, your Honor, when I make this request, of course, conducting an investigation. We intend to do that. But I also have in mind Mrs. Lovelace here who had a better reason than this witness for going back to her home in Seattle and who was kept here for two days.

Mr. Gladstein: That was for further cross examination. Now counsel has indicated that he has no further questions. I am asking the court to excuse the witness, but if the Government feels that they want Mr. Bernstein back at a future time, when he has come back to Los Angeles or wherever they may find him let them call him as their witness.

Presiding Inspector: He can still get to Chicago.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I think he had better stay if they want him.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want him until tomorrow?

Mr. Del Guercio: We will abide by whatever the Court says.

Presiding Inspector: I really don't think it is worth while.

(Testimony of David Bernstein.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Very well.

Presiding Inspector: You may go.

The Witness: Thank you, your Honor. [2744]

Presiding Inspector: How long are you going to be gone?

The Witness: I will be back on the 17th of June.

Presiding Inspector: The 17th of June?

The Witness: Unless something will come up I will be here again.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want to leave a forwarding address with Judge Sears?

The Witness: I will do that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the witness has been excused, your Honor. All this isn't necessary.

Presiding Inspector: All right. You are excused. You needn't leave any address.

Mr. Gladstein: Thank you very much, Mr. Bernstein.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Appel, please.

BERNARD APPEL

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Appel, your last name is spelled how?

A. B-e-r-n-a-r-d.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. That is your first name, Bernard?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your last name is what? [2745]

A. A-p-p-e-l.

Q. And where do you reside?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Where do you live?

A. 131 West Norwood Place, Wilmar, California.

Q. Is that part of Los Angeles?

A. Well, it is a suburb of Los Angeles.

Q. Are you a man of family? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does your family consist of?

A. I have two boys in high school and my wife.

Q. And do you reside at that address with your family?

A. Yes, sir; for the last 15 years.

Q. Are you a member of any fraternal organizations?

A. I belong to the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Mantle Club.

Q. You say you belong to the American Legion. Of what Post? A. 397, Monterey Park.

Q. Where? A. Monterey Park.

Q. How long have you been a member of that Post?

A. Five months. I used to belong to another post.

Q. And what was the post to which you used to belong? A. 399. [2746]

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. And when did you first become a member of the American Legion?

A. Oh, it is about six, seven years ago.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the founding of any post of that organization?

A. I was an Adjutant when we formed the Veterans of Foreign Wars' Post 1052 in Monterey Park.

Q. How long have you been a member of that organization?

A. Well, I was a year a member of that. It is only about two years old and I dropped out because the meeting nights were changed so I couldn't attend the Mantle Club, and the Mantle Club is compulsory to attend meetings. But I rejoined again since they changed their meeting nights.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. I am a ladies' garment cutter.

Q. That is in the women's apparel industry, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you a member of a trade union?

A. Yes, sir. I belong to the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

Q. How long have you been a member of that organization? A. About eleven years.

Q. Are you now a member of that organization?

A. Yes, sir. [2747]

Q. What local do you belong to?

A. Local 84. That is the Cutters' Local.

Q. How long have you belonged to that local?

A. This same time.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. During that period of time, Mr. Appel, have you had occasion to meet a man by the name of Thomas Laurence?

A. Yes, sir. I know him well, because he worked in the same trade as I am, and prior to us forming a union, we have tried to organize the cutters and we formed the Cutters' Club, and he was active in that the same as I was and a number of others, and we had occasion to work together quite closely because of that. Well,——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) What kind of a club was that?

The Reporter: Cutters' Club.

A. (Continuing) Well, it fell apart in time. We didn't seem to be able to stick together, and I believe it was in 1932 the International came in and organized a small group of workers in the needle industry and they called us out on strike. I was working at that time in the Ladies' Dress Industry and they called a general strike in the ladies' dresses, and after that we have had a union ever since and we have worked in the Cutters' Local together. He used to be a member of the Executive Board. So was I, and I was on the Joint Board and so was he at times. And so we had plenty of occa- [2748] sion to work together.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, when you say you were a member of the "Joint Board", does that have reference to the supervising or highest body in Los Angeles composed of delegates from the various local unions of the I.L.G.W.U.?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. That's right. That's the head of the needle industry in Los Angeles.

Q. Now, have you ever had occasion to talk with Mr. Laurence concerning Harry Bridges?

A. I did have quite a number of occasions and I would put it in the following manner: We were affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and I believe it was three years ago the national office decided that it would be best for us to join the CIO. So we left the Federation of Labor and joined the CIO, and in order to be able to function they have formed what they call a CIO Council. All those unions that have belonged to the CIO in Los Angeles and vicinity formed a council.

Well, Tommy Laurence was delegated to be a member on that council, and after a little while when the council was functioning there seemed to have been differences of opinion how to run that council and those differences became quite bitter in the course of a short few weeks, I would say, and Tommy Laurence attributed all these troubles that he thought were [2749] troubles to Harry Bridges. Of course, not being in the council I don't know just where he connected that up. I couldn't say.

Q. What did he say to you concerning Bridges?

A. Well, he——

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I object to that, your Honor. Just a moment! I object to this line of testimony as being immaterial, what he said about Harry Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. It is to show bias.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, your Honor.

A. (Continuing) He referred to him, if he spoke to me—we sometimes met in front of the union or in the union and talk about his trials and tribulations in the CIO council, and he would say that "I hate that Bridges! That son of a bitch! I would do anything in the world to 'get' him! I would even lie to hang him!" And he said that to me a number of times, and any time he spoke about Bridges he certainly wasn't very complimentary.

Among other things he appeared to me a number of times and he said that "Bridges and John L. Lewis made it a practice to appoint nothing but Communists in the top men in the unions". He was actually bitter. I would say that that man was a little bit unbalanced on that question.

By Mr. Gladstein: [2750]

Q. At what time were these conversations taking place? Two or three years ago?

A. Two or three years ago. We would meet and he certainly didn't speak very well of Bridges and John L. Lewis.

Q. Did you ever have occasion to ask Mr. Laurence whether he claimed that Harry Bridges was a Communist Party member?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. Yes. You see, being that he connected up Bridges and Lewis with Communism I asked him at one time, I says, "Tommy, do you know whether Bridges is a Communist?"

He says, "No, but he sure is dominated by Communists". He says—excuse my expression. He says "That son of a bitch sure is dominated by Communists!"

Q. He told you that he was going to "get" Bridges and he would even lie to hang him?

A. That is just what he said.

Q. Did you ever hear Tom Laurence make speeches in the union in which he attacked Harry Bridges?

A. He most certainly has. He attacked him in the bitterest way.

Q. When he made these attacks on Bridges could you characterize the manner of his attack?

A. Well,——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, I think that is uncalled for. Does he want this witness to [3751] give an act up here on the witness stand, characterize or what?

Mr. Gladstein: I think the question is proper.

Presiding Inspector: I think he can answer that. He doesn't have to give an act. He is to characterize in words not in deed.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

A. (Continuing) Well, I would put it in the following manner: He spoke about how Bridges was maneuvering in the maritime unions. I can't report those explanations because I am not at all familiar with the structure of the maritime workers. So it was Greek to me what he spoke about it. But when he spoke about it he seemed to have—he tried very hard to create an impression that Bridges was an evil force in the maritime union and I would actually say, I mean by his expressions, he would charge him with dishonesty.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Now, when Laurence made these attacks on the union floor against Bridges will you describe for us how he conducted himself?

A. Well, I would say that without exaggeration, that in time it became so that you could tell—any man could tell who would take a little look at him—that he was actually frantic. He wasn't talking like a normal person and he would do the same thing when he talked with me about Bridges. He [2752] just,——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I move to strike that answer out.

Mr. Gladstein: He hasn't finished the answer yet.

Presiding Inspector: Strike the last out. It wasn't responsive.

Mr. Gladstein: What last? What part?

Presiding Inspector: "He also said it when he talked with me."

Mr. Gladstein: Oh, all right.

Presiding Inspector: Strike that out because that wasn't what you were asking him.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Would you say, Mr. Appel, that it appeared to you when Laurence was making these attacks against Mr. Bridges as to whether or not Laurence appeared to have an obsession on Bridges?

A. I would definitely say he had and he has.

Q. Did Laurence ever tell you that he would lie to "get" Harry Bridges out of the labor movement? A. He certainly did.

Q. Do you know Harry Bridges?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever met him? [2753]

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever seen him before?

A. Well, I have seen him when Tom Mooney was freed. Our union held a mass meeting in—I forget now the name of the largest auditorium in Los Angeles. It is not the Olympic. It's a stadium anyway. It was so large, I was sitting away back that I could see the man speak. I mean, I could see him there and I could hear occasionally a word, but I couldn't tell his features at all. I wouldn't recognize him if I see him.

Q. That is the only time you were ever present at a place where he was?

A. That is the only time I would say that I have seen him.

Mr. Gladstein: You may cross examine.

Presiding Inspector: When did these statements and these expressions occur?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

The Witness: Your Honor, I would say about the last two and a half years because, if I remember correctly, we joined the CIO about three years ago. But we are out of it again and we are in the American Federation of Labor. Since that time, since our being affiliated with the CIO he became hateful of—I mean, in words he spoke hateful of Bridges and Lewis and Communists and we used to talk in front of the union waiting for the meeting or hang around there after work, and he would speak to me about it and he invariably would make a [2754] speech the kind I am telling you.

Presiding Inspector: Let me ask you one more question. He occupied certain positions in the union?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Was he elected to those?

The Witness: No.

Presiding Inspector: How did he get them?

The Witness: Well, sir, it is this way: It is customary in our union to elect Business Agents, but it so happened that it was what you call "mid-term". So he was appointed to represent chiefly the cutters, and if the cutters have some difficulty in the shop it was his duty to go and try to straighten it out with the employer.

Well, he held that job down—I don't recollect how many months. I would say possibly eight months, and all at once he disappeared, didn't tell anybody. It is customary in the union if an official wishes to resign——

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I didn't ask you about this.

The Witness: Oh, yes.

Presiding Inspector: I was simply asking you how he was chosen.

The Witness: He was nominated.

Presiding Inspector: By the—— [2755]

The Witness: (Interposing) By the Manager.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. And who was the Manager?

The Witness: I believe Lutzky.

The Reporter: Spell it, please.

The Witness: L-u-t-z-k-y.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want to ask any more questions?

Mr. Gladstein: No, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: We will take a recess now until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(Whereupon at 4:10 P. M. an adjournment was taken until Tuesday, May 6, 1941, at 10:00 A. M.) [2756]

Court Room 276,
Federal Building,
San Francisco, California,
May 6, 1941.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10:00 A. M. [2757]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: Call your witness, Mr. Grossman.

Mr. Grossman: Take the stand, please, Mr. Appel.

Before we proceed, your Honor, yesterday at the beginning of the session Mr. Del Guercio requested that the transcript be changed, substituting, I believe, the spelling "M-a-a-s" for "M-a-y-e-s" in several places in the transcript.

We have examined those portions of the transcript and we cannot agree to any change. Our position is that if the reporter's statement is that that was his hearing and recollection of the testimony, we do not——

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't matter a bit. There doesn't have to be any change because they both sound the same and will be considered the same by the trier of the facts probably. They are what is called idem sonans. It doesn't make any difference about the spelling.

Now, Mr. Del Guercio, you have the witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: Have you finished on direct?

Mr. Grossman: We are through with our direct.

Presiding Inspector: You know the rule about names sounding the same.

Mr. Grossman: We didn't make the request. Apparently the Government thinks it is important; we don't.

Presiding Inspector: You don't think it is important and I don't either because I think they are just the same name. [2758]

Mr. Del Guercio: Mr. Myron will take over the cross examination.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

BERNARD APPEL

Q. Now, you say that you served in Russia, is that correct? A. Yes, sir; North Russia.

Q. For how long a period?

A. Just to the degree that I wouldn't kill people.

Q. What is that?

A. Just to the degree I would serve my country in any other capacity except killing people.

Q. And you haven't stated to the public in general or to any individual——

A. (Interposing) No, I had no occasion to.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Have you advised any people——

A. (Interposing) No, sir. I had no occasion to.

A. Definitely no.

Q. In defense of the nation? A. No.

Q. When did you become a member of the American Legion?

Q. What Post did you join at that time?

A. Richard Garvey Post.

Q. What is that?

A. Richard Garvey Post. [2763]

Q. Where is that? A. In Wilmar.

Q. Does that have a number?

A. I think it is 399.

Q. 299? A. 399. I think it is 399.

Q. 399. How did you become a member of that?

A. Like everybody else would.

Q. Well, would you state how you did become a member?

A. A neighbor of mine came around and asked me to join the Post and I did.

Q. Who was the neighbor?

A. I don't know his name now.

Q. And have you continued as a member of that Post up to date?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. I continued—No, not up to date. I dropped out because their meeting nights——

Q. (Interposing) When did you drop out?

A. I don't remember the year.

Q. Well, was it last year or the year before?

A. I think two years ago.

Q. You say you joined about five years ago?

A. I think so.

Q. Now, you dropped out about two years ago? [2764]

A. I think so. I am not sure.

Q. That would be around 1939 or the latter part of '38?

A. Maybe. I don't remember the year.

Q. Now, did you re-join subsequently?

A. I re-joined now, about January or December.

Q. The same Post?

A. No. I re-joined the Monterey Park Post, 397.

Q. Why didn't you join the same Post that you were a member of, before?

A. Well, I liked the boys in 397 that I knew there better and I thought that attending meetings, I would rather join with boys that I know better than I knew in some of the other Posts.

Q. Did you get along easy with the boys in the Post that you previously belonged to?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't have any trouble with them?

A. Not at all.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. But still you joined a different Post this time?

A. I enjoyed their company better, that's all.

Q. What is the number of this Post?

A. 397.

Q. 397? A. Right. [2765]

Q. Who was the Commander of the Post 399 when you joined?

A. I believe it was McDermott.

Q. Was there a subsequent Commander during your membership?

A. Maybe so, but I don't remember.

Q. Did you attend meetings while you were a member of that Post? A. Not very often.

Q. You weren't a very active member of the Post? A. No. I had no time.

Q. Now, you say you re-joined 397?

A. Right.

Q. About when?

A. I think it was December.

Q. December of what year?

A. 1940. I got my card for 1941.

Q. That was last December? A. Yes.

Q. Who asked you to join that Post?

A. I wanted to join on my own volition.

Q. And how did you join?

A. I have a friend of mine who is a Past Commander, Barney Barris, who I know for about fifteen years and I asked him to induct me into his Post. And he did. [2766]

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. And have you continued up to date as a member of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you attended meetings?

A. No, sir.

Q. Never attended a meeting?

A. Only attended one.

Q. One meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the course of two years?

A. Not two years. From 1940, December, until now is not two years.

Q. Of course, you were a member of 399?

A. Yes.

Q. For a period of about two years, and a member of this Post for a period of about six months?

A. Six months.

Q. And you attended one meeting during the course of your membership?

A. Oh, no. I attended more in the other Post.

Q. How many meetings did you attend?

A. Quite a number of them.

Q. Quite a number? A. Yes.

Q. But you were not an active member? [2767]

A. No.

Q. And you have never been an active member?

A. I don't know what you mean "active".

Q. What is that?

A. What do you mean "active"?

Q. Attend meetings, participate in debate.

A. As I say, I attended a number of meetings there.

Q. Vote on questions and such things as that?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. That's right.

Q. That is what I mean by "active". Now, were you an active member?

A. I wouldn't say very active, no.

Q. You were not an active member?

A. No. I attended meetings.

Q. Was it because you are a conscientious objector? A. No, sir. [2768]

Q. Of course, the American Legion is in favor of everybody defending the country, isn't that true?

A. So am I.

Q. But you don't believe in anybody taking up arms?

A. I didn't say that I don't believe in taking up arms, but I believe in serving my country.

Q. I say, you don't believe in taking up arms—the American Legion advocates taking up arms in the defense of the nation? A. Yes.

Q. Is that why you weren't a very active member? A. No.

Q. Why weren't you a very active member?

A. Just didn't have time.

Q. Well, were you going around stating to other people that they should not take up arms?

A. No, sir; never did.

Q. I think you stated you were a member of the Medical Corps while you were in the army?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of course, you weren't wounded during the war?

A. No, sir; but I have a citation for heroism.

Q. What is that?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. I have a citation for heroism.

Q. Are you receiving compensation? [2769]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you examined? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By whom?

A. The medical staff in Sawtelle.

Q. Where? A. In Sawtelle.

Q. Where is that? A. In Los Angeles.

Q. That is the Veterans Bureau in Los Angeles?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when were you examined?

A. A little better than a year ago.

Q. Was that the first time?

A. Oh, no. I have been re-examined.

Q. Let's find out the first time you were examined. Can you state that? A. No. sir.

Q. You don't know when you were first examined? A. No.

Q. Did you apply for compensation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you don't know when you did apply?

A. I don't remember the year. I have drawed the compensation for a number of years. [2770]

Q. Well, you can give us the approximate time —was it ten years ago or fifteen years ago?

A. No, I don't think it is ten years; possibly seven.

Q. About seven years ago?

A. Maybe so; yes.

Q. That would be some time around '34, 1934?

A. Maybe; I don't remember the year.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. As a result of that examination did you receive compensation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the diagnosis?

A. Heart trouble.

Q. Heart trouble? A. Yes.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Because I was examined by other doctors too and was treated after I came out of the army —I treated myself—because I had heart trouble.

Q. When?

A. In 1919 when I came out of service.

Q. You were examined by doctors and treated for heart trouble? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It wasn't until 1933 or 1934, that you applied for compensation, is that right? [2771]

A. Right.

Q. And you say that at that time the diagnosis showed heart trouble? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the reason that you were paid?

A. Heart and glandular trouble.

Q. Now, there was nothing else?

A. I didn't claim anything else.

Q. I say, nothing else was shown on the record?

A. I don't know; I didn't read the record.

Q. You knew what they found wrong with you?

A. That is what I said, heart and glandular trouble, as far as I know, but I didn't get to read the records.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. As far as you know there was nothing else wrong with you except heart trouble?

A. That is all.

Q. Were you subsequently examined?

A. What do you mean by "subsequently?"

Q. After 1934, as you stated.

A. Every two years or so I am called in for an examination.

Q. They examined you again in 1936 or thereabouts? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what did the diagnosis show then?

A. They didn't tell me. [2772]

Q. They didn't tell you? A. No, sir.

Q. You never found out? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't know whether it was heart trouble or——

A. (Interposing) No, sir. That is what I complained about. What they found they didn't tell me. They never tell me what they find.

Q. Now, after 1936 or thereabouts were you examined again?

A. Yes. I believe it is about every two years that I have been examined.

Q. That would be about 1936—1938?

A. I wouldn't want to say the years because I don't know. I am telling you how it works.

Q. Well, you gave approximately——

A. (Interposing) Approximately; yes.

Q. (Continuing) ——about seven years ago as the first examination? A. I think so.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. That would be '34. And a subsequent examination was about two years later, in 1936?

A. I think I am called in every two years for the examination.

Q. There was another examination in '38?

[2773]

A. About, I would say, a year and a half ago I was examined.

Q. When was the last examination?

A. As I say, about a year and a half ago.

Q. That was some time in '39?

A. I would say so.

Q. About the latter part of '39?

A. I don't remember just when; I would estimate it as then.

Q. What was the diagnosis then?

A. They didn't tell me. I complained about the same thing.

Q. How much compensation are you receiving?

A. $29.00.

Q. Did you find that you were subject to hysteria? A. No, sir.

Q. You are sure of that, now?

A. I am sure of that.

Q. And still you don't know what they did find?

A. No; they didn't find any such thing because I have no such complaint.

Q. I am asking you what they found, if you know?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. They didn't tell me what they found. They were examining my heart and not my mind.

Q. That is the only thing they did examine you for? A. That is all. [2774]

Q. You wouldn't say that they didn't find that you were subject to hysteria?

A. I would say they didn't find that.

Q. Did the examination show hyperthyroidism?

A. It was heart and glandular trouble.

Presiding Inspector: He said glandular trouble.

Mr. Myron: I am asking now if the diagnosis showed——

Presiding Inspector: How is he supposed to know? He told you a half a dozen times that he hasn't seen the records.

Mr. Myron: I didn't understand that.

Presiding Inspector: I understood that.

Mr. Myron: I understood him to say he didn't know what the diagnosis showed.

Presiding Inspector: He hadn't seen the report. They never showed him the reports, he said.

Mr. Myron: I will take that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Is that so?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Didn't you say that?

The Witness: Yes, sir, I did, because they don't give me the report in my hands.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Did the doctors tell you——

A. (Interposing) No.

Q. They didn't tell you what was wrong with you? [2775]

A. No, sir.

Q. Did anybody connected with the Veterans Administration tell you what was wrong with you?

A. No, sir. The only thing I complained about was trouble with my heart, and that is what I have been examined for. What the doctors found I don't know because I don't get that paper to read and they don't tell me.

Q. Then as far as you know you went in and complained about your heart? A. That is all.

Q. And when you were examined you don't know what was found, and they paid you $29.00 a month compensation, is that right?

A. I know it was based on the trouble with my heart.

Presiding Inspector: How did you get the idea about glandular trouble?

The Witness: I was told that I had glandular trouble and heart trouble.

Presiding Inspector: Who told you?

The Witness: When I was examined the doctor said "Glandular trouble", and I didn't know where or what it meant.

Presiding Inspector: Then they did tell you something about the diagnosis?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

The Witness: No, sir. That is the only thing I asked, "What did you find, doctor?" and he said "Heart and glandular [2776] trouble," and no more.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Then the doctor did tell you——

A. (Interposing) That is the only thing he said.

Q. Who told you this?

A. One of the doctors.

Q. I thought you said a minute ago nobody told you anything.

A. As I said before, I had heart and glandular trouble, and the only way I knew it was because the doctor told me "Heart and glandular trouble."

Q. Didn't you say a moment ago no doctor told you anything about it?

A. No. This is the only thing they said.

Q. Then they did tell you something about it?

A. That is all, and I said that before.

Q. They didn't tell you that you were subject to hysteria, did they?

A. Absolutely no, because I am not.

Q. You are positive of that?

A. I am positive because I am not subject to hysteria.

Q. Well, now, think back——

A. (Interposing) I can think.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. (Continuing) ——no doctor connected with the Veterans Administration ever told you that?

A. I am positive. [2777]

Q. And no official of the Veterans Administration ever told you that? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is your wife active——

A. (Interposing) She joined the Veterans of Foreign—I thought you asked me if she was active?

Q. I haven't finished the question. Is she active in Legion affairs? A. No; she hasn't time.

Q. Is she a member of the Auxiliary of the——

A. (Interposing) She is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary.

Q. Are you a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What post? A. 1052.

Q. 1052? A. Right.

Q. How long have you been a member?

A. I was a member when it was formed. I was Adjutant of the Post.

Q. When was that?

A. About two years ago. [2778]

Q. How long? A. Two years ago.

Q. That was about 1939?

A. I think so; yes.

Q. And you have been a member ever since?

A. No. They changed the meeting nights to Mondays and I belonged to a fraternal organization where Monday meeting attendance is compulsory and I had to attend, so I didn't attend their meetings so I dropped out. I have rejoined now. [2779]

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. When did you re-join?

A. About four months ago. They changed their meeting nights to Wednesday, so I can attend their meetings.

Q. Is your wife a member of the Auxiliary?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To what Post does she belong?

A. 1052.

Q. And you are a member now of 1052?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is your wife a member of the Auxiliary of the American Legion? A. No, sir.

Q. Has she applied for membership?

A. No.

Q. As far as you know? A. No.

Q. Are you sure she hasn't?

A. Quite sure.

Q. Well, you would know if she had?

A. Well, not necessarily. But I don't know of it if she has.

Q. You don't know whether she has applied for membership in Post No. 393? A. No.

Q. Do you know where that Post is? [2780]

A. No.

Q. You don't know where that is located?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. No.

Q. Do you know where Wilmar is?

A. Wilmar? A. Yes.

Q. And you are sure, or you don't know whether she has applied for membership?

A. If it is the Richard Garvey Post then I know.

Q. What is that?

A. If it is the Richard Garvey Post then I know. I don't know it by number. I am not sure whether it is 399 or 393.

Q. But do you know whether she has applied for membership in that Post?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, if she has would you know?

A. Possibly. I wouldn't know necessarily.

Mr. Gladstein: It has been asked and answered several times.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. You wouldn't necessarily know?

A. I wouldn't necessarily know.

Presiding Inspector: I think you have covered that.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Is 393 the Post which you belonged to at one time?

A. If it is the Richard Garvey Post that's the Post I [2781] belonged to.

Q. And you transferred from that Post?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. No. I dropped out and I joined the Monterey Park Post.

Q. You are now in 397? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes.

Q. So that if she applied for membership in 393 it would be the Post to which you formerly belonged? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, who is the Commander of Post 1052 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars?

A. It's—I will tell you in a minute. I think it's Thomas.

Q. Thomas?

A. Thomas. There was a new election just recently.

Q. Is that a first name or last name?

A. Stewart Thomas or Thomas Stewart.

Q. Now, which is it? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know very much about this Post you just joined, do you? A. I do know.

Q. What? A. I do know. [2782]

Q. You should know the Commander's name.

A. There was an election just recently.

Q. All right. Do you know the Commander's name? A. I do.

Q. What is it? A. Stewart Thomas.

Q. Stewart Thomas?

A. Or Thomas Stewart.

Q. Which is it?

A. I don't know. I know the man. That is enough.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. You don't know very much about this Post?

A. I do know.

Mr. Grossman: I submit it is argumentative and obviously irrelevant.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is irrelevant.

Mr. Myron: I want to find out if he knows anything about this Post.

The Witness: I know the name.

Presiding Inspector: You have asked him about fourteen times.

Mr. Myron: And he hasn't given me an answer yet.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, he has. He said it was either Thomas Stewart or Stewart Thomas and he didn't know which it was.

Mr. Myron: I want to find out—— [2783]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) That's all you can find out.

The Witness: I know the man well. He is living in my district.

Presiding Inspector: You have asked him repeatedly. We have got to make some progress. Go ahead.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Now, you are a member of the I.L.G.W.U., is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, is that right? A. Right.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Where were you first employed after you became a member of that Union?

A. I was employed at the Well-Made Garment Company.

Q. At the Well-Made Garment Company?

A. Well-Made Garment.

Q. And when did your employment start at that company?

A. I believe it started in July, 1929.

Q. And you became a member of the union at that time?

A. No. We didn't have no union then.

Q. Well, when did you become a member of the union?

A. I believe it was in '32. We were called out on a general strike, and from that time on we had a union and I was [2784] a member ever since.

Q. That is in 1932? A. Right.

Q. At the time you were a member of the union you were called out on a general strike?

A. No. We were not members of the union. We had no union up until '32.

Q. Well,——

A. (Interposing) And we were called out. The shops that weren't organized were called out on strike.

Q. Who called you out?

A. The International.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. And you were not a member of the union?

A. There was nobody a member then. There was no union in Los Angeles then.

Q. Well, who had the right to call you out, not being a member of the union?

A. They have a right to call out workers and organize them.

Q. Well, who asked you to go out?

A. The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union established an office and asked us to join their union and called us out on a strike.

Q. Well, then, the union, as I understand it, was organized? [2785]

A. The union is organized.

Q. Now, just get this straight! The union was organized at the time you were working with this company and then they called you out, although you were not a member of the union, in a general strike. Is that true?

A. I began to work for this firm in 1929 and I worked for them six and a half years, which would take it to 1932 when I was called out on a strike.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think you quite get the question. Ask the question again.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. When did you become a member of the union, Mr. Appel. A. In 1932.

Q. What month?

A. I believe it was in March or April.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. March or April? A. Yes.

Q. Of 1932?

A. Wait! I wish to make a correction. I wish to make a correction. We have had the cutters—there was a little union started before that. I just remember. And a small group of us belonged to the Inernational then. It just flashed through my mind. It must have been about 1930.

Q. Then you want to correct that statement?

[2786]

A. Yes, I do.

Q. By stating that you were a member of the union prior to 1932? A. Yes.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now tell us when you first became a member of the union.

A. Tell you what?

Q. When you first became a member of the union. A. About '30 or so; 1930.

Q. About 1930? A. I think so.

Q. And that is what month in 1930?

A. I wouldn't remember.

Q. Now, when was the general strike that you have just referred to? A. I think '32.

Q. Well then, the general strike had nothing to do with your membership in the Union?

A. No, that's right. You are right.

Q. Is that right? A. I am wrong.

Q. Then you were wrong and I was right?

A. That is right. I just forgot.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. From 1930 to 1932 you were a member of this Inter- [2787] national Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, is that right? A. That's right.

Q. And in 1932 there was a general strike?

A. Right.

Q. And you were called out? A. Yes.

Q. And you participated in that strike?

A. Right.

Q. Is that right? A. Right.

Q. Now, that had no reference whatever to your membership in the union, to your joining the union; is that right? A. No.

Q. So you want to change that now?

A. What do you mean, "change it". I don't understand your question.

Q. Well, I understood you to say that as a result of a general strike——

A. (Interposing) No, no.

Q. (Continuing) ——in 1932——

A. (Interposing) No, that was wrong.

Q. That was wrong. All right. A. Yes.

Q. Now, when did you first meet Mr. Laurence?

A. I met him before that. We have tried to organize [2788] the cutters.

Q. Well now, just when? You can tell us the year or the month.

A. About 19—19—around 1929 or '30.

Q. About 1929 or '30?

A. I would say about that time.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Was he working for the same firm that you were working for? A. No, sir. No.

Q. How did you meet him?

A. In the union.

Q. This was in 1930?

A. I would say '29 or '30, yes.

Q. Well, of course you didn't join the union until 1930, did you?

A. Well, about that, yes. But I am trying to explain.

Q. Now, that is true, isn't it?

A. That's right.

Q. I want to get it straight.

A. I want to explain you something. Then you will get it straight.

Q. All right.

A. In 1929—the reason I know is because I was homesteading in '28 and I came back in '29, the end of June, back to Los Angeles. When I came back I got the job in Well-Made [2789] Garment Company in a dress house. From that time on we sort of talked about having an organization and a group of——

Q. (Interposing): Now, who is "we" and what is the organization?

A. We cutters in the dress industry. And we banded ourselves together and formed what we called the Cutters' Club, because there was no union then, and we succeeded in banding quite a group of cutters together in the industry. But somehow or other we didn't stay together and that club fell apart, and a small group of us remained and joined the International and Laurence was one of them. And that's how I know Laurence.

Q. Then you met Laurence prior to the time that you became a member of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union?

A. That's right, yes, in the club.

Q. And you didn't meet him in the union?

A. I met him in the club.

Q. What club did you meet him in?

A. I told you: The Cutters' Club. We formed the Cutters' Club.

Q. And where was that?

A. We used to meet in the Emiel Brown Building.

Q. What building?

A. The Emiel Brown Building. [2790]

Q. How do you spell that?

A. B-r-o-w-n. Emiel Brown. It is Ninth and Julian.

Q. Was that this Cutters' Club?

A. The Cutters' Club, yes.

Q. Club room?

A. Not a club room. We used to call ourselves the Cutters' Club, but we would meet not in the same place all the time. We would meet in Julian Street in a restaurant and sometimes meet in the Emiel Brown Building.

Q. Then you knew him socially before you were in any union?

A. No. Our club wasn't a social club.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Well, you met him in restaurants?

A. Not restaurants. We held our meeting in a restaurant.

Q. I see. Well, what restaurant was this?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. What restaurant were the meetings held in?

A. On Julian Street.

Q. Where?

A. On Julian between Eighth and Ninth.

Q. What was the name of it?

A. I don't know.

Q. And this was sometime in '29?

A. Yes. [2791]

Q. That you met him?

A. Yes; '29 and '30.

Q. And you met Mr. Laurence for the first time——

A. (Interposing): '29 or '30.

Q. Was it the early part of '29?

A. No. It couldn't be the early part because I came back in June of 1929 from homesteading.

Q. Were you friendly with him?

A. I wasn't friendly with him; I didn't know the man. I got acquainted with him.

Q. Did you become friendly with him?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you help organize this Cutters' Club? A. Yes.

Q. And did he help? A. Yes.

Q. Worked alongside of you? A. Yes.

Q. Together with you and others? A. Yes.

Q. In organizing this club?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. That's right.

Q. And then sometime in '30 you went into the——

A. (Interposing): International.

Q. (Continuing): ——American Federation of Labor? [2792] A. Right.

Q. That was the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union? A. That is right.

Q. And he worked with you and others?

A. Yes.

Q. In affiliating with this union?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. American Federation of Labor Union. Now, did you take a prominent part in bringing the Cutters' Club into the American Federation of Labor?

A. No more than the rest of them have.

Q. Did Mr. Laurence take a prominent part?

A. I wouldn't say he took any more prominent part than the rest of us.

Q. Were there any officers or anybody in charge?

Mr. Grossman: Of what? Of what, Mr. Myron?

A. No. We had no officers.

Mr. Myron: Well, the witness understands. He can answer it.

A. (Continuing): We cutters had no officers of our union.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. What is that? [2793]

A. We cutters had no officers of our union.

Q. Then there was no leadership in the club?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. There was leadership.

Q. You all took a part and you all worked together? A. Yes.

Q. And you were all in favor of joining the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union?

A. Right.

Q. And you went into the union?

A. Right.

Q. When you went into the union was it a local of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union? A. Yes.

Q. And what local was that? A. 84.

Q. And you and Mr. Laurence were members of that 84—— A. (Interposing): Right.

Q. (Continuing): ——Local? A. Right.

Q. And you were friendly? A. Yes.

Q. You got along all right? A. Yes.

Q. Worked for the benefit and best interests of the organization? [2794] A. Right.

Q. Was he an officer of that local?

A. No. If I remember right, I don't know whether he was an Executive Board member or not.

Q. What is that?

A. I don't remember. I mean, if you consider an Executive Board member an officer.

Q. Well, did he hold any official position?

A. Yes. He might have held Executive Board.

Q. Don't you know?

A. No. It's too long a time to remember.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. But he might have been a member of the Executive Board? A. He might have been.

Q. Were you? A. I was.

Q. And you don't know whether he was?

A. No.

Q. How many members in the Executive Board?

A. About 15.

Q. 15? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew Tommy Laurence?

A. Yes.

Q. From 1929, had worked with him and had worked hard [2795] to get into this American Federation of Labor organization? A. Yes.

Q. And you didn't know whether he served with you on the Executive Board?

A. Not at that time. I know he served as an Executive Board member time and time again, but I don't know at that particular time.

Q. Now, have you been a member of the I. L. G. W. U. since 1930? A. Yes.

Q. Continuously? A. Continuously.

Q. You never left the organization?

A. No, sir.

Q. And Mr. Laurence has been a member of that union? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Continuously?

A. Well, he would disappear at times for five or six——

Q. (Interposing): I am talking about membership.

A. I couldn't tell when he would leave.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment!

A. (Continuing): When he would leave I have no knowledge when he left whether he remained a member or he didn't. He could have taken a withdrawal card.

By Mr. Myron: [2796]

Q. As far as you know he remained a member continuously? A. That's right.

Q. You don't want to leave the inference that he left the organization, do you? A. No.

Q. Do you?

A. I don't know; just as I say.

Q. When you said that he disappeared at times you don't want to leave any inference that he left the organization?

A. I wouldn't leave any inference. I merely say that I know and what I think. I don't know whether he has taken a withdrawal card or not.

Q. You don't know whether he has or not?

A. No. No, sir. I would have no interest in finding out.

Q. Well, at what time did he disappear? When, since 1930?

A. He disappeared about, possibly a year ago. He was a Business Agent then.

Q. All right. Is that the only time he disappeared?

A. No. He disappeared since he came back in this year.

Q. All right. Before a year ago did he disappear from [2797] the union?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. I don't know. He has gone away for a few months. I didn't know where.

Q. And he returned?

A. And he returned, yes.

Q. Well, he certainly didn't leave the organization then, did he?

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment! I object to that question.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Did he?

Presiding Inspector: If he knows.

A. I wouldn't know. I am telling you that he can take a withdrawal card.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Well, after he, as you call it, "disappeared"—— A. (Interposing): Yes.

Q. (Continuing): ——you saw him at meetings subsequently, didn't you?

A. When he came back he could have re-joined.

Q. And he participated in the meetings?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. And, of course, if he had withdrawn he would have to re-join?

A. You don't have to re-join. He merely brings in his withdrawal card and he says "I am a member again". [2798]

Q. Oh, I see. Well, he never withdrew?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. He never withdrew? A. No.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Did you ever disappear, or what you call "disappear"? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, in 1930 this Ladies' Garment Workers' Union was a member of the A. F. of L., is that right? A. Right.

Q. Now, did it change its affiliation at any time?

A. It did.

Q. Since 1930? A. It did.

Q. When?

A. About three years ago. We left the A. F. of L. and joined the CIO.

Q. Now, when you say "three years ago" you mean sometime in '38?

A. I couldn't say exactly. I would say '38 or '39. I know it is approximately three years ago.

Q. You don't know the approximate date?

A. No.

Q. Would you know the month?

A. No. I wouldn't know the month and I wouldn't be sure [2799] of the year. I know it is about three years ago, just approximately.

Q. And is it still a member of the CIO?

A. No. We left the CIO again and got back into the A. F. of L.

Q. When did you return to the A. F. of L.?

A. About a little better than a year ago.

Q. Do you know the date? A. No.

Q. The month? A. No.

Q. Have you been very active in the union?

A. I have, but those things are not very important to me, at least.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Do you attend meetings?

A. Oh, yes, I do.

Q. Regularly? A. Regularly.

Q. Was there any discussion about the transfer?

A. Our meeting attendance is compulsory.

Q. Was there any discussion about the transfer from the A. F. of L. to the CIO?

A. Yes, there was.

Q. And a subsequent transfer to the A. F. of L.?

A. Yes, there was. [2800]

But I still wouldn't remember the date.

Q. I see. A great deal of discussion about it?

A. Not so awfully great at the time of our transferring. It was a very routine job.

Q. That is from the A. F. of L. to the CIO?

A. Yes, and vice versa.

Q. No difference of opinion at all?

A. Oh, there was a difference of opinion, but there wasn't what I would call any very heated discussion on that.

Q. Some wanted to remain in the A. F. of L., I suppose? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And some wanted to join the CIO?

A. Oh, yes. But it wasn't in a very hostile spirit.

Q. But they asserted themselves on that question, on that issue? A. Yes, yes.

Q. Were your in favor of transferring to the CIO?

A. Well, I wasn't particularly favoring either side. I was satisfied the way it was.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. You didn't participate in the discussion?

A. I did, but——

Q. (Interposing): You didn't care what they did?

A. No. I wouldn't say I didn't care what they did, but it didn't matter much to me then.

Q. What were your views on the issue?

A. I beg your pardon? [2801]

Q. What were your views on the issue? How did you feel about it?

A. Well, I possibly favored going into the CIO, but there wasn't any hot feelings about it one way or the other way.

Q. You mean on your part?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. You mean on your part?

A. Not on many others either.

Q. I am asking how you feel on your part?

A. No. My feelings weren't hot one way or the other.

Q. In other words, you didn't care whether you went into the CIO or whether you remained in the A. F. of L., is that right?

A. No. I would say I possibly favored the CIO, but it wasn't a very important thing in my mind either way.

Q. Now, from 1930 up to three years ago—that would be sometime in 1938—your union was affiliated with the A. F. of L.? A. Right.

Q. And at that time there was a discussion as to whether you would disassociate yourselves from the A. F. of L. and go into the CIO?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. Now, if you will permit me I am going to explain something.

Mr. Myron: You can answer the question "Yes" or "No." [2802]

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment!

Presiding Inspector: You will have plenty of time to explain. Just answer the question.

Mr. Myron: Will you read the question?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. That's right.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Although you had been a member of the A. F. of L. for a period of eight years it didn't make any difference to you, although you did show or indicate a slight preference for the CIO, is that right? A. I have, yes.

Q. Did you know Mr. Bridges at that time?

A. No, sir. I never met him. I didn't know Bridges.

Q. Had you heard of him?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Had you heard of him?

A. I heard of him.

Q. As a labor leader?

A. Yes. I heard of him.

Q. In what capacity?

A. What year are you referring to?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. At the time of this transfer.

A. You mean the transfer from the A. F. of L. to the CIO? [2803]

Q. That's right.

A. Yes. I have heard of him a great deal after we were in the CIO Council.

Q. I am talking about at the time of the transfer.

A. No, at the time of the transfer.

Q. At the time this discussion came up?

A. No, I don't remember his name having been mentioned.

Q. You never heard him mentioned?

A. I heard of him. I read of him in the papers occasionally, but beyond that I haven't heard of him in my union.

Q. Do you know him as a labor leader?

A. Yes, I heard of him.

Q. Do you know of him as a CIO organizer on the West Coast?

A. Well, I didn't know just what capacity he was in. I knew he was affiliated with maritime unions somewhere, somehow.

Q. Do you know that he left the A. F. of L. to go into the CIO?

A. No, I didn't believe I have.

Q. You didn't know any of those things?

A. No.

Q. Did you know that he was advocating the change to the CIO? [2804]

A. Well, I knew after he was in the CIO. I heard of him being in the CIO.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. I am talking about the time of this discussion. A. No, I didn't.

Q. About the transfer from the A. F. of L. to the CIO? A. No, no. I really didn't know.

Q. You didn't know him then? A. No.

Q. Did you know that Mr. Bridges was interested in CIO at that time?

A. Yes, I heard that he was.

Q. Now, I am limiting this time to the time of the discussion in the union between those members who believed the union should stay in the A. F. of L. and those who believed that it should go CIO. At that time? A. At that time what?

Q. Did you hear of Mr. Bridges?

A. No. We had no occasion to hear of Mr. Bridges then.

Q. Did you ever hear his name discussed in the meetings?

A. Not up to then; not up until after we joined the CIO Council.

Q. Was his name discussed when the Union members spoke of the change to the CIO?

A. I don't remember having heard his name mentioned then. [2805]

Q. Well then, as far as you know he was unheard of at the time of this change?

A. I would say I didn't hear of him then until after we changed.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment! I wish to make an objection first of all to the question upon the ground that it calls for the conclusion of the witness as to whether other people had heard of him.

Mr. Myron: That is what I am asking for.

Presiding Inspector: He is asking whether he heard of him. I think it is subject to that interpretation.

Mr. Gladstein: If it is subject to that interpretation, I have no objection. But if your Honor will hear the question again——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Of course, he can't testify as to what was heard by other people because unless they told him——

Mr. Gladstein (Interposing): That's the question. Can we have that question read?

Presiding Inspector: I think the——

Mr. Gladstein (Interposing): Could we have the question read, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: I know it is somewhat ambiguous.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.) [2806]

Presiding Inspector: That means as far as he knew by hearing.

A. (Continuing): I heard the name Bridges but, I mean, we did not have any occasion to discuss Harry Bridges up until the time we had joined the CIO Council. From that time on we have heard of him.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Did you hear the name Bridges discussed in these meetings of the union at that time?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember?

A. No, sir. I have heard a great deal, his name mentioned, after we joined the CIO.

Q. Of course, I haven't asked you that.

A. Well, that is what I am answering you.

Q. But you didn't hear it discussed in the meetings? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was Communism discussed in these meetings? A. Oh, occasionally.

Q. Just occasionally?

A. Just occasionally.

Q. By the members?

A. By some members.

Q. How many?

A. A few; very few. [2807]

Q. And what was said about Communism?

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment! I am going to object to that.

A. There was nothing said about Communism.

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment! I am willing to be patient, but I certainly can't see any conceivable relevance as to whether the union does or does not discuss Communism.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see that there is much importance to it, but if you would like to ask that——

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Mr. Myron (Interposing): I would like to ask this, your Honor. This is a preliminary question.

Presiding Inspector: This is to get him started.

A. (Continuing): We didn't discuss in our Local, when you questioned about Communism, Communism. It was a question where one group would call another group of people "Communists" because of disagreement in policy. That's about all. But we had no occasion to discuss Communism in any sense at all. [2808]

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Then, if I understand you correctly, the only time you discussed Communism was when you discussed some policy of the Union, is that right?

A. Yes; when we discussed the policy and some members would suggest a certain policy, and the other faction would disagree and call the others "Communists."

Q. Of course, you consider a change from the A. F. of L. to the C. I. O. as a policy of the Union, wouldn't you?

A. Well, to be truthful it wasn't much up to us.

Q. It wasn't up to you?

A. No, sir. It works in the following way—it is very harsh but true: When the national officers determine the policy the voting is more or less of a routine affair. It is understood that we are expected to go into the C. I. O. and we go into it; and when they decided to jump out of the C. I. O. into the A. F. of L. again the same thing took place. So it is just a routine job.

Q. Then the vote of the local doesn't mean a thing? A. It doesn't seem to be.

Q. It is all cut and dried before the vote is taken?

A. It is more or less cut and dried.

Q. By the officers?

A. By the general officers.

Q. And whatever they say they can put across in the [2809] locals?

A. Put across; yes.

Q. I see. And there is not much trouble in the locals in putting across a policy?

A. There might be a little fight against it.

Q. That probably comes from the group opposed to Communism and they get up and raise a holler about it?

A. No; some groups who are not interested in the best interests of the workers in the Union.

Q. Of course, the best interests of the workers would mean those who are opposed to Communism, isn't that right? A. Possibly so.

Q. Those would be the ones that would oppose these policies being put through in a cut and dried policy?

A. I don't know how you place that.

Mr. Grossman: Just a minute. Mr. Myron has referred to two policies, going in the C.I.O. and going out of it. I would like to know which policy he is referring to now.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Presiding Inspector: He probably means both.

Mr. Grossman: Communists on both sides?

Presiding Inspector: At different times.

Mr. Grossman: With that clarification——

Presiding Inspector: I am not sure that it clarifies.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Do you believe a Communist could be a good union man? [2810]

A. I haven't looked at it from that angle at all. I am not examining my brothers in my union from the political or religious standpoint at all.

Q. Communism, in your opinion, is a religion?

A. No—I didn't say that. I said I am not examining my brothers in the union from a political or religious angle. I am examining them as unionists.

Q. That is in answer to my question of whether you consider that a Communist could be a good union man, and that is your answer?

A. I think he can.

Q. You think he can? A. I think he can.

Q. I see.

A. Just as much as a Republican or Democrat can.

Q. Is Communism, in your opinion, a religious or a political party?

A. I don't know what it is: I am not familiar with it.

Q. But you wouldn't oppose Communism, or Communists dominating your union, would you?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. Well, I wouldn't want any one particular group dominated.

Q. You wouldn't oppose it if a Communist leader spoke on a certain subject or policy of the union?

A. You mean just what policy? [2811]

Q. Any policy?

A. I couldn't stop him if I wished. He has a right to the floor.

Q. He has a right to the floor?

A. If he spoke, and he would talk about union activities, I couldn't stop him, oppose him.

Q. Do you know Mrs. Fay Appel?

A. Mrs. Fay Appel—no.

Q. You don't know a Mrs. Fay Appel that lives on Normandie Avenue in Los Angeles?

A. No, sir. I have no relations at all in Los Angeles excepting my brother.

Q. Are you a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever been a member of the Communist Party? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever attended any meetings of the Communist Party as far as you know?

A. No, sir.

Q. Are you a member of the League against War and Fascism? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you a member of the League for Peace and Democracy? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you a member of the League for American Mobili- [2812] zation?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. I am not a member of any organizations except what I gave you.

Q. Let's go back a moment to the time that you became naturalized. That was in what year?

A. 1916.

Q. 1916?

A. I think that is the year; I believe that is the year.

Q. Were you ever a member of the Needle Trade Workers Industrial Union?

A. No, sir.

Q. You never were a member of that union?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Myron: I wonder if we could have a recess at this time?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. We will take a short recess.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

Presiding Inspector: Proceed.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Mr. Appel, were you a conscientious objector at the time you became naturalized?

A. No, sir.

Q. You were not?

A. You mean—I had no occasion to be. We weren't at war then. [2813]

Q. You were not. Did you hold those views as a conscientious objector at that time?

A. No, sir, not at that time.

Q. You did not at that time? A. No.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. When did you begin to hold those views?

A. Well, I sort of took stock. I know that I was taught religion at home and I had been taught——

Q. (Interposing) I said "When" and not "How".

A. Well, shortly after I became a citizen I read about the war and all it meant, and I took stock. We don't always do——

Q. (Interposing) Was this in 1916, 1917 or when?

A. It was—I believe I took out—I would say at the end of 1916.

Q. Right after you became naturalized?

A. Not right after; quite a while after.

Q. You became naturalized in 1916?

A. Yes.

Q. It was in the same year then?

A. I would say possibly 1916 or the early part of 1917.

Q. When was the first time that you heard Mr. Laurence make any reference to Mr. Bridges?

A. That was after we had joined the C.I.O. Council. We got out of the A. F. of L. and we formed a C. I. O. Council and [2814] Laurence was one of the delegates to that C. I. O. Council from our local.

Q. He was a delegate to the C. I. O. Council?

A. He was a delegate to the C. I. O Council from our local.

Q. Were you? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. When was that, the approximate date?

A. Well, if it is three years ago I would say about two or three months after we were in the Council.

Q. It was immediately after the union joined the C. I. O.?

A. No. I tell you it couldn't be immediately because, according to our instructions from the national office our delegation in the A. F. of L. Central Council were to stay in so long, that is, until the A. F. of L. finally told us to get out.

Q. Those were the instructions through your union? A. Yes.

Q. And it was at that time that——

A. (Interposing) Then when we were asked to get out we formed a C. I. O. Council and Laurence was a member of that Council. And within about two or three months' time he seemed to have had differences with the activities of the Council and he connected his troubles with Bridges.

Q. Did he oppose the union going C. I. O.?

A. Not that I know of. [2815]

Q. Did you know whether he took part in the debate in the union meetings in that regard?

A. He may have, but I don't believe he took an opposing view.

Q. He never said anything as far as you know at the union meetings about the change to the C. I. O.?

A. I haven't heard him oppose it at least I don't remember it.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Was there some discussion in those meetings about not going C. I. O. because of the Communist influence?

A. No. I told you before that it is just a routine matter as far as the locals are concerned.

Q. You told me that, but now I want to know if there was any discussion at all in the union meeting.

A. There was a discussion, but I couldn't say whether Laurence was for or against the question.

Q. And after the union went C. I. O., and before it came back to the A. F. of L. did Laurence participate in any discussions regarding the transfer back or remaining in the C. I. O.?

A. No. I told you, and I tell you again, after he was in the Council about two or three months, he seemed to have had a great deal of difference about the way things were carried on in the C. I. O. Council. He made a number of talks on the floor of our local and he was very hostile towards Bridges because he attributed all of the differences in the Council to [2816] Bridges.

Q. What differences were they that he spoke about?

A. I couldn't tell you what they were now.

Q. Well, can't you—

A. (Interposing) Well, one of the things I remember, he stated, and he stated it in a very violent manner, he said that the, I believe, the Chairman of that Council was Bridges' appointee.

Q. Who was the Chairman of that Council?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. I don't remember the name.

Q. He stated vehemently that the Chairman of that Council was Harry Bridges' nominee, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And he opposed that, the Chairman?

A. He opposed the Chairman.

Q. That was one of the differences that he had with Bridges? A. Yes.

Q. Now, were there any others?

A. Well, there was a matter of policy, but just what that policy was I certainly couldn't say because I had nothing to do with it.

Q. What was the policy—don't you remember?

A. I don't know, I am telling you, what he took up in there. I didn't know because I had no connection with the [2817] Council.

Q. Well, you mentioned here there were some differences.

A. Yes, but what they were I don't know.

Q. How do you know there were any differences?

A. Well, I know because he was very hostile towards Bridges. That is what I am telling you.

Q. Based on differences?

A. On differences in policy in the Council.

Q. And you don't know what that policy was?

A. No, sir—one of them I mentioned to you.

Q. You don't know what Mr. Bridges' position in that regard was?

A. No. I didn't pay any attention.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. And you don't know what Mr. Laurence's position was except that he opposed Mr. Bridges?

A. That is, excepting that he was hostile toward him because he disagreed with his——

Q. (Interposing) Policy?

A. Not policy—I don't know—the appointment of a Chairman, or the election of a Chairman.

Q. That was one, and the other was in regard to some policy?

A. I don't know what the other one was.

Q. But it was in regard to some policy?

A. Yes. [2818]

Q. And he opposed Mr. Bridges? A. Yes.

Q. And there were differences, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, when was the first time that he made any of the remarks which you stated he made yesterday?

A. He made them, I would say, about four or five months after he was in the Council.

Q. And that was in the course of discussing his opposition to Mr. Bridges on some policy?

A. Yes. He would tell me, for instance, about some of the activities in the Maritime Union, but I am not familiar with the set-up of the Maritime Union so after he told me I didn't know what it was all about. He just might as well have talked about chemistry. I didn't know the set-up and didn't understand what he was referring to.

Q. You didn't understand Mr. Laurence?

A. I didn't understand his explanation that this and that was done in the Maritime Union; and not understanding the set-up I certainly didn't understand what he was really referring to. Furthermore, he was talking on a subject I wasn't familiar with and I couldn't understand it.

Q. You don't know anything about what constituted his opposition to Mr. Bridges, except that it was in regard to some of Mr. Bridges' policies?

[2819]

A. That is right.

Q. Now, you stated also that he was opposed to Communism, vehemently opposed to Communism?

A. Who was?

Q. Mr. Laurence.

A. He became so on that subject; yes. He was a Communist himself at one time.

Q. He had an obsession in that regard, didn't he? A. He did.

Q. And he opposed anything that resembled Communism in policies of the Union?

A. Well, I don't know about that. He would oppose anything and anybody that was of a different opinion from him.

Q. And, of course, he opposed any policy which he thought might be started or instigated by the Communist Party, isn't that true?

A. He would.

Q. And if he thought that—strike that out. Did he say at times that he opposed a certain policy because he thought that it was the policy of the Communist Party? A. He did.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. And that policy at times was the same policy that Harry Bridges advocated?

A. Well, he would accuse Harry Bridges of being Communist dominated. That is about all.

[2820]

Q. And he opposed the policy and Harry Bridges' advocacy of the policy, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, when was the second time that you talked with Laurence?

A. I had a number of talks with him.

Q. How many? A. Dozens of them.

Q. They were all in this——

A. (Interposing) All in this vein. He seemed to have had a streak in his mind, and was always pointing his conversation to Communists and Bridges. It seemed to be sort of a phobia with him.

Q. During your relationship with Mr. Laurence, over a period of eight or ten years, did you know that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. For a long time I didn't know.

Q. Did you, during that period of time?

A. I did; yes.

Q. When did you first find out he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I would say possibly seven years ago.

Q. That would be about 1933, 1934?

A. Yes; about.

Q. You found out that he was a member of the Communist [2821] Party?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. Yes. He told me he was, told me that when he left the Party. I don't know what year it was. I mean after he left he told me that he was a member of the Communist Party.

Q. Was that the first time that you knew it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you think that was about seven years ago?

A. I think so. I wouldn't say for sure, because we had so many conversations, and it don't mean anything particularly to me to remember dates along that line. I merely assumed it was then.

Q. I just want your best recollection.

A. I would say maybe then.

Q. Now, how did he come about to tell you that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, he criticized some of the members whom he accused of being Communists and naturally, like I said before, he would never connect the word "Communist" without using the words "son of a bitch". He said, "I used to be one of them, but I am no more."

Q. When he would oppose some policy in the union, or some member who was advocating a policy in the union, he would refer to them as a "Communist"? A. Yes.

Q. In a little stronger language than that?

A. Yes. [2822]

Presiding Inspector: He said that.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Did you know of any other members of your union as being Communists?

A. No. I didn't know just whether they were members of the Party or not. I couldn't say of a single one.

Q. He was the only one who told you?

A. Yes.

Q. You wouldn't have known he was a Communist had he not told you, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. And, of course, in opposing the policies advocated by Mr. Bridges he at times referred to Mr. Bridges as a Communist?

A. No, he didn't say that. He said he was Communist dominated. I asked him that question, whether he knew if Bridges was a Communist or not, and he said, "No." But, he said, "He is surely Communist dominated."

Q. That he was Communist dominated. And he said that the policies Mr. Bridges was advocating were Communist dominated policies, is that right?

A. That is what he said. He said [2822] something about Lewis.

Q. I didn't ask you that, did I?

Mr. Gladstein: If your Honor please, I object to the [2823] question as being argumentative.

Presiding Inspector: What question?

Mr. Gladstein: The question asked by counsel now is argumentative.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.

Presiding Inspector: I don't remember what it was. It was answered.

Mr. Gladstein: The first question to which an answer was given I do not object to, but the last question was "I didn't ask you that, did I?" and the record will show that.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't think you were referring to that.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Mr. Myron: It isn't argumentative.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is argumentative.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Of course, you knew at that time that Mr. Laurence had been a member of the Communist Party, didn't you? A. That is right.

Q. And, of course, having been a member of the Communist Party you knew that he probably knew the members of the Communist Party?

A. I wouldn't assume that because I didn't know whether we had any Communist members in our local or not. [2824]

Q. But, I say, having that background of knowledge that he had been a member of the Communist Party it was likely that he knew who were members of the Communist Party, isn't that true?

A. Not necessarily.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment. I object to the question.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that is a question for evidence. I think we can draw that conclusion as well as he—and the opposite.

Mr. Myron: I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Myron:

Q.—Did he at any time state that he knew that certain policies that were advocated in the Union meetings were dominated and controlled by the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. He didn't say that?

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment. For one, I can't understand how a policy can be dominated by the Communist Party. Perhaps I don't understand.

Mr. Myron: The witness has told you how.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

Mr. Grossman: I object to the question as being ambiguous.

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as [2825] above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: I think that is a little ambiguous. Rephrase it.

Mr. Myron: I will withdraw the question and rephrase it.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. In discussing the issues before the Union at any time did Mr. Lautgree state to the Union members that such and such a policy, which was being advocated, was dominated and controlled by the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Mr. Grossman: I make the same objection.

Presiding Inspector: I don't suppose the policy can be dominated. You mean was a policy favored or advocated by the Communist Party, is that what you mean?

Mr. Myron: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: With that interpretation I will allow it. You may answer.

Mr. Myron: I will amend my question to that effect.

Presiding Inspector: Let me put it this way to you? Did he state that the policies which he was criticizing were policies of the Communist Party, or advocated by Communist members, members of the Communist Party?

The Witness: He would say that.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Now, who was present at the time that Mr. Laurence referred to Mr. Bridges in the manner you stated?

A. It was only he and I. [2826]

Q. Just the conversation between the two of you?

A. The two of us, yes. And he made a similar statement. There was another fellow by the name of Milton Snipper. He made at that time a statement that he would do anything in the world to get Bridges out of the union, and I was there. He said that up in the union, Snipper was standing there and so was I. He used to converse with me a great deal before meetings or used to hang around by the union because he wasn't working very regular.

Q. Mr. Laurence?

A. Yes.

Q. You mean Mr. Laurence?

A. Yes.

Q. And you say one of those conversations took place with you alone?

A. Yes.

Q. Being present?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that right?

A. A number of times the same thing.

Q. A number of times?

A. A number of times he would sort of——

Q. (Interposing) Well, at any time was any other person present?

A. No. Just this one case where he said he would do anything to get Bridges out of the union. Milton Snipper was [2827] there talking to him and I was there.

Q. Who is Milton Snipper?

A. He is a cutter.

Q. Where does he work?

A. In the same building as I do. He works as a cloak cutter, too.

Q. Where is that?

A. 217 East Eighth Street.

Q. And where does he live?

A. I don't know his address.

Q. Does he live in Los Angeles?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And could you give us the approximate date of the time when he mentioned this, when this man was present?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. Just a few weeks ago.

Q. Well, was it——

A. (Interposing) I couldn't tell you just how many, but not so long ago. You know, these are conversations that a man, a person that is going over them again and again don't pay any particular attention to dates, days or months. But I know it was in the recent, you know, weeks, or a couple of months.

Q. A couple of weeks ago?

A. Oh, more than that. It was before he came down here. So I don't know how many weeks ago he was here. [2828]

Q. Before who came down here?

A. Laurence was in San Francisco.

Q. I see. Before he came down here to testify?

A. Yes. That was a few weeks before then and I don't know how many weeks ago he was here, so I really don't know.

Q. Have you talked with him since that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether he was coming down here to testify at the time you talked to him?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did he tell you?

A. No, sir. In fact, I haven't seen him since that time because he seemed to work in the other part of the City. I beileve he is working for the Red Cross now and that isn't in my neighborhood, so I didn't see him.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. Well now, referring to this meeting at which this gentleman was present will you give us the entire conversation as you remember it?

A. We were talking about war and activities in the union and something he said about what is taking place now in the maritime unions, I believe, pertaining to the, if I remember right, signing an agreement of non-strike or something like that, and at that time he passed that remark.

Q. Was that the entire conversation?

A. No. We talked about unions and organizing shops and [2829] then we get off and talk about the war, and when we are through with the war he brings up a question along these lines. It is not a one-sided, smooth conversation where we only talk about one topic.

Q. Did you tell him that you were a conscientious objector then? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Was that what the conversation was about?

A. Oh, not now. I didn't tell him that now.

Q. You what?

A. I didn't talk with him about that now.

Q. No, not now. I am referring to that meeting that you are speaking about.

Presiding Inspector: He is now saying that this statement that he made to Laurence that he was a conscientious objector, was at some other time.

The Witness: A long time ago. It was possibly eight or nine years ago.

Presiding Inspector: I think you are questioning about a single conversation.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Mr. Myron: That's right.

Presiding Inspector: And the witness assumed that you were talking about a broader field.

Mr. Myron: All right.

By Mr. Myron: [2830]

Q. Now, let us limit it to the conversation with reference to Bridges. What was said by you and what was said by him?

A. I can't say anything about Bridges, as I told you before. I don't know the man's connection in the maritime——

Q. (Interposing) I am not asking that. I am asking what was said by you or what was said by him or what the other fellow said who was present at that meeting.

A. We began to talk about the war.

Q. Yes.

A. And saying about how things looked pretty bad, and then we were talking about the policy of the United States and he would hop out and say how terrible it was that Russia has made a non-aggression pact. He would say again "Those Communists have certainly lived up to their record. They have made an agreement with Germany". And then he would jump again. He would say "That's this Communist Bridges!" He mentioned something about signing some kind of agreement with employers, pertaining to no strike or something like that.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I object to counsel's smiling and doing—I have observed him throughout while this witness was talking. Has the Court observed it?

Presiding Inspector: I can't control the facial expressions.

Mr. Del Guercio: I know that can't be done! I know [2831] how impossible that is.

Mr. Grossman: We can explain why we can't refrain from smiling.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Is that the entire conversation?

A. That's all.

Q. At that meeting?

A. Yes, that's all. You see, I can't go in and repeat it.

Q. That was all about Harry Bridges?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes.

Q. At the time that this gentleman was present there was no such profane language used as you used yesterday?

A. No. He just said that he would do anything to get him out of the labor movement.

Q. And that was all? A. That was all.

Q. Now, the other conversations were personal conversations with you? No one else was present?

A. That's right.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Let's see! You said that you had a wife and two [2832] children? A. Right.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Q. What is your wife's name? A. Ida.

Q. Ida? A. Ida.

Q. Appel? A. Yes.

Q. And what are the names of your two children? A. Albert and Robert.

Q. How old is Albert?

A. Albert; he'll be 18 the end of July.

Q. Does he attend school?

A. Yes, sir; High School.

Q. Where? A. In Mark Keppel High.

Q. What school? A. Mark Keppel High.

Q. And Robert, you said, is the other one?

A. Yes. He goes to the same school.

Q. And how old is he?

A. Sixteen and a half.

Q. And does he attend school?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? [2833]

A. The same High School.

Q. Do you have any other near relatives; I mean, brothers or sisters in Los Angeles, California?

A. I have one brother. I believe he lives up here in 'Frisco; and one is traveling and one has a dress shop in Los Angeles.

Q. And what are their names? Take first the man you mentioned first, the one living in San Francisco.

A. In San Francisco it is Sidney Appel.

Q. Sidney Appel?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. Yes. I don't know where he lives here, but, as far as I know, he is in San Francisco.

Q. And you have another one living where?

A. In Los Angeles: Sam Appel.

Q. Where does he live?

A. On Thirty Eighth Street near Broadway. I don't know his address. I know his home. I have been there a number of times.

Q. And a third brother?

A. The third brother travels. Leo Appel.

Q. You don't know where he is located?

A. No. He is traveling.

Q. Any other family here? A. Not here.

Q. Brothers and sisters?

A. Not here. I have a brother back East in Cincinnati. [2884] Eugene Appel; and I have a sister in Brooklyn, New York, Pauline Appel.

Q. That is your entire family?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do your know of any Oscar Appel?

A. No. There are Appels in—a few of them in Pasadena and a few of them in Los Angeles, but they are not related to us at all.

Q. There are no relatives of yours by the name of Oscar Appel? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever used an alias?

A. No, sir.

Q. You never used a different name?

A. No, sir. That's my name ever since I was born.

Q. When were you first called here to testify?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. When was I called?

Q. Asked to testify in these proceedings?

A. I wasn't asked to testify.

Q. Well, how did you happen to come up here to testify?

A. If you will permit me I will tell you.

Q. Sure, explain it.

A. Having had these conversations with Laurence I didn't think that, being that he told me the things that [2835] he has, that he would testify, because he told me he would lie, and so on, and so forth. I thought it was merely a threat on his part, a sort of hatred on his part. But being that he told me that he would even lie, and so on and so forth, I happened to read in the paper that he testified here, well, after——

Q. (Interposing) Is that the first time that you had heard that he had testified?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Is that the first time that you had heard that he had testified?

A. That's right. That's the first time I heard. I read it in the paper.

Q. When was that in the paper? Was that at the time he was on the stand testifying?

A. No. I read it the following day in the Daily News. I get the Daily News every morning and I happened to read about his testimony. Well, I didn't—I kind of thought over the matter and then it dawned on me it would be unfair to me not to come and testify or what I know or what Laurence told me.

Q. So you volunteered your services?

A. I volunteered my services.

Q. With whom did you get in touch?

A. I got in touch with Charlie Katz.

Q. Who?

A. Charlie Katz, an attorney in Los Angeles. I was directed to him by Lutzky, who is the Manager of our union. [2836]

Q. Lutzky? A. Lutzky, yes.

Q. How do you spell that?

A. L-u-t-z-k-y. I told him about it.

Q. Then he told you to go to this Attorney?

A. He told me, if I wish to make testimony to the effect what Laurence say, I should go up to Charlie Katz. And I did. And that's all I heard of it. Then I was asked whether I would care to come down and testify, and I said I would. And that's all there was.

Q. When were you asked to come down and testify? A. Saturday.

Q. Saturday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time?

A. Well, I received a telegram to come down to Charlie Katz' office. I got there about, I would estimate, around one o'clock. You see, I don't remember what bus I took, because I have to take a bus to come into Los Angeles, and——

Q. (Interposing) What time did you receive the telephone call?

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

A. I was away from home talking to——

Q. (Interposing) No. What time did you receive the telephone call, if you can state?

A. Not telephone. I had no telephone. A telegram.

Q. A telegram. What time did you receive that? [2837]

A. I wasn't home at the time the telegram came. I was visiting with Barney Barris, a friend of mine who belongs to the same Legion Post as I do, and when the telegram came my wife called me up there, being I told her that I am going there, that I have a telegram. I came there and read the telegram to come to Charlie Katz, which I did. I called him up and told him to wait for me because I am depending on the bus service. And he waited for me and he told me that if I would care to come and testify, and I said I would. And right away he told me to—I might have to go Saturday night to be in San Francisco for the hearing Monday.

Q. After you spoke to Mr. Katz you left and came here to testify, is that right?

A. Then I met Mr.—he told me to meet Mr.—one of the gentlemen here. I will tell you in a minute.

Q. Well, you met him and came here and testified? A. Yes, that's right.

Mr. Myron: I think that is all.

Mr. Gladstein: Just one question.

(Testimony of Bernard Appel.)

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. The attorney that you have mentioned, Charlie Katz, do you know whether he is the attorney for the union of which you and Mr. Lutzky are members?

A. To my knowledge he was. I don't know if he still is the attorney. [2838]

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is all.

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Next witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I believe it was in the early part of the week we said that we have a witness who would appear. We have brought the witness from New York.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes. Is she here?

Mr. Gladstein: I didn't hear it.

Presiding Inspector: You remember that there was to be an identification of a document. They brought a witness on from New York because it was necessary to identify the document.

Mr. Gladstein: Well——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I am going to allow her to take the stand now.

Mr. Gladstein: May I ask the Court this? Ordinarily we would have no objection.

Presiding Inspector: They have a witness from New York that you forced to come on. I will hear her first.

Mr. Gladstein: Very well.

Presiding Inspector: Call the witness.

It was a purely formal matter and you wouldn't consent to it being introduced without the verification, which was your right, and they brought this witness from New York and we will [2839] hear her now.

Is she here, Mr. DelGuercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, she is. She is in the witness room. The witness room, as you know, is quite a ways from the Court.

ETHEL MULLANY

called as a witness on behalf of the Government, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Ethel Mullany.

The Reporter: Spell it, please.

A. E-t-h-e-l M-u-l-l-a-n-y.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where do you reside, Mrs. Mullany?

A. In Brooklyn, New York.

Q. Are you married or single? A. No.

Q. Single? A. Single.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. I am manager of the booking department of Madison Square Garden.

Q. And how long have you held that position?

A. Oh, about ten years.

(Testimony of Ethel Mullany.)

Q. And what are your duties in connection with that [2840] position?

A. Well, I arrange for the leasing of the Garden, write the contracts, leases, make arrangements for set-ups and personnel to handle the meetings and things of that sort.

Q. And do you also dictate or write the correspondence relating to the rental of the Madison Square Garden? A. Most of it, yes.

Q. Miss Mullany, I will show you what appears to be some original correspondence with relation to the rentals or leasing of the Madison Square Garden for a meeting, the first one for a meeting, on December 16, 1936, and ask you if you participated in the preparation of that lease?

A. Yes, sir. I made this out.

Q. What was that lease for? Will you explain what the lease was for?

A. It was for a meeting to be held under the auspices of a committee known as the Joint Strike Commitee of Seamen.

Q. And with whom did you discuss or make the arrangements for the leasing of the Madison Square Garden for that purpose? A. David Leeds.

Q. David Leeds. Was anyone else present?

A. No, not to my recollection.

Q. Do you know David Leeds?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did he sign that lease? [2841]

A. Yes, he signed it.

Q. Who is David Leeds?

(Testimony of Ethel Mullany.)

A. David Leeds is the Treasurer of the Communist Party of the State of New York.

Q. How do you know that, Miss Mullany?

A. Because I have made out other leases which he has signed and made them out to the Communist Party.

Q. I will show you a number of original leases for the rentals of the Communist Party—for the rental of the Madison Square Garden signed by David Leeds, signed "Communist Party of New York State, David Leeds, Treasurer", and ask you to look them over and state whether those are the leases to which you refer?

A. Yes, I made those out.

Q. Referring particularly, Miss Mullany, to the leasing of the Madison Square Garden for the date of December 16, 1936, are you sure that no one else appeared excepting the David Leeds you mentioned?

A. No, sir; no one else connected with that committee.

Q. Did you have any conversation with him before preparing the lease?

A. Why, my recollection is that over the telephone he called and reserved the Garden, and then I made out the lease and mailed it to him.

Q. And was any discussion had as to the amount to be [2842] paid for the lease?

A. Oh, certainly.

Q. And was any discussion had as to who was going to pay for it and who was to be held responsible for payment of the money?

A. I don't recall that, but knowing that Mr. Leeds had done business with us before on the previous meetings I presume that he would see that the Garden Corporation was paid the rent.

Q. Did you look to or did the Madison Square Garden Corporation look to anybody else but David Leeds for the payment of the rental?

A. Well, we didn't have to, because the next day he came back with the lease and the check in payment of it.

Q. Oh, he came back the next day. What kind of a check did he give you?

A. Well, according to my records there it was a check made out by him and signed by him. That is, I don't say it was made out by him, but it was signed by him.

Q. It was signed by David Leeds?

A. That's right.

Q. And what amount? Would these records refresh your recollection?

A. No. It was $3,500. He paid the full amount of the rent.

Q. Do you know on what bank it was drawn?

[2843]

A. The Amalgamated Bank.

Q. Do you know if that bank handles all of the funds of that Party?

A. I can't say it handles "all" of them, or I don't know whether it handles—it handles the account that Mr. Leeds draws on, I believe. I don't know whether he has any other account or not.

Q. Were the payments of the rentals or leases of the Madison Square Garden for these other meetings that you have looked at, were the checks also drawn on the bank that you mentioned?

A. I can't say that they "all" were.

Q. Would these records show?

A. No, these leases would not show.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I offer in evidence the lease that this witness has identified as having been executed by David Leeds or D. Leeds for the rental or the leasing of the Madison Square Garden for the date that is December 16, 1936, and also the correspondence relating thereto.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive it.

Mr. Del Guercio: And ask that a photostatic copy thereof be substituted.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Treat it as the other Exhibits were.

(The document referred to was received in [2844] evidence and marked Government's Exhibit 260.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I also offer in evidence the various leases for the renting or the leasing of the Madison Square Garden on the dates August 18, 1936, January 20, 1937, and September 11, 1939, November 13, 1939, January 22, 1940, and the correspondence had by the Madison Square Garden Corporation in connection with those leases, for the purpose of showing the membership of David Leeds in the Communist Party.

Presiding Inspector: Received without objection.

Mr. Del Guercio: And I ask that photostatic copies be substituted.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, that may be done.

(The documents referred to were received in evidence and marked Government's Exhibit 261.)

Mr. Del Guercio: You may cross examine.

Presiding Inspector: Any questions?

Mr. Gladstein: None at all.

Presiding Inspector: You are excused.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Next witness now, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Shoemaker, will you take the stand up here, please? [284½]

RAY D. SHOEMAKER

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

Presiding Inspector: Your name and address.

The Witness: Ray D. Shoemaker: S-h-o-e-m-a-k-e-r.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. How is your first name spelled, Mr. Shoemaker? A. R-a-y.

Q. And your middle initial is "D"?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your last name is spelled S-h-o-e-m-a-k-e-r? A. That's right.

Q. Where do you live, please?

A. I live in Portland, Oregon.

Q. Will you give the exact address?

A. 3511 Southeast Tolman Street.

Q. Now, in answer to my questions will you speak up as much as possible so that counsel can hear you? What is your occupation or profession?

A. Well, am an attorney, but I am also a Court Reporter. Do you want me to give a brief explanation, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: No. Just answer the questions.

By Mr. Gladstein: [2846]

Q. You are a Court Reporter, are you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what Court are you a Court Reporter?

A. I am an official reporter of the Circuit Court of Multnomah County.

Q. That is the State of Oregon?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you had official connection with Oregon Courts as a Court Reporter?

A. Since June, 1926.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Q. Were you prior to that time a Court Reporter attached to any other Court?

A. Yes. From 1919—January, 1919 until May, 1926 I was an official reporter in the Fourteenth Judicial District of the State of Iowa.

Q. Now, you are familiar with and you know the methods of taking down statements orally made and taking them down in shorthand, are you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know the methods of transcribing shorthand notes into longhand or typewritten statements, do you? A. I do.

Q. Now, on Sunday, May 4th, 1941, did you have occasion to act as Court Reporter in the office of William P. Lord in Portland, Oregon?

A. I did. [2847]

Q. How did you come to go to that office to act as a reporter?

A. About nine o'clock Sunday morning I received a phone call at my home and Mr. Lord was on the phone. He asked me if I would come to his office at eleven o'clock to report a deposition. I said "Well, my boy wants me to take him out in the country today. He is playing base ball, and I don't think I can make it."

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I don't think it is necessary for the witness to go on into everything else that occurred.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. We will get through quicker, I think, if we will allow this.

A. (Continuing) And he said, "Well, I wonder if I can get ahold of John Michelet", who is a reporter in the Circuit Court. I said "I don't know where John is. Wait a minute! I will ask my boy if he is going to play and if I have to take him out".

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Well, I asked my boy if he was going to play and he said "No, it is called off on account of rain".

So then I told Bill, or Mr. Lord—I said "I'll be at your office at eleven o'clock". And I reported at his office at 405 Guardian Building at eleven o'clock.

By Mr. Gladstein: [2848]

Q. Now, will you identify Mr. Lord, please? Who is he and how long have you known him?

A. He is a prominent attorney in the City of Portland. I have known Mr. Lord since 1926.

Q. Have you frequently had occasion to take court reporting and the taking of depositions for him or in cases in which he is connected?

A. I haven't taken many depositions for Mr. Lord, but I have reported many cases in Court where he was an attorney.

Q. Did you actually take in shorthand a deposition of any person that morning?

A. I did.

Q. Who were the people who were present at the time that the deposition began?

A. Mr. Lord, acting as Notary Public; yourself; Mr. Crayeraft, I believe his name is.——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Who?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Roscoe Craycraft; R-o-s-c-o-e. I am not sure whether there is an "e" on the end. It may be just R-o-s-c-o, Craycraft, C-r-a-y-c r-a-f-t?

A. Yes, sir. And Mr. Cannalonga.

Q. Mr. Maurice J. Cannalonga?

A. Cannalonga; yes, sir.

Q. At that time were questions asked by me of Mr. [2849] Cannalonga and were answers given by him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Prior to the asking of any questions by me or the giving of any answers by him was he sworn?

A. Yes, sir. Mr. Lord swore him to tell the truth.

Q. In the——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Just a minute, please! If your Honor please, I object to any more questioning along this line.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. I will allow it. We have got to see what the questions will be.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In the process of swearing Mr. Cannalonga, in did Mr. Lord raise his hand and have Mr. Cannalonga raise his hand, too?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that. There is no foundation laid that he could have been sworn or in what kind of a proceeding.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. If you want to have him prove his commission to take an oath, why, I suppose that Mr. Gladstein will do that.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, we will, your Honor.

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. After you took the deposition in shorthand did you at my request type up your shorthand notes? [2850]

A. I did.

Q. And did you at my request send a copy of that deposition to me at my office?

A. I did, by air mail.

Q. I will show you what purports to be a document entitled "Statement of Maurice J. Cannalonga" and which purports on the last page to be signed by you as a shorthand reporter, and I will ask you to identify it.

A. This is a transcript that I sent you by air mail at 4:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Q. Was this transcript which you have just identified made by you from your notes?

A. It was.

Q. Did you bring your shorthand notes with you? A. I did.

Q. Will you please take them out of your bag, if you have them there?

A. (Producing shorthand notes from brief case).

Q. Now, Mr. Shoemaker, I am going to read the transcript, the deposition itself, to you and I want you to check from your notes and to stop me at any point where there is any discrepancy and point out what discrepancy, if any, there is.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I sustain the objection. [2851]

Mr. Gladstein: Why, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: You can't get evidence into the record by reading it in that way.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, all right. I will do it this way. The document already has been identified. I will offer it in evidence.

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude it.

Mr. Gladstein: Why, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Because I don't know what the purpose of it is.

Mr. Gladstein: The purpose is to impeach the witness.

Presiding Inspector: In what way? It might contain a thousand things that are immaterial.

Mr. Gladstein: By showing sworn statements under oath contrary to the testimony given by that witness in this case.

Presiding Inspector: Well, if they were material to the record and his attention has been called to them, the statements, I will allow them; but not just absolute statements made by him. They are not competent. You have never given him a chance to explain.

Mr. Gladstein: Who?

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Camalonga.

Mr. Gladstein: If your Honor please, I want to make an offer of proof on this, and if your Honor feels that a motion to strike is in order I am perfectly willing—— [2852]

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I am not going to receive it.

Mr. Gladstein: I want to make on offer of proof for the record.

Presiding Inspector: You may do that, of course.

Mr. Gladstein: I now offer to prove that the document which this present witness has just identified as a transcript of the testimony which he took on the occasion that he has just——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Not "testimony". Of the "statement".

Mr. Gladstein: "Of the statement", I said. What did I say?

Presiding Inspector: "Testimony".

Mr. Gladstein: All right. I will substitute the word "statement".

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——if permitted in evidence, would read as follows:——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I won't allow it.

Mr. Gladstein: Well now, if your Honor please, I have a right to make an offer of proof.

Presiding Inspector: I won't allow an offer of proof. You can have it marked for identification.

Mr. Gladstein: I have a right to—— [2853]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) No, sir, you have no right to make an offer.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——make an offer of proof.

Presiding Inspector: No, not unless I wish to proceed in that way. And I don't wish to proceed in that way.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't understand, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: You may ask your question.

Mr. Gladstein: You mean that you will not permit me to make an offer for the record of what I wish to prove?

Presiding Inspector: No. It hasn't been excluded. You haven't offered this in evidence.

Mr. Gladstein: I did.

Mr. Del Guercio: You haven't shown it to me.

Presiding Inspector: Did I exclude it?

Mr. Gladstein: I thought you did.

Presiding Inspector: You didn't offer it to me. I didn't know what it was.

Mr. Gladstein: I am sorry.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, I should exclude an unknown document which is produced unless I have an opportunity to know what it is about.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

(Whereupon the proffered Exhibit was passed to the Presiding Inspector). [2854]

Presiding Inspector: Part of this is clearly incompetent.

Mr. Gladstein: What part?

Presiding Inspector: All of the last part.

Mr. Gladstein: I disagree with you.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: You may disagree, but I say it is incompetent and I have a right to say that.

Mr. Gladstein: If Maurice Cannalonga, as he got off this stand, walked down the street and met John Doe and said to him "I gave testimony that was false," we would have a right to bring John Doe in and bring out that fact.

Presiding Inspector: I would like to see your authority on that. Wouldn't you like to ask him first whether he made that statement?

Mr. Gladstein: But this statement is made after the witness takes the stand.

Presiding Inspector: You can call him back.

Mr. Gladstein: We can't call him back.

Presiding Inspector: Why can't you call him back?

Mr. Gladstein: At the time Cannalonga was on the stand this deposition that you are now reading was not in existence. This deposition was given—today is Tuesday—day before yesterday, and this deposition was made under oath. We, therefore——

Presiding Inspector: That don't matter a bit.

Mr. Gladstein: The fact that he made a statement under [2855] oath?

Presiding Inspector: Not at all, as to its admissibility. You couldn't put a sworn statement in any more than you could put a statement in without it being sworn to.

Mr. Gladstein: What is the test as to whether it goes in?

Presiding Inspector: That may be something that would have some influence on his credibility for the trier of the facts, but has no influence whatever on its admissibility.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Gladstein: Isn't this true: That if the subject matter——

Presiding Inspector: That is elementary.

Mr. Gladstein: That if the subject matter on which he gives the deposition is material to the issues involved in this case, the issues on which he previously gave testimony of a contradictory nature, then we have the right to prove that in this case?

Presiding Inspector: That is pure hearsay. This is hearsay. This man is telling about something that he says. You can call him, call Cannalonga.

Mr. Gladstein: We have no objection to having Cannalonga called back.

Presiding Inspector: Call him, then. I will give you a subpoena.

Mr. Gladstein: That is fine, and we are perfectly satisfied with it, but we wish to have this deposition put into [2856] evidence.

Presiding Inspector: You have it marked for identification and we will see after you have examined Mr. Cannalonga.

Mr. Gladstein: You mean, your Honor, the only way I can introduce this is through Mr. Cannalonga?

Presiding Inspector: That is my ruling at this time.

Mr. Gladstein: I still wish to make an offer of proof to prove——

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: I won't receive the offer.

Mr. Gladstein: For all I know we may never get him.

Presiding Inspector: If you can't get him that will raise a different question.

Mr. Gladstein: I think, your Honor, that when the witness has been qualified as a court reporter and says that he took a deposition, which was taken under oath, by the witness, Cannalonga, this deposition having been taken after Cannalonga testified and, therefore, we couldn't have confronted him with it at the time he testified, then I think we have a right to have this deposition read into the record and received in evidence to show that it contains statements made under oath by Cannalonga which are contradictory to the testimony brought out by the Government from him on his direct examination.

Presiding Inspector: No, sir. I rule against you on that. You have got to swear Cannalonga first.

Mr. Gladstein: He was sworn when he gave the deposition. [2857]

Presiding Inspector: That doesn't make a bit of difference. I haven't heard his oath. They haven't had the opportunity to test that under cross examination.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, your Honor, if I remember correctly, you allowed the Government to introduce in evidence the statement, unsworn, of Richard Lovelace——

Presiding Inspector: I did.

Mr. Gladstein: You did.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: Lovelace is dead.

Mr. Gladstein: I know, but did we get an opportunity to cross examine him?

Presiding Inspector: No.

Mr. Gladstein: So then any person who is dead, his statement can be brought into this case without an opportunity for his cross examination, is that it?

Presiding Inspector: Don't you know—in the first place, you are very impolite. In the second place, you know very well that the rules against hearsay are not enforced with the same rigidity by an Administrative official as they are in a Court of Justice.

Now, I think it was clearly within my discretion to admit the statement of Mr. Lovelace, explanation having been given; and it having been proved to a certain extent by the testimony of the witness, Dawn Lovelace.

Now, this statement may contain some contradictory matter; [2858] it may not. I will have to go back and review with care the testimony of Cannalonga. It certainly contains a good many statements which are clearly incompetent, certainly without proof that Mr. Cannalonga was asked these questions.

Now, I will allow you to call Mr. Cannalonga, and I will furnish you with a subpoena to that effect. Then when you have called him we will see about this deposition.

Mr. Gladstein: Is your Honor ruling that the only way I can prove that Mr. Cannalonga was asked the questions that I asked him day before yesterday is from Cannalonga himself? Is that your ruling?

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no evidence that this is the same Cannalonga that testified in this case.

Presiding Inspector: I am not going to listen to that.

Mr. Gladstein: We will prove it was him.

Presiding Inspector: We will assume that.

Mr. Gladstein: You can safely assume that. We will prove it was.

Presiding Inspector: I have never known of a statement being received, made after a person has left the witness stand, without having the person called back and an inquiry made and an opportunity given to test by cross examination the truth of the statements then made.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, we have brought Mr. Shoemaker, a court reporter down here——

[2859]

Presiding Inspector: You don't need Mr. Shoemaker's testimony.

Mr. Gladstein: I think we do. We have done this at rather great expense to the Defense Committee and——

Presiding Inspector: You are not going to have to call Mr. Shoemaker back.

Mr. Gladstein: That is one reason I would like to have this testimony in this record because I feel that your Honor, by the time the case is finished, will recognize with us the propriety and admissibility of this document and, therefore, we don't want to have any question about it; we want to have that in.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

If you feel that at this time you do not want to allow that document in evidence, although I have offered it, I still think, in all deference to your Honor's ruling, we have a right to make an offer of proof. Some day somebody besides yourself may be looking at this record and we think that we are entitled to the protection of having this record include what we consider as very critical type of proof.

Presiding Inspector: This is going to be introduced, at least marked for identification, and you can present it to any other tribunal before which this question comes.

Mr. Gladstein: I wish to make an offer of proof. I have never heard——

Presiding Inspector: If they don't object to your offer [2860] of proof the Examiner will not rule on it.

Mr. Gladstein: Let's assume they will object.

Mr. Del Guercio: We do object to the offer of proof.

Presiding Inspector: You mean you object to their making an offer of proof?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. And we object to the admissibility of the document for identification, or otherwise, and we demand——

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no. This document may be marked for identification.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Gladstein: Let us have it first marked for identification.

Mr. Del Guercio: I haven't seen it yet.

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't matter. You don't have to see it when it is marked for identification.

Mr. Del Guercio: I submit this procedure is very unusual.——

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't make any difference.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Continuing) ——to pursue a witness after he gets off the stand.

(The document referred to was thereupon marked for identification as Alien's Exhibit 13.)

Presiding Inspector: Now you offer it?

Mr. Gladstein: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to it.

Presiding Inspector: Now look at it, Mr. Del Guercio. [2861]

(The document referred to was passed to Mr. Del Guercio for inspection.)

Presiding Inspector: You offer this not as original evidence, do you, as to what happened, that the witness, Cannalonga, spoke of?

Mr. Gladstein: I offer this as documentary evidence, identified by this witness, as to what this witness says took place at those proceedings.

Presiding Inspector: As to what took place at what proceedings?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Gladstein: The proceedings at which the deposition was taken.

Presiding Inspector: That isn't the question as to what took place on that day in Mr. Lord's office.

Mr. Gladstein: You wish to know now what my claim of competency is?

Presiding Inspector: I ask you this: Do you offer it as original evidence or as simply impeaching the witness, Cannalonga?

Mr. Gladstein: For impeaching purposes.

Presiding Inspector: Only?

Mr. Gladstein: Let us say for that purpose at this time.

As a matter of fact, I think on checking the law, your Honor, that I can find authority that will support our position that we are entitled—— [2862]

Presiding Inspector: Maybe you can.

Mr. Gladstein. (Continuing) At least, I feel rather sure that we are entitled to have this in evidence for impeachment purposes, as direct impeachment.

Presiding Inspector: Not ordinarily you can't introduce statements made by a witness out of court unless you have given the witness an opportunity to know about them and to admit or deny having made them.

Mr. Gladstein: If that is the general rule, and let it us assume it is, Judge——

Presiding Inspector: You know it is the general rule.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Gladstein: If that is the general rule obviously it couldn't apply to the case of a witness who made his alleged contradictory statements after he had left the stand.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes; because you can call him back.

Mr. Gladstein: I still maintain, your Honor, that this document is admissible in evidence for impeachment purposes.

Presiding Inspector: Well, there is one correction in there that he makes, and he explains how the statement may have got in about Schneidermann.

Mr. Gladstein: That is not all.

Presiding Inspector: I know. Let us take that one thing. Shouldn't he be examined in open court on that?

Mr. Gladstein: I have no objection to that. He is a [2863] Government witness. Let the Government bring him down and contest the proceeding that took place.

Presiding Inspector: He was excused and let go. You can call him.

Mr. Del Guercio: He is their witness and they should call him, and we demand that he be called.

Presiding Inspector: No, no; he is still your witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: Not for this statement here. That was made without knowledge to us.

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't make any difference; he is still your witness.

Mr. Gladstein: How long do you wish, Mr.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Del Guercio, to go over that document? The Court is waiting for you.

Presiding Inspector: It will take some time.

Mr. Del Guercio: You want me to read it, don't you?

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead, Mr. Del Guercio.

(Further inspection of the document by Mr. Del Guercio.)

Presiding Inspector: It will doubtless take beyond the recess hour.

I think we will recess now until two o'clock.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment. I would like the document returned to the reporter. I do not want the document to be out of the custody of the reporter, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Can't you all sit here and let him read it? [2864]

I will sit here—go ahead.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will return it to the reporter.

Presiding Inspector: No, no. It will simply take up time this afternoon. Go ahead. I will sit here while you read it.

Mr. Gladstein: We didn't sit here and read all the books and documents they offered from page to page.

Presiding Inspector: This is off the record, Mr. Reporter. We have adjourned.

(Here followed remarks off the record.)

Presiding Inspector: This Court is in session again. We will wait until the paper is read by counsel.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

(The document referred to was passed to Mr. Del Guercio.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Note that the Alien is not present.

(The Alien returned to the hearing room at 12:32 P.M.)

Presiding Inspector: I am going to recess now until 2:00 o'clock. You will have to postpone reading that until the afternoon session.

Mr. Del Guercio: Very well.

Presiding Inspector: Hand the document to the Court reporter.

Mr. Del Guercio: I return the document to the reporter.

(Whereupon, at 12:36 P.M. a recess was taken until 2:00 P.M. of the same day.) [2865]

After Recess
2:05 O'Clock P.M.

RAY D. SHOEMAKER

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Mr. Goodwin: May it please the Court, may I make a suggestion?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Goodwin: I trust that I am making it entirely outside of the combat area.

Now, during my lunchless noon hour I examined, as far as I could, the authorities and I am unable to find, your Honor, any authority for the introduction of any statement of a witness as an impeaching statement unless it was made prior to the testimony of the witness, and after he had been asked if he had not on this former occasion made such a statement, yes, made such a statement.

Now, I think the offer is somewhat remarkable. From the glance that I have had of the statement, apparently it is not only contradictory, but introduces new matter. [2856]

The Witness, as I understand, was examined by one of counsel on Saturday and had a full opportunity at that time to secure his attendance as a witness here; but instead of attempting to obtain his attendance here he asked him to attend before a Notary. I suppose that is sort of a collateral immigration and naturalization proceeding that he has started on his own account. But anyway, he was not brought into court. He had an opportunity to bring him into court and he has not done so. Now, we do not want any evidence that is rightly admissible excluded. On the other hand, we do not want any evidence admitted that is palpably improper.

We are, of course, taken by surprise by such an extraordinary suggestion as that made by Mr. Glatstein for the introduction of such evidence as this.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Now, I suggest that in the orderly conduct of the matter that consideration of his offer be postponed until the opening of court tomorrow morning and that, in the meantime we have an opportunity to examine into the matter, unless your Honor feels that he is now ready to rule.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I don't feel that I am ready to rule. I will hear you, Mrs. King, although I think I can dispose of the matter. Go ahead.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, during the recess I had an opportunity to make a cursory review of Wigmore, and I found that there are two divergent lines of authority on this [2867] question; that Mr. Wigmore says that there is this rule and suggests that it is a rule which should be honored in the breach at the discretion of the trial judge on the appropriate occasion, and that some jurisdictions have recognized that and that other jurisdictions have not.

It is also true, as your Honor knows, that there has been admitted in this proceeding a good deal of hearsay, so that as far as the exception to the hearsay rule is concerned we have not been very strictly observing it, which seems to me a reason why at this point, where the hearsay is a matter of real importance, it is entitled to go in just as we have been admitting it in other instances.

Now, this testimony is clearly admissible at some point. The only problem is really a problem of order of proof; that if Mr. Cannalonga was confronted with this statement, as Mr. Wigmore makes plain, even if he could not recollect having made it it would at that point become absolutely admissible.

Now, in view of those circumstances and the fact, as your Honor knows, that we have been trying to prepare our case and have got witnesses down from Portland with reference to this matter at this time, it seems to us that we should be permitted to introduce this matter at this time and that it is under the other rules made in this proceeding and under the generally loose principles of evidence which control in Administrative proceedings and which provide nothing more than the ordinary [2868] rules of fairness; I mean, substantially that is the rule of evidence controlling in Administrative proceedings.

For instance, in this book on "Administrative Tribunals and the Rules of Evidence" we find in the introduction at the very beginning that—this is cited from Wigmore.

Presiding Inspector: I have read some of that.

Mrs. King: Wherein he calls attention to the obstructive and irrational technicalities and hopes that they will not become part of Administrative procedure as they have of common law rules.

In view of that situation we urge your Honor to admit this exhibit in evidence and to permit the examination of this witness who has been brought in from out of town.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Goodwin: Your Honor, I have heard the argument of the learned counsel on the other side, but I haven't heard what she says to our suggestion, except that she thinks that you ought to rule now without hearing from us. Obviously they have had this matter in mind since last Saturday, since they had the witness, I suppose, in custody, and they have had an opportunity to prepare themselves for this present argument. We have not had an opportunity to prepare ourselves and I would renew my suggestion.

Mr. Gladstein: In view of Judge Goodwin's statement I think I should make this statement. I don't offer it as evidence but a statement simply to clarify the situation. [2869] When Mr. Cannalonga appeared at my request before William P. Lord in Portland on Sunday, the day before yesterday, I had already asked him before that on the Saturday afternoon when he made certain statements in my presence and in the presence of Mr. Roscoe Crayeraft—I asked him if he would come to San Francisco and take the stand again and tell the whole truth. He at that time told me that he was not willing to come and reveal the things that had taken place about which he had told Mr. Crayeraft and me. I asked him then if he would make a statement before a Notary Public, before a lawyer in the city of Portland. He said he would have to "think it over." That was Saturday afternoon and the following morning he came and said he was willing to do so.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

In the meantime, arrangements had been made for Mr. Lord to have this deposition taken and on Sunday morning, as I understand from Mr. Shoemaker, Mr. Shoemaker was called and arrangements were made for the deposition.

Now, it is a theoretical question as to whether Mr. Cannalonga will ever be available. As a practical proposition Mr. Shoemaker is here. There is another witness we intend to put on tomorrow who is available, who will be available. But we can't say that Mr. Cannalonga is available. If he ever is available we will not object to his taking the stand. In fact, I made that request of him, but I had not powers of subpoena. If I had had a subpoena with me I certainly would have [2870] served it, but I don't know what the legal effect would be.

Mr. Goodwin: Your Honor, I have listened and I haven't heard an answer to the logic of my suggestion yet: That this matter go over until we have an opportunity to present it in an orderly fashion to your Honor. And, so far as the explanation of Mr. Gladstein is concerned, it is merely that the witness was reluctant. Well, he was reluctant when we brought him in and he was apparently under some intimidation when we brought him in. And I think that there is no doubt but what he would have to come in had there been—well, of course he would have to come in. The Government of the United States is sufficiently powerful to bring in a witness on behalf of the

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Alien as well as on behalf of the United States and he could have been brought here and he wasn't.

Now, we would like to have an opportunity to argue the question of the admissibility of this document and we would like to see it.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I think you should have the opportunity to argue the admissibility of this document and I would be very glad before this is finally received to have both sides present authorities. There seems to be a difference of authority on receiving statements made after the main testimony has been given. Mrs. King has called it to my attention a few moments ago and in the rapid glance I gave to that compilation known as "Corpus Juris" there was also a similar [2871] statement made there. The authorities cited did not seem of the highest authority. There was one case looking towards the view that this was admissible from the New York Common Law Reports. But that is a series published—you know perhaps better than I—some one hundred and twenty-five years ago.

Mr. Goodwin: I recall that there was a case to the contrary; an Illinois case.

Presiding Inspector: Yes; a case in Illinois.

Mr. Goodwin: I sat on that.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, I have seen this document. It is not going to poison my mind one way or the other to have this so that we can use it if we deem it necessary.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

We have a court reporter here. Why not let him verify it and we will determine its credibility, its admissibility subsequently?

Mr. Goodwin: You mean to verify this document?

Presiding Inspector: As being what occurred before Mr. Lord.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no objection to that being done.

Mr. Goodwin: The examination being limited to that?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Do you want to read it to him, Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Del Guercio: We object to reading it.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it, with that under- [2872] standing. I am not admitting this in evidence, nor am I admitting—even this reading will be subject to a motion to strike out, or it may be considered as really offered off the record. I don't want to put it that way, but what I mean to say is that I am going to pass on this ultimately without prejudice to what we are doing now. But I want to let this court reporter go back to his work.

Mr. Del Guercio: He should read from his notes.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes; he may read it from his notes.

Mr. Goodwin: It can be identified; may it not, and he can testify that that is a correct transcript of the notes he has taken?

Presiding Inspector: Is there any difference really whether you read it or not?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Gladstein: I would prefer if I might, your Honor, because I think it would be better if he checked with his notes, as I understand this was gotten out in haste. I asked him to rush it to me. There may be a typewritten error or two. That occurs frequently in depositions. Therefore, I would prefer if I read it to him and if he would stop me at any point where a word is incorrectly set forth in the transcript.

Presiding Inspector: Do you have a copy?

The Witness: There are two copies.

Presiding Inspector: Supposing he reads it from his notes to me and you and I will check—you have two copies? [2872]

Mr. Gladstein: I do not think I brought the other copy with me.

Mr. Goodwin: If that is read if is in evidence subject to a motion to strike out?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. You may treat it that way.

Mr. Goodwin: I don't think it is fair to the Government. I think if he merely identifies that as being a correct transcript of his notes he can then be recalled for cross examination if necessary.

Presiding Inspector: Wouldn't that accomplish everything?

Mr. Goodwin: Let him identify it now and then let us have an opportunity to recall him if we wish to.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: What difference does it make to you about having it read now?

Mr. Gladstein: Is it your suggestion that the witness read it while you and I check the transcript?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I am satisfied.

Presiding Inspector: But Judge Goodwin now has interposed an objection to reading it at all. We are not really trying this case for anybody's benefit except our own.

Mr. Goodwin: Reading testimony of this kind in open court is, of course, highly prejudicial.

Presiding Inspector: I thought you were going to take the view it didn't amount to anything anyway. [2874]

Mr. Goodwin: I mean as far as the public is concerned. If it is admissible it ought to be admitted; if it is not admissible it ought not to be read.

I have made a suggestion which I think covers it and protects the Alien perfectly. He may identify it, he may testify that it is a correct transcript, and then we will have the whole question up on its admissibility.

I object to its being read now.

The Witness: Your Honor, I typed this hurriedly and I didn't have a chance to check it before I sent it by air mail to Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Del Guercio: The witness already testified that it is a correct transcript.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: He says, while this is a correct transcript, it is subject, like everyone, to errors and he would like to check it.

Mr. Gladstein: You made a ruling, and I thought I understood you to say you would allow the reading.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: May we proceed under the ruling?

Presiding Inspector: I think I will allow him to read it.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I make this further objection and observation: Under the rules under which this proceeding is being conducted, as the Court knows, in so far as Government witnesses are concerned, their statements, even when they are [2875] taken prior to the hearing, are not admissible unless it can first be shown that the witness is unavailable. Now, certainly the Government is bound by that rule, that here where you have a situation where a witness has been called here to testify, and counsel has had opportunity to cross examine him, and to explore his mind and cross examine him exhaustively, and after he is excused as a witness counsel pursues him, follows him, and a week later gets him, talks to him, and then invites him to a certain office on a Sunday and takes a statement from him wherein counsel, the statement will show, not only has intimidated him, but even to subornation of perjury, I say that under those circumstances this should not be permitted to be read or considered in this proceeding.

Presiding Inspector: I am going to allow it to be read with the understanding that it is not anything more than technically admitted at this time. The fact that I have allowed it does not weigh in its favor so far as its admissibility is concerned, and this is done solely for the reason that I want to let the witness go back to his court work.

Mr. Del Guercio: May the record show that I have objected to it strenuously?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly.

Let the witness read it. I think the witness had better read, rather than you, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. [2876]

Presiding Inspector: Have you two copies?

Mr. Gladstein: I don't have the other copy with me, your Honor, but I will check it with you.

Presiding Inspector: All right.

Go ahead and read from your notes.

(The Presiding Inspector and Mr. Gladstein checked with the typewritten statement.)

The Witness: These are questions by Mr. Richard Gladstein.

Presiding Inspector: I am not going to let this entire record be read. You understand that? Only the questions that are answered. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: First, there is this statement. (Indicating).

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: We don't care for that.

Mr. Gladstein: It shows he was sworn.

Presiding Inspector: He already testified to that.

Go ahead.

The Witness: (Reading from shorthand notes).

"Q. Mr. Cannalonga, you were recently a witness in the Harry Bridges deportation case, were you not? A. Yes.

"Q. Yesterday, in my room in the Clyde Hotel in Portland, you and Mr. Roscoe Crayeraft came into my room at about 3:00 o'clock, is that correct?

"A. Yes, sir." [2877]

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) We have no copy of this, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Come up and look over my shoulder.

(Whereupon Mr. Goodwin came forward as suggested.)

Mrs. King: Mr. Shoemaker, will you read a little louder?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Proceed.

The Witness: (Continuing reading from shorthand notes):

"Q. And at that time Mr. Crayeraft introduced you to me, did he not? A. Yes.

"Q. Then a conversation took place between the three of us, is that correct? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"Q. Now, I want to ask you some questions concerning that conversation, and I want to ask you to repeat the statements you made to both Mr. Crayeraft and to me at that time. First of all, will you state in your own words the circumstances under which you were first contacted to give a statement to the FBI in the Bridges case?

"A. I want to get this straight.

"Q. Tell me where and who and what happened.

"A. Well, I was contacted through the immigration.

"Q. Immigration department?

"A. That lawyer in the immigration department. [2878]

"Q. He is a man by the name of Mr. Boyd?

"A. Boyd. That is it.

"Q. Where did he contact you?

"A. Through the marine firemen's hall.

"Q. That is the union hall? A. Yes.

"Q. When was that?

"A. I don't remember the date.

"Q. The month?

"A. I don't even remember the month.

"Q. Yesterday I think you told me it was some time in October of last year. Would that be about right?"

And then I have a notation that the witness took a pocket book from out of his pocket and looked at it?

"A. Yes; in October.

"Q. In October of last year? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"Q. What happened?

"A. Well, I went down to the immigration station and Boyd told me that the FBI men were coming down and they wanted to talk to me. Then from there we went out to the FBI building.

"Q. Do you remember where that was?

"A. The Vance building, on the corner of Third avenue and Union.

"Q. In what city? [2879]

"A. Seattle. And I think it is the 9th floor. And went up to the 9th floor and met a fellow by the name of Medala and—(Witness pauses)

"Q. Yesterday you said Dickstein.

"A. And Dickstein."

Presiding Inspector: There is no "and" here.

The Witness: (Continuing reading from shorthand notes) "Q. Is that correct?

"A. Medala and Dickstein."

Presiding Inspector: The transcript reads:

"A. Correct. Medala and Dickstein."

Is that what your notes read?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

The Witness: (Continuing reading from shorthand notes):

"Q. What happened?

"A. Well, they started questioning me in regard to Bridges, for an hour and a half.

"Q. What time did the questioning begin?

"A. Oh, let's see.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"Q. This is what you told me yesterday: you said that you had a doctor's appointment at either 1:00 or 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

"A. Yes. That is it.

"Q. And that the questioning by the FBI agents took place [2880] for a period aproximately two hours before that appointment time with the doctor."

Presiding Inspector: There is no "took place" here. Is that in your notes?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Right after the word "agents"?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: "* * * by the FBI agents took place * * *".

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

The Witness: (Continuing reading from shorthand notes):

"A. That is it.

"Q. Is that what happened? A. Yes.

"Q. During that two hours what took place?

"A. Well, just a general conversation.

"Q. Did they ask you a lot of questions about what you knew about Harry Bridges?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Did they ask you whether you could prove that Bridges was a communist?

"A. Yes; they asked me that, and then I answered that, no, I couldn't prove that he was a communist.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"Q. Did they tell you that they knew that you had been [2881] a communist? A. Yes.

"Q. Did they tell your that you should make a statement for them in which you were to say that Bridges was a communist?

"A. Not that first time. You see, all during this time they never came out the way you said it.

"Q. Then let me ask you this question:"——

Presiding Inspector: Is the word "question" in your notes? The way the transcript reads is "Then let me ask you this:" Is the word "question" there?

The Witness: No.

(Continuing reading from shorthand notes:)

"Q. Then let me ask you this: is it correct that on this first occasion they kept asking you questions"——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) There appears to be so many incorrectnesses——

Presiding Inspector: They don't amount to anything.

Mr. Del Guercio: Can you hear what the witness is testifying to?

Mr. Goodwin: I can follow the stenographer, but I think it would be better if someone else checked.

(Whereupon Mr. Myron replaced Mr. Goodwin in checking the transcript during the reading of the shorthand notes.)

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

The Witness: (Continuing reading from shorthand notes):

"Q. Then let me ask you this: is it correct that on [2882] this first occasion they kept asking you questions as to whether you knew that Bridges was a communist and you denied that you had any such knowledge? A. Yes.

"Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

"Q. That was what happened? A. Yes.

"Q. Did they also ask you whether you had ever attended communist meetings with Bridges?

"A. Yes, they asked me that.

"Q. What did you reply to those questions?

"A. I told them, no; that I had been in meetings with him where there were communists and non-communists, and then I explained the party structure, how it works with the rank-and-file, and the progressive groups in the union.

"Q. Now, at the end of that first day, you told me yesterday that they sent you in a taxicab to the doctor? A. Yes.

"Q. Is that what happened?

"A. Yes, that is correct. I went to the doctor in a taxicab.

"Q. Before you went to the doctor, did they tell you that they wanted to see you again?

"A. Yes; they made an appointment for the next day. [2883] You see, the reason why I was going to the doctor, when I was on the branch I threw my hip out of joint up in Alaska, and I had been quite a while on a ship before I could get to a doctor; and I went to a doctor in Juneau and he didn't take no x-ray pictures and he just figured I had this sciatic rheumatism; and so when I got down to Seattle they had an ambulance waiting for me. They had to pick me off the ship. And so they drove me,—well, it wasn't an ambulance,—it was a Public Health Service car there. And so they took me up to the U. S. Marine hospital in Seattle. That is the U. S. Public Health Service. And I went in there, and I was in there,—I don't quite recall,—but I have got the hospital discharge. You see, when you go into the Marine hospital they give you a discharge when you come out, the length of time you were in the hospital. And I asked to be released so I could go to a private doctor. And so I went down and saw Bogle, Bogle & Gates. I believe they handle all the insurance and accident insurance; and so they sent me up to Dr. Buckner.

"Q. This all took place before the first time you saw the FBI? A. Oh yes.

"Q. Did Dr. Buckner proceed to give you treatments?

"A. Well, Dr. Buckner examined me that day, and it was on a Thursday, and he told me to come back the next day; [2884] that he would have his x-rays all finished and everything. And so, in the meantime I had gone down to Bogle, Bogle & Gates, and they told me that Dr. Buckner,—the next day,—on Friday,—they said he wanted to see me right away;"

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: Read that after the word "Friday."

The Witness: (Continuing reading from shorthand notes):

"——they said he wanted to see me right away; and so I called him up,—that was about 9:00 or 10:00 o'clock in the morning,—I called him up and he says, 'You go right up to the Providence hospital,' and I says, 'What for?' and he says, 'Well, we have to manipulate you.' I says, 'What the hell is manipulating?' So he explained it that my hip had been out of joint and that he wanted me to get up there right away, because that afternoon he was going to put me under ether and,—well, it is not ether, either; it is a new stuff they shoot in your veins that makes you go to sleep. And so then I argued with him. I told him, I said, 'Hell! You acted like I was faking, so I will be up there at 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon. I have to go home and get some clothes and stuff.' And so he says, 'You make sure to be up there.' And so I went home and got a couple of shits of pajamas and shaving gear and stuff.

"Q. Did you go into the hospital?

"A. Then I come back and I went up to the hospital. [2885]

"Q. How long were you in the hospital?

"A. I think I was in the hospital a couple of weeks.

"Q. During all the time you were under treatment by Dr. Buckner?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"A. Yes. And after I left the hospital I started taking treatments again from Dr. Buckner.

"Q. What kind of treatments?

"A. Well, he was giving me shots.

"Q. Shots of what? A. I don't know.

"Q. Was he also prescribing pills of any kind?

"A. No. I had a box of pills that I got up at the Marine hospital. And in Juneau,—the doctor in Juneau gave me a prescription, and I got, I think, a hundred of these,—oh, what the devil do you call them?,—a sleeping pill. You take one or two and go to sleep, but if you take four it makes you higher than a kite.

"Q. Nembuthal? A. Nembuthal.

Presiding Inspector: How do you spell that?

The Witness: I spelled it, your Honor, N-e-m-b-u-t-h-a-l.

Mr. Del Guercio: Did the witness spell it?

The Witness: Sir?

Mr. Del Guercio: Did the witness spell it?

The Witness: No, the witness, didn't spell it.

[2886]

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment! This is not the time for cross examination.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

The Witness: "Q. That is the name you mentioned to me a while ago.

"A. Yes. Nembuthal. Those names are pretty hard.

"Q. Were you taking any more pills just before you saw the FBI agents for the first time?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"A. Yes.

"Q. How many pills at a time were you taking- A. I was taking——"

Presiding Inspector: Read that sentence again, that question.

The Witness: "Q. How many pills at a time were you taking?"

Presiding Inspector: I will correct that by writing the "a" over the word "that". The transcript reads "How many pills at that time were you taking?"

The Witness: Well, it is plain in my notes, your Honor, "at a time".

Presiding Inspector: All right.

The Witness: "A. I was taking four pills at a time.

"Q. How many times a day were you taking these pills?

"A. Oh, well, I was taking them four or five times a day, so I was all hopped up all the time.

[2887]

"Q. Was this to relieve the pain from your hip?

"A. Yes. I think, if I am not mistaken, Dr. Buckner prescribed some of these pills, too.

"Q. Let's go back for a minute to the first time you spoke to Mr. Medala and Mr. Dickstein, the FBI agents. That conversation was in their office in the Vance building? A. Yes.

"Q. And they told you——"

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Del Guercio: May I interrupt right here again, please, your Honor. I object to the reading of these things.

Presiding Inspector: I will go on.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is so apparent.

Presiding Inspector: I won't allow any interruption. Go on.

The Witness: "Q. And they told you to come back the next day? A. Yes.

"Q. At what time?

"A. I believe it was in the morning.

"Q. Did you come back the next day?

"A. I did.

"Q. What happened?

"A. We were there a while and I,—well, I couldn't sit down very well. The hip bothered me. And so they asked me was my hip bothering me and I said 'Yes', and they suggested [2888] that we go up to the hotel room in the Roosevelt Hotel in Seattle, and so we rode up to the room in a taxi up to the Roosevelt Hotel, and we went up in their room. And that was on the 10th or 11th floor. Quite a ways up in the elevator.

"Q. What happened when you got into the room?

"A. Well, I got in the room and they had,—I believe,—yes, they did have a statement already typewritten out, and so——

"Q. What did they want you to do with the statement?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"A. Well, they wanted me to sign it.

"Q. Yesterday you told me that on this second day when the FBI agents saw you they told you that they wanted you to sign a statement in which you were to say that you had seen Harry Bridges pay his communist dues * * * *"

Presiding Inspector: What is the word——

The Witness: "Communist Party dues".

Presiding Inspector: All right.

The Witness: "Did they do that?

"A. Yes. They mentioned that. Then I told them that I had never seen no Party book,—never seen Harry Bridges in a Party book, or ever pay party dues.

"Q. Did you read the statement, or did they read it to you? The statement that they had prepared?

"A. Well, to tell you,—the statement was already typed, so I glanced through it. And they asked me, 'Now, are [2889] there any mistakes?' And so I found some words misspelled and a few errors, and they told me to initial,—to make corrections and put my initials on each line where I made a correction.

"Q. Before that happened, you told me yesterday that they asked you whether you had been in meetings with William Schneidermann."

Presiding Inspector: No, read that again. "They asked you."

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

The Witness: "They asked you whether you had been in meetings with William Schneidermann".

Presiding Inspector: I will correct that by writing over the word "a meeting" the word "meetings".

The Witness: "A. Yes.

"Q. What did you tell them?

"A. I told them I had met Schneidermann."

Presiding Inspector: Is there anything before the words "I told them"?

The Witness: Yes. It looks like "Yes" here.

"I told them I had met Schneidermann.

"Q. You also told me they asked you whether you had been in meetings with Bridges?"

Presiding Inspector: Is that plural?

The Witness: Yes, sir. It looks like plural in my notes here. [2890]

Presiding Inspector: I will write the word "meetings" over "a meeting".

The Witness: "A. Yes; they asked me that, too, and I said, yes, I had been at meetings with Mr. Bridges, and then they asked me if there was any communist meetings I had been with Harry Bridges, and I told them that I had been at meetings."—"I had been with him"—no. "I had been. —the meetings I had been with him, there was communists in the meeting, such as myself, and there were non-communists, and all the meetings were pertaining to,—referred to the making up of agreements at the time. We were,——"

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: Go back to the beginning of that sentence, the beginning of the answer.

The Witness: The beginning of the answer?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: "A. Yes; they asked me that, too, and I said, yes, I had been at meetings with Mr. Bridges, and then they asked me if there was any communist meeting I had been with Harry Bridges."

Presiding Inspector: "I had been"?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: "I had been with Harry Bridges"?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Well, put a parenthesis around the word "at".

The Witness: The word "at"? [2891]

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. It reads here "I had been at with Mr. Bridges".

The Witness: Oh, I see. I have no "at" in my notes.

"And I told them that I had been,—the meetings I had been with him, there was communists in the meeting, such as myself, and there were non-communists, and all the meetings were pertaining to,—referred to the making up of agreements at the time we were meeting at the ship owners of the waterfront unions, . . ."

Presiding Inspector: Well now, yes. After the break where it says "referred to the making up of agreements at the time"——

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

The Witness: "At the time when we were meeting at the ship owners".

Presiding Inspector: Well, "We were meeting at the ship owners of the waterfront unions"?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I will connect the word "time" by a little curved line underneath the word "we" which will indicate that, as the witness reads, there was no new sentence beginning with the word "we".

The Witness: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

The Witness: "And, you see, we were meeting as a group, and that the sailors were going to try to break away at the [2892] time."

Presiding Inspector: And the what?

The Witness: "And the sailors were going to try to break away at the time."

Presiding Inspector: I will insert the word "time" after the word "the".

The Witness: That's right.

Presiding Inspector: With a period after that.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

The Witness: "Yesterday you told me that Mr. Medala and Mr. Dickstein asked you whether you had ever been in a meeting where Schneiderman and Bridges were present at the same time, and that you told them you never had.

"A. Yes.

"Q. Is that what happened?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"A. Yes; that is right.

"Q. And that was a truthful answer to their question?

"A. Yes. And as I told them, I had been,—I was taking in quite a few meetings at the time,—both communist and non-communist meetings,—and that I couldn't remember that I had ever been in a meeting where both Schneiderman and Bridges were there. Which is correct. I hadn't. . .

"Q. But the statement that you signed for the FBI agents contains a statement to the effect that you had sat in a meeting [2893] with Schneiderman and Bridges. That was untrue?

"A. Yes; but that isn't orrect.

"Q. They had prepared that in the statement for you?

"A. Yes; and I never noticed it when I——

"Q. When you read it?

"A. Yes. You see, I want you to understand this, too. You see, when I read these statements I was gowd up. If you don't know what gowd up is,—I was taking these pills pretty heavy. I was in pretty bad shape. And so instead of using them for sleeping pills, if you double the dose it makes everything rosy then."

Presiding Inspector: Just read that again, after the words "sleeping pills."

The Witness: "If you double the dose it makes everything rosy then.

"Q. So you signed the prepared statement that they had for you?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"A. Yes.

"Q. And it contained statements that wasn't true, is that right?

"A. Correct.

"Q. Later on they had you sign two more statements, isn't that true?

"A. Correct.

"Q. Were those also prepared statements which were pre- [2894] pared by them in advance?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Did those two statements also contain untrue statements?

"A. They did.

"Q. And they had you sign those also?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Why did you sign all of those statements which they had prepared for you when you knew that those statements contained false statements?

"A. Why?

Do you want me to say what I put in my transcript?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: "(The witness paused).

"Q. You knew they knew, when you were signing those statements, that those statements contained falsehoods, isn't that true? A. Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Read that again carefully.

"You knew and they knew,——"

The Witness: "You knew and they knew, when you were signing those statements, that those statements contained falsehoods, isn't that true"?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: I will change the "the" before the second word "statements" to "those."

The Witness: That's right. [2895]

Presiding Inspector: That is, I will write the word "those" above it, "That those statements contained falsehoods, isn't that true?"

"A. Yes."

(Here followed informal discussion between Mr. Gladstein and the Presiding Inspector at the bench.)

Mr. Goodwin: Is that all?

The Witness: That is all the ones he asked me.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't know what is going on, if the Court please.

Presiding Inspector: Nothing is going on. I say, you can come up here. I say, that ends the reading.

Mr. Myron: I think——

Presiding Inspector: Off the record.

(Remarks outside the record.)

Presiding Inspector: We will consider the question of admissibility when I have got the briefs. Of course, if you want to have the rest of this read you can read it yourself, if you want to show what Mr. Gladstein said to the witness when he made no response.

Mr. Del Guercio: I merely renew my motion to have the whole thing stricken.

Presiding Inspector: I will reserve decision on it.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Shoemaker, you have read up to a certain [2896] point the questions and answers that you heard at the time of this deposition on Sunday, the day before yesterday. Can you look through your notes and find whether there were subsequent questions asked?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow that.

A. There were.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Who asked those questions?

A. You did.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that upon the ground it is immaterial and irrelevant.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. And during the time that I asked the questions that followed was Mr. Cannalonga in the office where the deposition was being taken?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question as being incompetent and irrelevant.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. "Yes" or "No."

The Witness: May I qualify that statement, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, you may qualify the statement.

A. He was in the office until you finished about the first third of the last question and he left the room and didn't come back. [2897-8]

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, will you look at your notes and see whether just prior to the time that Mr. Cannalonga got up during the time that I was asking him a question and left, whether prior to that time he got up at one point while I was asking him a question, left the room and then came back?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute, please! So that I won't need to repeat, if your Honor please, may the record show that I object to every question along this line?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Yes, sir. You are quite right to object. I will note your objection, but I will allow the answer to be taken.

A. He left the room after—I just counted this up, and he left the room after you asked the twelfth question starting with the one he refused to answer.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Let us go to the point, Mr. Shoemaker, where the last question and answer occur in your notes, which Judge Sears has allowed you to read, and so that it may be—it is the one I have reference to in which the question is "You knew and they knew—"

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Just a minute! I think we excluded that and I don't think any question should be asked.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't think so. I don't think so.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Myron: We object to reading from it when it wasn't [2899] allowed to be read.

Mr. Gladstein: It was read by this witness and I am trying to direct him to the point at which I wish him to start.

Presiding Inspector: Read the last thing that was read.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. The last thing is——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Is that one of the questions that has already been read?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Myron: And answered by him?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. This is one of the questions that was read.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. And the answer was given. I want the witness to start with that question, "You knew and they knew, when you were signing those statements, that those statements contained falsehoods, isn't that true?

"A. Yes."

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you got that point? A. Yes.

Q. Did I ask him a question immediately afterwards? A. You did.

Q. Was he in the room at the time I asked the question? A. He was.

Q. Did he answer that question?

A. He did not. [2900]

Q. Did I then ask him another question?

A. You did.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Q. Was he in the room when I asked him that question?

Mr. Myron: We object to all this line of inquiry. It is merely for publicity purposes.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know what it is for, but I will allow it.

Go ahead, Mr. Gladstein.

A. He was.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did he answer the question.

A. He did not.

Q. Did I ask him another question?

A. You did.

Q. This is the third one now?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he in the room at that time?

A. He was.

Q. Did he answer that question?

A. He did not.

Q. Did I ask him a fourth question?

A. You did.

Q. Did he answer that question?

A. He did not.

Q. Was he in the room at that time? [2901]

A. He was.

Q. Did I ask him a fifth question?

A. You did.

Q. Was he in the room? A. He was.

Q. Did he answer it? A. He did not.

Q. Did I ask him a sixth question?

A. You did.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Q. Did he answer it? A. He did not.

Q. Was he in the room at that time?

A. He was.

Q. Did I ask him a seventh question?

A. You did.

Q. Was he in the room?

A. He was. Yes, he was.

Q. Did he answer it? A. He did not.

Q. Did I ask him an eighth question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he in the room?

A. He was.

Q. Did he answer it?

A. He did not. [2902]

Mr. Del Guercio: Is this an examination or what?

Presiding Inspector: This is evidence.

Mr. Del Guercio: Evidence?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Go ahead.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't know what evidence is.

Presiding Inspector: I am afraid not, but we will go on.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did I ask him a——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) At least it isn't evidence admitted fully yet.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did I ask him a ninth question?

Presiding Inspector: I want this witness to be excused so he can go back to court work.

A. You did.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was he in the room?

Mr. Del Guercio: We are ready to excuse him, your Honor, at any time.

A. He was.

Presiding Inspector: Now wait, Mr. Del Guercio! Counsel have a right to proceed when the Examiner has ruled that they are in order.

Go ahead, Mr. Gladstein. [2903]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, I think you said I asked him a ninth question and that he was in the room. Correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Did he answer it? A. He did not.

Q. Did I ask him a tenth question?

A. You did.

Q. Was he in the room? A. He was.

Q. Did he answer it?

A. He said "Off the record."

Mr. Gladstein: Now, I think, your Honor, I have a right to ask the question and the answer since he said "Off the record."

Presiding Inspector: I think that is not an answer.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, that is his response to the question, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know what it means.

Mr. Gladstein: I know. But don't I have a right to show what his response is? Suppose, for example he nods his head or he shakes his head or he says

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

"Off the record" or he says "Don't ask me that." I mean, you may not regard the answer as directly responsive, but I think it shows the reaction of the deponent to the question and, therefore, we have a right to read the question and answer, whatever it might [2904] be.

Presiding Inspector: You already have it.

Mr. Gladstein: Not this one, Judge.

Presiding Inspector: This whole thing has been —it is your written document. Now you are wasting time here on this Mr. Gladstein, because you have got the full benefit as though it had been read, and this is all a waste of time in my judgment. But I am letting you try your own case. If I were trying this I would introduce the document or offer it and have it marked and go on to something else and not keep the Court or this proceeding going, but you have a right to proceed in your own way. And I will say that we have proceeded this way in the case of the other witnesses.

Mr. Gladstein: I think we have.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, you say that there is a question to which he said "Off the record"?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was his answer?

A. That is his answer.

Q. That is the only answer you have to that question?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: That isn't quite fair. Whether it is an answer or not, we don't know. That is for the person who reads the record to say. He said that after the question [2905] was asked.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Is that correct, Mr. Shoemaker?

A. That's right.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: You see, you imply that that is an affirmative. That is not a necessary conclusion.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: At least I took it so.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Then did I ask him another question?

A. You did.

Q. Was he in the room? A. He was.

Q. Did he answer it? A. He did not.

Q. Did I ask him another question after that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he in the room? A. He was.

Q. Did he answer it? A. He did not.

Q. Did I ask him another question after that?

A. You did.

Q. Was he in the room? [2906]

A. He was.

Q. Did he answer it? A. He did not.

Q. At that point did anything unusual occur?

A. He got up and left the room.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question because the whole thing is unusual, not this particular moment necessarily.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Grossman: We will agree to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow that to go on the record. Go ahead.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You say that he got up and he left the room?

A. He did.

Q. What do your notes show as to whether he returned or not?

A. They show that he returned in about three minutes.

Q. When you say he left the "room," do you mean by that that he went out of the office and then came back?

A. He went out of the office and came back in about three minutes.

Presiding Inspector: He went out of the office that you were in. That is, the room?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was there another question after that?

[2907]

A. There was.

Q. Was there an answer?

A. There was not.

Q. Was there a question at about that time at which he made an answer to the effect that he "can answer"? Will you look at your notes on that, Mr. Shoemaker.

A. Oh, yes, yes. Do you want me to read that?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Q. Well, if it is a question that I asked and an answer which he gave.

A. "I can answer here," he said.

Mr. Myron: We will object to that.

Presiding Inspector: He said, "I can answer here."

Mr. Gladstein: All right. Then I think we have a right——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) What was he doing? Sitting down?

The Witness: He was standing by the door and counsel asked him to answer it, and he said "I can answer it here."

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you read the question?

A. "Q. Before you go I want to finish asking you a question. If you don't want to answer it, it is up to you. Will you please sit down so I can ask a question?

A. I can answer here."

Mr. Gladstein: All right. Now, I maintain, your Honor, [2908] that that is subject to this inference. It is an invitation by the witness to be asked the question, and I have a right to read the next question that I asked him.

Presiding Inspector: I don't so construe it. It means that "I can stand right here without sitting down." "I can do just as well by you by standing up instead of sitting down." I think that is the plain meaning.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, there was a last question, was there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the course of my asking that question —withdraw that.

At the time I started to ask that question was the witness in the office? A. He was.

Q. By the time I finished asking that question was he in the office? A. He was not.

Q. What took place between the beginning and the end of that question? What did Mr. Cannalonga do?

A. He left the room when you started the question. You asked him about fifteen or twenty words and he left the room.

Q. Did he say anything as he left?

A. I didn't hear him say anything. [2909]

Q. Were those all of the proceedings that were had? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, I object to the use of the word "proceedings."

Presiding Inspector: Of course, it wasn't a proceeding in a legal sense.

Mr. Del Guercio: In any sense.

Presiding Inspector: Well, you will have to go to the dictionary perhaps and find something——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I challenge them to say what kind of a matter that was that was being held there.

Presiding Inspector: That is a mere matter of speech.

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Mr. Gladstein: I think the witness has already testified that Mr. Cannalonga was sworn beforehand and it was a deposition, and I think those are usually known as "proceedings."

Presiding Inspector: Oh, it wasn't a "proceedings".

Mr. Gladstein: Cross examine.

Presiding Inspector: You may inquire.

Mr. Del Guercio: No cross examination.

Presiding Inspector: You are excused.

Mr. Myron: I think his notes were being held for identification.

Presiding Inspector: What is that?

Mr. Gladstein: I didn't offer them. [2910]

The Witness: May I say this, your Honor? That I have two other cases in this book.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want them kept here?

Mr. Myron: I think they should be.

Mr. Gladstein: You can tear them out as far as we are concerned. It is perfectly all right.

The Witness: If I tear them out——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) If the transcript is to be marked for identification, I think the notes should be.

Mr. Gladstein: The transcript is in.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want them in?

Mr. Myron: I think they should be.

The Witness: If I get an appeal to the Supreme Court in this case, can I get my notes back from this Court?

(Testimony of Ray D. Shoemaker.)

Presiding Inspector: In this case?

The Witness: No. I have another case in this book.

Presiding Inspector: Don't leave them all. Tear them out.

The Witness: I can't tear them out, your Honor, because it is on the other side. It is written on both sides.

Presiding Inspector: They are on both sides?

Mr. Grossman: Why can't we put them in evidence with permission to the reporter to withdraw them and have photostatic copies substituted if it becomes necessary in this other case, if that is agreeable? [2911]

The Witness: If you want them I can leave them, but if they ever ask for an appeal to the Supreme Court I would have to have my notes.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. I am sure that Mr. Del Guercio, or whoever has these, will see that this is done.

Mr. Grossman: That is understood, then?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: All right.

The Reporter: Alien's Exhibit No. 14 for identification.

(The notes referred to were marked Alien's Exhibit No. 14 for identification.)

(Witness excused.) [2912]

Presiding Inspector: Call your next witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Could we have a recess now, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: We are ready for the next witness.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, when the witness responded this morning to the subpoena I told him to wait in 207, though I didn't take him there. I assumed he went there, but he is not there now. It may take a moment or two to find out whether he is in the building. I haven't talked to him since. So I will make a search in the building for him.

Mr. Gladstein: Perhaps somebody could call for Officer Catherman.

Mr. Grossman: I suppose that is as effective as my looking for him.

Presiding Inspector: What is his name?

Mr. Grossman: Catherman.

Presiding Inspector: Is Mr. Catherman in the court room?

Call out in the hall for him, Mr. Officer.

A Guard: He is coming in the side door, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Catherman, come and take the stand. Raise your right hand.

CHARLES D. CATHERMAN

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows: [2913]

Presiding Inspector: Give your name to the reporter.

The Witness: Charles D. Catherman—C-a-t-h-e-r-m-a-n.

Presiding Inspector: Your residence?

The Witness: 455 West Avenue 43, Los Angeles.

Direct Examination.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Mr. Catherman, were you served with a subpoena to appear in this proceeding?

A. I was.

Q. What did that subpoena ask you to bring to this hearing?

A. It mentioned some inter-department records, or something like that.

Mr. Goodwin: Speak louder.

A. Inter-department records, or something like that.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Have you brought any documents or papers in response to this subpoena? A. No, sir.

Q. Will you explain why you have not, Mr. Catherman?

A. I never had any documents of that kind in my possession at any time, and I went to the Chief of Police's office, where I was supposed to get permission, and he was out of town, and I only had a few hours' notice, and they said that I had no right to take any records like that out of the City. [2914]

(Testimony of Charles D. Cathermain.)

Q. Who said that?

A. That only the Chief of Police would have that right.

Q. Who said it?

A. That is what the Secretary told me, that I would have to see the Chief; that nobody had charge of the records except him.

Q. You mean the Secretary of the Chief of Police told you that?

A. Well, she said she thought I would have to see him; that she had no say-so about it.

Q. Can you state——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I object to this line of questioning. The witness testified that he never had possession of the documents.

Presiding Inspector: This is under subpoena issued by the Inspector, on the recommendation of the Presiding Inspector of this proceeding. I will allow them to show—you remember that there was objection to it, as I think, to the pages of one of the Congressional Committee reports, and this is an attempt to produce an original memorandum, so I will allow it.

Mr. Del Guercio: The witness testified he never had possession of any of those records.

Presiding Inspector: It may open the way to introduce secondary proof. Go ahead. That is the only purpose of it, as I understand it. [2915]

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Can you state the name of the Secretary to the Chief of Police with whom you talked about securing this document?

A. I think it is Miss O'Connor, but I wouldn't be positive of it. There is more than one secretary in there. I had never been in the office before.

Q. Now, exactly, what did she tell you, that you could not have such documents, or she thought you couldn't have such documents, or was it something else she said?

A. As near as I can recollect I asked to see the Chief. She said he was out. She wanted to know why, of course. I showed her the subpoena. She said, "You will have to see the Chief. He is the only one that can give authority to remove the records. You couldn't do it. You are only a common patrolman."

That is all there was to it.

Q. Did you discuss this subpoena and the documents with anyone else in the Police Department after receiving it? A. No, sir.

Q. Who is your superior officer in the Police Department?

A. Captain—I just got a new Captain where I am. I can't recall his name.

Q. Did you discuss this with him?

A. No, sir. I might state that I didn't discuss it with him at all. I got permission from the Lieutenant to come up here. [2916] I didn't even show him the subpoena because I didn't have time to go back to the station. I called him up and told him that I had it.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Q. Then you didn't discuss with the Lieutenant the subpoena either?

A. Only that I had been called up—this Department, Immigration Department, called me and told me there was a subpoena up town for me.

Q. You didn't discuss with the Lieutenant whether you could or should procure the documents that were called for in the subpoena?

A. No, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Was this witness sworn before the Congressional Committee?

Mr. Grossman: No.

Mr. Del Guercio: Did you Honor ask whether this witness had been sworn before the Congressional Committee?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no evidence that he was before that Committee.

Presiding Inspector: I asked if he was a witness before the Congressional Committee.

Mr. Del Guercio: I thought you asked if he had been sworn.

Presiding Inspector: The inquiry was merely directed to the point as to whether he had ever been a witness before [2916—A] the Congressional Committee.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. In September of 1937, Mr. Catherman, what kind of work were you doing?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

A. Well——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Just a moment. I object to the question.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question as immaterial, and no foundation having been laid for it.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

Mr. Grossman: You may answer.

A. I was working mostly on strike detail.

Presiding Inspector: Working on strike detail, he said.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Were you in the office most of the time, or outside most of the time?

A. Outside most of the time.

Q. Did that strike duty include receiving reports over the telephone, giving information about those strikes, or about any strikes?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is too general.

Presiding Inspector: It may be rather general, but I will [2917] allow it.

The Witness: I don't quite understand the question.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Were you at that time a patrolman in the Los Angeles Police Department? A. I was.

Q. Did you, during that period, that approximate period, about September 1936-1937, receive telephone calls as part of your duty giving you information about strikes?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question, too, your Honor, as being too general—conversation with whom and about what?

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. I think it is fairly definite.

Mr. Grossman: Then I will make it more definite.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Was it part of your duty or, rather, did you, as part of your duty, in approximately September of 1937, receive any telephone calls at the Police Department concerning strikes?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that as immaterial. No strike is at issue in this case. It is immaterial whether he did or not.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. It is merely preliminary to an attempt to prove a certain conversation.

A. Well, I will say I did. I answered the phone at times. [2918]

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Were you in the office at regular times of the day, or was it accidental as to what times you would be in and what times you would be out?

A. For just a short time, while one of the officers was on vacation, I worked from midnight until morning, what they call the morning watch, just answering the telephone.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Q. For how long a time?

Mr. Del Guercio: May I suggest, if your Honor please, that if he wants any conversation with any particular person that he ask if he had any conversation over the telephone?

Presiding Inspector: I won't confine him. Of course, he may have no recollection of this, and they may show him a document and ask him if it actually refreshes his recollection so that after having looked at it he can report what occurred, if anything did occur.

Go ahead.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. For how long a period were you on the midnight shift receiving telephone calls?

A. Well, I would say during September and probably part of October.

Q. Was this in connection with your strike detail?

A. Well, I would consider it so because I never was regularly assigned to the Intelligence Unit. I belong to the [2919] Reserve Unit and was loaned out to them, the same as lots of other officers were, when they needed extra men to work strike duty.

Q. When you say "strike duty," do you mean duty under Lieutenant or Captain Hynes?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was your immediate superior, was he, at all times when you were working on strike duty?

A. Yes; except he had other officers under him that had the same authority, but he was considered the main authority.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Q. All right. Now, when you received these telephone calls when you were on the midnight shift, did they all deal with strikes; or did they deal with other police business?

Mr. Del Guercio: I submit, your Honor, that that is none of counsel's affair as to what they dealt with, unless it is something particular in connection with this case. If they dealt with other matters we are not concerned with them.

Mr. Grossman: I haven't asked what the other matters were, and I don't intend to.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. Go ahead.

A. Well, the messages were mostly about strike details, how many men they needed, and where they needed them, and things like that; but there were all kinds of messages that came over the phone.

By Mr. Grossman: [2920]

Q. Did some of these messages come from police officers?

A. Most all of them did as far as I know.

Q. Did any of them that you recall come from informers who gave information to the Police Department? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. When you received these messages wasn't it your practice to find out from whom the message came? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you make a memorandum of these messages as to each message when it came in?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

A. No memorandum. I just wrote down what the message was and left it on the desk.

Q. Well, did you write down what each message was after it came in?

A. Oh, yes. I had to do that because I didn't have any contact with anyone to deliver them otherwise.

Q. What were your orders with respect to what notations or writing you should do about telephone calls that came in on that midnight shift?

A. Just to leave them on the desk.

Q. Were you instructed to make some kind of a written note or memorandum about each telephone call? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you given any instructions about leaving any notes showing what the telephone call was about? [2921] A. No, sir.

Q. That was your own idea, was it, in so far as you followed it, in making notes of telephone calls?

A. No. That was all the instructions I had, was to take any message that came over and leave it on the desk, because I left before anybody showed up in the morning to take charge of it.

Q. Was there an officer in charge of the midnight shift who was your immediate superior during the midnight shift?

A. No, sir. I was the only one in the office. I will say at times there were other officers there waiting on strike duty call, but I was the only one there that would receive messages at that time.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Q. Did you ever receive any messages with the information from the person who was telephoning that he wished you to put a number on the memorandum that you made to describe who he was?

A. Not in just that way.

Q. Did you ever receive a message and make a written memorandum which, instead of giving the name of the caller, gave a number? A. I did.

Q. How many times did that happen?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. Do you remember any of these numbers?

A. Some of them. [2922].

Q. Which ones do you remember?

Mr. Myron. I object to that—which ones he can remember. That might reveal confidential information that isn't in issue in this case.

Mr. Grossman: He is not giving any confidential information to state whether it was X, Y or Z.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. There has been some testimony about it.

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What numbers do you remember, or what letters, in case they used letters, do you remember?

Presiding Inspector: If you remember any.

Mr. Grossman: He said he remembered some.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What numbers or letters do you remember?

A. Sometimes they would say, "This is No. 40," or "No. 50," or "No. 100." I imagine it was all the same person, from the sound of their voice, but that wasn't any of my business and I just put down what they told me.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Q. Do you recall a message from B-50, a message from someone who stated he was B-50?

A. I remember No. 50, 50 and 100, because they are easier to remember than other numbers. They came in more often.

Q. Mr. Catherman, I am going to show you some writing [2923] that purports to be something that you have written.

Presiding Inspector: Hadn't you better exhaust his recollection first? You are going to lead him now.

Mr. Grossman: That is right. I don't mind exhausting his recollection.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you remember whether, on September 16, 1937, you received a telephone message at about 12:00 midnight from someone claiming to be B-50?

A. I couldn't remember that long back any certain date, or any certain message.

Q. Do you remember receiving, about September 16, 1937, a message dealing with a strike, rather, a scheduled strike at the Moody Bed Company?

A. No, I can't say that I recollect the Moody Bed Company. I worked lots of those strikes, but that don't sound familiar to me.

Q. Do you remember any occasion, in September of 1937, when someone who did not give his name, but only gave his number or letter, to describe himself, told you that there was a strike scheduled to begin the next morning? Do you remember any such message?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

A. No. I don't see how I could remember anything definite like that. Any message that came like that had my initial, my signature on the message. They never gave me any [2924] information. They asked—if you will let me explain?

Q. Yes.

A. They always asked if Captain Hynes was there, or any member of the Intelligence Unit, when the messages came over, because I suppose they wanted to talk direct. When I would say, "No," they would say, "Take a message." I wrote down whatever they said and that is all there was to it.

Q. Do you remember receiving any telephone message which was not from a Police Officer, which told you of a strike that was going to take place but hadn't yet started, or was going to take place?

A. No, I don't remember anything like that.

Q. For whom did you leave these notes of these telephone conversations, or addressed to whom did you leave these notes?

A. They were not addressed to anyone. I just left them on the desk. I presume they were for Captain Hynes. We call him "Captain" Hynes.

Q. Do you remember any telephone calls approximately September of 1937 in which the caller stated that he would call the next night for instructions as to what to do?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

A. No. I don't remember that.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please—well, I will withdraw the objection.

Presiding Inspector: He doesn't remember.

[2925]

Mr. Grossman: For the record I am referring to something which appears on page 23577 of the Reports of the LaFollette Committee, Part 64.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I will now show you what purports to be a memorandum signed by you, Mr. Catherman, and ask you whether you recognize this memorandum as one that you did sign or have something to do with having drawn up?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, your Honor, I object to the form of the question. That is a printed matter appearing in that book.

Presiding Inspector: If it actually refreshes his recollection he may use it.

Mr. Del Guercio: He said, "That you signed." There is nothing there to indicate that he signed it.

Presiding Inspector: Bearing his name.

The Witness: I would like to ask a question before I answer.

Mr. Grossman: You may.

The Witness: This message has a heading there "B50, Captain Hynes or Lieutenant Wellpott". I never wrote any message like that. The body of the message is similiar to messages I received. And down here (indicating), at the bottom, that part of it is where I usually finish them up. [2926]

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Is there anything else about the form that you think is inconsistent with forms you were using at about that time?

A. We had no forms. We just used any piece of scratch paper.

Q. I don't mean forms in the sense that they were printed. I mean forms in which you would give the information. Is there anything else about that that seems different from the way you did do it around September of 1937?

A. No, it is about the same.

Q. Are you certain that you never did write a memorandum at that time or around that time which had the names of Captain Hynes or Lieutenant Wellpott at the top?

A. No. I am not certain. Two years and a half is a long time to remember. I have got too many messages to remember.

Q. What would happen if you received a telephone call and the caller stated "I have a message for Captain Hynes or Lieutenant Wellpott"? Was it your practice to put those two names somewhere in your memorandum?

A. No, sir; because it is my understanding that whichever one of them arrived at the office in the morning would immediately go to the desk and take those notes up.

Q. Were there any other persons to whom these tele- [2927] phone messages were directed, not by you but by people who were phoning in the information? A. No.

Q. Except Wellpott and Hynes?

A. Messages like that, I wouldn't want to say because we got so many messages there. Some of them for any member of the Intelligence Unit. It might be Luke Lane or half a dozen others. But usually messages like this, why, they were for Hynes, I imagine, because nobody else would have any use for them.

Q. Let us suppose a message came in which the sender said was for Luke Lane. Would you place a memorandum of that conversation on the same desk as you would——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I object to the question.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. (Continuing) —as you would if the message were directed to Captain Hynes?

A. Absolutely.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment before you answer the question.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't state my— (Pause).

Presiding Inspector: Do you want to state the objection?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Mr. Del Guercio: No, never mind.

Presiding Inspector: You may, Mr. Del Guercio. [2928]

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, you have already ruled on it, so that is all right.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Then this is correct, is it, Mr. Catherman? That no matter whom the message was directed to it was your practice not to state on the memorandum the name of the person that the message was supposed to go to?

A. I never thought it necessary because——

Q. (Interposing) I want to know what your practice was.

A. That was the practice. But in order not to get me wrong, it is possible that I could have written that on there, but not as a practice.

Q. Well, you see, I have asked you these questions——

A. (Interposing) Yes.

Q. (Continuing) Because you made a statement before when I was asking you about this particular document that—I don't know how definite you were, but you stated at least doubt that you had written "Captain Hynes" or "Lieutenant Wellpott" at the top. A. I just——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) That is incorrect. That isn't the witness' statement.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: The record will speak for itself.

Mr. Grossman: That is why I wanted the witness to [2929] repeat once more.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Is it possible that your memorandum about that time would have at the top the name or names of the officers to whom the message was directed?

A. It's possible, but I just can't recollect ever doing it. It wasn't my practice.

Q. Now, you have read this document which claims to have your name at the bottom?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, may it please your Honor. That is not a document. There is no evidence here——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) If you want to suggest a word to be substituted for "document"——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I am speaking to the Court.

Mr. Grossman: (Continuing) ——I am perfectly willing to substitute any word for "document" if Mr. Del Guercio will be satisfied. I just want to ask a question.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no evidence here that any such document, such as what is purported to be shown by this book, was ever given to the La Follette Committee.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: I suppose that is true.

Mr. Grossman: Under the theory of Mr. Del Guercio, Mr. [2930] LaFollette is a Communist and makes up things like this. But I am supposing that something published by the LaFollette Committee at least establishes prima facially some basis for belief that such document was actually copied by the LaFollette Committee. Although Mr. Del Guercio will admit that Senator LaFollette will do things like that we will submit proof that Senator LaFollette will not do things like that.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that is quite in order. The question which you are trying to get is whether that document you have in your hand, not this particular memorandum but that document, actually refreshes this witness' recollection of what occurred.

Mr. Grossman: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: When you get to it I suppose you will show it to him.

Mr. Grossman: I did once, but I want to now ask him whether it refreshes his recollection at all. That is what I was starting to say.

Mr. Del Guercio: And counsel has stated that I have said that LaFollette is a Communist or he is implying that. Well, that should be stricken from the record. What I have said is that he is a Communist.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, if we are going to strike things from the record——

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) The rule requires [2931] that arguments shall not be included in the record, and ultimately all this persiflage back and forth will be stricken out. Only the objections and the rulings, not the argument.

Go ahead.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Now, Mr. Catherman, having read this do you still testify that you cannot recall receiving such a message in approximately September of 1937?

A. I cannot remember that individual message, but I did receive messages similar to that. There is no doubt about that.

Q. You mean this particular one? You can't now recall this particular message, receiving this particular message?

A. No. There was too many messages came in similar, for me, to remember any individual one unless there was something to recall my mind, like that there heading. I should remember it if I ever addressed a particular message, but I just can't remember ever doing it.

Presiding Inspector: Let me see that.

Mr. Grossman: Yes, your Honor.

(The document referred to was passed to the Presiding Inspector.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Does the number "B50" refresh your recollection as [2932] to whether you ever received a similar message to that from a person claiming over the telephone to be described as "B50".

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

A. Oh, I received messages signed "B50."

Q. You do recall receiving telephone messages under the description of "B50"? A. I do.

Presiding Inspector: Is this referred to in oral testimony?

Mr. Grossman: Well, Mr. Chase was confronted with that, and to that extent it is referred to.

Presiding Inspector: I don't mean in this record. I mean in the LaFollette report.

Mr. Grossman: My understanding is no, your Honor.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Now, your testimony is, Mr. Catherman, that all these memoranda that you did prepare from telephone messages that came in were put on a single desk in the office in which you were working?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was a desk that was used by Captain Hynes? and by Lieutenant Welbott?

A. That is the desk where I use—where the telephones were.

Q. Is that the place on which, according to your instructions from your superior officer, you should leave messages? [2933] A. Yes.

Q. And were you instructed to leave messages for Captain Hynes, Lieutenant Wellpott and Luke Lane on that desk?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

A. All messages that came in were left there.

Q. Now, I don't want to get you wrong. Is it your testimony that no matter whom the message was for in the Police Department the message was to be put on that same desk?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I will object to that. It doesn't matter what counsel thinks whether he is getting him wrong or not. The witness has already testified to that and it is a repetition. It has been asked and answered.

Presiding Inspector: Well, yes, that is so.

Mr. Grossman: I will say this, your Honor:——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If counsel wants to refresh his memory he can ask the reporter to read it.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, the only reason I asked him was his statement that it was not his custom to write the name of the officer to whom it was directed on the top. Otherwise I wouldn't even have brought it. I want to make sure that all messages were to go on a particular desk instead of being spread out.

Presiding Inspector: Well, that is what he has testified to, as I understand it.

That is right, isn't it? [2934]

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: They were all put out on one desk?

The Witness: I just left them there and when they came in in the morning long after I was gone home they got the message.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you have a printed form for use in the Los Angeles Police Department in approximately September of 1937 which had at the top of it "Los Angeles Police Department, Office Of.....", with a line for writing the name of the particular officer? A. I did not; no, sir.

Q. Do you recall ever seeing such a form?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember any form used in the Los Angeles Police Department in September of 1937 which carried at the top the words, "Intra-Departmental Correspondence"? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you or did you not ever use a printed form in writing and leaving these memoranda of the telephone conversations when you were on this midnight shift? A. I don't understand.

Q. Do you ever use a printed form to write these messages out? [2935]

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that upon the ground that it has been asked and answered. The witness has already testified that he never used a printed form.

Presiding Inspector: I think he said he never used a printed form. If there is any doubt about it, did you ever?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

The Witness: I don't understand what he means.

Presiding Inspector: Did you ever use a printed form?

The Witness: You mean to type it?

Presiding Inspector: No. A form which was furnished with a printed heading?

The Witness: No. I never done anything like that.

Presiding Inspector: What kind of paper did you have?

The Witness: Any kind of scratch paper that we happened to have.

Presiding Inspector: Very informal?

The Witness: Yes, sir. Papers, old reports; used the back of old reports and things.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Was it your custom, Mr. Catherman, at that time to sign these notes?

A. Yes, sir; either the name or initial.

Q. Was it your custom to sign such notes "Catherman"? A. I usually did.

Q. Was it your custom to put the time on which the [2936] message came in alongside your name?

A. At the bottom of the report; yes, sir.

Q. And was it the custom to place the name of the person making the report to you over the telephone at the bottom of the report near your name?

A. That's the way I remember it.

Q. Was it your custom ever to put the description of the person who had made the telephone call at the top of the report or near the top of the report?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

A. I never done anything like that.

Q. Are you sure about that or do you just not remember? A. You mean——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Your Honor, he just testified that he doesn't remember ever doing anything like that.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Are you sure?

A. I don't know what you mean by a description of a person.

Q. Let me show you this as an example, and I am again showing you the same document. Did you ever do anything like that with the description?

A. You mean like this (Indicating)?

Q. Yes, like the placing of "B50" at the top of this message?

A. No. I always put it down there (Indicating), as I [2937] remember.

Q. You don't recall ever doing that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever at any other time take telephone messages in this way except for this brief period when you were on the midnight shift?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment! I object to that "In this way". Does he mean in the way indicated by the report of the LaFollette Committee?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Mr. Grossman: No, the general way.

Presiding Inspector: No, as he testified.

Mr. Grossman: In the same general way.

Presiding Inspector: As he has testified.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you at any other time have the job of receiving messages over the telephone in the same general way you did during September of 1937?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Captain Hynes or Lieutenant Wellpott or Luke Lane this subpoena after you received it?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute! I object to that as being asked and answered. The witness has already testified that he hadn't discussed it with anyone.

Presiding Inspector: He said he hadn't discussed it with anybody but the Secretary. [2938]

Mr. Grossman: I wanted to be specific, your Honor. I wanted it to be made specific.

Presiding Inspector: That includes everyone from the President of the United States to the humblest citizen, except this woman.

Mr. Grossman: All right. I will let that stand.

A. Well, I would like to make a statement on that.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Yes, there is no objection.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: If there is someone else, then you will correct it.

A. I have not discussed this case with anyone.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, we are not talking about this case.

The Witness: When I heard I was going to be subpoenaed, when they called me, why, I did call Captain Hynes. I call him "Captain". And asked him what it was all about. The only thing he says "I don't know but what I read in the papers and you have read that, too".

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you tell him about the subpoena?

A. I hadn't seen it yet. I told him that I had been called on the phone and notified that I was going to be subpoenaed in the Bridges case and asked him if he knew what it was all about. He says "No, I don't, only what I read in the papers".

[2939]

Q. At that time did you know what the subpoena said? A. No, sir.

Q. How did you happen to call Captain Hynes about it?

A. Because I couldn't figure out any other reason why they would subpoena me.

Q. Is Captain Hynes now your superior officer? A. No, sir.

Q. How did you happen to associate Captain

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Hynes with the hearing in the Bridges deportation case?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I submit what difference does it make? He could call up anybody and discuss the matter with him.

Presiding Inspector: What is the point of this?

Mr. Grossman: I would like to know the point, your Honor. He doesn't call his superior officer, he doesn't know what is being asked.

Presiding Inspector: Is this to affect the credibility of your witness?

Mr. Grossman: I am not making any charges about whether this document is or is not being concealed, but we have a subpoena and we have a right to obtain it.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: Now, if he calls a man who, incidentally, may have custody because, obviously, the memorandum was written to this man, with no logical explanation being given as to [2940] why he calls him, then it may go to the question of why we don't have the document produced here. Especially, as I say, is it illogical that he would call this man not knowing what kind of testimony or document he was being asked to bring, because he didn't know at that time.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no evidence of the existence of such a document in this case, if your Honor please.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Mr. Grossman: Except the LaFollette Committee report.

Mr. Reporter, will you read the question?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: If you can answer that, you may.

A. Just because I worked up there in his office and I knew he received those messages and in some way connected with that kind of work or something. I don't know.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. How did you know that the subpoena for you to testify dealt in any way with any of the messages that you received for Captain Hynes?

Presiding Inspector: Well now, isn't that a little bit deceptive, or might he not take it as such? The subject of his testimony that was being sought was that.

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, the subpoena hadn't been [2941] presumably issued at that time.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. How did you know that the testimony that you were going to be asked to give would deal in any way with any message that you gave to Captain Hynes?

A. I did not know anything of the kind.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: What did they say to you over the telephone?

The Witness: Hynes?

Presiding Inspector: No, not Hynes. When you got the telephone message about coming up as a witness what was said to you?

The Witness: They said they had a subpoena for me to come up here and testify in the Bridges case, and did they want me to send it out or should I come up there after it?

Presiding Inspector: Did they tell what was in the subpoena?

The Witness: Not at that time, no. That is the reason I called back.

Mr. Grossman: I would like to have read back the answer as to why he called Captain Hynes, from which I want to ask further questions. May I have that read, Mr. Reporter?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: I told you just—— [2942]

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) Just a moment!

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as follows: "A. Just because I worked up there in his office and I knew he received those messages and in some way connected with that kind of work or something, I don't know.")

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. That is the answer you gave, Mr. Catherman.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

when I asked you why you happened to get in touch with Mr. Hynes.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is obvious. The reporter has just read it, if your Honor please.

Mr. Grossman: That is the beginning of my question, Mr. Del Guercio.

Presiding Inspector: He is getting a running start. Go ahead.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Now, when you said "that kind of work" in reply to that question, what kind of work did you mean?

Presiding Inspector: He specified that heretofore, I think, did he not?

Mr. Grossman: I don't think he has.

Presiding Inspector: Was it a strike detail?

Mr. Grossman: I want to know if that was what he meant.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is what he already said.

By Mr. Grossman: [2943]

Q. Were you referring to the strike that Captain Hynes had to do with labor matters and that was the kind of work?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that as being leading, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

A. (Continuing) I didn't know anybody else that would know anything about it except him.

[2944]

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. You figured—withdraw that. Did you get in touch with Captain Hynes for advice because you figured that on the question of Bridges Captain Hynes had an interest and had done some work?

A. No.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment, please.

Presiding Inspector: He said "no."

Mr. Del Guercio: I suggest that the witness be cautioned not to answer when I am about to interpose an objection.

Presiding Inspector: When counsel wants to object just wait before you answer.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you get in touch with Captain Hynes because you felt that Captain Hynes' work was connected with labor unions and strikes, and you felt that this Bridges case dealt with those same questions?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment. I object to the question.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think this witness is hostile.

Mr. Grossman: I don't think——

Presiding Inspector: I don't think you ought to lead him quite that way.

Mr. Grossman: If I add the words "whether or not" it makes it proper for direct examination.

[2945]

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no. Many questions have "whether or not" in them.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Mr. Grossman: Well, it will be a little more laborous, but I am willing to ask more general questions.

Presiding Inspector: I think the whole thing is so obvious.

Mr. Grossman: It is not obvious to me why he got in touch with Captain Hynes, when he was not his superior officer, on a matter he was not supposed to know anything about.

Mr. Myron: The answer was read back.

Mr. Grossman: I am proceeding on the basis of that answer.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What different kinds of work have you done between 1937 and 1941, Mr. Catherman, in the Police Department?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that. It makes no difference what kind of work he has done.

Presiding Inspector: Is this cross examination?

Mr. Grossman: No.

Presiding Inspector: Why do you want to know that?

Mr. Grossman: I want to know the different kinds of work he did with which this subpoena may have been concerned. If that was the only kind of work he did it would be quite logical and rational that he would get in touch with his superior officer and ask him.

Presiding Inspector: Why not ask him whether there had [2946] been other strike assignments? I think he said there hadn't been.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. For how long a period have you worked under the direction of Captain Hynes?

A. I worked—I can't remember just what date those strikes began, but I worked strike duty up until some time in October.

Q. Of which year?

A. I thought it was 1938. You spoke of 1937, I believe.

Q. Yes.

A. That must have been 1938 that I worked up there.

Q. Let us not worry about that now. Can you give me the total time——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I don't think that remark, "Let's not worry about that now" is proper.

Mr. Grossman: All right, we will strike the remark.

Presiding Inspector: It is a manner of speech.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What was the total number of months or years that you worked under the direction of Captain Hynes?

A. Well, approximately '36, '37 and '38.

Q. Approximately those years. And you haven't worked under the direction of Captain Hynes since 1938? A. No, sir. [2947]

Q. Did you ever receive a report over the telephone to be transmitted to Captain Hynes, or Lieutenant Wellpott, or Luke Lane, or any other member of that squad, from a person who stated his name was Chase? A. Not that I recall.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge who R-50 is? A. I do not.

Q. Or was? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge the name of any person who gave you messages over the telephone under a number or a letter?

A. I don't know any of them.

Q. Where was Captain Hynes when you telephoned him the request for some information on this subpoena?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to the form of the question. There was no such testimony that he requested such advice.

Mr. Grossman: I will withdraw that.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Where was Captain Hynes when you telephoned him?

A. You mean in what division he worked out of?

Q. Where was he at the time?

Presiding Inspector: Where did you call him on the telephone, at his house, or at his office, or at the theater—where [2948] was he?

A. I can't tell that. I had to call the Personnel Bureau to get his telephone number. They gave me the number and I called him.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I see. Now, except for Captain Hynes, and except for one of the Secretaries of the Chief of Police, did you talk to anyone else on the question of whether you should or could bring documents to this hearing, or whether you should or would come up here to testify?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment. I object to that question as having been asked, not once, but several times by counsel.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. Go ahead and answer it.

Mr. Myron: And the further objection that it is leading and misleading at the same time.

Presiding Inspector: It is leading, but I will allow it.

Mr. Myron: Whether he should bring records—he stated already——

Presiding Inspector: Whether he talked about whether he should or whether he could.

Mr. Myron: He already stated he had no custody of the records and inquired about them and he couldn't bring them.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. He might have talked about it to someone, even though he didn't have the power. Go [2949] ahead.

The Witness: May I have the question again?

Mr. Grossman: To save time I will rephrase it.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I asked you whether you got in touch with anyone besides Captain Hynes or the Secretary of the Chief of Police, on the question of the subpoena, or the documents, or your coming up to testify?

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

A. What I tried to make clear was that I hadn't discussed the case with anyone.

Q. I am not asking about your discussion of the case. I want to know whether you discussed any one of these three things, your coming up to San Francisco, the subpoena, and what you should do about it, or could do about it, or the documents that the subpoena asks for. Did you discuss any of those three matters with anyone except Captain Hynes and the Secretary to the Chief of Police?

A. I think I know what you mean. After I could not get in touch with the Chief I decided that I should do everything I could, so I went upstairs in the same building to the City Attorney's office, and I asked him, and he also told me that the Chief of Police had that authority.

Q. Do you know the name of the man you saw in the City Attorney's office?

A. No; just one of the attorneys there. I wouldn't know [2950] his name.

Presiding Inspector: Did you show him the subpoena?

The Witness: I did.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. And can you state again what his opinion was that he gave to you, if any?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please——

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: He said that only the Chief of Police could give up the documents.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. In addition to those you have mentioned, did you discuss these matters with anyone else?

A. Absolutely with no one.

Q. At the time you were working under Captain Hynes do you know who had custody of the documents of that department, including the memorandum such as you prepared, the memoranda such as you prepared? A. No.

Q. Did Captain Hynes have a separate set of files that was separate from the other files in the Police Department?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please. We are not interested in what files he had.

Presiding Inspector: Does he know anything about that?

Mr. Grossman: I don't know whether he does or not. The reason I asked is I have heard there were two at least, maybe [2951] several, sets of files and for the purpose of following up the document, and finding it, it is all I am asking for, for the purpose of a further subpoena, if necessary. I want all the information I can get as to where it might be.

Presiding Inspector: Do your know where they keep such memoranda as you made?

The Witness: I don't know anything about it.

Presiding Inspector: Do you know anything about Captain Hynes' files?

The Witness: No, sir; nothing.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: Anything further?

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: Any questions, Mr. Del Guercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: Do you want to adjourn now?

Presiding Inspector: No; we will go along.

Mr. Del Guercio: No cross examination.

Mr. Grossman: There is one question we must raise——

Mr. Del Guercio. (Interposing) Is this redirect?

Mr. Grossman: It is not redirect.

Presiding Inspector: There was no cross examination. He has asked a privilege of asking one more question.

Mr. Grossman: It is for the witness' sake.

When we discussed the matter of the issuance of this subpoena with the Director, or Commissioner, Mr. Wixom, he raised the question of the fee of the witness and referred us to the [2952] rule, which has given us much trouble, because it requires an interpretation. He communicated with Mr. Catherman somehow, through an agent, I think, in Los Angeles, and the question was discussed as to the amount of the witness fee, or witness expenses.

As a result of his various conversations, or his agents, with Mr. Catherman, we gathered the impression that Mr. Catherman believed that he was entitled to, under the rule, transportation expense in the amount of 5 cents a mile.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

We told Mr. Wixon that we interpreted the rule, when it said "Transportation expenses," to mean actual outlay for transportation because we didn't interpret the rule to mean that the witness should make a profit.

He said since there was a discussion something had to be done. We agreed, and we deposited with Mr. Wixom a sufficient sum to cover the transportation expenses, and the other expenses, assuming we are wrong, that 5 cents a mile is due. But we took the position he was not entitled to give Mr. Catherman that because we wanted a decision by your Honor, and your Honor is the only one that can decide as to what the witness is entitled to.

The money is in Mr. Wixom's possession. If your Honor orders it, we have no objection.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that falls within my jurisdiction. [2953]

Mr. Grossman: All I can say is that at the last hearing Dean Landis assumed the prerogative, at least since no one else felt capable of deciding this question, and we accepted the decision, and we will accept your decision this time, your Honor.

It is not a legal question, true.

Presiding Inspector: I really do not think that falls within my jurisdiction.

Mr. Grossman: It has to for this reason: We are obliged to insist on our interpretation of it, and that means going to the Federal District Court to decide whether the witness can ignore the subpoena if we refuse to pay him more than his actual outlay.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: He hasn't ignored it.

Mr. Grossman: Otherwise, we are going to have to insist that this witness receive only the actual outlay, which is insisting on our position.

We prefer you to decide whether our position is correct.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think I have the power. I have been assigned to advise the authorities on this particular warrant, and not pass on the fees to the witnesses.

Mr. Grossman: May I ask this witness now what he is claiming for transportation expenses?

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that is material here. He isn't claiming anything but what he deems his just rights, [2054] I fancy. There is a difference of opinion evidently as to how——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) There may not still be a difference. That is what I would like to find out.

Mr. Gladstein: Can't we ask the witness this question, your Honor—and I will put it to him now and you can rule that he doesn't have to answer if he doesn't want to.

Don't answer it until His Honor rules.

Mr. Myron: Does this all have to be on the record?

Mr. Grossman: It can be off the record if you wish.

Presiding Inspector: Off the record.

Mr. Gladstein: I think this is a matter that involves a right of ours under the statute and I think it ought to be on the record.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Presiding Inspector: Very well. You may ask the question.

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Catherman, we would like to know whether you are asking the defense to reimburse you for your actual outlay, whatever it may be, for transportation up here, or whether you are claiming a certain amount per mile, even though you didn't come up by automobile?

Presiding Inspector: You don't have to answer to that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as not being, first of all, proper direct, cross examination or recross examination of this witness. [2955]

Presiding Inspector: It isn't claimed that it is.

Mr. Del Guercio: Then it has no place in this record at all.

Mr. Grossman: Have you an interest in whether this witness obtains from us 5 cents a mile or less?

Mr. Del Guercio: Don't talk to me; talk to the Court.

Mr. Grossman: That is directed to you.

Mr. Del Guercio: You are not asking me questions.

Mr. Grossman: I don't see why Mr. Del Guercio is interested that this witness should get more money than he actually spent. I think this is between the witness and ourselves.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see that it is material to the hearing now in process of completion.

(Testimony of Charles D. Catherman.)

Mr. Grossman: It is material in this sense: If it is not settled here and now we are going to have to insist on this, which will undoubtedly mean the procedure of going to the District Court. We are going to have to insist in our interpretation of the rule in the logical way, which is that we are responsible to pay a witness' actual transportation expenses, and not 5 cents a mile. This question will arise whenever we ask for a subpoena and that is why we would like to have it settled one way or the other, and we are willing to abide by the ruling your Honor makes without objection to it or argument against it. [2956]

Presiding Inspector: Well, I haven't the statute before me.

Mr. Grossman: I think we have the rules here.

Mr. Del Guercio: Does the Court want to know what the Government is paying? because that is passed upon by the Comptroller General.

Presiding Inspector: Before I decide that, but I am not sure that I am going to decide it at all. I will exclude the question so far as this hearing is concerned.

(Witness excused.)

Now, we will take a recess until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 4:15 P. M. an adjournment was taken until Wednesday, May 7, 1941, at 10:00 A. M.) [2957]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Gladstein, call your next witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Horn, will you take the stand, please?

Presiding Inspector: Raise your right hand.

JOHN S. HORN

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: The witness is yours.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Horn, will you please state your full name?

A. John S. Horn—H-o-r-n.

Q. And your address, please?

A. 124 East 59 Place, Los Angeles.

Q. Are you a man of family.

A. I am.

Q. Will you please state what your family consists of?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. Four boys, two daughters, a wife and a mother in law.

Q. And do all of them, or most of them, reside with you at the address you just mentioned?

A. Two daughters reside with me, and my mother in law, and two sons are in the army and two others in the Civil Service. [2959]

Q. Mr. Horn, what is, at the present time, your occupation?

A. Secretary — Corresponding Secretary and Business Representative of the Beer Drivers Union.

Q. Is that the full title of that organization?

A. International Union of United Brewery Workers of America.

Mr. Gladstein: Did you get all of that, Mr. Reporter?

The Reporter: Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. How long have you occupied that position with the Beer—what is that again?

A. Beer Drivers Union.

Q. (Continuing) ——with the Beer Drivers Union? A. Twenty-seven.

Q. Twenty-seven years?

A. Twenty-seven years. [2960]

Q. Did your connection with the labor movement commence prior to the time that you began to occupy that position?

A. No. My first affiliation with the American labor movement was 1919—1899, I should say.

Q. 1899? A. Yes.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Q. And have you since that time been continuously connected with the American labor movement in one way or another? A. I have.

Q. Was there any period of time during which you were not connected with it?

A. Yes. There was approximately three years in which I was on a withdrawal card.

Q. Were you in the United States at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever served in the armed forces of the United States?

A. I have; Spanish-American War.

Q. What positions have you occupied in the labor movement?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to the question. The labor movement is not an issue in this case.

Presiding Inspector: No. He is merely showing the [2961] standing of the man in the community, I suppose.

Mr. Gladstein: That's right, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: And for that purpose and for that purpose solely I will admit it. Of course, there may be a serious question later on about all this testimony.

Mr. Gladstein: I beg your pardon?

Presiding Inspector: I say, there may be a very serious question about the admissibility of the ultimate matters which are referred to in the subpoena.

Mr. Gladstein: We will come to that.

The Witness: What was the question?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. I have been a member of the Executive Board of the Los Angeles Central Labor Council for a number of years.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. During what period was that?

A. From approximately 1917 to '25.

Q. Did you ever hold an office other than as member of the Executive Board when you were in the Central Labor Council in L. A.?

A. Secretary-Treasurer of the Los Angeles Central Labor Council.

Q. During what period of time was that?

A. From January, 1920 to July, 1925. [2962]

Q. Now, that Central Labor Council during all that time was affiliated, was it not, with the American Federation of Labor?

A. Yes. It is the chartered body of the American Federation of Labor in the Los Angeles district.

Q. And is it still at the present time?

A. It is.

Q. What other offices have you held in the labor movement?

A. Well, I was also Vice-President of the Central Labor Council for a period of years; member of the Executive Council of the State Federation of Labor on several different occasions, several different years.

Q. Briefly in a word, Mr. Horn, what is the State Federation of Labor?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to the question.

Presiding Inspector: I think we know about that. We can take judicial notice of it.

Mr. Gladstein: Take judicial notice of it?

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes. It is a matter of history of the country.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. I am satisfied.

Presiding Inspector: Don't you think so?

Mr. Gladstein: I have never heard that judicial notice was taken of——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Of the history of [2963] a country?

Mr. Gladstein: I mean the State Federation of Labor. I don't mean history of the country, but what the State Federation of Labor is.

Presiding Inspector: Federation of Labor?

Mr. Gladstein: Not the American Federation of Labor.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, I supposed that that is what you meant. I misunderstood you.

Mr. Gladstein: No, the State Federation of Labor.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you state briefly what that is?

A. The California State Federation of Labor is the chartered body in the State of California of the American Federation of Labor. It is the California division of the American Federation of Labor.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Q. And during what period of time did you occupy a position in the Executive Council of the State Federation?

A. In 1922, '23, '24 and, I think, in 1934. I am not positive of those dates, but that is approximately correct.

Q. Were you also the occupaint of the position of one of the Vice-Presidents of the State Federation of Labor subsequent to 1934?

A. Possibly in '35 or '34. I am not positive, Mr. Gladstein. [2964]

Q. Was there a period of time, Mr. Horn, when both you and Mr. Harry Bridges were members of the Executive Council of the State Federation of Labor? A. Yes.

Q. Was that period shortly prior to the time that Mr. Bridges was appointed West Coast Director of the CIO? A. Prior to that.

Q. And that year was the year 1937, was it not?

A. To the best of my recollection that is correct.

Q. Have you held any public offices, or served in any public capacity?

A. Civil Service Commissioner of the City of Los Angeles.

Q. When was that?

A. In 1924. Member of the Board of Public Works of the City of Los Angeles, 1925 to 1929.

Q. Any other positions?

A. I am now Commissioner No. 1 on the Unemployment Reserves Commission of the State of California representing organized labor.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Q. Will you briefly state what that Commission is, briefly state what its structure is?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to this line of questioning as unnecessary, irrelevant and immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is a little detailed. [2965]

Mr. Gladstein: This is for the purpose of identifying the witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no question about identification.

Presiding Inspector: I think the structure of the State Commissions—I suppose you can put that in by reference to the statutes.

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw the question.

Presiding Inspector: We take judicial notice of the statute, certainly.

Mr. Gladstein: I will put it this way—the statute won't give the names of the men on it.

Presiding Inspector: He says he is one of them.

Mr. Gladstein: I think, perhaps, for my purposes it would be sufficient if I asked this question, your Honor.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. That Commission, that Unemployment Reserves Commission that you have just mentioned, and of which you are a member, is a Commission consisting of five people, two of whom represent organized labor, two represent the interests of the Employers of the State of California, and one represents the general public, and the general work of that Commission is to administer the Unemployment Insurance Act of the State, is that not a fact?

A. That is correct. [2966]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. It is simply to show the standing of this witness.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Horn, you are personally acquainted, are you not, with Mr. Bridges?

A. Yes.

Q. About how many times have you met him?

A. I have been in several meetings with him, personal contact, I think, on four different occasions.

Q. Were those occasions meetings, or conventions, or conclaves, of one kind or another, of trade unionists in the State of California? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth and veracity is——

Presiding Inspector: "Yes" or "No".

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished the question.

Presiding Inspector: I just wanted to warn the witness not to answer. Go ahead with the question.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished the question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I want you to state whether you know, "Yes" or "No", what is the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth and veracity in the labor movement. [2967]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question at this time.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: Excluded. Go ahead and ask the next question.

Mr. Gladstein: On what basis?

Presiding Inspector: His character hasn't been attacked.

Mr. Gladstein: If your Honor please, could I state——

Presiding Inspector: You can't produce supporting evidence of good character for truth and veracity unless his character has been attacked. There has been no attack on his character.

Mr. Gladstein: May I be heard on that?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: In the first place, we think that the very fact that the Government has introduced in evidence certain portions of the transcript of the last hearing brings those issues, and related issues, in that case into this hearing.

Now, I don't suppose it will be denied that in that hearing the character and reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth and veracity was obviously under attack.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whether it was or not. I don't think it was.

Mr. Gladstein: Dean Landis, in his opinion, points out that there was this conflict and in the decision of——

Presiding Inspector: There is a conflict in evidence, [2968] but that isn't an attack on character. Even though one man says it was one day and another man says it was another day, that is no attack on character.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

This is very elementary.

Mr. Gladstein: It may be but——

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude the question.

Mr. Gladstein: May I finish my statement for the record?

Presiding Inspector: All right, but it won't be in.

Mr. Gladstein: Why?

Presiding Inspector: Because the rule says it should not go in.

Mr. Gladstein: Then let it be off the record.

Presiding Inspector: That isn't the point. You can present a brief on the subject and argue it at the end of the case.

Mr. Gladstein: But I haven't finished stating why you should permit the question to be answered at this time.

Presiding Inspector: I thought you were arguing.

Mr. Gladstein: I am giving my reasons why I think your Honor should reconsider your decision.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: In the first place, the Government has attempted to produce here proof which, in a general way, is to the effect that all Communists lie on the witness stand; and the Government claims that Harry Bridges is a Communist. [2969]

Now, I think that the inference is quite plain as to what the Government's contention is. That obviously brings into issue the question of the truth and veracity of Mr. Bridges. That is point No. 1.

Point No. 2 is this: We are not without difficulties and handicaps in preparing our schedule of witnesses. We have a theory of our defense. I think we have a right to present, to adopt a method of procedure with respect to our witnesses which is in accordance with that theory.

Now, if your Honor feels at the conclusion of the case that certain testimony which has been adduced at the hearing is subject to being stricken out, I think either on the motion of the Government or on your own motion, you probably have that right. But I think that we are entitled to have this much conceded to us: That we be permitted to put on this case in the manner in which we are presenting it, having in mind the difficulties we have in getting witnesses to appear, and for reasons which I could be more specific about, and that if, at the end of the case, you feel that any witness has given testimony which you consider immaterial in the light of the case as it stands before you at the end, then you can strike it. But I think it would be putting the defense to an undue hardship not to permit the witness to give his testimony at his time, but to require us to bring him back at some future time when the issue, which we feel reasonably sure is going to [2970] be raised and, according to our view, has already been raised in this proceeding, will be more sharply raised by the Government. [2971]

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: What do you say about that?

Mr. Del Guercio: The issue has not been raised, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: No. I think not, too. I agree with you on that.

I think the issue is not raised. The only question is whether I should allow this out of order. But, of course, you are relying on a rebuttal which we don't know will ever occur. There may be no attack on Mr. Bridges' character or on his reputation for truth and veracity, as I understand the record.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, if at the end of the Government's case no such attack is made I will be willing, your Honor, to stipulate that testimony adduced by us on that issue may be stricken on your motion. I am reasonably confident that——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Was there direct testimony of that character introduced on the Landis hearing?

Mr. Gladstein: In the sense that witnesses——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Did any witness take the stand and testify that his reputation for truth and veracity was bad?

Mr. Del Guercio: They did not.

Mr. Gladstein: Not that way.

Presiding Inspector: Then I will exclude——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Well, your Honor,—— [2972]

Presiding Inspector: Then I will exclude this examination now.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Mr. Gladstein: Now wait, your Honor! Even if you do, I want to point out that in that hearing, as well as in this, the Government's theory was to produce a witness who would call Harry Bridges a Communist and then to have that witness say that Communists are taught to lie on the witness stand and to deny their membership in the Communist Party, and if that is not a pretty direct attack on the truth and veracity of Mr. Bridges I don't know of one, because at the very beginning of the hearing, you will remember, Dean Landis points it out, Mr. Bridges was called to the stand and was asked as to whether or not he had ever been a member of the Communist Party.

Now, in view of that state of the record and in view of that theory of the Government, your Honor, I think that an appropriate and liberal interpretation of the rule should be to permit us to put in this testimony at this time.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think counsel is right, if your Honor please, when he says that a Communist—of course it would be. Our theory is that Mr. Bridges is a Communist; would, if going on the stand, he would lie following the Communist Party tactics. But not Bridges as the other man. If counsel will concede that Bridges is a Communist, then I think this would be admissible. If that's his defense—— [2973]

Mr. Gladstein: Is that intended to be an answer to my argument?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, it is.

Mr. Myron: I think, your Honor, his argument is predicated on that fact, that Mr. Bridges is a Communist by the admission of counsel, and that if he does go on the stand he will as a Communist lie. I think that's the basis of his argument.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, I don't like to characterize counsel's remarks.

Presiding Inspector: No, I don't think that is quite the basis.

Mr. Gladstein: But I think we ought to have a semblance of intelligence shown by counsel and not to descend to a second grade level.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, that remark——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I can't accept such an argument as that and you ought not to make it.

Mr. Gladstein: I will point this out. In the first statement that Mr. Del Guercio made, whether he intended to do so or not, he conceded in effect that the theory of the Government is that they are claiming that Mr. Bridges is a liar, they are claiming that Mr. Bridges is a Communist.

Now, that is their claim and the fact that they have [2974] not yet produced——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) That may be so. That may be so.

Mr. Gladstein: Then, if that is so——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) But that isn't a direct attack on the witness as a witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, if your Honor please, you are now telling me that in accordance with the strict rules of common law you would be bound to rule a certain way. Well, of course, in accordance with the strict rules of common law such a theory as the Government propounds here would never be accepted. You are conducting here an administrative proceeding and, of course, there isn't anything very clear as to how your ruling should be. I realize that it is discretionary. But in view of counsel's statement conceding the correctness of our contention as to their theory, do you not think that in fairness to the defense you should permit us to have the questions answered and then, if you later feel,—if you later feel—that the record requires that you can strike that testimony out. It will save time, it will save a great deal of expense to the defense and a great deal of inconvenience to the witnesses and it will make it possible for us to put on a defense.

I don't think by the time we finish this case, Judge, that there is going to be any question but that Mr. Del Guercio [2975] and Mr. Myron will be making very plain contentions about Mr. Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: They undoubtedly will, but that isn't sufficient to open a door to rehabilitating testimony. To open a door to such rehabilitory testimony there must be testimony, direct testimony to the contrary. That is the common law rule and it is well established and I think that it rests in fairness.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Mr. Gladstein: Judge, would you admit that if one of the witnesses of the Government had taken the stand and had said "Mr. Bridges is a liar! I wouldn't believe him under oath!", something of that sort, that we would then have a right to have testimony of the character I am now trying to elicit from the witness?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: If Mr. Bridges were put on the stand or if you agreed to put him on the stand I would admit him out of order.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, Mr. Bridges will take the stand before the hearing is over. I assure you.

Presiding Inspector: I assumed that that was probably so.

Mr. Gladstein: He most certainly will.

Now, if the only question is a question of order, then I [2976] again ask the indulgence of the Court to grant us in your discretion what I think is not an unfair advantage of any kind. How can the Government be hurt by this?

Presiding Inspector: I don't suppose the Government is going to put on any such testimony.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know what they are going to put on. I wouldn't be surprised at anything they put on.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that argument here.

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't affect me.

Mr. Del Guercio: You are permitting counsel here to argue and argue.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: I am. And I will permit you to argue to the contrary.

Mr. Gladstein: Here is another thing I would piont out, too. I suppose we are entitled to the same right and courtesy that the Government has on the question of order of proof.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, there are two primary issues in this case. One is a question, well, now it has been broadened so that mere association with somebody who belonged to a trade union that may or may not have been affiliated with such organization at one time makes a person deportable. But, primarily, I think the issues are: [2977]

1. Whether or not Mr. Bridges has ever been a member of the Communist Party or affiliated with it, and

2. Whether that Party advocates certain doctrines which are obnoxious to the deportation statute.

Your Honor will recall that practically the entire first week of this hearing, on which issue did the Government proceed? The first? No, not the first but the second.

Now, conceded, if the Government at the beginning of the case—we could have asked that the Government put on its case as to Mr. Bridges without regard to the second issue, in which we had no interest, instead of spending the week on the matter. But I supposed they deemed it better for their purposes to put on testimony concerning the second issue.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Well, all right. Now, if they are going to put on evidence out of order, out of logical order of what could be expected from them, why can we not ask the same courtesy?

Presiding Inspector: I would be inclined to agree with you if it were merely a question of order. But I can have no assurance that there is going to be any evidence offered which will make this competent.

Mr. Gladstein: If that is your ruling I would like for the purpose of the record, first, to ask the questions which I intended and then, if your Honor rules as you have indicated,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I think you have that right.

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——I will make an offer of [2978] proof and then you can deny the offer and then the record will at least be in that condition.

Presiding Inspector: I will let you ask the questions.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: This question is excluded.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I don't know whether the question is clearly as I want it, Judge.

Presiding Inspector: Well, re-ask it or let the reporter read it.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I would prefer to ask it again.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Horn, do you know of your own knowledge the reputation enjoyed by Mr. Harry Bridges for truth and veracity in the labor movement among those workers with whom Mr. Bridges has worked and been in contact?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Gladstein: I offer to prove at this time that, if the witness were permitted to answer that question, his answer would be "Yes".

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that statement of counsel, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I won't take the proof.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, but you don't object to my stating [2979] the offer of proof?

Presiding Inspector: No. It is objected to and I sustained the objection.

Mr. Gladstein: You sustained the objection to the proof?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: But, as I understand it, Mr. Del Guercio also objects to my stating my offer.

Presiding Inspector: No. You stated your offer.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, you are not excluding any offer from the record?

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no. I didn't understand that that was what——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I didn't say anything about the offer.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: No, I didn't so understand.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, is that reputation which was requested in the last question for truth and veracity good or bad?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I sustain that objection.

Mr. Gladstein: I now offer to prove that, if the witness were permitted to answer that question, his answer would be "Good". [2980]

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object.

Presiding Inspector: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Horn, based on the reputation for truth and veracity of Mr. Harry Bridges, which is called for in the last two questions, would you believe him under oath?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question on the same ground.

Presiding Inspector: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Gladstein: I now offer to prove that, if the witness were permitted to answer the last question, his answer would be "I would".

Mr. Del Guercio: I object.

Presiding Inspector: And I will sustain the objection.

Now, all these rulings, I will state, are made on the ground that there is no proper foundation for the introduction of such testimony in this case.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Mr. Gladstein: I wonder if we could do this? I am thinking now of the possibility that at some future date your Honor will feel that the record is such that the kind of testimony I am now seeking to adduce from Mr. Horn would be material and admissible under your own ruling. I am wondering whether it is possible, in order to prevent the necessity of having Mr. Horn back again, because he is a man of public [2981] office and a busy person,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I am sure that no one wants to incommode Mr. Horn. No one wants to incommode him.

Mr. Gladstein: I am wondering whether it is possible to make some stipulation to the effect that such testimony as I have stated in my offer of proof would have been given by the witness were he permitted to answer the questions.

Presiding Inspector: That would be for Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: We will make no such stipulation.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Horn, do you recall in the fall of 1937 attending a meeting on West Washington Boulevard in the office or hall of the Warehouse Union? A. I do.

Q. What kind of meeting was that?

A. An organizational meeting.

Q. When you say "organizational meeting" what organizations do you refer to?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. Well, there was a number of organizations attending, representative organizations, for the purpose of discussing and organizing a program to bring workers into the trade union movement.

Q. Were all the organizations represented at this meet- [2982] ing referred to affiliated with trade unions?

A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. How many such meetings in the fall of 1937 did you attend?

A. I don't quite get the question.

Q. I will put it to you this way: With reference to these meetings was there an organizing committee, to your knowledge, that had been set up?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to the question, if your Honor please. It should be confined to specific meetings and not general meetings.

Mr. Gladstein: This is preliminary.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I don't quite understand the question.

Mr. Gladstein: It is preliminary.

Presiding Inspector: How many meetings of organizing character were there?

Mr. Gladstein: If it is that ambiguous I will withdraw it.

Presiding Inspector: Perhaps I didn't hear it.

Mr. Gladstein: Perhaps it was too ambiguous.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I asked you, Mr. Horn, whether you had attended in the fall of 1937 a meeting in the Warehouse Union Hall in Los Angeles on West Washington Boulevard. Now, did you attend [2983] one or more than one such meeting in that period at that place? A. Only that one.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Q. Only one. When you came to that meeting were you representing any trade union?

A. Yes. The Beer Drivers' Union, Local 227, Branch 6.

Q. Do you recall how you came to attend, how your were invited to it?

A. Only on the telephone invitation that there was a meeting of some trade unionists to—an organization meeting of trade unionists and would I like to appear. And I said I would and did appear.

Q. Was there this situation prevalent at that time in Los Angeles? That there was somewhat a turmoil with respect to certain A. F. of L. Unions going to the CIO and general questions of organizing unorganized workers?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question as being suggestive and leading.

Mr. Gladstein: It is on an immaterial matter.

Presiding Inspector: It is merely preliminary. I think I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. It is on a relatively immaterial matter and preliminary.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Preliminary. I will take it. [2984]

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. Very markedly so.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I didn't hear. A. Very markedly so.

Q. Now, do you recall about what time you came to that meeting?

A. Oh, approximately 10:45, I would say. That is only approximate.

Q. Could you be definite as to the month in which the meeting took place or approximately?

A. I think it was in October, August—wait a minute! I can only approximate it. It was September or October.

Q. All right. You say you only attended one such meeting? A. That's all.

Q. Was there any other representative besides yourself of the Beer Drivers' Union——

A. (Interposing) There was——

Q. (Continuing) ——who could have attended any other meeting of that same organizing group?

A. There was none.

Q. And when you say Beer Drivers' Union, am I correct [2985] in saying that that is sometimes also known as the Brewery Drivers' or Brewery Wagon Drivers' Union? A. That's correct.

Q. You say you arrived at that meeting at about 10:15 in the morning? A. About 10:45.

Q. 10:45. I beg your pardon. How long did you remain at that meeting?

A. Until about 12:00 o'clock.

Q. When you arrived do you recall whether Mr. Harry Bridges was there?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. He came in shortly after I arrived.

Q. And do you recall what took place after that?

A. Well, I can't be very specific. It was simply like all labor union meetings. There was a number of speakers that talked on various subjects.

Q. Do you remember who the speakers were?

A. Mr. Bridges spoke and I spoke; some representative, I believe of the Upholsterers' Union spoke and also I believe of the Jewelry Workers.

Q. Of the which workers?

A. Jewelry Workers. And I think one representative of the Warehousemen's Union. [2986]

Q. Were you present from the time Mr. Bridges began his talk until the time he finished it?

A. I was.

Q. How long would you say his talk took?

A. I would say approximately 20 minutes.

Q. What, in general, was the character of the talk or speech given by Mr. Bridges at that time?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, "in general," as not meaning anything. What did he talk about?

Presiding Inspector: I think that is the question.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: He said "in general."

Presiding Inspector: You mean in substance?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. What, in substance, was it?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: I think that is what the question is. I don't think you are in disagreement.

A. It was an organizational talk and explaining some of the issues and differences in the dispute between the American Federation of Labor and the Organization for Industrial Unions—the Committee for Industrial Unions.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was there any part of Mr. Bridges' speech devoted to a discussion of the problems of organizing unorganized workers? A. Yes.

Q. Was there anything in that speech that you recall which [2987] would be different from the usual type of organizer's talk?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please, as there is no testimony as to what usual talk is.

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You have been in the labor movement a good many years. Do you feel that you can recognize a trade union organizer's talk or report?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is too general.

Mr. Gladstein: Too what?

Presiding Inspector: Too general.

Mr. Gladstein: Maybe it is general, but I think a man——

Presiding Inspector: You haven't shown that there is ~~any~~ type of an organizer's report, and I don't think we could take testimony on that. I don't think the Court can take judicial notice as to what is an organizer's talk.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Let me ask it this way: You, yourself have been an organizer, have you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have made many speeches for the purpose of organizing workers?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that. It makes no difference.

Presiding Inspector: Except as to his standing in the [2988] community. I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is it offered for that purpose?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know, but I will take it on that ground. A. Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you heard in your lifetime in the labor movement very many organizers' talks and reports?

Mr. Del Guercio: I can't hear counsel. In the first place, his hand is up to his mouth.

Presiding Inspector: I think you covered your mouth with your hand. It is difficult to hear.

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question, Mr. Reporter.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. It isn't very important.

A. I have.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that the answer be stricken.

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand. It isn't very important.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Are you in a position to say, Mr. Horn, whether, based on your experience, organizers' talks and reports in [2989] the trade union movement follow in general a certain pattern?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to the question as improper.

Presiding Inspector: That is preliminary. I will take it as preliminary. He is going to ask what that pattern is.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

A. In the main; yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: I really don't think this is very material.

Mr. Gladstein: I am getting to something that is rather material.

Presiding Inspector: I cannot see it; maybe you are. The future is dark and undisclosed to me.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What, in general, would you say was that pattern?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that—"in general". What good will it do, the general pattern?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In substance, what is the pattern?

Presiding Inspector: What is the point of this? Is it to show that he just made an ordinary trade union talk? What difference does it make?

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor may have forgotten that Mr. Chase, a witness for the Government, testified that at a meeting where there was a representative of the Brewery Workers Union—— [2990]

Presiding Inspector: I haven't forgotten.

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——whose name he wasn't sure of, but it may have been Mr. Horn. Mr. Bridges laid down the party line.

Now, I want to show by this witness just exactly what Mr. Bridges said; and this witness, by virtue of his experience is in a position to say whether there was anything in that talk of Mr. Bridges that indicated that Mr. Bridges was following or proposing a political line of any party, or whether it was a straight trade union organizing report.

A man in the labor movement can do that.

Presiding Inspector: Ask him what he said.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I believe that counsel is misstating what Mr. Chase testified to. Chase said that he was told to attend a meeting, and was told that Mr. Bridges would lay down the Party line, Communist Party line.

Presiding Inspector: So I understood.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Mr. Del Guercio: And not what counsel stated he said.

Mr. Gladstein: You will recall on cross examination, when I asked Mr. Chase what he based his statement on as to his testimony that Mr. Bridges was laying down the Communist Party line, he said the remarks that Bridges made at the meeting and the telephone conversation.

Your Honor at that time pointed out that the two were sort [2991] of integrated in the mind of Mr. Chase.

I want to point out that the remarks Mr. Bridges made at that meeting, that there was nothing in those remarks that could indicate in any way that Mr. Bridges was proposing or following a policy of the Communist Party. That is directly in point on the testimony of Mr. Chase.

Presiding Inspector: Let us hear first what Mr. Bridges said.

Mr. Gladstein: I am willing.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Would you state in substance, to the best of your recollection, Mr. Horn, what Mr. Bridges talked about on that occasion?

A. That is rather hard for me to do because the talk was only in generalities. I was disappointed in the address that he made. I thought, with due respect to the gentleman, that it was very innocuous as an organizational talk, and it didn't impress me enough to have remained vividly in my memory.

Q. Was there anything unusual about his talk in the sense of his being super-militant?

A. No; I thought it was mild.

Q. Was there anything about his talk on that occasion which referred to—withdraw that.

Was there anything about his talk which would indicate [2992] to you that he was pursuing or proposing some policy of the Communist Party?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that. The witness hasn't testified yet he knows what the Communist Party policy was.

Presiding Inspector: This is direct examination. I think you should qualify it in that respect.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I will put it this way: In your experience in the labor movement have you ever heard talks at union meetings and elsewhere in which you felt that you could recognize that the speaker was proposing or following a policy of the Communist Party? A. I have.

Q. What are the things about those talks which would impress you with the opinion that the speaker was following or proposing such a policy?

A. Well, the usual method is an attack upon all the officers of the union, and every piece of conservative legislation that the trade union workers stand for, the old regime would be reactionary, and the general tearing-down process.

Q. Was there anything about Mr. Bridges' talk on the occasion that we are discussing that would indicate to you that he was pursuing or proposing a Communist Party policy or line? [2993]

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if your Honor please, as calling for the conclusion of the witness.

Presiding Inspector: I think you may ask him if, in this talk, as he recalls it, did he use any of the arguments that he has now specified as Communistic.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: I am trying to make it clear along the line that you are trying to bring out.

Mr. Gladstein: I think I have a right, your Honor, to have the question answered as to whether the witness recalls anything said that would to him indicate what the question is asking for. I think I have a right to that.

Presiding Inspector: He stated — perhaps you haven't exhausted his information as to what recognized Communist speakers usually state as a part of their Communistic propaganda. That is what you have been asking, but he has only given some statement that they are destructive.

Mr. Gladstein: What I am primarily interested in, your Honor, is this: The witness has already said that in the trade union movement organizers, or people who are interested in organizing workers, and who are making talks about it, urging people to adopt a policy of organizing, and so on, generally follow a pattern, which is a trade union pattern; that is, it shows trade union purposes and trade union methods and trade union objectives. [2994]

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Now——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) That is not what the witness has testified to, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: That is some time ago he is referring to now. Now, the immediate——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) I am simply interested in having the witness testify that—and he has already said the talk of Mr. Bridges on that occasion was something that he regarded innocuous—it was simply in accordance with the usual trade union pattern. I am not interested in anything further on that. Therefore, I think I have a right to the last question.

Presiding Inspector: Read the last question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:)

"Q. Was there anything about Mr. Bridges' talk on the occasion that we are discussing that would indicate to you that he was pursuing or proposing a Communist Party policy or line?")

Presiding Inspector: Well, if you will show that

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

what he means by "Communist Party line" is what he has already stated, I will allow the question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Is it correct, Mr. Horn, that what you meant by Communist Party line was what you have stated in this general way? [2995]

A. Yes; that is right.

Presiding Inspector: With that qualification I will allow the question.

Mr. Gladstein: Will you read the question again, please, Mr. Reporter?

(The question referred to was re-read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Myron: We object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it in view of the last question.

Mr. Myron: That is, the Communist Party line as he described it?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, sir.

Mr. Myron: I think that should be added to the question.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't want the record to show that Mr. Myron is putting things in my questions. He is going to get a chance to ask his questions, I am sure.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

A. There was nothing.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In your years in the labor movement have you had a chance to become acquainted with the official position of trade unions as regards labor espionage?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if your Honor [2986] please, as not only being improper, but unnecessary, and not at issue in this case. It seems to me we are getting far from the issue here. We are only trying to determine here whether Mr. Bridges is a member of the Communist Party and whether the Communist Party as such is an organization that comes within the ban of the statutes.

Presiding Inspector: Do you think there is a different ethic in trade unions than from the ordinary mass of the people? Is that what you are trying to show?

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know how the American public in general feels toward labor spies. I frankly do not know. I have had a little experience with the way that the labor movement feels about labor spies.

I am offering this line of examination now for the purpose of showing that witnesses like Mr. Ezra Chase who, as the record shows, was reporting to Captain Hynes in advance that strikes were being called by his union, that the police should be at the picket lines; and, mind you, though Mr. Chase called the squad of Captain Hynes the "Red squad", and attempted to say they were interested only in Communist activities in the labor movement, Mr. Catherman, on the stand yesterday, frankly stated that Captain Hynes' work was labor and strike detail, without any qualifications. All right.

Now, what I am interested in is to establish that people like, people who will come here and testify who, we contend, are [2997] shown to be labor spies, are the sort of persons about whom the labor movement has some very strong thing to say, based on experience.

Presiding Inspector: Suppose they have, assume that to be true, how does that affect this trial?

Mr. Gladstein: It affects the credibility of the witness, Chase.

Presiding Inspector: I am not so sure about that. That may all be prejudice. That is a question for the trier of the fact.

Mr. Gladstein: I am willing to pursue this line of examination with the witness to show that the official attitude of the American Labor movement toward labor spies is not one of prejudice, but is based on actual experience with the methods used by labor spies in the employ of employers to disrupt and destroy the trade union movement, and the methods that they use are familiar to any man who has been in the labor movement for a period of years, and the hostility which a labor man feels toward labor spies isn't a question of prejudice.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

It is simply a question of how a human being reacts to a snake.

Presiding Inspector: You don't need any proof of anything that you have now asked. What difference does it make if they feel that a labor spy is a snake? What difference does it make whether any group of persons feel that a person is untrustworthy or a snake, as you call him? [2998]

Mr. Gladstein: For this reason: If Mr. Horn testifies, as I believe he will if permitted to do so, that labor spies are an anathema to the labor movement, and that the reasons are, as the LaFollette Committee has officially shown as a result of their investigation, because of the way they are put into unions for the purpose of disrupting them, serving the interests of employers, then I think you will see that that attitude of the labor movement is not one of projudice, but one which is based on very just grounds.

Presiding Inspector: Don't you think that the trier of the fact can see all this just as well as the labor unions, or just as well as yourself standing here as a lawyer and arguing here? Isn't this all self-evident? Aren't you just painting the lily? Aren't you showing that someone believes that disloyalty to an organization is reprehensible? Aren't those general matters dealing with common ethics?

Mr. Gladstein: If I interpret your Honor's remarks correctly it may not be necessary to do that.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that it is a question for expert testimony.

Mr. Gladstein: You don't think it is necessary?

Presiding Inspector: I don't think so. Of course, on the other hand, a person might be indulging in extremely reprehensible practices. He might do very disloyal things, and yet when he comes on the witness stand that is a question only for the trier of the fact as to how those reprehensible [2999] characteristics affect his credibility. We may believe the most—still give credence to the most dishonorable person. That is a question for the trier of the fact.

Mr. Gladstein: There is one thing you overlooked, Judge, and that is this: You say now a man can be reprehensible because he is being a labor spy, and still take the stand, and it is a question of fact as to whether he ought to be believed on an issue or not.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: But I am trying to point out to you that this witness, as thousands of witnesses in the labor movement, will testify that the point about a labor spy is that he makes his living by lying, on the basis of a lie; that is his whole life. Therefore, if, that is true, if the labor movement knows that it is true from experience, then there can't be any question as to whether or not a labor spy should be believed on the witness stand.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

That is our position. It is not a question of reprehensible conduct.

Presiding Inspector: I do not think this is a matter of law, but a proposition of fact. I do not think we can lay that down as a proposition of law.

You seem to think that there is great significance in the attitude of labor unions to what you call labor spies. I do not think that there is the same importance, for various [3000] reasons which I have tried to state; that you attribute to it. But if you think that is so important—I want to be exremely fair, over-fair—I will let the witness answer the question.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I be heard?

Presiding Inspecotr: Oh, yes; certainly. I will hear you before I rule. I will take back the ruling.

Mr. Del Guercio: Counsel has taken advantage of argument only for publicity purposes.

In the first place, there is no evidence in this case that any of the Government witnesses are labor spies. That isn't an issue here. The only issue here is whether or not Bridges is a member of the Communist Party. In that connection it isn't a question of whether labor spies are to be believed. It is a question of whether Communists are to be believed.

Now, it would have been proper for counsel to have asked this question of the witness: "Is a member of the Communist Party to be believed?" or, "Is the conduct of a Communist so reprehensible to a labor union man?"

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: I am not going to accept testimony as to what any particular class or group believe.

Mr. Del Guercio: That would open the door——

Presiding Inspector: That would be of no assistance to the trier of the fact or the reviewer of the facts. [3001]

As I understand it, this question is directed to the attitude of trade unionists toward those members who give information of trade union doings and purposes to their employers.

Mr. Gladstein: That is right.

Mr. Del Guercio: Trade unions aren't involved in this hearing.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, there is no such evidence in this case.

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Del Guercio says the only issue is whether Mr. Bridges is a member of the Communist Party. Who is produced by the Government on that issue? Well, I am thinking now in terms of Ezra F. Chase. He gave testimony which the Government claims connects Mr. Bridges with the Communist Party.

Now, Ezra F. Chase, we say on the record already, is shown as a labor spy and, therefore, it becomes important.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: Let us see about that. Is there any proof that he gave any information to any employer?

Mr. Gladstein: Here is what he did: He admitted that he would call up the police department and tell them, in advance of strikes, that strikes were being called; that he would discuss these matters and make the reports of the activities in the union, with and to Captain Hynes and others. He did deny that he gave direct reports to employers. But that doesn't [3002] mean that he wasn't working in the service of the employers. It would be very unusual for a labor spy to make his reports directly to an employer.

The history of Los Angeles has shown, by the LaFollette Committee investigations, indicates that the Employers Council there found it better to operate through Captain Hynes.

Now, the point is this: Ezra F. Chase made his living in the union by getting up and saying, "I am in favor of a strike," and urging his fellow workers to go on strike; and then, at the same time, turning around and working with Captain Hynes to destroy that strike. That is the sort of character he is. He made his living by that sort of means.

Mr. Myron: This is argument.

Presiding Inspector: Yes; this as argument.

Mr. Gladstein: A man who will do that, who lives by a lie, can take this stand and say anything.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: You are assuming a lot of the things that are not in this record. We haven't the record of the LaFollette Committee before us. We don't know what happened in Los Angeles.

Mr. Gladstein: Before this hearing is over we will have testimony, your Honor, as to what Mr. Chase——

Presiding Inspector: We don't know anything about Mr.—Captain Hynes in this record, except that he is a police officer. We heard a little something about him yesterday. But [3003] that is all we do know. He was in charge of labor affairs from the police standpoint.

Now, if you are going to show that Mr. Chase—and I think he is the only person that has been brought to my attention as being within gunshot of your definition of a labor spy—isn't he the only one? [3004]

Mr. Gladstein: Not necessarily the only one.

Presiding Inspector: As yet.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. Let us say, as revealed during the course of the Government's case.

Mr. Myron: It was mentioned by you. It was not revealed.

Presiding Inspector: As yet.

Mr. Myron: There is no such evidence in the record and he knows it.

Presiding Inspector: Only under your statement, which I suppose you expect to substantiate, can he be so called.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Mr. Gladstein: Well, if I am not mistaken, your Honor, Mr. Chase testified to this on cross examination. He testified that he filled out an application to the Glen E. Bodell Detectives——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Are you quoting from Mr. Chase's testimony for the record?.

Mr. Gladstein: Address your remarks to the Court.

Presiding Inspector: This is argument.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, if your Honor please, he is going all over the same thing. That is about three times now.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I would like to hear it. I would like to hear it. I don't understand it.

Go ahead, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Gladstein: My recollection is that Mr. Chase [3005] said that he was an officer, a paid officer of the Upholsterers' Union until sometime in December, 1937. He was a little vague about what part of December, 1937 the pay ended, but he remained a member of the Union for a week or two after his official job stopped. He admitted finally that he had applied for a job to the Glen E. Bodell Detective Agency, and the date of that appears in the record as sometime in December. I do not recall the exact date.

He testified on cross examination that he had that application for several months before he filled it out.

Now, a person who will apply for a job with a detective agency for the purpose of becoming an industrial investigator and who says in his application that he knows trade unions and how to deal with them and gives his qualifications for that purpose, and who has the state of mind months before the time that he actually leaves the union of being willing to become a labor spy—an "industrial investigator" is only a fancy name for a "labor spy."

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: I couldn't take judicial notice of that.

Mr. Gladstein: You don't have to, your Honor, but I think the record will show, and it would be very strange to me if the Bodell Agency asked people to indicate whether they wanted to be "labor spies" or "guards." They would call it as they do: [3006] "Industrial Investigators." That is simply true.

All right. Now, in view of that testimony and the man's state of mind—and this was in direct contradiction to what he said in previous response to questions—I asked him about his state of mind. He would never be a labor spy, he said! Oh, no! He was only interested in Communist activities! But as to labor espionage, he would never have done such a thing! He would never have applied for such a job! The record is full of such things.

Presiding Inspector: You don't need anything further because the record you have quoted would indicate that the witness thought that labor espionage was reprehensible.

Mr. Gladstein: The point is this: I want to show just how reprehensible it was for him to be indulging in labor espionage because he was a witness who took the stand, called by the Government to testify against Harry Bridges.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: Very well. I will adhere to the previous ruling and let you ask the questions. I still think it is of little importance. Go ahead. I may at some time think differently before we get through the case.

Mr. Gladstein: Will you read the question, please?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter, as follows:

"Q. In your years in the labor movement, have you had a chance to become acquainted with the official position of trade unions as regards labor espionage?) [3007]

Mr. Myron: I will object to the question.

Presiding Inspector: The official position? Is that what you mean?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I could ask him what his attitude of the trade union movement generally is and that would reflect the feelings and opinions based on experience of the leaders in the labor movement. And he is one. He has been a leader in the labor movement for many years. He is in a position to know about these things.

Now, I could re-frame the question and simply say, instead of "official position" you notice that witnesses who have appeared heretofore and who were asked questions witnesses who had been in the trade union movement, kept talking about "while officially this" and "officially that." It is a word that is constantly used in the trade union movement, that is why I asked him.

Presiding Inspector: I simply asked if that was really what you wanted to ask.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I will ask the witness first whether he understands that question and feels that he can answer it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you, Mr. Horn?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, if your Honor please. [3008]

Presiding Inspector: We will find out whether —I have already ruled that I will let him answer.

A. I think I can.

By Mr. Gladstein

Q. All right. Now, will you answer it?

A. I do.

Q. All right. Now, will you state what that official position is?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please, upon the ground it is immaterial and irrelevant and having nothing to do with the issues in the case.

Presiding Inspector: It has nothing to do with the direct case.

Mr. Del Guercio: Or even remote issues.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. I will take the proof, though. Go ahead. You may answer.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. The position of, I think, not only officially but every trade unionist of any standing, is that a labor spy is about the lowest species of humanity existing and would not believe them in any manner, shape or form or associate with them if they had any opportunity to avoid the contact.

Mr. Gladstein: You may cross examine.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. Horn, your say you attended this meeting [3009] at which Harry Bridges spoke in the fall of 1937 at Los Angeles, is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. How many other persons were there present at that meeting?

A. Oh, I never made any check. I would say approximately 40 to 50; not over that.

Q. Not over 50?

A. I shouldn't think so.

Q. And how many of those that were present did you know as being members of the Communist Party? A. None directly.

Q. Not that you recognized?

A. None directly.

Presiding Inspector: I think you don't quite get his answer, as I understand it.

The Witness: My answer is that I do not know of my own personal knowledge that they were members of the Communist Party.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, do you have personal knowledge of anyone being a member of the Communist Party?

A. I have had in the past, not recently.

Q. Well now, you testified that you have heard or that you know what Communist Party speakers —what their policy is. [3010]

A. In the trade union movement.

Q. Yes. Now, what Communist Party speakers have you heard?

A. Well, I said "not recently."

Q. Well, at any time?

A. Oh, we had numbers of Communist people in the Central Labor Council that were making attacks.

Q. What was his name or their names?

A. Well, it is too long ago for me to remember.

Q. How long ago was that?

A. That was in 1920 to—from 1922 to 1925.

Q. From 1922 to 1925. And is that the only time that you heard a Communist Party member speak?

A. The only one that I knew was a Communist.

Q. Who was that?

A. There were several of them that admitted on the floor of the Central Labor Council that they were members of the Communist Party.

Q. Was there a Central Labor Council from 1922 to 1924? A. There was.

Q. Where? A. Los Angeles.

Q. Were you a member of it?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. I was Secretary-Treasurer.

Q. And what were the names of those members of the [3011] Communist Party?

A. I couldn't recall.

Q. What was their Party line? What was the line that they advanced.

A. Destruction of the movement; attack upon the officials of the American labor movement.

Q. And where did they say that?

A. On the open floor of the Central Labor Council.

Q. Oh, they appeared before the Central Labor Council?

A. As delegates from the various unions.

Q. And you don't know their names?

A. Not at this time.

Q. You don't know the occasions that they spoke?

A. Well, we met every Friday night. That is a regular meeting of the Labor Council, and during that period there was hardly a time that there wasn't someone on the floor making remarks of that kind.

Q. Can you give me the names of someone else that was present that heard these same speakers that you say you heard?

A. Well, I could get the record.

Q. Well, would you do that?

A. That is approximately eighteen years ago.

Q. Well, where are those records?

A. Los Angeles Central Labor Council. [3012]

Q. And they are available to you?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. No; they are not available to me, but they are available to anybody with any authority.

Q. Well, would the records of that Labor Council for that year show who were these speakers, who were the Communist Party speakers before the Central Labor Council of which you speak?

A. It would show the two or three that were expelled from the Council as soon as they admitted that they were members of the Communist Party.

Q. I am not speaking about that. I am speaking, would it show that at the time you say they spoke that they were speaking as members of the Communist Party?

A. No. They never admitted it except the time when we had these two or three who were questioned.

Q. Well, who has ever admitted to you or in your presence that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. There was only these three or four that I can't recall their names.

Q. Do you know what they look like?

A. One was a member of the—let me see! Wait a minute! Ladies' Garment Workers Union.

Q. Just a member, not a delegate?

A. A delegate to the Council.

Q. What? [3013]

A. They couldn't speak unless they were delegates of the Council.

Q. You said he was a member.

A. Well, a delegate is a member of the Council.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Q. Well, what did he look like?

A. That is too far for me.

Q. You don't even know what he looked like? You don't know his name?

A. No.

Q. You don't know what he looked like? You don't know what he spoke about?

A. Oh, yes. He spoke, as I say, I couldn't recite the details.

Q. Could you remember one word he said or may have said?

A. Yes.

Q. What

A. That the officers or the officials of the American Federation of Labor were moss-backs, reactionaries and were not representing the workers properly and should be thrown out or voted out of office.

Q. And you recall that some particular individual member of the Central Labor Council said that in 1922?

A. Several of them said that. That was the general tone. [3014]

Q. You have retained those words since 1922 in your mind?

A. Yes; because——

Q. (Interposing) And yet you can't remember the names of these persons?

A. That's correct.

Q. Or persons? But you would have us believe that you have retained in your mind during all these years the words that you have just quoted?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. That's correct.

Q. As having been spoken by the——

A. (Interposing) That's correct.

Q. Now, Mr. Horn, didn't Harry Bridges make a similar speech in 1937 at which you attended? Didn't he make the same kind of attack?

A. No.

Q. Upon American Federation of Labor men?

A. Not to that extent.

Q. Not to that extent?

A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Now, you were interviewed by FBI men, were you not? A. I was.

Q. And didn't you make this statement to them? "Harry Bridges spoke at this meeting concerning the A. F. of L., stating that the men in charge of the A. F. of L. were old, were living on the fat of the land, were mixing with [3015] employers and lost contact with the men and just wanted salaries"? Didn't you say that?

A. I don't think I said it in that language.

Q. In what language did you say it?

A. That in the course of his remarks explaining the organizational differences between—between the organizations for industrial unionism and the A. F. of L., that the industrial union would produce more for the workers, and along that line.

Q. Well, did he say that the officers of the A. F.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

of L. were living on the fat of the land, or words to that effect?

A. I don't recall that he did.

Q. Huh. You don't recall now?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall saying that to the FBI men?

A. I don't think I said it in exact language.

Q. Would you say that you didn't say it?

A. I would say I didn't use those exact words.

Q. Well, what words did you use then?

A. I couldn't repeat it.

Q. You couldn't repeat it?

A. That was a long——

Q. (Interposing) Your recollection fails you?

A. That was a long conversation, as I recall.

Q. And yet you remember these words twenty-two years [3016] ago that some person that you don't know what he looks like or don't know his name——

Mr. Gladstein: Interposing) I think that is argumentative, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. This is a cross examination. Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you say that Bridges accused American Federation of Labor men with mixing with employers?

A. Not in that exact words.

Q. Well, what words did you use then in saying that?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. I used the words something to this effect: That the representatives of the A. F. of L. were dealing with the employers not doing the job as well as could be done by the industrial union form of organization.

Q. Well now, are you quoting your exact words?

A. No, as close as I can recall.

Q. Now, is it possible that you did tell the FBI men that Harry Bridges said or accused the A. F. of L. officials of mixing with employers?

A. Yes. I could have said that.

Q. Well now, isn't that your definition of a "labor spy" and doesn't that come within your definition of a "labor spy"?

The Witness: Your Honor, I am not hard of hearing and I [3017] resent the gentleman speaking to me in that tone of voice.

Presiding Inspector: Never mind! You answer the question.

A. No, that is not my definition.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Would you say that the American Federation of Labor officers were labor spies?

A. No, sir.

Q. If they mixed with employers?

A. No, sir.

Q. You wouldn't? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, didn't you also tell the FBI men that in your opinion Bridges' speech in 1937 was tinged with Communism?

A. I think it had that phraseology.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Q. Oh, you did say that? Was that the truth?

A. In a mild way, yes.

Q. Was it the truth? Did you tell the truth to the FBI men when they questioned you about that?

A. I think I did, to the best of my knowledge.

Q. Did Mr. Bridges say anything about "Red-baiting" at his speech in 1937?

A. I do not recall.

Q. You don't recall. Well, do you recall talking to the FBI men? [3018] A. Yes.

Q. And telling them that Harry Bridges did use the words "Red-baiting"?

A. I do not think I did.

Q. Would you say that you didn't say that to the FBI men?

A. Yes. I don't think I said that.

Q. Huh?

A. I don't think I said that. Not in the direct line that you put it.

Q. In what line did you say it, Mr. Horn?

A. Well, in a general way that the term is generally used in the labor movement or in an organization way of "Red-baiting."

Q. What is that way?

A. Just what it says: "Red-baiting."

Q. Red-baiting?

A. Accuse a person of being a Red, a Communist.

Q. Did Mr. Bridges say anything about Red-baiting in that speech?

A. I don't recall that he did.

Q. Huh?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. I don't recall that he did.

Q. You do not recall what he said in 1937?

A. Not very clearly, no.

Q. Do you know Walter Westphal? [3019]

A. Who?

Q. Walter Westphal.

A. I do not recall him.

Q. Was he present at that meeting.

A. I don't know.

Q. Huh? Do you know of anybody who was present at that meeting?

A. Not by name, no.

Q. Do you know whether they were members of the Communist Party? A. I do not.

Q. Huh? A. I do not.

Q. They might have been?

A. Possibly.

Q. It is possible. You didn't know any of them personally, did you?

A. I know a lot of them to say "Hello" to, but I wouldn't know them by names.

Q. And you don't know the name of a single person who attended that meeting?

A. I just mentioned Mr. Bridges.

Q. He was a speaker. Do you know any person who attended that meeting?

A. I couldn't give you any names now. [3020]

Q. Not a single name? A. No.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Chase was present?

A. I do not know that I know Mr. Chase.

Q. You don't know Mr. Chase at all?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. I do not know whether I do or not. If I saw him I would know whether I knew him or not.

Q. Now, this meeting, you say, was in the fall of 1937. Do you recall Mr. Bridges using these words, in substance, in his speech. I quote from Mr. Bridges: "There was a time that I felt that if anyone was opposed to the Communist Party that it was his privilege to so speak, but experience has taught me that those who make a practice of Red-baiting are usually agents of the bosses and are the enemies of true trade unionists and should be treated with distrust." Do you remember using those words?

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment!

Mr. Del Guercio: I am not through with the question yet.

Mr. Gladstein: Before you answer that question, I want to say that counsel is asking the witness a question read from a document, and I think in accordance with your Honor's rule the witness is entitled to know what that document is and from whom it purports to be read. [3021]

Presiding Inspector: I will allow that question.

Mr. Gladstein: What is that?

Presiding Inspector: I will allow that question.

Mr. Gladstein: I think this witness should——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) It is a memorandum of the investigation, I suppose. It is no document except in the sense as it may have been prepared as a result of the usual investigation.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know but what counsel is using a labor spy's report, for all I know.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: Assume that he is. I will allow the question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What is your answer, Mr. Horn?

The Witness: Read the question, please?

Presiding Inspector: Did he say that or that in substance?

The Witness: I do not recall that he did.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. He might have said it?

A. It's possible.

Q. Its possible, but you wouldn't remember? You have no recollection now?

A. Not of him using that.

Q. What do you have any recollection of Bridges saying [3022] at that meeting?

A. I testified a moment ago or a few minutes ago that the talk was, I thought, innocuous and was disappointing—and it didn't impress me very good. It didn't impress itself in my mind very vividly.

Q. If he did use these words that I have just said, would you call that "innocuous"?

A. I don't recall that he did.

Q. You wouldn't state that he said that?

A. No, I wouldn't.

Presiding Inspector: He wants to get your judgment as to what you mean by "innocuous". Now, he says, if he did use those words would you call those words "innocuous"?

The Witness: I would not.

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Mr. Del Guercio: And your testimony is that you don't know whether he used those words or not.

Now, if the Court please, counsel accused me of having a labor spy magazine. I want to show him what I had in my hand. It is a transcript of the——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Of the testimony of Ezra S. Chase, labor spy.

Mr. Del Guercio: And you have that.

Mr. Gladstein: From the testimony of Ezra S. Chase, labor spy.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think those remarks are out of order. [3023]

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I think they are out of order. Go ahead. They don't affect the trier of the facts in the slightest.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Since 1924, Mr. Horn, have you heard any Communist Party members speak?

A. I have never attended a Communist meeting that I know.

Q. I didn't ask you that. I asked you if since 1924 you heard a Communist Party member speak?

A. I heard Earl Browder over the air one time.

Q. How do you know that he is a member of the Communist Party?

A. The publicity—the newspapers state that he was a candidate of the Communist Party.

Q. Well, did he lay down any policy towards trade unions?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. After I listened to him about three minutes I turned the dial.

Q. Well, do you know what the Communist Party policy towards trade unionism is?

A. In a general way I think I do.

Q. Who else told you? Where did you get it?

A. Well, in reading labor magazines and journals.

Q. What labor magazines did you read? [3024]

A. Well, I read any number of them.

Q. Well, will you give me the names of some of them, please?

A. The American Federationist, the Los Angeles Citizen, the Daily Clarion, the Chicago Federationist and Brewery Workers' International Journal.

Q. Would you say that the Western Worker is a trade union paper?

A. No, I would not.

Q. Would you say that—you would not?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because I don't believe it is. Not as a trade union paper, as I understand the trade union movement.

Q. Would you say that the Daily Worker is a trade union paper?

A. No. I understand that it is a Communist Paper. I have never read it.

Q. Would say say that the Peoples World is a trade union paper? A. No, I would not.

Q. Now, what in the papers that you have mentioned as being as representing the trade unions did you read to show what the Communist Party policy towards trade unionism is?

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

A. Yes. That did run quite frequently in all the [3025] trade papers.

Q. What did you read then about it? Will you give me what you read about the Communist Party policy towards trade unionism?

A. That they were instructed to bore from within, depose the officers, cause general dissatisfaction and leading up to the time when they would have a general resolution.

Q. General "resolution" or "revolution"?

A. Revolution: And establish a dictatorship of the proletariat.

Q. You say you have been a labor man here for a long period of time. Would you say that a Communist would make a good labor man?

A. I would say he could not make a good trade union labor man.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all, your Honor.

Mr. Gladstein: Just one question.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you think Harry Bridges is a good trade unionist, Mr. Horn? A. I do.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't have time to object.

Presiding Inspector: You didn't. [3026]

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I——

(Testimony of John S. Horn.)

Presiding Inspector: Strike out the answer just for the moment.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. I haven't any objection to that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object, that there is nothing at issue here in this case as to whether Bridges' activities in trade unions as such. What is at issue is Mr. Bridges as a Communist, his Communist activities in trade unionism.

Presiding Inspector: In view of the testimony about this speech that he made, I think I will allow the question.

Mr. Gladstein: Not only that, but in view of the question——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) That is enough.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: I am not excluding it.

Mr. Gladstein: Then the answer is in?

Presiding Inspector: I will take the answer. I will let the answer stand.

Mr. Gladstein: We have no further questions.

Mr. Del Guercio: No further questions.

Presiding Inspector: Next witness.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Gladstein: We don't have a witness to put on at this time, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Can't you dispose of Mr. Bridges?

Mr. Gladstein: I asked Mrs. King about that this morning and she didn't have that ready, that testimony. As a [3027] matter of fact, I would suggest that we have a conference in chambers on the general subject matter which developed this morning, due to the ruling that your Honor has made, and take up some problems. I suggest we have a recess now in chambers.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Why not discuss them right here? Would you rather discuss them in chambers?

What do you say, Mr. Del Guercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: We have a matter, too, your Honor, to take up at the present time.

Presiding Inspector: Would you like to discuss them right here or in chambers?

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't know what that is. What I have in mind is something else.

Presiding Inspector: Shall we discuss the whole matter in chambers?

Mr. Goodwin: In open court.

Mr. Del Guercio: What we have in mind is another matter entirely. I haven't indicated yet what it was.

Presiding Inspector: I know you haven't. Do you want to discuss it here or in chambers?

Mr. Del Guercio: Right here, now. I understand that they have nothing to present at the present time. We want to make—— [3028]

Presiding Inspector: They would like to talk over the progress of the trial.

Mr. Gladstein: The question I would like to raise, your Honor, is this. We had, as I think I told your Honor yesterday, intended to put on the stand this morning the witness Roscoe Craycraft, Mr. Roscoe Craycraft as a witness, and we frankly believed that his testimony direct and cross would take all day long. In view of your Honor's ruling yesterday we had to assume that possibly you would rule that Mr. Craycraft's testimony could not be received until after Mr. Cannalonga had been brought down here.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I think that was a fair assumption.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, we were guessing, but sometimes we guess right.

Now, all right. Therefore, we are put in a position of trying to re-arrange our schedule of witnesses. For that reason we were hurried and there was this delay this morning from Mr. Horn. But we would like under the circumstances to have Mr. Cannalonga as the next witness because the entire program of our case depends upon that testimony going in first, and in view of your Honor's ruling this morning, that you will not permit character witnesses as of this time to testify to the good reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth and veracity, very frankly, your Honor, [3029] we had two more witnesses for this afternoon on that same subject matter.

Now, I realize that it is within the discretion of the Court to suggest the order of procedure, but also counsel should be permitted to develop the order of their case with some reasonable latitude. And I think that we should be accorded the same kind of courtesy that the Government receives.

Presiding Inspector: I shall try to give it to you.

Mr. Gladstein: I am not saying that you haven't, Judge, but I pointed out before that they were permitted to put on a lot of testimony for a week about a second issue, without even coming to the first issue at all. And while it is true that we didn't object, we thought that that is something that they want to develop in accordance with their theory of the case. And that is all right. But we should have the same rights.

Presiding Inspector: I want to give you every privilege to put your case in wholly and in the manner that you think is most effective for your line. Now, I don't want to allow this trial—this "hearing", I suppose I should call it—to be too long delayed. I want to make progress here. You understand that.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I do. You see, our schedule was prepared for this entire week and next, I may say. But when [3030] your Honor ruled as you did yesterday in connection with the witness Mr. Shoemaker, the Court Reporter, as you did, indicating to us also that you would rule against the admissibility of Mr. Crayeraft's testimony as of this time—that is, prior to Mr. Cannalonga—I assumed that your Honor did'nt intend us to understand that Mr. Crayeraft would not be permitted to testify after Cannalonga was on the stand.

Presiding Inspector: I haven't ruled one way or the other on that.

Mr. Del Guercio: We are going to argue that question now.

Presiding Inspector: We are going to take that question up now.

Mr. Del Guercio: Sir?

Presiding Inspector: We are going to take that question up now.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is what I had in mind, arguing that point now.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

Mr. Del Guercio: May we proceed to argue now?

Presiding Inspector: No. Let us hear what the rest of their statement is. I will hear you in just a minute.

Mr. Grossman: There is something else that I would like to add. It is along the lines that we discussed or I discussed when I stated why we needed a certain amount of delay [3031] before we began our case, and I would like to bring that to your attention.

I pointed out at that time the difficulty of our having to keep available witnesses when we didn't know exactly when they would go on. Now, there is an additional matter that has developed that I want to bring to your attention because it creates special difficulties as far as time is concerned in bringing down the witnesses. We have found it necessary, though we hoped that it would not be, to send an attorney generally to interview witnesses before they are brought here. We hoped to be able to do it without having some member of our staff do so. But, as your Honor can see, we felt that we couldn't do a satisfactory job without one. And so an attorney has had to leave San Francisco to contact witnesses in the various places. He has had to take a trip or trips to Los Angeles and before we can bring any witnesses (and I state to your Honor we will bring them shortly from Seattle and Portland) they must be interviewed in that way.

The result is that we were not able to bring down the witnesses before the interview. Now, that is one reason why we can't bring down immediately —let us say, tomorrow—witnesses that haven't yet been interviewed. And that's an additional reason why we need until Mr. Cannalonga is produced before we can begin our case, because we can't telephone Seattle or Portland to bring down a witness, because some of [3032] them have not yet been interviewed and will be interviewed today. That is a practical question. I don't think there is any solution for it because we can't be expected to bring down witnesses here on the basis that we are going to put them on as witnesses without having first interviewed them or having them interviewed by some one that we think responsible and reliable. That has meant this delay for these very practical reasons.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, we have information that they have been interviewing witnesses before that, not only them, but also another member of their staff, Mr. Margolis. So that everything that they are saying now is not exactly correct, and they have had plenty of opportunity and plenty of time to get all of their witnesses to interview whoever they wanted to.

Presiding Inspector: I thought so. I thought last week's adjournment was——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Was for that purpose.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——was to fix that up. But you say this Cannalonga matter disrupted your previous plans?

Mr. Gladstein: Quite, your Honor. Because, as you see, we regard it as very, very critical to the case.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is a situation there where they made the situation again. They pursue the man, make the situation and then come here and argue about it and produce [3033] that as a reason for wanting another delay.

Mr. Gladstein: I am not sure quite whether—I think I ought to say this, Judge. Mr. Del Guercio has just said that I pursued Mr. Cannalonga and made or created a situation. All I did was to find out from Mr. Cannalonga what kind of a situation the FBI had created for Mr. Cannalonga, and that's what we want to produce here.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see any use in having recriminations and bantering. One side is about as good at that as the other, as far as I can see. I mean, in the capacity of counsel. So I don't think it does any good.

Mr. Gladstein: If the subpoena on Mr. Cannalonga has been sent by wire or phone——

Presiding Inspector: It was issued in Portland.

Mr. Gladstein: Then I assume that there is no reason why he can't be here tomorrow morning, and I think we have supplied in accordance with the statute the amount of money that is necessary to bring him down here.

Presiding Inspector: I think so.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, under the circumstances and in view of your rulings, as I say, we have two witnesses for this afternoon who would certainly take up the afternoon, but they are being called for the purpose of giving the kind of testimony that you wouldn't permit Mr. Horn to give this morning. So I don't think we should go through useless motions. [3034]

Presiding Inspector: As to the credibility?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, as to the reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth and veracity.

Presiding Inspector: There has been no attack on Mr. Bridges' credibility and he hasn't been a witness, and while he is going to be a witness—I assume he is going to be a witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——I can't assume that there is going to be any direct attack on his reputation.

Mr. Gladstein: We frankly didn't anticipate that you would make that kind of a ruling.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is pretty elementary.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, what is elementary in a common law proceeding is not elementary in an administrative hearing.

Presiding Inspector: You are right there. The Presiding Inspector has a greater freedom.

Mr. Gladstein: My attention has just been called to something I overlooked this morning in answering your question, your Honor, and that is this. You asked whether in the last hearing testimony of this character was permitted.

Presiding Inspector: No. I don't think that is what I asked. I asked whether there was direct impeaching testimony offered.

Mr. Gladstein: No, there wasn't that. [3035]

Presiding Inspector: Against Mr. Bridges.

Mr. Gladstein: No, there wasn't that. But, on the other hand, we were permitted by Dean Landis to prove—and I think there was one witness and then we asked that witness, in addition, certain other questions that we wished brought out which were not permitted, but I think on this question of truth and veracity we were permitted to have the answers. I can check that during the noon hour.

Presiding Inspector: Then there may have been such testimony of contradictory statements by Mr. Bridges?

Mr. Gladstein: Prior to that time.

Presiding Inspector: Prior to the time that that was introduced, which opened the door, and there may have been no objection to it. I don't know.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't recall. I would have to check the record.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, you would have to check that, and I don't think it is very material. I recognize Dean Landis as an excellent lawyer and I have the highest respect for his views.

Now, we will hear your motion.

Mr. Goodwin: Your Honor, the thing that I am concerned about at the present time is that there is evidence in this record that has no business here; that it has been, of course, tentatively admitted by your Honor for the purpose of serving [3036] the convenience of the Court Reporter. But it is in the record. It does confuse the situation and it makes it doubly unfortunate and confused it, while it is in the record, Mr. Cannalonga is brought in as a witness.

Now, there is no authority for the admission of that testimony and that is the question that we would like to argue on a mation to strike out, either now or after the conclusion of this morning's session and the beginning of the next. We think that it is an urgent question, one that should be disposed of now and not allowed to pend until we get briefs on it some months from now.

Mrs. King: May I be heard no this?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Could I suggest this, rather than argue the law? Mrs. King is prepared with an argument on the law, which your Honor can assume is directly contrary to the indications given by Judge Goodwin. But wouldn't it be a better way of settling this question to have your Honor wait for a ruling on that until after Mr. Cannalonga has testified? Now, I am inclined——

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) How absurd!

Mr. Gladstein: What?

I am of the view that Mr. Cannalonga certainly cannot be damaged in any way by having this record as it is at the present time. If he is put on the stand he will be asked [3037] certain questions. He will not be confronted with the record in this case. He will simply be confronted with statements which we claim that he has made. Now, if he admits those, all right. If he denies those, then we have other testimony that we can produce. That is something entirely different. But I don't see how the present state of the record——

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) It makes a very vital difference, your Honor.

Mr. Gladstein: I would like to hear what the difference is.

Mr. Goodwin: It makes a very vital difference whether Mr. Cannalonga comes in here with his testimony as he has left it or whether he comes in here with some inadmissible statements of his with which he will be confronted not as something that counsel was going to ask him about but something in the record.

Now, I think that in justice to us and in justice to Mr. Cannalonga we have the right to the exclusion of evidence that has no business here and is not admissible under any ruling in any jurisdiction in the United States for 120 years.

Presiding Inspector: Well, under that statement I will have to hear Mrs. King.

Mrs. King: I would like, in the first place, to read a [3038] statement from Corpus Juris, although I realize that that is not the best authority.

Presiding Inspector: No. It only purports to be the editor's statement from the cases cited.

Mrs. King: But in view of Judge Goodwin's statement, that there has been no case in 120 years, and that statement is:

"The statements of a witness out of court after testifying that he had testified falsely and been hired to do so may be proved in court to discredit his testimony".

Now, there are a number of different jurisdictions in the United States. I am not attempting to state that in every jurisdiction this type of evidence is admissible. I am stating that in a number of jurisdictions, especially in New England, this type of testimony is regularly admitted. For instance, in Massachusetts and the Federal Courts in Massachusetts in the same way admit this type of testimony.

It seems to me, though, because of the split in authority which I referred to yesterday that perhaps the best discussion of the matter is the discussion of the text book writers. Those text book writers uniformly explain the reason for this rule, and they state that the reason for the rule is to avoid surprise on the part of the witness. That is the entire basis of the rule from the point of view of every text book writer. [3039] And that being so, it is clear from this deposition, in so far as it was admitted in court yesterday—I mean, it was read in court yesterday—that the witness' attention was specifically directed to the other testimony. There was no question of surprise. There was no question of his not being able to explain discrepancies, which is what the Courts have—all of them—had in mind in this matter.

Wigmore, in his 1940 Edition, makes this perfectly plain. He also attacks as unreasonable the orgidity of the rule which in some jurisdictions prohibits the introduction of such testimony, and he said in that connection:

"The objection in brief is that in many cases it is impossible for the impeaching party to ask the question while the witness is on the stand because, of course, it is often not until after the testimony is delivered that the prior contradictions are brought to the opponent's notice."

And later on:

"As there is at least an equal chance that the alleged contradictions were really uttered and cannot be explained away it is poor policy that favors exclusively the witness to be impeached by exempting him from impeachment. Justice demands with equal force that the impeaching party, if acting in good faith, should not be invariably the one to suffer under the rigid enforcement of the law."

[3040]

He goes on to say that the proper rule is that the matter is within the discretion of the trial court and then says:

"The modern tendency has been to enforce a rigid rule, but that it is to be hoped reaction will some day effect a correction of its rigidity in the interests of justice."

Now, in view of this state of the law, which is a state of uncertainty, in view of the fact that in administrative proceedings, as we have said again and again, the rules are less rigid than they are in the common law courts, in view of the fact that Mr. Cannalonga is, as Mr. Gladstein suggested, to be in court probably tomorrow, it seems to me that this whole business can properly lie over; that there is no conclusive rule that this material cannot in any circumstances be received.

It seems to me, finally, that the very basis of the rule does not exist at the present time because there is no problem of taking the witness by surprise, which is the basis and reason for this rule.

Now, if your Honor wants to know the precise jurisdictions which decide one way or decide the other way I have those cases with me on that problem. But it seems to me rather a waste of time to go into the matter where there is this conflict in authority, and cite one jurisdiction or another jurisdiction which is not binding on you, as the administrative authority in this case. [3041]

Mr. Del Guercio: May we have the citations?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly. Mrs. King will give them to you.

Mr. Del Guercio: The citations to support her proposition.

Mrs. King: Gould v. Norfolk Lead Co.,——

Mr. Goodwin: May I have that again?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will give it to you.

Mrs. King: (Continuing) ——9. Cush. 737.

Presiding Inspector: That is a Massachusetts case.

Mrs. King: Yes. Tucker v. Welch, 17 Mass. 160. Hedge v. Clapp, 22 Conn. 262. Sharp v. Emmet, 5 Whart.—that is a Pennsylvania case—288. Miller v. Pierce, 86 Vt. 322.

Mr. Del Guercio: Are those all cited in Cushing 737?

Mrs. King: State v. D'Adame, 84 New Jersey Law 386.

Now, the case on which Wharton relies, particularly with reference to this matter, is the Vermont case of Downer v. Dana, 19 Vermont 345.

The Federal case which follows the Massachusetts case is American Agricultural Chemical Co. v. Hogan, 213 Fed. 416, which is the Circuit Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, decision of 1914.

So, as I say, there is respectable authority for giving your Honor discretion to allow this to be introduced, and [3042] respectable authority for the proposition that this is properly admissible.

In view of those circumstances it seems unnecessary at this time to strike it out. We believe that it is admissible. We are not trying to argue at this time as to its final admissibility in view of the future appearance of Mr. Cannalonga, and it seems to me that the matter can well be left over until tomorrow.

Presiding Inspector: I think it can be postponed.

Mr. Goodwin: May we recess at this time so we can check these cases that have been submitted? Then I will be prepared to argue.

Presiding Inspector: We will recess until 2:00 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12:35 P.M. a recess was taken until 2:00 P.M. of the same day.) [3043]

After Recess
2:00 O'Clock P.M.

Presiding Inspector: Now, Judge Goodwin, I think you were on your feet, or just getting off your feet, when we adjourned.

Mr. Goodwin: Pardon?

Presiding Inspector: Figuratively or literally you were on your feet when we adjourned when we were talking about this matter.

Mr. Goodwin: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Had you concluded all you wanted to say?

Mr. Goodwin: I haven't said anything yet, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I thought you said quite a bit. I will be very glad to hear you.

Mr. Del Guercio: This, your Honor, is an argument on the motion to strike the evidence and it is the law that we have been able to gather on that point.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly. One of you made the point and that is what I referred to when I said I thought you had said a good deal.

Go right ahead.

Mr. Goodwin: Well, your Honor, I made one statement that was somewhat inaccurate. I said there had not been a case where testimony, or evidence, or statements made subsequent to [3044] the examination of the witness had been allowed in evidence for 120 years. I qualify that to this extent: 105 years ago there was a case in New York in which, without admitting prior testimony, there was a dictum of the Court to the effect—I mean subsequent testimony—there was a dictum to the effect that subsequent statements might be introduced. That case has been, as your Honor probably knows, repeatedly overruled.

My proposition is, first: That no subsequent statement can be introduced to impeach a witness, and that there is no authority at the present time to the contrary if we do not accept a Massachusetts decision of 120 years ago that has been repeatedly cited, but never on that point.

Now in Corpus Juris there is a statement to the contrary:

"Statements made after a witness has left the stand may, it has been held, be admitted to discredit him."

Now, the first case cited in Corpus Juris is Thompson v. Ish, 12 S.W., 510; 99 Mo. 160. The case is not in point. It isn't new that a case cited by Corpus Juris should not be in point. There the question was in regard to a will, and the statements that were introduced in evidence were statements that were conflicting statements by the testator made before and after he made the will. And it has absolutely nothing to do with the case here.

The New York case referred to was People v. Moore, 15 [3045] Wend. (N.Y.) 419 and, as I said, cited 105 years ago. There the Court said:

"The rule is that what a witness has said at another time on the same subject may be used to impeach; and when impeached similar testimony may be given to support him."

Then this was said, entirely obiter:

"It can make no difference at what time these declarations have been made as to the competency of such testimony, though it may make much difference as to the effect of it. If a witness, the moment he leaves the stand, should declare that his whole testimony was a fabrication and if shown to the jury they would place no confidence in the testimony which he had given, etc."

Now, that was not made deciding the subsequent admissions could be introduced. It was merely the way the Judge illustrated the fact that nearness in point of time was important, but it didn't make any difference what time it was.

Presiding Inspector: Whose dictum is that?

Mr. Goodwin: Pardon me?

Presiding Inspector: Who was the Judge who said that?

Mr. Goodwin: Well, your Honor, it was before I came to the Bar and I can't remember.

Presiding Inspector: Perhaps if I saw the volume I would remember the incident.

Mr. Goodwin: I think someone refers to it later. [3046]

Presiding Inspector: You don't think either you or I would remember it, as old as we may be!

Mr. Goodwin: Well, in Stacy v. Graham, 14 N. Y., 492, that is the Court of Appeals, I take it, the Court overruled the decision in People v. Moore, 15 Wend. 419, pointing out that it was obiter, and said, at page 502:

"From this extract it is quite evident that the learned Chief Justice, instead of attempting to withdraw that case from the general rule on the subject, ignored the rule itself. His attention may not have been called to it. I think it was not then so well understood as it is now."

Then, again, referring to the same case, the testimony of a witness had been taken de bene esse and was read at the trial. After plaintiffs had rested the defendant offered to prove conversations with that witness after the examination in which he confessed that his evidence was false; that it was given under threats; that he regretted that he had to swear to it etc.

The Court of Appeals sustained the rejection of the testimony and expressly overruled People v. Moore. It said:

"The principle on which the practice essentially rests is that both the party and the witness are entitled of right to any explanation which the latter can give of the statements imputed to him."

Now, your Honor, the only case remaining that has held to [3047] the contrary is Tucker v. Welsh, 17 Mass., 160, decided, as I said, in 1821. In that case one Pennaman drew an order in favor of the plaintiff on the defendant on a policy of insurance. The defense was that before drawing the order he had assigned the policy to his brother. In his deposition he testified that the plaintiff knew of the assignment to his brother both before and after the order was drawn. The testimony was combatted by a witness who stated that after the deposition had been given he went with the plaintiff to call on Pennaman and asked Pennaman whether he did not intend the money due on the policy for him and he answered "Yes". The evidence was objected to on the ground the declaration of Pennaman, not under oath, could not be received to impeach the testimony given by him in his deposition. The objection was overruled. On the point the Court said:

"The credit of a witness may be impeached by saying that he has made a different statement out of court either before or after he has given his testimony."

Now, your Honor, the case was referred to in Commonwealth v. Hawkins, 69 Mass. 465, and Bristol v. Plymouth, 48 Mass. 257. I see those two and probably in other cases. But in all those cases the question was whether the rule that Mrs. King referred to this morning was binding in Massachusetts. And now I would like to refer to that rule. There was nothing about subsequent testimony and, as I said, the cases are barren of any [3048] authority that subsequent testimony may be introduced.

Now, Wigmore on Evidence—I am taking the Second Division, Sections 1017, 1048, discusses this proposition:

It is the law everywhere that where a proper foundation is laid a witness may be impeached by showing that he has, on a prior occasion, made statements to the contrary. It is likewise true that evidence of facts or subsequent statements by the witness are not admissible. The first proposition is supported in Wigmore on Evidence, where the matter is elaborately discussed. Throughout the contradictions are referred to as "Prior self-contradictions". In Section 1025 he discusses the matter of preliminary warning, and in Section 1028 says:

"In all but a few jurisdictions the rule is recognized and is enforced as an inflexible one. In a few jurisdictions its enforcement is left to the trial courts. In a few others it is not recognized at all."

I would say that in Massachusetts that rule that requires warning is not recognized at all. There may be some other jurisdictions in which it is not recognized, but I do not know of it. In Pennsylvania, for instance, in North Carolina, in Connecticut and some of the others it is discretionary with the Judge to say whether a warning must be given. And I would say in practically all these other states a warning is required and the witness is asked in advance whether he on such occasion [3049] to such a person at such a place and time made such and such a statement, and that gives him an opportunity to meet that alleged statement and explain it or deny it or qualify it, or anything of the kind.

The United States Supreme Court, in practically all the cases, that is the rule. That was the English rule, that is the salutary rule, that is the rule that your Honor would overturn in this case. But, as I understand it, counsel for the Alien has suggested that when there is subsequent testimony then that rule of warning cannot apply.

Now, your Honor, I say in reply to that that where the testimony is impeached or sought to be impeached by a subsequent statement, there is no authority for its introduction at all. That is the point to which I have directed my argument up to this time.

But there is another thing that I want to say. Suppose it were otherwise? Suppose a witness could be impeached by his testimony—his testimony could be impeached by subsequent statements? You say "Well, he can't be surprised because he knows about them." Well, your Honor, that is a very vital question in the case. Did he make them?

Now, if a witness on the stand is confronted with a question as to whether he made prior statements he has for his protection the right of explanation. He should have the right of explanation. And, your Honor, that explanation comes before [3050] the evidence is offered. That is to say, you can't go in a trial and put in the testimony on the other side and then ask the witness to explain it; or, if he made it, to put the testimony in first. Well, in this case we have here alleged statements that have no proper place in this record. Is the witness to come in here and be put in a worse position with reference to those subsequent statements than he would be with reference to statements that he made before? If the witness is to be recalled to the stand and counsel for the alien wishes to rely on these statements as contradicting his former statements, then they should call his attention to those—I mean, those subsequent statements. If they wish to attempt to impeach him on the ground or to contradict him on the ground that he subsequently made these other statements, then before the statements are put in the record they must call his attention to them and say, "Did you in the office of the Attorney for the Alien," or some other office to which he had been taken, "Was this question asked and did you make this answer?"

That is the ground for putting in the evidence later. You can't put it in, you have no right, in the first place, to admit subsequent statements as impeaching, and you cannot properly rely on subsequent statements as impeaching until you recall him to the stand, and then ask whether on the former occasion he had made, or whether on such and such an occasion he had made those statements. He is just as much entitled to [3051] that protection as though he were sought to be impeached on the ground of something he had said in Seattle or some place at some other time.

That is all, your Honor.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, I cited this morning the statement in Corpus Juris, and I would like to repeat this statement because it seems to me more squarely in point than any other. It says:

"Statements of a witness out of court, after testifying, that he had testified falsely and had been hired to do so, may be proved in court to discredit his testimony."

The case cited in support of that general principle is McGinnis v. Grant, 42 Conn. 77.

In Ruling Case Law——

Presiding Inspector: What page in Corpus Juris?

Mrs. King: 70 Corpus Juris 1004.

In Ruling Case Law, under the heading "Prior Inconsistent Statements," that text states that "the variant statements may have been made either before or after the witness testified."

That general principle is supported by the case cited by Judge Goodwin, Tucker v. Welsh, 17 Mass. 160.

The question of the English law, apparently the law in England, was our way until, I say "our way," and I mean that the statement could be introduced without a foundation being laid until 1820. [3052]

On that point in the Third Edition of Wigmore he states:

"But this rule is by no means an immemorial tradition. The reasons above explained were not worked out until well into the 1800s. The rule, as a rule, may be said to have had its birth with the response of the Judges in the Queen's case (quoted above) in 1820."

That is, up to that time this rule did not exist.

Coming back to the problem of the general principle which I dealt with this morning, when Wigmore starts explaining the reason of the rule he says:

"It has already been noticed that, to obviate the objection of unfair surprise, a natural expedient is to ask the witness, while on the stand under cross examination, whether he made the supposed contradictory statement."

Then he goes on, as I suggested this morning, to explain that the rule should not be an inflexible rule.

I want to say that I had an opportunity yesterday to examine, although I didn't make complete notes, the second Edition of Wigmore and the thing that is quite noticeable is the fact that between the Second Edition of Wigmore which, I think, is possibly 1924, and the present Third Edition of Wigmore, which was issued in 1940, it is quite noticeable that he modifies the wording of the rule and states, in the Second Edition, with reference to the rule, that it should be when it is impossible to produce the witness. [3053]

Mr. Goodwin: That is not the case.

Mrs. King: In the present edition he says "impossible to produce the witness because of absence."

That is clearly a slight modification of his conception of this rule.

Presiding Inspector: Is there any case arising between the publication dates of the Second and Third Editions?

Mrs. King: I didn't see any, but I have done so much work, and have done it so hastily, that I knew very little about it when I was through.

Presiding Inspector: It seems as though Wigmore explored his own conscience.

Mrs. King: That is correct. I don't think that Wigmore has done much on the cases.

Although I do think that the Federal case also is a case, the one I cited this morning, which is the American Agricultural Chemical Co. v. Hogan, 213 Fed., distinctly holds that a statement, and that statement was a prior statement, not a subsequent statement, could be introduced without laying a foundation. I should like to——

Presiding Inspector: We don't have to meet this case that you suggest because I undoubtedly have the right, as the Presiding Inspector, to open the cross examination and that you proceed with cross examination. Then this question wouldn't arise because you will have Mr. Cannalonga here and will be able [3054] to ask him this question, which Judge Goodwin has very correctly, in general terms, stated; that is, you call his attention to the time, place and the occasion of the claimed inconsistent statements and let him tell whether he said that. I suppose there can be no explanation. If he says he did, he can tell why. So you can imagine a hundred reasons why he may say "Yes." He may say, "I was drowning at the time."

Mrs. King: Correct.

Presiding Inspector: He may say, "It is possible," or something of that kind, "but I was all gowd up"—if that is the correct term, but I am not sure about the slang.

Mr. Grossman: "Gowd up"—that is correct.

Presiding Inspector: He may say, "Yes, I said that and it is true," and he may say, "Yes, I said that but they were threatening me and I wanted to get on my ship and go away."

Mrs. King: I am saying there is no reason to strike this at this time from the record.

Presiding Inspector: I am not going to strike it. I am going to let it stand until we hear from him. But I am not going to let you examine him on the basis of it being here in evidence.

Mrs. King: No. We will proceed from the original statement.

Presiding Inspector: In examining him you can only proceed from the original statement, and not from it as having been sworn to in this case, because it has not as yet been admitted [3055] for that purpose.

Mrs. King: We understand that and we will follow your Honor's suggestion in that connection.

Presiding Inspector: I will hold this motion until after we have heard Mr. Cannalonga.

Mr. Goodwin: Your Honor, do I——

Presiding Inspector: There will be no hardship on you. Assuming that Mr. Cannalonga will come here and, we will say, he denies making this statement in Mr. Lord's office, that he will deny it, then they would have to call, if it is admissible at all, and they would undoubtedly try to put it in, they would call Mr. Shoemaker back again to testify to what he already said on the stand. Then——

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) My point is that it has no place in the record.

Presiding Inspector: Whether it is going in the record or not, I am not going to determine at this time. We are going to proceed in a rather informal way. We have got into a strange situation. We had a man coming down here from out of the State who is an official of the courts of Oregon. I thought it was undesirable to make him come down again, and for the purpose of simply avoiding his coming down again, I allowed the statement to be taken preliminarily. I am not saying that I won't strike it, and I am not saying that I will strike it. We will let the matter rest just as it is, [3056] in fairness to both sides, prohibiting counsel from referring to it as evidence in this case, until after we have heard Mr. Cannalonga.

Mr. Goodwin: Mr. Cannalonga should come in here without the testimony——

Presiding Inspector: He does, to all intents and purposes, and that is the way I treat it.

Mr. Goodwin: Your Honor will explain that to him? No one else can.

Presiding Inspector: Yes; I will explain it.

Mr. Goodwin: That there is no evidence in this case, in this record, as to what he stated at that time?

Presiding Inspector: Yes; I will explain it.

Mr. Goodwin: Explain to him that there is nothing in evidence here, in regard to it.

Presiding Inspector: I will explain that to him to the dissatisfaction of both sides.

Mr. Goodwin: I think it is a matter of compromise. You might explain it to him to the dissatisfaction of the other side.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please——.

Presiding Inspector: It is going to be perfectly fair on the record—whatever Mr. Cannalonga says. If Mr. Cannalonga is not worthy of belief why you wouldn't want it to be proved. If he is worthy of belief you would want his testimony [3057] to be accepted.

Mr. Del Guercio: Absolutely.

Presiding Inspector: It isn't—even though everything that was testified to by Mr. Shoemaker, I mean tentatively testified, were true, even that wouldn't establish conclusively that he is not worthy of belief. That still remains a question for the trier of the facts.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is correct.

Presiding Inspector: I am speaking out loud so Judge Goodwin can hear.

Mr. Del Guercio: I might add further that we are also conducting an investigation to determine whether there were any illegal circumstances surrounding the taking of this statement on Sunday, the administering of the oath, and so forth.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is one other matter. The Court said that Mr. Shoemaker, the court reporter who appeared here to testify, would not be compelled to return. That does not preclude us from calling him?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly not. There is no misunderstanding there—of course not.

Mrs. King: There is a matter that I want to bring up at this time. The other day when I referred to the opinion of Wyzanski I didn't have available a copy of that opinion.

I am now submitting to the reporter a copy of the opinion. [3058]

I think there has been no number left for it but I assume some physical adjustment can be made for that. It was offered for identification immediately after the report of Dean Landis.

Presiding Inspector: It may be marked for identification only.

Mrs. King: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: So that any reviewing tribunal may know what we were talking about.

(The document referred to was marked for identification as Alien's Exhibit No. 15.)

ALIEN'S EXHIBIT No. 15 FOR IDENTIFICATION

January 3, 1934

To the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization

Dear Sir:

You have asked my opinion whether the Secretary of Labor, acting under the authority of the Act of October 16, 1918, 40 Stat. 1012. as amended by the Act of June 5, 1920, 41 Stat. 1008, 8 U.S.C. Sec. 137, ought to deport Frank Borich, an alien, on the ground that he is a member of the National Miners Union.

In my opinion the Secretary of Labor ought not to deport the alien on the ground stated.

The voluminous file of the Department of Labor clearly shows, and the alien himself admits, that since 1928 he has been connected with the National Miners Union, first as organizer and later as National Secretary. The National Miners Union's original or 1928 constitution shows that it is primarily a militant left wing labor organization interested in a six-hour working day, minimum wages, social insurance, and national labor agreemtns achieved through strikes and an alliance of coal miners, railraod and transportation workers. The greater part of the constitution is devoted to provisions relating solely to the organization, administrative functioning and financing of the union.

However, in Article I of the original constitution, it is stated that the union shall "affiliate itself with the class-conscious labor movement of the world, and declare adherence to the program, principles and statutes of the Red International of Labor Unions." This Red International of Labor Unions, to which reference is made, is a "revolutionary world union of workers," operates in the United States through the Trade Union Unity League, i.e. the TUUL, and advocates "a united struggle against international capitalism" rather than the "nationalistic and patriotic stand of the reformist trade unions." There is in the record no evidence, other than this declaration, that the National Miners Union has ever been closely connected with the Red International, and Borich claims that this declaration was omitted from and repudiated by the present constitution of the National Miners Union, supposed to have been adopted on March 20, 1932.

Moreover, the actual history (as distinguished from the platform) of the National Miners Union does not reveal that the organization has ever indulged in any physical or verbal attack upon the American political structure, although it, like more conservative bodies, may have severely criticized individual governmental officials and, like other labor unions, may have violated particular governmental orders. Throughout its life the union has been an industrial force rather than a political one.

Its conflicts with the United Mine Workers of America and with operators of coal mines have been its chief preoccupation. It may have had individual Communists for leaders. It may have accepted the thesis of the class struggle. It may through cooperation with the Trade Union Unity League have tried to promote labor organization on a vertical and industrial basis (an end which can hardly be criticized by officials of this Administration and supporters of General Johnson). But there is no evidence that as an organization the National Miners Union has ever executed or advocated policies aimed at the overthrow of the government of the United States.

Under these circumstances I am of opinion that the National Miners Union is not itself an "organization * * * that * * * teaches the overthrow by force or violence of the government of the United States," and is not so closely related to any revolutionary organization advocating such a doctrine that mere membership in the Union should be treated as affiliation with the revolutionary organization.

I do not mean to say that the case is so clear that a reasonable man could not reach a different result from mine. The evidence about the nature of the Union is conflicting and susceptible of different interpretations. If a Secretary of Labor decided that this National Miners Union and like vertical unions, by emphasizing class struggle and similar doctrines, showed that they were inherent parts of a Communist scheme to overthrow the government of the United States by force or violence, and if a Secretary of Labor issued warrants ordering the deportion of the members of all such unions, the courts would not release the aliens on writs of habeas corpus. United States ex rel. Borich v Marshall, unreported (C.C.A. 3, October 19, 1933); Kjar v Bzak, 61 F. (2d) 566 (C.C.A. 7, 1932); Wolck v Weedin, 58 F. (2d) 928 (C.C.A. 9, 1932); Berkman v. Tillinghast, 58 F. (2d) 621 (C.C.A. 1, 1933).

But the function of the courts under our deportation system should not be forgotten. The courts do not and cannot hear appeals from the Secretary of Labor. A judge can set aside a deportation order only when the Secretary has committed an "error so flagrant as to convince a court of the essential unfairness of the trial." United States ex rel. Vajtauer v Commissioner of Immigration, 273 U.S. 103, 166 (1927); of. Lloyd Sabaudo Societa v Elting, 287 U.S. 329, 335-336, 338 (1932). In other words there never can be a court decision (though there may be dicta), holding that the Department of Labor was incontrovertably right in ordering a deportation. A judge in quashing a writ of habeas corpus merely decides that the Secretary had some evidence justifying deportation; he may feel that the Secretary would have been at least equally justified in making a decision not to deport, but in his official capacity the judge has no right to say so.

There is an important reason for emphasizing at this point the limited role of the courts. One Secretary of Labor may have a strong dread of political revolution accomplished through industrial organizations. Or one decade may find the American people alarmed at the supposed menace. These fears may lead to the issuance of warrants for the deportation of members of such industrial organizations. And since there will be some evidence to sustain the Secretary of Labor, our courts cannot set aside the warrants. But succeeding Secretaries of Labor and later decades may view the danger as less real and may interpret the facts differently or weight the evidence with altered results. It is of cardinal importance that in such close cases the Secretary of Labor should recognize that he is free to decide either way; no court decision even on the very case that he is considering can properly be cited to restrain his choice; if he selects deportation he should realize that is because it is his administrative pleasure to perpetrate the policies of his predecessor and not because it is his duty under court decisions.

The instant case seems to me to be one in which the Secretary of Labor, while he would be, and indeed has been, sustained by the courts in ordering deportation ought not to have gone so far. The National Miners Union is one of a group of left wing labor organizations. Membership in each such union is avowedly solicited only from those working in a particular industry. Activities are directed almost exclusively in economic channels. Antagonism, if any, is promoted, is toward the older and more conservative unions, not toward democratic government. For the United States to deport a man merely for membership in such a union is to deport a man for seeking to overthrow conservative union domination, not for seeking to overthrow the government of the United States.

At this particular time, when the government is giving to workers "the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing" regardless of the radical character of the representatives (National Industrial Recovery Act, 7(a); 48 Stat. 195, 198), when it is encouraging left wing labor leaders to present their radical views before deputy administrators charged with the formulation of codes of fair competition, it is only consistent for the Department of Labor to leave unmolested members of a left wing labor union unless the union is a mere subterfuge for political sedition or unless the individual member himself teaches the overthrow of the government of the United States by force or violence.

Upon the record as it now stands, neither the Board of Review nor I feel justified in finding that Borich himself advocates such overthrow, or that he belongs to any purely political movement that has that goal. (The evidence on this point shows nothing more than that some articles bearing a name resembling Borich's were reprinted in radical papers like the Daily Worker.) In the absence of such a finding and with merely membership in the National Miners Union proved, I do not believe Borich should be deported. To such an extreme we ought to proceed reluctantly and only after clear and convincing proof that the political institutions of our country are actually menaced.

I may further add that in my opinion the principle that I have stated seems to me to apply to membership not only in the National Miners Union but in all left wing labor unions that are not mere shields for political revolution such as the Marine Workers Industrial Union, Metal Workers Industrial League, Tampa Tobacco Workers Industrial Union, the National Textile Workers, International Labor Defense, and the Trade Union Unity League.

/a/ Charles E. Wyzanski, Jr.
CHARLES E. WYZANSKI, JR.
Solicitor

In view of the opinion of the Solicitor of Labor, and in view of definite assurances that the Trade Union Unity Leage has severed any affiliation it may have had with the International Labor Union, I hereby direct that hereafter no warrant for the deportation of any alien shall be issued or executed if the sole ground for the warrant is his membership in any of the following organizations: National Miners Union, Marine Workers Industrial Union, Metal Workers Industrial League, Tampa Tobacco Workers Industrial Union, the National Textile Workers, International Labor Defense, and the Trade Union Unity League. This order shall not be construed to prevent the issuance or execution of warrants for the deportation of aliens who themselves advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the government of the United States or who are members of political organizations that advocate a similar goal.

TURNER W. BATTLE
Assistant to the Secretary of Labor

Mr. Grossman: It was suggested by you that we might utilize such time as we have this afternoon—might be considered such a time—to read into the record those portions of the testimony of Mr. Bridges as we might feel, and you would agree, were relevent, considering the portions that were read in by the Government.

Though we are not prepared to read in any particular portions of the transcript, we have a general argument to make which we think, if we are correct, covers the question very thoroughly.

We have made a more or less superficial analysis of the testimony of Mr. Bridges in the last hearing for the purpose of determining what our position will be on the admissibility of other portions. We cannot see how, in fairness to Mr. Bridges, or as a legal matter, it is possible to admit those portions [3059] that were read by the Government without also admitting in evidence in this proceeding the entire testimony of Mr. Bridges.

There is no sense in my calling your Honor's attention to the general principle that applies to documents and things, that you must read the whole thing as it was intended to be given as a whole.

I think your Honor can also well recognize that you cannot detach portions of a man's thinking and of a man's ideas, and of a man's judgments, and of a man's actions from other portions.

Quite obviously it is impossible to understand, or to correctly judge the position of Mr. Bridges on the Marine Workers Industrial Union without considering and judging his position on unions generally.

It is impossible, as your Honor will note if he looks specifically at the problem of the Marine Workers Industrial Union, it is impossible to judge Mr. Bridges' so-called admissions on that question without also considering his attitude and his conduct, as indicated in his testimony, towards the strike situation around which the evidence developed, that is, the 1934 strike, because his testimony will show that this was integrally tied up with the strike situation and the organization of labor around the period of the 1934 strike.

Likewise, the statements of Mr. Bridges with respect to the IWW, the statements of Mr. Bridges with respect to any [3060] political organization that may have been referred to in the admissions, or with respect to any trade unions that may be referred to in the admissions, can't be properly or fully or adequately, or fairly judged, except with relation to Mr. Bridges' whole idea on all these general questions. Now, true, we could go through line by line and paragraph by paragraph the testimony of Mr. Bridges in the last hearing. If we did that there is no doubt in my mind that we could find perhaps one-tenth of the pages, perhaps some sentences here and there, which, even under our theory, would not be needed in evidence to correctly portray his views. I will admit that. But I say that portion is so small, and the labor involved would be so great, the time that would be involved in arguing here as to each sentence, or each paragraph, would be so great, considering the end to be gained, that we shouldn't become involved in that.

All I can say is that we considered the major part of his testimony on his beliefs with respect to these general questions of trade unions, and political parties, and political views, and his personal views, would have to be admitted and, as a matter of law, would have to be admitted along with the alleged admissions that have been admitted.

I am not saying that we would desire to, would actually have to, although I think we have the legal right, to read it all in evidence. We might wish to read portions. Frankly, [3061] those portions won't take long to read. But I think we are now discussing only the right to introduce it in evidence, not the right to read it. I think we should decide at this time, therefore, whether we may be permitted to introduce into this hearing the entire testimony of Mr. Bridges at the last hearing and on the grounds, as I stated, to recapitulate: That as a legal matter it is impossible to introduce part of the questions and answers of Mr. Bridges without the balance; and as a practical matter, and a logical matter, we can establish, obviously, connections between the general views of Mr. Bridges and the views on trade unions generally, and the alleged admissions, or portions that constitute alleged admissions, according to the Government's theory.

Presiding Inspector: How long is the testimony of Mr. Bridges?

Mrs. King: Three days of testimony was taken. It is almost 600 pages—between 500 and 600 pages.

Presiding Inspector: How many pages did the Government introduce?

Mr. Del Guercio: We didn't introduce it by pages.

Presiding Inspector: I know; you read it, but how much would it cover?

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the reporter could give an estimate of that better than I could. About 15 pages at the most. [3062]

The Reporter: I would estimate between 50 and 60 pages.

Presiding Inspector: The reporter says between 50 and 60 pages as an estimate.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is another matter——

Presiding Inspector: This is very difficult for me to rule on. I am asked to rule on something without ever having read it.

Mr. Grossman: I agree, and I think your decision would be more accurate and fair if you read it first. We are perfectly willing to withdraw any request for a decision at this time until you have read it, because I think your reading of it will indicate to you the necessity of introducing at least large portions of the testimony in order to adequately and legally complete the evidence. We are willing —we don't have a copy here—to produce those volumes that deal with Mr. Bridges' testimony.

Presiding Inspector: I haven't a copy.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will make one available to you.

If that is the ground upon which the defense are seeking to introduce it—and we do not concede it is proper—it is answered in that they said they were going to call Mr. Bridges to the stand. He will have an opportunity at that time to explain anything, and every statement that he made in the prior hearing.

Presiding Inspector: But they will have a legal right to [3063] introduce all explanatory matter

Mr. Del Guercio: We don't deny that.

Presiding Inspector: Or anything connected with the subjects covered by the matter which you introduced.

Mr. Del Guercio: We don't deny that.

Presiding Inspector: Their argument is that it is all an integral part, a single thing.

Mr. Del Guercio: We don't concede that. We had no difficulty in picking out that portion of it and I think we were fair in doing it. Of course, we may have missed some, we admit that, but we tried to be as fair as possible and got all of his testimony on the particular subjects that were chosen.

Now, it isn't integrated. They are distinctly separate. The IWW is distinct from any other organization.

Presiding Inspector: All there is about the IWW would be competent, probably.

Mr. Del Guercio: Correct. The Marine Workers Industrial Union, all of his testimony in connection with that has been cited. If we missed any we will stipulate that it may be entered in the record. That is a distinct subject. It isn't integrated with anything else that Mr. Bridges might have testified to. It isn't inegrated with his testimony on trade unionism.

Evidence has been submitted as to what the Marine Workers Industrial Union is, and the purpose why it was introduced has been [3064] indicated.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is all very true. I am troubled with the practical way to proceed here. [3065]

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, as a practical matter then, inasmuch as they have indicated that Mr. Bridges is going to be called to the stand, he could then explain and make any explanation that he desires to make.

Presiding Inspector: I realize that, but I still think they have a right to introduce any other testimony given by Mr. Bridges in the former hearing which bears upon the same subject matter which you introduced.

Mr. Del Guercio: We don't deny that. We will give them that opportunity. But that isn't what they want. They want to introduce his entire testimony on other subjects.

Presiding Inspector: It deals with it because it has been said that it has been integrated as a whole.

Mr. Del Guercio: You will have to read the whole testimony, then. But I don't believe they make that seriously, if your Honor please.

Mr. Goodwin: We have offered this testimony as admissions by the other side.

Presiding Inspector: I know.

Mr. Goodwin: We tried to put in everything of a qualifying nature that he testified to. If there is anything more they should offer it specifically and not the hundreds, I don't know whether it is thousands, of pages that he devoted to other matters, because on those other matters we have a [3066] right to cross examine and it is not competent evidence on his part.

Presiding Inspector: There is no dispute between you.

Mr. Goodwin: Only so far as the specific things that he will offer, pointing out their connection, do have the connection with what we have already put in the record.

Presiding Inspector: But the assertion, Judge Goodwin, is—and, of course, I have never heard or seen this matter—that it all has to do with it. Now, it is a mere assertion.

Mr. Goodwin: It all has to do with it?

Presiding Inspector: That is what they assert.

Mr. Goodwin: All right.

Presiding Inspector: They say there is a negligible amount, which they estimate at not over one-tenth of the whole testimony,—60 pages at the most of 600—which perhaps could be separated and which they wouldn't care about. But they say that would be labor which would not be productive of any good.

Mr. Goodwin: We have a right to cross examine Mr. Bridges in regard to anything——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Oh, certainly, when he is put on the stand.

Mr. Goodwin: Yes. And we have a right to cross examine him about the things that are in this statement.

Presiding Inspector: They covered it in the original [3067] examination, undoubtedly, and perhaps you would be allowed to go farther.

Mr. Goodwin: I don't know how it is competent.

Presiding Inspector: Well, it isn't competent and they don't claim that it is competent save for one reason, and they say it is an integrated whole.

Mr. Goodwin: Yes. I think it encumbers the record, makes greater difficulties, does not in any way implement the progress of this case and it permits them to put in a lot of testimony that has no relevance to the questions of the mere 50 pages that we put in the testimony. I think that Mr. Del Guercio has already indicated that.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will have to read it.

Mr. Grossman: Yes, sir. We will furnish you such volumes as include all the testimony of Mr. Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Del Guercio has a copy. He will furnish me with it.

Now, in your copy, Mr. Del Guercio, have you indicated in some way what you have introduced? Is it marked?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, I have. I have copies of it. I will make them available to you. We have typewritten the portions of the testimony with the page references on. We will make both the transcript of the prior hearing available to you on that matter. [3068]

Presiding Inspector: I suppose strictly it would be your duty to segregate the parts that you concede would not be admissible, but I would have to read it anyway.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I haven't conceded quite that much. It seems to me under all the cases I say it is not relevant. It is probably admissible even though it is not relevant, because it seems to me that all the cases say when you take one sentence out of a book you have to take the whole book. I think under the law probably all of it is admissible, if not relevant. But I don't think that task is worth while of going through and weeding out those portions that are relevant. We are perfectly willing to do it, if you want to waste your time, their time and our time, because we will have to argue it also, because there will be differences of opinion, quite obviously. If we assume that we are going to judge the relevancy of each sentence and each paragraph—

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) No, we are not going to do that.

Mr. Del Guercio: If that is his concern, then why not take the obvious way? Wait until Mr. Bridges gets on the stand and then question him on the matter.

Mr. Grossman: If that is true, why introduce it at all? Mr. Bridges might admit all these things that they admit were in the last hearing. Frankly, I don't know as a matter of [3069] law, before Mr. Bridges takes the stand, that they have a right to introduce these things which he might admit. We didn't object to that because we didn't think it would make any difference.

Mr. Del Guercio: Why bring it up?

Presiding Inspector: Undoubtedly you have a right to complete by introducing the testimony on the same general subject and, of course, the Examiner would be liberal in viewing the question of whether it was on the same subject or not. A Court always is. And here are 600 pages taking up three days of testimony offered in evidence in a single sentence, practically. If I wanted to be technical I could exclude it on your own statement that there are parts that are irrelevant, but I don't want to be——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) No, not legally irrelevant.

Presiding Inspector: But I don't want to take any such view.

Mr. Grossman: Does that complete that question?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know. I don't know.

Mr. Grossman: I mean for the present.

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't seem to determine exactly what we had better do.

Mr. Grossman: I think we have agreed that you shall have the time to read the——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't want to post- [3070] pone the trial. Three days' testimony will probably take me quite a time to read.

Mr. Grossman: I don't see any special hurry on this. I only raise it at this time because we have this time to spare now. But it can be decided, I suppose, at any time before the end of this case or before Mr. Bridges testifies.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I think it ought to be decided before Mr. Bridges testifies.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: So we know how we stand on it. If we are finished, your Honor,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will do this task, with the assistance of my secretary, and we will get through it as soon as we reasonably can.

Mr. Grossman: Now, we have to state, as we did this morning, that by reason of the two rulings which deprived us of some witnesses which we had arranged for today, and though we did try we were unable as we thought we would be during the noon hour to line up any witnesses.

Presiding Inspector: Well, you have only got an hour and a quarter more. We have had a good deal of interruption today, unavoidably. I think we will recess until tomorrow morning.

Mr. Del Guercio: Before you recess, if the Court please, I would like to get along as fast as I can. The Government is [3071] anxious to, you are anxious to and I suppose they should be anxious too.

Presiding Inspector: I think we are all anxious to get along.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think they ought to be told and admonished to get their witnesses together so we don't have any continuances.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whether you were here. I have an impression that you stepped out at the particular moment I said something along that line to Mr. Gladstein. No, it was at the close when we adjourned over the three days.

Mr. Del Guercio: You admonished Mr. Gladstein to make every——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You can call it "admonished" if you want to.

Mr. Del Guercio: I just used that word.

Presiding Inspector: I told them that I thought every effort should be made to continue this case and to use all the time that we have from ten o'clock in the morning to four o'clock, or slightly after, in the afternoon in the introduction of testimony. And I repeat that, Mr. Grossman. Proceed with that in view. We all do want to progress this case and I think you want to progress it with the rest of us.

[3072]

Mr. Grossman: May I make a suggestion?

Presiding Inspector: I want to give you the full opportunity to do what you deem is necessary evidence to protect your client's rights.

Mr. Grossman: May I make a suggestion which may prevent this occurring again? The question of whether or not we would be permitted to put on Mr. Craycraft and the reporter was a legal question and which it must be recognized there is certainly a difference of authority as to whether such a rule as has been invoked would be or would not. Obviously the only way we could get a ruling on that is to produce the evidence and be prepared for the cross examination, which we expected would be allowed, or the direct and the cross.

On the character witnesses, frankly, though we wish to continue discussing the legal questions with your Honor and prepare a memo, there are obviously unsettled questions on that. And the fact that Dean Landis permitted it in the last hearing is one indication that the question is to some extent unsettled.

Now, obviously we had to prepare our character witnesses far in advance and we obviously had to line up several. We think of at least one major legal question which may result in our not being permitted to question witnesses that we will have lined up and produce which, if we had the answer in advance, [3073] we might avoid.

I am not raising this specific legal question, but I am wondering whether it is possible for us to have a discussion and get something of the nature of an advisory opinion as to a particular type of evidence. It is another question that is on the border line, at least for proceedings like this, and we have to know in advance because it takes time to line up witnesses. And if we aren't allowed to produce them we may also have to ask for an adjournment because our witnesses who are prepared are not permitted to testify.

Now, would you be willing to have such a discussion in advance if we can formulate the legal question as accurately as putting on a witness would (and we can do that) in advance of our presenting such witnesses? I recognize——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't know what the question is.

Mr. Del Guercio: This is really unusual.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, it is unusual.

Mr. Grossman: I am only saying it because it takes time. We don't like to produce witnesses who have important things to do, who must neglect their work or lose some money at great expense sometimes. We don't like to have them lined up and produce them here and to find that the type of testimony which we consider relevant and valuable to this hearing is not per- [3074] mitted, and then not only have the expense and the time wasted but also not have any other witnesses to go ahead.

That is why I suggest this.

Presiding Inspector: I don't want to ask what the subject was, you understand, but was it a subject which was canvassed at the time that Dean Landis had the prior hearing?

Mr. Grossman: No.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know how to answer your question, frankly.

Mr. Grossman: Would you have any objection to discussing it? The question may be such that if you feel we can't get anywhere in advance of the production of witnesses——

Presiding Inspector: Could I make a suggestion?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Could you produce one witness and ask the questions?

Mr. Grossman: We can do that.

Presiding Inspector: Wouldn't that be the best way? Then we would have a ruling on the type of questions.

Mr. Del Guercio: That would be the legal and proper way. Of course, there is this question here, you see,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) We are talking about something which you and I don't know anything about.

Mr. Grossman: We will try it that way. That would delay the test, but I suppose we can do it properly in that way. [3075]

Presiding Inspector: I think perhaps that would be the most satisfactory way.

Then we will recess until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 2:50 P. M. an adjournment was taken until Thursday, May 8, 1941, at 10:00 A. M.) [3076]

Court Room 276,
Federal Building
San Francisco, California,
May 8, 1941.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10:00 A. M. [3077]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Grossman, referring to your offer of all the balance of Mr. Bridges testimony, of course, I have not yet seen the record, but in going over Dean Landis' opinion it appears that there was testimony in relation to two or three meetings, at least, which have not come within this case at all. It seems to me that they can clearly be segregated.

Mr. Grossman: We agree to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will have to ask you to make a little more definite offer separating such matters as that, at least.

Mr. Grossman: We will separate all references to particular testimony——

Presiding Inspector: Particular instances.

Mr. Grossman: ——instances of meetings.

Presiding Inspector: Yes; that have not been brought into this case.

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Then I won't look at the testimony until you have done that. Then I will consider the offer as presented in that way.

Call your next witness.

Mr. Grossman: One moment, your Honor.

Mr. Gladstein: If your Honor please, on the question of [3078] Mr. Cannalonga, and the question of the testimony of Mr. Crayeraft, which we had intended to produce yesterday morning, we are now informed by Mr. Wixom's office that an effort was made by the Portland office of the Immigration Department to serve a subpoena on Mr. Cannalonga at 10:30 A. M. yesterday. That is the information that we have received.

I am also informed by Mrs. King that Mr. Wixom stated that he had phoned to Portland authorizing and directing the immediate service of such a subpoena by or prior to 9:00 A. M. yesterday—well, early in the morning.

Presiding Inspector: It couldn't have been then.

Mr. Gladstein: Rather, prior to 10:00 A. M.

Mrs. King: At the time I was in the office the call came in from Mr. Wixon. That was prior to the opening of court yesterday.

Presiding Inspector: That is pretty prompt.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, we consider, of course, the testimony on this subject as very, very important. We have a problem which we cannot solve without some determination by the Court. As I said earlier, we have Mr. Crayeraft in San Francisco ready to testify. I don't know just exactly what can be done.

I may say this in addition:——

Presiding Inspector: I think Mr. Cannalonga will be found. [3079]

Mr. Gladstein: We have been informed, your Honor, that from the time——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Of course, I have no knowledge of that.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. We have been informed from Portland by members of the longshore gang that were working near the dock where Mr. Cannalonga was working on the ship that from the time that his name came up the day before yesterday, by virtue of the testimony of Mr. Shoemaker, very shortly after that two men who are believed by the longshoremen to have been agents of the FBI took their station at that dock and remained constantly keeping that ship under surveillance.

Now, that is our information.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, in view of that statement of counsel I have this statement to make.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't yet finished, your Honor.

Mr. Del Guercio: That we have——

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't yet finished, your Honor.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I proceed?

Presiding Inspector: Let him finish. Then I will let you make your statement. This is only in relation to getting this witness, that is all.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. We have some statement to make in that connection. [3080]

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: We are very anxious to have his testimony, and if his testimony is not obtainable then of course, we desire to put on the testimony of Mr. Craycraft and to finish the testimony that Mr. Shoemaker would have given. But of course, that already is, technically at least, admitted into the record.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: And your Honor can make a ruling fully admitting it, I suppose. I don't know exactly what that is.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think he has quite finished, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, in addition to the information that I have already indicated that we have, we have been advised by telephone from Portland that

Mr. Cannalonga was on the ship between 10:30 and 11:00 o'clock yesterday morning and that he talked with various people; that he was working in his room—or was in his room and that he was working on that ship. At least one longshoreman talked with him at 10:30 A. M.

We are also informed—this is being further checked—that a member of the crew talked with Mr. Cannalonga at 11:00 o'clock in the morning and that he was on the ship, and that Cannalonga's disappearance occurred after 11:00 o'clock in the morning and before 12:30 noon; sometime during that hour and [3081] a half. We are attempting further to check as to whether any of the longshoremen or other workers around there saw Mr. Cannalonga or talked with him after 11:00 o'clock yesterday morning.

We are also informed that the FBI agents, or the people whom the longshoremen and other workers there took to be FBI agents and who had began to keep the ship under surveillance right after, shortly after Mr. Shoemaker took the stand, also left and have not been seen since this period sometime between 11:00 A. M. and 12:30 noon.

Presiding Inspector: What time was it yesterday that we received word that he had left?

Mr. Gladstein: What is that, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: What time yesterday was it that we received word that he was reported to have left the ship at 8:00 o'clock.

Mr. Gladstein: Sometime in the afternoon, as I understand it; and the first report, as I understand it,—I wasn't here in court at the time, your Honor, —was——.

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I can't remember what time it was.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, it must have been around 2:00 or 3:00 o'clock, I think. And the first report, as I understand it, that came to your Honor was that Mr. Cannalonga had disappeared between 8:00 and 9:00 in the morning. [3082]

Presiding Inspector: 8:00 o'clock, yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Well now, as I say, our information is that Cannalonga was working on that ship at 10:30 and at 11:00 and perhaps after that. We are trying to check further with the men who worked with him.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, he may have been working there and yet it may have been reported that he had left. These fellow workmen of his, of course, I can imagine, numerous things. They may have concealed him on the ship. We don't know anything about that. It is all supposition. It doesn't make any difference anyway. I know the Department is making every effort—I "believe" it. I don't "know" it—to find Mr. Cannalonga.

Now, I will hear Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I proceed, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, this is a very funny effort on the part of counsel to besmirch the FBI.

Presiding Inspector: I don't so take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: What I am about to say now is not supposition but facts. Counsel knows that Craycraft and Lowry and Cannalonga were drinking liquor with Cannalonga on that boat Monday night. Counsel knows that Cannalonga and Lowry, Jack Lowry, a member of the Communist Party, a known [3083] member of the Communist Party—was with Cannalonga on Tuesday night on that boat drinking liquor. Counsel says that the FBI men were watching that boat. He knows that is not true. Those officers that were watching the boat were Immigration men and for the purpose of serving the subpoena.

Mr. Gladstein: I didn't hear it.

Presiding Inspector: They were Immigration Officers.

Mr. Gladstein: Oh, Immigration Officers.

Mr. Del Guercio: For the purpose of serving a subpoena on Cannalonga that I had issued, and they were unable to locate him.

Now, it is apparent from the facts—and we are prepared to support every statement that I have made here to this Court in this connection—it is not supposition. It is apparent that it is counsel here that is deceiving this Court, concealing facts, distorting facts in a desperate effort——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) That is a reprehensible and scurrilous lie! And I want the record to show that.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor,——

Presiding Inspector: We will strike this statement out.

Mr. Del Guercio: If counsel makes another statement like that——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) We will have order in the court room!

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, let—— [3084]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Now, Mr. Gladstein, you know that you ought not to say things like that.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, did you hear the charge that he made?

Presiding Inspector: He said you are trying to besmirch the FBI.

Mr. Gladstein: He said I was trying to distort the facts and deceive the Court. And I denied it, and I denied it in the language that occurred to me and I think it was appropriate.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is appropriate language. It doesn't help your case.

Mr. Gladstein: It isn't a question of helping our case.

Presiding Inspector: I am not interested in anything else here save only whether there will be evidence here—believable evidence—a greater weight of evidence that Mr. Bridges is subject to the charge which is made by the Government. That is all I am interested in here. These passes between counsel leave me very cold.

Now, of course, I can understand your resentment, but I think you ought to restrain yourself.

And I don't think you (addressing Mr. Del Guercio) ought to characterize either until evidence is produced the intentions or conduct of your adversaries.

Now, let us go on with the case. [3085]

Mr. Grossman: There is something else—in so far as those remarks of counsel have not been stricken from the record—since, very frankly, there has been in the reporting of what happened yesterday, at least in some newspapers, the clear statement, not only implications, that the defense had done away with Mr. Cannalonga, or had prevented him from appearing, this statement must be made and that is——

Presiding Inspector: I am not interested in newspapers. I haven't read the article.

Mr. Grossman: Mr. Del Guercio's statement has not been stricken, and his statement was that there was something connected with Mr. Cannalonga's disappearance in the fact that Mr. Mowry and Mr. Crayeraft talked to Mr. Cannalonga.

Presiding Inspector: That isn't evidence in this case.

Mr. Grossman: Mr. Crayeraft and Mr. Mowry did talk to Mr. Cannalonga, and at the last time they talked to Mr. Cannalonga he was not going to dodge any subpoena. He was prepared to accept it. That is the reason that we made these statements we made.

Now, we are not denying the fact that we talked to him; we are not denying the fact that so far as we know he was willing to accept a subpoena at the last time he was talked to which was even later, as our information goes, than the time that the Immigration Service states he was not present on that ship. [3086]

Now, the reason I am making this statement is because Mr. Del Guercio's statement was not stricken from the record.

Presiding Inspector: We will let your statement stay or go with his; but we are interested in continuing this hearing.

Mr. Grossman: We would like to say this: We certainly have an interest, and a very serious interest, at this time in not only having the facts clear about Mr. Cannalonga, but having Mr. Cannalonga brought down here.

Frankly, although we are casting no aspersions, there are certain questions that concern us very much. Those questions are how it happened that Mr. Cannalonga was not present on that ship at the time the subpoena was served, and as to whether or not any efforts can be made by this Court, by the Immigration Service, to find Mr. Cannalonga. That is the reason I raise the question as to the last time he was seen on that ship.

Now——

Presiding Inspector: I don't see that it is material here at all.

Mr. Grossman: I am concerned, your Honor, with what efforts——

Presiding Inspector: I, as a subordinate officer of this service temporarily, have no means of controlling the issuance of this subpoena. I have made a request. Everything is left to the District Director. [3087]

Mr. Grossman: There are——

Presiding Inspector: As far as I am concerned, I am powerless.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor——

Presiding Inspector: You understand that, of course.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, we have attempted to offer the testimony of Mr. Craycraft or, rather, Mr. Shoemaker, and your Honor has ruled that first Mr. Cannalonga must be obtained. It is on the theory, I assume, that so long as a subpoena can be issued he is theoretically available. If that be true then we definitely have an interest in whether an effort——

Presiding Inspector: You are going to have an opportunity to prove all these things. What is the use——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) May I finish my statement, please?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly you may.

Mr. Grossman: My statement is this: We have a direct interest in seeing that efforts, reasonable efforts, more than reasonable efforts, are at this time made to secure the attendance of Mr. Cannalonga. And one thing we ask your Honor to do is to see to it that those——

Mr. Goodwin: May I——

Presiding Inspector: Let him continue.

Mr. Grossman: (Continuing) ——is to see to it that efforts are continued to find Mr. Cannalonga. [3088]

We do know this: We know that Mr. Wixom asked the Portland Office to attempt to serve a subpoena on Mr. Cannalonga.

We know, from the report we got this morning, that they attempted to make this service at 10:30.

We do not know, and that is what we ask your Honor to see to it that it is done, we do not know that the Immigration and Naturalization Service is making any effort whatsoever to continue the search for Mr. Cannalonga. I think we have a right to expect that. We naturally cannot serve that subpoena. As has been made clear in conferences, we must expect the Immigration and Naturalization Service to do that. We would like your Honor to see to it, at least as far as you can which, I suppose, is by communicating with Mr. Wixom, that the Immigration and Naturalization Service use every effort to continue to try to serve that subpoena on Mr. Cannalonga. We have no right to assume it is being done because we don't know what their normal practice is when they have tried and failed.

The fact that the FBI may or may not be looking for Mr. Cannalonga, according to their statement, doesn't answer the question because, as I understand it, the Immigration and Naturalization Service is supposed to subpoena him.

The second thing—I know we have no right to expect it, but I think your Honor should be interested in it—we would like to have an answer as to whether the FBI at this time knows [3089] the whereabouts of Mr. Cannalonga, or whether they have had him in custody since yesterday morning at any time.

Presiding Inspector: I asked Mr. Wixom's assistant, or associate—I have forgotten his name—of that fact, and he said the report was from the FBI that they had not, and, as I understood it, they hadn't been able to furnish any information which would help Mr. Wixom. That is as I understood it.

I will talk with him again if you wish.

Mr. Grossman: Don't you think, your Honor ——

Presiding Inspector: I think they should make every effort to locate him and I have no doubt but what they are.

Mr. Grossman: I think we are entitled to two things: One, as I stated, in substance to Mr. Wixom, through his office, to continue to search for Mr. Cannalonga and——

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I think that was implied, if not stated, in the conversation that I had with his associate.

Mr. Grossman: Second, don't you think—the answer may be "No"—we are entitled to know whether, at any time since yesterday morning, the FBI has had Mr. Cannalonga in custody?

We haven't had this question answered. I think we are entitled to an answer. It will clear up a lot of confusion if we have that answer.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't ask that directly of Mr. Wixom.

Mr. Grossman: Mr. Wixon is not the FBI; that is why I raise the question. [3090]

Mr. Del Guercio: I resent that implication, because I understand why counsel would have so little faith in the sworn officers of his Government—I assume it is his Government. There is a presumption of official regularity. There has been everywhere, except here in this proceeding, and by these officers here. We resent the implication and we repeat that it is——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) If your Honor please, is that the answer to the question, Mr. Del Guercio, as to whether you are——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Address the Court.

Mr. Gladstein: I am speaking through the Court. We are asking the question. We are all interested in having Mr. Cannalonga take that stand and tell the whole truth. We are asking a question but we are not making any implications of any kind; Does the FBI now know whether it has had in its custody at any time since yesterday morning, or whether it knows the present whereabouts of Mr. Cannalonga?

Can't a clear answer to that be given, "Yes" or "No"?

If the answer is "Yes," that they have had him in custody, or do know his whereabouts, then why all the business of the Immigration Service here and the FBI there?

We are looking for Mr. Cannalonga. Can't we have an answer to the question as to whether or not the FBI has him in custody or knows where he is? [3091]

Presiding Inspector: I assume that Mr. Wixom has issued orders to subpoena him. He says so. You have talked with him as well as I. His associate told me, as I recall it, that he didn't get any information from the FBI office in Portland, I suppose it was, which was of any assistance to him in locating Mr. Cannalonga.

I didn't have a conversation with Mr. Wixom himself. I will have a conversation with him.

Mr. Goodwin: Your Honor, I want to say just one word and have it interjected here.

The sincerity of counsel for the Alien as to having Mr. Cannalonga produced here to testify, sincerity of this desire is not borne out by their conduct. They were in contact with him at least as early as Saturday. They made no disclosure of the fact that they were in contact with him, or had interviewed him, or knew where he was until Tuesday morning. Had they desired to have him produced here to give testimony before you they would have at least notified you before Tuesday morning.

That is all I want to say.

Mr. Gladstein: In view of the last remarks of Judge Goodwin I do not think the record should stand as it is without some reply, because there are implications.

The sincerity of our desire to have Mr. Cannalonga here has been raised, put in question, by Judge Goodwin's remarks.

When I talked to Mr. Cannalonga, and when he spoke to Mr. [3092] Crayeraft in my presence, I asked him to come down and testify and tell the whole truth. He told me then—I am saying this in response to the remark made by Judge Goodwin and I realize this is not evidence, but I am saying it as an officer of the Court in response to an accusation—he told me then he was in terror of the FBI. He was afraid of being railroaded——

Mr. Goodwin: (Interposing) He isn't half as much in the fear of the FBI as he is of your people, and you know that very well.

Mr. Gladstein: Are you addressing those remarks to me?

Mr. Goodwin: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I will answer it—that is untrue and you know it.

Presiding Inspector: Let's have order here. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Cannalonga had facing him a threat of twenty years imprisonment in the Federal penitentiary on a charge of violating the Mann Act. He told us, told Mr. Crayeraft, and I will state as an officer of the Court, if Mr. Crayeraft is permitted to testify, he will so testify, because it was in my presence that I heard these remarks, that he said that he told the FBI officers that he knew nothing about, or against Harry Bridges, and the way they obtained those statements from him was that they began to tell him about a certain girl that he had met in Reno about a year ago, and they told him all the facts concerning that; and he told us that they had him cold, [3093] and they threatened him with prosecution under the Mann Act unless he signed a prepared statement for them.

He made these statements and there is a witness who will so testify.

That is on the question of the sincerity of our efforts.

We asked him to come down and tell the truth.

Is it any wonder that a man facing that kind of a situation would demur at coming down and testifying? Is there any wonder at that?

Therefore, all we could do was attempt to obtain a statement before a Notary Public, and it went as far as it did, and then Cannalonga left the office where the deposition was being taken. And then when we attempted to produce our proof your Honor made a ruling and, in accordance with that ruling, it became necessary for us to ask for a subpoena.

[3094]

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that any part of this discussion is in order. Any part. We haven't yet failed to get Mr. Cannalonga. This hearing is still in session. These statements, these accusations, these charges one way and the other are entirely immaterial in this case, and I think it would be better if they weren't made.

Mr. Del Guercio: Out of respect for the Court I will not brand counsel's statements for what I really think they are.

Presiding Inspector: I wouldn't go any further.

Call your next witness. I will speak to Mr. Wixon.

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment, your Honor. He is down the hall.

Presiding Inspector: We will take a short recess and I will call Mr. Wixom.

Presiding Inspector: We have had a lot of talk here. Of course, what has been said by counsel on either side is not evidence and it is only interesting in respect to obtaining witnesses to advance this hearing. No conclusion pertinent to this proceeding can be drawn from a statement, accusations or words of any kind coming from counsel because they are not under oath and they say a great many things which are not pertinent to this hearing. This hearing is going to continue the taking of evidence, and the advice which the Presiding Examiner may give to the proper officials in Washington [3095] will be based upon the evidence.

I am sorry that passions rise, but we are all human beings. It is hard to conduct a case where persons are vitally interested without sometimes exceeding the bounds of what would be Court propriety. I say this to both sides.

Now, so far as the subpoena is concerned, at your request—I think it was your request, Mr. Gladstein and Mr. Grossman—I telephoned Mr. Wixom's office, Mr. Wixom being the District Director, and could not reach Mr. Wixom. I then talked with his assistant. He said that his information had been received from Norcross—is that his name?

Mr. Gladstein: Norene, I think it is.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——Norene, the head of the Immigration and Naturalization Department in Portland; that he had a telegram or a message—I think it was first a telegram and then a message, telephone, I suppose—that the FBI did not know of the whereabouts of Mr. Cannalonga.

I asked Mr. Walsh to communicate with Mr. Norene, to redouble his efforts to find Mr. Cannalonga and to communicate with the Seattle office; that Mr. Norene should communicate with the Seattle office. And he advised me that he would do so and that he would instruct or ask the other offices, that is, the office in Portland, to redouble their efforts to find and serve the subpoena upon Mr. Cannalonga. Now, that is what you asked me to do and I have done it as far as I under- [3096] stood, and if there is anything else you wish to request me to do——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) That is all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——within due limits, I will do that.

Mr. Grossman: Thank you.

Presiding Inspector: You were there when part of the conversation took place, and I don't know whether you were there, Mr. Del Guercio, when this conversation took place.

Mr. Del Guercio: Sir?

Presiding Inspector: You were there when I was talking to Mr. Walsh?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I have tried to tell what Mr. Walsh told me.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: Just as simply as I could. Now, you may go on. [3097]

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, there is one more request I would like to make—a request. Inasmuch as the record shows an accusation has been made to the effect that the FBI is hiding this man out we would like the record to show that we deny that.

Presiding Inspector: That is not evidence and it will be considered by the Inspector as coming from the mouth of counsel.

Mr. Del Guercio: We want the record to show that the FBI has said that they never have had custody of this man, and have never seen the man since.

Presiding Inspector: You may make that statement now.

Mr. Del Guercio: I make that statement now.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

That also is not proof, but it is in reply to a question which they asked you to answer. It is very proper for you to answer it. It isn't evidence any more than the accusation.

Mr. Del Guercio: Neither the FBI men, or any officer of the United States, as far as I know.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

Mr. Grossman: Are you ready to go ahead?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: Take the stand, Mr. Imper.

Presiding Inspector: Raise your right hand.

[3098]

A. Two and one-half years.

Q. At the time you left the Project what position did you hold with it?

A. I was Department Supervisor.

Q. Of which department?

A. Of the Manuscript, Imprints and Photographs.

Q. Do you know a man named Robert Wilmot?

A. Yes.

Q. About how long have you known him?

A. Since I first was employed on the Historical Records Survey—it would be a little over two and one-half years.

Q. Was he employed on that survey at the time you first became employed on it?

A. He was employed by the Writers' Project, which was combined, had the same supervisor and director; the same officers at the time.

Q. How did you happen to meet Mr. Wilmot?

A. The officers of the two projects being closely together, I naturally met him that way; and also through the Federal Cultural and Professional Workers Union, which he belonged to and which I joined.

Q. What time did you belong to this union when he also belonged?

A. Approximately a year; from October 1938 to approxi- [3100] mately the same month in 1939, when the union was stopped, ended.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Can you estimate about how often you saw him in connection with your joint membership in that union? A. Possibly once a week.

Q. Do you belong to any other organizations to which he belongs? A. No.

Q. Did either of you belong to, rather, did either of you hold any office in this Union?

A. I held the office of Job Steward, and Mr. Wilmot was on the Executive Board, and also a member of the Grievance Committee.

Q. How long have you lived in Portland?

A. Five years.

Q. Do you know many people who also know Robert Wilmot?

A. Yes; all those employed on the Historical Records Survey and the Writers' Project.

Q. Have you talked to many people about Robert Wilmot during the last two or three years?

A Yes; a great many.

Q. Have there been any special events, or circumstances, that were responsible for you and any of these people talking about Robert Wilmot? In other words, was there anything special that brought this topic of conversation up? [3101]

A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute. I object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't hear the question.

Mr. Grossman: Read the question, please.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Mr. Del Guercio: If it could be limited to a "Yes" or "No" answer.

Presiding Inspector. Yes. "Yes" or "No"—that is all it asks for.

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is all it calls for.

A. Yes. [3102]

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Now, will you state these various circumstances or special events that brought up in conversation between you and various people the name of Robert Wilmot?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment! I object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, that might be proper and might not, depending on what the answer is. You can't go into special circumstances and show any—I suppose this is——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) This is admissible only to show his ability to know the reputation, not to show the truth of any of the circumstances that may be involved.

Presiding Inspector: Isn't it sufficient in the first instance to show that he knew his reputation among the people with whom he associated? They were both in the same Project.

Mr. Grossman: Well, it seems to me that there are degrees of testimony along this line. I should think knowing——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) If he is going to give incidents relating to Wilmot, then you have a special matter which would be incompetent.

Mr. Grossman: All right, I will avoid the possibility of that.

Presiding Inspector: You wanted to show that it was after some certain meeting that this occurred or that it was [3103] after the publication of some article in a newspaper or after a political campaign or anything of that kind so as to show the occasion, that I will receive.

We will take a short recess.

Mr. Gladstein, you are wanted on the long distance telephone.

Mr. Grossman: I think we can proceed, your Honor, if it is agreeable with you, in the absence of Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, it is all right.

Presiding Inspector: Then we will go right ahead.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. On the basis of discussions you have had with various people concerning Robert Wilmot do you know his general reputation in the City of Portland and among those people who work with him for truth and veracity?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute! I object to that, if your Honor please. This witness has not testified that he has known Wilmot other than among his fellow workers.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. You may, when you come to cross examine, confine it, if you can. He says he does know his reputation.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Do you know his reputation among the people with whom you work?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Grossman: [3104]

Q. Is that reputation of Robert Wilmot for truth and veracity good or bad? A. Bad.

Q. On the basis of what you have heard or what you know about the general reputation of Robert Wilmot for truth and veracity would you believe him under oath? A. No.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: You may cross examine.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where were you born, Mr. Imper?

A. Salem, Oregon.

Q. What? A. Salem, Oregon.

Q. You say you have been on the Workers'—Writers' Project, is that correct?

A. The Oregon Historical Records Survey.

Q. That is a WPA Project, is it not?

A. That's right.

Q. How long have you been on such a project?

A. I was employed there for two and a half years.

Q. Were you a reliefer? A. No.

Q. How did you get on this project? [3105]

A. I was employed to assist with the Manuscripts and Imprints Department as a unit chairman or assistant unit chairman.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. By whom? A. By whom?

Q. Yes. A. Miss Margaret Clark.

Q. Miss Margaret Clark. Well, that is sort of a relief job, isn't it? A. No.

Q. Well, what kind of a relief job is it?

A. There are two types of jobs: One is a relief, and one is non-relief.

Q. How much a month do you make?

A. $89.70.

Q. How much? A. $89.70.

Q. Are you married? A. No.

Q. Were you certified for relief before you obtained this job? A. No.

Q. Huh? A. No.

Q. Have you ever held any other position prior to that [3106] time? A. Yes.

Q. Where?

A. Directly previous to that I was employed by the Samover Cafe.

Q. What is that?

A. Directly previous to that I was employed by the Samover Cafe.

Q. Doing what? A. As a chef.

Q. As a chef? A. Yes.

Q. For how long a period of time were you employed as a chef in that capacity?

A. A year, approximately.

Q. Now, as a chef what salary were you receiving?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. I was receiving $75.00 a month and my board.

Q. $75.00 a month and your board. How old are you? A. Twenty-three.

Q. Twenty-three. And what were you doing before that?

A. I was employed for a while as salesman by Remington-Rand Typewriter Company.

Q. And for how long a period?

A. Approximately eight months.

Q. At what salary? [3107]

A. No salary. It was commission.

Q. No salary? A. Commission.

Q. Why did you leave that job?

A. I wasn't a very good salesman.

Q. You weren't a very good salesman. Why did you leave your job as a chef?

A. I was interested in the office work in preference to kitchen work.

Q. Had you ever done any office work prior to that time? A. Yes.

Q. Where?

A. I was employed by Steckmest & McDowell Marine Supplies.

Q. Where? A. In Portland.

Q. When with respect to your employment as a salesman with the Remington-Rand Typewriter Company? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. When with respect to your employment with the——

A. (Interposing) Previous to that.

Q. Previous to that? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. For how long a period? [3108]

A. Three or four months.

Q. Three or four months? A. Yes.

Q. And is that the only office work you did?

A. I believe that is the first office job that I had at all. I had been going to school taking professional accounting.

Q. Did you graduate? A. No, I didn't.

Q. How can you tell when a person is lying, Mr. Imper? A. By finding out the truth.

Q. How do you find out the truth?

A. It would depend on the particular instance, I would imagine.

Q. Well, how would you go about finding out the truth in any instance?

A. I would have to have a specific case to know.

Q. Well, a man makes a statement to you, a certain statement, that you believe is not true. How would you go about finding out whether or not it was true? A. Well,——

Q. Before you would brand it as a lie?

A. I would. If I were interested in finding out whether it were the truth or not I would very probably investigate [3109] the subject of which he spoke.

Q. Make your own investigation? A. Yes.

Q. Huh? A. Yes.

Q. And how would you go about investigating it?

A. Well, as I say, it would depend entirely upon what the subject was the manner in which I conducted the investigation.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Have you ever conducted any investigation?

A. Of that type, yes.

Q. Under what circumstances?

A. I don't recall any specific instances.

Q. Well now, you just said that you conducted an investigation of that type and now you say you don't recollect any specific instance. Which is true?

Mr. Grossman: Now, just a moment, your Honor! If I understood that correctly, the question assumes something not in evidence, which is that those two are inconsistent. The failure to recollect a specific occasion is not inconsistent with a statement that such an occasion did exist.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is.

Mr. Del Guercio: He recalls that he made an investigation and then he says he can't recall having made any. [3110]

Mr. Grossman: He didn't say he couldn't recall any.

Presiding Inspector: They are not necessarily inconsistent. You may recall, I suppose, that you have traveled on a train, but you may not recall the particular time that you traveled on it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I wasn't trying to place it as to time.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I will ask you again. Have you ever made an investigation to determine the truth or falsity of any statement that you may have heard?

A. Yes, I have.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. All right. Give me one instance.

A. Well, my work on the Historical Records Survey was made up of doing exactly that type of work. If a report came in to me that certain people had certain manuscripts it was my job to make lists of the depositories of manuscripts of value, and if someone told me that that person had a manuscript of value I wouldn't make a list using that person's name in there, giving that as an instance. I would go out to that person in that depository and find out and see for myself.

Q. You would go out to the person that made the statement that he had the book?

A. I would go out to the person who was supposed to own the manuscript.

Q. What would you ask him? [3111]

A. Ask him if he owned one, that particular manuscript.

Q. Would you go to any other source?

A. That wouldn't be necessary.

Q. You would only go to the person who made the statement that he had that manuscript?

A. I would go to the person who was supposed to own the manuscript.

Q. And what would you say to him?

A. Ask them if he owned that manuscript.

Q. Is that all?

A. It would depend on their answer.

Q. Supposing they said "Yes", they owned it. What would you do?

A. I would ask him if I could see it.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. And would you be able to tell the original manuscript from that?

A. In most instances, yes.

Q. Now, did you ever have any occasion to investigate any remark that Mr. Wilmot had made?

A. No. I don't recall of ever having done that.

Q. You never investigated any kind of a remark that Mr. Wilmot made to you at any time?

A. I don't recall any.

Q. I am asking you for your best recollection.

[3112]

A. All I can say is that I don't recall having done that.

Q. Would you say that you had?

A. As a definite statement, no.

Q. How many people were employed on this Writers' Project?

A. I believe during the time that I was employed there, approximately 60.

Q. Approximately 60. Did you know them all?

A. Most all of them, yes.

Q. Did you ever visit Mr. Wilmot at his home?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if he is married?

A. Yes, he is married.

Q. Did you ever meet his wife?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. You never visited him socially, did you?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. You don't know him socially? A. No.

Q. And do you know if he has any children?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Do you know if he has any children?

A. He has, I believe, three children.

Q. Who told you that? [3113]

A. Oh, possibly ten or fifteen different people.

Q. Did Mr. Wilmot ever tell you?

A. No.

Q. Do you know where he lives in Portland?

A. I don't know his address now, no. I don't think I ever did know his home address.

Q. You never did know where he lives?

A. No.

Q. Where do you live? Well,——. Do you know any people who live in the same community that Mr. Wilmot lived in?

Mr. Grossman: Just a minute! I think the word "community" is ambiguous as to require definition. Sometimes it is used as meaning a city and sometimes a portion of a city.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, that is true. You can ask him to qualify it. I will allow it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you know of anybody that lived within the immediate vicinity of Mr. Wilmot?

A. I don't believe that I do. [3114]

Q. Do you know what Mr. Wilmot's neighbors think of Mr. Wilmot?

A. No, I don't know what his neighbors think.

Q. Did you ever make any inquiries along those lines? A. No.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Did you ever make any inquiries of anyone regarding Mr. Wilmot's veracity? A. No.

Q. You never did? A. No.

Q. That is your own opinion only, that his reputation is bad?

Mr. Grossman: That is not a correct statement of the evidence.

Mr. Del Guercio: He said he never asked.

Presiding Inspector: But he says he knows what people have said.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Has anyone ever told you that Mr. Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity was bad?

A. Yes.

Q. Who told you that?

A. Do you want names?

Q. Yes, names; of course.

A. All right. Ralph Collett—C-o-l-l-e-t-t.

Q. C-o-l-l-e-t? [3115] A. ——e-t-t.

Q. Now, you understand I asked you if anyone has ever told you that Mr. Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity was bad? A. Yes.

Q. And you say that Ralph Collett told you that?

A. Yes.

Q. In what words?

A. The occasion was rather unusual in Mr. Collett's case.

Q. I am asking you in what way, in what words did Mr. Collett say that. What words did he use in saying his reputation for truth and veracity was bad?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. He said that Mr. Wilmot was to be admired because of the life that he had led which had made it possible for him to get out of more scrapes by his ability to lie out of them, and talk his way out of his bad scrapes that he got himself into.

Q. Out of his own bad scrapes? A. Right.

Q. And from that you drew the conclusion that Mr. Collett told you that Mr. Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity was bad?

A. No, not from that alone.

Q. What else did Mr. Collett say? Before I ask you [3116] that—when did this conversation with Mr. Collett take place?

A. Well, about the nearest that I could place that would be somewhere in the vicinity of February or March of 1939.

Q. February or March, 1939. Where did this occur?

A. In the office, my office at the Elks Temple.

Q. Office, where? A. At the Elks Temple.

Q. Office at the Elks Temple?

A. That is the Historical Records Survey offices.

Q. Was anyone else present besides you and Mr. Collett?

A. I don't recall whether there was or not.

Q. What? A. I don't remember.

Q. What does Mr. Collett do?

A. I believe he works now for the State Highway Department.

Q. State Highway Department. Where?

A. In Salem.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Salem, Oregon? A. Right.

Q. What is Mr. Collett's reputation for truth and honesty, do you know, and veracity?

A. (Pause).

Q. Can't you answer that? [3117]

A. Yes, I can.

Q. What is it?

A. Well, it is fairly good, I believe.

Q. Fairly good? You are qualifying it. It isn't good, but it is just fairly good?

A. It is as good as the average person's, I would say.

Q. And what is the average person, the average—you mean they might lie sometimes and at other times might not lie?

A. Yes. I believe the average person——

Q. (Interposing) Oh, you——

A. (Continuing) Mr. Collett is, when saying he is average, I mean he is much more to be believed than Mr. Wilmot.

Q. You mean by that that he may lie sometimes?

A. I don't doubt but what he has.

Q. Have you ever lied?

A. I think that I have.

Q. On how many occasions?

A. You say on how many occasions?

Q. Yes.

A. That would be impossible to try to think.

Q. You have lied that many times so that it is impossible for you to tell?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. I don't keep a notebook and put down every time I lied.

Q. Have you ever lied under oath?

A. No, I haven't. [3118]

Q. What? A. No.

Q. Are you lying now under oath? A. No.

Q. Did you talk anybody else—did anyone else, rather, tell you that Mr. Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity was bad other than Mr. Collett?

A. Yes.

Q. Who? A. Miss Margaret Clarke.

Q. Miss Margaret Clark—C-l-a-r-k?

A. No; C-l-a-r-k-e.

Q. Where does she live?

A. Where does she live?

Q. Yes.

A. In Portland. I don't know her exact address.

Q. Is she employed?

A. She is the Assistant State Director of the Oregon Historical Records Survey.

Q. And what did she say to you regarding Mr. Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity?

A. I don't recall the exact words; but merely a great number of conversations where Mr. Wilmot was discussed and remarks were made that he couldn't be depended upon, or couldn't be believed. [3319]

Q. Did Miss Margaret Clarke, in your presence, ever say that Mr. Wilmot could never be believed?

A. Yes.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. She did say that? A. Yes.

Q. Who else was present?

A. Oh, I don't recall. It has probably been made at numerous instances and various people were there.

Q. Now, when was this, when did this occur, when did you talk to Miss Clark about Mr. Wilmot's reputation?

A. As I said, at various times she and I happened to be together and were talking of such things, or other people were talking of these things, and I happened to be there and his name was mentioned.

Q. Were you in the group discussing this or were you just eavesdropping?

A. I was in the group.

Q. You were in the group? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You couldn't place the time when this was said? A. No.

Q. But you do recall distinctly that Miss Clarke dropped the remark that Mr. Wilmot could not be depended upon? A. Yes.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. Yes; positive. [3120]

Q. Anyone else? A. Ralph Sherrif.

The Reporter: Spell it, please.

The Witness: S-h-e-r-r-i-f.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. S-h-e——

A. (Interposing) ——r-r-i-f.

Q. Is he also employed on this project?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. He is employed on the Writers' Project.

Q. Employed on the Writers' Project?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he say?

A. Words along the same line.

Q. Along what same line?

A. Mr. Wilmot couldn't be depended upon, or he couldn't be believed.

Q. Did you ask Mr. Sherrif about that, or did he just say that?

A. It came up in general conversation.

Q. Did you ever ask anybody—I believe you already testified that you never asked anybody outright as to Mr. Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity?

A. It never was necessary. My personal relationship with Mr. Wilmot was such that I wasn't interested in investigating. [3121]

Q. What was your personal relationship with Mr. Wilmot? A. I had none.

Q. You had none? A. No.

Q. Did he ever lie to you?

A. I don't know whether he did or not.

Q. And yet you testify under oath that you wouldn't believe him under oath?

A. That is right.

Q. Huh? A. That is right.

Q. And he never has lied to you?

A. I didn't say that he hadn't; I said that I didn't know whether he has or not.

Q. Do you know if he has lied to you?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Presiding Inspector: He said he doesn't know.

A. I don't know.

Mr. Gladstein: Moreover, if I may interject to say this, your Honor, the witness' testimony, as I understand it——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) I don't think this is an objection to the question.

Mr. Gladstein: I have a right to make my statement of position. The witness' testimony, this kind of testimony generally, is that the witness is confined to the statement that he would or would not believe a man under oath, based on [3122] that reputation.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly, but they have a right to cross examine.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, but they don't have a right to misstate the testimony.

Presiding Inspector: No. I don't think he has any such intention. I didn't grasp it. Go on.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you know Kenneth Fitzgerald?

A. Yes.

Q. What is his position in connection with this Writers' Project?

A. He has no connection with it whatever now.

Q. Did he have at the time Mr. Wilmot was employed there?

A. Not with the Writers' Project. He was employed by the Historical Records Survey.

Q. How well did you know Kenneth Fitzgerald?

A. In the past year I have known him quite well.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Did you ever talk to Fitzgerald about Mr. Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity?

A. Yes.

Q. What did Mr. Fitzgerald say?

A. He has the same opinion.

Q. That it was bad? A. Yes. [3123]

Q. You know, of course, that Kenneth Fitzgerald is a member of the Communist Party, don't you? A. No.

Q. What? A. No.

Q. You don't know that? A. No.

Q. Have you ever asked him?

A. No, I never.

Q. Are you a member of the Communist Party?

A. No.

Q. What?

Presiding Inspector: He said "No". Speak up so we can hear you.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you know that Mr. Wilmot was a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Did he ever tell you that he was?

A. No.

Q. Did he ever tell you he wasn't? A. No.

Q. How long have you been up around—you have lived in Portland all your life, have you?

A. I have lived in Portland five years. I have lived in Oregon all my life. [3124]

Q. Didn't you know that Kenneth Fitzgerald

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

was a candidate for public office on the Communist Ticket?

A. I have heard that; yes.

Q. Then you did know that?

A. I have heard it. I suppose that I do know it, yes.

Q. Well, would you, from that knowledge, infer that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, not necessarily.

Q. Do you know W. P. Ayer? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of that name at any time?

A. Probably; I don't recall.

Q. Do you connect that name with anyone that you know? A. No.

Q. Have you ever been a member of the Newspaper Guild? A. No.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Wilmot has?

A. No, I don't know that he has.

Q. Do you know of anyone on this Writers' Project that you and Mr. Wilmot were employed on as being a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever make any inquiries along that line? A. No.

Q. Were you interested in making any inquiries along that line? [3125] A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. It didn't make any difference to me.

Q. You mean it doesn't make any difference to you if a member of the Communist Party is employed on a Government project? A. No.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. What is your feeling toward the Communist Party, Mr. Imper?

A. Well, I know too little about it to have very many feelings.

Q. What?

A. I know too little about it to have very many feelings toward it.

Q. Do you admire a person for being a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. What? A. No.

Q. Have you ever read any Communistic literature? A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Fitzgerald ever suggest to you that you read Communist literature? A. No.

Q. Did he ever furnish you with any Communist publications? [3126] A. No.

Q. Or pamphlets to read? A. No.

Q. At any time? A. No.

Q. Where did you read the Communist literature you said you read—where did you get it?

A. Well, from somewhere I received a copy of, I can't think of the name, "Soviet Masses," or something like that.

Q. Is that the only piece of literature you have read, Communist literature?

A. No. I was going to say that I haven't read it yet.

Q. You still have that?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. I think so; I am not sure.

Q. You purchased it recently?

A. I didn't purchase it.

Q. It was given to you?

A. Yes; I received it in the mail.

Q. Do you know who sent it to you?

A. No. And I have seen a copy of People's World.

Q. Where have you seen copies of the People's World? A. (Pause)

Q. Well, I will withdraw that.

A. I don't recall where I saw it.

Q. You can't tell. All right. Were you ever asked by [3127] anyone to join the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. At no time? A. No.

Q. Did you ever attend any Communist Party meetings? A. No.

Q. At any time? A. No; never.

Q. Have you ever been called upon to give your opinion as to the truth or veracity of any other person other than Robert Wilmot? A. No.

Q. You have never been called before as a character witness, have you—or, I mean, character assassinator, rather than a character witness?

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment. That is——

Presiding Inspector: That is not quite proper.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will withdraw the remark as not proper.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Mr. Gladstein: If counsel wishes to stipulate, or infer, we will agree with him that the character of Mr.——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I withdrew that remark and I don't think counsel's remark is necessary. I said it was improper.

Presiding Inspector: He feels so too. Let it go.

[3128]

Have you ever been called as a character witness, good or bad?

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever been——

Presiding Inspector: Not as a good or bad witness; but as to good or bad character.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever been a witness in any case in court? A. No. [3129]

Q. Do you know what your own reputation for truth and honesty is?

A. Well, I have never been told that it was bad.

Q. Have you ever been told that it was good?

A. No. I don't think anyone has gone out of his way to tell me one way or the other.

Q. Mr. Imper, I believe you said that you were not a member of the Communist Party?

A. That's right.

Q. Were you ever a member of the Youth Congress? A. Of the what?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Of the Youth Congress? A. No.

Q. You never were? A. No.

Q. Did you ever attend any meetings of the Youth Congress? A. No.

Q. Do you know Mrs. Joan Wood?

A. Yes. She also was employed on the Historical Records Survey.

Q. For how long a period?

A. I think she was employed about a year of the time that I was employed.

Q. And were you ever a leader in the local Portland [3130] Communist Youth Congress?

A. No.

Q. At any time? A. Never.

Q. Do you know Mrs.—Mr. Flora?

A. What's the name?

Q. F-l-o-r-a? A. No.

Q. Or F-l-e-r-a? A. No.

Q. Employed on the Writers' Project about the same time that you were? A. Mrs. Flora?

Q. Yes. Flora or Flera or some such similar name. A. Mrs. Flora? No, I don't.

Q. You don't? A. No.

Q. Did either Miss Wood, Mrs. Wood or Mrs. Joan ever tell you or did she ever say in your presence that practically all of the people employed on that Workers' Project were members of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Or Communist Party sympathizers?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear anyone say that? [3131]

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. I have read it in the papers. I have never heard anyone say that.

Q. You have read it in what papers?

A. In the Journal and the Oregonian.

Q. When? A. I don't recall.

Q. Well, how long with respect to the time about which we are talking? A. I haven't any idea.

Q. Did you ever belong to the Workers' Alliance?

A. The Federal Cultural and Professional Workers' Union was affiliated with the Workers' Alliance for a while.

Q. And you knew that the Workers' Alliance was a Communist-created organization, did you not?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. When did you find out that it was?

A. What?

Q. When did you find out that it was?

A. I never did know that it was.

Q. Well, would you say that it is not?

A. I would say that it isn't. A. Huh?

A. I would say that it isn't.

Q. On what do you base that knowledge?

A. Merely my impressions.

Q. Do you know who formed the Workers' Alliance? [3132] A. No.

Q. Did you ever find out? A. No.

Q. Did you ever try to find out?

A. No, I never.

Q. Did you ever ask anyone if it was a Communist organized and controlled organization?

A. No, I don't believe I did.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Did anyone ever tell you or indicate to you that it was a Communist organization?

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. You don't think so. Well, by that do you mean that someone may have told you?

A. No. I am quite sure that no one ever told me that. I would remember if they had.

Q. Do you know what the American Peace Mobilization is?

A. No. I don't know any of their functions or what their purpose or anything is.

Q. Did you ever attend any of their meetings?

A. No.

Q. You have heard of the American League for Peace and Democracy? A. Probably.

Q. Have you ever attended any meeting? [3133]

A. No.

Q. Did you ever contribute any money?

A. No.

Q. To the American League for Peace and Democracy? A. No.

Q. At the time you were employed or received employment under this Writers' Project were you required to make an affidavit to the effect that you were not a member of the Communist Party?

A. Yes. There was an affidavit to that effect, I believe. I don't recall the wording of the affidavit, but it was to the nature that any political party similar to that—I believe they referred to the Bund and the Communist Party, both.

Q. And you made such an affidavit?

A. Yes.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. And what did you say in your affidavit in regard to whether you were a member of the Communist Party? A. I signed it.

Q. Well, did you say "Yes" or "No"?

A. I said that I wasn't a member of any of the parties.

Q. You said that you were not a member of the Communist Party? A. That's right.

Q. In this affidavit? A. That's right.

[3134]

Q. Who asked you to come down here to testify, Mr. Imper? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Who asked you to come down here to testify? A. Mr. Burton Rodman?

Q. Mr.? A. Mr. Burton Rodman.

Q. Rodman? A. Yes.

Q. How do you spell that?

A. R-o-d-m-a-n.

Q. R-o-d-m-a-n. And where does he live?

A. He lives in Portland. Let's see! On Grand Avenue. I don't know the number.

Q. Is he employed on this Writers' Project, too? A. No.

Q. Was he ever employed on that Writers' Project? A. No.

Q. Do you know him to be a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether he is or not?

A. I assume that he isn't, but I don't know. I have no way of knowing.

Q. When did he approach you on this subject?

[3135]

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. It was the day before yesterday. It was suggested, and yesterday he called me.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Rodman?

A. I have known him for about two months.

Q. Is that all? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know him intimately? A. No.

Q. How long have you seen him during that two months period? A. How much?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, probably seven or eight times?

Q. And for how long a period approximately each time in those seven or eight times during that two months period?

A. Oh, it probably would average about ten minutes.

Q. So that you have not seen more than seven times twenty is one hundred and forty minutes all together? A. Approximately.

Q. And did you just see him casually or prearranged meetings?

A. Most of them were casually, except once when he came up to ask me if I would take the job as CIO reporter.

Q. When did he ask you if you wanted to take a job as CIO reporter? [3136]

A. Sometime in March.

Q. In March of this year? A. Yes.

Q. Last March?

A. The month before last.

Q. And had you at that time told him what you knew about Wilmot?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. Had I told him? No.

Q. Just what did he say about your wanting the job as CIO reporter?

A. Well, they needed a reporter and he asked me to go down to KWJJ and try out.

Q. This was in March? Was it in the latter part of March?

Q. The fore part. You testified that you have only know him for about two months. This is May now, about May 8th.

A. Possibly I have know him longer than that, then.

Q. You may have known him longer than two months?

A. I have known him since that time, whenever it was. I believe it was in the fore part of March.

Q. You have never seen him before the time he asked you if you wanted to accept the job as CIO reporter? A. No.

Q. Well, where did he meet you at the time he asked you [3137] if you wanted the job as CIO reporter?

A. I was introduced to him up on the Project.

Q. By whom? A. Kenneth Fitzgerald?

Q. Kenneth Fitzgerald? A. That's right.

Q. And what did Kenneth Fitzgerald say in introducing you to Rodman?

A. He merely told him that I had a good voice for radio speaking and he wanted someone, why not try me out.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. How many times had Kenneth Fitzgerald told you that, that you had a good voice?

A. Well, he has never told me that. He told Burton Rodman that.

Q. Has he told anyone else in your presence?

A. No.

Q. Has he said so recently? A. No.

Q. And so Kenneth Fitzgerald introduced you to Rodman and then Rodman asked you if you wanted a job with the CIO as a reporter for the CIO?

A. The CIO reporter is a radio program. It was.

Q. I see.

A. As an announcer, is what they wanted.

Q. Was anything said at that time about appearing in [3138] this Bridges case as a witness?

A. No.

Q. By either Mr. Fitzgerald or Rodman?

A. No.

Q. Huh? A. Nothing was said.

Q. Did you make application for the job as CIO announcer? A. Did I?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. You didn't go down there at all?

A. I went down there, yes. And I am sorry, I guess I misunderstood your question. I went to KWJJ Station, and had a try-out and was accepted and was told to come back that night.

Q. When did you go down there to KWJJ?

A. I don't remember the exact date.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. How long after this first conversation you had with Mr. Rodman and Mr. Fitzgerald?

A. It was the same day.

Q. The same day?

A. The same day. He was in very much of a hurry.

Q. He was very much what?

A. He needed someone that day. [3139]

Q. And you went down there that same day?

A. That's right.

Q. And you had a test? A. Yes.

Q. And what was the outcome of the test?

A. I was accepted.

Q. You were accepted? A. Yes.

Q. Well, what happened after that? Did you get the job?

A. I got the job all right, and the program went on at 9:15 and I got there at 9:15 and found that the program had been cancelled again. So——

Q. (Interposing) So you lost the job?

A. That's right.

Q. Well, then you never had the job actually, did you? A. No.

Q. Well, did Mr. Fitzgerald approach you or introduce you to anybody else to get you another job anywhere else at any time? A. No.

Q. Has he recently? A. No.

Q. Has anyone else given you any offer to work? [3140] A. No.

Q. You have had no offer since? A. No.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. When was the last time you talked to Mr. Kenneth Fitzgerald?

A. I believe I saw him yesterday.

Q. You saw him before you came down here to testify? A. Yes.

Q. What did you talk about?

A. Well, let's see.

Q. Did you tell him you were coming down here to testify? A. Uh-huh (affirmative).

Q. What did he say?

A. Well, he wished me a good trip.

Q. Is that all?

A. Oh, there was nothing of importance said. Very general.

Q. Let us determine whether it is important. You just tell us what was said.

A. I don't recall the words that were said.

Q. Well, what did you talk about?

A. He talked about the trip. He said that he envied me the airplane trip.

Q. Did he say he would like—you came down in an [3141] airplane? A. That's right.

Q. Did he say that he would like to come down himself to testify? A. No.

Q. Huh? A. No.

Q. Did he express a desire to do so?

A. No.

Q. Did you discuss with Mr. Fitzgerald what your testimony was to be? A. No.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Didn't he know why you were coming down to testify? A. Yes.

Q. Who told him that? A. I did.

Q. What did you say?

A. I told him that I was going down to testify in the Bridges case because I knew Wilmot.

Q. And what did Mr. Fitzgerald say?

A. He said "Well, I guess you probably do know Wilmot all right."

Q. Did Mr. Fitzgerald say that he knew Wilmot also?

A. Well, he didn't have to say that. I knew that he [3142] did.

Q. Well, did you tell Mr. Fitzgerald that you were coming down to testify to the effect that Mr. Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity was bad?

A. Possibly something to that effect. I told him that I was going to testify as to Wilmot's character which wouldn't show him in a very good light.

Q. Oh, you told him that? A. Yes.

Q. And what did Mr. Fitzgerald say?

A. I don't recall his answer.

Q. Well, do you know if he said something to the effect that he himself knew that Wilmot's character was no good?

A. No. I don't believe he said that. I am sure he didn't.

Q. Huh?

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

A. I am sure he didn't say that.

Q. When did Rodman last contact you—when did you last see Mr. Rodman?

A. Yesterday afternoon.

Q. Yesterday afternoon? After you had talked to Mr. Fitzgerald? After you had seen Mr. Fitzgerald or at the same time?

A. No, it was before. [3143]

Q. You saw Rodman first and then Mr. Fitzgerald? A. Yes.

Q. And what did you and Rodman talk about with reference to your coming down to testify?

A. Mr. Rodman and I didn't do much talking. Mr. Rodman introduced me to Mr. Margolis.

Q. Margolis? A. Margolis.

Q. An attorney? A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Margolis tell you who he was?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?

A. I believe he asked me for a statement, which he took down.

Q. Did he identify himself to you? Did he say who he was? A. He told me who he was.

Q. Who did he say he was?

A. He said he was Mr. Margolis of the firm—he named the firm.

Q. What name did he give?

A. Oh—I can't think of the first name in the firm.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Is it the firm of Gladstein, Grossman and——

A. (Interposing) That's right. [3144]

Q. (Continuing) ——Margolis?

A. That's right. And Sawyer. That's right.

Q. And Sawyer? A. That's right.

Q. And what did you say? Then, you say, he took a statement from you?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Then he took a statement from you?

A. Yes.

Q. A written statement? A. Yes.

Q. At that time? A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Rodman present during all the time? A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Fitzgerald? A. No.

Q. Are you sure? A. Yes.

Q. This occurred in the afternoon, you say?

A. Yes.

Q. How long after that did you see Mr. Fitzgerald?

A. Mr. Fitzgerald took me to meet the plane.

Q. Mr. Fitzgerald took you to the plane. Did he, [3145] Mr. Fitzgerald, also furnish you with the money to come down here? A. No.

Q. Who bought your transportation?

A. Mr. Margolis.

Q. Did you have any last-minute conversation with Mr. Fitzgerald? A. No.

Q. Huh? A. No

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Q. Was anything said at all about what you were to testify to? A. No.

Q. Huh? A. No.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Any further questions?

Mr. Grossman: Perhaps a few more questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. In answer to Mr. Del Guercio's questions, you gave, I believe, two specific examples of people telling you about the character of Wilmot. Can you think of any other example that you could give? Could you give the details of any other [3146] situation in which someone told you what he believed was the character of Robert Wilmot?

A. I can't think so much of specific instances as I can of specific people.

Q. All right. Could you name any others?

A. Yes. A Wilma Leiter; Dorothy Muscott.

Mr. Del Guercio: Pardon me. I didn't get the first name.

Presiding Inspector: The reporter will give it to you.

The Reporter: Wilma.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. About how many people would you say on various occasions have stated to you that the character of Robert Wilmot for truth and veracity is bad? A. Oh, I should judge 15 or 20.

Q. Do you remember any more specific statements given to you by any of these persons who talked to you about Robert Wilmot's character, any more specific statement than that his character was bad, or truth and veracity?

Presiding Inspector: Other than you have given, Mr. Grossman means. Do you mean other than he has given.

Mr. Grossman: Other than he has given.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is this redirect?

Mr. Grossman: I think the opening up of those occasions on cross allows us to go into others on redirect. [3147]

Presiding Inspector: He can answer that.

Mr. Grossman: I beg your pardon?

Presiding Inspector: He can answer that.

Do you remember any other specific statement? Yes or No.

A. I would say, No, that I don't—any specific statements regarding his character. Nothing specific, I am sure.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you know how Robert Wilmot happened to leave his job, if he left it, or how the connection was severed between him and his job with the WPA?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please, as not being proper redirect examination.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that is proper. It is pure hearsay of a violent kind.

Mr. Grossman: I beg your pardon?

Presiding Inspector: It is pure hearsay of a violent kind.

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Mr. Grossman: Well, he may know of his own knowledge.

Presiding Inspector: How could he know?

Mr. Grossman: Wilmot might have told him. If anyone else had anything to do with the severing, that person might have told him.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: Or he may have been present when it happened. [3148]

Presiding Inspector: If Mr. Wilmot told him or any other person in Mr. Wilmot's presence told him, I will take it.

Do you know from Wilmot himself how he lost his job?

The Witness: No. I never talked enough to Mr. Wilmot to hear anything regarding it.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: Can I ask him, your Honor, if he knows from any person who had something to do with the severing of the connection?

Presiding Inspector: Do you? I will allow it.

The Witness: I don't.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it "Yes" or "No."

Do you know from anyone who had anything to do with it?

The Witness: No.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

(Testimony of Thomas Imper.)

Presiding Inspector: Next witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, could we adjourn at this time and ask for a discussion in chambers?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Two o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12:00 o'clock noon, a recess was taken until 2:00 o'clock P.M. of the same day.) [3149]

After Recess

2:00 o'clock P.M.

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mr. Gladstein, call your next witness.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, we have made a real effort to have a next witness this afternoon, but it has proved impossible. We had planned this week with at least Mr. Crayeraft and character witnesses. We have been trying to reorganize our plans and, to an extent, we have been able to do so, but not satisfactorily. The result is that we have no witness this afternoon.

There is no use in pretending that there is something that we can work out.

We will have an opportunity to go over the record now and, perhaps, if there is any shortage of witnesses from now on we will have matter that can be produced. But at this time, unless your Honor wishes to hear from Mr. Crayeraft, it is impossible for us to produce anyone this afternoon.

Presiding Inspector: I don't want to hear from Mr. Crayeraft now.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I understood the defense here was given, I don't know exactly——

Presiding Inspector: Quite a time.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Continuing) ——from last Tuesday, yes——

Presiding Inspector: That is true. [3150].

Mr. Del Guercio: (Continuing) ——for the purpose of getting the necessary witnesses.

Presiding Inspector: That is true. They should have been prepared.

Mr. Del Guercio: Don't you think there should be an end to this?

Presiding Inspector: What can I do?

Mr. Del Guercio: I wish I knew what to suggest. I don't want to prevent them from——

Presiding Inspector: Your wish is my wish. I wish I knew what I could suggest. I asked Mrs. King—she gave me some warning that they were out of witnesses. I asked her what she could suggest and she was as much at a loss as you and I are.

Mr. Del Guercio: Then it seems that we have come to that phase of the case where it appears they have no case.

Presiding Inspector: Well, that is an inference, perhaps, you might draw.

Mr. Grossman: To answer that——

Presiding Inspector: I don't think you will be found at fault in drawing that inference, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think they have been given every indulgence.

Presiding Inspector: They should have been prepared to do all the things necessary to make a substantial presentation.[3151]

Mr. Grossman: As to Mr. Del Guercio's remark, that judgment can be withheld until the end of the case and then Mr. Del Guercio will see it is not correct.

For the reason I gave yesterday we have been physically unable to have our man interview them and get them down here available in time.

Presiding Inspector: I am very sorry about the subpoena not having reached Mr. Cannalonga. I am not assessing any blame, but I am sorry that that has occurred. That has thrown us off today undoubtedly.

Mr. Grossman: We have tried to readjust, as Mrs. King said, our plans, but there are certain things required to be done before we can get witnesses available, and we haven't been able to do it, not enough of them.

Presiding Inspector: Will you go on tomorrow?

Mr. Grossman: Yes, we can go on tomorrow.

Mr. Del Guercio: How long is this condition to obtain, if the Court please?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know, Mr. Del Guercio. I wish I did and I wish I could compel or enforce greater promptness. The only thing I could do would be to terminate the proceedings and say that they can't produce any more evidence, and I don't think that would be fair to the Alien.

Mr. Del Guercio: We don't want to be unfair.

We want to give them every opportunity to complete their case. [3152]

Presiding Inspector: You don't ask that. I understand that.

Mr. Del Guercio: No.

Presiding Inspector: You are acting properly in urging that everything be done to expedite the case.

Mr. Del Guercio: Expedite the case.

Presiding Inspector: And I join you in that. I join you in it wholeheartedly and I think you understand that.

Mrs. King: We do, your Honor, and we are very sorry indeed that this has occurred.

Presiding Inspector: Well now, do the best you can. I have got to just rely on you to do the best you can to present this case, and let us get it into my hands for an advisory action.

Mr. Grossman: Just one moment, if your Honor please.

Your Honor, we have been since your ruling on character evidence on Mr. Bridges considering or reconsidering the law on that question. We still feel that such evidence is admissible. Now, in order that the argument on that, which we wish to make, will not be extended over too long a period, because naturally counsel for the Government will have a right to reply, we would like to serve some kind of notice that we would like to argue that point tomorrow, so that the Government can be as well prepared as possible.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. You may do that. [3153]

Mr. Grossman: And we will be prepared tomorrow morning to make an argument, so that we will have enough time to prepare for the future.

Presiding Inspector: I will hear you tomorrow.

Mr. Del Guercio: I thought tomorrow they were going to produce a witness.

Presiding Inspector: They are.

Mr. Del Guercio: If they start an argument on it——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I can't believe that it will take very much time.

Mr. Grossman: No, it won't.

Mrs. King: Our only purpose in saying anything at all was to enable the Government to look up the authorities on that point. This is not an effort to attempt to avoid the production of a witness, but in order that that question of law may be before your Honor tomorrow morning.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think that point could be submitted on briefs, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I will hear them tomorrow. It won't take long.

Mr. Grossman: We shall file a brief, if your Honor please, but we will have something to say on it.

Presiding Inspector: You will probably have a citation of your authorities, and those you can hand in in writing. It will be easier for me if you do that. [3154]

Then we will adojurn until tomorrow morning.

(Reporter's Note: Here follows transcript of record of proceedings had in chambers at conclusion of formal session:)

Presiding Inspector: The Government advises me that with respect to the examination of the minutes taken by Mrs. Segerstrom that the Government's experts are ready to proceed tomorrow from 9:00 to 10:00 A.M. The Government will agree that a small cut from the document may be made, which the Court Reporter will identify on the back as cut from the original. The document must be cut in such a way as not to harm its usefulness as a document subsequently usable in court.

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: However, the piece which is cut out must not be destroyed but may be treated by chemicals which will not obliterate, though they may change, the color of the writing thereon.

Mr. Grossman: May a make a couple of suggestions that I don't think are inconsistent, and see if they are agreeable? That the nature of the writing on the back of the little piece, or, rather, the material with which it is written be determined by our expert so that it will not interfere with the test.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly, that is quite all right. They don't want anything that will soak through.

Mr. Del Guercio: And it must be returned, of course. [3155]

Presiding Inspector: And the piece will be returned.

Mr. Grossman: And it is understood that the time suggested is the first time in which it can be done. It may be that our expert is not able to begin at that time.

Mr. Connelley: He will be available any time tomorrow. Whatever you want in the way of arrangements. We will have our men available or here for that purpose.

Mr. Grossman: With whom shall I arrange that?

Presiding Inspector: To be here at nine o'clock.

Mr. Connelley: We have got to arrange first to have the document produced here and the cut made in the presence of the court reporter and a record made accordingly of it. I still persist in the statement that nothing can be done to that document which shall mar or hinder the possibilities or make impossible a production of the document at subsequent proceedings wherein it might be necessary as evidence. If there is any dispute between your expert and our experts, that will be brought before Judge Sears for adjustment, so that there will be no wrangle or anything at all about this, because we have men here that are high class and we assume that your men will be the same. We have no reason to believe otherwise. And I think that is the fair thing. We shouldn't have any wrangle between the experts.

Mr. Grossman: All right. I will make arrangements as soon as we can. The name of the expert, for the record, is [3156] Edward Oscar Heinrichs.

I don't know whether it is Oscar Edward Heinrichs or Edward Oscar Heinrichs.

Presiding Inspector: Well, you are just like that witness!

Mr. Del Guercio: All right, I think that is all.

Mr. Grossman: I assume it is nine o'clock here unless we make other arrangements over the telephone.

Presiding Inspector: You won't want me at that time?

Mr. Grossman: I don't think we will.

Mr. Del Guercio: If we do we will call you up.

Presiding Inspector: We will have this room open at nine o'clock.

Mr. Grossman: If it is at a different time we can notify the reporter.

(Whereupon, at 2:15 o'clock P.M. an adjournment was taken until Friday, May 9, 1941, at 10:00 o'clock A.M.) [3157]

Court room 276,
Federal Building,
San Francisco, California,
May 9, 1941

Met, pursuant to adjournment at 10:00 A.M. [3158]

(Reporter's Note: The following proceedings were had in chambers prior to the opening of the formal session:)

Presiding Inspector: I suggest that you restate that for the record, Mr. Connelley.

Mr. Connelley: That any examination made by Mr. Heinrichs is to be made under the actual visual observation of the Government representative. If there is any difference of opinion as to whether or not this should be done the opinion of the Government representative shall be complied with, that it will not take place at that time, and no further examination shall proceed, if Mr. Heinrichs' ideas are to be pursued, until that has been brought up before Judge Sears himself, with Mr. Heinrichs and our expert present, so that we can arrive at an agreement.

Presiding Inspector: That no further examination along that line be made, but if they could complete something else it could be done, as a matter of expedition.

Mr. Connelley: Yes. There definitely should be no dispute of any kind as between the examiners. If the Government examiner says that a certain examination shall not be made, that will not be made, and it should be definitely understood that anything and everything that is done by Mr. Heinrichs in connection with this document shall be in the actual presence and under the observation of the Government representatives.

At the conclusion of the examination today, whether the [3159] examination is complete or not, all portions of the document in its entirety, whether it be a cut therefrom or otherwise, shall be returned to the possession of the reporter and remain in his custody tonight.

If the examination is not completed as of this date, on the following day the same procedure is to be followed, until the examination is completed.

Presiding Inspector: That is all right.

Mr. Grossman: Yes. All I have to say is—I see the reason for that rule—that will have to be discussed at the very beginning. If it appears impossible—I hope this can be agreed between your representative and Mr. Heinrichs—I don't know whether that is possible—but let that be discussed between the representatives.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Grossman has this in mind: If it is necessary to do——

Mr. Connelley: (Interposing) I speak with this idea in mind! That the expert and myself both know that a certain thing can be done and cannot be done. If the process cannot be completed, so as to retard the return of this exhibit to the possession of the court reporter tonight, that provision shall not take effect today but on the day when the complete operation can be completed.

Mr. Heinrichs should be cautioned specifically that any processes he uses he will be held directly responsible for the [3160] obliteration, or alteration, or marring of this document, beyond the possible discoloration of the writing. It is his responsibility as an expert to retain this document in its original state, in so far as certain previous limitations have been indicated, and he is responsible to know that any processes he uses will not do anything which will alter the document and make it inadmissible later on.

Mr. Grossman: No objection.

Presiding Inspector: Then that is understood.

Mr. Grossman: The address of Mr. Heinrichs is 1001 Oxford, Berkeley. He is there this morning. Could it be done this morning?

Mr. Connelley: Any time.

Mr. Grossman: This can be off the record.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Remarks outside the record.)

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

(Whereupon the conference in chambers was concluded.) [3161]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: Call your witness, Mr. Grossman.

Mr. Grossman: Will you step up, please?

EMMA KATZER

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is your full name, please?

A. Emma Katzer.

Q. What is your position?

A. I am the Clerk of the Justice Court of Sonoma Township.

(Testimony of Emma Katzer.)

Q. Were you or was your superior officer served with a subpoena to bring certain documents to this Court?

A. The Clerk of the Justice's Court was subpoenaed, and I am the Clerk.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. I am the Clerk of the Justice's Court and I was subpoenaed.

Q. You were subpoenaed? A. Yes.

Q. And did you find certain documents which were described in the subpoena? [3162]

A. Yes. In the case of Samuel Diner.

Q. And did you bring those documents in response to the subpoena? A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I see them, please? If you will stay there, I will get them.

A. (Producing docket.)

Q. Will you just open the page, please?

A. (Opening page of docket.)

Q. This appears to be the docket of the Court. Will you find the pages that refer to the matter called for in the subpoena?

A. (Locating pages.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Is there a question?

Mr. Grossman: I asked her to find the pages that refer to the matter called for in the subpoena.

The Witness: Here are the pages.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. May I see them, please?

A. (Handing docket to Mr. Grossman.)

(Testimony of Emma Katzer.)

Q. Would you mind, first, describing the book that you have brought with you in response to the subpoena and then reading all of the official Court records of the Justice Court of Sonoma Township dealing with Sam Diner which were brought in response to the subpoena? [3163]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question. No foundation has been laid for the reading of that particular docket.

Presiding Inspector: Let me see it.

(The docket referred to was passed to the Presiding Inspector.)

Presiding Inspector: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is the book that you have brought with you?

A. The Criminal Justice Docket of the Justice Court of Sonoma Township.

Q. And what matters are entered in that book?

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, I object to that question. It makes no difference.

Presiding Inspector: No. It is the Justice Docket. That is sufficient. Let us find out what the Court is.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Will you describe the functions of the Court, please, and the legal authority, if you know it?

Presiding Inspector: The jurisdiction.

The Witness: The jurisdiction of the Court?

(Testimony of Emma Katzer.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: Does that mean——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Whether it has jurisdiction of crimes of high magnitude, felonies or only misdemeanors. [3164]

A. Well, I couldn't say.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, it seems to me that is a matter of law.

Presiding Inspector: It is, but I thought she might know. I have no knowledge what this is at all.

Mr. Grossman: As a matter of fact, I am not certain myself what the extent of the jurisdiction is without checking into the statutes, but it is in the statutes.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I will let you show that this man was charged with a certain offense and that he was found guilty of that offense. But I won't take the whole record.

Mr. Grossman: All right.

Presiding Inspector: And bound over.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Will you state whether that docket shows that the records of the Sonoma Township Justice Court show any charge against Sam Diner?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute, please! I will object to the question, if your Honor please, on various grounds. In the first place, as the Court will recall, Mr. Diner—Sam Diner——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): It doesn't have to be about a conviction. This is a conviction.

Mr. Del Guercio: But it is not a conviction for a felony. [3165] This is a question as to whether it is even a conviction for a misdemeanor.

Presiding Inspector: Well, it is a conviction of something.

Mr. Del Guercio: He was required to put up a peace bond, as I understand.

Presiding Inspector: That's it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, that isn't a——

Presiding Inspector: Oh, it is for what it is worth.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, as I say, it isn't a conviction.

Presiding Inspector: I merely limited it to the conviction and the penalty imposed.

Mr. Grossman: All right.

Presiding Inspector: Because that is the conviction.

Mr. Grossman: May we have the question read?

Presiding Inspector: I will take the charge of what the offense was.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Does that show that there was any charge entered in the docket of the Justice Court against Sam Diner?

A. The charge is violation of Section 701 of the Penal Code. Is that what you want?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, that is right.

(Testimony of Emma Katzer.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. That is correct. What is the date of the charge? [3166] A. January 22, 1932.

Q. What is the entry alongside that page?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that unless it is within the limitations prescribed by the Court.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, so far as it refers to the charge.

A. Threat to do bodily harm.

Presiding Inspector: Threat to do bodily harm.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. All right. Was there a plea of guilty or not guilty in that case?

A. There was a plea of not guilty, and——

Q. (Interposing): Just a moment! Don't answer any more than the question calls for. Was there a trial? A. There was a trial.

Q. What was the date of the trial?

A. February——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): I will object. That isn't within the limitations prescribed by the Court.

Presiding Inspector: What was the result of the trial?

The Witness: He was found guilty.

Presiding Inspector: And what was the penalty imposed?

The Witness: It was to put up a $500 peace bond, I believe. $500 peace bond.

Presiding Inspector: To run how long? [3167]

The Witness: I—(Pause.)

(Testimony of Emma Katzer.)

Presiding Inspector: How long was it to run?

The Witness: That was for six months.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. To the people of the State and particularly to the complainant?

The Witness: To the complainant.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Could you give me the number or description of that case as it appears in the docket?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if the Court please. That has already been done, the Section of the Code.

Mr. Grossman: No, the title of the case and the number of the case, if there is any.

A. The number of the case is 284.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. And what is the title of the case?

A. "People of the State of California versus John Doe Diner" and later changed to "Samuel Diner." [3168]

Mr. Grossman: No more questions.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Miss—I didn't get your name—I beg your pardon. A. What?

Q. What is your name, please?

A. My name?

Q. Yes. A. Emma Katzer.

Q. Now, Miss Katzer, does your record show if that bond was exonerated? Your testimony is that the docket shows that is a six months' bond. Does the docket show that the bond was exonerated at the end of the six months' period?

A. (Examining document).

Presiding Inspector: Does the record show about the exoneration of the bond?

A. No, it doesn't; the record doesn't show.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Does the record show if it is still in effect?

Presiding Inspector: It was only to run for six months.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Does that show any kind of a personal surety?

A. A peace bond, yes; two sureties.

Q. Two personal sureties? [3169] A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I will get our next witness.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Grossman, you showed in that examination the date of that?

Mr. Grossman: I asked the date of the charge.

Presiding Inspector: That is all right.

Mr. Del Guercio: 1932.

Presiding Inspector: I wasn't sure that was in the record.

Stand and raise your right hand.

JEANNINE LOWRY

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Mr. Grossman: Before we ask any questions, when Chief Dullea was on the stand I asked to withdraw the official records of the Police Department and substitute photostatic copies.

I have the photostatic copies here and I ask leave to substitute them and have the reporter send the original documents, or deliver them to the Chief of Police.

Presiding Inspector: That is quite all right. That is our general practice. [3170]

Mr. Del Guercio: You will first compare the photostats with the originals, Mr. Reporter?

The Reporter: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: These were prepared by the Reporter, Mr. Del Guercio.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Miss Lowry, will you state your full name?

A. My name is Jeannine Lowry—J-e-a-n-n-i-n-e L-o-w-r-y.

Q. Your residence is what, please?

A. 1135½ Larrabee Street, Hollywood.

Q. Spell it, please. A. L-a-r-r-a-b-e-e.

Q. Are you employed? A. I am.

Q. What is the nature of your employment?

A. I do secretarial work.

Q. For whom do you do that?

A. Mr. Guy Gadbois—G-a-d-b-o-i-s.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Q. Now, Miss Lowry, were you ever a member of an organization known as the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League? A. I was.

Q. Will you state when you were a member of that organization? [3171]

A. It was the early summer of 1939 when I joined. I think it would be May or June.

Q. And for how long did you remain a member?

A. One year.

Q. While you were a member of that organization did you ever do any reporting to the people in charge of the organization with respect to coverage of the meetings?

A. For about six or seven weeks I covered the meetings of the German-American Bund.

Q. How did you come to do this kind of reportage?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to the question.

Presiding Inspector: This is merely preliminary. I will take it.

A. It came about accidentally. On the 4th of July, 1939, the Bund was giving an open-air meeting at Hindenberg Park in Los Angeles, and I went with a group of friends, mostly out of curiosity. I was so shocked at what I heard that——

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to how shocked she was.

Presiding Inspector: This is merely preliminary. I will take it. It is just a story.

Mr. Gladstein: That is right.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

A. (Continuing): ——that when I got back I wrote up a report of what had been said, and who had been speaking, and [3172] showed it to some friends of mine, one of whom suggested I send it to the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League.

I was then called by Mr. Elkins, who asked me if I would be willing to make further reports for the League and go to Bund meetings and report on them.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League at that time, Miss Lowry, publish a newspaper or other kind of publication?

A. They published a paper called "Hollywood Now".

Q. And in a general way what was the character of that publication?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that. We are not interested in the character of that publication.

Mr. Gladstein: This is for identification.

Presiding Inspector: I think strictly it is not material as yet, but it brings the story along, I suppose.

Mr. Gladstein: Right.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it with that understanding.

A. It was a paper which dealt, I think, largely with pro-democratic moves in Hollywood, and with whatever Nazi infiltration, or signs of Nazi infiltration they were able to discover.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, did you attend meetings of the German-American [3173] Bund?

A. I attended about a half dozen; yes.

Q. And your purpose in attending those meetings was what?

A. Simply to make reports on them for the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League.

Q. Did you make such reports? A. I did.

Q. Did you, at any meeting that you attended of the German-American Bund, ever hear a speaker by the name of Ezra F. Chase?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. When did you hear him speak?

A. I had a report, a copy of a report of that meeting, and by checking it recently I find the date on it to be July 26, 1939.

Q. Do you remember where that meeting occurred?

A. It took place at the Deutches Haus—D-e-u-t-c-h-e-s H-a-u-s—two words.

Q. You were a member of the audience at the time Mr. Chase spoke? A. I was there; yes.

Q. Was he also a member of the audience?

A. He was a speaker.

Q. Do you recall what he spoke about? [3174]

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to the question: The question is, "Do you recall what Ezra Chase spoke on at this meeting?" I object to the question, on the ground that it is immaterial and irrelevant, and not proper examination in this proceeding.

Mr. Gladstein: It shows bias. That is the purpose of the examination.

Presiding Inspector: Bias?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. Do you want an explanation of it?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, now, if your Honor please, I don't think——

Presiding Inspector: I don't understand that you can show—was there reference to the Alien in the speech?

Mr. Gladstein: No—yes. As a matter of fact, there was reference to the Alien in the speech, but that isn't the only point. The point is this: We are going to establish by this witness, who was present at this meeting——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): I don't think this should be permitted in the presence of the witness.

Presiding Inspector: I have to know what it is about before I can rule on it. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: We wish to establish by this witness, who was present at this meeting of the German-American Bund, that Ezra F. Chase spoke as a speaker on the rostrum at that [3175] meeting under the auspices of the German-American Bund, and that he publicly advocated that people should join the German-American Bund.

Now,——

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude it.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished yet.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: We contend that any person who has done that shows anti-labor bias, and we will establish before this hearing is over the German-American Bund itself is anti-labor and preaches doctrines which are anti-labor.

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude it.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished yet.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: And, consequently, the witness, Ezra F. Chase, by virtue of this proof, demonstrates that he had at that time an anti-labor bias, not only against labor in general, but also against Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know that we are trying any Bund, or trying any labor case here. We are simply trying the question as to whether the Alien comes within the definition of a deportable person in the statutes. Now, we can't go into these remote matters of other organizations, their prejudices, unless there is some reference to the defendant.

Mr. Gladstein: As a matter of fact, there was. The article which was written up shows that Mr. Chase did refer to [3176] Bridges. But that is only a part of it.

If your Honor feels that on that point——

Presiding Inspector: You should have brought that out——

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Mr. Gladstein: We didn't know it at that time, but it don't make any difference, because we asked him about his bias, and on direct examination he was asked on the question of bias, and he claims he wasn't biased in his testimony, and claims he wasn't a labor spy.

Your Honor, we have a right to prove—you correctly state what the primary problem is for you to settle——

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: But how is that problem to be settled—by the testimony of witnesses. One of the witnesses the Government has produced is Ezra F. Chase. Now, the question as to whether he is to be believed in the testimony that he has given is obviously one that requires a consideration of other factors, one of which is whether or not the witness is so biased on the question of labor in general that he is willing to take the stand and say things which are not true against a recognized leader of the labor movement.

We say, and we are willing to make an offer at this time, that we will establish before this case is over that the German-American Bund is definitely anti-labor, and anti-Bridges, and that by speaking under the auspices of that Bund, Mr. Ezra F. Chase marks himself as anti-Bridges and anti-labor. [3177]

Presiding Inspector: Well, I think that is too remote. I will allow you to show what, if anything, Mr. Chase said at this meeting in respect to Mr. Bridges.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Mr. Gladstein: Of course, I will accept that. But, in addition to that, I wish your Honor to know that we feel that any man who under the auspices of the German American Bund makes a speech advocating that he will join that organization, thereby demonstrates an anti-labor bias and we think we have a right to show that in this record.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, that is three times counsel has repeated that and I think there should be a limit to arguments along that line. And he fails to state that there has been a marriage between the Nazis and the Communists.

Presiding Inspector: Well, we all know about that. I think that we will exclude the Bund.

Mr. Gladstein: Could we have the last question?

Presiding Inspector: And its attitude toward trade unions. I suppose that is what you mean by "labor"?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I am going to——

Presiding Inspector: Let us go as far as you can. I will let you state what Mr. Chase said about Mr. Bridges to show any bias.

Mr. Gladstein: I want to put a direct question to the [3178] witness first.

Presiding Inspector: You may.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Miss Lowry, is it not a fact that at this meeting to which we are having reference now in your testimony Mr. Chase publicly advocated that people should become——

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): I can't hear counsel, if your Honor please. I can't hear you at all, not a word you are saying.

Mr. Gladstein: When I am finished with the question counsel can ask the reporter to repeat it instead of interrupting.

Mr. Del Guercio: I have a right to ask it at any time.

Presiding Inspector: He is entitled to hear it from you by word of mouth.

Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Did you have trouble hearing me, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: I did at that time. You had your hand over your face when you were speaking. You may not have realized it. I think the reporter probably could hear it.

Mr. Gladstein: Shall I proceed with the question, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: No, let the reporter read it.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows: [3179]

"Q. Miss Lowry, is if not a fact that at this meeting to which we are having reference now in your testimony Mr. Chase publicly advocated that people should become——")

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. ——should become members of the German American Bund? A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Please don't answer the question until the Court rules.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude it.

Mr. Gladstein: I now wish the record to show that I am making an offer of proof to this effect: That if this witness now on the stand were permitted to answer the question that I have just asked her, her answer would be, in substance, that Mr. Ezra F. Chase at this meeting of the German American Bund that has been identified publicly advocated that people should become members of the German American Bund.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to the offer of proof.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is material. I can't see how it is material.

Mr. Gladstein: That was the purpose of bringing this testimony into the record and I have no further questions to ask. I simply want the record to show this offer of proof and I am satisfied with the record as it is.

You may cross examine. [3180]

Presiding Inspector: I will hear the question. Did he say anything about Harry Bridges?

The Witness: Mr. Bridges was mentioned.

Presiding Inspector: In what way?

The Witness: Would I be allowed to refer to the report? because I don't remember the thing clearly.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly.

(The report referred to was passed to the witness.)

The Witness: Do you wish me to read it?

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Presiding Inspector: No. Tell us what he said as best you can, using your notes to refresh your recollection.

The Witness: He said that he had attended a meeting—no, several meetings at which Bridges had spoken and that he had heard Bridges giving orders to a certain union saying "You have to watch out for Red-baiters. They are put into a union by the employers to cause dissention and to split the unions". And he went on further to say that the Communists claimed that anyone who wasn't with them was against them, and that, whereas he knew that Bridges was a member, he couldn't prove it; he couldn't prove that he was a member if he had to, because so many people change names, and so forth, in the Communist Party that it was impossible to produce any proof.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Miss Lowry, did he make a reference in his speech to the deportation trial that was taking place against Mr. Bridges [3181] at that time?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, I will object to that. Counsel said that he was through with his examination of the witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor opened it.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. I opened it and I think I will allow that question. This may or may not show bias, I don't know.

The Witness: I don't see an actual reference to any deportation trial here, no.

Mr. Gladstein: May I see it for a moment?

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

(The report referred to was passed to Mr. Gladstein.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Is counsel going to refresh the witness' recollection or the document?

Presiding Inspector: Oh, I think that this is perfectly proper. It is a long document and he has probably read it very recently.

The Witness: It was almost two years ago.

Mr. Gladstein: Excuse me, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Take your time, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Del Guercio: We join in that.

Mr. Gladstein: We have no further questions.

Presiding Inspector: You withdraw the question?

Mr. Del Guercio: Is he withdrawing the last question? [3182]

Presiding Inspector: Yes. He withdrew it.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I have what the last question was?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q. Miss Lowry, did he make a reference in his speech to the deportation trial that was taking place against Mr. Bridges at that time?")

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, did he?

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment, your Honor! At this time I want to make an objection to all cross examination by the Government counsel because the only questions that were asked the witness and permitted to be answered were preliminary questions, having no relevance whatsoever except in so far as the subsequent questions were permitted. Now, the questions that we considered relevant to this case as going to the bias of Mr. Chase have not been permitted by your Honor. Now, therefore in effect there has been no direct examination whatsoever.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Will you answer the question, pease, Miss Lowry?

Presiding Inspector: This is to explain anything that may be in the mind of the trier of the facts or anyone who subsequently examines this record in view of the statements earlier [3183] made by counsel for the Alien.

Go ahead: That is its sole point.

A. The question was, do I have any recollection of a reference in his speech to the deportation trial that was taking place against Mr. Bridges?

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Yes.

A. I have no recollection of that and I am not able to find it in the report.

Presiding Inspector: That is all. Go ahead. Next question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mrs. Lowry, is the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League still in existence?

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

A. I don't think it is.

Q. When did it go out of existence, do you know? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if it went out of existence at the time of the making of the treaty between Hitler and Soviet Russia?

A. I don't think it could have, no. I think it must have been in existence much longer because I know I was a member for a year, which would carry me into May, 1940, or June, 1940.

Q. Mrs. Lowry, have you ever been a member of the Young Communist League? [3184]

A. Of the what?

Q. Young Communist League? A. No.

Q. Are you sure?

A. I am very sure, Mr. Del Guercio.

Q. Did you ever read the magazine "New Frontiers"? A. The what?

Q. "New Frontiers".

A. I never heard of the magazine.

Q. Is that your photograph appearing in this magazine? A. It is not.

Q. It is not? A. It is not.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all, if your Honor please.

Mr. Gladstein: One further question, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I suppose under your ruling, however, I would not be permitted to ask it, but I think I would like at least for the purpose of the record to ask permission. This would not be redirect strictly, but it should be direct.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. Certainly.

Mr. Gladstein: I would like to ask permission to consider that this question was asked on direct, and that is to this effect. I don't suppose I need ask the question because I know there would be an objection, but I wish to make an offer [3185] of proof at this time that, if I were permitted to ask of the witness on the stand presently the question, Did Mr. Ezra F. Chase make an attack on Labor's Non-Partisan League on the occasion when you heard him speak under the auspices of the German American Bund? that her answer would be, in substance, He did.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, your Honor. The Labor's Non-Partisan League is not at issue.

Presiding Inspector: Have we heard anything about Labor's Non-Partisan League?

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know that it has been mentioned.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know, either.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, in a general way I will be subject to correction, Labor's Non-Partisan League has been called the "political arm of the Congress of Industrial Organizations" and is a national organization with chapters or subdivisions in various States of the United States, and not only represents in legislative and political fields the CIO, but also many affiliated groups.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Now, I don't offer this as evidence and I am subject to correction, but that is in general my description.

Presiding Inspector: An arm of the CIO?

Mr. Gladstein: It is connected—it has been connected with the CIO. [3186]

Mr. Del Guercio: May I supplement that description, inasmuch as counsel has given his?

We have information, too, and I am simply speaking about this Non-Partisan League: That it is a Communist controlled——

Mr. Gladstein (Interposing): I think John L. Lewis is the President of it.

Mr. Del Guercio: But there is no evidence here—we are not trying the Labor's Non-Partisan League. We are not alleging that Bridges is a member of the Labor's Non-Partisan League. It isn't at issue here.

Mr. Gladstein: Of course, it isn't, and that's why they don't allege it!

Mr. Del Guercio: There is that remark of counsel again, and there is the implication. I think I have the right to answer him.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I say that Bridges is a member of the Communist Party.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, he has been saying that from the start, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Neither assertion amounts to anything.

Mr. Gladstein: That's right, I know.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Presiding Inspector: So let us not make those accusation. [3187]

Let us hear the question.

Mr. Gladstein: It is an offer of proof.

(The offer of proof referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Del Guercio: There is an objection, of course.

Presiding Inspector: I know. And you are going to add to that offer the further offer of proof that Mr. Bridges is a member of the Non-Partisan League?

Mr. Gladstein: He is, and during his testimony——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) That is part of your offer?

Mr. Gladstein: I don't think we could very well ask Miss Lowry as to whether Mr. Bridges is a member of the Labor's Non-Partisan League, but we will establish that he is, I think, the California Director of Labor's Non-Partisan League.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take that proof. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: I should amend that statement. Mr. Bridges, as California Director of the CIO——

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't accept that.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished yet.

Presiding Inspector: Let him finish.

Mr. Gladstein: Is obviously connected with Labor's [3188] Non-Partisan League and is also a member of Labor's Non-Partisan League.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry:)

Presiding Inspector: Very well. I will take the proof.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you understand the question?

A. The question is, Did Mr. Chase make any attack on Labor's Non-Partisan League in the course of the speech?

Q. Yes.

A. May I see the report, again, please?

Q. Yes, of course.

(The report referred to was passed to the witness.)

Presiding Inspector: Of course, the question here is where to draw the line, Mr. Gladstein. You understand that,

Mr. Gladstein: I realize that, your Honor. But this question of anti-labor bias is not a simple thing to define. It may be shown in a variety of ways, and our contention is that a man——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) It bears very slight, it seems to me, on the credibility of the witness.

Mr. Gladstein: It so happens, your Honor, —and this I will say also—that the testimony that we have offered to the effect that Mr. Chase advocated membership in the German American Bund will be more closely linked with vital testimony in this case when Mr. Bridges takes the stand, because we intend to show that Mr. Bridges has exposed to the Department of Justice [3189] at least on one occasion, if not on several, the activities of Nazi spies in some of the aircraft plants in the southern part of California. And, obviously, anyone who takes such steps and reveals such things either to the Secretary of Labor or to the Department of Justice is a target for people who are connected with or members of or advocates of membership in the German American Bund.

Presiding Inspector: I shouldn't think that would be applicable to a meeting held—when was this meeting?

The Witness: July, 1939.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) —July, 1939, which was at least a month before war began. I mean, abroad.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I reply to counsel's argument here?

Presiding Inspector: You may, yes. Of course, it went rather far afield.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is far afield, but he is taking this opportunity here in order to show what Mr. Bridges has done. In other words, he has branded Mr. Chase as being a labor spy for doing the same thing that he now admits that Mr. Bridges has done.

Presiding Inspector: That is argumentative. We will take that up when we come to it.

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I was wondering there whether he was going to brand his client as a labor spy.

[3190]

Presiding Inspector: Well, you hope so. Go ahead, Mr. Gladstein.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Could you now answer the question, Miss Lowry?

A. Yes, I shall. Mr. Chase said that——

Q. (Interposing) First of all, could you answer the question as to whether he attacked Labor's Non-Partisan League?

A. Yes. He did attack it.

Mr. Gladstein: Does your Honor wish to hear the manner in which he attacked it?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question. I will withdraw the objection.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

The Witness: Mr. Chase said, I think the previous year, that the Board of Education has been trying to prove that Labor's Non-Partisan League was Communist in order to keep it out of the schools, Mr. Chase said that it was his own testimony that clinched matters and decided the Board of Education that Labor's Non-Partisan League was Communistic and that he had testified to a lot of things like that; that he got around a lot.

Presiding Inspector: What did she say there at the end?

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.) [3191]

(Testimony of Jeannine Lowry.)

The Witness: His words were, "I get around. I speak before a lot of groups and all, but some of them ain't got the courage to come out in the open just yet".

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did he mention any groups in there that do have the courage to come out in the open?

A. No, he didn't.

Q. Did he make any reference to people in the Bund, coming out in the open?

A. Oh, yes. He urged that people join the Bund.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that. This is an attack on Labor's Non-Partisan League.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will just allow that single sentence to stay in the record. It really goes outside of my ruling.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Anything further?

Mr. Del Guercio: Nothing further, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

The Witness: Thank you, Your Honor.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Next witness, Mr. Gladstein.

We might take a five-minute recess.

[3192]

Mr. Gladstein: Will you take the stand, please.

Rotary Colorprint, 590 Folsom St., San Francisco

VIRGIL MacMICKLE

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: Give your name to the reporter.

The Witness: Dr. Virgil MacMickle; V-i-r-g-i-l M-a-c-M-i-c-k-l-e.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. MacMickle? A. MacMickle. That's it.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. Portland, Oregon.

Q. What is your address?

A. My business address is 327 Park Building.

Q. Is that spelled P-a-r-k or with an "e" on it? A. P-a-r-k.

Q. What is your profession?

A. I am a naturopathic physician.

Q. Have you practiced that profession in Portland for some time?

A. I started my twenty-eighth year in practice on March 15th of this year.

Q. Doctor, during your——

Presiding Inspector: Don't you think we ought to know a [3193] little bit more about this profession? I regret to say I have never heard of it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. All right. Will you describe it a little more fully, please.

A. In Oregon we have the regular medical and surgical profession and the osteopathic and allo-

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

pathic and the naturopathic, and we also have licensing and examining boards. As a matter of fact, we all have to pass the basic sciences in pathology —

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I asked for information simply. Are you allowed to diagnose?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Disease?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Or pathological condition?

The Witness: That's right. I am.

Presiding Inspector: And are you entitled to prescribe and treat?

The Witness: I am prescribed to do everything, your Honor, except major surgery and the use of pharmaceutical drugs. [3194]

Presiding Inspector: This is all unknown to me. I want information.

Mr. Gladstein: I see.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. When did you obtain your license in Oregon to practice this profession?

A. Well, you see, when I first started in practice we were included under the Osteopathic Act of 1907. We had no separate board of our own. Then we got our license law in 1927, at the 1927 session of the Oregon Legislature.

Q. And since that time have you been licensed continuously in the State of Oregon as a naturopathic?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes, I have. As a matter of fact, I was appointed to the first long term on the board by Governor I. L. Patterson, and then I was reappointed by Governor Julius Meyer.

Q. What board is that?

A. The Naturopathic Board of Examiners.

Q. Do you still hold that position with that board? A. No, sir.

Q. What were the terms during which you held those positions?

A. From 1927 to—I believe the first appointment was—until 1930. Then, due to the death of Governor Patterson we had a Governor pro-tem, who, when my term expired, appointed another fellow; and then there was an independent election and [3195] Governor Meyer came in and removed the previous appointee who had been put on my position, and I filled his unexpired term.

Q. Until when?

A. Well, that would be from 1931, July 1, 1931, until July 1, 1933.

Q. And in that profession you are entitled, are you not, to the designation of "Doctor", is that correct?

A. Yes. We are legally—we have the right to sign all documents, and all that sort of thing, that are conventionally signed by any physician.

Q. Did you, while you were practicing your profession in the City of Portland, ever meet a man by the name of Robert Wilmot? A. Yes.

Q. When did you first make his acquaintance?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that question. If he met him in the capacity of a doctor, of course, the communication would be privileged.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know what it is. We will find out.

Mr. Del Guercio: Before this question is answered.

Presiding Inspector: I will find out whether he met him or not. There can be no harm in that.

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question. [3196]

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. My recollection is probably in 1936; that is as near as my recollection serves.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. And for how long a period of time did you remain acquainted with Mr. Wilmot?

A. Well, I suppose to the present moment. I haven't seen much of him in the last year. I have passed him on the street just recently.

Q. Do you know whether for a time, during your acquaintance with Mr. Wilmot, he was connected with the CIO in Portland?

A. Yes; he was the editor of the Labor New Dealer.

Q. Was Mr. Wilmot ever a patient of yours?

A. Yes.

Q. During what period of time?

A. Well, I would say he was a patient off and on, probably, from the time I first knew him until about a year ago.

Q. During that period of time did you ever have occasion to discuss with other people the reputation of Mr. Wilmot for truth and veracity?

A. Yes. In the last year of our—as I say, prior to a year ago, which was the year 1940, I did.

Q. Do you know what Mr. Wilmot's reputation was as of that time and has remained since, what that reputation is and was, [3197] with the people with whom Mr. Wilmot was associated or came into contact with as respects his truth and veracity?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question. No proper foundation has been laid for it. The witness has not been qualified sufficiently.

Presiding Inspector: I think he has. He lives in the same community, knew him, he was a patient of his.

Mr. Del Guercio: Only as a patient, but on the other——

Presiding Inspector: This is to show his acquaintance with him.

Mr. Del Guercio: Does the doctor-patient relationship come within the rule?

Presiding Inspector: This is merely as to acquaintance. He isn't going to disclose anything he learned in that way.

Mr. Del Guercio: Perhaps I don't make myself clear. It seems to me that this witness—I may be wrong—has testified that his only relationship apparently with Mr. Wilmot has been that as doctor and patient.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: The other, if he has had any other association, isn't very clear.

Presiding Inspector: He says he passed him on the street, passed him casually, I suppose. But that doesn't make any difference. This shows that he has heard his character discussed by people that were in the vicinity where he lives. [3198]

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow you to ask if his reputation is good or bad.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment.

Presiding Inspector: I thought he said he knew.

The Witness: Yes, I do.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know whether that reputation for truth and veracity of Mr. Robert Wilmot was and is good or bad?

A. The last year of my knowledge, bad.

Q. Would you believe him under oath?

A. No, I wouldn't.

Q. Doctor, during the practice of your profession did you ever meet a man by the name of Richard Lovelace? A. Many times.

Q. When did you first become acquainted with Mr. Lovelace? A. I should say along in 1933.

Q. Have you know him fairly continuously since that time? A. Very continuously.

Q. Is he alive today?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. No. He died, I would say, about two months ago, if my recollection is right.

Q. Was he a patient of yours?

A. Yes. He was a patient of mine off and on during [3199] that period.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, before I proceed further I have this question to raise with the Court: I think we are entitled, in view of the fact that Mr. Lovelace is not available, and in view of the fact that your Honor has admitted a statement signed by Mr. Lovelace, to go into the question of the mental condition of Mr. Lovelace during a period of, say, a year or so prior to his death.

Now, I anticipate that counsel will object on the ground that I am seeking to disclose confidential matters. I assure you that is not my intention, but I do not see how I can avoid necessarily bringing some of that out; although some of the testimony of this witness will have to do with matters that are generally known and which, I believe—I can't state this on absolute assurance—I believe other witnesses in this case will also substantiate, that is, matters of not perhaps common knowledge, but matters at least which are not confined merely within the confidential relationship of a patient and his doctor.

Mr. Del Guercio: It isn't only that on ground that we object. We are not concerned, and counsel should not have made reference to any other witness; we are concerned mainly with this witness. We would object to anyone besmirching the character of a dead man who is unable to protect himself, regardless of who the witness may be. [3200]

Presiding Inspector: I am a little puzzled about how to rule on this thing. If you want to put lay witnesses on and show that his conduct was such and such, and should be characterized as irrational, why, I think I would receive that.

Mr. Gladstein: That is what we want to do.

Mr. Del Guercio: I am assuming that the witness' ethics are such that they wouldn't permit him to answer.

Presiding Inspector: Yes—I don't know.

Mr. Grossman: May I ask this question?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: If that were true how would it be possible in any court to prove mental incompetence? Obviously, to prove it scientifically it is necessary to call a medical man who has some kind of a relationship with the person involved.

Mr. Del Guercio: With the consent of his family and guardian.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose you could show it by lay witnesses, and ask a hypothetical question based on the lay witnesses.

Of course, we know the Hippocratic oath of confidence, which is recognized by courts. Of course, this is not a court proceeding but—

Mr. Grossman: In almost any court the common law rule of evidence, because of lack of cross examination, the affidavit of a dead man, which cannot otherwise be challenged by cross [3201] examination, is not admissible. Obviously, how are we to answer this? How are we to discredit this, how are we to produce any evidence if that which is most scientific, and which deals most with the credibility of the statement is not allowed, and that is mental condition of the person who made the statement, if that cannot be gone into in a scientific way?

We recognize also the difficulty you point out of the possible violation of that oath and that is why we ask for a ruling on it.

Presiding Inspector: I am frankly puzzled by it.

Mr. Gladstein: That is why I put the question the way I did, without proceeding further. I recognize the difficulty of the problem, but, your Honor, in so far as we desire to bring out——

Presiding Inspector: The subject matter is competent, is pertinent, but——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) I understand.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——but it is only whether this witness can testify on account of the privilege which every person is given when that person consults a physician. You see the law, both statutory and, in some states, common law, holds that the welfare of the people is best served by preserving the privilege of the patient and the confidence of the patient, even though it may interfere with the due administration of justice. [3202]

I know the criticism of Dean Wigmore, for example, as to all of these privileges, but the physician, the Priest and the lawyer are put in a class and are not allowed to violate the confidence of their patients, or of their parishioner and of their client.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I would like to have you present some authority on this if you could.

Mr. Gladstein: I am very willing to look at the authorities on that.

The thing that occurs to us, your Honor, is that if—I may state this furthermore before I ask the question: This witness, I believe, is in a position to testify, not only to those things which he learned concerning Richard Lovelace as a result of the professional relationship that was sustained between the two, but also things which are not, strictly speaking, things that were revealed during or within the confines of that relationship.

I have in mind things which possibly other people may also be in a position to vouch for. However, would the fact that this witness is not a layman, and did come by some of his information as a result of having Mr. Lovelace as a patient, would that disqualify him from also testifying as to things that he knows about Mr. Lovelace that did not come to him in the patient-doctor relationship?

[3203]

Mr. Del Guercio: The answer to that is quite obvious, your Honor. If there is a relationship of physician-patient—I assume the witness is a physician—anything that he may learn from whatever source necessarily comes within the rule of confidence, because he has knowledge gained during the relationship of physician and patient, and it must be necessarily because of that knowledge gained that he would base his opinion, as to what others would say, if that confidential relationship exists.

Presiding Inspector: I would like to have some authorities presented.

Mr. Gladstein: Before we go into that let me proceed on another line of examination.

Presiding Inspector: I am not finally ruling, you see.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. But, I thought I could go into some other matters before we come to this question again.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Doctor, prior to Mr. Lovelace's death, did you ever have occasion to discuss with other people who knew or worked with Mr. Lovelace his reputation for truth and veracity?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Do you know what that reputation was for a period of, let us say, the last year of his life, among his acquaintances, with the people in the vicinity with whom he worked?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please, [3204] as asking for the reputation for truth and veracity of a dead man.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it but, of course, if we find out that this is influenced in any way by his knowledge as to what had been disclosed to him in the relationship of patient and doctor, of course you might have to strike this out. But so far as it appears in your question it doesn't appear that there is any such element.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: Right.

Presiding Inspector: I want the witness to understand that in this matter you are not to take into consideration anything more than what you have heard discussed by others who were his neighbors, or his associates, or had some knowledge of him.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Based on those discussions are you in a position to state whether you know what Mr. Lovelace's reputation for truth and veracity was during, let us say, the last year of his life?

A. Very bad.

Q. Would you—well,—it is obvious that the next question must refer, of course, to the period during which he signed that statement.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Would you, during the period of time, or during the last year of his life—— [3205]

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is really material, that statement.

Mr. Gladstein: It was introduced here as if it was sworn to.

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't make any difference whether it was sworn to or not as far as admissibility is concerned.

Mr. Gladstein: The more we come to the question the more it appears to me that if the usual rules of law are to be applied to this question of the Richard Lovelace statement, as you point out, we are prevented in one way or another from establishing that there was no truth or veracity to be attached to the man, and there is no way of cross examining the man, of course, and no way to attempt to probe the basis of the opinions and statements he sets forth in the statement. I am convinced, your Honor, that I frankly cannot see that there is any alternative for the Court but to solve the question by striking the statement of Mr. Lovelace from the record.

Presiding Inspector: That may finally be done. I don't know. I don't think I will do it now.

Mr. Gladstein: The only difficulty with delaying the thing is that it leaves us in this position:——

Presiding Inspector: Frankly, it is an extension of the common law rule. I am going beyond that in admitting the statement. There is no question about that. But in this administrative hearing, where the only confines are, first, [3206] relevancy and, second, fairness, I thought that I was justified in receiving the statement. But you are in a difficulty here. I think I will allow you to show that this witness could not, during the period that you have specified, believe his statement under oath.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I will ask you that question now, Doctor. During the last year of his life would you have believed Richard Lovelace under oath?

A. No.

Q. Now, Doctor, are you in a position to tell us——

Presiding Inspector: Excuse me—this is a little different, of course, from the usual case. There have been intimations here which are sufficient to lead me to surmise that perhaps there are other reasons why he wouldn't believe him, and the fact that he was not a truthful person ordinarily; but we will have to let that stand, I suppose.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Of course, the question that I asked, or intended to be understood, was based on his reputation so I will ask it that way—in the last question which I wish to reframe now—I want to ask this: Would you, based on your knowledge of Mr. Lovelace's reputation for truth and veracity during the last year of his life, have believed him under oath at any time during that period? [3207] A. No.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment. I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it. There is a difficulty here.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Doctor——

Presiding Inspector: It is somewhat doubtful.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

I think you are right in interposing an objection.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Are you in a position to testify as to activities or the conduct of Mr. Lovelace during the last year, let us say, or thereabouts, of his life, showing a lack of mental competency based on knowledge or information obtained by you outside of your medical profession relationship with Mr. Lovelace?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment. That question almost amounts to contempt. Counsel knows that Mr. Lovelace was under treatment by the Veterans Bureau up until the time of his death.

Presiding Inspector: That has been in the record.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is correct. If he wanted any information concerning Mr. Lovelace's mental capacity during that period of time that would have been the place to have gone, and not to this person here who hasn't been qualified as [3208] a——

Presiding Inspector: There is some proof, I think, from Mrs. Lovelace, that her husband was under treatment. That is so, isn't it?

Mr. Gladstein: She said something like that, but we are not confined to ascertaining what the Veterans Hospital records say was the cause of his death, or anything of the sort.

Mr. Del Guercio: Not that; what they show concerning his mental condition, and they do show that.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: In another respect, of course, if Mr. Del Guercio raises the question about confidence, those records, I take it, are subject to the same rule that he raised, isn't that right?

Presiding Inspector: I suppose so.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. There is another thing I wish to point out: Whether the present witness is a doctor or not, if he has learned through sources other than the medical professional relationship that he sustained with Mr. Lovelace, that Mr. Lovelace was committing acts, or was guilty of conduct which, to any reasonable person, would be considered irrational, for example—and I mention this simply as an example—if he knows of his own knowledge that Mr. Lovelace, during the last year of his life, was writing letters to people and attempting to extort money, and making threats, and being very irrational, I think he would be in a position and entitled to testify as to [3209] that, unless those matters came to his knowledge only by virtue of his being the doctor in the case. In other words, I think——

Presiding Inspector: I will let him testify to any peculiar acts of which he has notice, and which he did not learn from the lips of Mr. Lovelace, or from anyone else of his family, or which he did not see, observe, during the time that he was treating him.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all right.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the witness can distinguish them.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: I know we are in difficult water here, stormy water, and I think I will try to survive and swim in it—and I don't know whether I can or not—but we will see if the witness can answer that question.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to it on another ground—that it is improper.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow anything that you didn't learn from him, or from his wife, and which you know about, which occurred during the last year, is that the time, the last year?

Mr. Gladstein: Say, during the last year or so of his life.

The Witness: Shall I go ahead?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

A. Well, I know from the lips of friends—this he wouldn't tell me himself of course—[3210]

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I can't hear.

Presiding Inspector: He said, "I know from the lips of friends, this he wouldn't tell me himself, of course"——

A. (Continuing) He had the peculiarity of turning suddenly sour on one or another of his close friends, and denouncing them in, well, vile language, and threatening them with physical violence.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I move——

Mr. Gladstein: He hasn't finished his answer.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move to strike the answer out.

Mr. Gladstein: I think the witness should be permitted to finish his answer before there is an objection to it.

Presiding Inspector: I think he about has.

The Witness: No, I haven't.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. We will hear the rest of the answer.

A. (Continuing) He did write letters, and these were brought to me by the husband of the woman in question, in which he did attempt to extort money from the woman by various threats, some of them phrased in such obscene language that I wouldn't dare to repeat them here; and the husband also assured me that he had orally and in person tried to terrorize his wife. Then, of course, that matter was, in due course, introduced before the proper authorities there. I know Mr. Stack, in Portland, phoned me about it because I merely recommended to the husband, [3211] who wanted to know what to do, to communicate with the authorities. I sent him to Mr. Stack, who had that function, and Mr. Stack called back and discussed the matter with me.

So I know those letters were written, and they were pretty terrible, and they were voluminous.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move to strike out his entire answer. It is obvious that this witness is violating his confidence.

Presiding Inspector: I can't say that is so positively. If he received these letters, or was shown these letters by some acquaintance, which he can say were written by Mr. Lovelace, I will take his testimony along that line so far as those letters are concerned.

Mr. Del Guercio: We can't confront him with the testimony of Mr. Lovelace because Mr. Lovelace is dead. We can't bring him back to give the lie to that.

Mr. Grossman: He is not attributing this to Mr. Lovelace. Mr. Lovelace wouldn't be the proper one to testify on it anyhow, but it can be checked by the people involved.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. This is what this witness has seen, threatening letters, letters of extortion, which might be said to be letters demanding money, blackmail, extortion, addressed to some wife of a friend of his. Now, you may show who that man is. Perhaps you had better do that.

It is rather unfortunate to bring all this into this case. [3212]

A. (Continuing) Yes, and——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) There is no question pending. The Court should admonish the witness not to answer unless there is a question before him.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Don't answer unless there is a question. Go ahead. I have ruled. Go ahead.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Is there any doubt in your mind, Doctor, that the threatening letters that you have mentioned, were letters written by Mr. Richard Lovelace during his life?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that on the same ground—we know what the witness' answer will be—that we cannot bring Mr. Lovelace back.

Presiding Inspector: But you might bring this man in to whom the letters were addressed, or his wife. I will take it.

The Witness: I didn't catch the question.

Presiding Inspector: Do you know whether or not these were in the handwriting of Mr. Lovelace?

A. Well, I definitely was convinced in my own mind that they were.

Presiding Inspector: That isn't enough. Do you know whether they were?

The Witness: They bore his signature and they came through the mail addressed to this person, and the husband had confronted [3213] Mr. Lovelace with them.

Presiding Inspector: That is what he told you?

The Witness: Yes; and threatened to kill him. [3214]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did Mr. Lovelace ever discuss these letters subsequently with you? A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question. There again we can't bring back Mr. Lovelace to confront this witness.

Presiding Inspector: Were you treating him?

The Witness: No. He was under the Veteran's treatment.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: You weren't treating him?

The Witness: No.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow that as to what you discussed with him.

A. Well, after this husband of the woman received these letters or found them among his wife's possessions and brought them to me, at least he seemed to be in the mood to do great violence, and I talked him out of it. And he talked with Mr. Lovelace in the afternoon, and the next morning Mr. Lovelace asked me by some means, because I had known the lady in question, if I couldn't get these letters back. And I said, No, I couldn't do anything of that sort. And then subsequently he informed me that it didn't make any difference.

Mr. Gladstein: What is the last part?

Presiding Inspector: "Subsequently he informed me that [3215] it didn't make any difference." That was the last.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever have a discussion with Mr. Lovelace concerning these letters in which he said that he had taken some steps in Washington, D. C. to help him? A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, just a minute, please! I will object to that question on the same ground.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. I will take that. You see, you couldn't call the attention of

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Lovelace because Mr. Lovelace was dead. I will take it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You said "Yes"? A. Yes.

Presiding Inspector: This is where we are trying to chart a course where there are no lighthouses or buoys or anything else.

Mr. Del Guercio: We do have, however, your Honor, reason. Reason would dictate the exclusion of it.

Presiding Inspector: I am trying to apply reason. I may be wrong.

Mr. Gladstein: We recognize it is difficult, your Honor. This is hearsay, but the statement itself is subject to the same objection.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. [3216]

Mr. Del Guercio: Hearsay, if your Honor please, and coming from the lips of a man who has testified that he was that dead person's physician.

Presiding Inspector: Not at this time.

Mr. Del Guercio: During the lifetime of that dead person.

Presiding Inspector: Not at this time.

Mr. Gladstein: May I have the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What was that conversation, the substance of it?

A. Well, he came in and said "Don't worry about those letters anymore. I don't care about them. I have got too many friends in Washington. It's all fixed up."

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Are you in a position to say, Doctor, of your own knowledge about any other conduct of Mr. Lovelace which was abnormal or peculiar that you didn't learn from or during your professional relationship with him?

A. Well, he became a habitual drunkard, as would be evidenced by meeting him on the street and in social gatherings and things of that sort.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move to strike that. I move that that answer be stricken, your Honor, as obviously improper.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it. As to his being an habitual drunkard, I think I will exclude. But you may [3217] have him tell how many times he saw him drunk.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Would you do that, please, Doctor?

A. Well, I saw him drunk almost daily over a large period of—well, a good part of a year.

Q. A good part of a year?

A. A good part of a year, almost daily, except Sundays which, of course, I wouldn't be downtown.

Q. Was Mr. Lovelace on the public streets in Portland at that time? A. Yes, very much.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, your Honor, there is only one more question that I wish to go into. But, as I say, you prefer a memorandum. I will try during the noon hour. Therefore, I wish to reserve until I have had a chance to check the authorities to find what the law says as to my right to bring out a question, which very frankly goes to the mental competency of Mr. Lovelace but which would, of course, involve the professional relationship of the doctor with Mr. Lovelace.

Presiding Inspector: I think you had better postpone that.

Mr. Gladstein: With that reservation, that I haven't finished my direct for that reason only, I am perfectly willing to have counsel cross examine the doctor now.

Mr. Del Guercio: We will not cross until they are through with their examination. [3218]

Presiding Inspector: All right. They have that right. We will let you withdraw the witness at this time.

Mr. Gladstein: I had, frankly intended, your Honor,—I didn't think that we would need another witness this morning, because I thought that the cross and direct would certainly go through twelve thirty. And I anticipate that it would, if it were begun now. The questions that I wish to bring out from this witness, though, as I say, revolve around his confidential relationship.

Mr. Del Guercio: I——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Maybe if I asked the witness, it is possible that some of his information came from other sources. I do not know. I would like to ask him that.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

Mr. Gladstein: Perhaps it is possible.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Doctor, concerning the apparent mental condition of Mr. Lovelace during, let us say, the last year or thereabouts of his life,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Let us find when he ceased to be his patient.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. When did he cease to be your patient?

A. Oh, I would say along in the fall of 1939.

Q. He was your patient off and on from around 1934, I [3219] think you said, until 1939?

A. Yes. You know, minor ailments and things of that sort.

Mr. Del Guercio: From 1933 I believe was the previous testimony.

The Witness: From 1933.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Well now, subsequent to the fall of 1939, subsequent to the time that he ceased to be your patient, are you in a position to say from your observation of him and your knowledge of his conduct as to whether he appeared to be mentally abnormal and, if so, in what respects?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment, if your Honor please. I will object to the question unless the witness is able to distinguish between knowledge gained——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Yes. I think I will sustain the objection. May I suggest to you that you treat him as a lay witness?

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: And ask him whether these acts which he has now described impressed him as rational or irrational, characterizing the acts rather than the man.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: And let the conclusion about the man go to the trier of the facts so far as this witness is con- [3220] cerned.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Well now, in the questions that I am going to ask you from now on, Doctor, will you please bear in mind to confine yourself only to that period that starts after Mr. Lovelace ceased to be your patient? Is that clear?

A. That's right.

Presiding Inspector: And to the acts that he has described.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, there may be others that I want to ask him about.

Presiding Inspector: Oh yes. Which he has described or may describe.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you observe, outside of the condition which I think you described as habitual drunkenness, and the other incidents about the threatening letters, anything else concerning Mr. Lovelace that was unusual or peculiar?

A. Yes. In his, oh, in his private social conversation—I mean, in talking as man to man and not as man to physician——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I can't hear the witness.

The Witness: I am sorry. I will try to speak louder.

Presiding Inspector: Read the answer.

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.) [3221]

A. (Continuing) ——he on one occasion asked me if I ever talked to the "pixies". And I looked at him peculiarly, and he said "Well, I do". And then he would indulge in a conversation with you which might start out rationally enough and then a blank stare would come over his face, he would change color and then suddenly he would pass his hand over his face like that and shake himself a little bit and then say, "Well, what were we talking about?" His mind from a lay man's point of view did not track. He was not rational and coherent.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was he violent in his manner of speech or in his general manner?

A. Yes. He was violent in his speech and in his gesticulations. He seemed to have no capacity to say anything during that last year in an ordinary tone of voice and in ordinary language. He had to resort to very strong language and a great deal of twisting of the face and violent gesticulations. And I have heard other people in my presence ask him if he thought he was God, by the gestures that he made, the Godly gestures.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that all of the latter testimony, unresponsive to the question, be stricken.

Mr. Gladstein: It is quite responsive.

Mr. Del Guercio: All of this is unresponsive.

Presiding Inspector: No. He asked for peculiar or unusual [3322] acts, and even a lay witness may give those.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, he didn't mention that.

Presiding Inspector: That, as I understood, is the question.

Mr. Gladstein: That is right. I intended to be, and if it wasn't, I would like to have the record amended to be that.

Presiding Inspector: Now, I assumed that that was the question. There were phrases in there where he very naturally—a physician, it is hard to separate himself from the two departments and to be in one department a physician and in another department a lay man. We were asking him for unusual or peculiar acts and he gave some. Now, I will strike out that part where he said that he seemed to begin rationally, and then there was the change in his—I don't suppose he meant "rational", but I will let you ask about that.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) And I will strike out the portion I mentioned. The rest of it I will allow.

Mr. Del Guercio: With this further observation: While counsel has asked for peculiar acts, the witness has testified that he looked peculiar to Mr. Lovelace.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't so understand it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, if you read the testimony back [3223] it will so show.

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: I will strike out the part that he had heard other people.

Mr. Gladstein: This was in the presence of Mr. Lovelace, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, did you mean that?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: That was part of a conversation?

The Witness: Part of a conversation.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, I didn't understand that. Then I will let it stand as a part of what he is describing.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Can you recall now, Doctor,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) The other part that I referred to was in a previous answer.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: All right. Then I want to get to that point, too.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you recall whether during the last year of his life and subsequent to the time that he ceased to be your patient, whether Mr. Lovelace would ever show anything unusual or peculiar in the manner in which he carried on a conversation? [3224]

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. Yes.

Presiding Inspector: You should give incidents, if it is possible.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. First I want to ask him if he knows, then I will ask him for instances.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was the answer "Yes", Doctor?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, will you state such instances of that character of the testimony that I have called for as you remember?

A. Well, I hardly remember a case in which his conversation wasn't of that character during the last year. There would be innumerable instances of the sort.

Q. Where what would happen?

A. Well, where somebody would make a statement which he would instantly challenge and in such a manner that it would give considerable offense as though he were of the final authority and as if the other fellow really had no right to an opinion. And this was so marked not only in private conversation but in one organization to which we belonged that he was dropped from the organization because he never under any circumstances permitted anybody to finish a speech if he could possibly interrupt him, and then he denounced them and called them "rats" and various other names that, you know, [3225] you can't have go on in an organization.

Q. Now, can you recall any other conduct outside of just the conversations or whether contained in the conversations or otherwise which was unusual, or peculiar?

Mr. Del Guercio: Before or after his death?

Mr. Gladstein: What kind of an objection is that?

Presiding Inspector: This is all confined within the period essentially of the last year of his life.

Mr. Gladstein: But Mr. Del Guercio said "Before or after his death?" Did your Honor understand that?

Mr. Del Guercio: Will he fix the period of time, if your Honor please?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, that was just to fix it.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You understand too, do you not, Doctor, that I am confining my questions now to the period of time that began when he ceased to be your patient and which ended at the time of Mr. Lovelace's death? A. That's right.

Q. Or your last contact with him prior to his death. Now, bearing that in mind, can you now think of any other instances of unusual or peculiar conduct of Mr. Lovelace during that period?

A. Well, yes. He was asked out of several social [3226] functions because of being drunk and indecent in his remarks to women, and on one occasion——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Keep your voice up. We can't hear you.

A. (Continuing) ——and on one occasion fell flat on the floor and had to be carried out. He also had the peculiarity, according to many of his friends, of borrowing——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You are giving that of your own knowledge.

The Witness: Oh, I see.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Only your own knowledge.

A. Then, he borrowed money from me at one time or another and never repaid it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't get that last answer.

Presiding Inspector: He borrowed money and never repaid it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was there anything else about the money incident? I say, was there anything unusual about the money incident?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if your Honor please. Certainly it is unusual. The witness has testified that the dead man, Mr. Lovelace, has borrowed money from him and never repaid it. Now, that don't call for any more.

By Mr. Gladstein: [3227]

Q. Is there anything unusual about the transaction or transactions?

Presiding Inspector: I think the question——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Probably in the manner in which the thing was done. And that's what I am trying to bring out.

Presiding Inspector: If he can tell anything more about it.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: It is simply a borrowing and not paying.

Mr. Gladstein: That itself is not unusual or peculiar, but I assumed that it was—the Doctor intended it was the manner in which it was done. That is why I want to ask him.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Would you answer that question, Doctor?

A. I don't know that there would have been anything.

Presiding Inspector: "I don't know that there would have been anything," he said.

Mr. Del Guercio: I can't hear.

The Witness. Anything unusual.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: But you don't mean to say either that anything—you don't mean to imply anything about his financial credit or anything of that kind?

The Witness: No, no. Just that he would borrow money [3228] and apparently forget that he borrowed it and be back a few days later and borrow some more, and you know, apparently forgot.

Q. Did you ever have discussions with him concerning the borrowing of money in which he denied that he had borrowed the money a short time ago?

A. Yes. We had an altercation over a five-dollar borrowing, but he very conveniently forgot and he really got quite violent in the discussion that ensued over that. And I just let it go because it wasn't worth five dollars for so much fuss.

Q. Now, did you know him for a period of time before he became your patient? That is, did you know him for any time——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Now, have you covered this final period?

Mr. Gladstein: I think so.

Presiding Inspector: Don't you want to ask him—I suggest this to you because this has been done in a certain way under my suggestion. Don't you want to ask him whether in his opinion as a lay man these acts impressed him as rational or irrational at the time?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I was going to come to that, your Honor.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Oh, you were going to put in some more? [3229]

Mr. Gladstein: Not as of that period, but by first going to the period of time before the last year.

Presiding Inspector: Suit yourself. Do as you see fit.

Mr. Gladstein: To show comparative rational conduct and then the change, then ask the witness what his opinion was of the man during the last——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't know that I will allow him to state the opinion of the man as a physician.

Mr. Gladstein: No, I don't mean as a physician.

Presiding Inspector: Only characterize the acts.

Mr. Gladstein: I see.

Presiding Inspector: It is a close and difficult distinction to make, and, of course, we are in great difficulty here because this man is a physician. When you put the question to an individual it isn't so hard.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I mean, to a lay man.

Mr. Gladstein: I will ask the question that your Honor suggests.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. During that period of the last year of his life, that is to say, if the last year is approximately the same as the period between the time that he ceased to be your patient and the time that he died—I can't exactly recall now,—during that period, in your opinion, and based on [3230] your observations of him are you in a position to state whether or not he was fully rational?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if your Honor please, as being improper and incompetent.

Presiding Inspector: I think before you ask that you had better find out whether the specific acts which he specified impressed him as rational or irrational.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. I will ask that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you understand the Judge's question?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you answer it?

A. Yes. His acts impressed me as being irrational.

Presiding Inspector: This whole line is under your objection, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, it is. The entire line.

Presiding Inspector: As I say, it is very doubtful. I appreciate that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. And can you state, Doctor, whether the irrationality of his acts or the impression you received of the irrationality became increasing as time went on?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that; no time fixed, your Honor.

Mr. Gladstein: This is all, bear in mind, your Honor, during the last year or so. [3231]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it matters much.

Mr. Gladstein: Oh, I should think it would. If his irrationality was increasing——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): During the last year?

Mr. Gladstein (Continuing): ——during the last year.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I will take it.

A. I think I could definitely say, "Yes" and for one particular thing would perhaps serve to illustrate. He suddenly cropped up, oh, something less than a year ago, with a yarn about having shot a man when he was eleven years old and describing a heroic set of circumstances in which it occurred, which certainly wouldn't be expected from a rational man.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I move to strike out that answer and ask that the witness be admonished.

Presiding Inspector: No. I will let it stand.

Mr. Gladstein: He is giving an illustration.

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand. He is asking about specific acts. This was after he ceased to be his physician and he is only speaking as a lay man.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, everyone has an idea about rationality. Every lay man has.

Mr. Gladstein: I suppose that is true, and ideas differ. [3232]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: It is very difficult. Go ahead, Mr. Gladstein.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, would your answer to this question, then, Doctor, be that during the last year of his life the conduct of Mr. Lovelace which impressed you as being irrational was of increasing frequency or degree? A. Yes, indeed.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will— (Pause)

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Doctor, have you ever heard of a man named William Brown? A. Yes.

Q. Who is he?

A. Well, the William Brown that I have in mind was connected with the Portland Red Squad.

Q. That is a portion of the Portland Police Department? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know from discussions you have ever had with Mr. Lovelace whether Mr. Lovelace and Mr. Brown were personally acquainted?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I will object to that question. [3233]

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whom he refers to.

Mr. Del Guercio: Unless he wants to show that Mr. Brown was also this physician's patient.

Mr. Gladstein: This isn't part of the physician-patient relationship.

Presiding Inspector: No. He has dropped that.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

This is a different thing. I don't know how it is material.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, do you want a statement of materiality before the questions are asked?

Presiding Inspector: No. I will let you ask whether he knew William Brown to his knowledge.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. I think the question calls for that, but I will have it read, your Honor.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. Well, Mr. Lovelace frequently spoke of his conversations with Mr. Brown and more frequently from say, about this time last, well, yes, say along about March of last year until July. The conversations he reported more frequently and at considerable length.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Can you recall what was said by Mr. Lovelace in these conversations that concerned Mr. Brown or Mr. Lovelace's relationship to Mr. Brown?

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, if your Honor please, I will ob- [3234] ject to that as being purely improper.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want a statement on it?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: Do you want an explanation of materiality?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Well, this is rather an unusual question, I think.

Mr. Grossman: I am willing to make it if there won't be objection that I am putting some facts in advance in the record.

Presiding Inspector: I think there will be. Why don't you ask directly what you want.

Mr. Grossman: The materiality of Mr. Brown will not appear from the questions and the answers. That is why I think it is probably necessary to make an explanation. I must give you a description of what subsequent evidence will develop about Mr. Brown.

Presiding Inspector: Well, just to rule on the admissibility of this question, I will hear your explanation.

Mr. Del Guercio: We object to that, please, in the presence of this witness here.

Presiding Inspector: Then I will receive the answer. Go ahead. We will have to go a little in the dark on your promise to connect it up.

Mr. Grossman: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: You assure me that you have something to connect this up? [3235]

Mr. Groseman: Yes, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: In your best judgment?

Mr. Gladstein: According to our theory of the case, yes.

Presiding Inspector: In your theory of the case. Very well. I will receive it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, will you answer the question?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: When was this conversation that you are asked about, if there was such a conversation?

The Witness: Well, there were a number of them, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: And where and when?

The Witness: Extending — in Portland, you know, where I would meet——

Mr. Del Guercio: Speak up. I can't hear you.

The Witness: I am sorry. I ordinarily talk in a loud voice and I guess I am trying to hold it down.

Mr. Del Guercio: Don't be afraid to hold it down. We want it.

Presiding Inspector: There are a lot of people in the corner of the room who want to hear you.

The Witness: Well, Lovelace and I would have social [3236] contact, naturally, and he would tell me about this episode of being out with Brown.

Presiding Inspector: When was this?

The Witness: During the—I would say, during probably the first of March, 1940.

Presiding Inspector: After you had ceased to be his physician?

The Witness: Yes, after I had ceased to be his physician and from that point on up until June the conversations were a number of them. I couldn't give specific dates, of course.

Presiding Inspector: Is this to show anything except the credibility of Mr. Lovelace?

Mr. Gladstein: That is what it goes to show.

Presiding Inspector: Credibility?

Mr. Gladstein: Nothing but that.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, if you Honor please, how could it be possible to show credibility of Mr. Lovelace here to what Mr. Lovelace might have said to this witness here to another man?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know.

Mr. Gladstein: I didn't quite understand the objection.

Presiding Inspector: I don't quite get that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I understand these conversations were between this witness and Mr. Lovelace.

[3237]

Presiding Inspector: And Lovelace?

Mr. Del Guercio: Concerning the matter—concerning the matter of which we do not know.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, concerning a matter of which we do not know.

Mr. Del Guercio: And not in evidence. Counsel hasn't said that.

Presiding Inspector: Counsel hasn't said that. He is going to show this, as being something about his credibility. I don't know what that is.

Mr. Gladstein: That is right, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, it may be some statement which the person would naturally take to be irrational. I don't know, or it may have been something——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) At the risk of being accused of leading the witness, but for the purpose of getting to the meat of the question, so your Honor can see what I have in mind, I would like to put this question:

Q. Doctor, during those discussions that you had with Mr. Lovelace concerning his, Mr. Lovelace's, relationship to Officer Brown of the Portland Police Department, did Mr. Lovelace ever tell you that he was considered and had been asked by Officer Brown to become an informer for the Portland Police Department? A. Yes, he did. [3238]

Q. Did he tell you about his meetings with Officer Brown for discussions of this subject?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. And in the conversations that you had with Mr. Lovelace on this matter did Mr. Lovelace tell you that his meetings with Officer Brown became increasingly frequent on this subject?

Mr. Del Guercio: Well now, if your Honor please, I will object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose this is to show that these were all irrational.

Mr. Del Guercio: Nothing has been done upon that. This witness here has testified that——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) This witness said that this man was irrational and he wouldn't believe him, and now this is one of those irrational statements.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Grossman: The relevancy of Mr. Brown and the connection between Lovelace and Brown does not go to the rationality of Mr. Lovelace at all. It goes to other bias and motives.

Presiding Inspector: He wouldn't believe him under oath, so what is the use of putting them in on any other basis?

Mr. Grossman: Not believing under oath doesn't mean that we can't believe any admissions made by a witness.

Presiding Inspector: I understand that that is the point that you are trying to make here: That I shouldn't believe Mr. [3239] Lovelace as to anything.

Mr. Grossman: We are perfectly willing to state this: That your Honor should take the view either that you don't believe Mr. Lovelace at all or if you think the evidence is insufficient on character to justify you in reaching that conclusion; if you do believe Mr. Lovelace as to character witnesses, you should believe them as to other evidence.

Presiding Inspector: We haven't had a character witness except one which is connected up in relation to Lovelace; but this witness, I mean. He connected up with his irrationality. You seek to draw the conclusion, I take it, from the testimony of this witness that Mr. Lovelace was an irresponsible person at the time that he made the statement.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, that is one of them.

Presiding Inspector: And at the times which have been testified to by this witness. Now, how can you offer this testimony, this hearsay testimony, as proof of anything.

Mr. Grossman: Well now, your Honor, in the first place we state that Mr. Lovelace was incompetent at the time the statement was made. That is the first point we are attempting on that.

Second, we claim that his reputation is such that he is not to be believed under oath. Now, I recognize that you can have ten, twenty or thirty character witnesses referring to [3240] the bad character or truth and veracity of a man and still you might believe him, because it doesn't mean that the man would lie always when he is under oath. That is the second.

Now, the third is this, your Honor: If you disbelieve those; in other words, if you are willing to believe Mr. Lovelace, what Mr. Lovelace says, then we say, according to the admissions of Mr. Lovelace, he had certain connections with and certain contacts with and carried on certain business with a William D. Brown. And we are going to show how that affected his interest and his bias with relation to Harry Bridges.

Mr. Gladstein: Could I support that, your Honor?

Mr. Del Guercio: That is certainly remote, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: It is pretty remote.

Mr. Grossman: If we are going to go into this, let me state how it is not remote, because we are now discussing the relevancy of Captain William D. Brown. We intend to show—and, incidentally, the same evidence which we intend to produce, to show that we can produce it, was produced in the last deportation trial—that William D. Brown was actively working and preparing witnesses for that deportation case. We intend to show that William D. Brown was working on that case, because, or partially because, and was preparing witnesses and producing certain types of witnesses, because he was being paid sums of [3241] money by people having no connection with the Government, having no real connection with the prosecution of that case, but who had ulterior motives in paying him that money. We intend to prove and did prove in the last case that that money was received and that it was received in connection with the preparation of the Bridges deportation case, which would certainly show bias and interest of William D. Brown. And anyone who——

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) We haven't had Mr. Brown sworn.

Mr. Grossman: Well, we have to have some order in this case.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes.

Mr. Grossman: And I think our promise and also by reference to Dean Landis' report, the assurance that that evidence can be produced, is sufficient to lay a basis for what this witness is testifying to.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, Mr. Brown hasn't entered into this case. Or is this a new proceeding?

Presiding Inspector: He is going to be in this case, either personally or by——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) Now that we find he has something to do with producing Mr. Lovelace, he enters the case. [3242]

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, that statement is not in support of that statement at all.

Mr. Grossman: We intend to show that through these questions.

Mr. Del Guercio: We said "now". I don't think there is any support to that statement, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: Perhaps there may be a misunderstanding between you.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, to clear that misunderstanding,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well, he doesn't enter the case in person. He means his name comes into the evidence. That is all he means.

Mr. Del Guercio: To clear, then, any possible misunderstanding may we have an understanding as to whether counsel intends to prove that Mr. Brown is assisting the Immigration Service and FBI in the prosecution of Mr. Bridges?

Presiding Inspector: I think that is his statement.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is that your statement?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Grossman: My statement is——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Well, now, that could be answered "Yes" or "No".

Mr. Grossman: I have stated to make my statement. Do you want to hear it, Mr. Del Guercio, or not?

My statement is that the evidence which we are now starting to produce, which we haven't yet produced, will [3243] start laying the basis for the proof that Mr. William D. Brown had a hand in the producing of a witness for the Government's case here: Mr. Lovelace. That I have said. That I continue to say. I didn't say the Government didn't talk to Mr. Lovelace, or the Government didn't produce him. I say that Mr. Brown had a part in producing Richard Lovelace for testimony here.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. It may become more important, and it seems to me at this point it does become more important.

Mr. Grossman: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Just as, your Honor, though we don't say——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You can't prove your whole case at once.

Mr. Gladstein: Just as, though we don't say that the Associated Farmers prepared the case for the Government, we do know by his own admission that one of the witnesses the Government produced was procured by a man named Graham, who was the District Organizer of the Associated Farmers. And, therefore, we have a right to go into the character of that source.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose that is so. We have heard here that there is a Bridges Defense Committee, which seems to me entirely immaterial in this case.

Mr. Del Guercio: And the Communist Party.

[3244]

Presiding Inspector: And we will go ahead, I will take it. No, we won't hear any interjections of that kind.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, on the question of the Bridges Defense Committee, so that the record will be clear and so that you will have this clear——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Oh, I am not interested in the Bridges Defense Committee. Mr. Bridges has a right to have a defense committee. No, he can't be criticised for that, or at least he can't be found to have done anything wrong in that respect.

Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, would you read the last——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) And the Government has a right to use any agency that they may see fit, of course. Now, let us go ahead.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: I have forgotten where the last question was.

Presiding Inspector: The smoke now having blown away, we will see if we can find something to fire at. I will take this. At this time it doesn't seem very material to me. It may develop so. I think that perhaps counsel will agree to that.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein: [3245]

Q. What did he tell you about whether Mr. Brown was offering him employment or work or service of any kind?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. Well, the first time he made any statement——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If the Court please, I don't want to interrupt all the time, but I really cannot hear the witness.

Presiding Inspector: No, he drops his voice.

The Witness: I am sorry. You will have to prod me.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I will do it.

A. (Continuing) The first time Mr. Lovelace discussed this matter of William D. Brown's growing intimacy with him socially, he said in vigorous and profane language that they had taken advantage of his ill-condition while he was in the Veteran's Hospital and that "Bill" Brown, as he called him, was trying to play upon his old veteran association—I believe they were both veterans—to get him to desert the Communist Party and to come clean, as they put it.

Then he would tell me what kind of conversation he threw back at Mr. Brown, which was certainly something that we couldn't repeat, and then this would go on, and by and by he told me definitely one day and beyond any equivocation that they wanted him to inform on Harry Bridges, to make a statement [3246] against Harry Bridges. And in the interim he had repeatedly told me—oh, I say "repeatedly"—at least five or six occasions, your Honor, that my office had been wired with a dictaphone, and so forth. [3247]

Mr. Del Guercio: You dropped your voice down: I cannot hear you.

The Witness: I am sorry—that my office had been wired with a dictaphone.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did he ever——

Presiding Inspector: Did you find any wires?

The Witness: To be honest, I never looked for any because I thought it was a figment of the imagination. But he seemed to be wanting to justify himself some way by it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did he ever tell you in any of his last conversations with you whether he actually went into the pay or into the employ of into the service in any way of the Portland Police Department, or anybody connected with it?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as being leading—not that, of course, the witness would not answer in any event—but I object to it as being leading.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. It is leading, though. It is a matter of discretion.

A. I don't recall that he ever mentioned any stipulated fee; no.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did he ever say anything to you to the effect that he was now working with, or for anybody in the Police Department? [3248]

A. More by intimation.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that on the same ground.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: He says "More by intimation." I take that to mean that he has so expressed himself.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. You say, in one of the first conversations in which Mr. Brown's name came up, Mr. Lovelace, so to speak, in substance, denounced Mr. Brown and accused him of trying to take advantage of their Legion connection. Did Mr. Lovelace's remarks concerning Mr. Brown change in the subsequent conversations?

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment, if your Honor please. I object to the question. In the first place, I didn't get all of it, the first part of the question; and in the second place, the question itself is improper.

Presiding Inspector: Let us find out whether he said anything later on the subject.

Mr. Gladstein: Put it that way.

Presiding Inspector: "Yes" or "No".

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was anything said later on the subject, that is, after the time when he first told you, as you have described it, [3249] what he thought of Mr. Brown?

Presiding Inspector: And then what he said.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did he later talk to you about it?

A. Yes.

Q. Did his manner on the subject of Mr. Brown change later on? A. Yes.

Q. How did it change?

A. It changed in a direction of friendliness.

Q. Toward Mr. Brown?

A. Yes; toward Mr. Brown. Well, he told me about having Mr. Brown up to dinner to his house. That was one of the things that would lead to the assumption.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: When was this, to the best of your recollection?

The Witness: The closest I could estimate that would be about June of 1940.

Mr. Gladstein: I would suggest this, your Honor: I see that it is almost 12:30. If we could adjourn now until 2:00 I may be able to find the law on the other question which I wish to ask, if the law is in our favor.

Presiding Inspector: We will take a recess until two o'clock.

Mr. Gladstein: Make it 2:15. [3250]

Presiding Inspector: All right; and we will sit until 4:15 to make up the time.

(Whereupon, at 12:26 P.M. a recess was taken until 2:15 o'clock P.M. of the same day.)

[3251]

After Recess
2:15 O'clock P.M.

Mr. Gladstein: Are you ready, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: You can be seated, Doctor.

VIRGIL MacMICKLE

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Mr. Gladstein: I don't claim that I have done a very exhaustive piece of legal research during the noon hour, your Honor——

Presiding Inspector: You wouldn't be expected to.

Mr. Gladstein: But starting with Dean Wigmore and, at the same time, one of my associates starting with other texts, in attempting to run down the law, this is what we find in a general way:——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): If the Court please, if I may interrupt right here, my colleagues are working on the same questions and they haven't returned yet.

Presiding Inspector: Would you like to wait until they return?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: We will wait a few moments.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, of course.

Presiding Inspector: They will be here shortly?

[3252]

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. I suggest that we continue with the examination.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whether they have anything more.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't think I have any other questions except on this matter.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I assume they have no more questions except on this matter?

Presiding Inspector: They are just talking among themselves. I don't know whether he has made up his mind about it yet or not.

Mr. Gladstein: I could ask these questions while we are waiting.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

Direct Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Doctor, are you acquainted with Mr. Bridges?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you first meet him, do you recall?

A. I think it must have been around 1936 or 1937; I couldn't be absolutely definite about that.

Q. Keep your voice up, please.

A. I say it must have been around 1936 or 1937, somewhere in that period. I couldn't tell the exact date.

Q. Do you recall the circumstances under which you met him? [3253]

A. Yes. Mr. Ed. O'Grady, the CIO chieftain there in my building, brought him up to me about some stomach trouble.

Q. You say in your building. What building were you in at that time?

A. I have been in the Guardian Building.

Q. Did the CIO regional offices in Oregon have offices in that building at that time?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes; they had offices on the 7th floor and I was on the 10th floor.

Q. Was Mr. O'Grady connected with those CIO offices? A. Yes, yes. He was in there.

Q. Do you know whether he was in charge of the CIO Regional Directorship?

A. Yes, he was at that time.

Q. When was the next time that you met Mr. Bridges, if any?

A. Well, I don't recall meeting Mr. Bridges personally again, though I did see him at the Oregon Civic Club's luncheon a couple of years ago when Mr. Bridges spoke before that organization, and I may have said "Hello," or something of that character. But to say that I met him, I don't believe he even remembered me, perhaps.

Q. Have you met him since that time?

A. Just today is the first time.

Mr. Gladstein: Have your associates returned yet? [3254]

Mr. Del Guercio: They have not. But I think you may go on with the argument. I think he has exhausted his examination.

Mr. Gladstein: I will go ahead, if it is all right with your associates.

Mr. Del Kuercio: I think it is. What would your Honor suggest?

Presiding Inspector: I think Mr. Gladstein may go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: It would seem from this slight research that the privilege of physician and patient did not exist in common law at all. Of course, the law in all of our states except one derives from the English common law. Dean Wigmore cites a case, a well-known case in England, the Duchess of Kingston's trial.

Presiding Inspector: There is no question about the general rule, although I think some states perhaps did think it was a part of the common law.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, what has happened, according to Dean Wigmore, is this:——

Presiding Inspector: I am quite familiar with the general topic.

Mr. Gladstein: It is a matter of statute.

Presiding Inspector: Very largely, yes.

Mr. Gladstein: About half the states have statutes on the subject. [3255]

Presiding Inspector: And I think the others have generally followed the rule as allowing this physician's privilege.

Mr. Gladstein: Here is what the cases apparently say on this.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, Dean Wigmore himself does not believe in this privilege.

Mr. Gladstein: That is true. He points out several reasons why it has no basis. Are you familiar with his argument on that?

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes, yes. I have taught this subject. Go ahead. I have been a teacher in medical school on law for the physician.

Mr. Galdstein: I can summarize very briefly

what he says. He says that the claim for the privilege rests on three bases:

One is that the communication originates in confidence. His answer to that is that in the vast majority of cases that simply is not the fact; that outside of one or two diseases, such as venereal disease or something like abortion, patients do not actually seek real secrecy of their diseases, or of the things they divulge to their doctors, and they tell their intimates and friends, and so on. So there is actually no real confidence in that respect.

Presiding Inspector: People differ in that respect. [3256]

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I suppose so.

A second argument which is made for the privilege is that it is necessary, it is vital to protect that confidence in order to attain the purpose of the relationship between physician and patient. By that I take it is meant that, if people going to doctors felt that the doctors might disclose what was communicated to them by the patient, they might feel adverse to making such disclosures to their physicians and, therefore, the general public policy of having the patient properly cured would be interfered with.

But Dean Wigmore points out that, prior to the establishment of any privilege by statute in this country—the first innovation was in 1828 by a New York statute—people at least presumably went to doctors and disclosed to them what their ailments were and communicated to them and were either cured or not. And since the innovation of this statutory privilege there has at least been no statistical proof to indicate that there is a sudden influx of patients to physicians when this privilege was created.

The third argument which is made in support of the privilege is that the injuries that would result from allowing disclosure resulting to the relationship of doctor to patient would be greater than the injury that will result to the processes and purposes of justice by permitting disclosure. Dean Wigmore points out that this in a general sense is not [3257] true, and I think in this particular case as applicable to Mr. Lovelace would not be true, because the question of secrecy, which is at the heart of this thing, is obviously no longer important to Mr. Lovelace.

Now, that raises the question of whose privilege this is, if any exists?

First of all, it is the privilege of the patient, not of any party. Of course, that patient no longer exists. He, I assume, may have a personal representative. That would be Mrs. Lovelace. It is possible that she would be in a position, if the privilege is considered by your honor to be applicable here, to make some objection. And technically, perhaps, it might be necessary to request of her whether she objected to this disclosure. But in a general way we can disregard that for this reason. The purpose, if any exists, only goes to the disclosure of such information or communications as are gained during the relationship.

In the case, for example, of a hypothetical question, if I were to ask the doctor a question asking him for his opinion based on the facts that were disclosed to him, but without revealing those facts as to what the condition of the patient was, I think the law is that he has a right to answer that question.

Dean Wigmore points out—I have only found one case on that, but that case is clearly in point and holds that a [3258] physician who treated a patient does have the right, even where a statute provides that he is not permitted, to disclose communications that he has gained from the patient during the relationship, he nevertheless does have the right to answer a hypothetical question as to his opinion, as to his conclusions.

Now, on the general question of this privilege I point out this to your Honor: The modern tendency is away from the granting or recognition of such a privilege. In industrial accident procedure, for example, an administrative procedure, whether by legislation or otherwise, the almost universal tendency is not to recognize any such privilege. According to Dean Wigmore, the tendency in modern sanity legislation is along the same lines. And, although I haven't checked the cases here, there is a statement in 70 Corpus Juris at 450, with the States, I think, of California or Colorado, I am not sure, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, South Dakota, to this general effect: That physicians are permitted to testify even though it involves disclosures of communications gained from their patients on the general question of sanity and the same text cites cases in support of the proposition that this privilege, even in the states where it is recognized by statute or otherwise, does not apply in inquisitions into lunacy. Now, I think under those circumstances, your Honor, that at the very least we should be entitled to ask a hypothetical question of the doctor and, at best, we should be entitled to have the doctor [3259] relate—and I wouldn't attempt to go into the matter extremely, but simply in a general way—as to what Mr. Lovelace was being treated for by the doctor, what his condition in a general way was from time to time. I think I will have to rest out argument on that much or that little.

Presiding Inspector: You haven't examined the recent cases in New York:

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't seen that.

Presiding Inspector: We had a couple of cases during the last year in New York; one in which they extended the privilege to a legislative inquiry, I mean a municipal legislative inquiry, where they wanted to get the records from one of the hospitals in the city. They rejected the claim that they could get those, even though it was not a judicial investigation.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I interpose something?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I suggest that the witness might be asked if he wishes to claim the privilege, if any exists.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't hear that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I would suggest that the witness be asked if he wishes to claim the privilege, if any exists.

Presiding Inspector: It isn't his privilege.

Mr. Del Guercio: If he has one.

Presiding Inspector: It isn't his privilege. It belongs to Lovelace. [3260]

Mr. Del Guercio: There is a question on that, is there not, as to whether a physician may claim that privilege if he were asked the question?

Presiding Inspector: I am not sure about that. The privilege can be waived by the patient, unquestionably.

Mr. Gladstein: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: What more do you really want to have that you haven't got? You have now asked him over the period of a year, and he has given statements of what he thought were unusual, remarkable occurrences; he has said that those impressed him as irrational, and he has even gone further, without objections, and said that he deemed the man irrational during that period.

What more would you want than that?

Mr. Gladstein: You see, the things for which Mr. Lovelace——

Presiding Inspector: You could have a little broader basis, perhaps, for his answers, but the answers would be about the same, I suppose.

Mr. Gladstein: Except that there would probably be some medical characterization of the things from which Mr. Lovelace was suffering, and also there would be some elicitation of the treatments that were being prescribed, and for what they were being prescribed.

Presiding Inspector: He has no expert knowledge on that [3261] matter.

Mr. Gladstein: As to how he treated him?

Presiding Inspector: He can't prescribe pharmaceutical drugs.

Mr. Gladstein: When I use the word "prescribe", I mean what services he rendered for the man and for what purpose they were rendered, what he advised the man to do, and so on, and how he attempted, as a naturopath, to cure him.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, we would suggest this: If this witness qualifies, or can be qualified, as being able to prescribe for whatever kind of treatment Mr. Lovelace had, we won't have any objection to his testifying. We withdraw our objection.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. Now, I suggest that you ask some questions along his qualifications as to diagnosis and treatment.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, doctor, when Mr. Lovelace first came to you as a patient what did he complain of?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: As a patient—when he first came to him as a patient. You mean—I don't quite understand the question. If the witness does, I will withdraw any objection.

Presiding Inspector: Well, this man says, this witness, that he is licensed to practice——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): Practice medicine? [3262]

Presiding Inspector: No, to practice—what is it?

The Witness: Naturopathy.

Presiding Inspector: That is one of the privileges, according to the laws of Oregon, as I get it from the witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: We don't stand by that, of course.

Presiding Inspector: But that is what he is practicing, which is a recognized subject of a hygienic or medical, in a broad sense, science, I suppose, or—I am in the dark about it, Mr. Del Guercio, because, as I said earlier in the day, I never heard of it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Neither have I until today.

Presiding Inspector: I am not in any way stating anything about it, except my own inability to judge the matter. I think there should be more proof on it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I will ask it this way——

Presiding Inspector: We don't, frankly, we don't have this in my state.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Under the Oregon laws are you permitted to prescribe in any form to patients?

A. Oh, yes. The only inhibitions are the inhibitions against pharmaceutical drugs, and the courts, the law, have made a distinction in Oregon between pharmaceutical and non-pharmaceutical drugs. Then, of course, I couldn't prescribe [3263] narcotics, because that comes under the Federal Narcotic Act and I would have no right to a Federal permit on narcotics.

Q. What kind of non-pharmaceutical drugs are you permitted to prescribe?

A. Well, for instance, I can prescribe anything that is made from roots, herbs or barks, like prescribing mineral waters, mineral baths; I can prescribe diet, I can prescribe special food preparations, food concentrates, for instance, like your vitamin concentrates you are using so much of now. I can prescribe capsules with a lot of the food minerals, or liquid medicines with food minerals in them. I can prescribe—perhaps it will clarify the issue if I gave you what our definition of pharmaceutical law is and then you would——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): We don't want anything from the witness.

Presiding Inspector: He says—he misspoke and I don't know that you heard him. He said to clarify it he would give you their definition of pharmaceutical drugs, not law.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Maybe I can clarify it by asking the question if he could prescribe anything that a layman could not prescribe.

Presiding Inspector: We will let you ask that in a few moments.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. [3264]

Mr. Gladstein: Was there a question before the witness?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whether there was or not.

Mr. Del Guercio: Did the Court exclude my question? I think we are entitled to that.

Presiding Inspector: You can ask it when you have the witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: This is a question on his expertness.

Presiding Inspector: He hasn't gone far enough, finished his examination as to qualifications yet.

Of course, before the final question is asked you may cross examine on his qualifications.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly. The reporter is going to read the last question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you prescribe any of those for Mr. Lovelace at any time?

A. Well, I prescribed the non-pharmaceutical remedies; yes.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. First of all, did you prescribe for Mr. Lovelace for different complaints of his from time to time?

A. Oh, yes; at different times, like everybody else, he [3265] had maybe the grippe or maybe a sore back, or various other troubles that came up that needed attention; sinus infection, bad heart.

Q. Did you ever prescribe for him for dipsomania?

A. In the sense of attempting to bring him temporarily out of acute alcoholism, I never took him in hand with the idea that I would be able to cure him of dipsomania; no. That was beyond me.

Mr. Del Guercio: Will you caution the witness again to raise his voice?

Presiding Inspector: Keep your voice up.

Mr. Del Guercio: I can't hear at all.

Mr. Gladstein: Will you read the last answer, please?

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Are you in a position to say, from your observations of Mr. Lovelace, whether for a period, let us say, of approximately a year before his death, he showed apparent signs of approaching paranoia?

Mr. Myron: I object to that question, your Honor. Apparently he was asked to qualify the witness, and I don't know whether he has attempted to do that, or things he has qualified him.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude that until we have [3266] heard from the other side on their examination of his qualifications. You have now gone beyond his qualifications and are asking a definite question about this case.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. I don't quite understand the objection.

Mr. Del Guercio: He hasn't been qualified as an expert.

Presiding Inspector: He claims the right to cross examine on his qualifications before you can ask him——

Mr. Gladstein (Interposing): Before I can ask him the question?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Before you ask any medical questions he has that right to question him on his qualifications.

Mr. Gladstein: To cross examine on that prior——

Presiding Inspector: Yes, as to his qualifications. Always. Go ahead.

Voir Dire Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What schools have you attended, Mr. MacMickle? A. What schools?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, I attended first the American College of Drugless Physicians, in Chicago.

Q. American what?

A. American College of Drugless Physicians. Then sub- [3267] sequently——

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. (Interposing): Let's take that school alone. What course did you take and when did you attend there? A. I attended in——

Presiding Inspector: Did you get the name of it?

Mr. Del Guercio: No. Will you ask him again to speak a little louder.

Presiding Inspector: Try to make it clear.

The Witness: The American College of Drugless Physicians.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Drugless Physicians. When did you attend that school? A. In 1912 and 1913.

Q. 1912 and 1913?

A. I went there in the fall of 1911 and went through to 1913.

Q. Is that college still in existence?

A. I don't know. I really haven't kept——

Q. (Interposing): Where was it located at that time?

A. It was located at 42nd and Grand Boulevard.

Q. Did you take a correspondence course or did you actually go there?

A. It was a resident course.

Q. Did you attend the school?

A. I attended it; it was a resident course. [3268]

Q. From the fall of 1911, you say——

A. (Interposing) Yes; that is right.

Q. When? A. Until 1913.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Continuously

A. No; we had three months' vacation each summer.

Q. What schooling did you have before that time? A. High School education.

Q. Did you graduate from high school?

A. Yes.

Q. Where? A. Stanhope——

Q. (Interposing) Where?

A. Stanhope—S-t-a-n-h-o-p-e—New Jersey.

Q. A four-year course? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what year did you graduate at Stanhope High School?

A. Oh, I think it was in 1909, or 1910—somewhere along there.

Q. 1909——

A. (Interposing) Or 1910—I wouldn't swear positively as it has been so long ago.

Q. Did you have any other schooling—you say you graduated from Stanhope High School—until the time you entered the American College of Drugless Physicians in Chicago? [3269]

A. No. I took no schooling outside of high school.

Q. What did you do during that period of time, between the time you graduated from high school and the time you entered the American College of Drugless Physicians?

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is objectionable. That is going beyond the purpose of qualifications.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: If the questioning is going to his qualifications, and he says he didn't attend school during that period of time, how would that go——

Presiding Inspector: Well, he might have been doing something that helped him in some way, or hurt him in some way. We don't know. I might think of all kinds of things. I don't want to suggest them.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. What were you doing during that interval?

A. Here is what I am trying to remember, Judge: I don't know, it may have been in the spring of 1911 that I graduated from high school, because I know there was no great break between my high school—there was a summer vacation during which I worked in the dairy business, as I had done in previous summers. [3270]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What courses did you take in the American College of Drugless Physicians?

A. Anatomy, physiology, pathology.

Q. Physiology?

A. Pathology, chemistry, hygiene and sanitation, diagnosis, symptomatology, dietetics, hydrotherapy, electrotherapy, manual adjustment and mechanical manipulation of the bony framework and other structures of the body.

Q. Do you know if the records of that school are still extant?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I wouldn't have the slightest notion.

Q. Do you have a diploma from that school?

A. Yes, I have a diploma from that school.

Q. Where is it? When did you get it?

A. When did I get it?

Q. Yes.

A. I think it was issued me in 1913.

Q. 1913?

A. I believe it was either January, 1913—I mean, December, 1912 or January, 1913. I think that was it.

Q. Was it a day school or night school?

A. A day school.

Q. How many hours a day did you go?

A. Let's see! We went to school at eight in the morning and classes were out about twelve and at one-thirty we went [3271] back and stayed until about 4:30, unless there were special things that required a longer period.

Q. You went to school at 8:00 A.M.?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you receive credits for all of these subjects that you have taken?

A. Yes. I had to have the credits for them or I couldn't have graduated.

Q. Who signed your diploma?

A. My diploma was signed by Dr. Speicher, who was a physician and surgeon.

Q. Will you spell it? A. S-p-e-i-c-h-e-r.

Q. S-p-e-i-t-h——

A. (Interposing) c-h-e-r.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: C-h.

A. (Continuing) And Dr. Crane, who was an M.D.

Q. How do you spell that? A. C-r-a-n-e.

Q. Are those two persons still living?

A. That I wouldn't know. And there was Dr. McKenzie.

Q. Did all these people sign your diploma?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. And then——

A. And then there was another fellow, whose name [3272] temporarily slipped me. Dr. Galation, M.D.

Q. Will you spell that?

A. G-a-l-a-t-i-o-n, or "a-n"; the same as in the Bible.

Q. Did you receive a degree of any kind?

A. Yes.

Q. What degree?

A. The degree was Doctor of Drugless—wait a minute; Doctor of Naturotheraphy.

Q. Doctor of Naturotheraphy?

A. Yes. I think that was it.

Q. How many persons were on the faculty of that school?

A. Oh, I suppose without taking time to count them all up, there were probably 18 or 20 on the faculty anyway.

Q. Eighteen or twenty. And what kind of buildings did they occupy?

A. They occupied a building that roughly covered a quarter of a Chicago block, I think it was some six or seven stories high.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. They occupied all of that building?

A. Yes, a great big stone building. They occupied that with their college and the sanitarium which was run in connection with it. [3273]

Q. And what tuition did you pay, if there was any? A. I didn't——

Q. (Interposing) What tuition did you pay?

A. To be honest with you, I don't remember what tuition I paid.

Q. Was there any tuition?

A. Yes. I paid something like $750 or something of that character. I couldn't remember.

Q. Every year? A. What is that?

Q. For the full course?

A. For the full course.

Q. $700 for the full course?

A. $750 in my recollection.

Q. Well, it couldn't be more than that, could it?

A. Oh, it might have been. I don't know.

Q. How many?

A. Well, since I don't know I don't know how much more.

Q. Would you say it was more than $800?

A. I wouldn't have any idea.

Q. Was it a thousand dollars?

A. I don't know.

Q. Was it ten thousand dollars?

A. Obviously not. [3274]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: He said his best recollection is that it was about $700.00.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What text book did you use in anatomy?

A. We used Gray's text book in anatomy.

Q. Gray's? A. Gray's, yes.

Q. What did you use in pathology?

A. I think we used Dellafield and Prudden, if I am not mistaken.

Q. Dellafield? A. Yes.

Q. And who? A. Prudden; P-r-u-d-d-e-n.

Q. And in Chemistry?

A. I don't remember the chemical text now.

Q. Do you still have the two text books you used?

A. No, I have lost those long since, given them away and gotten more recent ones.

Q. Gave them away?

A. Yes, I think I gave them away to other students.

Q. You say you graduated about 1913, is that right?

A. I think it was either December, 1912 or January, 1913.

Q. Did you go to any other school? [3275]

A. Then I went back to New York City and took a post graduate course to brush up on some things that I thought they had there. The American College of Naturotheraphy in New York City.

Q. And when did you attend that school?

A. How long did I attend?

Q. When?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Oh, when? That was, I would say, within the next six-months period.

Q. After your graduating from this school in Chicago? A. Yes.

Q. Within the next six months?

A. Yes, within the next six months.

Q. And what courses did you take there?

A. Well, they had a little work they were doing there in diatetics and they had some work in psychology that I was interested in.

Q. Well, did you take those courses?

A. Yes.

Q. What? You took diatetics and you took psychology? A. Yes.

Q. Anything else?

A. And some work in hydrotheraphy, because that was a well known hydrotherapeutic institution.

Q. Anything else?

A. I don't recall at this time that I took anything [3276] else.

Q. For how long a period did you take this diatetics and phychology and hydrotherapy?

A. Oh, I would say roughly not more than six months.

Q. Not more than six months?

A. No. After all, I wasn't getting my beginning course there. I was merely taking some specialized——

Q. (Interposing) I didn't ask you that. What did you do after you left this American College of Naturotheraphy in New York?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Then I spent the summer teaching swimming.

Q. Teaching swimming? A. Yes.

Q. After graduating from this school?

A. Yes. Is there anything dishonorable about it?

Q. For how long a period?

Presiding Inspector: Keep your voice up.

A. I taught swimming for roughly the period from, we will say, the first of June until the first of September.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. June until September of what year?

A. Of 1913.

Q. 1913. And then what did you do?

A. And then I——

Q. (Interposing) Where did you teach swimming?

A. At Atlantic City, and at Lake Hopatoong, Lake [3277] Hopatoong being the biggest summer resort in the state.

Q. Well now, we don't want any such detail as that.

A. You have been pressing for details. I thought I had better give them.

Q. Now, what did you do after that?

A. I decided to come to Oregon and get married and settle down in practice.

Q. In what practice?

A. The practice of naturotheraphy in the State of Oregon.

Q. And when was that?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. That was in the fall of 1913.

Q. The fall of 1913 you returned to Oregon?

A. I didn't "return" to Oregon. I came to Oregon.

Q. You came to Oregon. Excuse me. All right. And you started to do what?

A. Then I opened—no, wait a minute! Let me be quite accurate. I came to Oregon and I married in the fall of 1913.

Q. Well, did you do anything before you married? A. No, no.

Presiding Inspector: You taught swimming?

The Witness: That's all. Taught swimming.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You taught swimming? [3278] A. Yes.

Q. And you were married when? When did you marry? When did you marry?

A. I married on the 25th of September.

Q. 25th of September, 19 what

A. 1914,—1913. 1913.

Q. And then what did you do?

A. Well, I don't remember just exactly what I did. I know I spent a good deal of time on my wife's farm, the farm owned by my wife's folks.

Q. Doing farming work?

Presiding Inspector: I think he means what did you do along the line of business.

The Witness: Well, I didn't do any. I didn't open up my office until March 15, 1914.

Q. March 15, 1914? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. And you opened up what kind of an office?

A. An office for the practice of naturotheraphy.

Q. Was that permissible under the laws of the State of Oregon?

A. That was permissible by virtue of a clause in the then existing Osteopathic Law.

Q. Were you an osteopath? [3279]

A. No, but the osteopathic law, when it was passed, was so amended as to contain a proviso that nothing in the Act should be construed to interfere with the right of naturopaths to practice naturopathy.

Q. And for how long a period did you practice?

A. I practiced under that until we got our own law through creating our own Naturopathic Board in 1927.

Q. 1927. That's the first time Oregon passed a law licensing naturopaths?

A. Licensing naturopaths, yes.

Presiding Inspector: And up to that time you practiced without any special license?

The Witness: That is correct.

Presiding Inspector: Under the right given you, as claim by reason of this Osteopathic Law.

The Witness: That's quite right. Perhaps I should add that in 1914, just to make the record complete, in 1914, I had a partner who helped me to loaf in the office while we were waiting for business and to whom I turned the office over for a period of three months while I again taught swimming.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You taught swimming in between again?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there any connection between swimming and naturotheraphy? [3280]

A. It's about the same amount as there is between law and medicine or surgery. It was a good way to earn some money to pay office expenses. Nothing disreputable about it.

Q. What?

A. I say it was a good way to earn money to pay office expenses.

Q. I didn't ask you whether it was disreputable or not.

Presiding Inspector: Well, he volunteered that.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is there some question in your mind about it being a disreputable practice?

A. Swimming?

Q. No, naturotheraphy.

A. You seem to take the attitude that there is something disreputable about swimming.

Q. Huh? You said that there was nothing in your mind about it being disreputable.

Presiding Inspector: No, no. That was in relation to swimming. He said there is nothing disreputable about it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is there anything disreputable about naturotheraphy?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I suppose there would be about the same amount of disrepute about that as there would be about the legal profession. [3281]

Q. Well, that don't answer it.

A. I think maybe you can find the answer.

Q. Have you attended any other school since 1914?

A. Oh, yes. I have taken post graduate courses repeatedly.

Q. Post graduate courses where?

A. Well, at the Western States College in Portland.

There is a course that is recognized by the State of Oregon——

Q. (Interposing) Wait a minute! I am just asking you what courses you took and where.

A. Well, I took various specialized courses. If you want to know definitely subject by subject, I think perhaps I can remember them.

Q. I am coming to that.

A. I took special work on spinal adjustment.

Q. Where?

A. At the Western States College in Portland, Oregon.

Q. Correspondence course or residence course?

A. I said "at" the Western States College.

Q. Was it a correspondence course?

A. No. It was a residence course.

Q. What else?

A. Oh, I have taken special courses in electrotheraphy at the same college.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Electrotheraphy. Anything else? [3282]

A. Yes. I have taken courses in—brush-up courses in phychology there, in diatetics and in specialized technique like the—you know, for instance, somebody comes along that has a special course in adjusting feet or manipulating the bony framework anywhere.

Q. In this at the Western States College?

A. Western States.

Q. Huh? A. Yes.

Q. Anything else?

A. Well, then, in 1921 I went East and studied psychoanalysis under Andre Tridon, who is one of the outstanding——

Q. (Interposing) I am not asking you how outstanding these persons are.

A. I am sorry, but you seem to question the authenticity of everything to the degree——

Q. (Interposing) I do question it.

Presiding Inspector: Don't get into a dispute.

The Witness: I am sorry.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, when was that?

A. That was in 1921.

Q. 1921. Where was that? In New York, you say? A. New York City. [3283]

Q. How long a period?

A. Oh, about two months.

Q. Two months?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative).

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle:)

Q. Where was that course taken?

A. That was taken at his——

Q. (Interposing) Office?

A. (Continuing) ——studio, yes.

Q. Studio?

A. Yes, you can call it an "office". I wouldn't make any——

Q. (Interposing) Well, you called it a "studio".

A. All right. Call it a "studio" if you like that better.

Q. How many attended while you were attending?

A. Perhaps I can answer that by giving you a bit of information.

Q. No, I don't want any information other than what I am asking.

A. All right, then. I will let it go at that.

Presiding Inspector: About how many were there?

The Witness: Your Honor, it wasn't—it can't in the nature of the case be a course for groups.

Presiding Inspector: Did he have other students working at the same time? [3284]

The Witness: Not at the same time.

Presiding Inspector: So far as the course that you took, the work you did under him, you were working alone under his direction?

The Witness: That's right. Directly under him and studying what he outlined and watching his cases, you see, to get the technique.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you take any other courses anywhere?

A. Oh, let's see. I don't recall having taken any others. I may not have listed all of the little post graduate courses that I have had, but I certainly haven't——

Q. (Interposing) You can't remember any more courses that you took anywhere else?

A. No, I can't.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well now, if your Honor please, in view of the testimony of this witness here it appears that he hasn't qualified for anything else but a swimmer, and I therefore object to the question.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it for what it is worth. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: What did you say?

Presiding Inspector: I said I will take it for what it is worth. I am not saying what that is. It may be worth a great deal. It may be worth very little.

Direct Examination (Resumed)

By Mr. Gladstein: [3285]

Q. I think I can rephrase the question. Doctor, are you in a position to state whether, based on your observations of and treatment of Mr. Lovelace, he showed apparent signs of approaching paranoia?

A. That would have been my classification of his difficulty.

Q. And what is that classification based on?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Well, it was based on these two outstanding things: First, that he had delusions of grandeur, which were related to these God-like gestures that I have been telling you;——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I object to this line of testimony, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I thought this was along the lines that you thought would be all right.

Mr. Del Guercio: Then I will withdraw any objection.

Presiding Inspector: I understand that. I may have misunderstood you.

Mr. Del Guercio: No, you did not.

Presiding Inspector: We will take it.

A. (Continuing) And the other was he had delusions of persecution. And then, of course, he had the typical exalted moods.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, did it appear to you from time to time that the tendency toward paranois on the part of Mr. Lovelace [3286] appeared to be growing stronger? A. Yes, yes, it did.

Q. Would you for my benefit in a general way simply define or describe paranoia?

Mr. Del Guercio: For whose——? Well, if your Honor please, for the benefit of the Court or just for the benefit of counsel?

Mr. Gladstein: For his benefit, too.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. Do you want to rephrase that?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I will.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you be good enough, Doctor, to define or describe or explain the term that you have used, the term "paranoia"?

A. Well, it would be a little difficult to give in non-technical words and give briefly, but, briefly, one in paranoia does have delusions of grandeur and delusions of persecution and gets very ill-tempered, frequently very violent, when crossed. The technique of handling such cases, as a matter of fact, consists in avoiding crossing them whenever that is humanly possible because of the violence that is entailed.

Q. What relationship, if any, exists between paranoia and insanity? [3287]

A. Well, it is a form of insanity, surely.

Q. Would you say that it was a stage of it or a form of it?

A. It would be better described as a form of insanity.

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is all, your Honor. Cross examine.

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mr. Del Guercio.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is there anything that you can prescribe that a lay man could not prescribe that you are permitted to treat under the laws of the State of Oregon?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes. I think so, because a lay man——

Q. (Interposing) Now, is there anything? "Yes" or "No". A. Yes, I think——

Q. (Interposing) Now, what are those things that you can prescribe that a lay man cannot?

A. Well, I can prescribe electrotheraphy; I can prescribe spinal adjustment and manipulation; I could prescribe colon irrigation; I could prescribe various forms of diets with which the lay man perhaps wouldn't be familiar.

Q. You say a lay man cannot prescribe electrotheraphy? A. I didn't quite get that.

Presiding Inspector: Just read that. [3288]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Can a lay man prescribe for forms of diet?

A. What I had in the back of my mind when I said that is that, within the provisions of the statutes in Oregon, if one does that he collects a fee for it; in other words, functions as a professional man.

Q. Well, I am not asking you at all. What I am asking you is to state what you can prescribe to a patient that a lay man cannot prescribe. You understand the question?

Mr. Gladstein: I would like to ask for a little clarification. It seems to me the question is ambiguous. Does the question call for——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Is it objectionable?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I am making the objection. I want to ask whether he is asking whether a lay man would be qualified or whether there is a law against it. I don't understand the question.

Presiding Inspector: To clarify simply, I think that in relation to that he wants the witness to distinguish between what he would be entitled to do and what a dietician would be entitled to do.

Mr. Gladstein: I see.

Presiding Inspector: The dietician may act without a license. I suppose you don't license dieticians?

The Witness: No, that is right. [3289]

Presiding Inspector: I have never heard of such a thing.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Will you answer the question.

A. Well, yes. I think that, as I say, I can prescribe and administer X-Ray theraphy. For instance,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You are devoting yourself now to diet, aren't you?

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. On the diet now.

A. On the diet? Oh, I suppose if a lay man knew enough about diet he could prescribe anything that I prescribe in diet. I don't see why he couldn't.

Q. Do you take X-Rays?

A. I don't in my own office. I send them to a laboratory. I often prescribe that they shall be taken.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. When you say "prescribe" how do you prescribe?

A. I write out an order to the X-Ray laboratory to X-Ray such a part of the anatomy of such and such a patient.

Q. Can't any lay man do that? A. No, no.

Q. You mean nobody can do that without going to a naturopath?

A. The X-Ray laboratories in Oregon are governed, according to my understanding of it—I think it is essentially right—they are governed by a regulation which does not per- [3290] mit them to have X-Rays taken.

Q. And you say your testimony is that no X-Ray man can go in and get an X-Ray?

A. He could go and get an X-Ray in any clinic where there was a doctor in charge of the clinic, but he wouldn't be permitted to give an X-Ray.

Q. Are you a doctor?

A. Yes, I am licensed as a doctor.

Q. What kind of a doctor?

A. A naturopathic doctor, the same as——

Q. (Interposing) Can you prescribe poisons?

A. I—no, my conscience wouldn't let me. I don't know what the law might say about that.

Q. Your conscience wouldn't let you?

A. No.

Q. Huh? A. No.

Q. Don't you know what the law of the State of Oregon is?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Well, I have never wanted to prescribe poison and I therefore never have run afoul of the law or taken the trouble to find out what the law does say on it.

Q. You are not familiar with the law of the State of Oregon? [3291]

A. I know that the law says that I can't prescribe pharmaceutical drugs.

Q. Is a poison a pharmaceutical drug?

A. Some would be and some wouldn't, within the definition that we have up there.

Q. Which would not be?

A. Well, if you will let me give the definition I think you can settle that question.

Q. Well, do you know?

A. Do I know what?

Q. What poison you could prescribe under the Oregon Act?

A. Strychnine certainly isn't a pharmaceutical drug necessarily. You can buy that in the grocery stores. I could prescribe Strychnine if I wanted to.

Q. Well, could a lay man prescribe strychnine?

A. I don't know if he could prescribe it.

Q. How do you prescribe it? Do you write down a prescription?

A. No, I wouldn't write out a prescription for strychnine.

Q. Can you write out a prescription for any drug store? A. I can write orders.

Q. I didn't ask you if you could write orders. I asked if you could write prescriptions. [3292]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. All right. Let me put it this way:——

Q. (Interposing) Not "put it this way". Put it the way——

A. (Interposing) I will answer you——

Q. (Interposing) You mean you don't want to answer that question?

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment! The witness has not said that and I think he should be given——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Just a moment. The witness may answer the question, but if he doesn't know what is meant by the word "prescription" the witness may say so.

The Witness: I don't know what he means by "prescription", frankly.

Presiding Inspector: You know what you mean.

The Witness: I know what I mean, but I don't know what he means.

Presiding Inspector: Now, tell us whether you could prescribe within what you mean by it and then we will let you explain.

The Witness: Yes. For instance, suppose I want a patient to go to the drug store and get some vitamin concentrates. Then I simply write an order out in plain English. I don't use the Latinized form, but in plain English for these vitamins and sign my name. [3293]

Presiding Inspector: You call that a "prescription"?

The Witness: Yes.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Because they have those vitamins ready?

The Witness: That would be the type of prescription I could write, if you want to call it a "prescription".

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Any lay man who could read and write could do that, couldn't he? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. You don't think so?

A. I don't think that the druggist would honor an order of that sort—"prescription", if you want to call it that.

Q. You don't know, you say?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. You have no knowledge on it at all?

A. I don't know what the druggist would do about it. I know he honors mine.

Q. You mean no lay man could go in a drugstore and write out a prescription for a vitamin tablet? Is that what you mean?

A. I never have seen it tried and I wouldn't know.

Q. Do you know Doctor Lust? A. Yes.

Q. Or a person who calls himself "Doctor Lust"? [3294] A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever study under him?

A. Yes. It was at the American College of Naturopathy in New York City.

Q. Did you ever attend that school?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes. I told you that earlier.

Q. Did that school ever furnish what was called "fake" diplomas? A. I wouldn't know that.

Q. You wouldn't know that? A. No.

Q. You have no knowledge on it at all?

A. No, I wouldn't have any knowledge of that.

Q. You studied under Dr. Lust?

A. Uh-huh (affirmative).

Q. Where? A. In New York City.

Mr. Del Guercio: In New York City.

May we have a recess, please?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, we will take a five-minute recess.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

[3295]

Presiding Inspector: Now, you may go on.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. MacMickle, you testified you had a license. A. Yes.

Q. What kind of a license?

A. License of a naturopathic physician.

Q. What does that license state what it allows you to do?

A. Well, it allows me—of course, it is issued in accordance with the naturopathic law which permits me to do the things I have been telling you, as well as minor surgery; the electrical removal of tonsils, for instance; the electrical shrinkage of turbinates.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Have you ever done any of those things?

A. Yes; and I have been doing them for about 12 years.

Q. Anything else?

A. Yes; and the electrical removal of warts and growths, the electrical removal of polype, or the surgical removal, since that is minor surgery.

Q. Let me go back a little bit. You say you took a two months' course under Dr. Tridon— was it?

A. Not doctor; not doctor—Andre Tridon.

Q. I believe you took a course in psychology, is that it? A. Psychoanalysis. [3296]

Q. What kind of psychoanalysis?

A. Well——

Q. (Interposing) Well, let me ask you this question. Isn't it a fact that Andre Tridon is only an authority on exotic psychology?

A. On exotic phychology—what do you mean?

Q. Sexual psychology.

A. You mean erotic.

Q. Yes. A. Oh, that is different.

Q. I am not as smart as you are, you understand that?

Mr. Gladstein: That remark is uncalled for and I think the demeanor of counsel is——

Presiding Inspector: You should not criticize the witness. You may ask him any question you deem pertinent and helpful here.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. That is the course you took under Mr. Tridon?

A. Is what the course?

Q. Sexual psychology?

A. No, no. That is only a small part of psychoanalysis.

Q. But you did take that course?

A. Yes; that is very pertinent to psychoanalysis, along with a lot of other things also. [3297]

Q. Did you ever perform an abortion?

A. No.

Q. What? A. No.

Q. You never did? A. No.

Q. Do you know a Mrs. L. F. Plank—P-l-a-n-k—of 245 Schafer Street, Portland, Oregon?

A. No, I can't say that I recall any such patient.

Q. Did you perform an abortion on her in 1929, March of 1929?

A. Well, let me see if I can even remember the patient. I certainly didn't perform an abortion on her.

Q. What did you do?

A. I don't remember the patient.

Q. What did you do in March 1929?

A. You are asking me to remember one of a great many patients.

Presiding Inspector: If you don't remember you say so.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

The Witness: I don't remember.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you ever perform an abortion at any time? A. No.

Q. On any one? A. No. [3298]

Q. Did you ever attempt to perform an abortion on anyone? A. No.

Q. Didn't Mrs. Plank nearly die because of your treatment and because of your attempt to perform an abortion?

A. I don't remember the case.

Q. You don't remember.

A. No, not an abortion.

Q. Well, what?

A. Well, I don't remember Mrs. Plank's case so I can't remember.

Q. Do you remember one of your patients nearly dying in about 1929?

A. No, I don't remember that, although I have had patients who nearly died from one thing or another, and I have had some patients that did die.

Q. What caused their deaths? A. Sir?

Q. What caused their deaths?

A. Sometimes they died because they were ready to die, incurable, had a bad heart and collapsed.

Q. Did you treat them for heart disease?

A. I have treated some people for heart disease.

Q. And they died?

A. Well, frankly, let me state this——

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. (Interposing) Answer the questions that I am asking you. [3299]

Presiding Inspector: Do you mean to ask him this, and if you do you may ask him: Do your patients that you treat for heart disease die? Is that it, that they die sometimes?

The Witness: They die sometimes.

Presiding Inspector: We know that some may die.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did they die because of the treatment you gave them?

A. No. I have never had to sign a death certificate.

Q. Can you sign a death certificate?

A. I can; yes.

Q. Under the laws of the State of Oregon?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, will this refresh your memory, your recollection: Mrs. Plank was removed to the Portland Sanitarium by Dr. Booth because she was close to death because of treatment that you had given her?

A. Let me see—I do vaguely remember that they called me about some case that I had been treating; yes.

Q. You are beginning to have a vague recollection now?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Well, I remember a case of that general character; yes.

Q. Was that an unimportant matter in your life?

A. Well, my goodness, I don't remember all of of the people that I have treated, or what happened to all of them. [3300]

Q. What happened—you were called before whom? A. I will tell you what you do.

Q. (Interposing) I am asking you——

Presiding Inspector: Were you called before anybody?

The Witness: No, no; I was not. There was never any——

Presiding Inspector: You said something about being called. Was word sent to you?

The Witness: Yes. Word was sent to me that the woman was in the hospital.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Who sent you word?

A. If I remember rightly, her sister came into my office.

Q. Her sister? Then you do know Mrs. Plank, don't you.

A. Well, I am beginning to recollect the case.

Q. And you knew it before that, didn't you?

A. No.

Q. You knew she had a sister?

A. I know now that you bring up the case.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. And you knew that her sister sent you word that she was in the hospital?

A. She didn't send me word; she came in.

Q. And then you even knew Mrs. Plank had a sister? A. She said she was her sister.

Q. Then you assumed that? [3301]

A. No. The woman introduced herself as Mrs. Plank's sister.

Q. She introduced herself as Mrs. Plank's sister. You remember that now?

A. Yes. Why wouldn't I when my mind is being refreshed with your great help?

Q. I will give you more help. Isn't it a fact, Mr. MacMickle, that Mrs. Plank executed an affidavit on April 22, 1930, to the effect, among other things, that you had performed an abortion on her?

Mr. Gladstein: If he knows about such.

Presiding Inspector: What?

Mr. Gladstein: If he knows of such affidavit.

Presiding Inspector: Do you know anything about that?

The Witness: No, I know nothing of any such affidavit.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You know nothing of such now? Now that you memory has been a little bit refreshed it isn't vague any more, is that correct?

A. Well, I am beginning, you know, the association begins to——

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. (Interposing) Did you perform an abortion, or attempt to perform an abortion on Mrs. Plank? A. No, I didn't.

Q. What did you treat Mrs. Plank for? [3302]

A. If I remember rightly, Mrs. Plank was suffering from a miscarriage when she came to my office.

Q. What did you do?

A. Well, I made an attempt to relieve her of the condition. She was in a dangerous condition.

Q. Of what? A. How?

Q. What did you do?

A. Well, I did the usual thing. I introduced an antiseptic solution, irrigation, for the purpose of stopping the encroaching infection; the same as I would do in any similar case, or the same as any other doctor would do.

Q. What else did you do?

A. Well, to the best of my knowedge that is all I did do.

Q. Did you prescribe any other treatment?

A. I don't recall prescribing any other treatment; no.

Presiding Inspector: You gave her a douche?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: A curette.

The Witness: Let me explain that when I say "irrigation" I mean I irrigated the inside of the womb because there were retained pieces in there.

Presiding Inspector: Did you curette?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

The Witness: Not with an instrument; no.

[3303]

Presiding Inspector: You can't do that?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: You didn't?

The Witness: Yes, I am permitted by law to do that.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Would you be permitted by law to perform an abortion?

A. No, I wouldn't be permitted, and no one is permitted by law to perform an abortion, unless it is a therapeutic abortion.

Q. Had a miscarriage occurred when she came to your office?

A. She was in the middle of a miscarriage; yes.

Q. Had it occurred?

A. What do you mean, "had it occurred?"

Q. You are a doctor, aren't you, or you claim to be.

A. Well, all right, but there is no point, in either the birth of a normal baby, or the development of a miscarriage, where you can say it had occurred, unless the thing is there. In the case of a miscarriage a woman may be cramping, passing large quantities of clots and——

Q. (Interposing) Had she passed a baby at the time you had her in your office?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. State that again.

Presiding Inspector: The question is this: Did she pass the fetus, if there was a fetus? [3304]

A. That, I don't know.

By Br. Del Guercio:

Q. It was after you stopped treating her?

A. I never saw the fetus, and I don't know.

Q. From your examination could you determine that condition?

A. No. The condition she was in I couldn't have determined whether there was a fetus or not.

Q. What did you determine from your examination?

A. From my examination I came to the conclusion that she had, was having a miscarriage; she was passing clots and cramping, and there was a very foul odor presumed to be a discharge, and my recollection is that there was, and she was running some little temperature.

Q. Did you advise her to see a doctor?

A. No; she was in my care and I took care of it.

Q. I say, did you advise her to see a doctor?

A. No, no. She went to the hospital on her own, I think.

Q. Do you know Dr. Booth?

A. No; I don't know Dr. Booth.

Q. What did Mrs. Plank say to you when she first came to your office?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I wouldn't remember that.

Q. Do your records show, or do you keep any records? [3305]

A. Yes, I keep records, but I wouldn't say that I have records back that far because I have moved from one office to another; you know.

Q. Do you have any records on your treatment of Mrs. Plank?

A. No; I have no record on that at all.

Q. For how long a period did you treat her?

A. Well, I think that she was in the office once, and they called me to the house once.

Q. Who called you to the house?

A. I think her husband called me.

Q. You even knew she had a husband?

A. Yes; I remember Mrs. Plank had a husband.

Q. What did you do when you visited her house?

A. When I went to the house?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't recall exactly, but I think I again irrigated her.

Q. Did you have a nurse? A. No.

Q. Did you ever have a nurse?

A. Yes; I have nurses right along.

Q. Did you have a nurse when Mrs. Plank came into your office?

A. I don't believe I had one at that time. [3306]

Q. What else did you do at Mrs. Plank's home regarding her treatment?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I think I gave her a spinal adjustment at the base of the neck to relieve a headache she was complaining of.

Q. Now, when did her sister come to your office?

A. Well, let me see,—I was called to the house on a Sunday morning, as I remember, and I should say it was four or five days later that her sister came in.

Q. What did the sister say?

A. She wanted to know what treatment I had given her sister, and said that she was out at the Portland Sanitarium; that she had a kidney blockage; that she hadn't passed urine for, I think she said, 67 hours, and the doctors out there were very baffled to know why this should be, and they thought that it might be helpful if they knew what I had done; whereupon I called the doctors.

Q. What doctors did you call?

A. I called Dr. Frisbie—F-r-i-s-b-i-e.

Q. He is not a naturopath?

A. No; a physician and surgeon.

Q. What did you say to him?

A. I told him the young lady was in there and that the case was out at the Portland Sanitarium. They wanted to know what I had done, and would I tell him.

Q. Did you tell him what you had done? [3307]

A. Yes.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. What did you tell him?

A. I told him, as I told you, that I simply went about and douched this woman out and irrigated her, and he said, "Doctor, I wouldn't worry about that because those cases oftentimes, even as in childbirth, have kidney blockage."

Q. Is Dr. Frisbie still living? A. Yes.

Q. Did you go out to the hospital?

A. No; I didn't go to the hospital.

Q. You didn't visit the girl any more after that?

A. I was off the case. They had taken it out of my hands.

Q. Were you given any fee for what you had done?

A. I don't remember whether I was paid anything or not.

Q. Did you demand payment?

A. I think there was a deposit made when the woman first came in.

Q. A deposit made? A. A retainer.

Q. A retainer?

A. I would say about $5.00, or something of that sort, what I would consider a fair price.

Q. Did you ever submit a bill to her?

A. No. [3308]

Q. What did you retain that money for, what was the retainer fee for?

A. Simply the treatment I gave her.

Q. You mean you took it in advance?

A. Yes; they paid me that $5.00.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Before you gave the treatment?

A. No, no no. I didn't say that. I said they paid me $5.00.

Q. When did she pay the $5.00?

A. I think she paid me $5.00 that afternoon when they first came in.

Q. "They"—was there more than one person?

A. She and her husband were in together. Her husband brought her over because of the condition she was in.

Q. Who gave you the money?

A. I think he gave me the money.

Q. Before or after the treatment?

A. Afterwards.

Presiding Inspector: Hold your voice up.

The Witness: I will try to. Personally, I am getting thirsty.

Presiding Inspector: We will let you have a drink of water. Officer, will you get some water for the witness?

Mr. Del Guercio: If the witness needs a drink I would be glad to wait. [3309]

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I said we would get him a drink.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you want to wait until after you have had your drink?

A. I think I can carry on for a moment or two longer.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: We don't want to hurt you.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. Ask your next question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How much did you tell Mrs. Plank or her husband you would charge for whatever treatment you were to give her?

A. I don't recall whether I made them an overall price or not. I frequently take a fee for the treatment given and let it go at that.

Q. Did you receive more than $5.00 from Mrs. Plank, or from her husband, or from her sister, or from anybody else?

(Whereupon the witness was given a drink of water.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Will you read the question, please?

(The question referred to was read by the reported as above recorded.)

A. No. I wouldn't recall any other fee than $5.00. I just said, when I stated that, I think that $5.00 was what they paid me. I know I received no subsequent payment or asked any.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You didn't ask for any? [3310]

A. No.

Q. Didn't you do anything to earn more than $5.00?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I didn't feel that I had. Ordinarily $2.50 for an office treatment is about all I charge.

Q. She was once at your office and you visited her once at her home?

A. That is right. When I am taking care of a patient at my office I don't run up an excessive bill, or when I call at their residence. If I have to go a long distance away I might want mileage.

Q. But you never submitted a bill after that to Mrs. Plank?

A. I don't recall ever submitting a bill.

Q. When did you destroy your records on Mrs. Plank, if you destroyed them?

A. Well, you are asking me a question I couldn't tell, because, as I say, I moved from the building where I then was and went over to take charge of a big clinic in the Bedell Building and naturally I —then, subsequently when that clinic was closed why, I went down to the Guardian Building, where I later met Mr.—what is his name—the CIO man.

Q. You still haven't stated what you did with those records, whether you destroyed them?

A. I didn't destroy them. I presume I lost them. I wouldn't know where to look for them now. [3311]

Q. How did you lose them?

A. I suppose in moving. That is why I am telling you about the moving.

Q. Did you lose all your records in moving?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I think I lost the most of them; I don't know.

Q. You don't know whether you did or not?

A. Well, frankly, I am not home to go through my basement and all of the boxes there in the basement to find out whether I have those particular records or not.

Q. Then how do you know you lost them?

A. I as saying I presume I lost them; I don't know. I haven't them in my office.

Q. You said you might have them down in your basement? A. Yes.

Q. You have records down there in your basement?

A. I probably have some records down there, but I don't even know for sure.

Q. You don't know whether you lost any records or not, isn't that a fact?

A. I sent the records, and all the stuff I wasn't needing in my office, out to the basement.

Q. You didn't lose any records, then, did you?

A. I can't swear whether I lost them or whether they are in the boxes down in the basement. That wouldn't make any difference to me. [3312]

Q. Your testimony is that you did not lose any records, is that right?

A. I am saying that——

Presiding Inspector: That isn't his testimony. I think we understand. He said he had a lot of records in his basement there in boxes, and whether these records are there or not he doesn't know.

Mr. Del Guercio: His previous——

Presiding Inspector: That is all right. He testified before on that.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. When did you join the Communist Party, Mr. MacMickle?

A. I never joined the Communist Party.

Q. At any time?

A. No; not at any time.

Q. Have you ever attended Communist Party meetings?

A. Those that were open to the public, the same as I have attended Republican rallies or Democratic rallies, or things of that sort.

Q. The same as you have attended Democratic and Republican meetings. In what cities did you attend these Communist Party meetings?

A. Oh, I have attended Communist Party meetings in Portland.

Q. Since when? [3313]

A. Oh, I suppose during the last ten years or more. I don't mean I have been a steady attendant at those meetings, but I have gone to them along with other people.

Q. Well, Mr. MacMickle, you have testified here that you know Mr. Bridges. You have testified that you know Mr. Lovelace and Mrs. Lovelace

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Now, this hearing here is for the purpose of determining whether or not Mr. Bridges here, who is an alien, is subject to deportation as a member of an organization which, among other things, distributes, circulates, literature advocating the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force and violence. The Government is attempting to show, or to establish that the Communist Party is such an organization. Your testimony as to whether you are a member of the Communist Party is material, we think. In view of that I want to ask you again, have you ever joined the Communist Party, or if you were a member of the Communist Party under any of its names?

A. I never even applied for membership in the Communist Party, much less having a membership.

Q. Under any name?

A. Well, what do you mean "under any name?" As far as I am concerned, there is a Communist Party and that is all.

Presiding Inspector: Under any name besides your own.

The Witness: No, no; certainly not.

By Mr. Del Guercio: [3314]

Q. Have you ever used an alias?

A. No. I have never found that necessary.

Q. What.

A. I have never found that necessary.

Presiding Inspector: He said, "No, I have never found that necessary."

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were you ever made a member of the Communist Party? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Not to your knowledge. Isn't it a fact that you have been a member of the Communist Party, a member of the Professional branch of the Communist Party? A. No, it is not a fact.

Q. Now, you were a member of the Friends of the Soviet Union, were you not?

A. Yes; I was a member of that at one time.

Q. When?

A. Well, let me see. I should say roughly in the period of, oh, I don't know, 1928 or 1929.

Q. We will give you every opportunity, Mr. MacMickle, to recollect. When were you a member of——

Mr. Gladstein (Interposing): Are these remarks by counsel necessary in his cross-examination?

Mr. Del Guercio: I haven't finished my question.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know. [3315]

Mr. Gladstein: I am asking your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. When were you a member of the Friends of the Soviet Union?

A. I think, roughly, in that general period from, say, somewhere in the five-year period of 1928 to 1933; somewhere in that period.

Q. Did anyone solicit your membership in the Friends of the Soviet Union?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I was donated a membership, as a matter of fact.

Q. By whom?

A. I forget who the party was now. It was one of the existing members, but I couldn't recall who it was.

Q. If I gave you a chance to recollect would you be able to do so, gave you a little time?

A. What?

Q. If I gave you a little time could you recollect who the party was?

A. No, I don't know that I could because there were a good many people that belonged, ministers, doctors, and lawyers as well as——

Q. (Interposing): And Communist Party members?

A. I think probably there were Communist Party members in the organization; yes. [3316]

Q. Do you know some of them, who some of them were?

A. I didn't know definitely that anyone was a communist Party member, but I assumed that there would be some in there.

Q. Now, when were you a member of the Council for Economic Research of the Commonwealth Federation?

A. No, there is no such organization.

Q. Or some such similar organization?

A. I, as a matter of fact, founded, or helped to found, the Council for Social and Economic Research.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. With whom?

A. Well, with a group of engineers principally. It came about quite accidentally. I was asked to address a luncheon of the Engineers' Society——

Q. (Interposing): Who asked you to do that —I mean, to organize this organization?

A. They asked me, said, after the discussion, that it would be nice if we had meetings at least once a week, and discuss social and economic problems.

Q. Who was that, who do you mean by that?

A. These engineers.

Q. Who were they, what were their names?

A. Oh, well, I couldn't remember now all of them.

Q. Some of them?

A. Well, I will tell you frankly I could mention most of them but I hesitate to do it under the circumstances because I [3317] don't want to involve them in——

Q. (Interposing): You mean there is something connected with that organization that would embarrass them?

A. I mean what you make out of the whole thing I wouldn't be surprised at anything.

Q. You don't want to name them because you don't want them embarrassed?

A. I don't want them bothered by——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): I think, if your Honor please, that the witness should be instructed to answer that question.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: No objection, I suppose?

Mr. Gladstein: Is it material?

Presiding Inspector: I think it is.

A. All right, I will mention them—Mr. Coon—C-o-o-n—who is an engineer; Mr. John Cunningham; a man by the name of Houser.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. H-o-u-s-e-r?

A. I can't be sure of the spelling of that name, whether it is "H-o" or "H-a". I think one man's name was——

Q. (Interposing): Morris Rapport?

A. No. He was not an engineer.

Q. Do you know Morris Rapport?

A. Yes, I have met him. [3318]

Q. Was he one of the founders?

A. No, he had nothing to do with the organization.

Q. Did he suggest to you that you join the organization?

A. No, no. We had the organization going before I ever knew Morris Rapport?

Q. You know who Morris Rapport is?

A. Certainly, I know him. He is well known all over the Northwest.

Q. Is he a well known Communist?

A. Yes. He is a Communist organizer; District Organizer.

Q. Can you name any other names?

A. They don't occur to me now.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. You have exhausted your knowledge, the names of all of the people?

A. Yes. I have exhausted my recollection of the twenty-odd that were there. I would know some of them by face if I saw them. I might not know them by name.

Q. Did you ever attend any IWW meetings, Mr. MacMickle? A. IWW meetings?

Q. Yes.

A. No. I don't—yes, sure. I addressed the IWW, yes, down in their hall on Third and Burnside.

Q. You recall that? A. What? [3319]

Q. You recall that?

A. Yes. I recall addressing them because I was asked to address them on psychology.

Q. You addressed them on psychology?

A. On psychology.

Q. And when was that, Mr. MacMickle?

A. What is that?

Q. When was that?

A. Oh, that was, say, somewhere—it was subsequent to my going East in 1921 to study psychoanalysis.

Q. About nineteen years ago?

A. Well, it might have been subsequent to—you know, anywhere in that period.

Q. Where did you address them?

A. In their hall.

Q. Where?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. It was on Third and Burnside Streets in Portland.

Q. In Portland, Oregon?

A. Uh-huh (affirmative).

Q. For how long did you speak to them?

A. Well, I never kept track of how long I spoke. You know, I would speak until I had exhausted the possibility of the subject I was talking about or the patience of my audience and then quit.

Q. Who invited you to speak? [3320]

A. Oh, I would want to—I suppose one of the men who were in charge of getting the speakers.

Q. You mean one of the members of the IWW?

A. I suppose so.

Q. And on what did you say you spoke?

A. On psychology.

Q. On psychology?

A. Uh-huh (affirmative), particularly the psychoanalytical aspects of it.

Q. Was there anybody but a group of IWW present at that meeting?

The Witness: I couldn't hear you.

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. Oh, I would suspect there might be other people because I had been giving a lot of talks on psychoanalysis before churches and lodges and so forth, and I had a following of people who followed me almost to any place I spoke.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, this was after you had studied under Mr. Tridon? A. Yes, that's right. Tridon.

Q. Did you among other things at that time make this [3321] statement in your speech: "Under our capitalistic economic system woman's only salvation is prostitution."?

A. No. I didn't make that statement.

Q. You didn't make that?

A. No, no. I wouldn't make such a statement as that.

Q. Did you make any such similar statement?

A. No, indeed.

Q. Huh? A. No.

Q. In substance? A. No.

Q. Huh? A. No, indeed.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. Absolutely so.

Presiding Inspector: He has said so six times. Let us go ahead.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't count it, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Ask the next one. Well, I did.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, were you ever a member of the American Peace Mobilization, Mr. MacMickle?

A. No. Wait a minute! I participated in some sort of peace meeting which was held last summer in Portland in one of the schools. [3322]

Q. One of the where?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. In one of the school houses.

Q. Shattuck School, wasn't it?

A. Shattuck School, that's right.

Q. And you never became a member of the American Peace Mobilization?

A. No. The only thing that I can recall that happened there that day was that while I was out in the hall I was nominated as a delegate to the Chicago convention.

Q. You were nominated as a delegate?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Who nominated you?

A. That I don't know because I was out when the nomination occurred, and when I came back in and saw that I had been nominated I just simply said I couldn't afford to go, and that was the end of it.

Q. Did you accept the nomination?

A. No. I wasn't there to accept the nomination. I was out when the nomination was made.

Q. You say that you didn't go to Chicago?

A. No, no. I didn't go to Chicago. I probably would have had I had the money and the time to spare.

Q. Is the American Peace Mobilization a Communist front organization?

A. Not so far as my knowledge was concerned.

[3323]

Q. You didn't know it at that time?

A. Well, I don't know that it is yet.

Q. You don't?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. No, I certainly have no such information.

Q. Is the Friends of the Soviet Union a Communist organization?

A. It wasn't when I belonged to it.

Q. When did it become such?

A. I don't know that it is. I don't even know that it exists at the present time.

Q. Do you know William Pennock?

A. Who?

Q. P-e-n-n-o-c-k?

A. I can't recall anybody by that name.

Q. Did you ever speak in Portland for funds to send delegates of the American Peace Mobilization to Chicago?

A. No. I don't recall speaking for funds. I might have spoken for funds, I don't know. I wouldn't be ashamed to admit it if I remembered that I have done so, because I think it is a worthy cause and would have been glad to participate in any helpful way I could.

Q. Do you know who the founders of the American Peace Mobilization are?

A. No, I don't know who they are. I knew the names. There were a great many distinguished names of American citi- [3324] zens on the stationery and on the official literature, and certainly I wouldn't have identified some of them as anything other than outstanding citizens, those that I knew about.

Q. Do you know Clifford O'Brien?

A. Yes. I know Clifford O'Brien.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Was he a member of the American Peace Mobilization?

A. I don't know whether he is a member or not. I know he was on the platform at that meeting, yes.

Q. Was he nominated as a delegate at the time you were?

A. I think he was nominated as a delegate.

Q. Do you know him to be a friend of Bridges?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Do you know James Fantz?

A. Yes, I know James Fantz.

Q. He was nominated as a delegate?

A. Yes, that's right. He was nominated.

Q. Do you know that James Fantz is a member of the Communist Party? A. No, I don't.

Q. You never heard of it?

A. No, I never heard.

Q. Do you know Julia Bertram?

A. Yes, I know Julia Bertram.

Q. Do you know that she was nominated as a delegate?

A. Yes, she was nominated as a delegate. [3325]

Q. Did you know that she was a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. You never heard of it?

A. No, I never heard that Julia Bertram was a member of the Communist Party.

Q. You never heard that?

A. You see, the Communist Party doesn't tell me a lot of things.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Doesn't tell you a lot of things?

A. Well,——

Q. (Interposing): What things did they tell you? You infer that they might tell you some things.

A. You inferred it. I didn't imply it.

Q. Do you know Joseph Chernis?

A. Yes, I know Joseph Chernis.

Q. Was he also nominated as a delegate to Chicago?

A. My recollection is that he was.

Q. Did you know him as a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of it? A. No.

Q. Did you ever belong to the American League Against War and Fascism, Mr. MacMickle? [3326]

A. Yes.

Q. When did you join it?

A. I don't rightly remember just when I joined that, to be honest with you.

Q. Is that organization still in existence?

A. Well, I don't know.

Q. Huh? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Well now, in what year did you join it?

A. I couldn't tell you that. I wouldn't remember what year it might have been.

Q. Where did you join it?

A. In Portland.

Q. Under your right name?

A. Yes, under my right name.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. For how long a period did you remain a member?

A. Oh, I think roughly during the period that the Reverand Nathan B. Ackerman was its President and Major Laurence A. Milner was its Secretary.

Q. And for how long a period was that?

A. Oh, I think that was a year or such a matter.

Q. Did you subsequently drop out?

A. Yes, I dropped out.

Q. Why? [3327]

A. Oh, partly because I don't have time to belong to all these things and take care of my professional duties.

Q. Your what kind of duties?

A. My professional duties.

Q. Any other reason for dropping out?

A. No. I think the thing eventually was disbanded in Portland. I don't know any subsequent history of it.

Q. Did your drop it before it was disbanded?

A. I don't know whether the date would coincide or whether it wouldn't, to be honest with you. I am not a great person to be attending organizations. I don't belong to organizations ordinarily; not even fraternal ones.

Q. I didn't ask you if you belonged to fraternal organizations.

A. No, I know you didn't. I am sorry.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Was it disbanded about the time that Hitler and Stalin entered into an agreement, into an agreement or treaty?

A. Well, in the first place you are assuming that Hitler and Stalin did enter into an agreement, which I know nothing about.

Q. Oh, you don't know that?

A. No. I don't know anything about that.

Q. Do you know as to whether or not the American League Against War and Fascism was reformed into the American League for Peace and Democracy? [3328]

A. No, I wouldn't know that.

Q. Did you join the——

A. (Interposing): No.

Q. (Continuing): ——the American League for Peace and Democracy? A. No.

Q. And do you know that the American League for Peace and Democracy was subsequently reformed and is now the American Peace Mobilization? A. No, I didn't know that.

Q. Huh? Yet you were a member of the American Peace Mobilization and you were a member of the League Against War and Fascism?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know that Mr. Bridges was one of the sponsors of the League Against War and Fascism? A. I don't recall knowing that, no.

Q. Huh? Did you ever see his name on any of the letterheads of the——

A. (Interposing): I might have. I suppose I was so struck by the name of Bishop O'Connell——

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. (Interposing): I am asking you if you saw Mr. Bridges' name on any of the letterheads of the American League Against War and Fascism?

A. No, I don't recall. [3329]

Q. What?

A. I don't recall having seen it.

Q. You might have seen it?

A. It might have been there.

Q. It might have been there?

A. You perhaps have copies to verify that by.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move, if your Honor please, that the witness' last remark be stricken from the record.

Presiding Inspector: Strike it out. Ask the next question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. MacMickle, you are familiar with the WPA Theatre Project there in Portland?

A. What?

Q. WPA Theatre Project?

A. Yes. I know something about the WPA.

Q. Do you remember a time they were producing a play "Night Must Fall?"

A. Yes. I remember that play.

Q. In May, 1939?

A. I suppose it was about that time.

Q. Do you remember going over there to observe their production of that play?

A. Yes, I was there.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Did you go over there with anyone? [3330]

A. What?

Q. Did you go over there with anyone or did you take anyone with you?

A. I'm not sure now. It seems to me I had my wife and daughter with me.

Q. Let me refresh your recollection, Mr. MacMickle. Didn't you on or about May, 1939, take Pritchett and Morris Rapport over to see the actors play? A. No.

Q. Produce the play? A. No.

Q. Did you accompany them? A. No.

Q. Were you present when they were present?

A. I wouldn't know if they were there. I never saw them there.

Q. You know Morris Rapport?

A. Yes, I know him.

Q. You know Harold Pritchett?

A. Yes, I know Harold Pritchett?

Q. What?

A. Pritchett, he pronounces it.

Q. Pritchett. And you know them as being members of the Communist Party, both of them?

A. No. I don't know any such thing about Pritchett.

Q. You know about Rapport? [3331]

A. Yes, because Rapport never made any pretense otherwise.

Q. Pritchett never did admit it, that he was a member of the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. No, and I never heard any allegation made by anybody that he was.

Q. Did you ever take Mr. Bridges to see that produced? A. No.

Q. That play? A. No.

Q. At any time? A. No.

Q. Were you ever present when Mr. Bridges was there?

A. No, not to my knowledge. I never saw Mr. Bridges there.

Q. Now, Mr. MacMickle, this Andre Tridon under whom you took the two-month course, you knew him at the time as the author of "The New Unionism", one of the IWW books?

A. No. I knew of him only through reading his books on psychology, and there were a number of them in the public library and I bought them from Gill's book store and came in contact with his ideas on the subject, and they seemed rational and in keeping with what we knew about physiology and psychology.

Q. Did you ever read his book on "New Unionism"?

A. No. I never did. I never knew anything about that.

Q. When did you first find out that he was the author [3332] of "The New Unionism"?

A. When you told me just now.

Q. This is the first time?

A. I never heard of that before.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. And you know it to be a book published and circulated by the IWW?

A. No. I wouldn't know that.

Q. You don't know that?

A. No. I don't know a thing about the thing. This is my first acquaintance with the thing at all.

Q. Mr. MacMickle, you said that you treated the deceased Mr. Lovelace for a period from about 1933 to about 1939. Is that correct?

A. Roughly during that period I treated him, you know, for one ailment or another at various times. Yes.

Q. Well now, what did you treat him for?

A. Well, I treated him for minor things, like colds. He had the usual amount of colds in the head and on the chest.

Q. What would you prescribe for a cold?

A. Well, the principal thing, of course, as anyone else would, rest and plenty of liquids, especially fruit juices to build up his vitamin content; keep the bowels open; and then we treated him with these short-wave diathermy, which was very——

Q. (Interposing): Did you charge him for that? A. No, I didn't charge him for it.

Q. No fee? [3333]

A. No fee. If I had charged him it would have been a charge.

Q. Was he a friend of yours? A. What?

Q. Was he a friend of yours?

A. Well, he was down and out and I felt sorry for him and I treated a lot of people the same, and so did every other doctor.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Down and out. You knew that he was a seaman pensioned from the Government?

A. I didn't know that for a long, long while.

Q. You knew that he was a veteran?

A. I knew that he was a veteran.

Q. You knew that he had a right to go to the Veteran's Hospital for treatment?

A. And I knew that he was there at times.

Q. And you knew that he was being treated at the Veteran's Hospital for a period of time?

A. He was treated off and on for one thing and another.

Q. Did you ever treat him for anything that they treated him for at the Veteran's Hospital?

A. Yes; he wasn't satisfied with the results that they were getting on his heart and I treated him for heart trouble. [3334]

Q. You mean that he told you that he wasn't satisfied with the results that he was getting from the Veteran's Hospital?

A. Yes. He told me that he wasn't satisfied and that's why he didn't stay there.

Q. Did you believe him?

A. At the time I was treating him for that he hadn't undergone the mental and moral degeneration that he did later.

Q. Oh, he hadn't undergone this moral degeneration at the time you were treating him?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Not for heart trouble; no, sir.

Q. Did he become a moral degenerate because of the treatment that you gave him?

The Witness: Am I supposed to answer a question of that character?

Presiding Inspector: Well, there is no objection from the other side.

Mr. Gladstein: It is obvious that the cross examiner has been more than insulting, but I take this position, your Honor: I rather take the position of having the witness answer the questions regardless of what they are. But when a question——

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude the question.

Mr. Gladstein: When a question——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) He has already excluded it.

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude it on the ground that [3335] it doesn't advance the hearing.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Was the deceased Mr. Lovelace a moral degenerate, as you have testified, at any time during the time that you were giving him treatments?

A. Well, I think when I was treating him for the after effects of gonorrhea, perhaps his degeneracy——

Q. (Interposing) Were you treating him for gonorrhea?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. The "after effects" I said. I could treat him for gonorrhea, too. I mean, it is legal for me to do that, but I didn't treat him for that because he went to the Veteran's Hospital for that, according to his own admission.

Q. And you were a close friend of Mr. Lovelace up until when, Mr. MacMickle?

A. Why, I regarded myself as a good friend of Mr. Lovelace until his death, because I had no animus toward him.

Q. Oh, he was your good friend up until the time of his death? A. I mean, I was friendly.

[3336]

Presiding Inspector: That is what he says.

The Witness: Yes, I was friendly to the extent that I was willing to do anything I could do for him.

Presiding Inspector: That is his testimony. That is all. Ask the next question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you visit him at his home? A. No.

Q. Did you ever visit him at his home?

A. Yes. I was entertained at his home, I think it was, a year ago last Summer.

Q. How did you go there? Were you an invited guest?

A. Yes. I was an invited guest; went there and had dinner and stayed overnight.

Q. You had dinner at his home? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Did you think him a moral degenerate at that time?

A. No. I don't think that the process had set in at that time.

Q. But it had had its beginning prior to that time?

A. Oh, it could have had some beginnings. But, then, it is a very hard thing to say that a process set in here, just like saying night becomes night suddenly.

Q. Up to that time when you had those social visits at his home, he was a good friend of yours?

[3337]

A. I think he was a good friend of mine. I was willing to take care of him and see him through his difficulties.

Q. Up to that time did you believe him?

A. Yes. I think for the most part I believed him. I felt that he was inclined to pull the long bow once in a while. He was already showing evidences of exaggerating his tales. That had set in for some time and everybody was discounting some of the things.

Q. Is that an answer to my question?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have testified, Mr. MacMickle, that the deceased Mr. Lovelace was irresponsible and irrational. During what period of time was he irresponsible and irrational?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Well, I would say roughly for about a year and a half prior to his death with increasing intensity in the condition during the last year.

Q. During the last year. Was he irresponsible and irrational when you had dinner at his home the last time?

A. No, I wouldn't say that he was——

Q. (Interposing) That was less than a year ago, was it?

A. No. I said a year ago last summer.

Q. A year ago last summer?

A. Uh huh (affirmative).

Q. You said that—you also testified, I believe that Mr. Lovelace borrowed money from you?

A. Yes, that's right. [3338]

Q. And you loaned it to him?

A. Uh huh (affirmative).

Q. How much did you loan him?

A. Oh, on one occasion there was $5.00, which he subsequently denied having borrowed; and then the others would run anywhere from two-bits to a dollar or maybe two dollars.

Q. Did you keep a record of the money?

A. No. I didn't keep a record of the money.

Q. And he never paid you back that money, did he?

A. No.

Q. None of it?

A. No.

Q. And when was the last time that you loaned him any money?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Oh, I would say possibly about a year ago at this time.

Q. About a year ago this time?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you intend for Mr. Lovelace to repay you?

A. I didn't count on his repaying me because he was always hard up. I was always buying him meals. Every week there would be one or two days——

Q. (Interposing) And you testified that you loaned him money?

A. Yes, I testified that I loaned him money.

[3339]

Q. Was he irrational and irresponsible when you loaned him money? A. Yes.

Q. But you loaned him money?

A. Yes. And I considered it a gift. He always asked for a loan and I made it a gift in my own mind.

Q. Did he ever lend you any money?

A. No.

Q. What? A. No.

Q. Are you sure of that?

A. Yes. I am sure of that because he never had any to lend.

Q. Huh?

Presiding Inspector: He never had any to lend. Next question.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you ever ask him for any money?

A. No.

Q. Huh? Did you ever ask him for $5.00?

A. No, I never did. He would be the last man in the world I would ask for $5.00.

Q. Do you have any other income than from what you receive from your practice?

A. No, except ocassionally I have written some articles [3340] that have been published and I got paid for that.

Q. Huh? Well, what is your average income, say, over the past five years?

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, I object to this.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see how that is going to advance this case.

Mr. Del Guercio: As to whether or not he had a sufficient income to be lending him money.

Presiding Inspector: To lend $5.00? If you really want to ask that, I will let you.

Mr. Gladstein: You Honor, I think that that is going too far.

Presiding Inspector: I will let him ask the question.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were you ever on the Executive Committee of the American League against War and Facism?

A. Yes, I was.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. How long a period?

A. Oh, that I wouldn't remember.

Q. How many members were on the Board, on the Executive Board?

A. And I wouldn't remember that either.

Q. Approximately?

A. Oh, there might have been three or five. I wouldn't [3341] know. Frankly, I don't remember the details of that.

Q. Well, how did you become a member of the Executive Board of the League against War and Fascism?

A. Well, I was considered an ardent advocate of the cause against war and Fascism and I had no hesitancy when asked to join on that basis to——

Q. (Interposing) Were you required to be active as a member of the Executive Board?

A. Well, I don't know what you mean by "active". I probably discharged in my feeble way some responsibility pertaining to my executive position, whatever it was, and I don't remember now frankly what it was.

Q. You don't remember what your duties were on the Executive Board? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know Esther Layten?

A. Yes, I knew Esther Layten.

Q. Did you know her as the wife of James A. Murphy? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know James A. Murphy?

A. Yes, certainly I know James A. Murphy.

Q. Do you know James A. Murphy as a member of the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes, he makes no bones about that. He is a Section Organizer in Portland, and everybody knows it. He has been [3342] written up in the Oregonian and is quite a respectable character around there.

Q. Is that the reason that you admit that you know him as a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, I——

Q. (Interposing) I will withdraw that question.

A. Yes. I don't quite get the question anyway.

Q. Have your associations with Esther Layton and James A. Murphy been social?

A. Yes. I have had social relations with them.

Q. Over how long a period of time?

A. Oh, I don't know. Pretty nearly as long as, I would say, back to 1937 or '38; somewhere along in there.

Q. Did you ever visit Esther Layton and James A. Murphy at their home?

A. Yes. I visited them at their home.

Q. Did you ever know them to live in the same apartment building as Mr. and Mrs. Lovelace?

A. No, I didn't know that.

Q. Did you ever visit them at that apartment?

A. The apartment I visited them at was on the east side of the Willamette River, and the apartment I visited the Lovelaces was on the west side. So if they ever livd together I didn't know anything about that. [3343]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Esther Layten was also on their Executive Board?

A. Yes, sir; she was a very active member.

Q. She was a very active member?

A. Yes.

Q. And you knew her to be equally active in the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. But you knew she was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, I didn't. I knew her husband was a Communist Section Organizer, but as far as she was concerned, I don't know whether she belonged to the Communist Party or not; I wouldn't know.

Q. Do you have the records available of the treatment that you gave the deceased, Richard Lovelace?

A. No, I don't, for the simple reason that I made no charge for it.

Q. Wait a minute. I asked if you had the records available.

Presiding Inspector: He said "No."

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you ever have any records of the treatments you gave Mr. Lovelace? A. No.

Q. At any time? A. No.

Presiding Inspector: He answered "No."

[3344]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. MacMickle, if we were to produce and show you the records of the Veterans Administration regarding the treatment and diagnosis had by Mr. Lovelace by doctors of the Veterans Administration during the same period of time that you say you treated him, and if those records do not show that at any time he was considered as a mental case, would your testimony be any different?

Mr. Gladstein: I think that question is improper.

Presiding Inspector: It is a hypothetical question, but I think we are entitled to an answer if you propose to bring those records in.

Mr. Del Guercio: We do.

Mr. Gladstein: Then the question being asked must state the specific things that are found in that record and, mind you, this is covering a long period of time.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't exactly know what counsel has in mind. If he is going to ask a hypothetical question——

Presiding Inspector: Neither do I, but I will take the answer. This is cross examination.

Mr. Gladstein: He has to be fair with the witness.

Presiding nspector: Absolutely, he must be.

The question is this: Assuming that the records do not show that he was treated as, or diagnosed as a mental [3345] patient, would that affect your testimony?

A. No. I would still stick with my contention that he was a mental case and I would, particularly in view of a conversation which I had over the telephone with Dr. Ernst, in charge of the neuro-psychiatry ward of the Veterans Hospital in Portland, and after Dr. Ernest was informed of the filthy and obscene letters he had written. Then I asked Dr. Ernst if he couldn't get Mr. Lovelace there for treatment; otherwise he was in dire consequences. He said, "No. We have had him here before and there is not much we can do for him. It is just one of those cases. If he comes in he will have to come in voluntarily, and we can't make him stay if he wants to depart."

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that the answer be stricken.

Presiding Inspector: Strike it out.

Mr. Gladstein: I think it is relevant and responsive.

Presiding Inspector: No. I think not. Read the question.

Mr. Gladstein: It answered the question and explained the basis of his answer.

Presiding Inspector: No. Strike it out. I will leave it to you.

Mr. Gladstein: He gave his answer that he wouldn't change his mind, and he expressed that in the light of the special circumstances. [3346]

Presiding Inspector: Then perhaps you can ask why he wouldn't believe the records.

Mr. Gladstein: It is not a question of why he wouldn't believe the records. The records may not cover the same thing.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: I will strike it out. You may ask on that subject when the witness is yours.

Go ahead and ask the next question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever examined the records of the Veterans Hospital?

A. No. I haven't any access to those.

Presiding Inspector: You have never examined them. Let us be precise here. Go ahead and ask the next question.

Mr. Del Guercio: Do you want to continue?

Presiding Inspector: I want to finish with this witness if I can.

Mr. Del Guercio: We want to get the records from the Veterans Hospital and confront this witness with them.

Mr. Gladstein: He has never seen them. He was asked a question, and if they want to produce the records I suppose they will have to have somebody to produce them.

Mr. Del Guercio: And it will take at least another hour.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't see what difference it makes, in view of the answer the witness has given to the question.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see that it would make much [3347] difference. He says it wouldn't change his mind.

Mr. Del Guercio: We also want to hold him over. We want to make a further investigation, a more complete investigation of this witness, for reasons which we believe are not necessary to state at this time and probably improper. We have been limited in our investigation that we have made. We have only made an investigation since he has appeared here on the stand. Before you decide, I would like to ask him one more question, if your Honor please.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you know a Mr. Whitmer or Mr. Whitmore? A. Whitmore?

Q. You know—yes.

A. Oh, I might have run across somebody by that name in the last 25 or 30 years.

Q. Do you want a little time to think it over as to whether you do or not?

A. If you can help me to identify him——

Q. Did you ever have any trouble with him over a bad check? A. No.

Q. Or with anybody over checks? A. No.

Q. Huh? A. No.

Q. Were you ever accused of passing false checks? A. No, sir. [3348]

Q. Checks with insufficient funds?

A. Yes; I have had checks with insufficient funds but I have never been, you know, nothing has ever been made of it. Sure, I have overdrawn my account.

Q. You say you don't know a Mr. Whitmer or Whitmore? A. No.

Q. Whitmer or Whitmore?

A. I don't remember such a name.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Or some such name? A. No.

Mr. Del Guercio: I again make the request that the witness be held over until Monday.

Presiding Inspector: No objection?

Mr. Gladstein: No.

Before we adjourn I would like to have a statement, if the Government is in a position to make one, on the question of Mr. Cannalonga.

Presiding Inspector: I haven't heard from Mr. Wixon since this morning.

Mr. Gladstein: What is the latest information?

Presiding Inspector: This morning he had not found him.

Mr. Gladstein: Who is looking for him?

Presiding Inspector: I haven't any idea. Someone under Mr. Wixon's direction, I assume. He hasn't informed me who it is. [3349]

Mr. Del Guercio: I might say, for counsel's information, that both the FBI and the Immigration Service and, if necessary, any other Governmental agency, will make every exhaustive effort to locate Mr. Cannalonga.

Presiding Inspector: I assume that is so. If you can help in any way, Mr. Gladstein, I trust you will do so.

Mr. Gladstein: You have my assurance.

Mr. Del Guercio: If they can give us any information on Mr. Cannalonga's whereabouts we will be glad to have it.

Presiding Inspector: In case you have any clue

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

that may lead to his location please let them know.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: We will recess until Monday morning at ten o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 4:30 P. M., an adjournment was taken to Monday, May 12, 1941 at 10:00 A. M.) [3350]

Court Room 276,
Federal Building,
San Francisco, California.
May 12, 1941

Met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10:00 A. M. [3351]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: Call your witness, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: We are ready, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: It isn't your witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Take the stand, please.

VIRGIL MacMICKLE

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross Examination (Resumed)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. MacMickle, you testified last Friday that you graduated from the American College of Drugless Physicians; is that correct?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes.

Q. In about 1913? A. That is right.

Q. Isn't it a fact that such a college never existed?

A. It existed all right; I have a diploma from it.

Q. Isn't it a fact that that was called the American College of Physical Education?

A. They had an American College of Physical Education in the same building; yes, sir.

Q. Isn't it a fact that the American College of Physical Education occupied the whole building on 42nd Street and Grand Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois? [3352]

A. No, that is not a fact.

Q. Isn't it a fact that the American College of Drugless Physicians was not listed in any of the directories for the City of Chicago during those years that you claimed you attended?

A. I wouldn't know that.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. MacMickle, you obtained your diploma through a fake diploma mill, isn't that correct?

A. No, that is not correct.

Q. That is not correct? A. No.

Q. And you said that after you graduated from that school you took up swimming, or became a swimming instructor?

Mr. Gladstein: I think all that has been gone into, and asked and answered a number of times.

Presiding Inspector: This is only to get started, I take it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Isn't it a fact that you took a physical education course, if any? A. No, sir.

Mr. Gladstein: I think that question is ambiguous. Does the question call for——

Presiding Inspector: The Witness seemed to be able to answer. [3353]

Mr. Gladstein: I know, but I want the record to show—it may be that the witness took a physical education course at some time.

Presiding Inspector: I will let you follow it up on redirect.

Mr. Gladstein: I want the record to show my objection to the question being ambiguous.

Presiding Inspector: It is in the record, and we will let you follow it up when you have the witness. Go ahead. [3354]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, you testified that one of the doctors who signed your diploma was a Dr. Crane?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that correct?

A. Yes, sir. My recollection is that's correct.

Q. That is the same—was that Dr. Milo A. Crane?

A. I wouldn't remember his first name.

Q. You wouldn't remember? A. No.

Q. Does it appear on the diploma?

A. I presume it does.

Q. And isn't it the same Dr. Crane who was charged with unethical conduct and expelled from membership in the medical profession because he advertised correspondence courses in drugless healing and granted special diplomas?

A. I wouldn't know about that.

Q. You wouldn't know about that?

A. No.

Mr. Gladstein: The question has been asked and answered.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, it has.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you know a Mr. Higbe? A. No.

Q. What? [3355] A. No.

Q. Now, you said you graduated from Stanhope High School? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where is that High School?

A. In Stanhope, New Jersey.

Q. In Stanhope, New Jersey? A. Yes.

Q. Is it a public school?

A. It was a public school; yes, sir.

Q. Is that near Patterson, New Jersey?

A. It might be within thirty-five or forty miles.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, you know that there is no such school, don't you, or there was no such school?

A. Then I would like to know who issued my diploma.

Q. So would I.

A. Well, I certainly have one.

Q. Where do you have it?

A. I have it in Portland.

Q. Is it available?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes, surely. Surely it is available.

Q. Now, do you know a James Martin?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Not that you can recall. You testified, I believe, that you knew the deceased Mr. Lovelace—Richard Lovelace— [3356] for a period of how many years?

A. Well, I would say—I think I said from 1933 on.

Q. 1933 until the time of his death?

A. It might have been 1932. I wouldn't remember it exactly.

Q. Did you know him as a member of the Communist Party?

A. Yes, I knew him as a member of the Communist Party.

Q. You knew he was? A. Yes.

Q. Did he tell you? A. Yes, he told me.

Q. Did others tell you that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Yes.

Q. Who else?

A. There would be so many I wouldn't know.

Q. Well, name some of them.

Q. Well, let's see! Bob Wilmot.

Q. Bob Wilmot told you that. Did you believe Bob Wilmot when he told you that Richard Lovelace was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I took it for granted since Richard admitted it himself.

Q. You believed Wilmot, didn't you? [3357]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: I think the question has been asked and answered.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, it has been answered.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Who else told you that? You said "many" people told you that. Who else told you that?

A. Well, he had the general reputation. It was known and published in the newspapers.

Q. You can't remember anyone else who told you that Richard Lovelace was——

A. (Interposing) I can't at this moment, no.

Q. And when did he drop out of the Communist Party, Mr. MacMickle.

A. Well, I wouldn't have definite information on that. All I know is that he told me that he had been expelled from the Party.

Q. When did he tell you that?

A. Oh, I suppose that would be 1939, probably.

Q. It was about the same period of time that you began to see signs of paranoia, is that correct?

A. I would say they were beginning to develop about that time.

Q. You began to observe these things here about Richard Lovelace shortly after he dropped out of the Communist Party, is that correct? [3358]

A. Yes. I think that is essentially correct?

Q. Well now, Mr. MacMickle, as a matter of fact, you were given an assignment by the Communist Party to discredit Mr. Lovelace after he dropped out of the Communist Party, isn't that correct?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. No, that is not correct.

Q. Didn't you furnish Mr. Lovelace with liquor?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever go out drinking with Mr. Lovelace?

A. Oh, I have had a drink or two with him at one time or another, certainly.

Q. Did you ever get drunk with him?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Huh? A. No, sir.

Q. Who bought the liquor when you went out?

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is immaterial.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is very material.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment! I have a right to make my objection notwithstanding what counsel thinks is material. I object to the question as being immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you buy Mr. Lovelace liquor?

A. No, I think Mr. Lovelace usually bought his own [3359] liquor.

Q. Did he buy yours when you were out drinking with him?

A. Well now, you asked me when I was out "drinking" with him as though that was a habitual thing. No.

Q. You never did. Now, he, Mr. Lovelace, during his lifetime was active and, as a matter of fact, a co-founder of the American League Against War and Fascism in Portland, Oregon, was he not?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. You couldn't prove that by me because I don't know. [3360]

Q. You were on the Executive Board, were you not?

A. That was after the thing had been formed.

Q. That was after it had been formed?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Lovelace one of those who interested you in joining the American League Against War and Fascism?

A. No. The man who interested me, and solicited my membership, was Major Larry A. Milner?

Q. Major Larry A. Milner?

A. Laurence A. Milner; yes.

Q. Did you work with Mr. Lovelace on this League Against War and Fascism?

A. No. As a matter of fact, Mr. Lovelace had very little to do with it.

Q. Did you ever appear at meetings with Mr. Lovelace, meetings of this American League Against War and Fascism?

A. I don't recall ever having seen him at a meeting.

Q. Do you remember the American League Against War and Fascism holding a mass meeting in Park Block at Park and Madison Street, Portland, Oregon, on August 1, 1934.

A I do.

Q. Do you recall that you were one of the speakers? A. I was.

Q. At that time. Was Mr. Lovelace there?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes, Mr. Lovelace was there. [3361]

Q. He was there? A. Yes.

Q. Did he participate?

A. He participated as an uninvited speaker and proceeded to disgust everybody present by his vile language and his abusive conduct.

Q. Well, didn't you make a very radical speech at that time? A. No.

Mr. Gladstein: I think that calls for a definition of terms from counsel. It is quite obvious, from his conduct in this case, that any liberal or progressive idea is considered by Mr. Del Guercio as a most radical, revolutionary and dangerous thing. I think the witness is entitled to a definition of what is radical. If we go to the Greek definition of what is radical, that is a question of going to the root of something. I think, from a scientific point of view, the word "radical" carries no evil connotation. If he is going to use that word he should define it.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it carries any evil connotation.

Mr. Gladstein: I think it ought to be defined.

Presiding Inspector: I will let him answer and you may canvass the question on redirect.

Mr. Gladstein: Somebody may look at this record and see [3362] the word "radical" and construe it in the way Mr. Del Guercio does.

Presiding Inspector: I said, on my ruling, I think there is no evil implication. Go ahead and answer the question.

A. No, I made no radical speech.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What kind of a speech did you make—on what subject was it?

A. Well, in general it had to do with the World War, because it was the twentieth anniversary of the beginning of the World War. I forgot what section of it I was assigned to, but it wasn't anything other than a discussion of the World War.

Q. Who assigned you the subject?

A. Major Milner.

Q. You took directions from Major Milner?

A. I had a high respect for him as a military man.

Q. Was he a member of the American League Against War and Fascism?

A. Oh, yes, indeed. He was its Secretary at that time, I think.

Q. Do you remember attending a meeting of the American League against War and Fascism on October 13, 1935, at the hall of the Woodmen of the World hall, in Portland?

A. Well, I don't recall the exact episode; no.

[3363]

Q. Was Mr. Lovelace present at that time?

A. I wouldn't know, because I don't recall the date.

Q. Do you remember attending a meeting of the same League in the Swiss Hall in Portland, Oregon, on April 3, 1935?

A. I don't remember; no, sir.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Do you remember being a speaker at that occasion? A. No.

Q. If I refresh your memory would you think you would change your testimony on that?

Mr. Gladstein: I object to that as argumentative.

Presiding Inspector. How can he tell? It is a question that is impossible to be answered.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And did you make a speech, outlining the danger of Fascism in America and urging the workers present to join the movement of the League to combat that capitalistic movement?

A. I don't know that I phrased any such statement as that. I don't recall the situation at all.

Q. And was Mr. Lovelace present at that meeting?

A. I don't have any recollection whatever about it.

Q. Do you know what the Simpson case is, Mr. MacMickle? A. I don't know.

Q. S-i-m-p-s-o-n? A. No.

Q. Did you ever talk about the Simpson case?

[3364]

A. No.

Q. At no time

A. I wouldn't even know what the case was to talk about.

Q. Do you remember appearing over radio KWJJ in Portland, Oregon, on April 8, 1937, and giving a three-minute talk on the Simpson case?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. No, I don't remember giving that talk. I know I talked a lot over KWJJ.

Q. Would you say you didn't discuss the Simpson case?

A. No, I wouldn't, because I have no recollection whatever regarding it.

Q. Do you remember that Simpson was a seaman who was arrested in Germany about that time?

A. No, I wouldn't recall that.

Q. You wouldn't recall that? A. No.

Q. Now, in your testimony Friday, Mr. MacMickle, I asked you about a Mrs. Plank. You testified first that you didn't remember the name, and didn't know the name, and then you vaguely remembered.

Mr. Gladstein: I object to that.

Presiding Inspector. You have sufficiently refreshed his recollection. Go ahead and ask the question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I asked you if you had ever seen the affidavit that she [3365] had made. Do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. I have the affidavit, the original affidavit, from Mrs. Edith J. Plank——

Mr. Gladstein: I object to the statement and move that it be stricken from the record.

Presiding Inspector: Strike it out. You have a paper writing.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will show it to the witness.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: May I see it?

(The document referred to was passed to Mr. Gladstein.)

Presiding Inspector: We are not generally so particular about characterizing it, but that is the rule.

Mr. Del Guercio: Since counsel asked to see it, I request that it be marked for identification.

Mr. Gladstein: Not necessarily.

Presiding Inspector: We will attend to that after it is read. [3366]

Presiding Inspector: Would you like to show it to the witness?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Then you may have it marked for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Government's Exhibit No. 262 for identification.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I will show you what purports to be an affidavit of Edith J. Plank, sworn and subscribed to on the 25th day of April, 1930, before a Notary Public, and ask you to look it over.

Mr. Gladstein: Is that a question, asking him to look it over, or are you asking him a question?

Presiding Inspector: No, that is preliminary.

Mr. Gladstein: Preliminary to what?

Presiding Inspector: Well, he wants him to look it over first and then he is going to ask him a question, I assume.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: All right. I don't know.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't want to take the witness by surprise here, if your Honor please. I wanted to show him the document first before I asked him the question.

Presiding Inspector: You needn't argue. It is perfectly [3367] proper. Let the witness look it over before you ask him any questions.

A. (Reading Government's Exhibit No. 262 for identification.)

Presiding Inspector: Now, what is the question, Mr. Del Guercio?

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, does that refresh your memory further regarding the case of——

A. (Interposing) It doesn't.

Q. Wait until I finish my question. You don't know what it is going to be. Does that refresh your memory further concerning the case of Mrs. Plank, whom you testified you treated?

A. No, it does not.

Q. It does not?

A. It doesn't give me any further information.

Q. Now, is it true as Mrs. Plank says in this affidavit that she was two months'——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Just a moment! I want to object to that as highly improper.

Presiding Inspector: Don't answer the question.

Mr. Del Guercio: I haven't finished the question.

Mr. Gladstein: I know. I know what counsel is going to do. In the first place, this assumes that it is an affidavit made by a Mrs. Plank. This purports to be an ex parte state- [3368] ment. I think all that counsel is entitled to is to ask the witness whether this has ever been seen by him, whether he has ever been confronted with it in any litigation, and on those occasions what took place or what was said. But counsel is not entitled to present a document to the witness, which purports to be an ex parte affidavit and may or may not be and may or may not contain a statement of facts at all, and then proceed to read this for an obvious publicity stunt.

Now, I object to it, your Honor, and I think you should rule definitely and strongly on this because we have had some of these things before.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, on both sides.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, this is not a publicity stunt. This man here has appeared here as a character—I was going to say "character witness", but I can't use the term that I want to use.

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that statement and I think that the Court should admonish counsel in speaking that way while the witness is on the stand.

Presiding Inspector: I think that you must obey the usual rules of courtesy in these cases.

Mr. Del Guercio: This witness here has testified that he has treated a Mrs. Plank.

Presiding Inspector: What is the use of asking him about that document [3369]

Mr. Del Guercio: Because we want to show what his reputation is, if your Honor please.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Well, that is another question whether that is competent.

Mr. Del Guercio: Would we be permitted to bring character witnesses in here to testify as to the character of this witness?

Presiding Inspector: I wouldn't pass on that now. You have got a document there and you said it purported to be an affidavit. I don't know whether it is genuine, or no one here in the Court room so far as the record shows knows anything about it. You have asked him whether it refreshes his recollection.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) We could——.

Presiding Inspector: And he says that it doesn't refresh his recollection. Now, what is more to be added? You want to get that into the record, is that it?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, we do.

Presiding Inspector: I think you will have to go farther than that to get it into the record. You can ask him if you have searched his recollection, not from that document particularly, but from anything that you think as to what he has already said or contradicted.

By Mr. Del Guercio: [3370]

Q. Is it true, Mr. MacMickle, that at the time Mrs. Plank appeared at your office she was two months' pregnant? A. No.

Q. Is it true that at the time Mrs. Plank appeared at your office on or about March 20, 1929 that she told you about her condition and that she wanted an abortion performed? A. No.

Q. Is it true, Mr. MacMickle, that you demanded from her $25.00? A. No.

Q. And is it true, Mr. MacMickle, that she did then and there pay you $25.00?

A. The amount she paid me, I told you the other day, I didn't recall. But I would certainly—that's the limit of my knowledge on it.

Q. And is it true, Mr. MacMickle, that at that time you consented to treat her, perform an abortion and that in so doing you inserted an instrument into her uterus? A. No.

Q. Do you know a Dr. Holden?

A. I know him by reputation.

Q. By reputation only? A. Well,——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) I will object to that. He has said he has heard of him. [3371]

Mr. Del Guercio: I will withdraw the question.

Presiding Inspector: By "reputation" he means that he knows him by the general speech of people, not that they have discussed whether he is righteous or upright or the contrary.

Mr. Gladstein: And it wouldn't make any difference.

Presiding Inspector: No, not now.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is it true, Mr. MacMickle, that you have the reputation of being an abortionist?

A. No.

Q. Now, you testified, I believe, that a Dr. Eris-

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

bee talked to you over the telephone concerning the case of Mrs.——

A. (Interposing) That's right.

Q. (Continuing)—Plank after she consulted or went to see a doctor?

A. (Nodding affirmatively).

Q. That was about April 16, 1929 or thereabouts.

A. Oh, I wouldn't remember the date.

Q. And isn't it true, Mr. MacMickle, that Dr. Frisbee told you that after a consultation with Drs. Holden and Ripley that they found Mrs. Plank's illness to be due to an attempted abortion by an electrical doctor who said he saw her four times?

A. I never had any such conversation with Dr. Frisbee. [3372]

Q. You never did? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see the personal history records of Mrs. E. J. Plank?

Mr. Gladstein: At where?

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. At the hospital in which she was confined.

A. No.

Q. Huh? A. Never did.

Q. She was confined at the Portland Sanitarium wasn't she?

A. That's my recollection of what they said.

Mr. Del Guercio: You know that.

If the Court please, may we ask that this—will we be permitted to substitute a photostat for this original?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Well, it is only marked for identification.

Mr. Del Guercio: For identification?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Are you going to go any further with it?

Mr. Del Guercio: Oh, we don't know at this time.

Presiding Inspector: You don't know. If you go any further with it you may substitute a photostatic copy.

Mr. Gladstein: I think it should be in the reporter's hands. I may have some questions to ask.

[3373]

Presiding Inspector: What is that?

Mr. Gladstein: Meantime it should be in the reporter's hands.

Mr. Del Guercio: I guess it could be in my hands while I am questioning him about it.

Mr. Gladstein: Oh, yes. Of course.

Presiding Inspector: Let us see if we can't make some progress.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. MacMickle, did you give Mr. Richard Lovelace therapy treatments in the summer of 1939?

A. I think in the summer of 1939 I gave him some electrical——

Q. (Interposing): That was right after he came out of the Veteran's Hospital, wasn't it?

A. I think possibly after one of his trips to the Veteran's Hospital. I wouldn't be sure.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. And that is the only time that he was ever a patient of yours? A. No, that wasn't.

Q. Huh? A. No, no.

Q. That isn't so? You say that is not so?

A. No, that is not so. I treated him for various ailments at various times. [3374]

Q. Now, you testified concerning an alleged extortion letter. When was that letter written?

A. I didn't testify——

Q. Huh?

A. I didn't testify concerning any alleged distortion letter.

Q. What did you testify about?

A. I take that back. I did mention "extortion" in connection with his letter.

Q. What do you mean by that statement?

Presiding Inspector: He remembers now that he called it an extortion letter. What about it?

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What was it about?

A. What was it about? It was that he was trying to get——

Q. (Interposing): Who was saying that?

A. That Richard Lovelace was trying to get this woman, who had formerly been his sweetheart, to give him moneys under threat of exposing their previous relation to her husband, and under threat of exposing other affairs that she had had.

Q. What is that woman's name?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, your Honor, I am not opposed to having a proper cross examination, and our position has been, as I think you have noticed, that we don't do one-tenth of the [3375] objecting that counsel for the Government do——

Mr. Del Guercio: He can object all he wants to.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished.

Presiding Inspector: Let's hear him.

Mr. Gladstein: The question here is this: If it is a question of simply checking on the information, I have no objection to that, but I think, out of courtesy to the people who are involved, that counsel should have some delicacy about the matter.

Mr. Del Guercio: We say there are no people involved. We say that is a figment of this witness' imagination.

Mr. Gladstein: I move that that be stricken out as an improper statement on the part of counsel, your Honor.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is not as improper as counsel's statement was.

Presiding Inspector: I think it was merely to explain why he wanted to ask the name.

Mr. Gladstein: I was making an objection, which lawyers have a right to make, and Mr. Del Guercio was making the kind of bullying speeches he is accustomed to making. I move it be stricken from the record.

Presiding Inspector: I don't care to have you characterize it, but I think you can make the motion. I think all the discussion will go out of the record anyway, I suppose, under the rule, unless you all agree on some different plan. [3376]

I think I will strike it out.

Now you ask, through me, that counsel be requested not to put the name of this particular person in the record.

Wouldn't it be well to accede to that and ask this witness to write the name, give it to you, and show it to Mr. Gladstein, and you make any investigation then that you wish?

Mr. Del Guercio: That would be agreeable.

Presiding Inspector: All right.

Mr. Del Guercio: The name and address.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: If he knows.

The Witness: I would be unable to give the address. I can't give the lady's present married name.

Presiding Inspector: You can give some identifying name?

The Witness: Yes; I would be willing to do that. That remains inviolate so far as she is concerned, does it?

Presiding Inspector: Of course, I can't compel these—I can instruct you to answer it, but we don't want to blacken anyone's reputation here. Just write the name down.

Mr. Gladstein: If you don't know her first name, all right.

Mr. Myron: The question is put.

Mr. Gladstein: I have a suggestion to make to

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

the Court. I don't have to be interrupted by Mr. Myron. [3377]

Presiding Inspector: Never mind scolding Mr. Myron.

Mr. Gladstein: I was going to make the suggestion that if the witness did not know the lady's first name that he simply give the husband's, then husband's name, if she has a different one now—I don't know—and any identifying information that he has. If he doesn't remember her address, what she was doing, or anything of that sort——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): There is no use of this after counsel has given the suggestions.

Presiding Inspector: I think so. Write down the woman's name at the time that this occurred.

(Whereupon the witness wrote a name on a piece of paper and handed it to the Presiding Inspector.)

Presiding Inspector: Do you now whether her husband is dead, that first husband?

The Witness: There was no husband at the time this love affair was going on.

Presiding Inspector: No, no—but at the time the letters were shown to you.

The Witness: Well, th. I wouldn't know about that because I——

Presiding Inspector: Do you know his name?

The Witness: No, I don't remember his name at all. I am sorry, but I don't.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio: [3378]

Q. You don't remember much of anything, do you?

Mr. Gladstein: Don't answer an insulting thing like that. I object to that as not being a question.

Presiding Inspector: Don't characterize it. You can move to strike it out.

Mr. Gladstein: I do so move.

Presiding Inspector: We will exclude it.

Now, this name that you have written down here is the woman's last name?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: At the time that you knew her?

The Witness: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whether—you did know her, didn't you?

The Witness: I knew her casually; yes.

Presiding Inspector: Do you know what her business was, if she had any?

The Witness: She was a stenographer.

Presiding Inspector: Stenographer. Can you identify her in any other way than this?

The Witness: She was a blonde.

Presiding Inspector: A blonde stenographer?

The Witness: A blonde stenographer.

Presiding Inspector: I am afraid that is not very close identification. [3379]

Show Mr. Gladstein this name.

(The piece of paper with a name written thereon was passed to Mr. Del Guercio and Mr. Gladstein.)

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Didn't you testify that her husband had brought the lady to you?

A. No. The husband brought the letter to me.

Q. The husband brought the letter—was it before or after she was married?

A. I think your question isn't clear in my mind. I didn't understand your question.

Presiding Inspector: I think there was some confusion there. At the time that these matters concerning which Mr. Lovelace wrote, the woman was not married, is that right, but at the time the letters were written, delivered, she was married?

The Witness: She was married; yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, let us get this straight. Didn't you testify that both the husband and the lady in question were very good friends of yours?

A. No, indeed, I did not.

Q. You did not?

We want to look back to the previous testimony, if your Honor please. [3380]

Presiding Inspector: Yes; all right. Take your time.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Who brought the letter to you, Mr. MacMickle?

A. The husband brought the letter to me; brought three of them.

Q. Well, now, and you don't remember his name?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. No, I don't. It was an odd name. I had no reason for continuing the acquaintance and there is just nothing to it for me to remember.

Q. What did he say to you?

A. Well, he came into the office and said, "If you are a friend of Dick Lovelace you had better take care of him. If you don't I am going to kill him."

Q. How did he know that you were a friend of Dick Lovelace?

Mr. Gladstein: I object to that as calling for conjecture, speculation, the opinion and conclusion of the witness, and being immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: Well, it is hard to rule on the materiality of it.

Mr. Del Guercio: It goes to the veracity of the witness.

Mr. Gladstein: This witness is being asked how this other man knew whether a friendship existed.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, if he doesn't know he [3381] can say so; if he knows why he can tell. Do you know?

A. Well, I think I know how he might have known, because when he got these letters and confronted his wife with them, as the story developed, she told him that I had been a friend of Dick Lovelace.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Then you knew the lady in question before?

A. I had met her before; yes. I haven't said I didn't?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. What?

A. I haven't said I didn't know her before.

Q. What did you do with the letters?

A. I gave them back to the man.

Q. Did you tell the Police about it?

A. I told, first I called the Veterans Hospital. I dissuaded this fellow——

Q. (Interposing): The question is, did you tell the Police about it? A. No. I told the——

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Answer "Yes" or "No". A. No.

Q. If you want to qualify later on you may.

A. May I qualify it? [3382]

Presiding Inspector: Yes; certainly.

A. (Continuing): Well, the episode, as it actually occurred, was when he made the threat of violence I said, "This man is a sick man and doesn't need punishment, but needs treatment. Let us call the Veterans Hospital."

He said, "You can."

So I called the Veterans Hospital.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Who did you talk to?

A. Dr. Ernst, in charge of the Neuro-psychiatry department.

Q. You are sure you talked to Dr. Ernst?

A. Absolutely. I first called for Dr. Carter, called for him twice, because I heard Lovelace mention him.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. If Dr. Ernst would say he never talked to you would your testimony be the same?

Mr. Gladstein: Don't answer that. I object to that as being argumentative.

Presiding Inspector: Sustained. We can't go into hypothetical matters that way.

Mr. Del Guercio: We expect to have Dr. Ernst down here.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

Mr. Gladstein: When you produce him——

Presiding Inspector: We can't tell what Dr. Ernst will say. [3383]

A. (Continuing): Then I called Mr. Stack, the Court having proper jurisdiction—I forget the name of the Court.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Who is Mr. Stack?

A. He is connected with this Court as one of the psychologists, I believe. Anyhow, it was Dr. Ernst's recommendation that I call him. Otherwise I wouldn't have known him.

I called him and told him I had been told to call him. And then when the man called me back to see whether I had been able to make arrangements with the Veterans Hospital I told him I hadn't, but they had sent him to Mr. Stack. So he went up and took the letters to Mr. Stack's office and saw Mr. Stack, and Mr. Stack called me back and told me about it himself.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What is Mr. Stack's first name?

A. I don't know.

Q. When did this alleged conversation take place between you and Mr. Stack?

A. Oh, I would say it took place probably, I would say, about March or April of last year; roughly.

Q. 1939? A. No.

Q. 1940?

A. About March or April, 1940. [3384]

Q. And was this conversation over the telephone, or how did it take place?

A. With Mr. Stack, it was over the telephone; yes.

Q. Over the phone? A. Yes.

Q. You called him up?

A. I called him up, and then he called me back.

Q. Where did you call from?

A. From my office.

Q. Was there anyone present at your office at any time?

A. I don't know that there was.

Q. And what phone number did you call, do you remember? A. What?

Q. What phone number did you call?

A. Oh, I don't know. I called the court house number. I wouldn't remember the number.

Q. The court house number?

A. The court house number.

Q. That number?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes; and then asked for that department.

Q. You testified that the deceased, Mr. Lovelace, talked to you about pixies, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Who were present at the time?

A. Nobody. [3385]

Q. Nobody—just you and Mr. Lovelace?

A. Yes.

Q. And when did these occur?

A. Oh, I would say it was about the time that he was so worried about these letters. You know——

Q. (Interposing): Was it before or after these letters?

A. It was probably before I saw the letters, but I have a suspicion he might have been worrying about them at the time.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, now, I move to strike that out—he had a suspicion that he might have been worrying about the letters that the witness never saw, if your Honor please.

Mr. Gladstein: What is that?

May I have counsel's last statement read?

Presiding Inspector: I will strike it out so it won't make any difference.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: You can ask him again.

Mr. Del Guercio: You struck out my remark, but not the witness' answer?

Presiding Inspector: Just the witness' answer. Let me see—I am ruling on your question. It hasn't been answered. I will exclude that question in the form that it is in.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I have the witness' last answer, please? [3386]

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: You mave to strike it out.

Mr. Del Guercio: Not at all.

Presiding Inspector: I thought you did. You moved to strike it out?

Mr. Gladstein: I move to strike out the remarks of counsel, which was not an objection, or a motion of any kind, but simply a gratuitous comment.

Mr. Del Guercio: I was addressing myself to the witness.

Presiding Inspector: Let me hear Mr. Del Guercio's question, or statement.

(The statement referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: I thought there was a motion to strike it out, and I will grant your motion.

Mr. Del Guercio: I withdraw my motion.

Presiding Inspector: It is too late now. You have moved that it be stricken out. You will have to go over it again. You asked to strike it out and I granted the motion. It is stricken out. You can find out the chronology here if you wish to; if you don't wish to I may ask the question myself. [3387]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Very well.

Presiding Inspector: Now, we want to find out the order in which these things happened. Now, will you just tell us in your own way?

The Witness: Well, yes. I can do that, your Honor. He talked about talking to the "pixies" before these letters were shown to me.

Presiding Inspector: You didn't know anything about the letters?

The Witness: No, I didn't then. He simply went on talking and asked me if I had ever talked to the "pixies."

Presiding Inspector: He said he had?

The Witness: He told me he had.

Presiding Inspector: And you told him you hadn't?

The Witness: That's right.

Presiding Inspector: And how long after that was it that these letters were shown?

The Witness: I would say roughly two weeks or some such matter.

Presiding Inspector: I see. And then after that you first spoke to Mr. Lovelace about the letters?

The Witness: Well, no. It was shortly—the day—here's the sequence of events. The morning before I saw these letters he came in and told me about somebody wanting to beat him up. [3388]

Presiding Inspector: I see.

The Witness: And how he had talked them out of it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: But he didn't say anything particular then?

The Witness: No, he didn't then.

Presiding Inspector: And that was about two weeks after you had the "pixies" talk?

The Witness: Yes, that's right. And then later on in the day, this gentleman, the husband, came in and showed me the letters and then the next morning Lovelace came to my office and said that this——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Now, I think we have got the chronology.

The Witness: Yes, that's the way absolutely that it went.

Presiding Inspector: That's all.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And I believe you testified that you continued to visit Mr. Lovelace—Mr. and Mrs. Lovelace at their home until the time of his death?

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment! I will object to that as not being a question, and it has already been asked and answered in one form or another a half a dozen times.

Presiding Inspector: I think it has been answered, but I will allow it again.

Did you continue to visit Mr. and Mrs. Lovelace up to the time of his death at his house? [3389]

The Witness: No. My last visit there would be in the summer of 1940.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. In the summer of what?

A. In the summer of 1940. Pardon me. 1939. I didn't have any in 1940.

Q. But you continued to remain his friend until the time of his death?

Presiding Inspector: He has said that.

A. Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever appeared to testify against the character of a dead man before?

A. No, sir.

Q. Huh? A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Is this the first time?

A. (Nodding affirmatively.)

Q. What?

A. Yes, this is the first time I can ever recall of having been—— (Pause).

Q. Where were you born, Mr. MacMickle?

A. I was born in Stanhope, New Jersey.

Q. Do you have a birth certificate?

A. No, it is in the family bible.

Q. What is your father's name? [3390]

A. Frank.

Q. Frank what? A. MacMickle.

Q. And your mother's maiden name?

A. Laura Schoonover.

Q. Will you spell that?

A. L-a-u-r-a S-c-h-o-o-n-o-v-e-r.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, may I approach the bench?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Surely. Surely.

Mr. Del Guercio: If counsel doesn't mind.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want me up there?

Mr. Del Guercio: Before I ask the question I would like to—— (Pause).

Presiding Inspector: Do you want Mr. Gladstein up here?

Mr. Del Guercio: No.

Presiding Inspector: He wants the advice of the Inspector.

(Here followed informal discussion at the bench.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. MacMickle, have you ever been adjudged a bankrupt?

Mr. Gladstein: I object to that as being immaterial, your Honor.

Mr. Del Guercio: It goes to the truth and veracity.

Presiding Inspector: I am not sure whether it is com- [3391] petent or not.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't see how it would be.

Presiding Inspector: I said to Mr. Del Guercio that I wasn't sure and I suggested that he ask the question.

Mr. Gladstein: I am going to put the objection anyway. I don't know whether the witness has or has not, but I don't see any materiality and I object to it upon the grounds that it is immaterial and improper cross examination.

Presiding Inspector: I have heard it asked and answered but never an objection to it. At least I have read that. It doesn't seem to be very material.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, we have permitted the witnesses to be asked whether they have ever been on relief and the answers have been permitted.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. But there was some further matter relating to that.

Mr. Gladstein: There was a purpose in that.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) There may be a distinct purpose in this, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it would be harmful. Well, I won't say whether it will be harmful or not, but I think I will allow it.

Have you been adjudicated a bankrupt?

The Witness: Yes, sir. [3392]

Presiding Inspector: That's all.

Go on to another subject.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you ever have a bank account in the Canadian Bank of Commerce? A. Yes.

Q. And did you ever issue checks on that bank account without having sufficient funds?

A. Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as immaterial and improper cross examination. I don't see how it has any materiality to the proceeding at all. I doubt whether there is a human being who has ever had a bank account who hasn't at some time overdrawn his account, and I don't see how in any way this could involve the issues. And, moreover, if I remember correctly, it was asked and answered last Friday. I am pretty sure that subject was asked and the witness testified about it.

Presiding Inspector: I think there was something on it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Something was asked about Mr. Whitmore and the witness replied that he didn't know him.

Presiding Inspector: I will sustain the objection, but I will allow you to ask this question: Did you ever intentionally overdraw your account?

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, I—— (Pause). [3393]

Presiding Inspector: Lots of people overdraw their accounts.

Mr. Del Guercio: He could invoke the privilege, of course, and refuse to answer upon the ground that it might incriminate him.

Presiding Inspector: No, because not unless you ask him whether he intentionally did that and then he can invoke his privilege. If you want to ask him you may ask him.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will ask him that question and I will also request the Court to advise him that the witness may refuse to answer.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. You need not answer any question the answer to which would tend to incriminate you. The question is, Did you ever intentionally draw bad checks?

The Witness: No, no.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you know what your standing is with the Association of Credit Men in Portland?

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as improper.

Presiding Inspector: Sustained.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, if your Honor please, doesn't that also go to the truth and veracity of this witness?

Presiding Inspector: No, no. I think no. I don't think so. There is nothing wrong for an impecunious person that I know of to ask for credit if he is able enough to get it. [3394]

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, if the Court please, the Court will recall that this witness testified that he had loaned money from times to times to the deceased Richard Lovelace. I want to show that he never was in position to loan money to Mr. Lovelace or anyone else.

Presiding Inspector: No, I wouldn't take that. Those are insignificant sums.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever been made a defendant in any action, civil or criminal?

A. No. I don't recall ever having been made a defendant in any such—— (Pause).

Q. Do you want a little time to think it over?

A. No. I think my memory is fairly clear. I don't believe I was ever made a defandant.

Q. Weren't you sued by the United Adjusters for a sum of money?

A. That's right. I was. I had forgotten it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Then you were made a defendant, weren't you?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative). It was settled out of Court.

Q. It was settled out of Court? A. Yes.

Q. Now you recall that? A. Yes, I do.

Mr. Gladstein: He has already testified to that. I will [3395] object to this question.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, he said so.

Mr. Del Guercio: May we have a short recess, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, certainly.

(Whereupon, a short recess was taken.)

Presiding Inspector: On further consideration I will strike out the answer that the witness made, that he had been adjudicated a bankrupt, as not bearing on his credibility. That is the ground, I mean. It does not bear on his credibility. Therefore, I strike it out and disallow the question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. MacMickle, where do you keep your diploma from the American College of Drugless——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) I object to that as immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: Well, if he has it in his home. He said he has it, didn't he?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. I want to know where it is.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I don't think that it is material.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

You can produce that, can't you?

The Witness: Yes, I could produce it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, is it in your office? [3396]

Presiding Inspector: Well, he merely asks whether—is it here?

The Witness: No, it is not down here.

Presiding Inspector: Is it framed in your office?

The Witness: No, I have it out home.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Would you have any objection to sending it down to the Court here?

A. Yes. I would be glad to send it down.

Q. And will you do that?

A. (Nodding affirmatively.)

Q. Mr. MacMickle, has your office at any time been used as a meeting place for Communists?

A. No.

Q. Have known Communists ever gathered at your office at any time?

A. Well, unless there would be Communists that came in there that knew each other, patients.

Q. Was Mr. Rapport ever a patient of yours?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. He appeared at your office? A. Yes.

Q. You knew that Rapport was a Communist, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever discuss Communism with him? [3397]

A. No, no. He had a bad throat and hardly able to talk, much less to discuss anything.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Did you know him as an Alien who had been ordered deported because of his membership in the Communist Party? A. No, I didn't.

Q. What other Communists appeared at your office?

A. Well, those that I would know would be Lovelace, Wilmot and Jim Murphy.

Q. Anyone else?

A. Not to my certain knowledge, no.

Q. How did you happen to be down here to testify, Mr. MacMickle? Who asked you to come down here to testify?

A. Well, the,—— I was asked in Portland if I, having taken care of Lovelace and Wilmot, if I would be willing to come and testify.

Q. I will ask you the question again. Who asked you? A. An attorney in Portland.

Q. What is his name?

A. Irving Goodman.

Q. Irving Goodman?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative).

Q. When did Irving Goodman talk to you about coming down to testify? A. Thursday.

Q. Thursday of last week? [3398]

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative).

Q. What did he say?

A. Well, he merely said, inasmuch as I was known to have been the physician——

Q. (Interposing) Well, did he call you up?

A. Yes. He called me up on the phone.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. And what did he say to you on the phone when he called you up?

A. Asked me to come to his office.

Q. Is that all he said?

A. Yes. So I went to his office.

Q. He didn't say anything else but ask you to go to his office? A. That's it.

Q. Did he tell you why he wanted you to go to his office?

A. Well, he wanted to talk to me, he said.

Q. Did he tell you what he wanted to talk to you about? A. No.

Q. And when did you go to his office?

A. I went to his office Thursday evening.

Q. In the same day?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative).

Q. Thursday evening?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative.) [3399]

Q. And when you arrived there who was present?

A. The only person I would remember who was present was a mutual friend by the name of Rodman, Burton Rodman.

Q. Who? A. Rodman.

Q. Rodman? A. Burton Rodman.

Q. Did you know Rodman before? You said he was a mutual friend, is that correct?

A. Yes. I have known Rodman for many years.

Q. And who started the conversation?

A. Who started——

Q. (Interposing) Was there any conversation?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. In the office?

Q. After you arrived, yes, in Mr. Goodman's office. A. Yes, there was conversation.

Q. Who started it?

A. That I don't recall just who started it.

Q. Well, what was said and by whom?

A. Well, I was asked to come down here and testify and told that I would be subpoenaed.

Q. Were you told what you would be required to testify? A. No, no.

Q. Was the name of Richard Laurence mentioned—or [3400] Richard Lovelace mentioned?

A. I think it was mentioned and, as I say, inasmuch as I had been his physician and also Wilmot's.

Q. Well, what did they say about Richard Lovelace? By "they" I mean Rodman and Goodman.

A. Well, just simply wanted me to tell the truth about my relations with him.

Q. Did they ask you what your relations with Mr. Lovelace had been?

A. No. They didn't make any searching inquiry into what they were.

Q. What inquiry did they make?

A. Well, they said "Doc, you did treat Richard Lovelace?"

Q. And your answer to that was what?

A. I said, "Yes, surely I had".

Q. And did they ask you what you had treated him for? A. No.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. And did you tell them what you had treated him for? A. No.

Q. What? A. No.

Q. What else did they ask you?

A. I don't recall that they asked me anything else.

Q. Now, your best recollection is that that's all that they asked you, what you have just testified to? [3401]

A. Yes. That is about all I can remember, I think.

Q. And they didn't ask you whether you knew Mr. Richard Lovelace's reputation for truth and veracity?

A. I wouldn't be sure whether that came up or not. That has come up so often I wouldn't be able to pin it down to any one particular conversation with anybody.

Q. How long did you talk to Mr. Rodman and Mr. Goodman that evening?

A. Oh, I should say, with the interruptions he had around his office, that I was probably there 30 minutes.

Q. 30 minutes?

A. And talked with him probably less than five.

Q. Was anyone else present during any of the conversations you had with Mr. Goodman?

A. Nobody but Mr. Rodman, and he wasn't in there all the time.

Q. What time of the night was this?

A. At 8:00 o'clock.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. 8:00 o'clock at night?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative).

Q. Was Mr. Kenneth Fitzgerald there also?

A. No.

Q. You know Mr. Fitzgerald, don't you?

A. Yes, I know Kenneth Fitzgerald and I didn't see him there. [3402]

Q. What?

A. I know him and I did not see him there.

Q. Do you know Mr. Kenneth Fitzgerald as a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, I don't know that.

Q. Did he talk to you about this case?

A. No, sir.

Q. At any time?

A. Not at any time. I havn't seen Kenneth Fitzgerald to talk to in a year or more.

Q. Did you ever treat Kenneth Fitzgerald?

A. No, I never did.

Q. Is that the only time you talked to anybody about Richard Lovelace and Wilmot?

A. The only time I recall.

Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Gladstein about it?

A. Oh, I believe I did talk with Mr. Gladstein.

Q. When? A. Well, when I landed here.

Q. When you landed here?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative).

Q. When did you come down here?

A. I came down Thursday night.

Q. Thursday night?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative).

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Of your own accord? [3403]

A. Well, I was told in Portland that if I didn't come Thursday night then there would be a subpoena for me, and in view of the flying conditions and everything I decided——

Q. (Interposing) Had you been subpoenaed in Portland? A. No.

Q. What?

A. No, I hadn't been subpoenaed in Portland.

Q. Who asked you to come down here?

A. Irving Goodman asked me to come down here.

Q. And who paid for your transportation?

A. Irving Goodman paid for the transportation.

Q. How much did he give you?

A. He paid it direct to the——

Q. (Interposing) Huh?

A. He paid it direct to the United Aircraft.

Q. He purchased your transportation?

A. That's right.

Q. Did he give you any money? A. No.

Q. Did he promise you any money?

A. No, he did not.

Q. Did you discuss with him the payment of any money for your testimony here?

A. No, no, I didn't. [3404]

Q. Did he promise you any reward?

A. No.

Q. Compensation of any kind? A. No.

Q. And you arrived here when?

A. Well, the plane arrived, I think, about 2:20 at the Oakland Airport.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. And where did you go from there?

A. To the Palace Hotel.

Q. Did you get in contact—did you contact Mr. Gladstein?. A. No.

Q. When did you contact Mr. Gladstein?

A. The first time was on Friday morning.

Q. The first time was on Friday morning?

A. Uh-huh (Affirmative).

Q. And did you have any conversation with Mr. Gladstein Friday morning?

A. Very brief conversation.

Q. And where was that? Where was that?

A. In his office.

Q. Who else was present?

A. Well, I think Mr. Grossman was in and out, or——

Q. (Interposing) You say you had a very brief conversation with him? [3405] A. Yes.

Q. For how long a period would you say?

A. Well, I would say the actual conversation might have been five to ten minutes, because there were——

Q. (Interposing) What did Mr. Gladstein say to you?

A. Well, just discussed with me the fact of my having come down here to be a witness.

Q. To be what kind of a witness, did he say?

A. Well, character witness.

Q. Against whom?

A. Lovelace and Wilmot.

Q. Give me all the conversation that you recall.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I wouldn't remember all the conversation because it was fragmentary and there were people in and out; frequent interruptions.

Q. Did he ask you how long you had known Mr. Lovelace and Mr. Wilmot?

A. I don't recall that that question came up, no.

Q. He didn't ask you that?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did he ask you how friendly you had been with Mr. Wilmot and Mr. Lovelace?

A. I don't think he had time to go into that.

Q. He didn't go into that. Did he ask you if you knew what Mr. Lovelace's reputation was for truth and veracity?

A. No, I don't think he went into that. [3406]

Q. He didn't ask you that. Did he ask you if you knew what reputation Mr. Wilmot had for truth and veracity?

A. I don't recall any such conversation.

Q. Did Mr. Grossman ask you these questions that I have just propounded?

A. No, no. I just saw Mr. Grossman fleetingly as he came in and out.

Q. Did Mrs. King ask you? A. No.

Q. Did any of defense counsel ask you what you knew about Mr. Wilmot's and Mr. Lovelace's reputation for truth and veracity?

A. No. There wasn't any time for any great amount of conversation at all.

Q. Did anyone ask you? A. No.

Q. Either in San Francisco or in Portland?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. No.

Q. Did they ask you about the threatening letters—alleged threatening letters that Mr. Lovelace had written?

A. I think I devulged that for myself.

Q. To whom?

A. To Mr. Goodman in Portland.

Q. Mr. Goodman. Did you mention it to Mr. Gladstein?

A. Yes. When I got here I mentioned it to Mr. Gladstein. [3407]

Q. You were subpoenaed after you arrived in Los Angeles—in San Francisco, is that correct?

A. That's right. That's right.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I ask the Court's indulgence for just a few moments?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, you may. [3408]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, for how long a period had you know Mr. Wilmot?

A. I think I said on Friday about since 1936; somewhere along in there, but I wouldn't be too positive.

Q. From 1936 to when?

A. Well, from 1936 until the present time. I still consider I know him.

Q. What were your relations with Mr. Wilmot?

A. Well, he was ill at various times, and came—

Q. (Interposing) He was what?

A. Ill at various times.

Q. Did he come to you as a patient?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes; he came to me as a patient.

Q. That is how you met him the first time?

A. I think that is the way I first met him.

Q. And when was that, you say, about when?

A. Oh, I would say that would be somewhere in 1936, to place it as nearly as I could.

Q. And for how long—on how many occasions would you see him from 1936 to the present time?

A. I couldn't tell you that, because he was in and out at various times.

Q. Did he ever come to your office other than as a patient? [3409]

A. I didn't quite get that.

Q. Did he ever appear in your office other than as a patient?

A. Oh, yes; just like any of my patients, they feel free to come in and say "Hello." If he happened to be in my neighborhood I suppose he has been in there at times when he wasn't a patient.

Q. Could you say how many times he appeared at your office as a patient?

A. No, I couldn't say that.

Q. Approximately?

A. No, I couldn't even say it approximately.

Q. Do you keep any records at all of your patients?

A. Where they are paid patients, I do.

Q. Was Mr. Wilmot a paid patient?

A. No. He never was a paid patient.

Q. Was he a pay patient when he first appeared at your office? A. No; no.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Well, did he come up alone to your office the first time?

A. That I don't remember.

Q. Did you treat him?

A. Yes, I treated him.

Q. What did you treat him for? [3410]

A. Psoriasis—P-s-o-r-i-a-s-i-s.

Q. How do you know, from your memory or from your records?

A. Well, because I saw him repeatedly and he always had the same skin trouble. It would be easy to remember it.

Q. Did you make a record? A. No.

Q. Did you ask him for payment for the treatment? A. No, I never did.

Q. You had never seen him before that time, had you?

A. I know from what he told me he was out of work, hard up, and in need of treatment, and we took care of him on that basis.

Q. Did he tell you at that time that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No.

Q. When did he tell you that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, I don't remember exactly when he might have told me that. I doubt if he was a member of the Communist Party at that time; perhaps.

Q. Do you know when he dropped out of the Communist Party? A. No, I don't.

Q. Did he ever tell you? [3411]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. No.

Q. Did he ever confide in you?

A. No, not particularly on that thing, you know.

Q. When Mr. Wilmot first appeared at your office did he say someone had sent him down?

A. He probably did. He probably said he had been referred there. That is the way a good many people come in.

Q. Did he say that he had been referred to your office by the Communist Party?

A. No, he certainly wouldn't say that.

Q. Did he say that he had been referred to your office by Mr. Rapport? A. No.

Q. Did you ever take any money from Mr. Wilmot? A. No.

Q. What? A. No; never.

Q. Would you say that you had treated him about ten times during the period of time that you knew him?

A. I would say ten or a dozen times. If you meant individual treatments, probably considerably more than that.

Q. How much more, twenty times?

A. Yes—I would hate to say, because sometimes he would be in every day for three or four days, while at other times he would be missing for several weeks before he would [3412] come back in.

Q. Is there anything in the state law requiring you to keep records of treatments you give patients?

A. No, there isn't.

Q. You know that?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I am certain of it.

Q. What? A. I am certain of it.

Q. Did you consult the law on that subject?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you get advice from counsel?

A. No.

Q. What?

A. No, I never got advice from counsel on it.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Lovelace had ever been arrested during his lifetime?

A. Only that he told me he had.

Q. You don't know that of your own knowledge?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Had anyone told you that he had ever been arrested?

A. No, I don't know that I ever had anyone tell me he had been except himself.

Q. Did he ever tell you that he used the name of James Martin?

A. No, he never told me that. [3413]

Q. Didn't he tell you that that was his Communist Party name? A. No.

Q. Did you ever assist Mr. Lovelace in his lifetime in raising funds to support the Spanish Loyalists?

A. In the way of making speeches, I think I did; yes.

Q. You think you did. Do you know if you did or not?

A. Well, I know I talked in behalf of the Spanish Loyalists, not only at public gatherings, but over the radio.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. And who asked you to do that?

A. Oh, as far as the public audiences were concerned, I don't know who would have asked me. I mean it might have been various organizations.

As far as the radio was concerned, I did it on my own move. I was on the radio discussing current questions.

Q. Mr. MacMickle, I will ask you this question again: Who asked you to speak——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) I submit the question has been asked and answered.

Mr. Del Guercio: I haven't finished the question.

Presiding Inspector: Let him finish.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. (Continuing) Who ask you to speak on behalf of the Spanish Loyalists and recruits to go to Spain?

Presiding Inspector: If you can tell. [3414]

A. I don't remember.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How many times did you speak on behalf of the Spanish Loyalists and recruits to go to Spain?

Mr. Gladstein: I object to this as immaterial. I don't see how that would bear——

Presiding Inspector: I don't see how it would bear either.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, there is evidence in the record, as the Court will recall, that the Spanish Loyalists were supported by the Communist Party.

Presiding Inspector. They received contributions, undoubtedly, but what difference does it make?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: It shows that this man's conduct during that period of time was such that——

Presiding Inspector: Well, no doubt hundreds of people contributed to the Spanish Loyalists.

Mr. Del Guercio: This concerns not only the Spanish Loyalists, but also the League Against War and Fascism.

Presiding Inspector: I allowed you to examine on that.

Mr. Gladstein: I have heard, although I can't vouch for it, that some people in the State Department of the United States Government are now sorry because of the official policy of the——

Presiding Inspector: No, no; I can't hear that speech. [3415] Go ahead with the witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: Does counsel wish to testify? If so, we will put him on the stand under oath.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. These by-plays don't affect——

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I move that the remark be stricken from the record.

Presiding Inspector: It isn't important enough. It is just gossip of the occasion.

Mr. Del Guercio: He spoke apparently with knowledge.

Presiding Inspector: I know.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you know Mrs. Lovelace equally as well as you say you knew Mr. Lovelace during his lifetime? A. No, I didn't.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Huh? A. No, I didn't?

Q. How many times did you visit Mr. Lovelace at his home? A. Twice.

Q. Twice? A. Yes.

Q. During all the time that you knew him?

A. That is right.

Q. And the last time, I believe you testified, you had [3416] dinner at his home?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you take your wife with you?

A. No. My wife was not in town at the time, which was the reason they invited me to dinner, by the way.

Q. What?

A. Which was the reason they invited me to dinner, by the way.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't hear it.

Presiding Inspector. He said his wife was not in town and that was the reason they invited him, took pity on him, his loneliness.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did Mr. Lovelace know your wife?

A. Casually, I think.

Q. Had you ever introduced him to your wife?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he ever appear at your home?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever invite him to your home?

A. No.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Did he know your daughter?

A. He met her—she came into my office to visit me.

Q. Did you introduce him to your daughter?

A. Certainly. [3417]

Q. When was that?

A. Oh, that was when I first knew him.

Q. When was that?

A. Well, I would say in the early thirties—1933, somewhere along in there.

Q. Did he continue to know your daughter?

A. He always spoke of her if he happened to be in the office when she came in; certainly.

Q. Would you say that he saw and met and talked with your daughter until the time of his illness which required him to go to the Veterans Hospital?

A. Well, I think you could say that he spoke to her. I don't think he engaged in conversations of any character with her.

Q. Did you ever object to him speaking to your daughter?

A. No, not particularly. I wouldn't object to anybody speaking to my daughter in my office so long as they spoke civilly and decently.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move to strike it out.

Mr. Gladstein: I think it is proper.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is proper.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did Mr. Lovelace speak to your daughter civilly?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. I don't see how he could do otherwise. I think he did.

Q. Do you have any information to the contrary?

[3418]

A. I have no information to the contrary.

Q. Did you ever tell Mrs. Lovelace that you had loaned money to her husband?

A. No, I never did.

Q. Have you seen Mrs. Lovelace since the death of her husband?

A. I saw Mrs. Lovelace the evening after the funeral.

Q. The evening after the funeral? A. Yes.

Q. Where did you see her?

A. I happened to be in Fred Meyers' store coming in to make a purchase, and she was coming out.

Q. Did you ever tell her that you didn't believe that her husband, during his lifetime, did not have a good reputation for truth and veracity?

A. No. I never discussed it with her.

Q. You knew that Mr. Lovelace had testified at this hearing, did you not, before Thursday?

A. Yes; I had seen that in the newspaper.

Q. You knew Mr. Wilmot had testified at this hearing? A. Right.

Q. Did you go to any Government Agency, either the FBI or the Immigration Officers, since Mr. Lovelace or Mr. Wilmot appeared here to testify?

A. No. [3419]

Q. Did you write either the FBI or the Immigration Service concerning Mr. Lovelace or Mr. Wilmot? A. Never.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Did you believe at the time that Mr. Lovelace and Mr. Wilmot appeared here to testify what you have testified here to, that their reputation for truth and veracity was bad? A. Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: I would like to have the last question read. I am not sure that I heard it correctly.

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Gladstein: He said "Mr. Lovelace." Did you mean Mrs. Lovelace?

Mr. Del Guercio: I withdraw the question. I believe the witness must have misunderstood it too. I didn't mean to mislead him. Apparently it was in his mind that Mr. Lovelace did appear here to testify too.

Presiding Inspector: Is that the question?

Mr. Del Guercio: From the form of my question, yes.

Presiding Inspector: You have withdrawn it?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You knew Mr. Lovelace did not appear here to testify, didn't you? [3420]

A. Yes. I knew that he was dead.

Q. But you knew Mr. Wilmot had appeared here to testify? A. Yes.

Q. Did you, at the time that Mr. Wilmot appeared here to testify, believe that he had a bad reputation for truth and veracity?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: Is that Mr. Lovelace or——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Mr. Wilmot.

Mr. Gladstein: Excuse me.

A. Yes, I believed that.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you communicate that to anybody?

A. No.

Q. Did you communicate it to the defense counsel? A. No.

Q. And you didn't communicate it to any Governmental agency? A. No.

Mr. Gladstein: That has already been asked and answered.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you know that Mr. Lovelace, that Mr. Lovelace's statement had been introduced into the record of this hearing?

Mr. Gladstein: I submit that is immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see how it is material. How is it material? [3421]

Mr. Del Guercio: It is material in that if he professed to have knowledge as to the bad character, as a good citizen, it would have been his duty to have told the Government officers.

Presiding Inspector: That is pretty remote.

Mr. Del Guercio: That will be all.

Mr. Gladstein: A few questions, please.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you ever testified in court as a witness?

A. As a witness?

Q. Yes.

A. Many times. I say "many times." Perhaps ten or a dozen times.

Q. In what capacity have you testified?

A. I have testified as an expert witness on medical questions.

Q. Concerning naturopathy?

A. Yes; and the distinction between naturopathy and medicine and concerning conflicts between the two laws.

Q. Speak up so the reporter can hear you.

A. I say, where there would be a conflict between the interpretations of the two laws I would be called in as an expert witness to testify; yes.

Q. When is the first time, to your recollection now, that you testified on the subject of naturopathy in court? [3422]

A. In 1928, I think it was; '27 or '28.

Q. And when was the last time that you testified?

A. Well, roughly, I suppose around 1938.

Q. How many of the ten or twelve times that you have testified in court have occurred since 1929?

A. Most of them; nine or ten of them.

Q. Your testimony, was it given in deposition form or was it given in open court?

A. Given in open court.

Q. What courts.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Well, in the District Courts and in the Circuit Courts.

Q. In the State of Oregon?

A. In the State of Oregon.

Q. In any of those cases have you ever been asked or told as to whether or not any alleged affidavit had ever been made charging you with an abortion?

A. No, I haven't.

Mr. Del Guercio: Object to that, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: How could it be expected? Of course, you might ask whether it had ever been shown here and there, and whether he has ever seen the affidavit.

Mr. Gladstein: He says "No."

Presiding Inspector: Has he ever heard about it?

By Mr Gladstein: [3423]

Q. Have you ever seen the alleged affidavit, which counsel has referred to today, and which has been marked as Government's Exhibit for identification—the number of which I don't know——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) 262.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you ever seen that before?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever heard of it before?

A. No.

Q. Has it ever been shown to you? A. No.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Has anybody ever mentioned it in court before? A. No.

Q. Have you ever been charged officially before any medical or any other board with the contents of that affidavit, or alleged affidavit?

A. Never.

Q. Now, on Friday there was some testimony with respect to your having delivered a talk at a meeting of men who are members, some of them were members of the IWW. Have you led an active life in the civic affairs of Portland since you have lived there? A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, if your honor [3224] please, the form of it.

Presiding Inspector: It is pretty general.

Mr. Gladstein: It is preliminary.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. I will take it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you delivered many talks?

A. A great many.

Q. These were on public occasions?

A. Public occasions.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that. What are public occasions? What public occasions?

Mr. Gladstein: I am coming to that.

Presiding Inspector: We will let you canvass that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Other than the meeting that was in the IWW hall, can you mention some of the other organizations in Portland before whom you have given talks or speeches, or addresses?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes. I gave an address before the Rose City Methodist Episcopal Church——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Speak louder.

Mr. Gladstein: Speak up.

A. Yes. I gave an address before a gathering in the Rose City Methodist Episcopal Church, in conjunction with Dr. Stewart from Reed College. He was on the same program.

I forget, but there was some other speaker that night. [3425]

Then I have delivered addresses before, oh, the Portland Health Club.

I have lectured to the Parent-Teachers Association on innumerable occasions, and sometimes, several times to the same particular local, or whatever you call it, on dietary matters.

I have lectured, I have addressed the Willamette Society.

I have spoken frequently before the Lincoln Club.

Of course, I have spoken in the Chapel at Reed College.

I couldn't begin to think up off-hand all of the places that I have talked at. I have talked in the City Auditorium, I have talked in the Masonic Temple. I guess I have talked about all over Portland.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you ever talked to the Women's Federation?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes, I have talked to the Women's Federation.

Q. Now, have you ever served, or do you now serve in any capacity in behalf of or in connection with Reed College?

Mr. Del Guercio: Who?

Mr. Gladstein: Reed College.

A. Yes. I was Chairman of the Parent Associations Committee on Student Health, some two months or such a matter ago; maybe three months.

Q. Are you now serving in this capacity?

A. Yes.

Q. Where is Reed College located? [3426]

A. That is located in Portland, out in the East Moreland territory.

Q. Have you ever written any articles or books?

A. Yes. I wrote a book on diet that was published both in Chicago and in London.

I have written articles for different magazines. I wrote one for Nation, for instance, when the political upheaval in Oregon occurred in 1931 and Julius Meyer was elected on the public power power program. I was solicited by Nation to write an article on the developing of the publicly own d hydroelectric situation there.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that the witness' answer be stricken as not responsive. Counsel merely asked——

Presiding Inspector: It is true it is partly not responsive, but I will let it stand.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you ever edited any magazine?

A. Yes. I edited a magazine gotten out by our Association in 1917 on, called Oregon Naturopath. I edited that for about 18 months, if I remember rightly.

For the last four months I have edited a magazine called Vitality.

Q. Who puts that out?

A. That is put out by a group of drugless physicians up there. It is a health magazine. [3427]

Q. Now, do you know whether the profession of naturopathy is recognized in any other states besides Oregon?

A. Yes. My last information was that there were seven other states and the District of Columbia that recognize it.

Q. Doctor, the Economic Research Council has been mentioned, and you have testified as to the manner in which that started. Would you state again, please, when that was started?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as being improper redirect, that is, to ask him to state again what he has previously testified to.

Presiding Inspector: Under whose examination did it occur?

Mr. Gladstein: During cross examination.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. Well, the circumstances were these——

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. (Interrupting) Just when, first?

Presiding Inspector: You didn't cover this on your direct?

Mr. Gladstein: No, I didn't mention it.

A. I think it was in either late 1932 or early in 1933.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Is that Council still functioning?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Have you maintained your connection with it since the beginning?

A. Yes; except that I don't get in there very often, [3428] haven't during the last year because I haven't had time.

Q. What, in general, is the purpose of the Council?

A. Well, it is to discuss political and economic and social questions in the interests of those people who felt they would like to be better informed on various questions so they can vote more intelligently and conduct themselves as a better member of American society.

Q. Have you been Chairman, or President, or Presiding Officer of that Council? A. Yes.

Q. During what period?

A. Well, I was President of it, I think, during, oh, well, 1934. I refused the Presidency of it several times because I thought it was just as well not to be President. I didn't care for the job and the responsibility of it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I move, your Honor, that that be stricken. It was not responsive to the question.

Mr. Gladstein: He said he was President in 1934 and then he wouldn't take it after that.

Presiding Inspector: I think we had better not go into the possibilities of his taking it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Were you again President at any subsequent time?

Presiding Inspector: Strike all that except that he was President in 1934. [3429]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you recall whether you were, Doctor, since 1934?

A. I was nominated a couple of times, but I didn't accept.

Q. You haven't been——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I move the Witness' answer be stricken.

Mr. Gladstein: I think it is responsive.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I think it had better go out. I don't think it is material.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you ever had noted people address the meetings of that Economic and Research Council?

A. Oh, yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, if your Honor please, as being immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Gladstein: I want to show the character of the organization. There is an inference contained in every question Mr. Del Guercio asked on cross examination as to the character of this Council. I want to bring out just what it was.

Mr. Del Guercio: We can go further into that too.

Mr. Gladstein: Go as far as you like.

Mr. Del Guercio: We can produce evidence——

Presiding Inspector: Never mind. [3430]

Mr. Del Guercio: (Continuing) ——as to the nature of the organization.

Presiding Inspector: What is it you want to ask just now?

Mr. Gladstein: I want to find out——

Presiding Inspector: Whether noted persons have spoken before that Council?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. And, if so, which ones.

Presiding Inspector: That calls for all kinds of conclusions.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor may agree, after he names some people, they may not be as noted in your mind as in his, but nevertheless I think I am entitled to show that.

Presiding Inspector: You may ask who addressed them. [3431]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you name some of the people who did address the Economic Research Council?

A. Well, let's see! One of them was our State Treasurer.

Q. State of Oregon?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes. And he addressed us so that we might know what the standing of the State's finances were. We were interested in that.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, I will object to that. Do I understand that the Court is only limiting it to the name and not to what they addressed them on?

Mr. Gladstein: I think he is entitled to answer as to what they addressed them on.

Presiding Inspector: That was my idea, but I think I will let the subject of this man's address, the State finances, stand.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Who else?

A. Then we had a man whose name I can't remember—he was a graduate of Yale; if I remember rightly—who addressed us on the Relation of Religion or Religious Organization to organized labor.

Q. Can you recall any people by name? Any others?

A. Let's see! Yes. Martin Hall, who came here from [3432] Germany after the Nazi shake-up, and he came here and he addressed us a couple of times. And let's see!

Q. Did you ever have any professors from Reed College? A. Well, wait a minute!

Q. Or any other university?

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, I will object to that as suggestive and leading.

Presiding Inspector: I know it. He has exhausted his recollection and now Mr. Gladstein is refreshing his recollection, which is proper procedure; or at least he claims to have exhausted his recollection.

A. I don't recall that we ever had anybody from Reed College address the audience. We had a good many speakers who talked also at Reed College and then talked at our organization. I could probably think of a dozen of them after I get away from here.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that that be stricken, your Honor, as not responsive.

Presiding Inspector: Strike that out.

Mr. Del Guercio: And I ask that the witness be admonished.

Presiding Inspector: Well, it was a natural remark, but not proper on the witness stand. That's all.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Doctor, at the time that you addressed the [3433] IWW, some twenty years ago, I think the record shows, do you know whether as of that time there were any trade unions of any comparable size to the IWW who were not in the IWW in the Pacific Northwest?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that as being, first of all, compound and ambiguous.

Mr. Gladstein: I am asking him if he knows.

Presiding Inspector: This is a new subject.

Mr. Gladstein: No.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: This man is a Doctor, if your Honor please. Is he qualifying him as a union man, too?

Mr. Gladstein: No. On cross examination Mr. Del Guercio brought up the fact that the Doctor had addressed a meeting in the IWW Hall, and I think it was some twenty years ago. I am not sure of the date. I now wish to show—and this is something that could have been a matter of pretty common knowledge in the Pacific Northwest—that most of the workers who were organized in organized labor in the Pacific Northwest, and that would include Oregon, twenty years ago, were in the IWW. and there were no other trade unions of any comparable size.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well,—

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Mr. Gladstein, is he testifying in this case? He probably is testifying for the witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Is that an objection? [3434]

Mr. Myron: The question, I think, and the answer which he expects is immaterial to the case. Doesn't make any difference.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I think I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: All right, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I think it may go to the disadvantage of the questioning counsel. I think you ought to be careful about asking that, but I will allow it.

Mr. Gladstein: I would like to get your Honor's thoughts on that. Obviously I don't want to ask a question which you think should not be asked.

Presiding Inspector: This is new matter, I think.

Mr. Gladstein: I beg your pardon.

Presiding Inspector: You are now covering new matter.

Mr. Gladstein: They touched on it in cross.

Presiding Inspector: He said he made a speech at some hall, that's all. But you may have it. I will take it. You may answer.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you understand the question?

A. I think I understand it. My answer will reveal whether I did. I think that at that time the IWW was probably the biggest body of organized labor in the Northwest.

Mr. Gladstein: That's all. [3435]

Recross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were you a member of the IWW?

A. No.

Q. Were there any American Federation of Labor unions at that time?

A. Yes, there were.

Q. Is the American Federation a small or big union?

A. I think in the Northwest it was smaller than the IWW.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. How many were there in the Northwest that belonged to the A. F. of L.? Do you know?

A. No, I don't know, but——

Q. (Interposing) Well, you have no information on it at all, have you?

A. No. That was just the general impression at the time.

Q. Whose impression——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Just a moment! Let the witness answer the question.

Mr. Del Guercio: He is answering the question. He is doing fairly well.

Mr. Gladstein: He certainly is. And you don't like it, that is why you interrupt.

Your Honor, Mr. Del Guercio did interrupt the last answer. [3436]

Presiding Inspector: Yes, maybe. I don't know. If there is anything more you want to say on that you may say it.

The Witness: Well, simply that it was my general understanding that that was the biggest organization of labor in the Northwest at the time.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How did you get that understanding? How did you arrive at that?

A. From conversations and from the hullaballoo that the newspapers made over it.

Q. All right. What conversations did you have?

A. Oh, well, with patients and friends.

Q. Who? You had patients then, too?

A. Why, certainly I had patients.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. What kind of patients were they? IWW patients?

A. Why, some of them doubtless were. I don't know.

Q. All right. And they told you that the IWW was a big organization?

A. I didn't say that.

Q. You heard of the Hayward trial, didn't you?

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it, whether or not he heard of it. "Yes" or "No".

A. Yes, I heard of it. [3437]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What kind of a trial was that?

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: We can't go into that.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) No, we can't go into that. We can't re-try the Hayward trial.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You knew that the IWW began disorganizing shortly after the Hayward trial?

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as improper and assuming something not in evidence, immaterial.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will withdraw that question and ask this:——

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. When was the Hayward trial, Mr.——

A. (Interposing) I don't remember.

Q. Well, I will refresh your memory. Was it in 1919?

A. I wouldn't remember it if it were.

Q. It was shortly after the World War, wasn't it?

A. I wouldn't even be certain of that in my own mind.

Q. Now, do you profess to be an expert in IWW matters? A. No, far be it from such.

Q. What?

A. Far be it from that. I am not an expert on it. [3438]

Q. How many members were there in the IWW organization?

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: You brought it out yourself.

Mr. Gladstein: I brought out merely this:——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——The witness said it was his understanding and his general impression that the IWW was the largest organization in the Northwest.

Presiding Inspector: Now he is testing the truth of that statement, and I will take it. I warned you, Mr. Gladstein, about this.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Gladstein: Well, there is one way to disprove it if the statement is wrong, and that is for Mr. Del Guercio to bring in witnesses to show to the contrary.

Presiding Inspector: He is testing the recollection of this witness in this way. There may be other ways.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How many members were there?

A. No——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) If you can't say, say so.

A. (Continuing) No, I can't say, frankly. I wouldn't know.

By Mr. Del Guercio: [3439]

Q. Were there more than 50?

A. I would certainly assume there were more than 50 because of the disturbance and the noise made about it.

Q. Well now, how can you know that there were more than 50?

A. I couldn't conceive of there being less than 50 people because of the disturbance that the newspapers were making in the head lines.

Q. Now, what kind of disturbance were they making?

A. Well, "disturbance" wasn't exactly the right word, but would be "charged" by the newspapers as being a disturbing factor would be a better way to put it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. What did the newspapers charge them with doing?

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I think that is going a little too far. We don't care about the newspaper statement. All you want to show is that there was a good deal of publicity in the newspapers.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you know at that time that the IWW were engaged in sabotage?

Mr. Gladstein: I will object to that as not only highly improper, but it hasn't yet been proved in this case. It is assuming something that is directly contrary to the evidence. The only witness on the IWW—— [3440]

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Now, if your Honor please, counsel should be admonished.

Presiding Inspector: Do you know one way or the other?

The Witness: No, I don't know.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you know at that time?

Presiding Inspector: He says he doesn't know one way or the other. Now you want to ask him if he knew at that time?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. Did you know at that time?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

The Witness. The question isn't clear in my head again.

Presiding Inspector: Read the question before the last, Mr. Reporter,

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q. Did you know at that time that the IWW were engaged in sabotage?")

A. No, I didn't know it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you know that they were engaged in the unlawful destruction of property?

A. No, I didn't know that.

Q. Were they ever accused of being—— [3441]

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Ha! Ha!

Mr. Del Guercio: I want to get through but counsel laughed.

Mr. Gladstein: No, counsel stopped and watched me, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Go on. You may withdraw the question and start again.

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw the laugh.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How many IWW members did you know?

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is immaterial and I object to it.

Presiding Inspector: No, I will take it.

A. Well, frankly I wouldn't know.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Would you know about 50?

A. Oh, I doubt if I ever knew that many. My goodness! I may have known eight or ten, mostly by sight but not by name.

Q. Will you give us some of their names?

A. No. I say I may have known eight or ten mostly by sight, but not by name. I wouldn't be able to give you the names.

Q. How many were there at this meeting that you addressed [3442] this IWW meeting?

A. Oh, I suppose possibly there might have been somewhere between fifty and a hundred people there.

Q. I believe you testified that you had studied under Andre Tridon?

Mr. Gladstein: That is not proper recross examination and I object to it.

Presiding Inspector: No. I don't know. If you have any idea that you want to bring out, you, of course, may do it if you have overlooked it.

Mr. Gladstein: I think we should have a statement from counsel on it. If he is just going to cover the same ground——

Presiding Inspector: No. I don't think you ought to do that. We had better not go into what he testified to, but if this is new matter I would be glad to hear the question.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will withdraw that question and put it this way:——

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did Mr. Tridon advise you as to the nature of the IWW?

A. We never even discussed it.

Q. Huh?

A. And I doubt if that is the same man. There was a Mexican by the name of Andre Tridon, too, and it may have been he that you spoke about. I don't know because I have no recol- [3443] lection.

Q. Did you know the Mexican, Andre Tridon?

A. No, I didn't know him but I have seen reference to him.

Q. But you did know the Frenchman, Andre Tridon? A. That's right.

Q. And it is the Frenhcman that you studied under?

A. That's right. It was the Frenchman.

Q. Now, Mr. MacMickle, you testified there you appeared on numerous occasions as a medical expert?

A. I said as an expert witness in medical trials, yes.

Q. In medical what?

A. In cases involving medical questions.

Q. Well, were you called as an expert on medical matters?

A. What do you mean by that? Do you mean medical——

Q. (Interposing) What do you mean by it?

Presiding Inspector: I think there is some question there.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: What?

Presiding Inspector: He hasn't said that he testified in the ordinary sense as a medical expert.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is what I am trying to bring out, as to whether he did or not.

Presiding Inspector: Well, you assume that he did, and he, as I recollect it,—his testimony is that he gave expert testimony in relation to the conflicts in different areas [3444] of the province of medicine and of naturopathy.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you ever study medicine?

A. No, no. That's why I asked you the question. I wanted to know whether you meant in the specific sense or in the generic sense.

Q. Are you an alienist?

A. No, no. I am not an alienist.

Q. What is the first time you appeared as a witness? A. In 19—it was either '27 or '28.

Q. And who called you as a witness?

A. I was called by the—by counsel for Dr. Mayville. Circuit Judge Knowles presided.

Presiding Inspector: You may, if you wish, ask him if he ever appeared as an expert other than in this line, which I have indicated very roughly.

Mr. Del Guercio: I might ask that question.

The Witness: If I have appeared as an expert?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: In other than——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Yes, testifying as to causes or results of disease or anything of that kind.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

The Witness: Yes, I have.

Presiding Inspector: Then he has testified more broadly than I understood. [3445]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, did you ever testify then as a medical expert?

A. Yes, not in the restricted sense of covering what would ordinarily be covered by the doctor of medicine in his——

Q. (Interposing) Then in what manner did you testify as a medical expert?

A. Well, in the generic sense of the word "medical".

Q. And what sense is that? Will you explain what you mean by "generic"?

A. In the generic sense we mean simply this: That all of the healing arts are medical, but in the specific sense we mean physicians and surgeons.

Q. Well now, you have testified that you have never studied medicine? A. That's right.

Q. Do you know anything about the science of medicine?

A. Oh, I have read a great deal about it, but I am not posing—please don't misunderstand me. I am not posing as authority on materia medica.

Q. What was that word that you used?

A. Materia medica.

Q. Did you ever study Latin?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. Yes. I have had, I think, four years of High School Latin.

Q. And where was that? [3446]

A. In Stanhope.

Q. Do they teach Latin in the first year of High School in Stanhope?

A. Yes. We had Latin in the first year.

Q. And continued throughout?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you study Latin in this American College of Drugless Physicians?

A. No, no; other than what would come up in your technical names.

Q. When did you talk to Mr. Ernst?

Mr. Gladstein: That is not proper recross examination and I object to it, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: No. I think we have gone over that, unless there is some particular new matter that you wish to bring out.

Mr. Del Guercio: Then I will withdraw that.

Presiding Inspector: Then you may suggest it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Excuse me, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: That's all. I think it has been covered.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. During any of the times that you appeared as a so-called expert in these Courts were you ever confronted with the name of Mrs. Plank? [3447]

A. No.

Q. Huh? A. Never.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Were you ever examined on the question of whether or not you performed abortions?

A. Never.

Q. Did anyone—and I mean by that "anyone"—ever tell you at any time, any place, that Mrs. Plank had prepared and executed an affidavit accusing you of having performed an abortion on her?

A. No, sir.

Q. Huh? A. No.

Q. At no time? A. At no time.

Mr. Gladstein: That has been answered three times.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, I wanted to make sure, if your Honor please.

Mr. Gladstein: Three more questions won't make it any more certain.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting of Mrs. Plank? A. No. [3448]

Q. Are you familiar with her handwriting?

A. No, I wouldn't be familiar with it.

Q. Are you familiar with her signature?

A. No.

Q. Do you have it on any of your records?

A. No.

Q. What? A. No.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Mr. Gladstein: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: Next witness.

(Witness excused.)

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, at this time we should like to take up the problem not of the general testimony of Mr. Bridges at the former hearing but of testimony directly related to the testimony that the Government introduced. There are a number of statements which were not read by counsel for the Government which directly related to the four subjects which they did take up, and I should like to read into the record that matter. I think by this evening I will have prepared for your Honor a list of the other material that we believe should be incorporated by reference, but in view of its length we are making no effort to read aloud into the record that testimony.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, may we have the [3449] references first and we may agree.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, as to the first matters?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, as to the first matters.

Presiding Inspector: As to the matters which you want to read?

Mrs. King: I am reading from page 2,506.

Mr. Del Guercio: 2,506. We don't have the previous testimony here. We can't check. What I had in mind was that, if counsel would give us the references now, we can check it over and come in either prepared to object or agree to its admission.

Mrs. King: Do you want this done in open Court or shall I just walk over and give them to Mr. Del Guercio? I haven't, unfortunately, a carbon copy. It is only my own manuscript.

Presiding Inspector: What is this on, this subject?

Mrs. King: This is with reference to the Western Worker and it immediately precedes the Government's excerpt which appears on page 2,508.

Presiding Inspector: Well, presumably that would be competent.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, if it has to do with the Western Worker, yes.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Does it have to do with the Western Worker? I don't know.

Mrs. King: Well, the second sentence mentions the [3450] Western Worker.

Presiding Inspector: Let us hear the sentence.

Mrs. King: "In the '34 strike the only newspapaper that was at all friendly or in any way would print any of the real stories of what the strike was all about was the Western Worker, and eventually that paper was officially adopted by the Strike Committee as their official organ for the giving out of strike releases . . ."

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, we put that in. That was put in.

Mr. Myron: That is already in the record.

Presiding Inspector: Was it already in the record?

Mrs. King: Will you wait just a minute until I refer back?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly.

Mrs. King: My copy of the record doesn't so indicate. Unfortunately, the Government didn't read by pages but by subjects, and so I am having a little difficulty in finding it. I am wondering whether Mr. Del Guefcio could tell me.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is it on the Waterfront Worker?

Mrs. King: No, it is on the Western Worker.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't know we had a subject on the Western Worker.

Mrs. King: You started in to read on page 2508 and the first sentence you read was "Will you tell us the circumstances under which it was decided to use the Western Worker as [3451] the official organ of the Strike Committee?"

Now,——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): Well, we read from Volume 16, 2508.

Mrs. King: Yes. I am reading from page 2506. That is exactly what I said.

Mr. Del Guercio: That was under the "Communist Party Literature", the subject of the "Communist Party Literature".

Mrs. King: Well, whatever it was under, you attempted to make a point of the fact that the Western Worker was the official organ of the Strike Committee. I am attempting to read the two pages that preceded your quotation in order to show why the Western Worker was the official organ of the Strike Committee. It seems to me that it is extremely relevant.

Presiding Inspector: On your statement I think that is pertinent.

Do you object to this, Mr. Del Guercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: No, I won't object.

Presiding Inspector: You may read, then.

Mr. Del Guercio: The only reason I objected was because I thought it has already been read.

Mrs. King: I may have some difficulty for the reason that I suggested, but I think that my copy has been correctly marked and that there will be no difficulty.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. Go ahead and read it. [3152]

Mrs. King: I am starting again because the sentence was interrupted.

"In the '34 strike the only newspaper that was at all friendly or in any way would print any of the real stories of what the strike was all about was the Western Worker, and eventually that paper was officially adopted by the strike committee as their official organ for the giving out of strike releases, and the Western Worker printed a special strike bulletin—I think, a daily strike bulletin—that carried the true story of the strike. These bulletins were distributed to our membership and elsewhere.

"So there was in this respect, when it came to the point because of an organized program of terror and what-not under the guise of Communism, it didn't sit very well with the strike committee or the members of the rank and file and what-not to, in effect, say to these people, 'Well, now that you are being used and now that we are up against this, we are being told to disassociate with you. It looks like we will have to do it.' And that was done.

"So in connection with activities like that, in connection with the paper, it was necessary for us to meet and talk with Darcy. Of course, at that time we also have to remember we had a green union. Very few of the officials paid any attention to whether a man was a Communist or not. We had heard so much about it. There was no great to-do about having meetings with Darcy or anybody else. We did it openly [3453] and more or less officially.

"Q. Did you know at that time that Sam Darcy was an official in the Communist Party?"

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, I move—never mind. Go on.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mrs. King: "A. We knew that, certainly.

"Q. At that time were you an official in the union?

"A. I was not. I was the chairman of the strike committee. As such, I was an official, but I was not a regularly elected official such as secretary or president. I was chairman of the strike committee."

And immediately after that follows the material that was read by the Government.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, that last question and answer I think is not material to anything.

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand.

Mr. Del Guercio: What?

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand. I will take it.

Mrs. King: I notice that in the course of reading I forgot to put in the "question" and "answer" which may cause some difficulty to the reporter. For that reason I would ask, if it may be done, that the question and answer form be kept and that the reporter be permitted to copy from the transcript rather than to take it from my reading.

[3451]

Presiding Inspector: I think that should be done.

Mrs. King: And hereafter I will remember to do it correctly.

I am now asking to read from page 2517. The Government read pages 2515 and 2516 and the last sentence of what they read reads as follows:

"Eventually, of course, as the trade union movement got going and the Marine Workers Industrial Union was disbanded, Jackson—I think he is blacklisted in possibly every port in the United States because of trade union activity."

That is the close of the Government's quote.

Presiding Inspector: They put that in?

Mrs. King: Yes. The next page, page 2517, begins as follows:

"Q: You say he is blacklisted?

"A. ——"

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): Well now, your Honor, when should I object to this? This is another subject entirely.

Presiding Inspector: Well,——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): And I think I ought to object before the question and answer is read.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is pertinent on the same subject as to what you put in.

Mr. Del Guercio: Will the Court hear me?

Presiding Inspector: Certainly.

Mr. Del Guercio: Of necessity other matters creep in because of the person answering the question wandering off. [3455] Other matters come in, but we have to read the whole question and answer.

Presiding Inspector: I know, but I can't read your mind and you did put it in and I will take this. You may read it.

Now, on this subject of "blacklisting" of Jackson, I will take it as far as it goes to that. If it wanders off to some other subject, then you ought to stop and we will consider that.

Mrs. King: I think this all pertinent. It is all on this page 2517.

Presiding Inspector: All right, proceed.

Mrs. King:

"Q. You say he is blacklisted?

"A. Yes. Well, there have been a lot of people less affected than Jackson who have been blacklisted, . . ."

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, I move that that be stricken out. That doesn't apply to Jackson at all.

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand. I will take it.

Mrs. King: ". . . so I presume he is certainly blacklisted. So it has always been my policy when I ran into Jackson to ask him how he was getting along and if he was hard up, and, if so, I would give him a couple of dollars."

Mr. Del Guercio: I move to strike that out as not connected with any previous subject.

Presiding Inspector: This is at the former trial and one the same general subject. [3456]

Mrs. King: "That's the only way I gave him any money.

"Then it is the general thing amongst seamen, if you need a couple of dollars to eat or sleep somewhere, you ask for it and other people ask you. It is the custom today and it has always been.

"That's the only money I have ever paid him.

"Q. Did you ever pay him any money as dues or anything of that kind?"

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment before that next question. I move to strike that out as being immaterial and nothing covered by the Government, not referring to any matter covered in any previous hearing in any testimony that the Government has admitted in evidence. [3457]

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, the subject of Jackson is finished in the next sentence and it seems appropriate to leave all of the Jackson information in.

Presiding Inspector: Was there any subject covered by the Government offered in relation to the payment of money?

Mr. Del Guersio: There is not.

Mr. Gladstein: In which case—in the previous hearing?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I mean that has been introduced here.

Mr. Gladstein: No, not that I can recall at this moment. There was in the previous case, but I don't think they read anything on it here.

Presiding Inspector: What is this particular answer to which they object?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes—certainly it was introduced. The Government read, beginning at page 2515, "Do you recall Harry Jackson?" and ending at the bottom of page 2516. And during the course of those questions and answers Mr. Bridges was asked, "Did you ever pay to Harry Jackson at any time any money?" and he said "Yes."

Presiding Inspector: I will take that statement.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment. That doesn't appear in anything that we read, the question, "Did you ever pay to Harry Jackson at any time any money?" [3458]

Mrs. King: Am I right, Mr. Del Guercio, that you started to read on page 2515?

Mr. Del Guercio: On what subject is t

Mrs. King: I don't know what subject it was, but the first sentence is, "Do you recall Harry Jackson?" and it appears on the third line of page 2515.

Mr. Del Guercio: We are at a disadvantage here. We don't have the volumes before us. We didn't know this was going to come up. We have this volume, but I don't know what page it was where we started reading.

Presiding Inspector: Haven't you a list of the matter?

Mr. Del Guercio: I have the list you have, but I have it according to subjects.

Mrs. King: It is probably listed under your subject "MWIU".

Presiding Inspector: You have everything there, according to Mr. Gaiser's statement, that has been handed to us.

Mr. Myron: I think it might facilitate matters if counsel would submit to Government counsel those matters which they wish to submit.

Presiding Inspector: I suggest that.

Mrs. King: I will be glad to do that.

Presiding Inspector: Don't you think it would expedite matters?

Mrs. King: It might very well, if there is going to be [3459] continual argument over what they did read. I assume that during the noon recess they can secure a copy of the transcript that is marked. I will be glad to give them the page numbers at this time. I don't think that the reporter would be particularly interested in them.

Presiding Inspector: Suppose you, at this time, give them, off the record, the pages and then when you come to read it you can state what the pages are.

Mrs. King: Yes, your Honor. May we have the noon recess now?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I suggest you give them the page numbers right away.

Mrs. King: Yes; as soon as Court adjourns.

Presiding Inspector: We will recess then until 2:00 o'clock.

[3460]

After Recess
2:00 O'clock P.M.

Mr. Del Guercio: I would like to make a request for the record, and that is that we be given permission to reopen the cross examination of the witness, Mr. MacMickle.

Presiding Inspector: I think he will be here undoubtedly. Mrs. King said that she would have him come over as soon as he came to counsel's office.

Mr. Del Guercio: I have another matter I would like to take up at this time.

I have a report here from Mr. R. J. Norene, addressed to I. F. Wixon, District Director, Immigration and Naturalization Service, dated May 9, 1941.

Presiding Inspector: I think we had better hold that. We may get Mr. Cannalonga back here.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think, instead of this coming to me it should have gone to you. It has reference to the efforts that have been made to locate Mr. Cannalonga.

Presiding Inspector: My secretary will take it.

(The report referred to was passed to the Presiding Inspector's Secretary.)

Presiding Inspector: That will come up later, probably. They haven't abandoned their efforts, apparently.

Mr. Del Guercio: No; no. That reports on what has been done up to this time. [3461]

Presiding Inspector: There is no objection to them seeing it?

Mr. Del Guercio: No objection; none at all. I will read it in the record, if necessary.

Mr. Myron: In so far as we have been able to check during the short noon hour recess, there is much of the testimony which Mrs. King has referred to, as testimony which she desires to be introduced in this hearing, which we would oppose, and we think that it has no reference at all to the admissions by Mr. Bridges which have been introduced in this record. Of course, we will oppose the introduction of a great deal of the testimony.

Presiding Inspector. The way to proceed is this: You state the pages you propose to read and then let them interpose their objection. I will say very frankly, Mr. Del Guercio, I am going to rule rather liberally on what is pertinent to the case. Subsequently there will be a chance to examine this witness.

Mr. Myron: Of course, in the beginning it is understood that the Government introduced this testimony as admissions by the party in a previous hearing. Such other testimony——

Presiding Inspector: Explanatory of the admissions?

Mr. Myron: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: It is offered as explanatory of the admissions. But I say that a liberal ruling is indicated, gener- [3462] ally is indicated under these circumstances, but especially so as subsequently there will be an opportunity, I have no doubt, to interrogate the alien on these very points. So I am going to rule liberally, but, of course, there has to be some connection. [3463]

Mrs. King: Thank you, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: So that this can be treated as explanatory of the evidence already offered by the Government as admissions.

Mrs. King: With reference to the matter that was being read just before the noon recess, there was some question raised as to the materiality. I am only hoping that Mr. Johnson isn't getting away with the stenographer's reference before luncheon.

The Reporter: I don't understand you.

Mrs. King: Don't you see? The reporter had taken part of the reading before lunch and I wanted to know where we had left off.

Presiding Inspector: Can you tell where we left off?

The Reporter: We were discussing 2515.

Mrs. King: That is correct, but you don't know to that point on 2515?

The Reporter: I can find out.

Mrs. King: Coming back to pages 2515 and 2516, which were the two pages that the Government read almost every word of, on page 2515 the question is asked, "Did you ever pay to Harry Jackson at any time any money?" and the answer was "Yes".

Now, at the point where I was reading on 2517 there was an objection by Mr. Del Guercio to my reading of a question [3464] having to do with the payment of money. And I submit to your Honor that, in view of the fact that this very problem was involved in the quotation or admission which the Government read, there is no reason why I should not be permitted to read the explanation of Mr. Bridges with reference to the payment of this money. And I want to know whether Mr. Del Guercio is withdrawing his objection or whether it is still before your Honor at this time.

Mr. Myron: I think the objection was ruled on by the Court, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I said I would receive it.

Mr. Myron: I think so.

Presiding Inspector: I will adhere to that.

Mr. Myron: That is over our objection?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mrs. King: I think I won't wait for Mr. Johnson. I will read from about where I was.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mrs. King: "Q. Did you ever pay him any money or anything of that kind?

"A. At no time."

Mr. Del Guercio: On what page are you reading from?

Mrs. King: I am reading from page 2517.

That completes the reading on page 2517 and I am now reading from pages 2580 and 2581-2, page 2581-2 being the same page and merely numbered that way to take up the page [3465] reference.

Mr. Myron: Will you state where you are going to read from?

Presiding Inspector: She hasn't found it yet. She has been referring to her memo.

Mrs. King: I am now reading from immediately after the quotation made by the Government which the Government inserted into the record from page 2580, the Government quotation having to do with a man by the name of Ross, who was the leader of the delegation that came down to strike headquarters to discuss with the strike committee the problem of the Western Worker, and immediately following the portion read by the Government I will read the following:

"Q. And how frequently have you seen him since?

"A. Not very frequently; much less than the others.

"Q. 10 times?

"A. No, I don't think that many times.

"Q. Did you ever meet him in Los Angeles?

"A. Not that I remember.

"Q. If you had you would have remembered it in all likelihood?

"A. I believe I would. I don't recall meeting him in Los Angeles.

"Q. Have you met him as many as five times?

[3466]

"A. Oh, I think I have met him as many as five times.

"Q. Do you remember, outside of the one meeting to which you first referred there, any other occasions when you met him?

"A. No, not right now. There was no specific happening that would fix it in my mind anyway. I don't recall—the way that I remember these things, I try to connect it up with some important happening or occasion around that time."

Mr. Myron: Now, the Government objects to any further testimony on this page being read into the record.

Mrs. King: The counsel for Mr. Bridges doesn't intend to read any further. That is the close.

I am now about to read from page 2589 and I am reading just a few lines ahead of the Government's quotation from that page.

Presiding Inspector: You mean you are reading to include a part of what is already in evidence?

Mrs. King: No, I am reading a few lines before what is already in evidence.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, I beg your pardon.

Mr. Myron: We object to any reading before the part was introduced by the Government.

Presiding Inspector: What was the subject here?

Mrs. King: The first question which was read into the record by the Government was: "Q. When did you first meet Sam [3467] Telford?

"A. 1934."

The part that I propose to read is two questions and answers before that, the first one of which reads as follows:

"Q. Do you know Sam Telford?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Was he a member of the Communist Party? A. I think he was."

Presiding Inspector: Oh, I will let that stand. I will let that be read.

Mrs. King: I am now about to read from pages 2599 through page 2604.

Mr. Del Guercio: To page 2604?

Mrs. King: That's correct.

Mr. Myron: Now, the Government objects to this as having no reference to the admissions which they introduced into the record.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, almost immediately after this portion there was a quotation from the Government on this part that I am about to read having to do with the Marine Workers Industrial Union, which is one of the four subjects which the Government's admissions specifically had to do with.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think that the Court should first examine it.

Presiding Inspector: On that statement, of course, I will [3468] take it, but I will look at it. Where does it start?

Mrs. King: It starts here (indicating), through page 2604. I think there is a pencil mark in the margin.

(The transcript referred to was passed to the Presiding Inspector). [3469]

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I think there is some error—before you start reading that—pages 2589 to 2591. I have no reference at all to 99.

Mrs. King: No. I didn't think you did. I said you had a quotation immediately following the beginning on page 2605, as I recall. I don't have the book before me at the moment.

Mr. Del Guercio: We have one on 2605, yes; 2605 to 2613.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think this last question here covers anything that we have had.

Mrs. King: You mean all of those pages, when you say the "last question?"

Presiding Inspector: The last statement, about a meeting at 121 Haight Street.

Mrs. King: I would just as leave leave that out.

Presiding Inspector: Leave that out. I will let you read the rest over your objection, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: Over our objection.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Myron: Of course, this is admitted as material which refers to or explains the admissions introduced by the Government?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mrs. King: Reading from pages 2599 and through part of page 2604:

"Q. Was that your attitude, you didn't want to have [3470] anything to do with them in 1932 and 1933?

"A. We didn't look at it that way. They were advocating joining the Marine Workers Industrial Union and I was opposed to it.

"Q. The Communist Party was?

"A. I wouldn't say the Communist Party. I think I can differentiate it.

"Q. Who was advocating it?

"A. There would be two types of speakers: The Communist Party used to come down there and speak on general issues, political issues. They would speak on conditions nationally, conditions, matters of international questions.

"Q. Who, for instance, would do that?

"A. Jim Branch, generally, the speaker that was down there most. He was very well liked by all the men on the waterfront.

"Q. Anybody else?

"A. Darcy occasionally spoke down there.

"Q. Did they make any impression?

"A. Well, I don't recall much about Darcy.

"Q. Any of them?

"A. I didn't find it out until after he had spoken down there.

"Branch, I definitely recall, because he was an eloquent speaker and he made a distinct impression on the men and on me. [3471]

"Q. How upon you?

"A. Well, he is a very presentable looking person and was a very able speaker.

"Q. Did he have persuasive arguments?

"A. Very persuasive.

"Q. Was he advocating joining the Communist Party? A. He was.

"Q. Did those arguments appeal to you in the slightest?

"A. In joining the Communist Party?

"Q. Yes. A. No.

"Q. You said he had persuasive arguments. Persuasive arguments on what? He didn't persuade you to join the Communist Party and you say he had persuasive arguments. He must have had persuasive arguments on something.

"A. He had—after all, the way the arguments would be put, any man would come down to the waterfront in 1931 or 1932, when $10 a week was a big wage, and talked in favor of improving that wage, in favor of reducing the speed-up, who talked against the blacklist and whatnot, had the approval or the sympathy of the men anyway. That is only logical.

"When they got beyond that point and said to the men, 'The way to correct this is to join the Communist Party,' to my best knowledge they didn't get many takers. I don't remember any mass movement. [3472]

"Q. You said he had persuasive arguments only in so far as you saw it. In what respect were his arguments persuasive?

"A. They were persuasive enough. If he had had a logical plan there to present, other than joining the Communist Party, to increase our wages, to do away with many of the things that were very bad on the waterfront, that was one thing. But when it came to how it should be done, his arguments, the program being to join the Communist Party, and it might help to do away with those conditions, that was too far-fetched for the men at that time and they didn't pay much attention to that point.

"Q. Did you ever hear him advocate force or violence, the use of it?

"A. Never. The only force used was when the policeman came along and threw him in the wagon.

"Q. That was the same James Branch to whom reference has been made as having been deported?

"A. I believe so; yes.

"Q. How often did he come there to speak?

"A. Once or twice a week. I can distinctly recall Branch. Others came down, but I cannot definitely place who they were. I can distinctly recall Branch because he was a very able speaker.

"Q. How often did Sam Darcy come down there?

"A. I don't know. As a matter of fact, I don't recall Darcy coming down there until later on. Later I talked to him [3473] and he said, 'Don't you remember me? I used to come down to the waterfront a couple of years ago and speak.'

"I said 'No. I don't remember it.'

"Q. Did he have any persuasive arguments?

"A. I wouldn't know.

"Q. Do you recall anything in particular that James Branch said about that time that appealed to your particularly?

"A. Yes. One of the things that he said—naturally, a lot of his talk was directed along the line of improving the conditions of the waterfront, on the ships and for the workers generally.

"Another argument was definitely an anti-war argument.

"Other arguments were definitely directed against the state and city politics generally.

"Q. Was he against war under any conditions? What do you mean by 'anti-war'?

"A. I can't specifically recall, but he made statements such as this—I think at that time there was a Japanese invasion looming up, or something like that, the first invasion of China, and that was a subject for discussion one day. It was somewhat a little closer to the waterfront because work on the waterfront is affected by those things. There was a statement made in that connection that it wasn't going to do the Chinese much good the way the Japanese were beginning to move in there.

[3474]

"A statement was made regarding the last war that what the men on the waterfront, the workers there, got out of the last war was very little.

"There were statements such as that.

"Q. Did you ever hear him say anything like 'Turn war into civil war?' A. No.

"Q. Did you ever hear him make such statements?

"A. Not at those times. He might have, but not that I know of.

"Q. Did he ever in your presence say anything like that outside of those speeches on the waterfront? A. No."

Mrs. King: That is as far as I intended to read. The other statement went beyond the end of my proposal.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I understand that.

Mrs. King: On page 2608 there is a single line between two questions, quotations by the Government. The last sentence which is quoted from the testimony of the witness is as follows:

"The Witness: Never. He knew nothing about Unions until we got him in our group and started to teach him something."

Presiding Inspector: Who are you talking about?

Mr. Del Guercio: We object to the introduction of that.

Presiding Inspector: She is reading what you have introduced. [3475]

Mr. Del Guercio: No. I didn't understand that.

Mrs. King: This is the part that you read and I am simply adding this statement of the witness, who is talking about a longshoreman by the name of Detrich.

Presiding Inspector: Detrich?

Mrs. King: Yes.

"The Witness: He didn't know the difference between the two types of unions."

Presiding Inspector: That is the part you want to read?

Mrs. King: Yes, that is all.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see any objection to that, although it is received over your objection, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes; over our objection.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see any reason why it shouldn't be received. I will receive it.

Mrs. King: The Government read into the record from pages 2617 to a little beyond the third of the way down——

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. Did you want to say something, Mr. Del Guercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: I understand that the Doctor is here.

Presiding Inspector: Let him come in and sit down.

Mrs. King: (Continuing) ——through a little beyond one third of the way down on page 2628, which was read by the Government.

I am now seeking to read from just beyond the Government's [3476] quotation on page 2628 through a marked portion on page 2634, which is a little beyond the middle of the page.

I believe that your Honor will find that it is a saving of time if I was permitted to read, rather than to present it to you in each event to determine in advance whether it can be read. [3477]

Mr. Myron: I think your Honor should read it to determine whether or not it is admissible here. We object to the part upon the grounds that it has no reference at all to the admissions which were introduced by the Government.

Presiding Inspector: What is the subject of admission?

Mrs. King: The subject of the admission is some discussion of the M.W.I.U., and the first question in the portion that I intend to read was where the Government says that they could not believe that Mr. Bridges meant entirely what he said, and they give him an opportunity to explain his exact meaning. So that you are dealing with precisely the same subject that the Government——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Is that about the substance of it? I will take it.

Mr. Myron: Except, your Honor, that you not having read it will not be able to determine whether or not it does have reference to the M.W.I.U. We contend that it doesn't.

Presiding Inspector: You contend that it doesn't have any reference to the M.W.I.U.?

Mr. Myron: That it doesn't have any reference to the M.W.I.U.

Presiding Inspector: I am afraid I will have to read it.

Mrs. King: The discussion was why they cooperated with the M.W.I.U. and the explanation is quite clear.

(The transcript referred to was passed to the Presiding [3478] Inspector.)

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mrs. King: Thank you, your Honor.

Mr. Myron: We contend that this line of inquiry——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I should think that you would rather like this testimony.

Mr. Myron: It is all right with us except that it is not admissible as an admission.

Presiding Inspector: It is admissible under a broad ruling.

Mr. Del Guercio: A broad interpretation of the ruling?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, a broad interpretation of the ruling. I am not holding them down very strictly or strictly at all, if I can see any connective matter. This deals with an interesting subject.

Mrs. King: "Q. That is the reason I want you to clarify.

"A. That's right. The primary purpose and the primary objective at that time was to win our strike. All the discussions of the strike, there was no discussion about overthrowing the Government or anything else. We were talking hours, wages, hiring halls and what-not. When I advocated the men to join that Union, lots of them said, 'Well, how about this'?

"It has always been our position that when you talk up a Union we don't talk about charters. It is not so much a [3479] question of many other things. Those things are not as much substance as the people in the Union and what policies are followed. So my answer then when they brought those things up, I said, 'I don't agree with those things, either, but the way to change it is to get in there! Call a meeting and vote to amend the darned thing, and then you have got it, and then make any kind of a constitution you want. But don't make that an objection to joining the Union.'

"We have never done that. You will never organize a group of workers that way. We used the same argument with the group of CIO. For a long time many workers raised the objection 'I can't join the CIO because it has no constitution.'

"Well, for approximately 25 years this country functioned without a constitution, and that was no argument to raise to refuse to join a Union. It was just an excuse, in other words.

"When we had asked those workers to go into that Union, it was the expedient thing to do at that time for the purpose of winning our point.

"Q. Would you people take a man into the Union who for instance, believed in the overthrow of the Government of these United States by force and violence?

"A. There is nothing in our constitution to discriminate against any person regardless of what their political beliefs are.

"Q. Would you yourself, for instance, knowingly vote to [3480] take such a man in a Union who believed in the overthrow of the Government by force and violence?

"A. I would have to follow the constitution in my voting. If the constitution could be construed that the advocacy of the overthrow of the Government by force and violence or in any other way was a certain political belief, it would be improper and illegal to hold that against a person. I would have to vote in accordance with that constitution.

"Q. Wouldn't the Union be concerned with it?

"A. They possibly would, I don't know. The issue has never come up. A man comes up before our Union. They want to know, 'Have you ever been a strike breaker? Have you ever been a stool pigeon? Have you ever been on the police force?' and a few other things like that. If he has been a good Union man and hasn't done any of those things, he is allowed into the Union so long as he is a worker.

"Q. Suppose he is not a good man morally, would they let him in?

"A. That has nothing to do with the Union.

"Q. That has nothing to do with the Union?

"A. A good man morally? I am afraid if we started through the trade Unions in this country and began to discriminate because of morals, we would kind of disrupt a few [3481] Unions.

"Q. I am just trying to find out, that is all.

"A. I know.

"Q. Then do I take it——

"A. I can get a copy of the Union Constitution. I have it here, even the old A. F. of L. Constitution.

"Q. I believe defense counsel will put it in. He can put it in and make it a part of the record, if he wants. Then, as I take it from your testimony, a member of the Communist Party, if he came in to join your Union, and if he definitely believed in the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force and violence, you would not be interested because it is not a part of the tenets of the Union, and the Union is not concerned with it; is that correct?

"A. You would be interested in what his political beliefs were if and when he tried to advocate them in the Union; but, as far as his being a member of the Union, if you tried to get up and say 'This man can't join the Union because he is a Communist,' you would be ruled out of order and that could not be used against him in joining the Union. That is correct.

"Q. Suppose that he were already in the Union?

"A. All right.

"Q. And there were such a man as to which

I have just referred, a man who believed in the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force and violence; would the Union [3482] be concerned with that?

"A. He would be allowed to get up on the floor and state any view he felt or any view in which he believed. The only rule we have in our Union is, regardles of what your beliefs or opinions are, you will be allowed to state, on the floor of the meetings, and then you sit down and everybody else states theirs. Generally speaking, he would state his, and 99 per cent of the rest of the membership would get up and state the opposite, from what I have seen of the Union.

"Q. Then the whole paramount consideration from your viewpoint in the Unions is just this: That a man has a right to any belief he desires in regard to anything, whether it be the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force and violence or not, provided it does not conflict with his Union obligations?

"A. Or the Constitution of the country. There is a court ruling where we have to investigate because of these certain legal rules where no Union constitution can conflict with the Constitution of the United States.

"Q. I am talking particularly about the Union. I am not talking about the laws of the Government or Constitution of the United States. I am talking about the Union on a proposition of that kind, where a man believed in the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force and violence:

[3483]

"A. The attitude of the Union is controlled by its Constitution and bill of rights. After all, every Union is, in effect, a small government. They are all closely patterned after the Bill of Rights and Constitution. Any man is allowed in the Union whose views do not conflict with the Union Constitution or the Union Bill of Rights. I believe under the Constitution of the United States the right of free speech is guaranteed, and we follow it and guarantee it. We follow the policy. We mightn't like what they say but we will fight to the end their right to say it.

"Q. Do you believe the right of free speech extends to the right of license as distinguished from the right of liberty?

"A. No, I don't. We are taken out to a pretty farfetched point here. I don't think anybody would dare get up in our Unions to advocate the overthrow of the Government by force and violence. They would throw them out on their ear.

"Q. Suppose he did that outside of the union and the union knew that he had done so, what would be their attitude?

"A. What could the union do?

"Q. I am not answering you. I want you to answer my question.

"A. I didn't mean it that way, Mr. Shoemaker. I am just wondering about the question. Suppose the Union found somebody [3484] advocating the overthrow of the Government by force and violence——

"Q. Or in any other wise:

"A I would say, if there was an organization of any kind or even individuals, I think the union would try to take some action. At least they would pass resolutions. They might notify somebody or they would try to take some action. That has been my experience. I would advocate it anyway."

At this place, if your Honor please, it occurs to me that there is no particular reason why Dr. MacMickle should sit by and listen to the loud reading. We might interrupt it to allow him to take the stand.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. Take the witness stand.

VIRGIL MacMICKLE

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Further Recross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Does the witness understand that he is still under oath?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. He continues with the examination. He is still under oath.

A. All right.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. MacMickle, I want to review your previous testi- [3485] mony on a particular subject very briefly. I believe you testified that you attended the American College of Drugless Physicians in the City of Chicago for about three years, from 1910 to 1913; is that correct?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. That is incorrect.

Q. What is the correct thing?

A. I told you definitely that I went there, I thought, in the fall of 1911 and graduated in December of 1912 or January of 1913. I don't know just when the graduation exercise was.

Q. And for how many years did you attend that college?

A. That would be a 12-months course.

Q. A 12-months course?

A. Yes, because I was away for three months during the summer.

Q. Now did you ever attend the American College of Naturopathy in New York?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. For how long a period?

A. Well, I don't remember the exact length of the period. I know it was a brief course. It was only concerned with two or three subjects.

Q. And how long would you say? I believe you previously testified that you might have attended for about six months at the most. Is that correct?

A. Well, it wasn't longer than that. I know that, and [3486] I doubt if it was that long.

Q. And was that under Dr. Lust?

A. Yes.

Q. Was he running that school at that time?

A. Yes. Dr. Benedict Lust was running the school.

Q. Did you ever attend the Bernarr MacFadden School of Physical Education in Chicago?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. That was run in conjunction with the American College of Drugless Physicians.

Q. Did you ever attend the Bernarr MacFadden School of Physical Education in Chicago?

A. Yes. I will tell you what happened.

Q. Well now, what is your answer to that question? "Yes" or "No"?

A. Yes.

Q. Uh,-huh.

Presiding Inspector: He wants to explain.

A. Here's what happened.

Q. Yes.

A. They were running their course then in the basic subjects for both physical trainers for educational institutions, coaches and that sort of thing, and the same basic subjects of anatomy and physiology and so on for those who wanted to become doctors; and then after, I think it was, three months or maybe it was six months, you had your right to make your preference as to which way you were going and, of course, I [3487] determined on being a doctor and that's the way the thing was.

Q. Then you did attend the Bernarr MacFadden School of Physical Education?

A. Yes. It was the—I think that was called the American College of Physical Education, if I am not mistaken. It was owned by Bernarr MacFadden, that's true.

Presiding Inspector: He answers in the affirmative, that he attended it.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did it occupy the same building space?

A. It occupied part of the building, yes.

Q. How much of the building?

A. Oh, I don't know because they had classrooms in common. As I say, for the first few months——

Q. (Interposing) Well now; as a matter of fact, Mr. MacMickle, it was only the Bernarr MacFadden School of Physical Education that had any rooms in that building?

A. No, you are wrong about that, absolutely.

Q. Isn't that the fact?

A. I know what I am talking about and I am definite and positive about it.

Q. All right. Let's see if you do. You applied for a license to practice naturopathy on August 27, 1927 in the State of Oregon, didn't you?

A. I applied for what? [3488]

Q. To practice naturopathy?

A. Oh, yes, yes.

Q. You filled out the application?

A. Yes.

Q. As required under the laws of the State of Oregon?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Do you know what you stated in that application?

A. No, I don't remember at the present time.

[3489]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Did you state that you were born July 21, 1891 at Stanhope, New Jersey? A. Yes.

Q. Was that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you state that you attended the American College of Naturopathy for a period of four years?

A. I don't recall stating it.

Q. You don't recall stating it? A. No.

Q. And if it does so state would that be a true statement?

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment—if what does so state, the application?

Mr. Del Guercio: The application for a license which the witness says he has made out.

Look at me.

The Witness: Yes, I am looking at you.

A. No, I don't remember having made any such claims.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And if the application so states would you say that you did make such a claim?

A. If the application so states, I must have made such a claim; yes, sir.

Q. Did you state in that same application that you attended the Bernarr MacFadden School of Physical Education in [3490] Chicago for a period of some four years?

A. No—well, if I did I don't remember it.

Q. If the application for the license does so state would you say that you did state that you attended that school for a period of four years?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

A. If I stated it in the application it is there, yes.

Q. Is that statement true?

A. No, that isn't a true statement.

Q. That is a falsehood, isn't it?

Presiding Inspector: He said so. We don't need it emphasized.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, at the time that—did you make any mention in that application for a license to practice naturopathy in the State of Oregon that you had ever attended the American College of Drugless Physicians?

A. Well, I don't know that I stated it that way. That is what my diploma reads.

Q. Did you so state in your application for a license?

A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Well, now, Mr. MacMickle, as a matter of fact you never did attend the American College of Drugless Physicians, did you.

A. That is precisely what my diploma says and I have agreed to submit it to you and shall do so.

Q. Who issued this diploma, Mr. MacMickle?

[3491]

A. That was, as I say, that was signed by Dr. Speicher and, I think, Dr. Crane.

Q. With what college were they connected?

A. With the American College of Drugless Physicians.

Q. And is that the only diploma you have?

A. That is the only diploma I have from them.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. You don't have a diploma, do you, from the American School of Naturopathy?

A. You mean the Lust School, the one in New York City?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, I have a diploma from that.

Q. This is the first time you have mentioned that, isn't it?

A. No, that isn't. I told you it was a post graduate thin

Q. Post graduate course? A. Yes.

Q. Are you sure that that diploma doesn't say that you attended that school for, let us say, a period of over six months?

A. Well, if it so states I think it was in error.

Q. You think it was in error? A. Yes.

Q. Will you submit that diploma also to this Court?

A. If I still have it I will be glad to.

Q. Do you have it? [3492]

A. I am not sure.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, this has all been gone over.

Mr. Del Guercio: No, it hasn't.

Presiding Inspector: Not quite. Evidently this is on a little different basis. I will be liberal to the government in this case, in this instance.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You were on the Board of Naturopathic Examiners at the time you submitted your application?

A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Q. Were you not? A. I was.

Q. You passed upon your own application, didn't you, with the other members?

A. Right.

Q. Did you approve your application?

A. I presume I must have.

Q. Were the statements made in this application verified?

A. Well, I don't know that they were any more than the usual taking it for granted.

Q. You made it under oath, didn't you?

A. No, I don't think I made it under oath.

Q. You didn't make that application for a license under oath? [3493]

A. No.

Q. Now, did the diploma, you say—I don't know whether I misunderstood you—did you say you were issued a diploma by Mr Lust? A. Yes.

Q. And that was from the American School of Naturopathy, is that right?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, that is Benedict Lust, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. That is the same Lust who, in April of 1912, was convicted in the Court of Special Sessions in New York for practicing medicine without a license and fined $1000, isn't that correct?

Mr. Grossman: I object to that question as obviously trying to prejudice the case and as having no possible relevancy and as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: Was this after that date?

The Witness: Yes; long after that.

Presiding Inspector: You can ask him if he knows that because he has testified that he had this certificate, as I remember it, from a physician. If his license had been rejected, it might bear somewhat on his qualifications. It is a little hard to see, perhaps, but I think I will take it.

If he knows—have you ever heard of this? [3494]

The Witness: No, I never did.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You never heard of it? A. No.

Q. Have you heard that this so-called Dr. Lust had issued hundreds, if not thousands, of diplomas?

Mr. Grossman: It is quite obvious that this question is subject to the same objection I made previously, and that is it is obviously to prejudice the case and couldn't have any possible effect or purpose except for Mr. Del Guercio to attempt to testify through the question.

Presiding Inspector: He said he didn't know anything about it.

Mr. Del Guercio: I submit, if the Court please—

Presiding Inspector: I will allow you to ask whether he knows of anything of that sort.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is what I am asking.

Presiding Inspector: That wasn't exactly the question. If he knows of anything of this kind that you now ask him about it doesn't make it a fact at all.

Mr. Del Guercio: No. Your Honor, let us get

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

this—this witness here says, has made certain contradictory statements, as it is apparent. I believe I am safe in saying that. Now, we have got to have some latitude here in cross examination. [3495]

Presiding Inspector: I am giving you a great deal of latitude and I am going to continue to give you latitude. You may ask him whether he knows about him having issued what you call fake diplomas.

Mr. Del Guercio: Fake diplomas.

Presiding Inspector: If he knows anything about that.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Have you ever heard he issued fake diplomas?

A. No.

Q. Was the diploma that you received from him a fake one?

A. No, it was not a fake diploma.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if the Court please, in view of this witness' contradictory statements under oath I request that he be kept here until tomorrow morning.

We have under subpoena his application for a license under the State of Oregon and we hope to have it here by tomorrow morning. We want to confront this witness with what he said in that statement.

Presiding Inspector: All right.

Mr. Del Guercio: And in his own handwriting.

Presiding Inspector: I think he had better stay.

Mrs. King: The attorneys for Mr. Bridges do not object to his remaining, but we see no occasion for the statement that he has made contradictory statements under oath. There is nothing in the record to support that. [3496]

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Del Guercio: The record speaks for itself.

Mrs. King: Then we had better take the record and let it continue to speak for itself, instead of having the Attorney for the Government speak for it.

Presiding Inspector: Those statements aren't evidence when made, and they won't be considered as evidence, whoever makes them, whether Government counsel or whether it is counsel for the Alien. We are going to have this case presented on the evidence and on the record.

Mrs. King: Thank you.

Presiding Inspector: You need not worry about that. Is that all?

Mr. Del Guercio: I have one more question, if your Honor please. This may sound repetitious, but the Court may pass upon it before the witness answers.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Would you say under oath that you received a diploma from the American College of Drugless Physicians as a result of attending courses and classes at such an institution?

Mrs. King: If your Honor please——

Presiding Inspector: He already answered that.

Mrs. King: There is an implication in the question that he has not answered it truthfully. I object to it further on that ground.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Presiding Inspector: I will sustain the objection on the [3499] ground that it has been fully covered.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, not in that wise. I don't know whether you know what I have in mind or not.

Presiding Inspector: I don't want to know. He has repeatedly said that he attended that institution for a twelve months' course.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Presiding Inspector: That at the end of this period, after having taken certain studies which he has testified respecting, he received a diploma.

Isn't that right? The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Is that your testimony?

The Witness: That is my testimony.

Presiding Inspector: That covers it. That is as I understood it.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all until tomorrow morning, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: All right. Until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(Witness temporarily excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mrs. King, go on with the [3500] reading.

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, I believe we have another witness now ready to testify and Mr. Grossman is going to investigate that problem. So I may not finish the reading this afternoon.

But I should like at this time to read pages 3100, beginning with the first question on that page, through the last answer on page 3104.

Presiding Inspector: Can you state what that is, in a general way, to help the ruling?

Mrs. King: There is no objection.

Mr. Myron: We haven't referred to it yet.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think counsel has had an opportunity to look at it. We cannot cut off the opportunity for them to examine the record.

Mrs. King: This deals with the comparison of the constitution——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) May we have a recess?

Presiding Inspector: We will finish this first.

Mrs. King: This deals with a comparison of the constitution of the Marine Workers Industrial Union, concerning which Mr. Bridges was asked at the last hearing; a comparison of that constitution and the constitution of the American Federation of Labor, and it was specifically introduced, in this testimony, in order to meet the problem of the meaning of [3501] this constitution of the Marine Workers Industrial Union.

Presiding Inspector: Before you start on this we will take a short recess.

[3502]

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mrs. King, do you want to interrupt the reading?

Mrs. King: Yes, if you don't mind, your Honor. I should prefer to have a witness.

Presiding Inspector: Call your witness.

Mrs. King: The witness is right here.

ROBERT M. MacGREGOR

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: Give your name and address.

The Witness: Robert M. MacGregor: 7325 Southeast 29th, Portland.

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mrs. King, Mr. MacGregor sits at the head of the table. Go ahead.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. MacGregor?

A. I am an instructor in literature at Reed College, Portland.

Q. How long have you held that position?

A. Three academic years. At the close of this June it will be three academic years.

Q. Do you consider that you have any other occupation outside of that of teacher?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that form of the question [3503] "Do you consider?". Does he have any other occupation?

Presiding Inspector: That is his manner of speech.

Mr. Grossman: I think that is an appropriate question considering the answer that I expect, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

A. Yes. I have been a journalist; I have been a correspondent, newspaperman, and I still do a certain amount of that.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. And you expect to return to that other field, do you? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Mr. MacGregor, are you personally acquainted with a man named Robert Wilmot?

A. As far as I know I have never met him. I may possibly have.

Q. Have you ever had occasion to discuss with anyone in the City of Portland the reputation or character of Mr. Wilmot for truth and veracity?

Mr. Myron: I object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, on this ground: The witness has just testified that he has never met Robert Wilmot.

Presiding Inspector: I know.

Mr. Del Guercio: Not knowing Robert Wilmot, never having [3504] met him, how could he testify?

Presiding Inspector: It is what he has heard from the mouths of the people.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is there only one Robert Wilmot?

Presiding Inspector: Well, I suppose they will identify him.

Mr. Del Guercio: Shouldn't that be done first?

Presiding Inspector: The similarity of names is prima facie.

Mr. Grossman: That is correct. I will satisfy Mr. Del Guercio, though.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Is it the same Robert Wilmot who was connected with the Labor New Dealer at one time?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. Yes.

Q. Now, will you explain what was the first occasion which enabled you to find out what was the reputation of Robert Wilmot for truth and veracity?

Mr. Myron: I object to this.

Presiding Inspector: Sustained. Leave it for cross examination.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. How did the subject of Robert Wilmot's character or reputation for truth and veracity come up in your discussions?

Mr. Myron: I object to that, your Honor, as not a proper question. [3505]

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I have a right to show that he was in a position to know and how he came about——

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I am going to let you show that in a very general way in what group of people he has heard this discussed.

Mr. Grossman: All right. I will ask the question in that way.

Presiding Inspector: Approach it that way.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Could you describe generally what group it was or what groups they were in which this question of Robert Wilmot's reputation for truth and veracity was or were discussed?

Presiding Inspector: To your knowledge.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. Well, when I first came to Portland I was part time at Reed College and I was looking around for various subjects for articles for national magazines and one of those I was investigating was the Portland Red Squad.

Presiding Inspector: You see, Mr. MacGregor,——

The Witness (Interposing): I am sorry.

Presiding Inspector (Continuing): ——We don't want the specific instances, but we want to know in what group you have heard his reputation discussed. That is, among the professors, among the students, among the newspaper men.

Mr. Grossman: I am afraid, you Honor, that——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Longshoremen, among [3506] the Police.

Mr. Grossman: I am afraid Mr. MacGregor understands the question all right, but knowing the story I know that they are not such a class of people that he can describe the class that easily: I am sure that that is why he is giving as much detail as he is.

Presiding Inspector: Let him first try to describe the group.

The Witness: Well, I would like to say that——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Of course, he may say that wherever his name is mentioned he heard it discussed. I don't know.

The Witness: That's practically it.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't mean to offer that as testimony.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that that be stricken.

Presiding Inspector: I am afraid, Mr. MacGregor, that will hardly do.

The Witness: It was among lawyers and newspaper men, from the wife of the Director of the Art Museum in Portland and from people connected with the Spanish Committee who had known him, and so on down the line; various people who had worked with Wilmot at various times or known him.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. From the discussions that you have had with these [3507] people that you have named concerning the character of Robert Wilmot do you know his general reputation for truth and veracity?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that. There is no evidence here that these other people, and he hasn't named them, generally do not even know Mr. Wilmot.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. I will take it. Leave it for cross examination.

A. Well, the general impression. I can't speak——

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. (Interposing): First state whether or not you know his general reputation. A. Yes.

Q. Will you state whether that general reputation for truth and veracity is good or bad?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, your Honor, as no foundation.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. I would say it was bad.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. From what you have heard about the general reputation of Robert Wilmot for truth and veracity would you believe him under oath?

A. I doubt it.

Q. Now, could you describe for us what periods of time covered by your various conversations with other people, con- [3508] cerning the character of Robert Wilmot for truth and veracity?

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, I object to that. That should have been a preliminary question.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it now. Probably it should have been, but I will allow it now to fill in any possible space.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. When was the first and when was the last that you spoke to anyone on the subject?

A. It is very hard to give exact dates, but it was in the fall of '38, I would say around November, possibly October, and I have heard about him variously, although I would like to say that the data seems all to have been based on about the same period, oh, up until three or four months ago certainly. I have also heard more about him since he appeared here, but that's another matter.

Mr. Grossman: You may cross examine.

Presiding Inspector: Now Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: Mr. Myron will take the witness.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Cross Examination

By Mr. Myron:

Q. You say you live at 723 Southeast 29th?

A. No. 7325.

Q. 7325? A. That's right. [3509]

Q. How long have you lived there?

A. Since September, 1940. Let's see; anyway, this is the second year of the lease.

Q. And where did you live before that?

A. I lived, oh, for two months I lived up at the corner of Southeast Reedway and, I think, 41st Street in an apartment. And before that I lived——

Q. (Interposing): When was that?

A. That was May and June of—it must have been nineteen—these dates are difficult—nineteen thirty nine. Is that right? Yes.

Q. May and June, 1939?

A. I hope that's right. I think so. If I came—yes, '39.

Q. From May and June of 1939? A. Yes.

Q. To September, 1940, where did you live?

A. Well, in saying "1940" it is a little difficult to get all these.

Q. You mean May and June of 1940?

A. I must have moved into the present house September, 1939, then. That's right.

Q. You have lived there since September of 1939; that is, your present address?

A. That would be right, yes.

Q. Is that right? [3510] A. Yes.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Prior to September of 1939 you say you lived two months at some other place?

A. That was during the summer of—you see, we have a long vacation teaching. I was part of the time in Santa Monica and then I lived with another person connected with Reed in the house of a third faculty member who was away, and that was out on—I would have to give you the address. I can tell you the name of the person whose house it is.

Q. That is not necessary if you give us the address.

A. I can't remember the address off-hand.

Q. Well, with whom did you live?

A. With Larry Rogers.

Q. Larry Rogers?

A. Yes, who was the Comptroller of Reed College.

Q. Of what?

A. Comptroller of Reed College; financial.

Q. And how long did you live there?

A. Oh, I would say from the middle of July until the end of August.

Q. Is that on the campus of the college?

A. Oh, no.

Q. Or connected with the college?

A. Oh, no. It is about three miles from the college; two or three miles from the college. [3511]

Q. And where did you live before that?

A. Before that I lived in the house of William Brewster overlooking the Waverly Country Club.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Who is William Brewster?

A. Well, he is a Portland lawyer, an elderly man.

Q. You mean you boarded there?

A. No. He and his wife—either he or his wife were not feeling very well and they were living in town in a small apartment hotel and we rented the house during all that winter until the middle of April or the first of May when they came back to the——

Q. (Interposing): You lived there while he was away, is that it?

A. He was living in town, the center of town. This is quite a ways out. It is a sort of country house.

Q. Are you married? A. Yes.

Q. Does your wife live there with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, prior to that time where did you live?

A. Prior to that time I lived for about five months in Winchester Center, Connecticut, on a farm. [3512]

Q. During what months and what year did you live there?

A. That must have been in 1938, from about January until the end of August, when we came west.

Q. How old are you? A. 29.

Q. 29? A. Yes.

Q. Where did you go to school?

A. Harvard.

Q. Harvard? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. When did you get through? A. 1933.

Q. And then you came directly out here to the coast—you came directly out here?

A. No, I didn't come out here until 1938. I thought I made that clear.

Q. When did you apply for this position with the College?

A. Mainly by mail. My wife and I had gone up to Bennington to see if we could get a place teaching there. That is a girls' college in Vermont. There was no opening there, so it was suggested that we go to the Progressive Educational Association, which was a Rockefeller organization, supported organization, in New York, and there we talked over [3513] most of the progressive colleges in the country, and they recommended Reed and that was among others that we made applications to at that time.

Q. You say you were a journalist?

A. Yes.

Q. Where?

A. I worked for the United Press in Pekin?

Q. Where?

Presiding Inspector: Pekin, in China. It has another name now, but we know what it is.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. When was that?

A. That was in the summer and fall of 1937.

Q. Just before you were appointed as instructor at the college?

A. No. I came back to this country and, as

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

I say, I lived on a farm in Connecticut, at Winchester Center, for a while.

Q. Were you correspondent for any other newspaper?

A. I was correspondent for the United Press.

Q. That was the same position, is that what you have reference to? A. That is right.

Q. When did you, on what date did you return from China?

A. I got back just before Christmas in 1937, at the end [3514] of 1937.

Q. You never met Robert Wilmot?

A. No.

Q. You wouldn't know him if you saw him?

A. No. I say that—I don't think I have met him. I have seen his picture in the paper in connection with this case and I certainly didn't recognize him.

Q. How many people have you talked with concerning Robert Wilmot?

A. Oh, I would say nine or ten at least.

Q. About nine or ten?

A. At least; yes.

Q. Would you say it would be more than nine or ten? A. It might well be; yes.

Q. Well, how many?

A. I might explain——

Q. (Interposing): No, I want the approximate number.

A. (Continuing): ——that Mr. Wilmot meant

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

nothing in my life until I was asked to come down here.

Q. I am just asking you now the approximate number of people that you have talked to concerning Wilmot.

Presiding Inspector: Answer the best you can.

A. I would say, well, make it a little more; possibly twelve. That is approximately.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. That is approximately? [3515]

A. That is approximately.

Q. And were those twelve people scattered around various places? A. They were.

Q. And various types of people?

A. Various types.

Q. Now, in talking to those ten or twelve people I assume—let me ask you if the matter of his reputation in the community was discussed with all those twelve people? A. With the——

Q. (Interposing): You can answer that "Yes" or "No". A. Not all the twelve.

Q. Not all the twelve? A. No.

Q. How many of the twelve?

A. I would say about nine or ten.

Q. About nine or ten? A. Yes.

Mr. Myron: Now, your Honor, I ask that all the evidence of this witness be stricken from this record.

Presiding Inspector: I will deny the motion.

Mr. Myron: Exception.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. I think it is perfectly proper.

Mr. Myron: The basis for his conclusion is nine or ten [3516] people.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is quite enough.

Mr. Myron: And scattered about the country.

Presiding Inspector: They are all in Portland.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Were they all in Portland or around Portland?

A. All in Portland or around Portland.

Q. Were some of those nine or ten outside of the City of Portland?

A. I spoke to them all within Portland and I don't know whether they are there today or not. In fact, I know one isn't in Portland.

Q. But they were in Portland at the time you talked to them, they lived in Portland?

A. Yes.

Q. Who were these people—can you give us the names?

A. Well, I can you the names of a few. Among them were Cris Boesen—B-o-e-s-e-n—I think it is.

Q. Who is he?

A. He was an A. F. of L. lawyer associated with B. A. Green.

Q. With whom?

A. B. A. Green, also of Portland.

Q. Where did Mr. Boesen live?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. I don't know where he lived. I saw him in his office. [3517]

Q. Where is his office? A. Oh, dear——

Presiding Inspector: Do the best you can.

A. I think it is in the Corbett Building in Portland. At least it is a building in which some of the Corbetts have offices.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. You went to his office?

A. I went to his office.

Q. Did you know Mr. Boesen before?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Have you seen him since?

A. Once or twice; yes.

Q. What are the names of the other people that you discussed this matter with?

A. Richard Scholz—S-c-h-o-l-z—I think it is. He was also present at the time that I spoke with Boesen, I might say, and added something to it.

Q. What does he do?

A. He is a newspaper man. He was at that time on the staff of the Portland Oregonian and is now associated with the Washington Daily News in Washington.

Q. Who else?

A. Mrs. Federick A. Sweet.

Q. How do you spell that? [3518]

A. S-w-e-e-t.

Q. Who is she?

A. She was the wife of the Director of the Portland Art Museum.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Did you talk to her at her home or at the Art Museum?

A. I think, as a matter of fact, it was at my home.

Q. At your home?

A. Yes. He is no longer with the Portland Art Museum. He is with the Art Institute in Chicago

Q. Who else?

A. Do I have to give all the names?

Presiding Inspector: Yes; all you can remember.

The Witness: But I don't want to give publicity to people.

Presiding Inspector: I know.

A. (Continuing): Another is Richard L. Newberger.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Who is he?

A. I guess the Northwest Correspondent—I am not sure whether it is the Northwest or for Oregon—of the New York Times. He is also a member of the Oregon Legislature at the last session.

Q. Who else?

A. I am a little vague about who was there, but I might explain that much of this went on when I was first in Portland [3519] and I was meeting a great many people; but it was either Clyde Wade or Monroe Sweetland, at the Oregon Commonwealth Federation.

Q. Clyde——

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. (Interposing): Clyde Wade.

Q. Spell that one?

A. W-a-d-e—I think.

Q. You gave another name?

A. Monroe Sweetland. It was either one, but I am not quite sure which.

Q. Who else?

A. Some of these people, their names I would rather not give.

Presiding Inspector: I know.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think the witness should be instructed to give the names. He is appearing here as one of these character witnesses and says he has heard these things and he should be compelled to state the names.

Presiding Inspector: He hasn't declined. Wait until he declines. He said he would rather not. That is perfectly natural. He will answer if I instruct him to answer.

Go ahead and ask the next question.

Mr. Myron: A question is pending.

The Witness: How many have I given?

Presiding Inspector: He had better give the names. [3520]

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Do you want to stop at nine?

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

A. Well, one is Mrs. Virginia Reynolds.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Who is she?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. The wife of an assistant professor at Reed College.

Q. Who else?

A. Well, I am not quite sure who it was, that this meeting—it was a meeting of the, let me see, the Spanish Refugee Relief Campaign, and Wilmot's name somehow or other came up, not in the discussion, but in the preliminary discussion.

Q. I am not asking you about the discussion, but the names of the persons.

Mr. Grossman: Just one moment. It is quite obvious he is going to explain it was one of several and he was explaining why——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Let him name one of the seven.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead and name them. If you cannot name them describe them.

A. (Continuing) One of those present at that meeting was Mrs., no, Miss K. L. Trevett—T-r-e-v-e-t-t.

I am trying to think of all who were there. [3521]

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Who was she?

A. She was formerly a teacher, I believe, in the Catlin School. She is an elderly lady.

Q. What is the name of the school?

A. Catlin—C-a-t-l-i-n—School. It is a fashionable girls' school in Portland.

Q. Now, you talked to her at what time—at a certain meeting that was held, is that true?

A. That is right. I overheard, I might say, and then asked a question, and——

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. (Interposing) Of course, I don't want to know anything about the conversation. I want the name of the person and the place.

A. There were three or four people talking and it is hard for me to remember.

Q. You overheard a conversation, is that it?

A. No. I actually came into the conversation and asked a question.

Q. It was at this meeting—where was that held?

A. That was in the office of the Portland Spanish Refugee Relief Campaign, which was in the Guardian Building, I think.

Q. Were you there in an official capacity?

A. Yes. [3522]

Q. As a newspaper man?

A. No. I was on the Committee.

Q. On the Committee?

A. Yes,—on whatever it was that they had.

Presiding Inspector: A member of the group?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. What kind of an organization was that?

A. Well, from the time that I became active in it until it more or less folded in Portland, money was raised for Spanish Refugees in France, those 400,000 or more that flooded across the border after the war was over in Spain, and I became interested in it first when I was asked to chair a meeting, after several other people had refused, and I usually get my dander up on such things, and I said I would chair it at that time.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Were these Loyalist Refugees?

A. Yes; Loyalist Refugees. The meeting speaker was Eric Muggerage—M-u-g-g-e-r-a-g-e—I am not sure but I think that is the spelling, who was a young Englishman representing the Duchess Atholl Committee for Refugee Children; and I know we persuaded a great many people to adopt these children, and we had certain meetings, and for a while we had an Executive Secretary who went out and raised money and we sent that on to New York and to France. [3523]

Q. Did you participate in the organization of this Committee?

A. Mainly merely by going to committee meetings, and I didn't go to very many.

Q. Who organized the Spanish Refugee Relief?

A. It had been going for a long time before I came to Portland, not in the form of Spanish Refugee Relief, but it had been the same group, the Medical—I don't know—Bureau for Medical Aid, or something of that sort—Medical Bureau.

Q. Is this a Communist front organization?

A. Not as far as I know. In fact, I sincerely doubt if it is.

Q. Did you investigate it at all before you joined? A. Not very thoroughly.

Q. You know what a "Fellow Traveler" is, don't you?

Presiding Inspector: What?

Mr. Myron: A "Fellow Traveler".

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. Not exactly. I have never heard a definition of it.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Don't you know what that is in Communist parlance?

A. I hear the term thrown around a great deal, but I don't know exactly what it does mean.

Q. Would you say that the members of that organization were considered "Fellow Travelers"?

A. I would like to—— [3524]

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) Just a moment. The witness has stated he doesn't know what the words mean. I think he is entitled to a definition before the words are put into a question.

Mr. Myron: I will withdraw it.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. And who else did you talk to?

A. Who else?

Q. With whom else did you talk?

A. Coming back to that—Mrs. Mary Day.

Q. Who was she?

A. She was the wife of a man in Portland connected with the NYA—National Youth Administration. [3525]

By Mr. Myron:

Q. What is his position in the National Youth Administration?

A. I am not quite sure. I have not seen him for quite a long time and things have changed there. I mean, his position has changed.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Did you know him?

A. Yes, Uh-huh (Affirmative).

Q. And you knew his wife?

A. I knew his wife. She was connected with the Spanish Committee too. I knew her there.

Q. Who else?

A. There were several people around the CIO.

Q. CIO what?

A. The CIO offices in Portland. I went down there on this same thing and, as a matter of fact, I was looking for Wilmot and he was not there. In fact, I was told, if I remember correctly, that he wasn't working there any more.

Q. Who are the people you talked to?

A. I think—I think the first person I talked to down there was a person named Laux, or something like that. L-a-u-x. I know how to spell it. Ed Laux.

Q. L-a-u-x? A. Yes.

Q. Ed Laux? [3526]

A. Yes. I think he was the first person who mentioned that and I am trying to thing who was the secretary of that organization when I first came to Portland, and I can't. I talked to the secretary, whoever he was.

Q. The secretary of the CIO?

A. The secretary of the Portland CIO, whoever he was. You see, on this investigation I had to go to every source that possibly might—and I had been told that Mr. Wilmot knew a great deal about the Portland Red Squad and I was looking for him, which was how his name came up, and practically all these places I was told that there wasn't—although he had known a great deal, there wasn't much point in talking to him because he was—although what he probably had known or would know might have been of some use to me, evidently it wouldn't be of use because his general reputation for veracity wasn't very good.

Q. Now, did you talk to anybody else?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Well, that includes the name of all those persons you talked to?

A. Well, there might be one or two others that I can't think of.

Q. And you talked to all these people in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation in the community?

A. That came up sooner or later. [3527]

Q. I say——

A. (Interposing) Either they said something about it or I asked them.

Q. Were these people talked to separately or in a group?

A. Certainly not in a group. I thought I made that clear. I was going around from place to place.

Q. You mentioned one meeting in which you discussed Wilmot's character and reputation.

A. Wilmot's character came up because——

Q. (Interposing) Were there any other persons that you talked to? Say, for instance, Cris

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Boesen. Was he alone at the time you talked to him?

A. No, I am pretty sure he wasn't.

Q. Who was with him?

A. I as not sure whether Mr. Green was in there at the time or not, this boy Richie Scholz, was with me. He took me there, and introduced me to Mr. Boesen.

Q. Those were the only persons present, is that right?

A. As far as I know. This was almost three years ago.

Q. Three years ago?

A. Almost. I say "almost". It was in the fall of, as I said earlier——

Q. (Interposing) The fall of what? [3528]

A. The fall of—didn't I say '38 when I first went to Portland? Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Did you?

The Witness: Yes, I think so.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Was it the fall of '38? A. Yes.

Q. Is that the way you want to leave it?

A. Yes. I might say that some of these people, the thing came up much later, as I indicated in answering this lawyer's questions.

Q. Let me ask you if you talked to Cris Boesen or Ritchie Scholz—is that it? A. Yes.

Q. (Continuing) ——Any time since the fall of 1938?

A. I have talked to Richie Scholz innumerable times. I stayed with him in Washington last summer.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. This is in regard to the character and reputation of Wilmot?

A. I am pretty sure that I talked to Richie Scholz either before or afterwards. I know that when we left I think we said something about it.

Q. On one occasion? On one occasion?

A. Oh, this is very hard for me to pin down so easily. [3529]

Q. Was it one or more than one?

A. I saw him during this period that I was gathering information on this organization in Portland, the Red Squad, so-called. I was seeing Richie Scholz almost every day.

Q. Now, you can answer my question. Was it once or more than onee that you talked to him in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation?

Mr. Grossman: Just a second! Just a second! Your Honor, the witness has indicated that it is impossible for him to state definitely whether it was——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Oh, I think he can state that himself.

Mr. Grossman: (Continuing) ——whether it was once or more than once, and I think he should be permitted to finish his answer and say why it is difficult.

Mr. Myron: I didn't ask for any information. I just asked the witness if he spoke to these people once or more than once in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: You can answer that.

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: You can differentiate between them if you wish to.

The Witness: Yes. I was explaining when he——

By Mr. Myron: [3530]

Q. (Interposing) You did speak to him more than once, is that it?

A. I was explaining——

Q. (Interposing) Well, now, there is no need to explain.

Presiding Inspector: Now, you include them all together?

Mr. Myron: No, no. I spoke of——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Do you mean each one of them?

Mr. Myron: He is speaking now of conversation he had with three people at one time, and I asked him if he had spoken to those people on more than one occasion.

Presiding Inspector: You mean all three?

Mr. Myron: Just those three people.

Presiding Inspector: Separately? He may have seen——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Any of those three people.

Presiding Inspector: Well, that I didn't get from your question.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

The Witness: Do you include among those three myself?

By Mr. Myron:

Q. No, you spoke to them.

A. I mean, you are saying, Did you speak to those three people? There were three people present.

Q. Let us take them individually. Take Mr. Boesen. [3531] How many times have you spoken to him in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation? A. I thought I said before——

Q. (Interposing) Now, answer it.

A. Once, I said. I said that some time ago.

Q. How many times did you speak to Mr. Scholz?

A. As I said, it is impossible to say. I was seeing him every day or off and on every day over a period of time.

Q. Was it once or more than once?

A. It was more than once.

Q. About his character and reputation?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times did you talk to Mrs. Sweet in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation?

A. Only once.

Q. How many times did you speak to Richard Newberger in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation?

A. I think he brought it up once.

Q. How many times did you speak to Clyde

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Wade in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation?

A. I think I explained in regard to both Wade and Monroe Sweetland that I was not sure which it was and it might have been both. They were both in and out of the office at the time I was there and it was—as far as I remember, only once did I ask about it. [3532]

Q. And how many times did you speak to Virginia Reynolds?

A. Once, I think. After all, Mr. Wilmot was not very important in my life, as I say.

Q. Well, he is important enough for you to come down here and testify regarding his character and reputation, wasn't he?

Mr. Grossman: He said that Mr. Wilmot wasn't important "at that time".

The Witness: That's right.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. Ask the next question.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. How many times did you speak to Mrs. Mary Day?

A. I think it was only once, and I checked with her the other day on the phone to see what I thought I remembered was correct.

Q. When did you check with her?

A. Saturday night.

Q. Last Saturday night.

Q. You called her on the phone?

A. That's right.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. For what purpose?

A. As I explained, to ask whether or not what I remembered—what I thought I remembered her having said about [3533] Wilmot was what she thought she remembered having said. Does that make it clear?

Q. Well, when did you know you were coming down here to testify?

A. I knew last Saturday afternoon.

Q. Who contacted you?

A. A man named Rodman in Portland.

Q. Who is he?

A. He is the Chairman of the Harry Bridges Defense Committee.

Q. In Portland? A. In Portland.

Q. Is he a member——

A. (Interposing) He isn't the Chairman. I guess he is the secretary or something.

Q. Did you know him before he contacted you?

A. Yes.

Q. Saturday? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. Since about the—I think its the first week in March of this year.

Q. How did you become acquainted with him?

A. Well, I am the Chairman of a civil liberties organization in Portland called The Portland Emergency Council for [3534] Democratic Rights. You probably know that. And Mr. Rodman was at that time writing a CIO news broadcast which came over KXL and which was in effect banned from the air at that time, and he wrote me a note and then called me up on the phone because I hadn't answered it and asked me to come down and, needless to say, we protested such a banning. But they asked—the first time I ever saw him he asked me to come down to a meeting of their radio committee on a Monday night at which they were to discuss the problems in connection with this banning.

Q. And when was this?

A. I think it was the first week in March. I would have to have documents.

Q. And you have been friendly with him since that time? A. Yes.

Q. You have seen him on numerous occasions?

A. I wouldn't say "numerous". I contributed something to the defense fund for Harry Bridges, and——

Q. (Interposing) Now——

A. (Interposing) What?

Q. Was he one of the persons with whom you discussed Wilmot's character or reputation?

A. No.

Q. He wasn't? [3535]

A. No. I might say I discussed merely, oh, I thing after Mr. Wilmot had testified here I mentioned to him that I remembered some of the things that were said about Wilmot when I first came to Portland.

Q. I think you testified that Wilmot didn't mean much to you at the time in 1938 when you heard these things? A. That's right.

Q. When did he start to begin to mean a great deal to you?

Mr. Grossman: If at any time.

A. Yes. I don't think he does today.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, counsel shouldn't interject.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is perfectly obvious. I will let it stand.

A. (Continuing) As I say, I don't think he means much to me now.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Well, you remember, you say from 1938, the fall of 1938, when you heard these things discussed regarding Wilmot's character and reputation up to March, 1940, Wilmot didn't mean a thing to you?

A. Sure.

Q. And those things that were said at that time?

[3536]

A. I wouldn't say "a thing". He didn't mean much.

Q. And those things that were said at that time didn't leave any impression in your mind?

A. Not very firm. I am generally interested in personalities and so on, and about many people I find myself laying aside little facts, bit by bit, that all mount up in a general picture.

Q. Well, how does it happen that you came down here to testify about these things?

A. Because I was asked to.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. By whom? A. Mr. Rodman.

Q. Did he know that you had heard these things, various discussions about Wilmot's character and reputation?

A. Yes. I think, as I said a few minutes ago or a few moments ago, I had mentioned to Mr. Rodman that after Wilmot testified in this court that I had heard various things about him.

Q. You told Mr. Rodman that at that time. What was the occasion for telling him that in March or April, whenever it was?

A. This was not in March or April.

Q. When was this?

A. This was, oh, within the last two weeks. It is a little hard for me to say. It may have been—I think it [3537] was possibly—I went down to the Harry Bridges Defense Committee offices to pick up 250 copies of Dalton Trumbeau's pamphlet on Mr. Bridges, which my organization was enclosing in a circular which went out last Monday.

Q. What is your organization?

A. I was telling you a moment ago.

Presiding Inspector: He may not be able to identify it.

The Witness: Oh, I am sorry.

Presiding Inspector: You spoke of a number of organizations.

The Witness: Yes. This is The Portland Emergency Council For Democratic Rights.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Go ahead. You were explaining.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. Oh, merely that I was down there to pick up these 250 pamphlets which we mailed out this last week along with our own regular circular and our regular news letters and, oh, I was talking over, asking him questions about how this case was going.

Q. Asking who?

A. Mr. Rodman, the same man.

Q. And you volunteered this information to Mr. Rodman? A. Sure.

Q. You told him about what you knew or what you thought?

A. No. I merely mentioned at that time that, when we [3538] were talking about—he was talking about Wilmot, I believe, that——

Q. (Interposing) Did he ask——.

A. (Continuing) I said something like that. No, I said something like this: "Oh, I remember about him. I remember people talking about him some long time ago, sometime ago".

Q. That was about two weeks ago?

A. I think it was a week ago last Wednesday, but I am not absolutely sure. It was one of those afternoons.

Q. You testified two weeks ago. Do you want to change that?

A. Did I say—I said "about" two weeks ago.

Q. About two weeks ago?

A. I thought I said "earlier than a week ago."

Q. Do you want to make it definite now, about a week and a half?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. I thought I said "earlier"; around a week ago Wednesday.

Q. Now, after that occasion did you see Mr. Rodman again? A. Yes, I did.

Q. When?

A. In a lawyer's office on Friday morning,—last Friday morning. [3539]

Q. What was the name of the lawyer?

A. Irving Goodman.

Q. How did you go to his office?

A. By car and walking.

Q. Well, did you get a telephone call requesting you to come to the office?

A. Yes, I did. Mr. Rodman called up and asked that I come.

Q. And you went to Mr. Goodman's office?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Rodman there?

A. Mr. Rodman was there part of the time.

Q. And was Mr. Fitzgerald there? A. No.

Q. Mr. Fitzgerald wasn't there?

A. I don't—I know the Mr. Fitzgerald that you are referring to, the one that was mentioned, I believe, in this hearing.

Q. Well now, I am asking you if Mr. Fitzgerald was in the office at the time that you were there with Mr. Rodman.

Presiding Inspector: We hadn't heard about Mr. Fitzgerald from him.

Mr. Myron: I am asking him——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I know,

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

but he wants to be sure that it is the Fitzgerald that you are speaking of. [3540] Was any man named Fitzgerald there?

The Witness: Not as far as I know.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Mr. Kenneth Fitzgerald was not there?

A. Not as far as I know.

Presiding Inspector: Not as far as he knows, he says.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Have you seen and talked with Mr. Kenneth Fitzgerald in the past two weeks? Do you know him? A. No.

Q. You don't know Mr. Fitzgerald?

A. I said I didn't.

Mr. Myron: I am going to start a new subject matter.

Presiding Inspector: Bring him a drink of water.

Mr. Del Guercio: We have no objection——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) I am going to start a new subject matter. I thought we might recess here.

Presiding Inspector: I want to leave promptly at 4:00. I have a dentist engagement.

Mr. Myron: May we stop now?

Presiding Inspector: Of course, I don't want to go there.

Mr. Myron: May we stop here?

Presiding Inspector: If you would like to stop here; yes. Very well, tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

(Whereupon, at 3:55 P.M. an adjournment was taken to Tuesday, May 13, 1941, at 10:00 A.M.) [3541]

[3542]

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: Mr. MacGregor was on the stand when we closed yesterday.

Mr. Grossman: Yes. Your Honor, probably it is the desire to put on Dr. MacMickle and get this over with.

Presiding Inspector: All right.

Mr. Grossman: Because I presume that won't take very long.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know. Call him.

VIRGIL MacMICKLE

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I made a statement yesterday that we would get the original application for license. We were unable to get that without subpoenaing the person, and we couldn't do that, so we got a photostatic copy of the application, application for examination, State of Oregon, to the Naturopathic Board of Examiners.

(Whereupon the document referred to was passed to Alien's counsel.)

Cross Examination (Resumed)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. MacMickle, I will show you what purports to be a photostatic copy of an application for examination, State of Oregon, Naturopathic Board of Examiners, the application received at the office of the Secretary of the Naturopathic [3543] Board of Examiners on the 27th day of August, 1927, and ask you if you recognize this?

A. (Examining document) Yes.

Q. Is that a true photostatic copy of the original aplpication? A. Well, I wouldn't know that.

Q. Well, examine it and see.

A. Well, as near as I can see—I am not an expert on photostatic copies.

Q. Is that your signature appearing on the bottom of the second page?

A. Yes, sir; that is my signature.

Mr. Del Guercio: I offer this in evidence, if your Honor please, as Government's Exhibit next in order.

Presiding Inspector: Received without objection.

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

(The document referred to was received in evidence and marked Government's Exhibit No. 263.) [3544]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mr. MacMickle, this application was filled out in your own handwriting, was it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. This application states that you attended the MacFadden and American College of Naturopathy two years each, years four. Did you make such a statement on this application?

Mr. Grossman: Just one moment. I think the answer already given answers this question. The doctor stated that he believes this is his application.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will withdraw that question.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you attend MacFadden and American College of Naturopathy two years each?

Mr. Grossman: I object on the ground it has been asked and answered several times.

Presiding Inspector: I think it has been answered. I think he said he didn't. If he wants to change it——

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I think there is something in the record that should be cleared up. I went over the transcript of this witness. Yesterday, in answer to that question, he said "That is what my diploma shows." Now, I think we are entitled to get an answer from him.

Presiding Inspector: Well, he said yesterday

very definitely that he spent twelve months, that he was away three [3545] months of that year.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't believe he answered——

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes, he said that. I recall it very definitely, in the Chicago institution, and that the time in the New York institution might have been six months, or he couldn't tell exactly the length of time.

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Now, that was your testimony, wasn't it?

The Witness: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: If I am wrong about it——

The Witness: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: Because I am giving it from memory.

The Witness: Well, that is right; that is the way I gave it.

Presiding Inspector: That is the way he gave it. I think that is very definite, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: Very well.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did the American College of Naturopathy, New York City, issue degrees?

A. Yes, they issued a degree.

Q. What kind of a degree?

A. Doctor of Naturopathy.

Q. Is that a degree? [3546]

A. That is a degree.

Q. Is the College of Naturopathy authorized to issue degrees under the laws of the State of New York?

(Testimony of Virgil MacMickle.)

Mr. Grossman: I object to that as calling for the conclusion of the witness on a question he obviously is not qualified to answer.

Presiding Inspector: I don't suppose he knows, but if he knows, why, he may state it.

Can you answer that?

The Witness: I wouldn't know, no.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, Mr. MacMickle, you know, do you not, that under the laws of the State of New York the American College of Naturopathy cannot issue degrees of any kind?

Mr. Grossman: I object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and argumentative.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. No, I don't know it.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: Any questions?

Mr. Grossman: No more questions.

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Del Guercio: May we substitute a photostatic copy [3547] of Government's Exhibit No. 263?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. You asked that be permitted.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

You may not have heard. There was a substitution of certain photostatic copies which we had already——

Mr. Grossman: Yes, that is all right.

Presiding Inspector: Call the next witness. I suppose, Mr. MacGregor.

Mr. Grossman: Mr. MacGregor. [3548]

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross Examination (Resumed)

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Mr. MeGregor, you spoke yesterday of the Portland Emergency Council for Democratic Rights.

A. Yes.

Q. And you spoke of being a member of that organization? A. Yes.

Q. When was that organization formed?

A. A little over a year ago.

Q. Were you instrumental in the formation of that organization? A. Very decidedly.

Q. Was any other person interested in the formation of it with you?

A. I think several other people; yes.

Q. Who were they?

A. A Mrs. Sinclair—S-i-n-c-l-a-i-r.

Q. Where does she live?

A. In Portland. It is hard to say exactly—the thing was formed somewhat spontaneously as a result of, or after I wrote an article on this rather shocking Red Squad in Portland, and—— [3549]

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. (Interposing) I asked you who was instrumental in the formation of this organization.

A. I was saying that certain of the people who were more or less instrumental in it in the beginning were no longer active after the organization was formed.

Q. Well, who were the persons that were instrumental in the beginning of the formation of it besides Mrs. Sinclair? I think you mentioned her as one and you as another. A. Yes.

Q. Who were the others?

A. Oh, a Mrs. Beatrice Stevens.

Q. Where does she live?

A. She lives in Portland. And Allan Hart was very interested in it, and so on—Gus Solomon, who was a lawyer in Portland.

As I started to explain, we had a meeting, got together and talked——

Q. (Interposing) I didn't ask you any question.

Presiding Inspector: No question is pending.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Are those the only persons that you can remember?

A. Well, that is all I can recall at the moment.

Q. Now, is that organization still in existence?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that organization interested in the defense of [3550] Harry Bridges in this case? You can answer that "Yes" or "No".

A. I think that we have taken no stand on anything that we, ourselves, have published yet, but we did distribute these pamphlets about which I spoke yesterday.

Q. Are you an officer of the organization?

A. Yes; I am Chairman of it.

Q. Chairman? A. Yes.

Q. Are there any other officers?

A. Yes; there are some Vice Chairmen.

Q. Who is the Vice Chairman?

A. There are two Vice Chairmen; one is Miss Jessie Short.

Q. Where does she live?

A. She lives in Portland. And Roger Chase, Jr.

Q. Where does he live?

A. Also in Portland.

Q. Are there any other officers?

A. He was one of those, by the way, that helped organize it.

There is an Executive Committee, which includes Ronald Calvert, Jr., Mrs. Charles McKinley, Mrs. Sinclair—I can't recall them all off-hand.

Q. Is that all you can recall?

A. Off-hand. [3551]

Q. Now, you stated yesterday, I believe, that you went to the Bridges Defense Committee to secure copies of Dalton Trumbeau's pamphlet on Harry Bridges? A. That is right.

Q. For distribution by this organization, is that true? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Did you do that of your own—without any instructions from the organization?

A. The organization as such is set up so that I am empowered——

Q. (Interposing) You can answer that "Yes" or "No".

Presiding Inspector: I will allow him to explain.

A. Our organization is so set up that I have the power to do such things. However, I did discuss it with several members of the Executive Committee.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. And they all agreed to your going down and securing these pamphlets and distributing them?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you distribute personally these 250, or did you pass them out to other members for distribution?

A. It was sent out to our mailing list.

Q. To members of the organization or to other persons?

A. Some of them were to other persons.

Q. And you supervised this work of mailing these pamphlets out to various people? [3552]

A. Yes.

Q. I think you stated yesterday that you contributed money to the Bridges Defense Committee?

A. Yes.

Q. How much did you contribute?

A. $2.00.

Q. When was that contribution made?

A. Oh, possibly—it is hard to remember—I gave cash and so I wouldn't have a check stub.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Well, was it a week ago, or two weeks ago, or a month ago?

A. I think it was possibly three or four weeks ago.

Q. About three or four weeks ago?

A. Yes; something of that sort.

Q. Was that the only contribution you made?

A. That is right.

Q. To whom did you make this contribution?

A. To Mr. Rodman.

Q. Mr. Rodman? A. Yes.

Q. Now, have you been interested in any other way in the Bridges Defense?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Let me ask you this: Are you a member of the Bridges Defense Committee in Portland? [3553]

A. No.

Q. Or at any other place, in California?

A. No.

Q. And you haven't done anything else in connection with the Bridges defense? A. No.

Q. Except testify here?

A. Yes. I attended a couple of meetings; one meeting at which it was discussed.

Q. What meeting was that?

A. There was a luncheon out at Reed College at which a young woman spoke on Harry Bridges.

Q. Was this a meeting of an organization in Reed College?

A. I think it was a student organization of some sort. I don't know quite what organization, if it was an organization.

Q. You are a teacher at Reed College, aren't you?

A. I am.

Q. And you attended a meeting there at the College of the student body, or part of the student body, and you don't know what organization it was?

Mr. Grossman: I object to the question as argumentative.

Presiding Inspector: It shows his attitude. I don't see any implication in it. I will take it. I think the witness is capable of taking care of himself.

A. There are continual meetings at Reed College, luncheon [3554] meetings, and so on——

By Mr. Myron:

Q. (Interposing) I don't want to know about any other meetings.

A. (Continuing) Well, somebody merely told me this person was going to speak on Harry Bridges and wouldn't I like to come and listen.

Q. Who told you that? A. A student.

Q. What was his name?

A. I think it was Douglas Smith—I am not exactly sure.

Q. Does he represent any organization at Reed College? A. Not as far as I know.

Q. Is he a member of any organization up there? A. Probably.

Q. Do you know?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. I don't know. I think practically all students are members of various organizations.

Q. You don't know whether he is a member of any organization, is that right, of your own knowledge? A. I wouldn't say definitely; no.

Q. And you don't know who was in charge of this meeting, is that right?

A. I don't even know who was Chairman of it. I came in late and it was already very well in progress. [3555]

Q. Where was it held?

A. I think it was in the Blue Room, which is a dining room off the main Commons at Reed College.

Q. Was it necessary to have authority from the Professors of the College before they could hold a meeting of this type?

A. I don't think it is.

Q. It is not necessary?

A. No. I have never heard of that ruling.

Q. Then they can hold various meetings in the halls of the College without any authority from the officials of the College?

Mr. Grossman: I object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: That is repetition.

Mr. Grossman: I don't think we are trying Reed College theories or rules.

Presiding Inspector: I have been doubtful about what we have been trying at times. I will take this particular answer. I think it is merely repetition.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

The Witness: Could you repeat your question?

Mr. Myron: Read the question.

Presiding Inspector: Let the reporter read it.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.) [3556]

A. I would say it is very difficult for me to say, because I have never heard of such a ruling, but I know of certain occasions when meetings have not been held at the College because the Administration at the College objected, or the Student Council objected. [3557]

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Now, the Portland Emergency Council for Democratic Rights, is that affiliated with any national organization?

A. Yes, it is affiliated with the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties.

Q. And where is the headquarters of that organization? A. In Washington, D. C.

Q. Do you know who organized the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties?

A. Yes, I was at the meeting at which it was organized in Washington.

Q. Did you represent an organization at that time or an affiliate?

A. I represented my organization which was not affiliated with it at that time.

Q. Did you take part in the organization of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties?

A. A very small part, yes.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Were you a delegate?

A. I was delegated from my organization, yes, to a conference. It was not—it was a conference on constitutional liberties.

Q. When was that held?

A. It was in the first or second week of June, 1940.

Q. And who were some of the organizers of that organiza- [3558] tion?

A. Oh, I think his name is A. J. Isserman, I-s-s-e-r-m-a-n. I am not sure, but I think that Mr. Carey McWilliams had something to do with it. As I say, it is very hard for me to remember the people from Washington with whom I had so much correspondence. I believe that Mr.—what is his name—Smith who was on the N.L.R.B. had something to do with it.

Q. Were you a sponsor of this organization?

A. I was, yes. I think I still am.

Q. Did you meet Mrs. King there?

A. I met Mrs. King at a couple of meetings. She didn't remember me yesterday.

Q. I say did you meet her in Washington?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. She was a sponsor, wasn't she?

A. I don't remember whether she was a sponsor or not. I met her there but she didn't remember me yesterday.

Q. Are you a member of the Communist Party, Mr. McGregor? A. No.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Have you ever at any time been a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Have you been employed by the Communist Party? A. Certainly not. [3559]

Q. Where were you in 1935? A. 1935?

Q. At any time during the year 1935 and '36?

A. I was in Russia, I think, at that time.

Q. What were you doing in Russia?

A. Well——

Q. Now, what were you doing? Were you employed in Russia?

A. I was employed in Russia.

Q. By whom?

A. Several magazines and by—I wrote publicity for Intourist, or re-wrote publicity. I did a good deal of editing and translating and so on. I was also working, or doing work for the New Republic, which was the main reason I went there.

Q. Working for whom?

A. A magazine in New York called the New Republic.

Q. Is that all the work you did in Russia?

A. Oh, I also taught English and English Literature at a part—I think it was a part of Moscow University called the Electro-technical Institution.

Q. Well, now, that is a government institute, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is run by the Communist Party, isn't it? A. As I understand things—— [3560]

Q. (Interposing) Well, now, is it or isn't it?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. I think not. You asked if I was employed by the Communist Party, didn't you?

Q. Now I am asking you whether you were employed by the University of Moscow?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And that is a Communist University, isn't it?

A. Not specifically. They have universities which they call Communist.

Q. Well, isn't this a government university?

A. Yes, it is a government university.

Q. And isn't the government of Russia Communist? A. Yes, they say so.

Q. Well, then, you were employed by the Communist Party of Russia, weren't you, as a teacher at this university?

Mr. Grossman: Just one moment. If this question, as it seems to, purports to recapitulate the testimony of this witness I think it assumes something not in evidence because the testimony of this witness has made some distinction, as Mr. Myron's questions have, between the Communist Party and the government of Russia.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whether it does.

Mr. Grossman: Now, Mr. Myron is attempting to bridge that step as if this witness had bridged it himself, stating that he was employed by the Communist Party. Now, that doesn't summarize——

[3561]

Mr. Myron (Interposing): I don't know if Mr.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Grossman wants to testify in this case. I don't think he has made an objection to the question.

Presiding Inspector: He has made an objection. I will hear him. He has made an objection. He is arguing the objection.

Mr. Grossman: Yes, I did. I say if it attempts to summarize the testimony of this witness I think it is an improper question because I think it improperly summarizes.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please—

Presiding Inspector: I have already ruled and allowed the question.

Read the question, if you want to have it read.

The Witness: Please, could I have the question?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. I would say, from my understanding, that I was employed by an organization which may have had connections with the Communist Party, or the government, maybe controlled by the Communist Party, but directly I was not employed by the Communist Party, as far as I know.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. How long a time were you in Russia?

A. I think it was almost a year and a half.

Q. During what period of time?

A. Well, I got there early in—I think it was early in [3562] 1935 and I left in June of 1936.

Q. How did you receive your appointment to this university?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. With a great deal of difficulty.

Q. Well, now, I am asking you how?

A. They didn't like me very well and I had to see all sorts of people, and so on, and finally——

Q. (Interposing): How did you go to Russia?

A. By way of London and Helsinki.

Q. For what purpose did you go to Russia?

A. I would say I had three purposes. I had been working for a—could I have some water, please?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Mr. Moore, will you get some water for the witness?

A. I had been working for a publishing firm in New York called Harcourt Brace & Company as an assistant editor and the job I had was free, or I got the job there because a young man had had to leave. He was sick; he had infantile paralysis, and he came back.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. This is about your job in New York?

A. This is about going to Russia. He came back and so the trade department of Harcourt Brace was over-staffed at that time. They kept assuring me that they wanted me to stay on, but on the other hand, I knew that my salary, which was [3563] forty or forty-five a week, was an added and extra expense, and after a time I decided that I should leave somehow or other. Then, I had been abroad a couple of times before in summers and I decided that that——

Q. (Interposing): To Russia?

A. No, I had never been to Russia before. I had decided that I would like possibly to go abroad again before I settled down definitely and see something more of the world. I made a very careful survey of—since I didn't have enough money to live abroad indefinitely I made a fairly careful survey of the possibilities of jobs in European countries. And at that time, I think that you will remember because of unemployment and the depression, most countries of Europe had restrictions on employment of non-citizens, non-citizens of their own countries. I even had some correspondence with a girl who had been an executive in Macey's, New York, the big store, and who was employed by Selfridge & Company in London. I had some correspondence with her about the possibilities of going to work in England, possibly for her organization, and that seemed to be more than difficult, et cetera, so that—in fact, it seemed practically impossible unless I could produce evidence that what I could do nobody else could do, or very few people could do. The same thing was true in France, of course, and Germany and Italy. Central Europe, I gather, was even more restricted, and you will probably remember that [3564] was the time when there were a great many books written about Russia and a great many people were reading about Russia and interested in Russia on all sides. I was told that I could gain employment in Russia if I went there.

(Testimony of Robert M.. MacGregor.)

Q. You were told by whom?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. Oh, I think that,—I think, as a matter of fact, Mr. Harcourt was one of the people.

Q. Mr. who?

A. Mr. Harcourt was one of the people who mentioned that.

Q. Mr. Harcourt?

A. He is President of Harcourt Brace; his name is Alfred Harcourt.

Q. Now, what kind of employment did he promise you in Russia?

A. I think that the question implies a little too much.

Presiding Inspector: What did he promise you?

The Witness: He promised me nothing obviously.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Well, who did?

A. Nobody promised me anything.

Q. And you went to Russia without any idea of securing employment there, is that it?

A. I went to Russia with the thought that possibly I could secure employment. I also went with a letter from one [3565] of the editors of the New Republic, saying that I was commissioned to collect material and work for them in Russia.

Q. What was the name of the editor?

A. Malcolm Cowley, C-o-w-l-e-y.

Q. To whom was the letter addressed?

A. "To whom it may concern."

Q. And signed by the editor?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. Signed by Cowley, yes.

Q. Did you use that letter in securing employment in Russia?

A. I certainly did, yes; not in securing employment, I used it as identification at the foreign office in order to get passes to witness various things in Russia and so on, just as any correspondent does.

Q. Now, where did you leave from in the United States to go to Russia? A. New York.

Q. This was when?

A. It is again a little hard to give the date of a sailing.

Q. Approximately?

A. I think it was either the end of December or the beginning of January; I think it was the beginning of January. That would have been 1935.

Q. And did you secure a passport? [3566]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you state the purpose for which you were traveling to Russia?

A. I don't think that is necessary on a passport.

Q. Well, I am asking you did you state?

A. Not as far as I know.

Q. And what name did you use?

A. My own.

Q. When did you arrive in Russia?

A. I wish I had that old passport here and I would be able to tell you exactly.

Presiding Inspector: Did you go directly?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

The Witness: What?

Presiding Inspector: Did you go directly?

The Witness: No; I spent almost four weeks, and maybe more, in England.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Then you didn't go directly to Russia, is that it? A. No.

Q. You went where first? A. England.

Q. How long did you spend in England?

Presiding Inspector: He said about four weeks. Go ahead; ask the next question. He said about four weeks.

By Mr. Myron: [3567]

Q. From England did you proceed to Russia?

A. From England I took a boat from Hull, a small Finnish boat that went around by Copenhagen and up into the Baltic and then up to Helsinki, which is in Finland. It stopped at Copenhagen.

Q. Now, when did you arrive in Russia approximately?

A. Oh, well, it must have been in February or March of 1935.

Q. And did you obtain employment at that time with the University of Moscow?

A. No; I was unemployed there for a long time, although I had—I was given or secured jobs of translating and so on.

Q. By whom?

A. Well, this one was secured for me by Herman Habbich, who is the representative of the United States Lines in Moscow.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

The Reporter: Spell it, please.

The Witness: H-a-b-b-i-c-h, I think.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. By whom were you employed?

A. I was not employed by anybody directly. There was a woman, whose name I can't even remember, who knew English quite well, or, at least, to speak it. She knew a great many languages and she was translating, I think, it was a series of [3568] speeches by Gorki, the Russian writer.

The Reporter: Spell it, please.

The Witness: G-o-r-k-i or G-o-r-k-y.

Presiding Inspector: We usually spell it with a "y".

The Witness: She was doing this translation, but her English needed more polishing up. She knew the sense, more or less, but——

By Mr. Myron:

Q. (Interposing): Then, she employed you, is that right? A. She employed me, yes.

Q. How long did you work for her?

A. It took us almost a month, I think, to do this translation, one of the most maddening months I have ever spent.

Q. This was about April or May, is that right, of '35? A. I think so, yes.

Q. Now, when did you become an instructor in the University of Moscow?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: Your best recollection?

A. I am pretty sure it was during this period.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. During the period that you were employed by this woman—— [3569]

A. (Interposing): I worked with her almost immediately after I arrived in Moscow, well, possibly about three weeks after I arrived in Moscow and, therefore, I would say that it was probably in March, and I began working at—while I was working for her I began teaching at the Electro-technical Institution.

Q. Who secured your appointment at that institution?

A. I wish I could remember his name; he was also a friend of this Herman Habbich and he was a German whom, I was told later, was—or whom I was told was later arrested as a German spy, or something of that sort.

Q. Now, how long did you work at the university?

A. I worked during that spring and until—there was a summer session, I think, and I gave lectures then until about September 19—when we left Moscow.

Q. September of what? A. 1935.

Q. 1935?

A. Yes; we left Moscow at that time. [3570]

Q. You were not in Moscow in 1936, is that right?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. Well, I might explain that we had to leave Moscow because of the perennial room trouble. There was a terrific shortage, and probably still is, of housing, and we had a room in an apartment rented from the people who owned the apartment.

Q. How long did you spend in Russia?

A. I said it was about a year and a half.

Q. During that time were you teaching, with the exception, now, of a few months after you came to Russia, were you teaching continuously at the University until you left?

A. Oh, no. I said I left the University in September or, maybe, I guess it was in October, 1935.

Q. And where did you go from there?

A. Well, we wanted to——

Presiding Inspector: Just where you went.

A. (Continuing): O. K. We started a long tour around Russia, with the idea of possibly that we would go on to China if we didn't see anything, any place that looked as though it had better housing. We thought we ought to see more of Russia. So we started out and went to Crimea, and stayed for a while at Yalta—Y-a-l-t-a—which is a resort.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Did you do any work there?

A. No. Then we took a boat from there on the Black Sea, which went, skirted around the Black Sea and finally went to, [3571] landed at Batum—B-a-t-u-m—which isn't very far from the Turkish border.

Q. Were you doing any work at this time?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. No.

Presiding Inspector: In the Caucasuses.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. You were not employed? A. No.

Q. That is, from the time you left the University until the time you left Russia you were not employed, is that right?

A. I want to explain that we——

Q. (Interposing): Well——

Presiding Inspector: There is nothing to found that on. He may explain. He hasn't said that.

Mr. Myron: I think he said he was unemployed.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no; he hasn't said that. He may explain.

Mr. Myron: Let him explain.

Presiding Inspector: As I understood it, he wasn't employed at the University, but he has been doing odd jobs, writing and collecting material, and whether you call that employment or not it is very indefinite.

Now, I will let him explain what he did after this. If you are interested in this world travel, go ahead.

Mr. Myron: I am very much so, your Honor.

[3572]

Presiding Inspector: Then probably more than the Presiding Inspector is, but go ahead.

A. (Continuing): From Batum we went to Tiflis—T-i-f-f-l-i-s.

Presiding Inspector: That is in Georgia?

The Witness: The capital of Georgia. There we ran into people that we had met in Moscow, who were planning a walking trip into the Caucasuses.

We stayed there first in a tourist hotel there. I think we had been there three weeks before we actually went on this walking trip.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. My question was, were you employed at any time after you left the University?

A. After I left——

Q. (Interposing): Until you left Russia.

A. After I left the University I wrote numerous articles, if you want to call that employment.

Q. For whom did you write these articles?

A. I wrote one for a paper called the Moscow Daily News, which was so mascerated by the time it appeared it practically wasn't my article any more.

Q. That was part of the Russian press, is that right? A. Yes. It is in English.

Q. Did you submit this article to the press?

[3573]

A. Yes. I sent it on up to Moscow.

Q. And it was received?

A. It was received.

Q. And published under your name?

A. It was published under my name, but it was so re-written that it was practically unrecognizable.

Q. I didn't ask you that.

A. Well, I wanted to say that.

Q. Now, were you employed in any other capacity by the Russian press?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. I wrote some articles.

Presiding Inspector: Is that really a fair question? Was he employed by the Russian press or did he volunteer the article?

Mr. Myron: I think they published the article.

Presiding Inspector: You said "employed." It is confusing.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Let me ask you definitely: Were you ever employed by the Russian press?

A. Not as—I was never hired—wait a minute. I wrote a number of—no, I guess you can't call it employment. I was never employed by the Russian Press.

Q. You are sure?

A. Except—well, I worked for an organization, a [3574] magazine, in Moscow, during that same period. I had about five or six jobs and I was hopping around like a Russian flea. I never was on the rolls of this magazine because they were extremely suspicious of me and would never clear my papers.

Q. What magazine was that?

A. It was called International Literature. I did a good deal of editing work and drew a regular salary from it.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you were one of the editors of this magazine?

A. It depends on what you call "Editor".

Q. You can answer that. You have been in the newspaper business and you know what an editor is.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: We don't know whether you can answer it or not, but you can try.

A. I will explain what I did, if I may, or I will even explain why it was that I was not on the rolls.

I went to Moscow with a great many letters of introduction, and one of those I had was from Mathew Josephson, the author of "The Robber Barons," and several other books.

Mr. Myron: That is not responsive to the question.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Myron: I am willing to allow him to testify, but it is not responsive to the question.

The Witness: It will be, I think.

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. Let us hear what the [3575] question was.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: I will let him explain. Go ahead.

A. (Continuing): Anyway, I had several letters. I think possibly I had one from my immediate boss at Harcourt Brace. — H-a-r-c-o-u-r-t B-r-a-c-e.

Presiding Inspector: That is a publishing firm?

A. (Continuing): Whose name, if you want it, is Charles Pierce. He is now with Duell, Sloan and Pierce.

Anyway, he had some correspondence with a person named Walt Carmon in connection with translations, or possible translations of Soviet Literature, and Mathew Josephson not met, and I also had a letter from Malcolm Crowley, who had never met him, but had had some correspondence with him.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Carmon was the Editor of the English Edition of this International Literature.

Well, there were a couple of situations there, I believe, within the organization for political reasons, his own politics, or whatever you want to call it, within the organization, and he thought he ought to have an assistant, because the German and the French, and so on, all had fairly large staffs, and he was the only one in English.

Also, there was a considerable amount of detail work involved in the editing and in getting out of this magazine. It never seemed to get out on time.

Presiding Inspector: You are going far afield now. [3576]

The Witness: O.K.

Presiding Inspector: As a matter of fact, you were his assistant?

The Witness: I was his—but the point was that I was never officially his assistant. I went in every day and picked up proofs, and read proofs, and so on, and did the sort of——

Presiding Inspector: Was your name published on the magazine as an editor?

The Witness: I don't think so.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. By whom were you employed?

A. I was employed by Carmon himself, I think. At least, that is how I used to get my salary.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. You received your salary from him?

A. I did a couple of times. Then I——I have forgotten how it was written into the books, but it may have been written in as payment for certain specified work, but I got it from the, after the first two times, and then I was paid four or five months, and I got it from the cashier of the—whatever the organization was.

Q. This was a Russian magazine, wasn't it, a magazine of the Soviet Government?

A. It is a magazine, I suppose, published by the Soviet Government since everything there is. It is a magazine about literature throughout the world, translations from Chinese, [3577] Japanese, from Danish, and many very famous writers have appeared in its pages, such as Romain Rolland.

Q. When I asked you whether you were employed at any time by the Communist Party did you have these two employments in mind?

A. No, because neither are the Communist Party.

Q. Soviet Government?

A. I think you can see the distinction yourself.

Q. Well, is this University a part of the Soviet Government?

A. Possibly as the University of Oregon is part of the Government of Oregon; rather in the same relationship.

Q. Then you would be employed by the Soviet Government if you worked in this University, is that right?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. That is right; along with one hundred and eighty million other people.

Q. Then you were employed by the Soviet Government as an instructor at this Government University?

A. I was employed by this University.

Q. Now, the paper, this magazine that you worked for, was controlled and dominated by the Soviet Party in Russia, was it not?

A. As I understand it, there is no such thing as a Soviet Party.

Q. What do you understand is the controlling government [3578] in Russia?

Presiding Inspector: We call it the Communist Party.

A. "Soviet" means "council."

Presiding Inspector: We have never had the word "Soviet Party."

Mr. Myron: Soviet Government—the Communist Party.

Presiding Inspector: If you can distinguish them.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Well, it was controlled and dominated by the Communist Party in Russia, was it not?

A. What was?

Q. This magazine that you wrote for, edited.

A. If you are willing to say that everything in Russia is dominated by the Communist Party I would say it was, and——

Q. (Interposing) Wait a minute.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Mr. Grossman: Let him answer.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

A. (Continuing) It was published by an organization in Russia and I can't—it was the cultural—some sort of a cultural organization but I can't remember the name of it.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Do you know whether it was owned and operated by the Communist Party of Russia?

A. I know that the man who was the chief of it, chief of the organization, and the chief editor of all the editions, [3579] whose name was Dinamof—D-i-n-a-m-o-f—I think it is—whom I only met a couple of times, he was a Communist at that time and was later, I was told, arrested or prosecuted as a Trotzkyist.

Q. You say you were married——

A. (Interposing) I was married in Moscow.

Q. To whom?

A. Her name is Emma Louise Davis.

Q. Was she a Russian girl?

A. No. She comes from California.

Q. Did you travel to Russia with this girl?

A. No. She came later.

Q. Where were you married?

Presiding Inspector: In Moscow, he said.

A. I was married in a Marriage Bureau in Moscow and later it was registered at the American Embassy, the next day or the same day; the same day.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Is that the only time that you have left the United States?

A. No. I left it a number of times. You mean, for instance, going into Canada?

Q. Left the continent.

A. No. I have been abroad twice before.

Q. When—once to China and once to Russia, is that right? [3580]

A. That was the same trip to China and Russia. I went to a town called Tours, in France. I spent a summer at the Extension University of Poittiers—P-o-i-t-t-i-e-r-s.

Presiding Inspector: Just one "t."

A. (Continuing). Another summer I spent in—well, I traveled in a number of countries during these summers, but I spent most of this summer in a little town in the corner of Tuscany, in Italy, studying Italian.

Mr. Myron: May we have a short recess?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

By Mr. Myron:

Q. I believe you said that you represented the Intourist?

A. I didn't say I represented them. I think you are mistaken.

Q. Were you employed by them?

A. I did certain odd jobs for them.

Presiding Inspector: That is a travel agency of the Soviet Government?

The Witness: Yes—a foreign travel agency.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: I think we have had something about that from Mr. Gitlow. That is my impression.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. You knew that was a Communist organization, didn't you? [3581]

A. I wouldn't say it is any more a Communist organization than anything else in Russia.

Q. Were they the representatives of the Communist Party in the United States?

A. Never heard of it.

Q. Did you hear that they were prosecuted in Washington, D. C.? A. No.

Q. While you were an instructor at this Russian University were there any American students attending the University?

A. I can't say as far as the University was concerned. It is very large. I had no—obviously, I would have no American students in my classes.

Q. Did you know of any American students coming from America attending the University while you were an instructor there?

A. The University of Moscow?

Q. That is right.

A. I am pretty sure there were some, but I don't think I knew them, at least in the University of Moscow.

Q. Did you teach at the Lenin School?

A. No.

Q. Do you know where the Lenin School is in Russia?

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. Not as such. It seems to me that I remember hearing about a Marx-Lenin-Stalin Institute, or something like that.

Q. Was that in Moscow? [3582]

A. It seems to me it is in Moscow.

Q. Was it a part of this University?

A. No; separate, I am pretty sure.

Q. Did you consult with any members of the Russian Embassy, or Consulate offices in the United States before traveling to Russia?

A. I went around to the Soviet Consulate in New York, but I can't remember who was there, I can't even remember much about the building. I talked to some, evidently, rather minor official who told me that the way I was going to Russia I would probably have difficulties in that I was going on a tourist visa, and that they were loath in Russia to change these visas.

Q. Did you receive a clearance from the Russian Consul?

A. I don't think so; no. What do you mean by "clearance"?

Q. Don't you know?

A. What do you mean by "clearance" in this case?

A. Did you receive permission of the Russian Consul in the United States——

Presiding Inspector: You mean a visa?

A. I received a visa; yes.

Presiding Inspector: That is all a person gets. Anyone will take judicial notice of that.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Did you receive any letters from the Russian Consular [3583] Office?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. In the United States? A. No.

Q. No letters at all?

A. Not as far as I know.

Q. No introductory letters?

A. No introductory letters.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. I had a letter to somebody in the Consulate there and I don't think I saw him.

Q. I am asking you if you received any letters from the Consular office in the United States addressed to anybody in Russia?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Do your know?

A. I can't remember everything I took with me, but I think it is fairly safe to say "No."

Q. You are sure of that?

A. If I had—no, I certainly didn't—you say from the Consulate?

Presiding Inspector: What he wants to know is whether you had any documents you took with you from any officials of the Soviet Government in this country, from the Ambassador, or any of his staff, or from any of the Consuls anywhere, except [3584] the visa?

A. I think not. As I say, I was there, as I remember, in the Soviet Consulate in New York for not more than 15 minutes.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: Getting your visa?

The Witness: No. That was considerably before I went to Russia. I went there to inquire about the various—they have two different kinds of visas and I heard about that, and how one got them. I didn't get my visa myself. I think a travel agency——

Presiding Inspector: Intourist got it?

The Witness: No; some travel agent in New York.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Did you obtain your appointment to this University before you left the United States?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you receive a promise from anybody connected with the Russian government, or the Communist Party, that you would obtain this job as an instructor at this University before you left the United States? A. No, sir.

Q. What kind of a visa did you obtain?

A. I obtained what is known as a Tourist Visa, which comes with—you buy a tour with Intourist, and you get with that a tourist visa for about the length of time of your tour. [3585]

That was later changed into a—I don't know exactly what you call it. In Russian it is called "Vid Najitilstuo."

The Reporter: Spell it.

The Witness: I don't know as I can. Can we leave that out of the record?

Presiding Inspector: Write it in Russian characters and give it to the Reporter.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

(The name referred to was written on a slip of paper by the witness, as requested, and handed to the reporter; the name being spelled as indicated in the above answer.)

By Mr. Myron:

Q. What type of visa is it?

A. It is what all foreigners in Russia have to hold. I think the original one I had was renewable in three months. You have to renew it about every six months, or something of that sort.

Q. Are you allowed, under this temporary visa, to have employment in Russia?

A. Under this type of visa you are not allowed, as I remember, to have formal employment.

Q. Would you consider your position in the University as formal employment?

A. When I got the position in the University the University changed my visa.

Q. That was the reason for the change in your visa, is [3586] that right?

A. That is right. In order to have your passport changed—you have to have it changed—in order to have your passport changed you have to have some organization which will sponsor you or sponsor it.

Q. And it was the officials of this University that sponsored that change, is that right?

A. As I recall it was not exactly what you would call the officials. It was the head of my section; a mad little woman who kept running around like bees around a hive. I can't even remember her name.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Is that describing the woman?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Her official position, you mean?

A. Your wit amuses me.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that that be stricken out.

Presiding Inspector: I think it was justified by the question. I will let it stand.

Mr. Myron: I asked for the woman's official position.

Presiding Inspector: He described the woman to you as a mad little woman who kept running around like the bees around a hive.

Mr. Myron: That isn't describing her official position.

Presiding Inspector: You have her official position.

Mr. Myron: I am asking for her official position.

[3587]

Presiding Inspector: He already said she was the head of his section.

Do you want the Russian name?

Mr. Myron: I am asking for a further description, if that is his answer to the question.

Presiding Inspector: Didn't you hear his answer to that?

Mr. Myron: I did not.

Presiding Inspector: Probably we have gotten into a misunderstanding. But he said she was the head of his section or division, I don't know which.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

By Mr. Myron:

Q. What was your section or division of which she was the head?

A. Well, I don't know of any official name for it. It was within the Electro-Technical Institute. I think it was a section for the teaching of English.

Q. And she was the head of the department, is that right?

A. It wasn't precisely a department; it only had about three members, people, in it.

Q. What was her official position?

A. She was above me and that is all I know.

Q. And she secured this change in visa?

A. Well, I don't know who all it went through. You know in Russia everything has to be done with papers that have [3588] to be stamped, and I probably wasn't able——

Q. (Interposing) What did she have to do with the change?

A. She obviously——

Q. (Interposing) Do you know,—not "obviously",—what she did?

A. She possibly went to the head of the——

Q. (Interposing) Do you know,—not "possibly?"

A. (Continuing)—of the University.

Q. I am asking you for your own knowledge of what she did.

A. All I know is she gave me a paper, which I took to the, whatever it is, the passport division in Moscow, and after a period of a number of days I was issued one of these Vid Najitilstuo.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Did you request her to do this?

A. Certainly. I might say that this other organization, International Literature, would not sponsor me for a change in visa.

Q. Did they teach Communism at this University? A. Not in my classes.

Q. At the University?

Presiding Inspector: If he knows. We can almost take judicial notice of it.

Mr. Myron: If he knows.

A. It would depend on what you mean by "Communism." I [3589] am sure they taught all the things that they teach in all their universities, and so on.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Do you have your own definition of Communism? A. No. Do you?

Presiding Inspector: We must not do that.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor, please, I don't think that is proper.

Presiding Inspector: I have ruled it was not proper. [3590]

Mr. Myron: If the witness wishes to assume that attitude——

The Witness: (Interposing) What was the original question?

Presiding Inspector: We don't need any instruction from you, or the witness doesn't.

Now, you may answer the question. Go ahead.

The Witness: What was the question, please?

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. Well, the question is, then, do I have a definition of Communism? I have thought I had at various times and maybe I am a poor judge, or a poor procastinator because most of my definitions seem very soon to be upset.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Well, in accordance with your definition did they teach Communism, as you understood it, at the University?

A. They taught what is—as I—Communism is one of these——

Q. (Interposing) Well, as you understood Communism, did they teach it at the University?

A. Well, what I thought was Communism at that time they undoubtedly taught. I think that Communism is taught not only in special classes—I didn't know of any special classes where Communism was taught there, but it permeates a good deal of the teaching of history and that sort of stuff, I gather. [3591]

Mr. Myron: Now, I think the——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't think that is what Mr. Myron meant.

The Witness: Oh, were there any classes?

Presiding Inspector: I think he meant was there instruction in what we generally know as Russian Communistic doctrine—never mind the shades—with the idea of impressing the students with the soundness of their political philosophy.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

The Witness: I think undoubtedly that there was that type of instruction.

Presiding Inspector: That is what you meant, wasn't it, Mr. Myron?

Mr. Myron: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: I tried to make it clear.

Mr. Myron: That was very clearly put.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Now, I believe it was your testimony that the basis for your conclusion that Wilmot's character and reputation in the community for truth and veracity is bad is based on conversations which you had with about eight or nine people?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, is that the same basis for your conclusion that you would doubt Mr. Wilmot under oath?

A. That is right. [3592]

Q. And you don't know Mr. Wilmot?

A. I don't; I don't think I do.

Q. You never saw him, as far as you know?

A. As far as I can remember, yes.

Q. Are you a member of the, or have you at any time been a member of the American League for Peace and Democracy?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Are you now or have you ever been at any time a member of the League Against War and Fascism? A. No.

Q. Are you now or have you at any time been a member of the American Youth Congress?

A. No.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. Are you now or have you at any time been a member of the Young Communist League?

A. No.

Q. Are you now or have you at any time been a member of the Friends of the Soviet Union?

A. I am certainly not now. I think I joined just before I went to Russia, in Boston. The person who urged me to join was going to give me some letters of introduction and, I think, I may have joined it at that time.

Presiding Inspector: You think you did?

The Witness: I think I gave him a buck, or something like that, and he gave me a card. [3593]

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Now, what was the date?

A. What is the date?

Q. Of your membership in that organization?

A. I have not said exactly that I am a member of the organization. I vaguely remember having had some conversation about it anyway, and that would have been, probably when I was staying with my sister in Weston, sometime around Christmas, 1934.

Q. Are you still a member?

A. No, obviously not.

Q. Well, did you leave the organization?

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment!

I think that question is improper because the witness has made it clear he isn't sure he was a member. I don't think there is any basis for questions——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Did you take any formal steps to disconnect yourself with the organization? I will take it in that form.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

The Witness: No. If I ever was a member of it I wouldn't even know it existed today.

Presiding Inspector: You didn't know anything more about it after having this conversation and getting this card, if you did get a card?

The Witness: Yes, sir. [3594]

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Now, as I remember it, one of the persons with whom you talked in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation was a man by the name of Newberger. A. Yes.

Q. You knew Newberger, is that right?

A. Yes, I know him today.

Q. And you are positive now that you talked with him in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation? A. I can even remember the time.

Q. Well, now, are you positive that you have talked with him in regard to Wilmot's character and reputation?

A. I would like to say that——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You can answer that, I think.

The Witness: Yes, I am positive.

Mr. Myron: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: Any further questions?

Mr. Grossman: Just a few questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you have any difficulty with—excuse me. Withdraw that.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

What did you teach at this Electro-technical, or whatever this institution was, in Moscow?

A. I started out to teach—somebody else had been [3595] teaching this course and it had proved unsatisfactory. Well, I think it was the 18th and 19th centuries of English Literature and I also had a class in advanced composition. After a couple of my lectures or it may be even after one of my lectures on the 18th and 19th centuries I was—there was a great to-do. I was told almost immediately that I was incompetent to teach there because I did not understand their Marxian approach to literature and they didn't like the things I was saying about such people as Stern and Smallot, and I didn't have an economic—I had an aesthetic approach, not an economic approach to the subject.

Q. Did you continue teaching the subject of literature or English Literature?

A. No, I was relieved of that and given more work in teaching merely composition which requires no political point of view.

Q. Were you relieved because of the criticism that had been made of what you were teaching in English Literature? A. I was removed——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, I object to that as being leading, not proper

---

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will take it. It is leading, of course, but I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Suggestive.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

The Witness: I was relieved obviously because of——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Very collateral. [3596]

Mr. Del Guercio: What?

Presiding Inspector: Very collateral.

The Witness: Because of the criticism both by students and others, and faculty members, but it was—I talked it over with them and explained that I knew nothing about their theories and so on, and so I was—so I left at that—I took more work in composition, as I say.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Before you left the United States to go to Russia what kind of a visa were you trying to get from the Russian Government?

A. There is what is called, I believe, a Consular visa, issued to certain foreigners, usually that the government wants to have there such as engineers and so on, and I knew of such a visa. The visa, evidently, is only really an entrance visa. As soon as you got there it has to be changed. And I thought that possibly because I had had a good deal of experience editing and writing and in publishing that I might be issued such a visa but I was told by, whoever it was that was there—and I can't even remember what he looks like—that such a visa would be out of the question for me. It was for engineers and technical advisors and so on.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I move the witness' answer be stricken as not responsive to the question. The question was what type of visa were you seeking.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: It was not altogether responsive [3597] but I will let it stand.

Mr. Grossman: I can ask another question to bring it in so we might as well leave it there.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see it is very material anyway.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. While you were in Russia did anything occur which indicated that the Soviet Government did not trust you?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please, as being too general, not proper redirect, and also suggestive.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: What?

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it. The whole part of the cross examination with respect to the trip in Russia was to show the intimacy of the relationship of this witness with the Soviet Government and the Communist Party, and so I think I will take this.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I——

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: It was only done for the purpose of showing what employment he had, if the Court will recall.

Presiding Inspector: But it went very far.

Mr. Del Guercio: The witness here did not at first re- [3598] collect being employed there in the University and then he——

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) No, he never said he was not employed in the University.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, he didn't at first say so. The record will show that he only recollected being employed after some thought.

Presiding Inspector: I don't so remember the testimony.

Mr. Grosman: He merely denied being employed by the Communist Party.

Presiding Inspector: I don't remember such testimony. It may be there.

Mr. Grossman: Do you remember my question?

The Witness: No. Could you read the question back to me?

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. I will restate it.

Did something occur which showed lack of confidence of the authorities toward you?

The Witness: Well, quite a number of things occurred. I can think off-hand of one example. This woman with whom I did the translation——

Mr. Del Guercio: May I interrupt? I don't think the question calls for that.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. All right, give your first example. [3599]

Presiding Inspector: No, it doesn't.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to giving any example.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

A. This woman with whom I did the translation—her husband had a job of some sort in the planning division of the Soviet Government and was very suspicious of his wife who was slightly rattle-brained.

Presiding Inspector: This is the same bee-hive lady?

The Witness: No, this is another one. The bee-hive lady was not rattle-brained exactly, but he somewhat disproved of most of her friends. And then we were going to do some more translation later—not that I would have had the time by then—but she told me that it was out of the question for her to work with me. Somebody had told her husband, and I gathered it was probably the secret police, or something of the sort, that I had been seen ri'' g around with members of, in cars with members of the American Embassy, which was perfectly true, and that seemed to make them suspicious, that I was untrustworthy. Furthermore, t[illegible]y—well, I think this example at the University there——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Well, if your Honor please, counsel asked for one example. Now, he has given one and I move that all of the witness' answer be stricken. We don't want any stories here. [3600]

Presiding Inspector: We have gone pretty far on the cross examination.

Mr. Del Guercio: I know, but every time——

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) How long have we taken on cross examination?

Mr. Grossman: I think it is quite obvious——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will take it. We don't have to have any discussion about it.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. All right, can you give another example?

Presiding Inspector: You have given one—you have given two.

The Witness: Yes. Within the organization International Literature, as I say, I was in constant turmoil trying to get them to take the responsibility for my visa and so on, and finally it was just about to come through—it was in September, 1935—and that they would take the responsibility of my visa, and, therefore, I wouldn't continue possibly teaching at the University because the University job, although it paid fairly well, the main thing about it to my advantage was that it gave my my visa. Anyway, it was just about to come through and we thought everything was settled and the papers were stamped and so on and I was to come around tomorrow. I came around the next day and I was told it was all off, they would not sponsor me, that my political record was not good [3601] enough for them to sponsor me. In fact, they indicated that they wouldn't even possibly continue with me in the organization as this rather informal assistant.

Mr. Del Guercio: I move that the witness' answer be stricken as not responsive.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand. It was not fully responsive but I will let it stand.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. When you were asked a question about Richard Newberger, whether he had ever discussed Wilmot's character with you, you wished to add something, I assumed, to clarify or give detail to your answer. Do you still wish to do so? What was that you wished to add?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, there was no indication that the witness wished to add something. He was asked plain questions as to whether he did discuss that with Mr. Newberger and his answer, you will probably recall, was "Positively."

Presiding Inspector: Yes, positively.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, there is nothing further to explain on that as counsel suggests.

Mr. Grossman: That was not his first answer, as your Honor will recall. He said—I believe he said "Might I say this about it", or something like that, and he was told [3602] that he had to answer it and he did answer it.

Presiding Inspector: I think there was some indication that he wanted to add something to the "positively". I will let him do it.

The Witness: I was merely going to say that Newberger was at my house in Portland, the one over on Waverly Heights, if you remember, and——

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) What?

Presiding Inspector: He was at his house.

The Witness: There were a number of people at the house and it was a sort of spontaneous—became very fast a spontaneous party; people were dropping in and Newberger and I—this was the first time I had ever seen him, but he was—he works, writes articles for Collier's Magazine, and Walter Davenport, who is one of the editors of Collier's, is an old friend of mine, and he had——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, I will object to this. We are getting into a story again.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, we are.

Is there really any point to this?

The Witness: I merely wanted to give the circumstances. We, as I remember, were out in the kitchen discussing a great many things and Wilmot—he mentioned Wilmot somehow or other and told me certain things.

Mr. Myron: I object to any conversation. [3603]

Presiding Inspector: I really don't believe there is anything in that answer.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, you see I didn't know what there was. All I know, the witness——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You don't think there was anything either?

Mr. Grossman: Well, there is more detail. If counsel for the Government wants detail, I think they ought to have the detail that hurts them even though they try to cut it short.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Mr. Myron: We haven't asked for detail. The witness voluntarily, every time he is asked a question, tells a story.

Presiding Inspector: He isn't unique in that respect. We have had it from the beginning of the case to the——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) I don't think this point should be dwelt on at all, if your Honor please. It isn't important enough.

Presiding Inspector: I think not. I think you have got all you need.

Mr. Grossman: No more questions.

Mr. Myron: Just one question.

Recross Examination

By Mr. Myron:

Q. This woman that you spoke of who stated to you that [3604] she couldn't any longer employ you, who was she?

A. Did I mention a woman?

Q. Yes. A. In connection with that?

Q. Well, did you?

Presiding Inspector: This was the one with the jealous husband?

The Witness: I might say she was not employing me. I object to that word somewhat.

By Mr. Myron:

Q. Well, didn't you state that as a result of a conversation with her that she no longer employed you?

A. I didn't say "employed". I said she no longer could work with me.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Q. You were working with her?

A. We were working on a sort of cooperative basis, she translating into English and I putting it into good English.

Q. Now, when was this? Was this the woman that you worked with immediately after your arrival in Russia? A. That is right.

Q. And as a result of this incident she stated to you that she could no longer work with you?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And as a result of that you got the impression that you were not in the good graces of the Communist Party? [3605]

A. Well, I gathered I was being followed or something of the sort.

Q. Now, subsequent to that you obtained employment as an instructor in the University of Moscow, is that true?

A. I would like to recapitulate——

Q. (Interposing) Well, now, answer that question. Was it subsequent to that time?

A. I was already an instructor by that time.

Q. You continued as an instructor in the University, is that right?

A. That is right, sure. I might say they don't trust all their 157,000,000——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) That is voluntary, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: Strike it out; strike it out. Don't volunteer. The next question.

The Witness: I am sorry.

(Testimony of Robert M. MacGregor.)

Mr. Myron: That is all.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

The Witness: Well——

Presiding Inspector: You are excused.

The Witness: Well——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) No, you are excused.

(Witness excused.)

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, before we call the [3606] next witness we would like to have a consideration, if we may, of this problem of character evidence because it presents a problem in the securing of future witnesses. We believe that the general——

Presiding Inspector: We will not accept direct general character evidence of good character where there has not been direct character evidence of bad character.

Mrs. King: In that connection may I call to your Honor's attention a case which I just recently unearthed of Edgington against United States which is 164 U.S.——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I am talking about character for truth and veracity.

Mrs. King: Yes. Well, could we broaden the thing on to the general problem of general good character?

Presiding Inspector: I haven't ruled on the general character. Of course, you can't produce evidence of that character of a witness, but in respect to a defendant in a criminal case you may also show evidence of good character.

Mrs. King: Yes, and now——

Presiding Inspector: But this is not a criminal case, though.

Mrs. King: Yes, and that is what the problem is, of expanding the rule of criminal cases.

Presiding Inspector: No. [3607]

Mrs. King: Into a case of this character.

Presiding Inspector: No, I couldn't do that because it doesn't make any difference. We can consider here that the Alien here is a man of the very best character—it has not been attacked—and he still may have—be subject to the penalties of this particular Act, with which we are interested, and still be a saintly individual.

Mrs. King: Well, with reference to its not yet having been attacked——

Presiding Inspector: I don't say it is necessarily so, but that is possible.

Mrs. King: The case of Edgington against the United States distinctly states—which was, of course, a criminal case——

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mrs. King: That evidence of good character is admissible even though the defendant doesn't testify and his character is not attacked.

Presiding Inspector: Well, of course, in a criminal case you may also show that the defendant is a person of good character because that raises the possibility within the decision of the trier of the facts that crime is not being committed by him, and in the Bonier case in New York they held that that alone was sufficient as a basis for a finding of reasonable doubt. [3608]

Mrs. King: Now, it seemed to us that in view of the highly penal character of deportation proceedings that it was appropriate that evidence of good character was admissible in such a proceeding, especially in view of the evidence introduced at the opening of this hearing as to the kind of person that a Communist was.

Presiding Inspector: Well, we will just hold it. I won't receive it now. Go ahead.

Mrs. King: Well, the problem is not a problem of holding at this moment. The problem is whether we shall subpoena any witnesses or present any witnesses dealing with this problem.

Now, we had witnesses prepared for last week on it. At that time your Honor ruled that it was inadmissible.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't rule on it. I ruled that evidence of character of the truth and veracity was not admissible. I didn't rule on the broader question.

Mrs. King: Well, at this time we are asking for a ruling. We may not get it this morning, but the problem is of getting it with reference to the securing of further witnesses so that we may have character witnesses lined up.

Presiding Inspector: You want to prove independently that the Alien is of good character?

Mrs. King: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: What do you say about that, Mr. [3609] Del Guercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: We object to that, if your Honor please. The question should not be decided at this time.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see that it is pertinent.

Mr. Del Guercio: This is not, as the Court stated, a penal proceeding.

Presiding Inspector: No such testimony was offered on the previous hearing?

Mrs. King: No; the only testimony that was offered was as to truth and veracity.

Presiding Inspector: As to truth and veracity.

Mrs. King: Of course, it has been quite generally allowed in the Immigration Service, in cases particularly in Portland——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Very likely without objection.

Mrs. King: I think that is quite possible, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: There is an objection here. I can't make a ruling in the air, but my impression is that it will not be allowed if objection is made. Of course, it is open to the Government counsel to permit that, and if they wanted to have you allowed to introduce that, why, of course, the Presiding Inspector has no objection.

Now, let's have the next witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is this the witness?

Mr. Grossman: Yes, will you step up? [3610]

Presiding Inspector: Raise your right hand.

GEORGE A. GRAHAM

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: Give your name and address to the reporter.

The Witness: George A. Graham, 938 North Palm Street, Anaheim, California.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Mr. Graham, are you now connected with the Associated Farmers of California?

A. With the Associated Farmers of Orange County.

Q. That is an affiliate of the Associated Farmers of California, is it?

A. There is one member of the Associated Farmers of Orange County that represents the county with the state organization.

Q. Are you that member at the present time?

A. No, sir.

Q. What is your present position, if any, with the Associated Farmers of Orange County?

A. Secretary.

Q. How long have you held that position?

A. Since August first, 1937.

Q. At any time since then were you the delegate or [3611] representative of your county unit to the state body? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know a man named Richard St. Clair? A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Q. When did you first meet him?

A. About two years ago.

Q. What were the circumstances surrounding your first meeting him?

A. A friend of mine by the name of S. H. Strathmam got in touch with me from San Francisco and said there was a party in San Francisco who had belonged to the Communist Party——

Q. (Interposing) I beg your pardon. A party from San Francisco or in San Francisco that had belonged?

A. In San Francisco that had belonged to the Communist Party and had dropped out, and because of some of the things that he was fighting was being persecuted in getting work.

Presiding Inspector: In what?

The Witness: In getting work, in finding employment. In fact, the man was afraid of his life. The man wanted to get out in the country to find work. And he asked me, as a personal favor to Mr. Strathman, if I would find him work out in the country. I told him that as soon as I had time I would try to find him employment. A few days later I heard from Mr. Strathman that this party by the name of Richard [3612] St. Clair had gone to Los Angeles and was waiting for me to take him out in the country to find work. I happened to be in Los Angeles that very day, I believe, and picked up Mr. St. Clair and took him to Orange County.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. When Mr. Strathman first communicated with you was it by telephone or telegraph or mail?

A. (No response).

Q. When he first communicated with you on this question of St. Clair?

A. I think that was by phone.

Q. He was in San Francisco?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Where were you?

A. I was in my office in Orange County. Mr. Strathman was covering the State, and I don't remember just where he was.

Q. What was his position at that time in the Associated Farmers?

A. Field Secretary for the State, Associated Farmers of California.

Q. What was your business at that time?

A. I was Secretary of the Associated Farmers of Orange County.

Q. No; your business? Was that your sole business at that time? A. That is right. [3613]

Q. It was a full-time job? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For which you got paid? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your business now?

A. The same.

Q. How long have you held a full-time position with the Associated Farmers or any county unit?

A. Since August first, 1937.

Q. Now, the second time Mr. Strathman got in touch with you what method of communication did he use?

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

A. It is quite a while ago; I don't recall. I suppose it was by phone.

Q. You were then at your home also, or your office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find employment for Mr. St. Clair?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of employment was it?

A. Regular farm work, laborer.

Q. And who was his first employer?

A. Clarence Brown, San Juan Capistrano.

Q. Did you arrange this matter with Mr. Brown?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you happen to know how long Mr. St. Clair worked for Mr. Brown?

A. Well, as I remember, it was, oh, six weeks or two [3614] months.

Q. Do you happen to know how he happened to sever his employment at that time?

A. I know what Mr. St. Clair told me, that he was going to Los Angeles. He said that he missed his newspapers and his movies, and he was located way out in the country with no transportation, and he missed those — what enjoyment he got out of those.

Q. After you took Mr. St. Clair to Mr. Brown and arranged his employment when did you next see him?

A. Oh, I saw Mr. St. Clair maybe five or six times during the period that he was working there.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Q. What was the occasion for seeing him those other times?

A. Mr. Strathman asked me to find this man work as a personal favor and when I was in that vicinity I just dropped in to see how he was getting along.

Q. When Mr. Strathman talked to you on the telephone, or rather, when he got in touch with you about getting Mr. St. Clair employment on either of those two occasions did he mention Bridges or the Bridges case, or any possible deportation proceedings against Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, that is a leading question, if your Honor please. There is no evidence here that he did. [3615]

Presiding Inspector: I don't see how it is material. He may answer it yes or no.

A. Your question was, the first—at first did he mention Bridges?

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. The first two times that Mr. Strathman got in touch with you did he mention Bridges in any way? A. No, as I recall it he did not.

Q. Did he state why he was going so far to help a man—withdraw that.

Did he state whether he had any personal or other interest in getting Mr. St. Clair employment?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if your Honor please, as being suggestive, no foundation laid for the question.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, it is. I think that the objecting counsel would suggest, perhaps, that you ask him if he gave any reason why he wished him to be employed.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Grossman: All right.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did he give you any reason why he wished you to obtain employment for Mr. St. Clair?

A. Our organization is interested in subversive activities.

Q. Are you going to state what he told you?

[3616]

A. Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: No. Did he give you any reason?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: He did?

The Witness: That must be understood.

Mr. Grossman: All right.

The Witness: Mr. Strathman said that he prepared a news release for a San Francisco paper, I believe, and in this release he mentioned labor disturbances in agricultural fields and mentioned names and dates. He said a couple of days after that he received a letter from a man by the name of St. Clair stating that Mr. Strathman was absolutely correct and asking permission to come and see him. That was done, and through that connection, I think, they met, perhaps, three or four times—I don't know—a few times anyhow and established, not a friendship, perhaps, but a contact and Mr. Strathman just offered to try and find him work.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you know, or did Mr. Strathman tell you why he chose your county as the place for Mr. St. Clair's employment?

A. It happens that Mr. Strathman was Secretary of the Associated Farmers of Orange County before he was promoted to the State. He knew Orange County, perhaps, better than any other county in the State. He knew that Mr. Brown and two or three of the others at that time of the year were putting on [3617] many workers and he thought there would be—perhaps, there would be the best chance in Orange County. Then, too, he wanted to get him away from San Francisco, and Mr. St. Clair wanted to get away from San Francisco.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. St. Clair his reporting on the activities of unions among workers? A. No, sir.

Q. Did Mr. St. Clair ever report to you or any one, to your knowledge, on the activities of unions among agricultural workers?

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, I will object to the question as not being material to the issues in this case.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, in the first place, the general purpose of this examination is to show how it happened that a non-governmental agency produced Mr. St. Clair. Now, the relevancy of the particular question I am asking is this:——

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If the Court please, before he goes on that, I would like to challenge that statement, that a non-governmental agency produced St. Clair. The Government produced St. Clair.

Presiding Inspector: I think the remark was not founded on anything in the evidence, that I have heard of.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I am not attempting to summarize the evidence. I said the purpose of this examination—and Mr. Del Guercio will have ample opportunity on cross examination—— [3618]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will exclude the question.

Mr. Grossman: I haven't stated the specific reason for this question.

Presiding Inspector: I don't care whether you have or not. I can't permit you to make statements which are not in any way justified by the evidence.

Now, the last statement that you made as far as I can remember, has no foundation in the evidence.

Mr. Gladstein: As I remember it, your Honor, Mr. St. Clair testified that on the immediate occasion when he went down to the FBI he went there because Mr. Graham came to him and asked him, or arranged for him to go there.

Presiding Inspector: That may have been, but that was not your inference, but that they were produced here as witnesses by some other agency that is under the control of some other agency.

Mr. Gladstein: I meant to use—I don't know if I used the word—"procure" which doesn't mean they produced them in Court—it neved does—but they were brought to the Government agency who produces them in Court by a non-governmental agency.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, that is not a correct statement.

Presiding Inspector: Never mind. I have ruled in your [3619] favor so far.

Now, I will let you re-phrase the question. Now, what is it you want?

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. To your knowledge, did Mr. St. Clair ever report, when he was working in Orange County, ever report on the activities of unions among agricultural laborers?

Presiding Inspector: How is that material?

Mr. Grossman: If Mr. St. Clair operated at that time or any time as a labor spy, an informer, we say——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Yes, but you don't go anywheres near showing he was a labor spy. Do you want to show he was a member of the union here, that there was some faithlessness?

Mr. Grossman: Not necessarily.

Presiding Inspector: I won't take a mere fact that employees reported on matters. It may not be in any way connected.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Grossman: Let me state this, your Honor:

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: It very often happens—we can demonstrate it if it is required—it very often happens that labor spies or informers work in ways that don't require their membership in unions. For example, very often they will report to the employer the sentiment among the men to join a union before a union has ever come in so the men can be fired for even talking [3620] of unions, which is one of the most common—in fact, where the employers are most successful in keeping unions out by eliminating every man who joins the union before a union ever comes into the picture. Therefore, it is quite possible for him, not a member of the union, to carry on the same kind of labor spying and informing.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is pretty remote.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, we don't consider it remote, that a witness has a bias or such a state of mind toward unions that he will engage in this sort of activity. We consider especially, since this case represents in the mind of the public and in the minds of lots of people, a labor case, therefore prejudice against labor unions is p r e j u d i c e against——

Presiding Inspector: I don't think this is a labor case of any kind. I don't consider this a labor case of any kind. The only question here is whether the Alien is subject to deportation under the rules of the statute. It has not anything to do, in its ultimate decision, with any labor matter.

Mr. Grossman: Yes, your Honor. I am not saying you believe this. All I am saying is this: If, in the minds of the public, based upon the endorsement of certain unions and the CIO and so on, if this case in the mind of the public or in the mind of St. Clair is a labor case and represents unionism, then, the bias of Mr. St. Clair or any witness toward unions or toward unionism is relevant regardless of what you [3621] or I might think because we are concerned with Mr. St. Clair, and if he thinks it is a labor case, then, his bias against unions is important. And, as I say, we are prepared to prove, if your Honor doesn't except, that among a large part of the public in the CIO, in particular, this is not only considered a labor case but has been declared a labor case by President Murray.

Now, obviously, that gets to peoples' minds through the newspapers and other methods.

Presiding Inspector: You are not trying it to the general public.

Mr. Grossman: No, but as a member of the general public, or one that reads the newspapers Mr. St. Clair, or any other witness will form an opinion as to whether this is a labor case or as to whether his testimony against Bridges will hurt the labor movement, which is the important—whether he is right or wrong, if he thinks he can hurt the labor movement by testifying against Harry Bridges, then, his bias against the labor unions or labor movement is relevant.

Presiding Inspector: Pretty remote.

Mr. Grossman: It is remote to us, I agree. You may give it less weight than we think it ought to have. It is definitely relevant.

Presiding Inspector: What have you to say, Mr. Del Guercio? [3622]

Mr. Del Guercio: I believe the whole matter ought to be excluded. I think the Government has made it clear from the very beginning that this in no wise is a labor case. We are proceeding against Harry Bridges because we believe the evidence shows that he has been a member of the Communist Party and of affiliated organizations and of the Industrial Workers of the World, subversive organizations. We are not proceeding against Harry Bridges because he is a labor leader, because he is a member of any union, CIO, A. F. of L., or any other, and we haven't introduced a single bit of evidence attacking Mr. Bridges because of his labor activities. All of the evidence that the Government has introduced has been to show that Harry Bridges has been acting as a member of the Communist Party, not as a member of any labor union. The Government has not sought in this case at any time by implication or otherwise to cast reflection upon any bona fide labor union, CIO, A. F. of L.,

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

or anything. The Government has not used the witnesses knowingly who were what they called labor spies. We have attempted—the case was very thoroughly investigated. We have attempted to present witnesses here who were truthful and who were testifying of their own knowledge, not because of their activities in labor unions, but because of their past membership in the Communist Party and because of their activities in labor unions as members of the Communist Party, because of their activities in labor [3623] unions because of directions and instructions received from the Communist Party. And, I believe, that this Court should make it clear to counsel and to the public that we are not trying labor unions.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is clear——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) And to exclude all reference——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) ——within the four walls of this room, this hearing room, that this is not a labor case. However, I will let you go a little further with this witness. You may have something that I don't comprehend.

Mr. Grossman: I will re-phrase the question because it will be too far back to find, I am afraid.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I asked you whether, to your knowledge, Mr. St. Clair had ever reported on the activities of unions or the attitude toward unions of agricultural workers?

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Del Guercio objects.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: And I will allow the question.

A. Do you mean in Orange County?

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Anywhere?

A. I will say as far as the report is——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You mean current [3624] things? You don't mean reporting past history?

Mr. Grossman: Things that were then happening or have just happened.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: Not in the sense of a report during my acquaintance with Mr. St. Clair, in hauling him from Los Angeles and around. He discussed many things. During those conversations he mentioned labor activities. I don't recall that he particularly stressed agriculture. As I remember it, he had no experience in any agricultural unions.

Presiding Inspector: Well, that answers your question.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. At any time after that did he have such a conversation with you?

A. Just along general lines. That answer covers the complete experience with Mr. St. Clair.

Q. Did he ever discuss either the activities of or the attitudes of any agricultural laborers in discussions with you?

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that as already having been answered.

Presiding Inspector: You mean historically?

Mr. Grossman: No. I will phrase it more definitely.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Grossman: [3625]

Q. Did he ever at any time in discussions with you report on recent attitudes of or activities of agricultural workers in connection with unions or union activities?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: I will take that, if you understand it.

The Witness: Yes, I understand it, but it was quite a while ago. It was just another incident as far as I was concerned and I don't recall of any time where he did go into that phase at all. [3626]

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. At the time that Mr. St. Clair was employed in Orange County did the Associated Farmers, either the State organization or the County unit, employ any informer or labor spy, among unions or workers in that County?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please——

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude that.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think that counsel should be admonished.

Presiding Inspector: That is improper, I think.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is very improper.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't know as it needs comment. By "improper" I mean it is not material to this case.

Mr. Grossman: Let me explain some of the relevance, your Honor.

It has not yet been developed, and perhaps it can't be by this witness, that the Associated Farmers—and we are prepared to prove everything I now say if it becomes relevant—are not a farmers' organization, but an anti-labor organization. They are an organization that throughout the State in various counties—I don't say every county, has employed, as the LaFollette Committee records clearly show, has employed labor spies, has employed labor spies to report, not only among agricultural workers and unions, but in other unions. They are an organization which has subsidized other anti-labor [3627] activity and which, in turn, is subsidized by anti-labor organizations.

I am not saying at this time whether Mr. St. Clair was one of those informers, but the organization was.

Now, here is a man who represented the Associated Farmers at that time, an organization which, as I say, we can prove definitely every word of what I say, was primarily an anti-labor organization, which made it a business, among other things, to employ labor spies, official and unofficial, paid and unpaid, and for all I know was at that time in this county carrying on part of such activities.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is too remote, too far afield. You have put this witness on to encroach on his credibility to a certain extent.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Grossman: I am not challenging any statement he has made yet, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: You want to know in general whether this institution has, in other cases, done things which you characterize as reprehensible. We can't hear that.

Mr. Grossman: The question goes to this time.

Presiding Inspector: Even at this time.

Mr. Grossman: At the time and in the county where St. Clair was working.

Presiding Inspector: The evidence has shown that he had no such relationship with St. Clair. Bad men may employ good [3628] servants.

Mr. Grossman: Pardon?

Presiding Inspector: Bad men may employ good servants.

Mr. Grossman: It is possible.

Presiding Inspector: It is too remote.

Mr. Grossman: I will continue along a slightly different line.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Have you ever engaged in any activity in connection with the deportation of Harry Bridges?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did your unit of the Associated Farmers ever pass any resolution dealing with the deportation or the possible deportation of Harry Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

First of all, he is trying to discredit his own witness.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see that has any materiality. They have a right to pass such resolutions just as much as other bodies have a right to pass resolutions to the contrary.

Mr. Grossman: It is my understanding of the general principles of law that not only can you go into bias of a witness, but you can go into bias of someone who procures that witness. That is my understanding of the general criminal law. But that bias of procuring—and Dean Landis has a good deal of discussion along those general lines in his report, [3629] this bias of the procurer can well go to the person procured. It may determine whom he procures; it may determine what he tells that person that he procures, and so on.

If I can show bias on the part of this witness, through his organization, I can tie it up, because I can show, even though a few preliminary questions were left out, I can show that he agreed generally with his organization on these matters. If I can show a definite bias, and activity on the part of the Associated Farmers, to try to secure the deportation of Harry Bridges, activity going so far, as a matter of fact, as attempting to secure the impeachment of Secretary Perkins because she didn't begin certain proceedings against Harry Bridges, which shows how far it can go, and if I can show that on the part of his organization and himself, I think it is relevant, that it shows bias, that he procured a witness, and he is biased against Harry Bridges in particular; and even more particularly, biased in favor of the deportation of Harry Bridges.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

I think it is quite relevant.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, this isn't argument. This is an oration.

Presiding Inspector: This is argument. I take it as argument.

Mr. Del Guercio: No. The evidence shows, if your Honor please, and I challenge and agree to have it put in—St. [3630] Clair was produced by the Government, and by no organization, no group, no individual but the FBI, a Governmental agency, who obtained the testimony of Richard St. Clair.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know about that.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no evidence, and counsel knows there isn't any evidence in this proceeding here on it.

Presiding Inspector: I will have to examine the record on that.

Mr. Del Guercio: His reference to such an organization is clearly improper, if the Court please, because it can't be borne out by the evidence, and counsel is speaking, not for argument, and addressing himself to the Court, but to certain papers and for publicity matters.

Presiding Inspector: I am not interested at all in that.

Mr. Grossman: I think it would be made clearer if we could adjourn early and convene early so I can procure the testimony of Mr. St. Clair, because I am relying on my recollection, which might be slightly at fault. If we could adjourn now and reconvene at ten minutes early I think it would be a good idea.

Presiding Inspector: Is that all you want to ask this witness?

Mr. Grossman: No. I have other questions.

Presiding Inspector: Why not go ahead with questions clearly more competent?

Mr. Grossman: All right. [3631]

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. St. Clair his testifying against, rather, his testifying in a deportation case involving Harry Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that unless he puts the time and place, and the preliminary questions as to whether he ever has.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow the general question first, although it is probably for impeachment.

Mr. Grossman: It isn't impeachment. I am asking generally, and I will come to something specific if he says "Yes."

A. Yes. The answer is "Yes."

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. When was it?

A. As I stated a while ago, we became more or less acquainted; Mr. St. Clair talked a good deal. During his conversation I would judge, perhaps two or three weeks after I first met him, he mentioned Harry Bridges. I didn't ask him any questions. He did all the talking.

A few days after that, in talking to one of the Immigration officers, I mentioned the fact that Richard St. Clair claimed to have some information on Harry Bridges.

Later on I met with the Immigration officers and St. Clair, and at that time we discussed the deportation of Harry Bridges, the case.

I said "We." I was present during the conversation. [3632]

Q. How did you happen to have any discussion at all with the Immigration officers?

A. It is part of the basic policy of the Associated Farmers that we cooperate with all local, state, national, law enforcement agencies.

Q. That doesn't answer the question. How did this particular meeting come about with the Immigration officers? What was the subject matter?

Presiding Inspector: You mean the meeting at which Mr. St. Clair was present?

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I am first referring to the first time when you told the Immigration officers that Mr. St. Clair knew something. How did this meeting come about—what was the reason for it?

A. That is customary—I talk with Immigration officers, District Attorneys and all officers quite frequently in my work.

Q. Do you remember how this particular meeting happened to come about? Was there any specific subject that was to be discussed at the meeting?

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

A. It was just a chance meeting, and during the meeting I mentioned the fact that there was a man in the County that appeared to have information on Harry Bridges.

Q. All right.

A. It wasn't called for that purpose. I didn't go to [3633] his office, or anything. I believe we met on the street.

Q. Who was the Immigration officer?

A. Franklin Davis.

Q. Where is he stationed?

A. He is stationed in Santa Ana, Orange County.

Q. Was the only one present when you had this conversation about St. Clair, the first conversation with him? A. Yes.

Q. How did the second meeting come about?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, there is no such meeting, and there is no such time, place, and there is no evidence that it was a meeting.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. You stated you discussed with the Immigration officers, or, rather, you were present when there was also present Mr. St. Clair and a certain Immigration officer. A. That is right.

Q. Now, that is the second meeting I refer to. How did that come about?

A. In Riverside one day I received a phone call from my office to the effect that Mr. Norene, I believe his name was, from Seattle, and a companion were in Santa Ana wanting to know if I could find Mr. St. Clair and bring him to the Immigration office in Santa Ana.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

I told them I could and I would. [3634]

I went to San Juan Capistrano and picked up Mr. St. Clair. That was where he was working.

We went back to Santa Ana. I took him up to the Immigration office. I went in the meeting with him and stayed there.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. St. Clair that you can recall before you took him to that meeting? A. No.

Q. That is, with reference to his going to the meeting?

A. No. I knew nothing about that at all. I merely mentioned it along with other things to Mr. Davis and I was surprised to get the phone call.

Q. Can you tell me what was the substance of the information that Mr. St. Clair gave you about Bridges that you conveyed to the Immigration man?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to this line of questioning for a number of reasons. It is apparent that counsel is referring to a matter that occurred prior to the last deportation hearing. We are not interested in what occurred there. We are interested in St. Clair and the testimony he gave here, and as to whether that testimony was true. That is all.

Mr. Grossman: If that is all you are interested in why wasn't he put on at the last hearing?

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Del Guercio: That is none of your affair. [3635]

Mr. Grossman: Apparently he wasn't believed before the last hearing.

Mr. Del Guercio: That statement is uncalled for and unnecessary.

Presiding Inspector: I think it was improper.

Mr. Grossman: That is the most logical answer I can think of.

Presiding Inspector: It is highly improper. Of course, it won't have any effect except a prejudicial one, if any, to make statements like that.

Mr. Grossman: The only objection Mr. Del Guercio made to the question I am attempting to ask is that it happened before the last hearing. I say that is no objection. As a matter of fact, it is a pertinent point in our favor.

Presiding Inspector: So far as it contradicts Mr. St. Clair. Was he asked about it?

Mr. Grossman: I don't say it contradicts him.

Presiding Inspector: What do you offer it for, then?

Mr. Grossman: I want to know exactly what this witness was told. I have a right to go into the fact that he was told something about Bridges. I want some details. He said Mr. St. Clair mentioned Bridges. I want to know what St. Clair said about Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: You should have asked St. Clair that, shouldn't you? [3636]

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Grossman: I am not saying I want to contradict St. Clair. I obviously have a right to go into the subject matter of what St. Clair said to him about Bridges. In other words, how Mr. Graham happened to do what he did. I want the details, precisely what Mr. St. Clair said to him.

Presiding Inspector: You want to show this in order to show bias?

Mr. Grossman: Not necessarily on this particular point.

Presiding Inspector: What do you want to show?

Mr. Grossman: I want to find out on this precise point why Mr. Graham did what he did after that.

Presiding Inspector: What difference does it make?

Mr. Grossman: It may make a great deal of difference.

Presiding Inspector: We are interested here in this instance only in Mr. St. Clair, isn't that right?

Mr. Grossman: I don't think so, your Honor. If we can show that Mr. Graham did things to get Mr. St. Clair to testify, perhaps gave Mr. St. Clair something—his job is not—by any means I haven't used that in my argument, the fact that a job was given or found for him—but if Mr. Graham used some inducement to get Mr. St. Clair to testify that is important and I think I have a right to show it; or, as I stated, just the fact that Mr. Graham having certain bias and procured him, that becomes important too.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: Haven't you got that?

[3637]

Mr. Grossman: Not in detail. All I know is Mr. St. Clair mentioned Bridges. I haven't yet asked what he said. That is all I am asking now.

As I say, I am not saying I am trying to impeach St. Clair or this witness either.

Mr. Del Guercio: In view of counsel's statement that he is not attacking, or is not endeavoring to attack the veracity of St. Clair, but merely to show in what ways, apparently devious ways St. Clair was procured to appear here, all of this is out of order. He is not attacking St. Clair's veracity. He is not stating, or attempting to show that St. Clair did not testify truthfully, but he is trying to throw up a smoke screen because of what such and such a thing happened; that St. Clair isn't a liar, but so and so procured him. Therefore, while he is not a liar he must be called a liar, and he wants the Court here to believe that he is a liar; not because he is in fact a liar but because of the manner in which——

Presiding Inspector: Let us analyze this a little. You don't want to show this as impeaching St. Clair's veracity?

Mr. Grossman: Not as such, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: And you don't want to show it as bias?

Mr. Grossman: Yes; as bias.

Presiding Inspector: You do?

Mr. Grossman: It may be bias as implied to St. Clair through Mr. Graham. [3638]

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: But ostensibly you want to show this as attacking the underlying sincerity of the Government's investigation?

Mr. Grossman: I wouldn't say that.

Presiding Inspector: Isn't that it?

Mr. Grossman: That big a job we don't have to undertake. If we can merely attack the underlying sincerity of the procurement of a certain witness, that is all we have to show to be relevant. I am not saying we are biting off the other job, that every witness was procured in that way.

Mr. Del Guercio: What other job is implied by that?

Mr. Grossman: If we could look at your records we might take the other job over too.

Presiding Inspector: Wait a minute. I am asking some questions of counsel and I want to get an answer.

Mr. Grossman: It is simply a question of what inducements were used, or by whom, St. Clair was procured, and what are the attitudes of the man or the organization that procured him.

Presiding Inspector: Read the pending question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q. Can you tell me what was the substance of the information that Mr. St. Clair gave you about Bridges that you conveyed to the Immigration man?")

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: I will let you answer what informa- [3639] tion was given to you by Mr. St. Clair that you discussed at this interview when you all three were present. That is what you want?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

The Witness: When three were present?

Presiding Inspector: Yes; at which Mr. St. Clair was present.

Mr. Grossman: This will be the first interview. When he first gave his interview with Mr. Davis.

Presiding Inspector: He has covered all of that.

Mr. Grossman: Not as to what the information was.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow you to give what information you told or gave Mr. Davis on the first interview. That is over your objection, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I thought you covered that.

Mr. Grossman: No, we haven't.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. What did you tell him on the first instance?

A. During my conversation with Mr. St. Clair, he had said that at different times he had attended Party meetings with Harry Bridges—correction—I say Party meetings—as I recall it, he said that he was guard, or something, some officer, at the building, and at the room in which the Party meeting was on in, and in which Harry Bridges was present.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: And you told Mr. Davis that? [3640]

The Witness: I merely reported that to Mr. Davis.

Mr. Grossman: May we adjourn for lunch now, if your Honor please?

Presiding Inspector: Let us finish this particular matter if we can.

Mr. Grossman: I have finished the particular line of inquiry, but I cannot finish my examination very quickly.

Presiding Inspector: Well, we will recess until 2:00 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12:35 P. M., a recess was taken until 2:00 P. M. of the same day.) [3641]

After Recess
2:00 O'clock P. M.

Presiding Inspector: Call back the witness, Mr. Grossman.

GEORGE A. GRAHAM,

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Mr. Graham, what, if anything, have you

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

done to bring about the deportation of Harry Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to the question, first of all, as being improper; and, secondly,——

Presiding Inspector: This is your witness. I think that is improper. He is not an employee of the Government.

Mr. Grossman: In the first place, even though he is our witness, we have a right to show bias; secondly, if your Honor rules we cannot show bias with our own witness we are prepared to argue.

Presiding Inspector: You can show bias of a witness, yes.

Mr. Grossman: That is all I am asking.

Presiding Inspector: To show bias of this witness?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: How would that be material from your side of the case? You offered this man to be relieved. Now, you don't want to build up a straw man and knock him down. [3642]

Mr. Grossman: If he testifies that he was biased against Bridges I don't ask you not to believe him; I ask that you believe him.

Presiding Inspector: I won't receive bias of this witness because he hasn't testified to anything that would call for any such thing.

Mr. Grossman: If, for the reasons I argued before, he had any part in procuring a witness his bias becomes material for that reason.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no. He told you all about that. What difference does it make whether he does it with ill will or good will?

Mr. Grossman: I think, your Honor, that the law is that it makes a difference.

Presiding Inspector: I know of none.

Mr. Grossman: We are prepared to argue that.

Presiding Inspector: I would like to hear you.

Mr. Grossman: It will take a moment or two to get our material in order.

Presiding Inspector: Take all the time you need.

Even in a criminal case, almost all criminal cases are prosecuted as a result of informers and biased witnesses. That is the way that the police work.

Mr. Grossman: To the extent that they are, I say we have a right to go into it. I am not saying that the Government doesn't have the right, if that is the only way they can [3643] procure witnesses, to use biased procurers, but that doesn't mean we can't go into it.

Presiding Inspector: There is no evidence that they have used this witness that way.

Mr. Grossman: Right.

Presiding Inspector: We won't go into that unless you can convince me on it.

Mr. Grossman: We will see what we have here on that point.

Mr. Myron: While we are waiting, your Honor, may we have the last question read?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Perhaps you will withdraw your objection.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Myron: No. I just want the question read.

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded:

"Q. Mr. Graham, what, if anything, have you done to bring about the deportation of Harry Bridges?")

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I thought that we had some law on that, but I note that what we have brought in is the opinion of Dean Landis on this question. What I was thinking of was the improper inducement of someone who procures, rather than bias. Your Honor, therefore,——

Presiding Inspector: You may be able to show that—you [3644] mean to show general bias as to the whole case?

Mr. Grossman: Right.

Presiding Inspector: Then you would have to show, I suppose, some connection between the Government and——

Mr. Grossman (Interposing): I am not reasoning from that at this time. All I want to say is that being true—we haven't come with the law on this particular point, and I don't think I could add anything now but, the general rule, as I understand it.

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude this for the moment. You can bring it up again.

Mr. Grossman: Let me ask you this question—we are prepared to argue this as well: If our right to go into this would be clear on cross examination of a hostile witness produced by the Government, we say we have a right to go into this with this witness, even though he is produced by us; and we are prepared to argue the point—Mr. Gladstein is—that one's own witness, produced by one's self, if one can demonstrate that he is a hostile witness, one could treat him as if produced by the other side and cross examine him accordingly.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: If he is a hostile witness you may go further on direct to bring out the truth. But if he has testified to matters which are damaging to your side then you may also discredit him. I haven't heard anything from this witness to indicate that he is hostile or, anything in a general [3645] way, which would be considered as damaging to your theories.

Mr. Grossman: The question I am asking is this, your Honor: Whether we would be permitted to go into that if we demonstrate that this witness is hostile? In other words, we are willing to argue that point if your Honor will say that.

Presiding Inspector: If you show he is hostile I will give you greater liberty in examination.

Mr. Grossman: Well, I wish to ask this question, then——.

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): That doesn't mean——

Mr. Grossman (Interposing): ——going to this issue, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Grossman: I think the question is definitely relevant on that issue.

Could we have the question read?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Del Guercio: There is an objection, of course.

Presiding Inspector: There is an objection and I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Grossman: I will ask it now, going to the hostility of the witness.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think you can show it in that general way.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Mr. Graham, what are your feelings with reference [3646] to Harry Bridges——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): If your Honor please——

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. (Continuing): ——or what you believe he stands for?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question as being improper, immaterial and irrelevant.

Counsel here is bringing his witnesses, his own witness and making his own issues, or attempting to make his own issues, which is clearly improper. The only hostility, if it may be called hostility, that this witness has shown is that he belongs to an organization whose avowed purpose is to seek out subversive activities. Now, if counsel says that is hostility I will admit that I am hostile also.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, obviously I have stated we are prepared to prove more. We are prepared to prove that the Associated Farmers not only is anti-labor, has taken, as I stated before, direct activity to get Harry Bridges deported. That, I claim, shows the hostility. Now, we have some law here from Wigmore on the question of what kind of hostility we are allowed to go into. We are relying, of course, on our common law right because the statute won't cover here.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: We claim the hostility towards the individual is the kind of hostility we are permitted to show with reference to a witness.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. If you can show he has any [3647] real hostility to Mr. Bridges, why, of course, that may be competent as bearing upon his testimony, but up to this point I haven't heard anything that he has testified to that is of any great materiality——

Mr. Grossman (Interposing): That is why I should be permitted this question.

Presiding Inspector: First ask the question. First show what you want to show by this witness.

Mr. Grossman: By the question or by telling——

Presiding Inspector: No, by questions.

Mr. Grossman: Oh. Well, I think my last question does, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Ask him as to what induced him to do this, if you want to. You may ask him—I will allow you to ask him, over objection if made, if he produced, if he took or had this conversation with Mr. Davis, was his name, the first one?

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: If he had that through enmity toward Mr. Bridges, you may ask that.

Mr. Grossman: I don't think I have to tie it down to any particular conduct, your Honor. If he has the general feeling toward Mr. Bridges I don't think I have to show the influence, one way or another, of his acts in order to establish him as hostile.

Presiding Inspector: That would open the field to what [3648] his beliefs are, don't you see, and what his grounds for those beliefs are. If he believes he is a malefactor, why, there might be some justification, even if he was not a malefactor. Now, you don't want to go into all that matter, do you?

Mr. Grossman: I think I have a right to approach it generally, though, your Honor. I could see I can approach it the way you are saying. I prefer to approach it generally, his general views toward Harry Bridges or his general prejudice.

Mr. Del Guercio: In the first place, the question would be improper on this ground: The question is what have you done to have Harry Bridges deported?

Mr. Grossman: No, that was the former question.

Presiding Inspector: He has withdrawn that question, under my suggestion that he proceed to another point and may come back to that.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, the last question is what he thinks of Harry Bridges.

Mr. Grossman: His attitudes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, counsel could go out and get thousands of persons who don't believe Harry Bridges is any good. Now, does he want to bring all those people in and ask them those questions?

Presiding Inspector: I don't suppose he does.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, that is what he is attempting to do.

Mr. Grossman: If Mr. Del Guercio can find thousands let [3649] him produce them.

Mr. Del Guercio: You have produced one now, or you have attempted to produce——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) I will stipulate all members of the Associated Farmers will take that view.

Mr. Del Guercio: That isn't an issue.

Presiding Inspector: That, of course, isn't in issue.

Mr. Grossman: I still think the question is pertinent, your Honor, that I was asking. I will re-frame it to save the time of finding it.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is your present attitude or feeling toward Harry Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question, if your Honor please.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: I think it is doubtful, but I will take it, if you can answer it.

The Witness: Yes, I think I can.

A. Basing my opinion on what I hear and what I read, basing it particularly on the support given Mr. Bridges through Communist periodicals and publications I would say that, in my opinion, he was undesirable because, generally speaking, my principles wouldn't allow me to support anything that they support, generally speaking.

Presiding Inspector: Now, you see the difficulties we are in. [3650]

Mr. Grossman: Yes, I recognize that, but I think I still have a right to ask this question.

Presiding Inspector: Whether he is undesirable or not isn't the question.

Mr. Grossman: It indicates his state of mind. It may not be the issue of this proceeding but it——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Indicates whose state of mind?

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you believe Harry Bridges ought to be deported?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that question. In the first place, it is only the Government who is interested in—who can deport Harry Bridges, no individual or groups of individuals, no matter what their desires are.

Presiding Inspector: He is trying to show the attitude or the bias of the witness. I don't think the bias of the witness amounts to anything one way or the other as yet; there may be something.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

I will let him answer that. It is pretty extreme. Go ahead.

Do you think he ought to be deported? Now, that calls for his belief, I suppose, as to his subversive conduct, if there is such, under that law. I don't suppose he even knows what the law is.

Mr. Grossman: Without knowing the law he probably be- [3651] lieves he ought to be deported, your Honor.

Mr. Del Guercio: I wouldn't blame him for that, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: All right, then, we will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: I move that the remark of Mr. Del Guercio——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) No, I will let it stand. Go ahead. It isn't proper. It isn't evidence, but it comes up as a result of the talk back and forth.

I will let you answer it.

A. The question is do I think he should be deported?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: My personal opinion?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, that is all.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you ever participate in the passing of any resolution calling for the impeachment of Secretary Perkins for not ordering a deportation hearing against Harry Bridges?

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Myron: Object.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: I won't take that; that is too remote. We have got to go into the whole situation and history of this proceeding if we take that. Haven't you got in a great deal more definite statement which he just made?

Mr. Grossman: It is a question of whether we have yet [3652] established, to the satisfaction of your Honor, hostility. Perhaps, we have. If so, I will abandon further questions. In other words, the purpose of this line of inquiry is to have him established as a hostile witness. If and when we reach that point if we could be told——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't think this is a hostile witness within the meaning of that phrase in the law. He may be a biased witness beyond any point—if there is any point where there is any chance for bias.

Mr. Del Guercio: Nor surprise, if your Honor please.

Mr. Grossman: We are not relying on surprise; we are relying on hostility to the extent that that opens up the issues that we couldn't otherwise go into.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Well, I am not sure you can go into them but I want to give you the basis.

I am giving him the basis for asking these questions. I don't want to have any trouble about it.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Grossman: Just one moment, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, surely.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, this is, of course, a very difficult question as to what constitutes this kind of hostility. Let me read two or three lines from Wigmore, what he considers a definition of this kind of hostility. I think we have established it according to this, if this statement of Wigmore's is accepted as a definition. [3653]

"A similar situation arises where the witness, though called by the party examining, is in fact biased against his cause——" in italics ——"biased against his cause——" in italics ——"and is thus indisposed to favor it by accepting suggestions of desired testimony."

And he goes on to say that here a question cannot be objectionable as leading.

Now, it seems to me that this witness has indicated a bias against the cause, the cause being the issue of this case.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: The deportation of Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: That opens—assuming that is the fact it gives you a greater freedom to examine in chief than you would have.

Mr. Grossman: That is right.

Presiding Inspector: You may, under those circumstances, if you find it necessary lead the witness but, of course, the effect of the answers would be taken into consideration with leading questions.

Mr. Grossman: Are you ruling though we may be able to lead the answers are still those of our witness?

Presiding Inspector: Oh, they are the answers of your witness undoubtedly. I don't mean to say that you might not introduce contradictory statements to impeach your witness. The old rule against impeaching a witness has been done away— [3654] of one's own witnesses has been done away with in many states. It has been done away with in New York under certain circumstances; that is, you can impeach him by writings, and in this administrative proceeding, perhaps, greater liberality was granted in that way. You can't impeach your own witness in New York by simple statements out of Court but you may if they are under oath or are in statements signed. You probably know the statutes, Mrs. King, who is a member of the New York Bar would probably know them.

Mr. Del Guercio: And on that point, if the Court please, while Wigmore may have said—may show that the witness is opposed to the defendant's cause, nevertheless, the defendant's cause must be known too. What is it that the witness is opposed to?

Presiding Inspector: That, of course, bears on it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is it Bridges or what he represents, or Bridges as a member of the Communist Party, his cause for Communism, not Bridges personally.

Presiding Inspector: Those would all be taken into consideration, of course.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Of course.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead, Mr. Grossman. Ask the next question. I don't want to unduly hurry you.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Mr. Graham, so far as you know do you agree with all the activities and the statements of policy of the [3655] Associated Farmers of California with respect to the deportation of Harry Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that question as being immaterial and irrelevant and improper.

Mr. Grossman: This is to lay a basis to show what those policies are, attributing them, therefore, to Mr. Graham.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose you are going to show what they are.

Mr. Grossman: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, your question merely refers to those that he now has in mind.

Mr. Grossman: That is correct.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Are we going to try those issues also?

Presiding Inspector: I am afraid so; I don't know. It is going pretty far afield, Mr. Del Guercio, I agree with you, but I think I will allow it.

A. You must bear in mind that I am employed full time with the Associated Farmers of Orange County which is an incorporated unit of its own, and there are many statements of the state association with which I am not familiar.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I am only asking about those that you know?

A. My answer is yes.

Q. And could you state for us what you know to be the [3656] activities or the statements of the state organization with respect to the deportation of Harry Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question, if your Honor please, immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. We are trying now the Farmers——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) The Farmers Association.

Presiding Inspector: ——Association, but I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, should Mr. Bridges be excused?

Presiding Inspector: No.

Mr. Grossman: It is all right with us.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Bridges says he has a lot of valuable work to perform for his trade union if Mr. Del Guercio will stipulate to his being excused.

Mr. Del Guercio: We are not trying trade unions, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: Well, go ahead, Mr. Grossman.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Grossman: All right. Did you hear the question, Mr. Graham?

The Witness: I think so.

A. I agree with the policies of the state organization as far as I know them and as I understand them and know them, and they are: We are opposed to subversive activities in general, due to his support through subversive activities we [3657] believe that he is in favor of subversive activities, also we are opposed to Bridges' policy or his organization's policy of the compulsory closed shop. Our organization is not—does not believe in the compulsory closed shop.

To that extent I agree with the state organization.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you know whether your organization has taken any position with respect to whether Bridges ought to be deported?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that on the same grounds.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. To my knowledge there has been no official action.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you regularly read the resolutions of the Associated Farmers of California and the Executive Board or Executive Committee?

A. I don't read them all. [3658]

Q. As Secretary of a County Unit of the Associated Farmers, did you receive copies of all the minutes of the Associated Farmers of California?

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please. What difference does it make whether he receives them all or receives some of them?

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. He has testified that he didn't know of any such activity. Now, the witness is being pressed on that point. Go ahead. I will allow it.

A. Yes, I receive them all.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you also receive reports of all the conventions of the Associated Farmers of California?

A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: He said "Yes." I will allow it to stand.

By Mr. Grosman:

Q. What did you say was the time when you began working for the Associated Farmers?

A. August 1, 1937.

Q. 1937? A. Yes. [3659]

Q. Has your organization adopted any position of opposition to Bridges based on his organization of agricultural workers?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question. It doesn't make any difference whether it has or not.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't know as it does but——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) We are not interested in Harry Bridges' Union activities.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——I will take it. This is to show hostility, prejudice.

A. Our County affiliate, as I stated before, is opposed to a compulsory closed shop.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Will you state whether the state organization of the Associated Farmers has taken any position on the organization into the union of agricultural labor?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor plea-e, as going far afield.

Mr. Grossman: The reason I am asking the question, I have reason to believe they have opposed Bridges on this issue. I am trying to refresh his recollection.

Presiding Inspector: What issue?

Mr. Grossman: Over the organization of agricultural labor.

Presiding Inspector: The fact that they have opposed [3660] Mr. Bridges doesn't necessarily show hostility. There might be a difference of opinion here.

Mr. Grossman: Not necessarily. The vehemence with which they oppose it, I think, which this witness will admit, indicates it, and attributing of the agricultural organization, or the threat of it, to Bridges also, an indication of hostility, and the blaming of the CIO agricultural organization, to the extent that there is that in California, to Harry Bridges is an indication of hostility.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: You have all that in there already.

Mr. Grossman: I don't think so. He stated they were opposed to a closed shop.

Presiding Inspector: He stated that the participation in what he considers as subversive enterprises is one ground; and the second ground is his favoring the closed shop. Now, what more can you show than that?

Mr. Grossman: Well, it seems to me, your Honor——

Presiding Inspector: You want to go into details?

Mr. Grossman: As I understand it—I may be wrong—the Associated Farmers of California have clearly stated that they oppose, not only what Mr. Graham has called the compulsory closed shop, but they oppose all unionization of the agricultural workers.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you ask him that?

Mr. Grossman: I will ask him that. [3661]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do you know whether the Associated Farmers of California now take the position, or have in the past on occasions taken the position that they are opposed to the unionization of agricultural workers?

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I will overrule the objection and take the answer.

A. To my own knowledge they have taken no such stand.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Mr. Graham, did you ever see Mr. St. Clair again after this first conference with Mr. Norene?

A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. When was the next occasion?

A. Well, I can't state specifically. After all, this was a couple of years ago. I haven't thought of it since. But I must have seen him two or three times, perhaps, because he left some luggage, I believe, in my office, when he went to Los Angeles. He came back to my office to pick up his luggage.

Q. Did you ever lend or give Mr. St. Clair any money? A. Yes.

Q. How much? [3662]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please, as not being material to the issues in this case.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. The night I brought St. Clair to Anaheim he was very anxious to go to work. I told him I had no time then to take him to his job. I reminded him that he was to remain in San Francisco until work was found.

He asked if he couldn't clean up my office, or do some little job, and was quite insistent, and I said "What is the matter, are you out of money?" He said "Yes. I have only 25 or 35 cents," I think he said.

I gave him a couple of dollars to get a room. He said he wanted a 50-cent room.

When I finally took him to the job he had on his regular clothes that he had on when I picked him up. I asked him if that was all the clothes he had. He said it was. I gave him, or loaned him $2.00 or $3.00 more to buy overalls.

That is the story.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you charge those sums of money to the Associated Farmers, or did you put them out of your own account?

A. Out of my own pocket.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Graham, that the Associated Farmers have adopted a position of hostility to Harry Bridges because of his opposition on the question of hot cargo? [3663]

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, in connection with this line of inquiry I would like to suggest to the Court that counsel has submitted an affidavit in support of their request for a subpoena, and I believe that in their affidavit, making the request for the subpoena, they stated certain things that they were calling this witness for; that is, on the question of bias and veracity of the witness, St. Clair.

Am I correct?

Presiding Inspector: I don't know. I have forgotten.

Mr. Del Guercio: Don't you think, if the Court please, that we should go to the affidavit to determine that?

Presiding Inspector: Have you a copy there?

Mrs. King: I don't believe I have a copy, but I am quite certain that the affidavit was secured on the basis that I wanted to inquire as to the inducements made by this witness to the witness Wilmot——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Wilmot?

Mrs. King: I mean, to the witness, St. Clair.

Presiding Inspector: I haven't the affidavit before me.

Mr. Del Guercio: But not as to the attitude of the Associated Farmers, whatever it is, towards Harry Bridges, I am quite sure.

Presiding Inspector: Have you a copy?

Mr. Del Guercio: I haven't.

Presiding Inspector: I think the application has gone to [3664] Mr. Wixon.

Mr. Grossman: I would like to say this about it, your Honor: We now only have the recollection of Mrs. King as to what it says. Mr. Del Guercio undoubtedly is referring to the rule that says it must specify. And I believe the rule also says the examination under subpoena is confined to that subject.

Now, in the first place, it is obvious that that will have to be liberally interpreted.

Second, even assuming that we were restricted in the examination under the subpoena, it would seem to me true—certainly it would be true in a court—that we would have a right to examine the witness not under the subpoena. In other words, if he came in court and he took the stand, we can examine him not under the subpoena. However, if the witness refused to stay and he decided to run out then, of course, we would not be able to ask the questions. If he stays in court, however, then we are not so restricted by the subpoena.

It seems, no matter what it says, that it should be liberally interpreted. We have a right to go into this unless the witness wants to run out of the room.

Presiding Inspector: I agree, and I think counsel will agree, that it should be liberally interpreted.

Now, what was the question?

Mr. Del Guercio: I agree it should be liberally inter- [3665] preted, but if this was in the mind of counsel at the time the affidavit was made out then I say that they should be held strictly accountable to it for not including it in the affidavit because that would be obviously imposing upon the court.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose that is so.

Mr. Del Guercio: And abusing the process.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't know as we can draw that conclusion.

What is the question? We talk so much that we lose the question.

Mr. Grossman: I think I can rephrase it, if you prefer.

Presiding Inspector: Let the reporter read it.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Graham, that the Associated Farmers have adopted a position of hostility to Harry Bridges because of his opposition on the question of hot cargo?")

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as being improper, and on the further ground that it is leading and suggestive, no foundation having been laid.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it—"Yes" or "No." We are not going to try the merits of that controversy.

A. It is hard for me to answer that question because I would have to know what was in the minds of my directors. Of course, I am a paid executive.

Presiding Inspector: You know of nothing on that? [3666]

The Witness: No. I don't believe I can answer the question intelligently.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Graham, that part of the hostility of the Associated Farmers toward Harry

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Bridges, or the opposition to Harry Bridges, is based upon his opposition to Proposition No. 1, the measure that was on the ballot?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, we are trying Proposition No. 1.

Mr. Grossman: I am—whether right or not—finding out what the basis was.

Presiding Inspector: I can't see that this makes any difference. Supposing they were opposed to him because he was a member of the Liberal Party, or any other party, would it make any difference?

Mr. Grossman: I want to show the basis of their hostility by a more definite description.

Presiding Inspector: He has stated to you that he is of the opinion that Mr. Bridges is undesirable and should be deported. How can you make it any stronger than that?

Mr. Grossman: In this way: It is quite obvious to me, I say, until I have asked the questions, and even then——

Presiding Inspector: I don't know what the matters are you are talking about.

Mr. Grossman: They are all labor matters. I wish to show that the hostility of the Associated Farmers and Mr. Graham is [3667] based primarily on the trade union position of Mr. Bridges, and I am giving four or five of what I think are the most important examples—and that is the reason I have selected them—and they have taken a stand on each of these with respect to Harry Bridges. I want to show this as a strong anti-trade basis.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Presiding Inspector: The main point of this is it shows the basis for the prejudice of this witness?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: If there is one. That is all.

Now, I don't get what the Associated Farmers have to do with it.

Mr. Grossman: He stated, in so far as he recalls them, he agrees with the position of the Associated Farmers on Bridges. Now, if he recalls them, took this position or that on Bridges, I am assuming he agrees with all of those. In other words, I am refreshing his recollection as to other bases for the position the Associated Farmers took on Harry Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: That is very remote, but I will allow it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Can you show hostility by showing a man is opposed to a political question? Why this country was founded on opposition, opposition of ideas.

Presiding Inspector: But the bias of this witness is a basis for judging his credibility. That is all. I will take it. [3668]

A. I would say that Mr. Bridges' support of Proposition No. 1 made no difference as far as our attitude toward him is concerned.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. You mean his opposition to Proposition No. 1? A. Yes; that is right.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Q. But there was, was there not, a definite opposition in the position taken by the Associated Farmers and Harry Bridges on the question of Proposition No. 1?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that. Proposition No. 1 apparently is a political question.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know.

Mr. Del Guercio: Proposition No. 1—I presume he means on the ballot?

Mr. Grossman: It was recognized by the labor movement as a trade union question and it went on the ballot, that is true.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see what trade unions questions as such have to do with this case.

Mr. Frossman: They may not have to do with it as such, but for the purpose of correctly defining the opposition of this man, and the Associated Farmers, to Harry Bridges, we must define them in the terms of trade union questions because those were the primary ones which are the basis of the opposition.

Presiding Inspector: He has already admitted opposition. [3669] What more can affect his credibility?

Mr. Grossman: I want the details.

Presiding Inspector: You think it deepens bias?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. I will take it. Go ahead.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Graham, that part of the opposition of the Associated Farmers to Harry Bridges was based on the fact that Harry Bridges was advocating, and the Associated Farmers were opposed, to the creation of Government camps for migratory workers?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, we are going to migratory workers. I object to the question as being ambiguous and general.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. I don't know what migratory workers are, except through the work of fiction.

Mr. Grossman: And which they rejected.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is the answer?

Mr. Del Guercio: He suggested—counsel has told the witness that California opposed it.

Presiding Inspector: We have a very intelligent witness here. We will hear him.

A. I don't know as I am entirely familiar with Mr. Bridges' position on the migratory, or the migration of workers [3670] into California.

The position of our organization was that the migration should be limited to those whom the industry could absorb and take care of.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I was talking about the setting up of Government camps for migratory workers.

A. Pardon.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question. The witness stated he doesn't know Harry Bridges' position on that question.

Mr. Grossman: The witness stated he misunderstood it.

Presiding Inspector. I will take it.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. I am concerned with the matter of setting up additional government camps for migratory workers. That is the issue. Was there opposition on the part of the Associated Farmers to Harry Bridges because of his position on that?

A. Again, I will have to say I don't know what his position was. I never heard that discussed in one of our meetings as being opposed to Harry Bridges, because of that stand.

Our stand was that camps should be under private enterprise, rather than under governmental control.

Mr. Grossman: No more questions.

Presiding Inspector: Any questions? [3671]

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a few.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where were you born, Mr. Graham?

A. Des Moines, Iowa.

Q. Are you an American citizen?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States?

A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of George A. Graham.)

Q. Are you well disposed to the good order and happiness of the United States? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you think that it is reprehensible for any individual, whether he is a member of a trade union, employers' organization, or what-not, to inform Governmental agencies of your Government, and my Government, that subversive activities are taking place in those organizations?

A. I think it is a citizen's duty.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

The Witness: May I be excused permanently?

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: You are excused permanently as far as I know.

(Witness excused.) [3672]

Mr. Grossman: Our next witness is William Hynes, but he is not in the room where I told him to wait. I don't see him in the hall. I wonder if the guard will call out for him?

Presiding Inspector: Call the name of William Hynes.

A Guard: Here he is.

Presiding Inspector: Raise your right hand.

WILLIAM F. HYNES

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. William F. Hynes—H-y-n-e-s.

Q. And your business?

A. Police officer, City of Los Angeles.

Q. How long have you been with the City of Los Angeles Police Department?

A. Approximately nineteen years.

Q. Continuously?

A. With the exception of a period of about six and one-half or seven months.

Q. When did that period of six and one-half or seven months occur?

A. In 1934, the latter part of 1934, until August of 1935.

Q. That is, you were not connected with the Police Force [3673] during that period?

A. That is correct.

Q. And at the end of this interval you again became connected with the Police Department and have remained so connected ever since?

A. Yes. I was on leave of absence from the Police Department.

Q. I didn't hear you.

A. I was on leave of absence during this period and when my leave was up I returned.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Have you been on any leave of absence since your return on that occasion?

A. No, I have not.

Q. And you are now connected with the Department, are you? A. Yes.

Q. In what capacity?

A. As a police officer.

Q. Have you ever worked for the FBI?

A. Ever worked for the——

Q. (Interposing) Have you ever worked for the FBI? A. No, sir.

Q. When I say "worked", I don't mean they had you on their payroll, but have you ever worked with them or performed service for them?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that [3674] question. What difference does it make?

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Every police officer works for the Governmental agencies in the sense that counsel states it.

Presiding Inspector: I think there may be a little misunderstanding as to what is meant by the word "work."

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you understand the question?

A. If you mean have I cooperated with them, yes, with all Governmental agencies.

Q. I don't mean in the sense that any police officer might cooperate with another governmental agency. I want to know whether you have served or performed services of a particular or special character for the Federal Bureau of Investigation which you would not otherwise have performed except for special requests or appointment?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that question. It is none of counsel's business what kind of duties he has performed for the FBI. Certainly this isn't an inquisition for the benefit of counsel as to what kind of work any police officer may have done at any particular time or generally for any governmental agency. It should be limited, I think, to the inquiry of this hearing here.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know. This is preliminary, I suppose. I think I will take it.

A. I can answer that question generally in this way: [3675] To state that my present designation may be assumed as a Department liaison officer to the various Federal Departments.

As to the particular designated duties that I perform with these various Governmental agencies, I don't think it would be to the best interests of the public to disclose it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I haven't asked you about your special duties. I have only asked you whether or not you have, since you have been a police officer——

Presiding Inspector: He said he has been sort of a liaison officer. Isn't that as clear as you can get it?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You say a liaison officer. I take it that is between the Los Angeles Police Department on the one hand and——

A. (Interposing) That is correct.

Q. (Continuing) —and the Governmental agencies on the other? A. Yes; correct.

Q. You mean the FBI on the other hand?

A. Not necessarily; other governmental agencies, the Post Office Department——

Q. (Interposing) First let me ask this: Are you, or have you been a liaison officer between the Los Angeles Police Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation?

A. That is included; yes, sir. [3676]

Q. What?

A. That is included among the others.

Q. When did that begin?

A. It began, to the best of my knowledge, shortly after the President of the United States called upon all law enforcement agencies to assist the branches of the Federal Government. That was some time in 1939, I believe.

Q. Can you fix it more definitely than that, Mr. Hynes?

A. No, I can't without reference to a communication.

Q. And since that time in 1939 have you continued in that capacity that you have just described as a special liaison officer?

A. Yes, except that I have performed other duties for the Police Department. I have been an investigator for the Police Department.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. But in a general sense, since 1939, when this special function began to be performed by you; would it be correct to say that you have not performed the kind of duties that you were performing as a patrolman on the Los Angeles Police Department prior to that date?

A. Well, I can't say that I am qualified to speak on the duties of a patrolman. I have never performed the duties of a patrolman on the Los Angeles Police Department.

Q. What have your positions been with the Los Angeles Police Department?

A. Well, it has been as an under-cover agent, when I [3677] first went on the Police Department; as a member of the Communist Party, as a member of the IWW; and then later in an investigative capacity for an investigating bureau that was established by the Los Angeles Police Department.

Q. Do you remember the name of the bureau?

A. It had no particular name at that time when I first started in—just an investigative unit. Later on I became head of what they call the Intelligence Bureau of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Q. What is the date when that began?

A. That began, that was organized under Chief August Vollmer.

Q. I didn't ask you who organized it. I just asked you the date, if you remember.

A. I can't remember the specific date.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: The question has been answered.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Can you give us the year or the approximate year? A. Probably 1926 or 1927.

Q. And for how long after 1926 or 1927, did you remain in the position of being attached to the Intelligence Division of the Los Angeles Police Department?

A. Well, for the last, I would say, the last ten years preceding November 1938 I was actively in charge of that Bureau.

Q. What occurred in November 1938? [3678]

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that—when did the Johnstown Flood occur? What occurred in the year 1938?

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you understand the question?

Presiding Inspector: He says there was a change in his position at that time.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you understand I was asking you——

Presiding Inspector: It is in reference to that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What happened with respect to your position?

A. I was transferred to West Los Angeles, to the West Los Angeles Division, to the "sticks", so to speak, as they call it.

Q. What were your duties then?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. I was assigned to the Detective Bureau with the Los Angeles Police Division.

Q. That is—withdraw that. I don't know whether you stated this, but I would like to know whether, during the period that you have mentioned, 1926 or 1927 until November 1938, your position was the head of the Intelligence Division, I think you said?

A. I said ten years preceding November 1938 that I had been——

Q. (Interposing) The head of it? [3679]

A. Yes. Prior to that time I was connected as an investigator with it.

Q. Now, in November 1938 I think you said that your position as head of the Intelligence Division was terminated, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then when did you become the liaison officer with the functions that you have described?

A. To the best of my recollection, as I stated before, at the time the President addressed his letter to all law enforcement agencies to cooperate with the various Governmental agencies in the matter of national defense and internal security.

Q. Was there some special designation or assignment made with respect to yourself?

A. At that particular time I was designated as a liaison officer.

Q. By whom were you then so designated?

A. By the then Deputy Chief of Police, or Chief of Police, of the Department.

Q. Of the City of Los Angeles? A. Yes.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Do you remember his name?

A. Well, I don't know. I received a transfer and was told to report to the Deputy Chief of Police in charge of Investigation.

Q. While you were head of the—withdraw that. I want [3680] to ask you, so I can use this same expression, exactly what was the name of the Division or the Department of which you were the head for the ten-year period before November, 1938?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question. Counsel has already asked him that a number of times.

Presiding Inspector: He wants to know what the name was now.

A. The Intelligence Bureau.

Mr. Gladstein: The Intelligence Bureau.

Presiding Inspector: We will take a short recess.

[3681]

Mr. Gladstein: Ready, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, the Intelligence Bureau of which you were the head, is that still in existence?

A. Of which I was the head?

Q. Yes.

A. It is obvious it couldn't be in existence. I am no longer there.

Q. No; I say the Intelligence Bureau of which you say you were the head between 1926 and——

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. (Interposing) No, that is no longer in existence.

Q. When did it cease to exist?

A. With my transfer.

Q. Now, you were served with a subpoena, were you not, to bring certain documents to this Court?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you bring documents in response to that subpoena?

A. I brought such documents that were left, that I could find, in answer to the subpoena, that hadn't been taken by some Communist out of our files.

Q. What do you mean by that, Mr. Hynes?

A. I mean that——

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, at this time may I [3682] ask that I be permitted to see the affidavit upon which this subpoena was issued so that I may——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) The District Director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Were copies retained?

Presiding Inspector: No.

The Witness: I have mine.

Presiding Inspector: The witness has it.

Mr. Del Guercio: May I see it?

Presiding Inspector: It is just a subpoena, though, not the affidavit.

The Witness: I have a statement here.

Presiding Inspector: Let me see what it is.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

(Whereupon, the witness handed the document referred to to the Presiding Inspector.)

Presiding Inspector: (Examining document) No, it is simply the subpoena. You may look at it.

(Whereupon, the document was handed to Mr. Del Guercio.)

Mr. Del Guercio: The subpoena. What I had in mind was the affidavit presented to your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: That has gone to Mr. Wixon.

Mr. Del Guercio: That has gone to Mr. Wixon.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, you made a statement that you brought in response to the subpoena such documents as you [3683] could find which had not been taken out of the files by some Communists.

A. I said by a Communist.

Q. By a Communist? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you mean by that?

A. I mean that the LaFollette had in its service —not in its employ—an employee loaned to them by the National Labor Relations Bureau who is a Communist.

Q. Whom are you referring to?

A. I am referring to Mr. Dave Sokel.

Q. Do you know him to be a Communist?

A. Well, I think I know him to be a Communist, yes.

Q. Do you know him to be a Communist of your own knowledge?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. Yes, I know him to be a Communist. I know he has addressed meetings and substituted for William Schneidermann, ILD meetings at Los Angeles years ago. I know that I signed——

Q. (Interposing) How many years ago?

Mr. Del Guercio: Let the witness answer. He hadn't finished his answer.

The Witness: I know that in September, 1928 when he resides on Kent Street that he signed a petition to put the Communist Party on the ballot.

By Mr. Gladstein: [3684]

Q. What else do you know about him?

A. He also signed a petition at the same time to put the State Chairman of the Communist Party on the ballot, Anita Whitney. Oh, I know in a general way through sources of information that he was very closely connected with the Communist Party, at one time was associated with the Council for the ILD.

Q. Let's see if we can summarize this. In 1928 you say that he signed a petition——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Why summarize? You have got it all.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, is that all the information upon which you base the statement that Mr. Sokel is or was a Communist?

A. I would say that the statement alone that he signed a petition to put the Communist Party on the ballot tended to indicate his leanings toward Communism.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Do you know how many people there were who signed such petitions in 1928?

A. Yes, there was quite a number of them.

Q. About a hundred thousand, wasn't there?

A. I know a lot of them disowned such statements after they found out that put them on record as being a Communist.

Q. You say when they—— [3685]

A. (Interposing) Judge Beardsley in Los Angeles came out and said anybody that signed those petitions had put themselves in the position of being a Communist.

Q. Weren't there about a hundred thousand people who signed such petitions?

A. I wouldn't say one hundred thousand, no. I would say I have the signatures in Los Angeles of possibly four or five thousand, or six thousand that signed them.

Q. That is in Los Angeles alone?

A. That I had in my possession. That is all I was able to get ahold of at that time; there may have been more.

Q. All right. Now, you say he took some documents from the files?

A. He had charge of the LaFollette investigators whom the Police Department knew nothing about, who they were, or as to their background, and he had a number of people working for him on the Police Department files.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Do you know who these people were?

A. The Police Department was never given any information as to who they were, no list of who they were, or never were they given a list of documents that were taken from the files of the Police Department, never were.

Q. Excuse me a moment. Did these people take documents from files of the Police Department?

[3686]

A. Well, they had taken them over there, had them photostated, took them from our office to copy, took them away from the Police Department, out of the Police Department hands. As a matter of fact, a lot of them appeared in the Bridges' hearing last year. You people had them up here.

Q. Were you present at that hearing?

A. No. I know you called for them. You advertised certain ones; you sent down and had me sign an affidavit on one that we couldn't find in our files.

Q. Do you remember which one that was?

A. You have the affidavit; I made an affidavit.

Presiding Inspector: Just answer his questions.

The Witness: The one from the Portland Police Department, that was missing from the files. We have never been able to find it since.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Hynes, wasn't that request made for a letter from Harper Knowles, or rather from Larry Doyle, Stanley M. Doyle to

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Harper Knowles? I withdraw that. As a matter of fact, the letter that was requested by subpoena in that case two years ago, Mr. Hynes, was a letter from Stanley M. Doyle to you containing references to John L. Leech, wasn't it?

A. No, that is not the letter that I gave the affidavit for. [3687]

Q. You made an affidavit, I think you said concerning that letter, did you not?

A. I made an affidavit, concerning a letter, yes.

Q. That is the letter that was requested?

A. Some letter that you requested, yes.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: I am waiting until they have examined it.

Presiding Inspector: That is so; Mr. Del Guercio is reading.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, I will show you what purports to be a photostat of an affidavit purporting to have been made by yourself on the first day of September, 1939 and which bears on it a designation "Alien 136", it having been an Exhibit in the last case. I will ask you to examine it——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If the Court please, I believe that counsel—of course, this is his witness, I realize—should state to the Court and to the witness that the letter is not one, as he stated, from Stanley M. Doyle to John L. Leech, but from Stanley Doyle to Hynes.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I did so state and if Mr. Del Guercio would keep his ears open he would have heard that. I will have the last question read back.

Mr. Del Guercio: My ears may not be as big as yours.

Presiding Inspector: Now, just a moment. Let's not get [3688] into these controversies?

What was the question?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Mr. Gladstein: I don't think there is anything in the Exhibit I am showing the witness which will show that I have misled the witness on that question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, I want to ask you——

A. (Interposing) There is no reference in here to John L. Leech that I can see.

Q. Mr. Hynes, I want to ask you whether you recognize the document you have in your hands as being a photostat of the affidavit which you submitted in the 1939 hearings?

A. (Examining document) Yes, this is the one. I apparently signed the affidavit that I made down there.

Q. You recognize your signature or a photostat of it?

A. Yes, but I don't see any reference here to Leech in here.

Q. All right. Now, let's read that.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

"State of California——"

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, I object to reading the document.

Presiding Inspector: What is the point of this?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, this is the document, your Honor, which the witness says—this is the letter which he says [3689] we produced in the way that he has already characterized before I read it.

The Witness: I didn't particularly only limit it to one document.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

The Witness: I said several documents.

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. What is the point of it?

Mr. Gladstein: I will come to that in a moment.

Presiding Inspector: Are we going to have something material from this witness?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I don't suppose you would call him if you weren't. It seems to have run off on a side issue.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, do you know whether or not we obtained a copy of that letter to you from Stanley M. Doyle, from Mr. Doyle?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to any reference——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't know anything about the letter. There was a letter that was not found.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Hynes said it was not found. [3690]

The Witness: Not found.

Mr. Gladstein: He said we called for it. He tied this up with the missing documents in the files.

Presiding Inspector: Well, what difference does it make? Now, there isn't more, is there?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I want to pursue this on the basis of the witness' statements as to where this letter came from. I think we have a right to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I don't understand the point you are getting at, nor the purpose of it. I don't understand about the letter.

Mr. Gladstein: The witness first of all has made certain statements, your Honor, which I intend to show are not true and which I will claim reflect his hostility to us and which I will ask the Court to take into consideration as one of the bases for permitting me subsequently in this examination——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) So far he has not acted as though he were hostile.

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——to ask leading questions.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think you have any ground to complain about it.

Mr. Gladstein: I will show—I will offer to show that his relationship to the cause, to this case, to the defense is such that we have a right to treat him as an adverse or hostile witness. Now, he has already made statements with [3691] respect to a letter that we requested in the 1939 hearing.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: These statements are in the record.

Presiding Inspector: The statements are. As I understand it, the letter was not in his files and he made an affidavit to that effect. Now, what more is there?

Mr. Gladstein: That isn't all. He also said that the letter was not in his files and he said that there were documents taken by a Communist and that these documents either showed up in our possession during the last hearing or that we asked for them.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, he mentioned one specific document, that is the one that was requested, and this is the one which is in the affidavit that I have just shown him, the photostat that I have just shown Mr. Hynes.

Presiding Inspector: Haven't you got everything that you want?

Mr. Gladstein: Not yet.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want to prove the contents of that letter?

Mr. Gladstein: No; I may want to do that later on.

Presiding Inspector: Unless you want to do that I shouldn't think there would be much use in going further.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I first want to ask this question:

[3692]

Presiding Inspector: Of course, you have a right to ask anything you think is proper.

Mr. Gladstein: I want to ask him whether he can state of his own knowledge that we did not get a copy of this letter mentioned in Mr. Hynes' affidavit from Mr. Doyle.

Presiding Inspector: Well, how would he know that?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that.

Mr. Gladstein: I want that in the record. Of course, he wouldn't know that. He made a statement as to where we did get it. Of course, he doesn't have any knowledge as to that.

Presiding Inspector: I know, but people have been testifying here to hearsay right straight along.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I know.

Presiding Inspector: You have asked it right straight along and your adversary has asked it.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, but we don't have to sit here and not be able to examine a witness who makes charges of that sort and we haven't a chance to——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't think there are any charges so far.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I construe them as such.

Mr. Del Guercio: He brings the witness up here, makes his issue and then argues about it. I wonder what we are trying to do here. [3693]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Well, we are trying to get ahead with this Bridges' case.

Now, go ahead, Mr. Gladstein, if you think this is proper.

Mr. Gladstein: I do.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, you have no knowledge, do you, but what this letter sent by Larry Doyle to you, or a copy of it, might have been obtained by the defense counsel in the 1939 hearing from Mr. Doyle?

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, I will object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: I will sustain it. Now, you are examining him as to possibilities. I can't understand how they are material.

Mr. Gladstein: I will ask it this way:

Q. Do you have any knowledge, Mr. Hynes, as to where the defense counsel obtained information concerning—or a copy of the letter from Doyle to you mentioned in your affidavit?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that as being incompetent and immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I will take that.

That is, have you any information, any knowledge—— [3694]

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Any knowledge.

Presiding Inspector: Any knowledge as to

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

where—I don't want it by hearsay but by knowledge.

The Witness: Well, I can't say it by knowledge, your Honor, then.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. The answer is no? A. No.

Q. Now, you say that this letter did not refer to John L. Leech: It referred to him, although not by name. Isn't that true?

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, your Honor, I object to any questions on that letter at all.

Presiding Inspector: How is that material? The contents of the letter now we want, don't we? Are you trying to prove the contents of the letter? Of course, I haven't seen this document.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want to see it, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: No, I don't, unless you want to show it to me.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I will withdraw that question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, in response to the subpoena what did you bring? Do you have it with you?

A. Yes, I brought certain documents. [3695]

Presiding Inspector: Don't misunderstand me. Let me go back a minute. I am not excluding the contents of this letter, you understand that?

(Witness handed documents to Mr. Gladstein.)

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Thank you.

The Witness: There is a series of several of those documents. If they are intended to be introduced may I ask that I be allowed to submit photostatic copies in lieu of the originals?

Mr. Gladstein: No objection from me. I assume that will be satisfactory all the way around.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't know if they are going to be offered.

Presiding Inspector: Well, we will take that up later.

Mr. Gladstein: I just wanted to know as far as I am concerned. I don't want to deprive you of your original records.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, where did you obtain this batch of documents you just handed to me?

A. I obtained those from what was left, what the LaFollette Committee returned to us from what they had taken.

Q. Well, this——

A. (Interposing) They were among the files returned by the LaFollette Committee.

Q. These are files which the LaFollette Committee at one time took from—— [3696]

A. (Interposing) That is right.

Q. ——from the official files of your Intelligence Bureau? A. That is right.

Q. And subsequently after their investigation, or whatever it was, these that you have just handed me clipped together were returned to you?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. That is right.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, that isn't what the witness has testified to. This is what remained.

The Witness: Of the ones you called for in the——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Yes, I understand.

Presiding Inspector: I think that is what the witness, in substance, said.

Mr. Gladstein: That is right; that is what I thought.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. And do these documents which you handed me, Mr. Hynes, represent the actual original documents in your files prior to the removal of those documents by the LaFollette Committee?

A. I can't state specifically as to one of those documents ever being in our files, as a matter of fact.

Q. Why did you bring that, then?

A. Well, it was—it come out of the material that was in the LaFollette——

Q. (Interposing) Which document? [3697]

A. The top document.

Q. Yes. Let's put that one aside.

A It came out of the material you called for.

Q. Is this the one you mean?

A. (Examining document) It was among the documents returned by the LaFollette Committee.

Presiding Inspector: Let's see it.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Is this the document, the one I am handing to the Judge?

A. (Examining document) That is right.

Q. How about the others?

A. The others I am familiar with. They are files of ours, and the reason I say that about this document, the document is irregular as to form and procedure of our Bureau. It appears that something is typed in, the word "B-50" is typed in there afterwards by somebody on the top of the document, not in accordance with our regular procedure whatever.

Q. Yes. The balance of the documents, are, without question in your mind——.

A. (Interposing) Yes, and I have other documents here to substantiate what I have tried to tell you, and I can point out the notations.

Presiding Inspector: Well, never mind about that. [3698] We will hear what Mr. Gladstein wants to do about it. Then, we will go back to the other.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, the balance of the documents outside of the one that I have severed from the batch that you handed me——

A. (Interposing) Yes.

Q. (Continuing) ——represent the actual correct originals that were in your file before the La-Follette Committee removed them and which have not been tampered with so far as you are able to say? Correct?

A. I don't know if they are originals or not. I haven't—they may be duplicates.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a minute! I don't know if I can quite understand this question. Have all the records of the Police Department been subpoenaed or certain particular ones?

Mr. Gladstein: No; certain ones on a subject matter dealing with Mr. Chase.

Presiding Inspector: They are under subpoena here.

Mr. Del Guercio: Then, the questions, I believe, were addressed to those documents rather than all documents?

Mr. Gladstein: I have confined my questions, your Honor, to the documents which the witness has brought.

Presiding Inspector: I understand. [3699]

Mr. Gladstein: That seems to be quite obvious.

A. I would say they are all originals with the exception of the affidavit which appears to be a copy.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Yes.

A. And they were originally in our file before the LaFollette Committee came into existence, or came to Los Angeles.

Q. And since then they have been returned by the LaFollette Committee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the documents you just handed me which were so returned by the LaFollette Committee, have any of them, to your knowledge based on inspection been tampered with in any way?

A. (Examining documents) This mark here has been placed on there by me (indicating), this here, this mark here has been placed on there by me.

Q. Now, I mean tampered with by the LaFollette Committee or anybody else so that the documents as they now stand would be substantially different from the way they were before their removal from your files by the LaFollette Committee?

A. Well, I can't state as to that because—except where I have my notation of file on there, or something. [3700] There may be other notes by the stenographer or the file clerk on the sides.

Q. Can't you tell by examining the documents in your hand whether they have been tampered with in any substantial way?

A. (Examining documents) Well, I would say that the wording has not been changed.

Q. You would say that the wording has not been changed? A. That is right.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: Don't you think you better have them marked?

Mr. Gladstein: We want to examine them first. We have no no objection to having them marked for identification. Perhaps, they had better all be in a batch for that purpose, although, there should be some special designation on the one we have singled out for special comment.

Do you think that is correct, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, I think so, but if you do want to examine them first, I think you ought to be permitted to do that. That is quite all right.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, so there won't be any question raised later on, perhaps, they should be marked for identification.

(The documents referred to were marked Alien's Exhibits 16 and 17 for identification.)

[3701]

Mr. Gladstein: Alien's 16 for identification and Alien's 17 for identification.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You know a man named Azra F. Chase, do you not? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did he ever work for you as an informer? Did he ever supply you with information?

A. Yes, he supplied me with information.

Q. When did he begin doing that?

A. I would say sometime in 1937.

Q. What part of 1937?

A. I can't be specific as to that, whether it was the middle of June, July, or sometime like that, or February. I can't be specific as to that: I would say June would be closer.

Q. In what form was that information supplied you, Mr. Hynes?

A. Oftentimes in the—I had several conversations with him, and oftentimes telephone conversations in connection with, like for instance, in connection with his attending a meeting at which Harry Bridges spoke in Los Angeles. He called me on that particular meeting and told me that he had been designated by Lou Barron to attend a meeting on Washington Boulevard at which Harry Bridges was supposed to give the Party line. He called me with reference to that particular [3702] meeting.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Well, now, suppose we start at the beginning, Mr. Hynes. Do you remember how the relationship began?

A. I haven't finished the answer. You said in what form did he supply this information. I am trying to finish that answer.

Q. Now, just let me ask you this:——

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, the witness should be permitted——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) The witness is going beyond the scope of the question.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, the question is in what form.

Mr. Gladstein: In what form.

The Witness: I will stick to the form.

Presiding Inspector: By telephone message?

The Witness: Yes, documentary evidence such as you have there that I brought up, and he may have at times submitted a report, however, not under any particular number that I can recall because he was not a regularly, or an employed operator at any time.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Let's see if I have this straight. Some of the information that——

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please. The record should show what the witness testified. [3703]

Presiding Inspector: I think under the circumstances I will allow it. I think in this case I will allow it. It is true that the record shows it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Some of the information that he supplied you, Mr. Hynes, was in the form of personal conversations, others in the form of telephone conversations, and still others in the form of documents?

A. That is right.

Q. And those documents would be letters either written or typewritten by him?

A. The documentary evidence I referred to didn't refer to the reports. You are talking about reports now. He had sent me, I think, some written reports which I never made a policy to keep. If there was any information of value in them they would be transcribed on the typewriter and placed in the file, and if there wasn't they would be destroyed right then. We never made it a policy to keep written reports of operators, if there were such.

Q. Well, was he an operative?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. I told you he was not a regularly employed operator or paid operative. He may be an operative in the sense you term an operative to be.

Q. Was he an operative?

A. If you want to term him a reformer you can call any [3704] reformer an operative.

Q. Did you say he did not have a designation?

A. By number?

Q. By number, letter or anything else?

A. He had no designation as an operator. The material that I received, as I recall at that time, it was placed in the general operatives' file.

Q. How would you know from whom you were getting the information?

A. From the party that the material pertained to.

Q. Well, would he sign his name?

A. Would call me up, talk to me, tell me.

Q. If he called you you would know who he was?

A. I said "You can give me a little memorandum if you don't mind."

Q. Would he tell you who was speaking when he called?

A. Yes, if he called direct. Otherwise, I told him if he called me on the phone and somebody asked who it was that was calling to give them any number or say 59 or 60, or some number of that character.

Q. Now, have you brought the documents that were marked for identification, Mr. Hynes—are they all the documents you were able to find dealing with Ezra F. Chase?

A. That is all the documents. I brought you the documents or a report of an operator other than Ezra Chase [3705] that was made by another operator on Ezra Chase. I brought you two documents of that character that I found and the rest of them are all the documents I could find in our files returned from the LaFollette Committee, or in our files pertaining to Ezra Chase which were submitted by him, and that is what you called for, either in writing or typewritten.

Q. Did you have more than one operative in the Furniture Workers Union which Chase was a member of?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that.

Mr. Gladstein: Upholsterers Union, is the name of it. I will amend the question to say Upholsterers Union.

Mr. Myron: There is no evidence here that he was an informer for the Upholsterers Union.

Presiding Inspector: What?

Mr. Myron: There is no evidence here that he was an informer for the Upholsterers Union.

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw it and put it this way:——

Mr. Myron: He was an informer on subversive activities.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Chase was a member of the Upholsterers Union? A. Yes, I believe so.

Q. He reported to you, did he not, on activities of that union?

A. He told me of Communist activities in that union, of the membership, the Executive Board, and on other illegal [3706] activities, such as beef squads were engaging in and strikes and things like that.

Q. Did you have anybody besides Mr. Chase informing you or operating for you in that Union?

A. I had somebody that was much higher than Chase, yes.

Q. You had one other?

A. Yes; not in that particular union.

Q. No, I mean in that local union?

A. I had a party that was in a better position than Mr. Chase was to know what was going on in all the unions.

Q. No; I still want an answer to my question.

Presiding Inspector: He wants to confine it to the Upholsterers.

The Witness: I can't confine it, your Honor, because, giving an illustration, if I have a man that is an operative on what we call the Trade Union Commission at that time in Los Angeles he would be in a position to know what is going on in all the unions.

Presiding Inspector: We won't include the Trade Commission for the moment.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, do you remember the local union number of the Upholsterers Union of which Mr. Ezra Chase was a member?

A. I don't know if I do recall at this time.

[3707]

Q. It was Local 15, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir, the one Mr. Chait was in.

Q. I am speaking of Ezra Chase. You know who I mean? A. Yes.

Q. All right. Isn't Local 15 the Union to which he belonged? A. I think so.

Q. Yes. Did you have any other informant or operative working for you who was in that Local Union?

Mr. Myron: Informant on Communistic activities in the Union, is that the question?

Presiding Inspector: It is the word that the witness has himself used so I think that he knows what he means by "informant".

Mr. Myron: I think his question should include that since that is the way the witness stated it.

Presiding Inspector: We will take that as the intention. Go ahead.

The Witness: I can't say definitely that I did have another operative within the Upholsterers Local Union 15. I will say, however, I had an operative who was very close to several Communists, who were members of Upholsterers Union Local 15.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. But as far as——

The Witness: (Interposing) Other than Ezra Chase. [3708]

Q. Other than Ezra Chase?

A. I mean that they were acquainted with Communist members within the Upholsterers Union, other than Ezra Chase.

Presiding Inspector: I think we get that.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Let's see if I have this straight, Mr. Hynes. Is it correct that Mr. Ezra Chase was the only person you can now recollect who, during this period in 1937, was a member of Local 15 of the Upholsterers Union and who supplied you with information; is that correct?

A. Well, so far I would say that is correct, not only supplied—the information was not solely on activities of the Local, however, of Local 15.

Q. You mean the information that Mr. Ezra Chase supplied you? A. No.

Q. Well, we will come to that.

Now, didn't Mr. Ezra Chase report to you under the designation B-50?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, I object to that question. There is no evidence that he did.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

A. I don't know why he should report to me

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

under the designation of B-50 because that designation was given to another operative. [3709]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In another Union?

A. I didn't say in another Union, did I?

Q. Well, I am asking you.

A. No; in the Communist Party.

Q. Well, it was not in——

A. (Interposing) He may have been a member of the Union, this B-50.

Q. Of this particular Union?

A. Not this particular Union because it was compulsory for members of the Communist Party to belong to the Union of their trade.

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, I want to know whether——

A. (Interposing) I said he didn't belong to that particular Union.

Q. You say the person who had the designation B-50 did not belong to the Upholstery Union, Local 15?

A. No; he had no connection whatever with that industry.

Q. I see. Well, do you remember the circumstances under which Mr. Chase became an informant for you on matters occurring within Local Union 15?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I will object to the form of that question. What the witness has testified to is that Ezra Chase was an informant on Communist activities within that Union and not trade union activities, and I believe [3710] that counsel should so state his question.

Mr. Gladstein: What does the question say?

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. Any matters, that means.

A. I don't think the matter of him contacting me at the time related to Local 15 whatsoever, at the time he contacted me.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I am asking you whether you——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I think he means by that there wasn't any time that it was devoted to 15; it was a general matter. 15 came within its scope. I take it that is what he means.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know what he means.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Let me ask this, Mr. Hynes: How did Mr. Chase come to start making reports to you that dealt with any activities in Local 15?

A. Well, you will have to ask Mr. Chase that. He come to me and talked to me, talked generally about Communist activities in Los Angeles, and from that time on, not daily, or not every two days, but I would say probably once a week or once every [3711] two weeks he would call me on something. If I thought the information that he was submitting was of sufficient importance to write anything on I would ask him to write me a little memorandum on it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Well, do you remember the discussion, whether any discussion took place between you and him as to what kind of reports you were interested in?

A. No, he was not—as I said he was not a regularly employed operative and I didn't discuss matters, the form of reports that he might submit to our office, or things like that,

Q. You did not?

A. No; he had my telephone number. If he had any information he could call me at home. There would be no need of calling up to the office any late hour, or anything like that.

Q. Did you ever discuss with him the kind of subject matter in which you were interested?

A. I think he knew generally.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that line of examination.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

The Witness: He knew generally as a member of the Communist Party what type of information I was interested in.

Mr. Gladstein: I move the answer be stricken as not responsive. [3712]

Presiding Inspector: Yes, strike it out. Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: If you can answer it.

The Witness: No, I didn't discuss in detail with him any type of subject matter. I told him I was interested in any illegal activities of the Communists, which I considered were all illegal, no matter where they were at. I had no lengthy discussion as to types of meetings that I would like to have him cover, or things like that. I had no right to take up the man's time as I would a regular operator that was employed by me.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever discuss with him, whether in detail or not, the question of reporting in advance on strikes? A. No, I did not.

Q. You did receive reports from him in advance of strikes, did you not?

A. No, I don't recall specifically that I did. I do recall now that I received a telephone call from him one time telling me that there would likely be some trouble on a certain picket line. I don't know—I think it was the Universal; I am not certain.

Q. Which one? [3713]

A. Universal Furniture Company.

Q. Before coming here today did you see Mr. Chase?

A. Did I see him? No, I did not.

Q. When is the last time you saw him?

A. Oh, I haven't seen Mr. Chase in—I seen him once when he was out in West Los Angeles—when

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

I was out in West Los Angeles Division he came by there one day. It has probably been a year or more since I seen him.

Q. Before coming here today did you read any of the testimony that Mr. Chase gave in this hearing?

A. Yes, I read it in the Los Angeles papers.

Q. Did you read it anywhere else besides in the newspapers?

A. Yes, in the Communist Peoples World.

Q. Did you read it any place else besides in the newspapers?

A. No, I did not, absolutely not.

Q. Did you ever see the transcript of the testimony here? A. No.

Q. Did anyone ever summarize to you the testimony that Chase gave here?

A. No, they did not.

Q. Did Mr. Chase ever use the number 80 in reporting to you? [3714]

Mr. Del Guercio: Will you read that, please?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. Not to my knowledge.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did he ever use the designation B-20?

A. B-20? He couldn't have used B-20. I had an operator with B-20. That usually covers——

Q. (Interposing) I am asking you did he?

A. No, he did not.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Did he ever use any designation that you can remember?

A. No; I say he may have used the designation 50 or 60, or something like that, in calling up the office if he wanted to leave word for me to call him, or something like that. [3715]

Q. Then he could have used the designation "80"?

A. No. I told him to use 50, 60, 70, something like that.

Q. When did you tell him that?

A. That was on, oh, about the time that he came up to the office and talked to me; some time in 1937.

Q. That is when this whole thing began, his reporting for you? A. Yes.

Q. Was anybody else present in your office when he spoke to you?

A. No, I don't think there was anybody else present then.

Q. Did Mr. Chase always report directly to you or through somebody else at times?

A. Well, I would say he might have talked to other officers on the detail—I don't know anything about that. Usually, the matter of reporting information, he tried to get in touch with me.

Q. Did you give him instructions as to which person or persons to communicate his information to in the event he was unable to get you?

A. No. He was always able to get me.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. I asked you whether you gave him instructions as to whom—— [3716]

A. (Interposing) I didn't give him any instructions as to who to call.

Q. Well, now, going back to this first time did Mr. Chase volunteer, voluntarily offer his services to you or was this at your request?

Mr. Myron: I think this has all been covered, gone into before.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't think so.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it. I am not srue whether this exact matter was gone into.

The Witness: You say did he discuss it?

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. No. He voluntarily offered his services.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Was that the first thing he did when he came into your office?

A. No. I recall he called me up first and told me he would like to talk to me.

Q. And as a result of that call did you make an appointment with him?

A. Yes. I talked with him a few days later, I think it was.

Q. And that was in your office, was it?

A. Yes. [3717]

Q. Where was your office then?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. I think it was in the Klinker Building at that time, First and Broadway.

Q. How was the subject of Mr. Chase supplying you with information broached?

A. Well, he just talked generally, that he was very much dissatisfied with the Communist movement, Party, and talked generally, and gave me certain information, and indicated that he was ready to break with them, although he hadn't broken as yet with them.

Q. Did you advise him as to whether he should or should not break with them?

A. I told him he could use his own judgment as to that.

Q. Did you suggest that he might be of value if he remained in the Communist Party and not break with them?

A. I did tell him that he wouldn't be able to submit information to me if he took that course of action. I said, "That is entirely up to you."

He said, "I am willing to expose that whole damn Communist clique within the Upholsterers Union. So if you have any intention of using an operator" —and I think he did that very thing that he said he was going to do.

Q. As of the time that he first spoke to you did you suggest to him what his course should be?

A. No, I didn't suggest anything. That was later in [3718] his conversations.

Q. Let us confine ourselves to the very first time, Mr. Hynes. As I understand it— —

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: He said he didn't do anything along that line.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You said that in this first conversation Mr. Chase said he was about ready to break with the Communist Party?

A. Yes; that is right.

Q. Did you suggest to him that he would be of value to you if he did not break with the Communist Party as of that time?

A. No, I did not. As a matter of fact, I had those fields already covered. There was no need of taking on anybody additionally.

Q. Did you have an operative in Local 15 at that time?

A. I told you I didn't—I am not interested in a particular Local. The City of Los Angeles, and no other city, can cover every particular local union. There is not enough money in the country for that. We are interested in those unions which are dominated by Communists, and the A. F. of L. was also, and they wanted to get rid of them as much as we did.

Q. How long after your first conversation with Mr. Chase [3719] in your office did he make his first report, do you remember?

A. No, I don't remember. I couldn't be specific as to any date. I handle many detail things up there in addition to the operatives.

Q. Did you regard Local 15 as dominated by Communists? A. Did I?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Yes. A. I knew it was.

Q. I asked you did you so regard it?

A. Yes, I did so regard it.

Q. Then you were interested in all of the activities of that local?

A. Not all of their activities. I was interested in the activities of the Communists within that union.

Q. What activities?

A. Communist activities carried on.

Q. Well, what particular activities?

A. The boring into the leadership, and things like that, such as we have in most all of the Unions.

Q. What activities of the Communists in Local 15 were you interested in?

A. I was interested in any illegal activity that might be engaged in on behalf of the Communist Party.

Q. You were interested in a general way in any illegal activity engaged in by anybody, weren't you, as a police officer. [3720]

A. Yes; and in any illegal activity in connection with strikes. After all, the City was responsible for damage to property, or injury to persons as a result of riots and, as such, the Police had a right to be interested in that.

Q. You were interested in the question of strikes of Local 15 which you regarded as dominated by Communists, is that correct?

Mr. Del Guercio: This is all immaterial, your Honor.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it but, of course, that isn't all he has testified to.

Mr. Gladstein: But I am asking him that.

Presiding Inspector: He has said that is part of what he was interested in.

Mr. Gladstein: Let us see if he answered that. Read the question.

Presiding Inspector: He doesn't need to answer that. He already answered that. He says he is interested in the activities of the Communists there, and who were boring in and trying to get officers elected, and in their illegal activities.

Mr. Gladstein: I didn't hear him say anything like that.

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Reporter, go back and read that part where he said something about "boring into the leadership."

(Whereupon the reporter searched for that portion of the record requested.) [3721]

The Reporter: I remember that, but I have some difficulty finding it.

Presiding Inspector: Then go back to the very first and read everything up to this point.

The Reporter: Read it aloud?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Whereupon the reporter read the record beginning with the question:

"Q. Then he could have used the designation '80'?" down to and including the answer:

"A. The boring into the leadership, and things like that, such as we have in most all of the Unions."

as above recorded.)

Presiding Inspector: That is far enough. That covers what I said that I heard.

Mr. Gladstein: "Boring in?"

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: There were some other things in the last question, and his answers.

Presiding Inspector: Subsequently he said other things too, but you have been leaving that out of your questions.

Mr. Gladstein: I would like to have the balance of the record read.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly you may.

(Whereupon the reporter proceeded to read the record [3722] at the point he left off, as above indicated, and beginning with the question:

"Q. What activities of the Communists in Local 15 were you interested in?"

down to and including the question:

"Q. You were interested in the question of strikes of Local 15 which you regarded as dominated by Communists, is that correct?"

as above recorded.)

The Reporter: The last question has not been answered.

Mr. Gladstein: May that question be answered?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. The reason I interrupted was to gain time. It has already been answered, but I will allow it to be answered again.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

I tried to explain what I thought was the testimony, and you said you hadn't heard it that way. Of course, we are all apt to make mistakes.

Mr. Gladstein: Will you read the last question again?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q. You were interested in the question of strikes of Local 15 which you regarded as dominated by Communists, is that correct?"

A. Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein: [3723]

Q. Can you give us your best recollection, Mr. Hynes, of the total number of written reports you received from Mr. Chase?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please——

Presiding Inspector: If he can give it, he may.

A. Well, they were very few. I mean by a "few," I wouldn't say over five or six during the whole period of time.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Can you estimate the total number of telephone reports that he made to you?

A. Well, several, I would say; maybe 14, between 14 and 20, or maybe more.

Q. Can you estimate the total number of reports he made to you in conversations with you not over the telephone?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. Well, I don't think I talked to him over three or four times, that is, conversations.

Q. Didn't some of these reports——

A. (Interposing) Outside of the times that I have mentioned at West Los Angeles about a year ago. That is what you are talking about?

Q. Was he making reports to you in West Los Angeles?

A. I said outside of that time. I didn't include those two times. I am not including those two times. I am talking about the time we are covering to November, 1938.

Q. Didn't you understand that I was asking you for [3724] conversations in which there were reports made to you by Mr. Chase?

A. Yes. I said that.

Presiding Inspector: I think he understood.

A. You are talking about personal conversations?

Presiding Inspector: But he was just avoiding any misunderstanding about those other times. The question is clear.

It is ten minutes past four.

Mr. Gladstein: We can't finish with this witness today.

Presiding Inspector: I suppose not.

Do you want to bring something up, Mrs. Kong?

Mrs. King: I did want to bring up, your Honor, the problem of Mr. Bridges absenting himself from the hearing on Friday afternoon. He has Union business that he must attend to.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: There is no objection to that, is there?

Mr. Del Guercio: Not if the Court has no objection.

Presiding Inspector: I have no objection.

Mr. Del Guercio: Very well.

Mrs. King: Then he may be permitted to absent himself on Friday?

Presiding Inspector: So far as the Presiding Inspector is concerned; yes.

Mrs. King: Thank you. I misstated myself a moment ago. [3725] I said "Friday afternoon." I meant all day Friday, as I mentioned to you before.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will leave it entirely up to the Court.

Presiding Inspector: I see no objection to it. It is on your own request and it won't affect the validity of the hearing.

Adjourned until tomorrow at ten o'clock.

PROCEEDINGS

Presiding Inspector: You may proceed, Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. Gladstein: Ready, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Let us have a little order so we can hear what is going on.

WILLIAM F. HYNES

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (Resumed)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, when you received reports from Mr. Ezra Chase did you have any special file in which you put them?

A. As I said, I may have received three or four written reports which, if they were important, were transcribed on the typewriter and they would have been put in a general operators' file—as you will note my remarks on one of those documents there, "General Operator."

Q. General operator? A. Yes.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. What does that refer to?

A. That refers to this information sent in by informants, citizens and things like that, who constantly supply the Bureau with information, and who were not on the payroll.

Q. How would you index that material, if at all, as to its subject matter? [3728]

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I think we are getting far afield here. We are not inquiring, or making an inquisition or inquiry into the method in which the Los Angeles Intelligence Unit operated.

Presiding Inspector: No, we are not, but I will take this.

A. If the matter was of importance I would underline the name of the individual, or the organization mentioned in the correspondence, or the report, and the stenographer would make an index card and put it in the file with reference to the location of the document.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Would it be correct then that if a report of Mr. Chase discussed activities, Communist activities in the Upholsterers Union, Local 15, that in all likelihood, following the procedure you have just outlined, you would index that material under the Upholsterers Union? A. No, not necessarily. [3729]

Q. You might or might not?

A. It would be in the general file.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Well, what do you mean? Mr. Chase's name?

A. No; the general mail file on our index cards; we have the general mail file.

Q. You mean of the names that Mr. Chase might mention in his report?

A. The names of the individuals.

Q. Would it not also go into an index card of the Upholsterers' Union, Local 15?

A. No, we didn't have sufficient help to cross index to that extent.

Q. Now, is it your testimony that Mr. Chase reported to you only on Communist activities?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, that isn't the testimony. The witness already testified to what Mr. Chase reported to him on. I think the record will show that.

Presiding Inspector: I don't recall that particular question being asked. I will take it, I think.

A. Not necessarily. He reported on Communist activities generally, but on other instances he reported on some strike activities of his local, for instance, in the case of the Universal Furniture Company, as I mentioned yesterday, that several members of the Communist beef squad would be present on the picket line down at Universal and likely to [3730] cause some trouble.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever have him report to you on purely trade union matters or activities?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that question. We are injecting again the trade union activities. We are not concerned with trade union activities.

Presiding Inspector: I will take the question if I understand it correctly.

You mean did he ever report?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: You asked: Did you ever have him report. I didn't know what you meant by that.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: Did you ever report?

A. Yes. I think at times when he was on a steering committee of the Party in the Central Labor Council he reported those matters, and where he was to lead discussions for the Communist Party on the floor of the Central Labor Council in Los Angeles, I think, he reported on several of those matters.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Well, apart from Communist activities, Mr. Hynes?

A. No; his activities generally were connected with the Communists, where the Communists were involved. I was not purely interested in trade union activities as such, only where Communists were involved, or I was interested in trade [3731] union activities where a strike was called and there was likely to be violence or a gathering of persons

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

where it was mandatory upon the Chief of Police to maintain the detail under the——

Q. (Interposing) Did you ever during—pardon me.

The Witness: Under the law. I said it was mandatory for the Chief to maintain the detail there.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever during the time that you were the head of the Intelligence Bureau have agents or operatives or informers work to combat the trade union movement as such apart from——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please——

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished yet.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as being highly improper.

Presiding Inspector: I can't tell. I haven't heard the question yet. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Would you read it to me?

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. (Continuing) ——apart from Communistic activities or illegal activities in connection with the strike?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, I object to [3732] the question as being highly improper. It doesn't refer to anything at issue in this case.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I think that it may have a remote connection because of what the Witness Chase did. It may go to shed some light on the truthfulness of his statement. On that ground I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: But, if your Honor please, it isn't confined to what Ezra Chase may have——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will take it; I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want the question read, Mr. Hynes?

The Witness: No, I think I understand the question.

Presiding Inspector: That is the only ground upon which I do take it.

A. I would say no to the question and qualify it in this way: That, as a matter of fact, in matters involving organized labor, either the A. F. of L., the Railroad Brotherhood, and in some instances CIO unions, we cooperated with them in matters relating to maintaining peace on a picket line, and as to our policy of maintaining neutrality in labor disputes as such.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever have any agent or operative or informant working for you to keep union organization to a minmum? [3733]

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to the question as to the implication.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. No; I know what you refer to. [3734]

Q. What is the answer to the question?

A. They did not work for me; no. You mean I received reports covering activities of operators employed by other people which were given me as a matter of a complementary report in my office? I received many complementary reports along that line mentioning agents attempting to keep union activity at a minimum, as you said.

Q. Now, did you ever have—withdraw that. Did you ever give instructions to any such agents, operatives, or informants in connection with their work for the purpose of keeping union organization to a minimum? A. Personally, no.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: He answered. He said "No."

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. When you said "personally, no," is there some further explanation that should be made of that?

Mr. Myron: I think there is an objection to this question.

Presiding Inspector: I will overrule the objection and take it.

A. No. I didn't give any directions to any of these people at all. I accepted their information for what it was worth as a line of general information and to be informed on what was going on.

[3735]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever have any agents, or operatives, or informants, working to obtain the firing by their employers of workers who were active in organizing a union?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

The Witness: Repeat the question.

Presiding Inspector: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. No; I never had any operator that would do such a thing.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever give instructions to any agents, or cooperate with any agents, who were working to obtain the firing of workers that were active in attempting to organize a union?

Mr. Del Guercio: It is the same question in a different form.

Presiding Inspector: It is the same thing, isn't it?

Mr. Del Guercio: It has been asked and answered.

Mr. Gladstein: I first asked, and by virtue of his answer he said he didn't have anybody directly working for him, and I am now asking whether he gave instructions to anybody, or cooperated with anybody. [3736]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: He already said he didn't. But I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: Read the question.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. Not to my knowledge, I didn't give any such instructions.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you hear the whole question? It called for both an answer as to instructions and as to whether you cooperated with agents doing that kind of work.

Presiding Inspector: I won't take that unless he has cooperated along that line. He didn't have to blacklist anyone who did such a thing, and that is what your question implies. He may have cooperated with them along other matters.

Mr. Gladstein: I see. I will rephrase that, your Honor.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What I want, Mr. Hynes, is to know whether you ever cooperated with any agents, or operatives, or informants, to assist them in work intended to bring about the discharge of workers who were trying to organize a union?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. Not for directly attempting to organize workers into a union, no; never. [3737]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever have any agent, or operative, or informant, working to assume control of a union by getting the agents into the leadership in order to prevent the union from functioning successfully?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to this line of questioning on this ground: That this witness was called, I assume, for the purpose of discrediting the testimony of Ezra Chase——

Presiding Inspector: What?

Mr. Del Guercio: Ezra Chase.

Presiding Inspector: Affecting that testimony?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: On that ground.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes; only on that ground.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: It appears we are going far afield.

Presiding Inspector: I am going to give a good deal of leeway here.

Mr. Gladstein: Will you read the question, please?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. No, not to my knowledge.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever instruct any agent, or operative, or [3738] informant, to assume control, or to try to assume control over a union by getting into a leading position in order to prevent the union from functioning successfully?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that question as being ambiguous and as being the same question as the one preceding it, only different in form.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is substantially the same. There is a shade of difference and I will take it.

A. No, I never gave such instructions.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever cooperate with any agent, or informant, or operative, for the purpose of enabling them, or assisting them, to get control over a union in order to prevent it from functioning successfully?

A. That is pretty broad. I have cooperated, not in matters along that line, but I have cooperated with operatives who have sent information in who were not in our employ, but not to the extent of disrupting any union.

Presiding Inspector: Not to that end?

The Witness: No, sir.

Presiding Inspector: That is all he asked you.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever have any agent, operative, or informant, working for the purpose to create internal quarrels among union members for the purpose of disrupting the union? [3739]

Presiding Inspector: That is the detail of the same subject.

Mr. Gladstein: I realize that.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Do you want it?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: All right.

A. I had no disruptive forces working for me.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. That is, union disruptive forces?

A. Union or otherwise.

Q. Did you ever instruct anybody to, or cooperate with anybody for the purpose of creating internal quarrels in a union in order to break it up?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that as being obviously without the purpose of calling the witness.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. The idea of this is that it may reflect upon Mr. Chase's testimony in having given this information, if these things occurred and Mr. Chase had knowledge of them. He can't prove everything at once.

A. I will make the same general answer.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. "No?"

A. No. I might suggest, Mr. Gladstein, that to save time on the matter, that if you will allow me to present to [3740] you the exact scope and function of the Intelligence Bureau, so you will be informed as to what we do do in these matters relative to labor——

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. If you don't mind I will proceed——

A. (Interposing) We are quite frank.

Q. Just a moment——

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Gladstein is entitled to present his side of the hearing in his own way.

Mr. Del Guercio: But not to make an attack, or to take this opportunity here to make an attempted attack upon the Los Angeles Intelligence Unit, and that is what it appears to be.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no. Whether it has that effect or not is immaterial to the hearing. We are receiving it as bearing upon the character of Mr. Chase and his credibility.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, did you ever have any agent, or operative, or informant, work to stir up the membership in a union concerning subjects like the absence of financial reports in order to create dissension and disruption?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as being the same kind of a question and as having been asked and answered.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. I can't speak for an individual, what he does in his [3741] union. I will say I never had any employee who has done those things. I can't speak for the—your question is so broad. You say "operative or informant who has done those things." A man may have been submitting information to me and what he did in the union I wouldn't be responsible for.

Presiding Inspector: He means you cooperate with him to that end.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

The Witness: Not to that end; no.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you ever instruct or suggest to any operative, agent, or informant, that he try to stir up dissension in a union on subjects such as criticism of the lack of financial reports?

A. No, I did not.

Presiding Inspector: Is that all?

Mr. Gladstein: Not yet, your Honor. You mean on this series?

Presiding Inspector: No, I mean in general.

Mr. Gladstein: No.

Presiding Inspector: But not the case as a whole.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, you had operatives, did you not, during the time that you were at the head of the Intelligence Bureau in various union fields?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that. This is confined [3742] to——

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio (Continuing): ——this is confined to Ezra Chase.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. It is preliminary.

Mr. Myron: He has testified——

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. He has testified, I think, on this, and I will take it again. It can't hurt anything.

A. Yes, especially in those union fields in which the Communist Party, through its membership, had had designated, through certain instructions, and concentrated on certain industries on which they were concentrating.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I move that the answer, except for the word "yes", be stricken as not responsive.

Presiding Inspector: I will let it stand.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you name three or four of those union fields in which you have operatives or agents working for you?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as being clearly outside of the scope——

Mr. Gladstein (Interposing): It is preliminary.

Presiding Inspector: Wouldn't you better confine it to the things that Mr. Chase reported on?

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw it and put it another way. [3743]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You had an informant in the furniture, in Local 15 of the Upholsterers. You have already said that was Mr. Chase, correct?

A. He was an informant; yes.

Q. Did you have an agent, operative, or informant in the oil industry?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: How is that pertinent?

Mr. Gladstein: It is preliminary, and I will show its pertinency, your Honor.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Preliminary to what? The oil industry is quite a field.

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude it until you show it is pertinent. I am not finally ruling on this, but I don't comprehend its pertinency now.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I will put it this way: Isn't it true, Mr. Hynes, that you worked with some operatives who worked in the oil industry and whose purpose was to prevent union organization?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to this as not being pertinent to anything at issue in this case.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see how it is pertinent, but perhaps you want to impeach your witness.

Mr. Gladstein: I do. [3744]

Presiding Inspector: Your own witness, on a collateral matter.

Mr. Gladstein: No, it is not collateral.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, it is collateral.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Let me ask this question first: Isn't this true, Mr. Hynes, that you have at various times worked for the purpose of aiding the deportation of Mr. Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if your Honor please. There is nothing in evidence in this case that this witness has aided in that.

Presiding Inspector: He is asking him.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: But he is his own witness.

Presiding Inspector: That is all right. I will take it. I see nothing that is very important in it.

A. I assisted in gathering evidence towards that end; yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. And your personal feelings are, and for some time have been, isn't this true, that you would like to assist in the deportation of Mr. Bridges?

Presiding Inspector: Why do you ask that, Mr. Gladstein? He is your witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Once bias is established I have a right to ask leading questions thereafter. [3745]

Presiding Inspector: You have, but the leading questions must be pertinent to the inquiry.

Mr. Gladstein: I assure your Honor that we believe they are more than pertinent; they are very important and material.

Presiding Inspector: Hundreds of people might have felt that way, and hundreds of people might have felt the other way.

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw the last question in view of his answer to the first to the effect that he has worked in gathering such evidence.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. That is satisfactory.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. As a matter of fact, you worked with Captain John Keegan, of the Portland Police Department, for the purpose of discussing and coordinating the presentation of evidence against Mr. Bridges in the deportation case, isn't that true?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please——

Presiding Inspector: We can't go into the details of this matter.

Mr. Gladstein: I want to show the extent of the bias by that question.

Presiding Inspector: The extent of bias? That doesn't show the extent of bias. You have the full statement now.

Mr. Gladstein: If your Honor is satisfied there has been a full statement of the bias—— [3746]

Presiding Inspector: I think so.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: I don't say that that bias is improper.

Mr. Gladstein: Having established that it entitles me, as a matter of law, to then ask leading questions.

Presiding Inspector: Undoubtedly. I have let you ask leading questions right straight along.

Mr. Del Guercio: On the same ground and for the same purpose, counsel could call the Attorney General and show that the Attorney General is biased.

Presiding Inspector: What are you objecting to now, Mr. Del Guercio; I have ruled in your favor.

Go ahead. [3747]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, I have in my hand Part

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

64 of the hearings before a sub-committee of the Committee on Education and Labor of the United States Senate and I call your attention to those portions beginning with page 23,518 which appear under the subject matter "Documents relating to the Intelligence Bureau or Red Squad of the Los Angeles Police Department" and I will ask you to examine, if you will please, beginning with that page the following——.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Now, you are too close. I object to you standing on the witness chair.

Presiding Inspector: He is just standing——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Do you object, Mr. Hynes?

Presiding Inspector: He is just pointing out on the book.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. (Continuing) The first document which is entitled "Oil Workers Unit, Plan of Operation", the next Exhibit which is "Intra-departmental correspondence of the Los Angeles Police Department", the following document which is also "Intra-departmental correspondence", the next which is entitled "A confidential report", the next which is also entitled, "A confidential report, or joint report from agents 10 and 20", the next which is entitled "A confidential report" and which mentions Agent 20, the next which is entitled "Confidential report", the next which is also entitled "A confidential [3748] report" and continuing through until—oh, the next which is an account of Agents 10 and 20 mentioning their expenses and their mileage and so on, the next which is also "A confidential report", the next is also a "Confidential report" and includes a statement of salary and expense, page 23,532 which contains a number of statements from Agents 10 and 20, statements of expense. I will ask you to examine those and state what you recognize those to be.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) I haven't finished. How can he object until he knows what I am going to ask him?

Mr. Del Guercio: Five minutes of talking is sufficient for any question, I think.

Presiding Inspector: The question is: Will you examine them.

Mr. Gladstein: And state——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) And the witness is answering it by examining them.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, and for the purpose of the record I want him to examine them and state whether he recognizes them to be reproductions from reports.

Presiding Inspector: Are they the same ones that were produced yesterday?

Mr. Gladstein: No, no! That he brought, you mean?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: No, he didn't bring those. [3749]

Presiding Inspector: Reproductions of reports in the files under Mr. Hynes' charge?

Mr. Del Guercio: I can't hear.

Presiding Inspector: Reproductions of reports which are or were; which do you mean; which are in the files?

Mr. Gladstein: Are or were; I don't know. I will ask him.

Mr. Del Guercio: We object to the question. We also object to showing the witness that report there. It has not been shown. I haven't seen it.

Presiding Inspector: The witness need not answer until you have seen it.

After you have looked at it don't answer the question.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mr. Gladstein, the witness has examined them. I think counsel should examine it.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I will show you the part that concerns you.

Mr. Del Guercio: Thank you; I will look for it.

Now, if the Court please, without having read the contents of this report of the hearings before the sub-committee of the Committee on Education and Labor, United States Senate, the reports which counsel has asked the witness to examine, they appear to pertain to an Oil Workers Union and the Court has already excluded—— [3750]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Do you

claim that these have any connection with Mr. Chase?

Mr. Gladstein: I do, for this reason, your Honor: May I be heard on this?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Of course, I have not asked the witness to identify all of the materials in the volume that I have shown him that I am interested in.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, we are not going to make an investigation of the various work of this witness in general labor and Communistic activities.

Mr. Gladstein: I understand that, but here is the position:

Presiding Inspector: The only thing we are interested in is the testimony of Mr. Chase.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. Now, if I may be heard——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) His character and credibility.

Mr. Gladstein: I will tell you now why we are interested. Mr. Chase denied not once but many times that he ever did the work of a labor spy or work in the service of an employer for disrupting or destroying a trade union. He protested many times that his only interest was in exposing Communistic activities or the illegal activities of Communists in trade unions. Mr. Hynes has already testified clearly and definitely [3751] on record that he has never had anybody, any operative, agent or informant, work for him or be instructed by him for the purpose of doing anything except report on or expose the activities of Communists, or the illegal activities of Communists. He has said that he has not told or instructed agents or had any agents work for him for the purpose of disrupting or destroying trade unions.

We wish now to impeach this witness by these records, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Then, what will you have left?

Mr. Gladstein: Then, we will have this left:——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Suppose I don't believe him at all under the impeachment.

Mr. Gladstein: We will have this, your Honor—we will have this: According to Mr. Chase and according to Mr. Hynes Mr. Chase was doing the kind of reporting or informing that Mr. Hynes was having done for him in the running of his Intelligence Bureau, and if the facts show, by virtue of the impeachment, that that kind of work included labor espionage, union disruption, the prevention of organization of workers into unions, then, your Honor is entitled to take that into consideration in evaluting the testimony of Mr. Chase.

Mr. Del Guercio: I submit, your Honor, I can't follow counsel's logic at all. Chase has testified, as I remember the evidence, that he was present at a meeting in which Harry Bridges was to lay down the Communist Party line. Now, these [3752] other matters are collateral matters.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Is it true—what we are interested in, is it true that Harry Bridges, the Alien here, did at that time and at that meeting lay down the Communist Party line?

Now, these other matters are collateral attacks on Ezra Chase. They haven't produced a single bit of evidence so far here that Harry Bridges did not at that time lay down the Communist Party line. That is all we are interested in, not as to Ezra Chase's other activities. We are getting away from the main issue. The issue is: Did Harry Bridges, as Chase testified, lay down the Communist Party line at that certain meeting at Los Angeles.

Mr. Gladstein: Could I answer that argument, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, sir.

Mr. Gladstein: It is quite obvious that if a witness testifies to a certain matter there are a number of ways of showing that his testimony is not to be believed. For one thing, for example—this is hypothetical and I intend no reflection on Mr. Chase. For one thing, if it were shown, for example, that he was not mentally competent either at the time that he says he observed things about which he testified or at the time that he was testifying on the stand, that is direct impeachment showing the fact that there should be no credibility attached to the witness' story. [3753]

Now, there is another matter, several matters, and in this case one of the most important is one which, I hope, your Honor will keep in mind. You remember the testimony that Mr. John Horn gave ——

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I remember.

Mr. Gladstein: (Continuing) ——as to how labor spies are regarded.

Presiding Inspector: That was expert testimony, I suppose, in a way, of his evaluation of labor spies.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I was inclined to think it had little place in this hearing, but I took it.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. Let me say this: Mr. Horn testified, and he testified simply to a reflection of the attitude of trade unions generally, that a labor spy is not to be believed under any circumstances, that in the minds of trade unions——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) That might weaken his testimony.

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Chase's testimony?

Presiding Inspector: No, the witness Horn's testimony.

Mr. Gladstein: The witness Horn's testimony?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. Well, now, we are contending——[3754]

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Of course, the law has imposed upon me this decision——

Mr. Gladstein: I understand.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) Not upon Mr. Horn.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. All right. Now, from this witness—your Honor asked me a few moments ago suppose you choose as a result of the impeachment not to believe anything he says. That is all right with us. But there are documents which, if we are allowed to use them in the impeachment that we now desire to make, will establish, we believe, and we will contend will establish that Mr. Hynes was conducting a pure and simple labor busting employers organization.

Presiding Inspector: What if he was?

Mr. Gladstein: In the Intelligence Department.

Presiding Inspector: How does that make any difference in the testimony of Mr. Chase?

Mr. Gladstein: And that Mr. Chase in informing for him and working for him was doing precisely the kind of work that Mr. Hynes had done for him.

Presiding Inspector: I would let you show that Mr. Chase was engaged in any such enterprise, of course.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Now, if you could show that, that is all right.

Mr. Gladstein: There are a number of ways by which that [3755] can be shown, your Honor. In the first place, if Mr. Chase admits such a thing, that is established. It is not to be expected that he would.

Presiding Inspector: You mean it is not to be expected that he would if he is a truthful person, if he is not a truthful person?

Mr. Gladstein: If he is not a truthful person, yes.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, if he is a truthful person it would be expected that he would admit whatever he did.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. Now, we asked Mr. Hynes what sort of work his Intelligence Bureau was engaged in and he states that they were interested only in two subject matters, namely, the illegal activities of Communists and Communist activities in unions.

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, that is not correct. The witness stated that he was interested in all kinds of illegal activities, Communist or otherwise.

Presiding Inspector: Never mind. I will take it. Go ahead so I can get the drift of your argument.

Mr. Gladstein: Clearly Mr. Hynes wishes to make it clear—I think the record will support this statement—that he was not interested in trying to destroy unions, as such, or in trying to prevent workers from becoming members of unions as such. He was not interested in that sort of [3756] thing.

Now, we wish to establish by virtue of impeachment, by virtue of documents, the reproductions of which we have shown the witness, that the facts are to the contrary, your Honor, and they, therefore, stamp the Intelligence Bureau, of which this witness was the head, with respect to the kind of work it was doing, and that in turn is to be considered in evaluating the testimony of Mr. Chase who was informing for Mr. Hynes while he was in the Upholsterers Union Local 15.

Presiding Inspector: Well, now, Mr. Chase is only shown to have informed—am I right about this—in respect to a prospective strike? That is, you have that in view, to prove that? I don't know that it is yet proved because that document has not yet been received, and in respect to this Universal. Now, have we any other information from Mr. Chase?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, yes. Mr. Chase, as a matter of fact, if I recall his testimony correctly, said that he had informed not once but more than once. I think he said at least twice.

Presiding Inspector: As to Communist activities?

Mr. Gladstein: No, in advance of strikes, I think, he said.

Presiding Inspector: I think in respect to the Universal——

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I don't remember the name of it. [3757] There is no direct admission that he informed in relation to this furniture matter.

Mr. Gladstein: That is true.

Presiding Inspector: As yet.

Mr. Gladstein: That is right. Now, you see, your Honor——

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): That is all we have got.

Mr. Gladstein (Continuing): ——Here is the important point: Both Mr. Chase and Mr. Hynes called the things that were being done subversive, investigation of subversive activities. What they call by the name of Communist activities or illegal activities of Communists is something we wish to show is not that at all but is actually work for the purpose of disrupting or destroying or preventing unions of workers, bona fide unions apart from and regardless of any alleged subversive activities. They call it that; they say that on the stand.

We wish to show in actuality, your Honor, their real work is different. They simply put that name on it. Now, we certainly have a right to do that. Both Mr. Hynes and Mr. Chase used the same terminology. They say we were only interested in the Communistic activities or in the illegal activities of Communists. Their testimony is almost on a parallel on that.

Now, we wish to show by documents, your Honor, that [3758] actually what they call Communist activities here and illegal work or activities of Communists is far from that. It is actually putting people into unions to destroy those unions apart from subversive or alleged or suspected subversive activities.

Presiding Inspector: Well, so far as Chase is concerned, I think that was competent, but how is that competent in relation to a witness that you produce yourself?

Mr. Gladstein: Because we are producing him, your Honor, as an adverse witness whose bias, we believe, is clear in the record.

Presiding Inspector: The bias only goes to his credibility.

Mr. Gladstein: It entitles us to ask leading questions.

Presiding Inspector: You can't take it as proving the contrary to what he says. It is no evidence of the contrary of what he says because he is a biased witness.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, are we not entitled——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Bias merely goes to the credibility and affects its believability. It doesn't establish affirmatively the opposite.

Mr. Gladstein: When I used the word "biased" I actually meant a hostile witness in the sense——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Suppose he is a hostile witness?

Mr. Gladstein: Then, I think we have a right to [3759] impeach him.

Presiding Inspector: Suppose he is a very hostile witness and you say: Were you on the corner of Market and Fourth Street on January first at 1:00 P. M. and he says "No?" Now, he is a hostile witness. That doesn't prove he was there.

Mr. Gladstein: I understand that.

Presiding Inspector: Now, I think you are overlooking that feature. You don't prove the opposite by proving that a hostile witness says something. You may rely on it as tending to establish that it is not true because of his bias or hostility, although, that is a question for the trier of the facts but it is no proof of the opposite.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Well, can I not do that? I wish to ask him leading questions now with respect to these documents.

Presiding Inspector: You have done that. Don't complain about that because I have already allowed you to do that.

Mr. Gladstein: I say with respect to these documents or reproductions.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, anything.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, it may well be that Mr. Hynes, upon having his recollection refreshed, will say yes, he recognizes these documents and he remembers them. I don't know what he will testify in that regard.

Presiding Inspector: Are they pertinent to the issue? [3760]

Mr. Gladstein: I am sincere in my conviction they are.

Presiding Inspector: Aside from showing bias on the part of this witness?

Mr. Gladstein: They reflect the anti-labor character activities of the Intelligence Bureau of which he was the head, the union breaking policies and activities, in my opinion.

Now, your Honor may differ with me but that is what I believe is established by these documents.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't either agree or not agree because I have never seen the document.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you wish to see it?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: There are about ten or fifteen pages.

(Handing document to the Presiding Inspector.)

Mr. Del Guercio: May I be permitted to say something, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, certainly.

Mr. Del Guercio: The Witness, Ezra Chase, has testified that all the information he gave to Mr. Hynes here or the Intelligence Bureau was information concerning illegal activities within the union or otherwise, and activities of the Communist Party whose every activity, I say, are illegal.

Now, certainly neither counsel nor anyone else would [3761] brand a witness, an American citizen at that, for giving information to duly constituted authorities on illegal activities of any one or group of persons, and that is exactly what counsel is trying to show. There isn't any evidence in this case, none has been produced and none will be produced by the Government, of any purely labor activities in the CIO or in the A. F. of L. And, I believe, that counsel in his question of this witness should be limited to that extent.

It seems that we have to repeat every day that we are not trying labor unions; we are not trying the Los Angeles Police Department; we are not trying the Portland Police Department. We are trying to try the Alien here and this is all a smoke screen, in my opinion.

Presiding Inspector: Well, how far does this go, this offer?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, there are a number of subject matters covered.

Presiding Inspector: Well, of course, these are a number of documents on different matters.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, they are.

Presiding Inspector: I think you better take them up one by one.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, first of all did you examine the pages that I referred you to? [3762]

A. Yes, I have examined them.

Q. And can you recognize that on those pages appear reproductions——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Don't answer this.

Q. (Continuing): ——of reports, or whatever the documents appear to be, that were actually in the files of the Los Angeles Police Department Intelligence Bureau?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, your Honor, as being nothing pertinent to the issues in this case or to any witness who was produced in this case.

Presiding Inspector: I know it is merely introductory. I will let him say whether he can or cannot recognize these documents.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

The Witness: Yes, I can recognize the documents. I would like to qualify that answer. I recognize those documents and——

Mr. Myron (Interposing): That is sufficient; that is the answer.

The Witness: No; I want to state—counsel made certain charges about those documents.

Presiding Inspector: We don't care about counsel.

Mr. Myron: Wait a minute. I think he has answered the question.

Presiding Inspector: Counsel are merely representing their particular sides in this case. You must not take as [3763] evidence anything they might say.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Then, Mr. Hynes, would it be correct to say that the documents beginning from 23,518 and running through to 23,532, on which the financial statements of account are to be found, are recognized by you as a correct reproduction of documents which were in your files and under your supervision while you were the head of the Intelligence Bureau?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that as being——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): I will take that. I haven't received the documents yet.

Mr. Del Guercio: In the first place, it isn't a document.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Oh, well, we will treat it as such.

The Witness (Examining document): I would like to refer to these by the actual Exhibit numbers given here because there are some of these things that—like on inter-departmental police correspondence that has no particular date on them and don't appear to have been made by anybody in my office.

Presiding Inspector: Well, do you recognize those as having been in your office?

The Witness: I recognize those.

Presiding Inspector: While you were head of the depart- [3764] ment?

The Witness: Yes, I do. However, your Honor, I would like to say this here with respect to these documents, that the LaFollette Committee has—I was a witness before this Committee and at no time were any of these documents presented to me to identify.

Presiding Inspector: Well, that is all right. You identify them now as having been in your department?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: These are copies?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, I want to refer to the first and read it to you.

Mr. Myron: We object to that.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: We object to the reading, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I have got to read it again.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Because I glanced through them very rapidly.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want to start at the first?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Whereupon, Mr. Galdstein handed document to Presiding Inspector.) [3765]

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if the Court please, you will recall that in permitting this witness here to answer the questions propounded by counsel it was on the ground that they were intended for the purpose of impeaching the testimony of the Witness Ezra Chase and only for that purpose. It is obvious now that he was asking those questions not for that purpose but for the purpose of impeaching, or attempting to impeach his own witness, and on that ground alone I think the matter should be excluded.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, I can't——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): Well, he said certain things about Chase that bear upon the issue here as to his credibility, this collateral issue. Now, to show that this witness is not a credible witnes on that particular question I think I will allow him to show that, although this doesn't necessarily bear on anything from Mr. Chase.

Mr. Gladstein: No, it is true I can't prove it all at once. There will be something on Chase.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: These are his employees.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. This is the first one.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it on that ground, mainly to bear on the credibility of this witness. We are not going to investigate, as an independent issue, the conduct of the Police Department.

Mr. Gladstein: No, I understand.

Presiding Inspector: Of Los Angeles. [3766]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to counsel reading it.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it on the narrow point that I have suggested.

Mr. Del Guercio: The objection is not to that.

Presiding Inspector: That is, as affecting the credibility of this witness.

Mr. Del Guercio: The objection is not to that. The objection is pointed to counsel reading it. I think the witness should read it.

Mr. Gladstein: I prefer reading it. You can watch me so I don't misread it.

Presiding Inspector: I will let you read it because we have pursued that practice.

Mr. Myron: Is this a question, the reading of this by counsel?

Presiding Inspector: No, I don't know exactly what it is.

Mr. Gladstein: I desire to read into the record——

Mr. Myron (Interposing): We object to reading this into the record.

Mr. Gladstein (Continuing): ——the first document identified by the witness.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: You may read it.

The Witness: May I say something in connection with this?

Presiding Inspector: Yes. [3767]

The Witness: Regarding the operator he claims——

Presiding Inspector: He doesn't claim that was Mr. Chase.

The Witness: He claims that it was an operator of mine, which it was not.

Presiding Inspector: We will hear this.

Mr. Gladstein: This is Oil Workers Union Exhibit 10220, Plan of Operation.

Presiding Inspector: Now, don't you think, before you read that, we ought to know where that came from, who issued that, and so on?

Mr. Gladstein: You mean this document?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: The witness identified it as being in his files. If he wishes to add anything further concerning that, all right.

I would like to read it and then ask him concerning this.

Mr. Myron: We object to that because he hasn't identified it, and the document isn't in issue in this case at all.

Presiding Inspector: We ought to know what the set-up in the Department is; if anybody issued orders besides himself, or whether he was under some other person.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Let me ask this: Mr. Hynes, in these documents that you have recognized there are references to Agents 10 and 20. Did you know those men?

[3768]

A. I knew one man, but he wasn't employed by me.

Q. Did you ever give them instructions?

A. I never gave him any instructions.

Q. You are sure about that?

A. Yes, I am positive.

Q. You received reports from them?

A. They sent in information like other people did, but you cannot show—I defy you to show that he has ever been on the payroll of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Q. Did you ever pay their expenses?

A. I didn't pay their expenses, you can't show that either.

Mr. Del Guercio: In view of the testimony——

Mr. Gladstein (Interposing): Let us confer a moment.

Mr. Del Guercio (Continuing): ——I renew my objection to any reference being made to those documents—and I say "documents" for lack of another name. All that has been shown so far is that this Committee has printed into its record letters which were found—I don't know whether found or how they were found—in the possession of the Los Angeles Police Department. There is no evidence that this witness collaborated either in their preparation or that he gave instructions in their preparation, or that he employed the persons who submitted those reports.

Under those circumstances, and that is all the evidence we [3769] have here, how can they be shown and be permitted to be used to impeach their own witness?

Mr. Gladstein: Could I ask some further questions of the witness?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. How did these reports come to you?

A. I told you in my testimony before that in the course of the operations of our Bureau we receive many complimentary reports. They may be from persons who are working for outside employers, who gave that information, and which we accept at its face value. We don't try to evaluate the information in any way. They come up to me and talk to me about it, and come up to hand me a report, maybe.

Q. Well, now, you notice it says "Statement of Account"—page 23532—"of Agents 10 and 20". Where did you get those?

A. He probably gave me a complete file of his operations on that matter.

Mr. Myron: He said before he didn't see that.

The Witness: In the first place——

Mr. Myron (Interposing): There is no question pending.

The Witness: I was going to refer to those documents.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: There is no question pending.

Mr. Gladstein: My associate is more familiar with the [3770] contents of these documents than I am, and there will be some delay if I continue with the examination along this particular line. If there isn't any objection I would ask leave to permit Mr. Grossman to continue with the witness.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. I will permit this. He says he is more familiar with the document and it will expedite the hearing. I will permit it.

I would like to ask a question or two about your office. You had a file there from which these documents, as you call them, came?

The Witness: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: It was under your control?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Your exclusive control?

The Witness: At that time; yes. My files were turned over on November, at the end of November, 1938, and they were taken to the City Hall. After that I had no more jurisdiction over them. They were given to the La Follette Committee by the Mayor, and the Chief of Police; to go into them. There was no representative of the Police Department there at any time while these files were being searched, and they took matters from those files, and violated the confidence of the Mayor and the Chief of Police in taking matters relating to the Civil Service expense account of the Department, which they had no right to take. [3771]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Who was your superior in your organization, in your department, at that time, the Mayor?

The Witness: The Mayor is the chief law enforcement officer; yes, sir. But under him is the Chief of Police.

Presiding Inspector: The Chief of Police?

The Witness: I was responsible to the Chief of Police.

Presiding Inspector: Did the Chief of Police give any orders in the direction of anti-Communist activities, or did you have that exclusively?

The Witness: I had that exclusively to this extent: That I had to draw up a plan of the scope and operation of the duties of my department, which I did, and which I have here and am willing to submit, showing in detail the type of activities that our bureau engaged in. It shows the cooperation with labor unions, cooperation with employers of labor, and employees, things of that character.

Presiding Inspector: I will let you read the first document into the record.

Is it dated?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, sir. It is dated November 3, 1933. I think that is the date. No—November 8, 1933.

It is entitled:

"Plan of Operation.

"In combating the union movement concerning which Agents 10 and 20 have been reporting, following is the plan of opera-- [3772] tion proposed by them:

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

"Agents will concentrate their work to keep the organizing of the men to a minimum for the immediate present and as an ultimate and to disrupt the movement entirely. To accomplish these objects Agents will use many methods successful in the past, the principal one of which is to assume leadership and to secure the removal of aggressive, efficient organizers.

"The most aggressive among union organizers and usually radicals and Agents who will turn the names of all such over to the Department of Justice and to the Police in such cities and towns as are administered by officials not in sympathy with radicalism.

"Workers who are active in organizing will be reported to their several employing companies so that they may be transferred or discharged. Agents will keep the union treasuries to a minimum by getting the officers to spend money foolishly, in order that no strike benefit fund may be accumulated. Agents will keep notices of meetings and literature from reaching the men to a great degree.

"The movement will be discouraged by securing men employed by the companies to talk to their fellow-employees against the union. Agents already have several contacts of this sort who do not like unions and who can be depended upon to discourage the movement. Within the union itself, Agents will promote internal dissension among the members and among the officials and organizers. [3773]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

"It will be possible to assume control over the organizing of the Foremen and Inspector's Union so that this organization will not function in the manner expected by the union officials.

"All union meetings, organizational conferences and official committee meetings will be covered and reported by Agents in all sections from Long Beach and Ventura to Coalinga, Taft and Bakersfield.

"Agents will secure all information on sabotage, prevent a strike and block every move of the union which holds any promise of effectiveness. The numerical strength of the union will be kept within safe bounds and later disrupted, officials and organizers will be encouraged to dissipate their efforts in fruitless channels, internal quarrels among the members and officers will be purposely created, and dangerous members and officials will be removed through definite action, all by using the above described methods and by other methods known to effective by Agents.

"In addition, of course, the clients will be kept informed at frequent intervals of the activities of the union and photostatic copies of important documents sent to them.

"Agents are perfectly familiar with this work and stand very high with the American Federation of Labor headquarters in Washington, to which they have wired for credentials as organizers in this particular union. Agents already have credentials which will admit them without question into any union [3774] or executive committee meeting of any organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor or the Brotherhoods. Agents are also delegates to the conventions of the California State Federation of Labor and of the American Federation of Labor.

"Agents have devoted their time for years to this sort of investigation work and are fully trusted in all liberal, radical and labor circles on the Pacific Coast and elsewhere. They always have most valid reasons for their presence at any place or meeting so that no suspicion can possibly arise.

"Agents are also in a position to assume control of the newly organized Friends of Organized Labor, and will be able to keep this organization from having any effective influence upon the movement in any way.

"There is absolutely no danger of the clients being involved in Agents' activities nor of being embarrassed by them to the slightest degree, as Agents' methods of working preclude any possibility of their being uncovered or even suspected. Agents will always be well within the law in all their actions, and their methods have been found to be more successful than so-called 'strong-arm' methods.

"In order to handle the situation and gain the objects noted above, three men will be necessary. The cost of these men will be $10.00 per day each, plus necessary expenses, and will include any investigation wanted in the area under discussion [3775].

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

and reports will cover every section. Agents would prefer to report to Captain H. as there is sometimes considerable danger in sending reports to small towns.

"Agents do not consider that the present situation is serious, but it could easily and quickly become so. Since the NRA went into effect, organizers are more active throughout the country than ever before in the history of unionism, and now that open attacks on the NRA and the Roosevelt Administration have started by Hearst and others, American Federation of Labor officials have ordered a redoubling of active efforts to solidify the ranks of labor quickly in the event of a dissolution of the NRA set-up. Organizers are preparing literature designed to convince workers that the safety of their jobs lies in union organization. Unions elsewhere are trying to force the closed shop on employers, and the A. F. of L. is trying to get enough members in the United States, according to several leaders, to carry the next Presidential election, even if it is necessary to use the A. F. of L. Brotherhoods as the nucleus of a new Labor Party.

"Agents would not desire to remain on this investigation for the sole purpose of reporting the activities of the union. This can be secured, except for plans made in conferences of organizers and officials, from employees of the companies for a few extra dollars per week. The cost of breaking up the movement is but a small percentage of the cost which would result were [3776] there to be a strike, whether such a strike would result in higher wages or be entirely lost by the union. There will be no local strikes in this industry in the future; all workers will be called out in the event the union is strongly organized and the companies do not recognize it and accede to its demands. The cost of Agents' work will be but a small premium for the security which it will give against trouble with the unions.

"Captain H. will vouch for the fact that Agents always bend every effort to disrupt the union and close the case as quickly as possible. They do not 'string out' the job as there are many concerns in need of their services at the present time."

Presiding Inspector: I think I made a mistake in letting you read that.

Mr. Gladstein: Why?

Presiding Inspector: Because my idea was, in letting you read it, that the keeping of such a document in the files might have some effect. That doesn't in any way show that it was anything more than a report by someone to someone which was not in the police files.

Mr. Gladstein: Let me ask this——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) On that ground I move that it be stricken out.

Mr. Gladstein: Let me ask a question before your Honor [3777] rules,—several questions.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, when you were the head of the Intelligence Bureau what was your title?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. Acting Captain of Detectives.

Q. You were known as Captain Hynes?

A. Yes.

Q. This reference to "Captain H." in the document I have just read to you, do you recognize it as a reference to you?

A. I can't be responsible for what somebody wrote in a report.

Q. Do you recognize that as a reference to you?

Mr. Myron: He doesn't know. He hasn't seen it. Show it to him.

A. (Continuing) I have seen the report. It probably was intended as a reference to me, but I can't be responsible for what may be in that report.

Presiding Inspector: You are not responsible for it.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is highly prejudicial.

Mr. Gladstein: I haven't finished with the reference to Mr. Hynes.

Presiding Inspector: You don't have to prove that the sky is blue, or that the sun rises at a particular hour.

Mr. Gladstein: I wish to make—— [3778]

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) In that connection, I think we can show that those things were circularized and sent, even to Harry Bridges, and everybody else; not only to Mr. Hynes or the Los Angeles Police Department.

Presiding Inspector: I think we can only consider one thing at a time.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

I think the thin ground on which I admitted it is probably erroneous.

Mr. Grossman: May I say this: A reading of another portion, which has been equaly admitted by Mr. Hynes as being in the files, will show more of a connection than your Honor now sees, which will justify its having been read, I am sure.

I will read one paragraph——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) We object to the reading.

Mr. Grossman: (Continuing) ——one paragraph to show your Honor what I refer to.

Mr. Myron: He can show your Honor the paragraph referred to and then let your Honor read it.

Presiding Inspector: I will let him read it.

Mr. Grossman: It is brief and won't prejudice anyone:

"Regarding the plan set forth in our last report it is not wise to reduce it to writing especially when such writing is to be mailed. According to instructions received from Captain H., Agent 10 will be in Los Angeles Thursday, November 9. Agent 20 will attend the union local meeting tonight in [3779] Coalinga."

Here is another of the same type:

"On telephoned instructions"——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I thought we were only going to read one paragraph?

Presiding Inspector: I will hear it.

Mr. Grossman: "On telephoned instructions Agent 20 joined Agent 10 in Bakersfield Tuesday morning for the purpose of making out this joint report in accordance with orders from Captain H."

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Now, your Honor, I am willing, if there is any objection to the completeness of that, to read other portions, but it is quite clear——

Presiding Inspector: It is pure hearsay.

Mr. Grossman: I intend to ask Captain Hynes about these then, as to whether they refer to him, because it is quite obvious——

Presiding Inspector: It is quite obvious they refer to him, but it is hearsay.

Mr. Grossman: Then we will say, whether he admits the fact referred to, they were acting under instructions from Mr. Hynes.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you ask that?

Mr. Grossman: I will, but I want to show why this shouldn't be removed from the record, this that has been read, your Honor. [3780]

Presiding Inspector: I am not going to remove it immediately.

Mr. Grossman: All right.

Presiding Inspector: I will postpone decision on whether to strike it out or not.

Mr. Del Guercio: I think, in fairness to this witness, counsel should show this to the witness.

Presiding Inspector: He has.

Mr. Del Guercio: We don't have the original, and the Court cannot see what they are. It is obvious they were mimeographed sheets sent by someone, which may have been sent by counsel, or by Mr. Bridges, or by me, or by anyone.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: True. They did keep them in the files.

Mr. Del Guercio: We keep everything in the files too.

Presiding Inspector: They were kept in the files. In the first instance, I thought some inference might be drawn from that.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a brief response to what Mr. Del Guercio said. I think Mr. Hynes has already said, has he not, that he knew Agent 10. I asked him if he knew Agent 10 and Agent 20 and he said he knew one of them.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you ever have any conferences with Agents 10 and 20?

A. I had no conferences with Agent 20. I knew an Agent [3781] 10.

Q. Did you ever have a conference with Agent 10?

A. I have talked to him several times.

Q. Did you ever——

A. (Interposing) He came into my office once or twice.

Q. Did you ever give him any instructions?

A. No, I never gave him instructions. He was not my employee.

Q. I didn't ask that. Please answer only——

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. He did answer. He said, "No, he was not my employee," which was a very natural thing to say.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you ever discuss with him the work that he was doing in connection with informing in the oil workers union?

A. I don't recall discussing in detail any work he was doing.

Q. I am going to call your attention to the reference that was read by Mr. Gladstein at the end of the first report. I will read the first sentence of it:

"Captain H. will vouch for the fact that Agents always bend every effort to disrupt the union and close the case as quickly as possible."

Is that a correct representation of your state of mind at the time this report was written as to whether you could vouch [3782] for Agents 10 or 20 always bending every effort to disrupt the union and close the case as soon as possible?

A. That is not a correct statement.

Q. Did you ever discuss with either Agent 10 or Agent 20 what they had done or would in the future do to disrupt unions?

Mr. Myron: We object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. I never discussed with 10 or any other Agent, any matters towards disrupting of a union. If you will get the files of the Police Department you would find out just the contrary. We cooperate with the union towards maintaining peace.

Presiding Inspector: Were either of these agents, 10 or 20, Ezra Chase?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

The Witness: No, at no time. I can't say as to 20; I don't know 20.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Have you ever read these reports before you came into court today?

A. These reports?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't remember specifically. It was called to my attention by the LaFollette Committee. That is the last time I remember.

Q. Before that did you ever read these reports?

A. I may have glanced at those reports in the office. I [3783] have some recollection of it away back, but I was away off and on for a period of time.

Mr. Del Guercio: I would like to make this observation——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) I don't think we want observations.

Mr. Del Guercio: It is in connection with an objection I am about to make.

Presiding Inspector: Make your objection.

Mr. Del Guercio: In connection with these documents—a police officer, or any agent of a law enforcement agency, may have a knife or gun in their possession which was used in the commission of a crime. Does that make the officer who keeps the gun a criminal or a liar for having that gun in his possession or keeping it within the police files?

Presiding Inspector: That is argument.

Mr. Grossman: That is an observation. I can make observations too. I prefer to read this report rather than to make observations.

Mr. Myron: We object to the reading of the report.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Were you ever informed by Agent 10 or 20 that they preferred to report to Captain H. as there is sometimes considerable danger in sending reports to small towns?

A. No; there was no such arrangement discussed.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Agent 10 or 20 the reporting. [3784] the making of reports on their work in the oil workers union to you?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question. The witness already testified that Agent 10 was not Ezra Chase and has no connection with him.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. He isn't implying that he is.

Mr. Del Guercio: And that he doesn't know who Agent 20 is. The witness already testified to that.

Mr. Grossman: Do you remember the question?

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you ever discuss with Agents 10 or 20 their sending reports to you?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Do you know how you happened to get reports from them?

A. Well, I don't know. I have a hazy recollection that there is—a group of reports came in the mail comes in and whether I am there or not it would be opened up.

Q. Do you have any recollection of how you happened to receive reports from Agent 10 and 20?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object. There is no evidence that either Agent 10 or 20 sent in reports on——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) They got into the file. [3755]

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. I told you I have a recollection of talking to the man and I have a recollection of those reports of a group of them being shipped together. The only time that I really went into detail as to the contents of the report was before the LaFollette Committee investigators.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did you ever discuss with any employee of oil workers these reports? A. No, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: We object to that, if your Honor please, as going far afield.

Presiding Inspector: I think it is going far afield. Are you investigating the conduct of the Department of Los Angeles?

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor——

Presiding Inspector: Yes or No?

Mr. Grossman: To this extent: Mr. Chairman Hynes is being asked questions that transpired between him and Agents 10 and 20. I am investigating it, and to the extent that there is an understanding between these reports, I am interested.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't see how the conversations with 10 and 20 could have anything to do with it. You have asked certain collateral questions.

Mr. Grossman: I can read further. Obviously, these agents [3786] have reported on instructions received from Captain H. It has been established sufficiently, I think, that "Captain H." is Captain Hynes.

Presiding Inspector: You assume that.

Mr. Grossman: Otherwise they would not have sent in the reports.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you call them? How can you show that by hearsay?

Mr. Grossman: We are willing to call them if Captain Hynes will tell us who they are.

Presiding Inspector: Ask him.

Mr. Grossman: I will ask him.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment——.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see how you can go into ex parte statements by union witnesses, or union persons, as bearing upon the truthfulness of something entirely collateral which you may have asked this witness about.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I am hoping that confronted with these reports Captain Hynes will state that they are correct in these respects—and I haven't finished my examination yet so I have no way of knowing whether he will. If he does that that may raise the other question which you raised, of calling Agents 10 and 20.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I was thinking whether it would be pertinent or not. But how can you show that something was [3787] sent by mail, or telegram, or orally, without showing any reply to it? I don't see how it in anyway binds Captain Hynes.

Mr. Grossman: I don't say he is bound.

Presiding Inspector: It was kept in the files and it was only on that ground that I thought they might be received.

Mr. Grossman: He has done more than that. We have to be practical about this. He received not only these reports regularly which, incidentally, refer to alleged conversations with him, instructions from him, but he also received their accounts. He not only received their accounts, but reports which state in the reports that "We are sending you these reports" obviously to go somewhere else. In other words, a man is not only receiving reports which he puts in his file, but he is receiving reports which say, "I have had certain discussions with you, you have instructed me to do this, and I want you to convey this to someone, and I send you my statement of my expenses."

Presiding Inspector: Of course, the proper way to do that would be to ask him whether it refreshes his recollection.

Mr. Grossman: I am willing to do it that way.

Mr. Del Guercio: We object on the further ground—in view of the statement of counsel that he wants to investigate the Los Angeles Police Department, obviously that isn't the proper thing to do here. Who is he to investigate the Los Angeles Police Department? [3788]

Presiding Inspector: I shouldn't think you would object to it.

Mr. Del Guercio: We wouldn't object if it were a proper thing to do in this proceeding. We wouldn't object at all, but it is taking the hearing far afield and we are losing sight of the fact of what we are trying to find and that is my only objection to it.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think I am——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I have no objection to Mr. Grossman, the Communist Party, or any other Party investigating the Los Angeles Police Department. We are not a part of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Mr. Gladstein: I move those remarks be stricken.

Presiding Inspector: I will let them stand, except they probably will go out with everything else said by both parties and their counsel, when this is reported to the Attorney General, unless there is some change in the rule. The rule clearly states that all argument is to be excluded from the record.

Mr. Grossman: May we have our morning recess now, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Oh, yes.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Gladstein, I am at a loss to understand all this testimony. You claim that the witness, [3789] Chase, made reports to the Police Department. The Police Department admits it. You now want to show that the Police Department was hostile to what you call the labor movement. How is that pertinent? They still were the constituted legal authority, and if there was any illegal activity that would have to be the place that reports there would have to be made, if made anywhere.

Mr. Gladstein: It would show the character of the reports, particularly in case of oral ones that Mr. Chase made.

Presiding Inspector: We don't care about the character of the reports; they show for themselves.

Mr. Gladstein: But the oral ones we don't have of record.

Presiding Inspector: You can't show them by certain reports being in. You can show what other reports Mr. Chase made, yes.

Mr. Gladstein: If we can show the type of work which that Bureau was generally doing——

Presiding Inspector: That is too remote. If you can show that Mr. Hynes, or anyone else in the Department, had anything to do with getting Mr. Chase here, and anything improper was done in any of those respects, of course I will allow that. That is what Dean Landis allowed in the other case, in the case of the Police Department in another city. Now, no such attempt as this, that I know of, was produced before Dean Landis.

Mr. Grossman: Yes—with respect to Harper Knowles, who [3790] claimed also that his work was only against subversive activities, and so on. If your Honor will read the references in Dean Landis' report on Harper Knowles—I can't call it a finding because it wasn't precisely that—you will find a discussion showing that Dean Landis indicated there was good reason to believe—make it that way—that that about represents his sentiments on that—good reason to believe that the activities of Knowles were not anti-subversive, or anti-Communist, but generally anti-labor. In other words, he looked at Knowles, and the correspondence and admissions Knowles made, and so on, and concluded that the general work of Knowles and his organization was anti-labor and from that he concluded that it was relevant from the standpoint of showing the bias of Mr. Knowles.

Presiding Inspector: Knowles was a witness on the part of——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) Knowles had something to do with a witness who was ultimately procured. As a matter of fact, it went this far in that case: Knowles was working with Larry Doyle. Larry Doyle had procured at least one witness, John Leech. That is how far Dean Landis went. It was obvious they were all tied up in this way.

Presiding Inspector: There isn't anything of that kind here.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is an incorrect statement. Harper [3791] Knowles was not a witness. Dean Landis could have made no finding on Harper Knowles. He did not have him before him.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Harper Knowles is not in this case. We have got to stop somewhere and stop these statements, wild statements of counsel.

Presiding Inspector: I know, but I have got to hear argument. This is merely argument. It don't affect me as a trier of the fact in the slightest. It might be something that happened in some case in the Supreme Court. I merely was interested in what the legal judgment of Dean Landis was in some similar case.

Mr. Del Guercio: I believe a correct statement should be made because Dean Landis could not have made a finding on a witness that did not come before him.

Mr. Grossman: I am willing to have this case decided right here and now on whether or not Harper Knowles testified in the last hearing. Mr. Del Guercio said he didn't. I say he did. It is quite obvious that we were in the last case and we know that Harper Knowles testified as a witness, and I didn't misrepresent anything.

In the second place, as I say, Dean Landis found not only with respect to Harper Knowles, but with other people in the case, that their conduct generally was such—that is about all you could characterize it is—their conduct, and that does not mean all it, was such as to show they were really carrying on an anti-labor organization. [3792]

Presiding Inspector: Supposing the Department was carrying on an anti-labor organization, what difference does it make here?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Grossman: We can show that under the guise of a Communist investigation Captain Hynes, and his whole department—not only can we prove that, but the whole labor movement in Los Angeles knows it—was carrying on clearly a labor spy agency and known to everyone.

Presiding Inspector: Suppose that is so? We will assume, for the sake of argument, that is so. What about it?

Mr. Grossman: Then we can show that every man that gave him information, whether formal or informal information, was carrying on the general activities of that department. That is all he was concerned with. We can show that Captain Hynes received money from employers for this work; that he transferred this information directly to employers.

Presiding Inspector: What difference does it make?

Mr. Grossman: And that it was a department that had no other people to——

Presiding Inspector: We are not interested in that department.

Mr. Grossman: We are, to find out if Chase is telling the truth. We recognize Mr. Chase and Mr. Hynes, in order to cover up what are considered disreputable activities as anti-labor, and a labor-spy agency on the part of the police department, will [3793] call their activities anti-subversive. The facts are, however, that they are carrying on something definitely similar to, and impossible to distinguish from, Pinkerton, and the others, such agencies. We can prove that. Therefore, when Chase made reports to that agency, regardless of what he may say to protect himself, or his reputation, he is making reports to an agency that has no other reason for being, except as an anti-labor, labor-spy agency.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: It has some other reasons for being. You don't mean——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) No, no.

Presiding Inspector: You don't mean to state that the Police——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) Not the Police, but the so-called Intelligence Division.

Presiding Inspector: That is merely a branch of the Police Department, and that is the one taking charge of, according to your witness, Hynes, of disorder in labor matters when there were strikes.

The only question before us is whether he made this report about this furniture strike. That is the only thing that is in issue here, isn't it?

Mr. Grossman: I don't think so because Chase admitted that he made, as an estimate, thirty reports.

Presiding Inspector: We don't know what they were about. [3794]

Mr. Grossman: I say we can conclude that from two things: One, from oral reports. We do have, in the LaFollette Committee reports, and we can conclude, from the nature of this Intelligence — whatever they call it—the nature of this department of the Los Angeles Police Department which, as I say, we can prove is nothing but, never was anything but a glorified labor-spy outfit.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: That means an investigation of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Mr. Grossman: To the extent that we have to go to find the truth in this case, I think we are entitled to go. If we can't get the truth about the activities of this department from the head of it——

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you introduce the Catherman statement?

Mr. Grossman: I thought we had. We will do that. I don't think we are obliged to do that.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you come to that right now. That is the main thing here now as far as I know.

Mr. Grossman: We will offer that right now, your Honor. [3795]

Mr. Gladstein: Before we do that—all right, where is that?

(The Exhibit was handed to Mr. Gladstein by the reporter.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, I show you Alien's 17 for identification. A. Yes.

Q. One of the documents that you brought here in response to the subpoena. You were making some comments about that yesterday. I think, perhaps, you had better finish making your comments about it.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I will take it right now if you will offer it.

Mr. Gladstein: I will offer it in evidence.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Over objection, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, certainly.

(The document referred to was received in evidence and marked Alien's Exhibit No. 17.)

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Catherman swore that he received those matters and that he left notes on his desk. This was found in the files. I think it is sufficient to allow the inference to be made by the trier of the facts, if he wishes to make it, that that is such a report of a conversation which he says he directly—he, in the ordinary course of his duties was accustomed to make notations of. [3796]

Mr. Del Guercio: But not in that form, Catherman testified.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, in that form.

Mr. Del Guercio: Not in that form, Catherman testified, as you will recall.

Presiding Inspector: No, he testified as to some slight variation about it.

Mr. Del Guercio: He said he signed all of his reports either——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well, this is signed.

Mr. Del Guercio: No, this isn't signed.

Presiding Inspector: This is signed "Catherman."

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: He signed it in his own handwriting, either initialed or put his signature over all the communications he received over the telephone.

Presiding Inspector: I didn't so understand.

Mr. Grossman: I am sure Catherman will deny—I asked him if he will deny——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will receive this document. I think it is sufficiently connected up to make it prima facie evidence. It is a question for the trier of the facts.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, I want to show you on page 23,576, Exhibit 10,302 under date of 3/3/37, Report on Upholsterers Union. Will you please read that—it finishes on the next page— [3797] and state whether you recognize it.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want him to read it out loud?

Mr. Gladstein: It isn't necessary.

A. (Examining document.)

Mr. Gladstein: Let the record show that my reference was to the same volume of the LaFollette Committee Reports.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

The Witness: I don't recognize this report at all.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Not at all? A. No sir, I don't.

Mr. Del Guercio: Will you speak a little louder?

Presiding Inspector: He says "I don't recognize this report at all".

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Does that mean that you don't remember it?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, the answer is obvious. He says he doesn't recognize the report.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know what he means by that. I will allow him to inquire.

The Witness: I have no recollection whatsoever of receiving this report.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. That means, does it——

A. (Interposing) It appears as a report given by [3798] somebody other than Chase.

Q. It appears to be a report given to you, does it?

A. No; I say it appears to be a report given by some other person other than Chase.

Q. To whom?

A. I don't know. It doesn't say to whom; it doesn't say anything. It says "Report on Upholsterers Union." It has no identification on it whatsoever.

Q. Well, you had no other person in Local Union 15 of the Upholsterers at that time, did you?

A. No, but I testified also that I had a person on the Trade Union Commission of the Communist Party who could go down to the Upholsterers Union and find out any information he cared to. I didn't testify to that fact in detail, but the man on the Trade Union Commission of the Communist Party would be in a position to go to Communist Party members within the Upholsterers Union, say, the Secretary, the Financial Secretary, and gain such information.

Q. But that person would not be in a position to attend a local meeting of Upholsterers Union No. 15 and act as a member of the Union and make motions of that sort, would he? He is not a member of that union, I think you said yesterday.

A. I don't think I said——

Q. (Interposing) He was not a member of that union?

A. No; he could attend a meeting. [3799]

Q. If he was not a member of the union?

A. Well, I think so. He may be a member of another union and be attending another union's meeting, which is done in numerous cases.

Q. Do you mean to say even though he——

A. (Interposing) Harry Bridges could go to another union meeting although he is not a member of that particular union.

Q. Do you mean to say although this man on the Trade Union Commission you referred to was not a member of Local 15 he could get up in a meeting of Local 15 and make motions?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that. That isn't a question at all. It is argument.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow him to answer whether he means that.

A. No, I wouldn't say he could make a motion affecting any union matter.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. What is that?

A. No, I wouldn't say he could make a motion affecting any union matter pertaining to that local.

Q. All right. Well, now, I call your particular attention to that part of the report in which the maker of the report says "I didn't look for such a rank act and I was sure the members were pretty sore, so before they could protest Chase jumped to the floor and declared the election to be fair [3800] and square and I made a motion to elect Yost unanimously."

Now, in view of that statement you don't think it was this Trade Union Commission member, do you?

A. Well, I don't think in that case that it would be. I say—I will give an illustration, that a member of the Trade Union Commission could go there as a party member to the Financial Secretary of that Local and obtain this information on the financial condition of the Union.

Q. Now, when you were receiving information, Mr. Hynes, did your informers always sign their own names?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I will object to that, all informers. Let's stick to Ezra Chase. So far we haven't heard anything yet about Ezra Chase.

Mr. Gladstein: I want the general answer first.

Presiding Inspector: I will take the general answer.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. No, they didn't use their right names. They usually followed the Communist strategy of using fictitious or assumed names.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You mean when they were making reports to you?

A. They didn't sign their names. They used an operative's number, most of the operatives. That was——

Q. (Interposing) When they were writing their reports?

A. Just a moment. I am trying to finish my answer. [3801]

Q. All right.

A. So far as their being carried on any secret service payroll, they would be under an assumed name the same as the Communist Party carries much of its membership under an assumed name or alias or adopted Party name.

Q. When these reports were made to you in writing did the agents refer in those reports to themselves only by their first name or by their last name or in some other manner?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, this is apparently part of the same general question. He has not come down to the specific——

Presiding Inspector: I didn't hear the question.

Mr. Gladstein: I will withdraw it and ask it in a different way so your Honor can hear it.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In these reports you received from agents, Mr. Hynes, how would the agents who were sending the reports refer to themselves in the body of the reports?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that as having already been asked and answered.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

A. Generally—I don't like to have to answer that question.

Presiding Inspector: Well, if there isn't——

The Witness: (Interposing) Because I don't know the [3802] motive behind counsel's——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You don't have to be interested in that at all. You are a witness.

The Witness: Except to this extent, your Honor; I don't want to give any information that might jeopardize the life of some other operators. I don't know what reports they got from the files.

Presiding Inspector: We will have to take care of that.

Mr. Gladstein: I move that statement of Mr. Hynes be stricken from the record.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, it isn't evidence. If there is any general custom in the way these informers identify themselves in the reports or mention themselves you may state it.

Mr. Del Guercio: But, if your Honor please, I think there should be a distinction between the paid informants and the voluntary ones.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: These are the informants, not the paid. We are talking about the voluntary ones.

Mr. Del Guercio: The voluntary informers, not paid informers.

Mr. Gladstein: I don't know if there was any distinction between the two. That is for Mr. Hynes to say, not for Mr. Del Guercio to coach him in the Court room.

Presiding Inspector: I know. [3803]

A. They would never refer to themselves as "I done this" or "I done that" for one thing.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. But use a third name or some designation, third person, that is to say?

A. If he was a Communist Party member he would use his Communist Party name in the report, never his correct name, and he would elude to himself in the report as to the activities he engaged——

Q. (Interposing) If he was writing the kind of report where by speaking in the first person he would give his identity away, then, he would use some other designation, isn't that right?

A. I don't think he would ever write a report that would reveal his identity.

Mr. Gladstein: Under those circumstances, your Honor, I realize that Mr. Hynes has said he doesn't recognize this report on the Upholsterers Union, but in view of testimony which Mr. Chase gave on some of the subject matter that is covered by this report, I think we have a right to conclude from Mr. Hynes' testimony, and the fact that this appears in the LaFollette Committee Reports, that there is no denial that such a report was made. He simply says he has no recollection.

I, therefore, think I am entitled to read this to him.

Presiding Inspector: Do you claim it was made by Chase? [3804]

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, your Honor, and under the answers that Mr. Hynes has just given entirely consistent——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Who is; Chase?

Mr. Gladstein: Chase referred to himself sometimes in the first person and sometimes in the third person in this report, and he referred to himself in the first person by the name of Chase where a reference to the contrary, a reference of a different character would have revealed the identity of the person making the report. Chase, in his own testimony, if you will remember, your Honor, responded, in response to my questions, that he did make a report to Captain Hynes concerning subject matter that I asked him about.

Presiding Inspector: Then, why do you need this?

Mr. Gladstein: I want the report in the record. It isn't in the record.

Presiding Inspector: What difference does it make?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Because it shows something else regarding Mr. Chase, your Honor. I think we have a right to the whole report.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, of course, I haven't read——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Better look at it; better look at it. It seemed to me, as I glanced it over—I may have overlooked something—it is entirely innocuous or immaterial. [3805]

(Whereupon, Mr. Gladstein handed the book to Mr. Del Guercio.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, as I understand counsel, he has stated to the Court—I may be wrong in this—but Chase testified concerning making a report, making this report that he now expects to read to——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) He reported that kind——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Well, if your Honor please, without going to Chase's testimony I question whether Chase ever testified that he made such a report and, furthermore, there is something in this report that conclusively shows that it was not made by Chase, and I will show it to the Court.

Presiding Inspector: I know what you mean, about the way he used "Chase" and "me".

Mr. Del Guercio: No; this sentence "The manner in which Chase was defeated was helpful to me."

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: You remember, your Honor, I asked Mr. Chase whether his defeat in that case was helpful to him. At first he said "No." Then, I said, "Well, weren't you trying to break up this group——" and so on, and he said "Yes."

Presiding Inspector: I don't see it amounts to anything.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, your Honor——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I will receive it [3806] but I can't think it amounts to anything. Now, you may be able to point it out.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: If I may have just one other observation.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, this report was available to counsel. Counsel had it at the time that Mr. Chase was on the stand. Yet, the Witness Chase was not questioned concerning this.

Presiding Inspector: He didn't introduce this to dispute Chase as having made this report, as I take it.

Do you, Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Gladstein: We introduced that for the purpose of showing this is a report which we contend was made by Mr. Chase to Mr. Hynes.

Presiding Inspector: You don't claim that it was contradictory of anything that was said by Mr. Chase?

Mr. Gladstein: No, as a matter of fact, it tends to corroborate certain admissions that he made to us.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Corroborates certain statements?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, but gives the full picture.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, is this an attempt to show that Chase was a truthful witness?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, he admitted that he was labor spying, [3807] yes.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that is necessary.

Mr. Gladstein: That is our construction of it.

Presiding Inspector: That is his theory.

Mr. Gladstein: That is our theory.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. Of course, I don't adopt that construction, not now.

Mr. Gladstein: This report is entitled "Report on Upholsterers Union, Recd. 3/3/37.

"Have been following your suggestion of stirring up the membership about too much secrecy and the absence of financial reports.

"The result was—at the last meeting they reported the finances as a little more than $500.00 and promised a detailed report in the near future.

"They also elected a full time Secretary and Treasurer at a salary of $40.00 per week and expenses—Charlie Yost is holding the office.

"This brings the payroll to about $400.00 per mo.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

The estimated expenses per month are as follows:

"Salaries 400.00

"Per Capita Tax (This is to the Central Labor Co.——"

Referring, your Honor, to Council.

"——Per Capita Tax to the International is exempt because of the Kroehler strike) 40.00

Hall rent 25.00

[3808]

Utilities 15.00

Strike Benefits 1200.00

Misc ..... 100.00"

Then, a total is drawn.

"Approximate expense per mo..... $1780.00

"Dues 400.00 per mo or less.

"Assessments—there has been no report whatever. However, the union is sending far beyond its income. It is in a bad state of affairs, and should they become involved in a fairly good sized strike, their condition would be critical.

"In the election for a delegate to International Convention the vote was as follows:—Chase, 52; Yost, 37; Bruner, 19.

"The result—Election won and then—reported the San Diego members were voting by telephone and they called up and reported San Diego had cast its 26 votes for Yost giving him a total of 63.

"I didn't look for such a rank act and I was sure the members were pretty sore, so before they could protest Chase jumped to the floor and declared the election to be fair and square and I made a motion to elect Yost unanimously.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

"Now the members are wanting to reopen the elections.

"The manner in which Chase was defeated was helpful to me.

"Investigated the San Diego vote and Westfall went to [3809] San Diego and lined up the boys for Yost. He also split the fraction and defeated them. Yost is a reactionary.

"The Party is calling an investigation of this affair. So I am certain Chase will gain ground there.

"The Party is disgusted with the fraction and they will soon take action, so I am moving with the Party, and soon expect to get Westfall, Stawdera & Silva out of the fraction, then I will have complete control and then I can rebuild it with material of my selection.

"We are about to start picketing furniture stores."

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, that that article has been read, apparently it could not under any circumstances——

Presiding Inspector: What?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now that it has been read——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I couldn't hear it.

Mr. Del Guercio: It could not under any circumstances, reading the thing, have come from Chase, or been a report from Chase. It isn't alleged, it isn't proven, it isn't shown here that it did come from Chase, no evidence that it did.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. It establishes prima facie proof, prima facie proof only on the ground that he was the only informant that this witness said he had that was a member of this union. This comes from a member of the union because he says "I did these things," and I think that is [3810] prima facie proof that it came from Chase.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, your Honor, there was one more reference——"

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) That is the ground of my ruling.

Mr. Gladstein: There was one more reference to one of the earlier reports on the Oil Workers that was not read. It is a very short reference, I think, of one sentence. It is a reference to Captain Hynes or to Captain H, I should say. That is in the report which appears on page 23,523 of Volume 64, of the LaFollette Committee Reports and it is one of the reports which Captain Hynes identified here on the stand, and that reference reads as follows:——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) Just a minute. We will object to that. We haven't seen it.

Mr. Gladstein: Oh, I showed all these to you in a group.

Mr. Myron: You haven't shown us this one.

Mr. Gladstein: I will show you this specific one.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: There are so many of them it is hard to remember them.

(Whereupon, Mr. Gladstein handed the document to Mr. Myron.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, it appears, if the Court please, that it is along the same line.

Presiding Inspector: Is it about the conduct, internal [3811] conduct?

Mr. Del Guercio: Internal conduct of——

Presiding Inspector: Of this labor union?

Mr. Del Guercio: No, of the Los Angeles Police Department in connection with that mimeographed letter.

Presiding Inspector: Which number is this, Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Del Guercio: (Handing document to the Presiding Inspector) This one here, (indicating).

Presiding Inspector: This whole thing?

Mr. Del Guercio: No, not the whole thing. Mr. Grossman read this sentence and he stopped reading.

Presiding Inspector: Off the record.

(Discussion off the record.)

Mr. Gladstein: Well, now, your Honor,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Mr. Grossman merely read it in the course of argument.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. There are certain reports which the witness has identified as having been in his files. It would take too long, and, I think, it is unnecessary to read them all into the record, but there are certain references to a Captain H.

Presiding Inspector: These don't purport——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Which Mr. Hynes already said would refer to him.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. [3812]

Mr. Gladstein: I would like to read into the——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) These don't purport to come from Chase?

Mr. Gladstein: No, they do not; no, they do not.

Mr. Myron: We object to reading them into the record, your Honor, as not being material to the issues in the case, no reference whatever to any issue in the case.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take them. Captain Hynes can explain.

Mr. Gladstein: On page 23,523 of the same volume of the LaFollette Reports to which I have been making reference, in a report purporting to be a joint report from Agents 10 and 20, a portion of it reads as follows:——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Now, this is to show bias on the part of Captain Hynes?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

"Regarding the plan set forth in our last report, it is not wise to reduce it to writing, especially when such writing is to be mailed. According to instructions received from Captain H. Agent 10 will be in Los Angeles Thursday, November 9th. Agent 20 will attend the union local meeting tonight in Coalinga.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

"If there is any specific or particular information clients desire, Agents will be glad to secure the same, and such requests should be made through Captain H. as it would be dangerous to contact company officials in these small [3813] towns.

"On telephoned instructions Agent 20 joined Agent 10 in Bakersfield Tuesday morning for the purpose of making out this joint report in accordance with orders from Captain H."

Mr. Del Guercio: What is the question?

Presiding Inspector: Is that a part of this report which was in your files? That is the question, isn't it?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I think he has already so stated.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well,—

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Well, I will ask him the question. I have just read from it. It is true the witness has a right to check on my reading but he has identified these.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. The parts I just read, Mr. Hynes, are parts of reports that were in your files; correct?

Mr. Del Guercio: Show him the report.

Presiding Inspector: He has seen it.

A. I testified previously those were in our files.

Presiding Inspector: What do you claim for that, Mr. Gladstein? Just so I may understand. What do you claim for that?

Mr. Gladstein: I didn't hear your Honor.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: What do you claim for that?

Mr. Gladstein: This establishes again the question of [3814] the hostility of this witness and the character of work which he was conducting in the Intelligence Bureau.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, but is there anything in his testimony in respect to Chase, in respect to what Chase testified that you think is material here?

Mr. Gladstein: Anything in Mr. Hynes' testimony?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, certainly. I think in view of the reports that have been read in they definitely establish the character of the work being performed by the Intelligence Bureau under his supervision.

Presiding Inspector: You have asked him certain things about that.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: There is no evidence to the contrary, is there?

Mr. Gladstein: No, not that I know of.

Presiding Inspector: No. Well, then, you want to show that what he said was not true?

Mr. Gladstein: On what subject, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: On the character of the Police Department.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, he said previously that all he was interested in was the activities of the Communists.

Presiding Inspector: What difference does it make whether [3815] he testified falsely or truly in that respect?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: On that subject?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Because, you see, both he and Chase have used the same terminology for the purpose of covering up their real activities.

Presiding Inspector: Suppose they have, what difference does it make?

Mr. Gladstein: It tends to show the character of Mr. Chase, the character of the work he was performing.

Presiding Inspector: Do you say the fact that he gives contradictory statements or, perhaps, doesn't testify to what you think is the fact bears on the character of Mr. Chase?

Mr. Gladstein: Because he, for this reason——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Because he uses corresponding phrases?

Mr. Gladstein: No, not just for that reason, but because Mr. Chase was doing work, or informing for Mr. Hynes on the same subject matter, he says which his department was interested in investigating. Now, although they call that subject matter Communistic activities and illegal conduct of Communists, actually our purpose is to show and, I think, the record now substantiates this statement, that their conduct was not just that, or not that at all, but it was actually for the purpose—for an anti-labor and anti-union purpose. [3816]

Mr. Del Guercio: On the contrary.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: You haven't shown that. You have shown that he said it was for that purpose. You have shown that your witness so swore and now you attempt to show that he is not worthy of belief?

Mr. Gladstein: No.

Presiding Inspector: Assume that to be so, it doesn't prove the contrary. The denial in the same place doesn't prove you were there, even that you are not to be believed.

Mr. Gladstein: These documents are to prove the facts stated in those documents.

Presiding Inspector: Hearsay.

Mr. Gladstein: It may be. A lot of hearsay has been admitted. As far as these documents are concerned we charge they contain a true statement of the facts.

Presiding Inspector: Suppose Mr. Hynes was not a witness?

Mr. Gladstein: A witness to——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Anything. hadn't been called. would this statement be admissible?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, the question is one of identification. If there were other means of identification outside of calling Mr. Hynes as a witness I would say they were admissible evidence and material in the case.

Presiding Inspector: To prove that the Los Angeles [3817] Department of Intelligence, whatever we may call it, was engaged in anti-labor practices?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, and that Mr. Chase, therefore——

Presiding Inspector: Made reports to them?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, and his work was for them.

Presiding Inspector: That is very remote.

Mr. Gladstein: I think not, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Are we going to have all the departments of the state correspondingly investigated?

Mr. Gladstein: No, there was only one and that was the one that Mr. Hynes had. That is the only one I have ever heard of in the State of California that conducted that kind of work. It was notorious throughout the State.

Presiding Inspector: That may all be true, but it leaves me very cold as yet.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, we may have to make lengthy arguments on the subject to your Honor; that may be true.

Presiding Inspector: You may have to. I will take this but I don't see it is very pertinent.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, isn't it true that you received expressions of gratitude from employers for assisting them in keeping their shops non-union?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, I submit [3818] that such a question is clearly without the scope of this hearing.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: To get the relevancy of that you would have to go far afield. I will exclude it. We don't care what impressions they make, the impressions on either the labor unions or the employers of labor.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I think on that I would like the record to show, at any rate, an offer of proof, your Honor, to this effect: That if I were permitted to do so I would get either by admission from this witness or through confronting him with a document in this same volume of the LaFollette Committee Reports an admission——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If the Court please, while counsel is pausing, I would like to say that it appears that he is trying to get into the record by indirection what he could not get by asking the question.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. I will take your offer.

Mr. Gladstein: To continue with my offer of proof—I don't know where I stopped so I had better start it again. My offer is that if I were permitted to ask it of this witness I would get either from him as a direct answer or through confrontation with a document appearing on page 23,560 of the same volume of the LaFollette Committee Reports an identification of a letter addressed to Captain William F. Hynes on September 26, 1936, coming from Mr. Frank A. Garbutt, [3819] Suite 712, 411 West 7th Street, Los Angeles, a letter saying "Dear Captain Hynes:

"I believe——"

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Oh, this is certainly improper.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, you haven't heard it yet, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, you haven't any right to read the document into the record here on an offer——

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I will summarize it.

Presiding Inspector: (Continuing) ——and have the same effect as if it is in the record.

Mr. Gladstein: I will summarize it.

Presiding Inspector: No, you can identify it by a mark, not read the letter.

Mr. Gladstein: I have identified it to the extent it appears on page 23,560, being Exhibit 10276 on that page. I think, for the purposes of identification, that I should state——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I won't let you state the contents.

Mr. Gladstein: I merely want to identify it by one reference.

Presiding Inspector: No, you have identified it sufficiently. There is no question about it. Unless you show it to me. [3820]

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I will. It starts at the bottom of the page (Handing document to the Inspector.).

Presiding Inspector: I should think, perhaps, the Government would allow that to go in.

Mr. Gladstein: You think they would?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I should think they would.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't know what it is, if your please. Whether or not it is favorable to the Government or not, my only interest is in the record here, that it is getting so lengthy. We are losing sight of the real issue.

Presiding Inspector: I haven't lost sight of the real issue.

Mr. Del Guercio: (Examining document). We have no objection to having it read.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By virtue of what amounts to a stipulation, then, I will read it into the record.

Mr. Del Guercio: Not by virtue of a stipulation.

Presiding Inspector: He means without objection.

Mr. Gladstein: The letter is as follows:

"Frank A. Garbutt

"Suite 712—411 West Seventh Street

"Los Angeles, California, September 26, 1936.

"Capt. Wm. F. Hynes,

"Los Angeles Police Department,

"Los Angeles. [3821]

"Dear Capt. Hynes: I believe our boat builders' strike at San Pedro is practically over and, due to the wonderful protection that you gave us in maintaining law and order, I am happy to say that the shops are running non-Union.

"We want to express our appreciation of the fine type of men detailed for this job. They were fair to all concerned and their firmness in maintaining order is responsible for there having been no violence whatever.

"If we can reciprocate at any time, kindly let me know.

"Sincerely,

FRANK A. GARBUTT."

I think, perhaps, we ought, for the purpose of the record, to have some identification of the man if Mr. Hynes is in a position to give it.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, are we going to try Garbutt?

Mr. Gladstein: No; just to find out who he was.

Presiding Inspector: Did you receive that letter?

The Witness: Yes, I received that letter. I received numerous other letters from unions along the same line praising our fairness in the handling of labor disputes, particularly in the 1934 maritime strike at San Pedro from the International Longshoremen's Association.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You received letters? [3822]

A. Yes, letters of appreciation.

Q. From the Union?

A. From the Union officials, passed by the Executive Board of the Union.

Q. Do you have those in your possession?

A. No; they can be subpoenaed from the files of the Mayor's office.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Do you have any objection to our getting those?

Mr. Del Guercio: He said they are in the Mayor's office. Get them from the Mayor. The Mayor has them.

A. The Mayor has them.

He has asserted our office is anti-labor. I can bring thirty-five to forty members, leaders from the A. F. of L. to just show the contrary.

Mr. Gladstein: I move that be stricken out.

The Witness: That is the truth. I can bring six or seven CIO leaders up here too if it was not for the fact——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Wait a moment. I will strike out everything after the question and answer about, "Do you object to our getting those?" These last voluntary remarks I will strike out of the record.

Mr. Del Guercio: I assume that counsel would want to be fair in this matter and would try and get those letters.

Mr. Grossman: We are perfectly willing, your Honor, if your Honor will permit us, to make an issue in this case generally of the reputation of Mr. Hynes for anti-labor acti- [3823] vities. We are perfectly willing those should go in. If he thinks he can make a case he is not anti-labor we will make an issue of it and prove the contrary, if Mr. Del Guercio wants that.

Presiding Inspector: Let's not have these by-lines.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Grossman: I will accept Mr. Del Guercio's proposal to that extent.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, did you ever——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I can't hear counsel.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, did you ever cause Mr. Bridges to be shadowed by your men?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I will object to that. What difference does it make whether he had been shadowed or not unless——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't know, but I will take it.

A. I testified that I made an investigation on Bridges attempting to secure evidence in connection with his deportation. I have admitted that here.

Mr. Gladstein: Would you please read the question back to Mr. Hynes?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.) [3824]

Presiding Inspector: Did you ever have him shadowed?

The Witness: Yes, I have had him shadowed.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, when you got this subpoena, Mr. Hynes —withdraw that.

From whom did you receive it?

A. The subpoena to be present in this Court room?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Yes, that is right.

A. Well, I received it from the Immigration Inspector.

Q. Where were you when you received it?

A. I was at the Wilshire Police Station when I received it.

Q. When was that?

A. It was around 12:00 o'clock noon, I think.

Q. Of which day?

A. Of the day preceding my arrival here.

Q. Yesterday was the date of your arrival?

A. I arrived here—yesterday morning, it was. That would be the 12th I received it, then.

Q. That is Monday?

A. Monday, the 12th.

Q. Monday about noon?

A. Noon, the 12th.

Q. After receiving that subpoena what did you do or what did you go about doing in order to obtain the records [3825] you brought?

A. Well, in the morning I had received a notification from the Acting Chief of Police, McDonald, to the effect—through his secretary, or Lieutenant in charge, to the effect that he had been served with a subpoena to produce certain records, and he read it over the phone mentioning some La Follette Committee hearing, and also specifying a particular document, this document here that is on the table.

Q. This was read to you over the telephone?

A. This was read to me over the telephone, and asked me to make a search of the records to find any documents which were pertinent to that subpoena, and I made a search and went through——

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. (Interposing) Where did you make a search?

A. I made a search out there where the records are.

Q. Where is that?

A. At the Wilshire Station.

Q. That is where you were located?

A. Yes, I was located there.

Q. Well, then, you have these records with you in that building?

A. Well, I don't have them with me in that building.

Q. Well, are you stationed over there?

A. I am stationed in the Wilshire Division, yes.

Q. These records were at the Wilshire Division?

[3826]

A. Yes, they are at the Wilshire Division.

Q. How long have they been there?

A. Oh, I don't know. They were moved out there possibly a year ago. I don't know exactly.

Q. About the same time that you began doing this liaison work?

A. No; I had done liaison work long before that.

Q. Now, the records that you are referring to that are at the Wilshire Station or Division, whatever it is called, are they your complete files that you used to have when you were at the head of the Intelligence Bureau?

A. I can't say that they are complete any longer.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

As I said, Mr. Dave Sokol had removed a lot of them.

Q. Well, are they all the files, at any rate, whether there are documents missing or not? Are they the same files that you used to have under your charge when you were the head of the Intelligence Bureau?

A. Yes, and many additional ones,

Mr. Del Guercio: If the witness knows.

The Witness: There are thousands of files out there. I don't know——

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. (Interposing) Now, how did you go about making a search for the documents requested?

A. I made a search——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, [3827] I object to any more questions along this line. The witness has produced the documents that counsel has requested in his subpoena so what difference what search he has made, how long he made it, and for what purpose?

Mr. Grossman: He has not produced all the documents, though.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. I made a search of the index cards and the matters that were returned by the LaFollette Committee.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. You say you made a search of the index cards. State very briefly——

A. (Interposing) And to certain——

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. (Interposing) Just a minute, please.

Will you state very briefly just what you did to make that search?

A. I went into the subject matter.

Q. What subject matter did you look for?

A. Well, Ezra Chase.

Q. Did you look under any other topic?

A. Yes, I looked under the operatives' reports and things of that character and I looked into matters, looked at the final record that I made a demand on of Senator LaFollette of the documents he had taken, and I looked those records up in an attempt to identify some of them and see [3828] whether we had them or not. I made an exhaustive search for about three and one-half hours.

Q. All right.

A. Then I went to the Chief's office and reported.

Q. I hadn't finished yet. We will get to the Chief's office later.

Mr. Del Guercio: Let him finish his answer.

Mr. Gladstein: He is leaving the Wilshire Station. I want to stay there for a little while.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, did you have a card in your files corresponding to every document or report?

A. No, we don't. I explained that, that we haven't the clerical help. I explained that before. We haven't an index to all the material. I couldn't find the document on this material between Chase and this man Lawrence back in New York, the national fraction, Communist Secretary of the Furniture Workers Unions, nor the Upholsterers Union. I couldn't find any reference to that on the index cards.

Q. Let me ask you this: When you received materials, reports, documents, materials from operatives or agents, informants, and you decided that you wanted to keep those, that they had value for you, and you put them away in a file, you would have to work out some method of getting an index card or something in order to enable you to find that material at a [3829] future date if you wanted to?

A. Oh, yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as not being a question but an answer.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it if the witness understands it.

A. We have a very exhaustive file, unlimited file. We file under Communist matters, under official Communist documents, under different classifications, under an international basis.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In other words, would it be correct, Mr. Hynes; If operator X, let us say, sent you a letter or report which contained information that you wanted to keep you would file it away somewhere, but before doing so you would make out some kind of an index card and put that in your index files either under the name of that operative or some other designation to help you find it?

A. Not necessarily.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. Well, how would you do that?

A. Lots of times extremely confidential matters were never put in those files, indexes, I mean.

Q. Outside of the extremely confidential matters that were not indexed I want to know—— [3830]

A. (Interposing) They wouldn't necessarily be indexed. All operatives' reports were not necessarily indexed. I told you we didn't have the clerical help to index. In the same way, newspapers would not all be indexed. We wouldn't have the help.

Q. Would it be your general plan to have everything indexed?

A. If we had sufficient help. Like the LaFollette Committee, they had a lot of assistance from Communists, and things, yes. We would try to be as efficient as we possibly could, yes.

Q. Did you find, when you were making a search for these documents called for by the subpoena, did you find any cards in your index file for which you did not have corresponding documents?

A. Yes, I found—I ran across one of Charlie Chaplin, they picked out of the index, some reference to him, making some contribution to a Communist subsidiary organization.

Q. Is there anything in that subpoena, Mr. Hynes, that calls for——

A. (Interposing) No, but I was looking through all the material. You asked me about particular index cards.

Q. You listen to the question, please. I asked you, whether, in going through your index, your card index, under the name of Chase, I think you said—— [3831]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, I request the question as the reporter has it.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I will start all over again.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I want to ask you this question now: When you went to your card index under the name of Chase did you find any cards for which there were no corresponding documents or letters or reports?

A. No, I don't think I found any such cards. I found a lot of cards under arrests, which weren't specified—I hesitated whether to bring them or not but you didn't specify them and I didn't bring them—five or six arrests on Ezra Chase. I had no cards for which I——

Q. (Interposing) Any missing documents?

A. I didn't have any cards at all on those Lawrence matters I said I brought up.

Q. But of the cards that you did have there were none concerning which the corresponding reports or documents which caused the creation of those cards would be missing, is that right?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please——.

Presiding Inspector: I think he has answered that question.

Did you find a number of cards with Chase's name on them?

The Witness: I found a number of cards, as I said, [3832] pertaining to arrests and such things.

Presiding Inspector: And aside from that?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

The Witness: I found—I don't think I found any cards pertaining to Chase on operatives' reports.

Presiding Inspector: Well, then, he didn't find any. Whether he looked for cards or documents, of course, would be material. He couldn't find any corresponding documents of absent cards unless he had copies of the cards.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Well, did you find cards—withdraw that.

This card index that you have mentioned, you say that those also are made under operatives?

A. I didn't say that.

Q. Well, are they? A. No.

Q. Do you have any card index at all for your operatives?

A. I said that that material would not all the time be indexed. It might possibly be but not all times.

Q. When it is indexed——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing). You had some cards?

The Witness: There might be some cards, yes, under names of people mentioned by the operators but it would refer to the operator's report that this individual was mentioned in. [3833]

Presiding Inspector: I think we will stop here.

(Whereupon, at 12:45 P. M. a recess was taken until 2:00 P. M. of the same day.) [3834]

After Recess—2:00 O'clock P. M.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want to introduce these other instruments, Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Gladstein: I think not.

Presiding Inspector: Just to refresh my recollection—this is off the record.

(Remarks outside the record.)

Presiding Inspector: On the record.

Mr. Del Guercio: I have a matter here on the status of the Cannalonga case which I will hand to the Court.

Presiding Inspector: You have shown this to Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Del Guercio: No, I haven't—unless the Court wants to.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(The document referred to was passed to the Presiding Inspector.)

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor thinks it is necessary it can be shown to Mr. Gladstein.

Presiding Inspector: Do you want to see this, Mr. Gladstein?

Mr. Gladstein: Is that a report on the Cannalonga case?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(The document referred to was passed to Mr. Gladstein.)

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Hand it back to me—hand it to Mr. [3835] Del Guercio.

(The document referred to was handed to Mr. Del Guercio.)

Presiding Inspector: Go on, Mr. Gladstein.

WILLIAM F. HYNES

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (Continued)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did anybody else besides yourself, Mr. Hynes make any search for the documents in response to the subpoena?

A. No. I was designated to make the search because of my familiarity with the records of the Bureau?

Mr. Gladstein, there is one matter I want to make a slight correction on in reference to my testimony yesterday.

Q. You want to make a correction?

A. A slight correction.

Q. Go ahead.

A. You asked me about the period I was on leave of absence. I think I stated it was from December 1934 to September 1935; whereas it should have been in the latter part of August or the first part of September, 1934, to June or July of 1935.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. A matter of one or two months?

A. Yes.

Q. You mentioned—withdraw that. During the 1934 [3836] strike, the waterfront strike, you would have been on duty in charge of your Intelligence Bureau?

A. Well, I really had two offices at that time; one in town and one at the harbor.

Q. No, Mr. Hynes—I wasn't asking you where you had your office.

A. Yes, I was in charge of it.

Q. You were still with the Police Department?

A. Yes; in charge of both details, the strike detail at the harbor and also the Intelligence Bureau.

Q. Was it in connection with the 1934 strike that you received these letters of commendation from the ILA?

Mr. Myron: I object to this line of inquiry, if your Honor please. It is entirely immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I will sustain it. You can make a comparison by what he said.

The Witness: I want to clarify that position. I was in charge——

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it needs any clarification.

The Witness: Except I wasn't actually in charge throughout the whole strike.

Presiding Inspector: The ruling was to hurry the hearing; that is all.

Mr. Gladstein: But the witness had mentioned that he [3837] received letters of gratitude, or recommendation, or commendation, not just from the employers, but he said even the ILA, and I wanted to know whether he had received such letters from the ILA—which stands for the International Longshoremen's Association—in 1934 in connection with the 1934 waterfront strike.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. They were.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that question, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think it is material. You have the letters if you want them.

Mr. Gladstein: Did you say I have the letters?

Presiding Inspector: He said the letters were in the Mayor's possession and he has no objection to you seeing them. I don't know that they would be competent.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. In connection with the 1934 strike——

Presiding Inspector: You can move to strike out the answer if you wish to.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. I do so move.

Presiding Inspector: Are you sure?

Mr. Gladstein: As I recall, he testified he received, not only letters of commendation from employers, but also from the union. It is not a matter on which we could confront him because he claims that these letters are in the possession of [3838] the Mayor.

Presiding Inspector: You can get them and confront him with them.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Then I won't move to strike.

Presiding Inspector: I thought that you brought it out yourself as to who they were from, and so forth.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Have you ever heard of an organization known as the Marine Service Bureau?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Briefly, what was that?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, if your Honor please. That union is not in issue in this case.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. I don't know what point it has.

A. It is an organization of shipowners, employers of labor.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Of longshoremen? A. Yes.

Q. In the Port of San Pedro and Los Angeles?

A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact that in the year 1934 you received $2,135 from the Marine Service Bureau for your services?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that [3839] question and ask that counsel be cautioned along those lines. I don't know what he is trying to do.

Presiding Inspector: I don't understand it. What point do you claim in relation to Ezra Chase that there has been any falsification from this witness?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: This, your Honor——

Presiding Inspector: Answer that one question, if you can, or do you decline to answer?

Mr. Gladstein: I don't decline to answer. I will be glad to answer. When you say "What point," obviously that doesn't call for a one-word answer.

Presiding Inspector: Certainly not.

Mr. Gladstein: My position is that the labor spying activities and union-breaking activities of the Intelligence Bureau, of which this witness was the head, are further established by virtue of the fact that he, as an officer of the Los Angeles Police Department, received from the employers, in connection with this 1934 strike, a sum upward of $2000 for his services against those longshoremen.

Presiding Inspector: But that doesn't show—I want to know what fundamental question in relation to the credibility of Ezra Chase you think this witness has falsified on so that we can go into his character and all.

Mr. Gladstein: Only on the question of the character of work performed by the Intelligence Bureau. [3840]

Presiding Inspector: We are not interested, really interested in that.

Mr. Gladstein: We are interested in so far as it shows the character of work they were doing and, therefore, the character of work that Mr. Chase was doing.

Presiding Inspector: That might not follow. They are a public institution. You have got the fact established here by the testimony of Mr. Chase, and by the corroborating testimony of your own witness, Mr. Hynes, that there were numerous reports made by Mr. Chase to Mr. Hynes about matters in labor unions. Now, you don't want to dispute that, do you?

Mr. Gladstein: Of course not; no.

Presiding Inspector: In fact, that is what you called this witness here for.

Mr. Gladstein: Precisely.

Presiding Inspector: Now, you want to break him down?

Mr. Gladstein: I want to show more than what he has already admitted.

Presiding Inspector: You have said many times that your evidence goes to the credibility, and that means the noncredibility of this witness.

Mr. Gladstein: No. The evidence we seek to bring out goes to establish the character of the Bureau over which this witness had charge.

Presiding Inspector: How is that pertinent in this case? [3841]

Mr. Gladstein: Because if it was a union-breaking, labor-spying outfit conducted by Mr. Hynes, that is relevant to the type of credibility of Chase, because it reflects on the character of work he was performing.

Presiding Inspector: Very remotely relevant.

Now, the object of this seems to be to investigate the general character of this Bureau of the Department of Los Angeles.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Only in so far as it shows an attempt to break unions and to prevent workers from organizing into unions.

Presiding Inspector: How do we know that Mr. Chase, who gave him the information, had any such purpose?

Mr. Gladstein: Based on the reports that are in evidence based on his own admissions as to what he reported.

Presiding Inspector: Then you don't need anything more.

Mr. Gladstein: But Mr. Chase was obviously not in a position to give evidence, conclusive and comprehensive evidence, as to the activities of that Bureau.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. Go ahead. I will let you show it but, remember, you run the risk of prejudicing your case. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: What was the question?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.) [3842]

Presiding Inspector: I think that is immaterial. That simply is an employment so far as I know.

Mr. Gladstein: He says that he was on the police force.

Presiding Inspector: At this time?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes. He already testified to that.

Presiding Inspector: And that the services were rendered while he was on the force?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I am asking that.

Presiding Inspector: You haven't said that.

Mr. Gladstein: I will ask it this way:

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you receive, during the year 1934——

Presiding Inspector: If you are going to prove that—I won't force you to change your order of proof.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you receive, during the year 1934, income upwards of $2000 from the Marine Service Bureau?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to it on the same ground.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. Can you be a little more specific as to the date, Mr. Gladstein?

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I said in the year 1934.

A. I was on leave of absence in 1934.

Q. First of all, did you receive it at any time during the [3843] year 1934? A. I——

Mr. Del Guercio (Interposing): Just a minute. I object to that. Let the Court rule on my objection before you answer the question.

Presiding Inspector: I don't understand the objection.

Mr. Gladstein: If he says he didn't receive it at any time in 1934 there is no further point in asking whether he received it in any particular month.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I have an objection to the question.

Presiding Inspector: Let's find out when it was.

Mr. Gladstein: The question was specific as to the year.

Presiding Inspector: Did he say he was not in the employ of the Department all the year?

Mr. Gladstein: He just got through saying at some time in August or September, or something like that, he got a leave.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. When did—I suppose the question is, before you took your leave, did you receive such a sum?

The Witness: For services?

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Did you receive any money from them?

A. Yes. I received a lot of money during the 1934 strike. I am trying to place in my mind the dates of the 1934 strike and the time I was on leave of absence. [3844]

Q. For the purpose of refreshing your recollection, it has been said in the record here, and I don't think there is any dispute about it, that the 1934 strike occurred between May 9 and July 31, 1934. You were on leave of absence after that latter date, were you not?

A. I was on leave of absence, I think, the latter part of August, as I stated before; yes. I probably did receive an amount of money—I wouldn't state the exact amount for I don't know—for services in a capacity, in some capacity, working for them in an investigative capacity, and so forth.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. What kind of service?

A. Investigative service.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. That was investigative work in connection with the strike?

A. No. The strike was already over. You just said that. This was the period I was on leave of absence from the Police Department.

Q. Afterwards?

A. Certainly. The period of the strike was from July, you said, from June until July, something like that.

Q. What kind of service did you perform after you went on leave of absence? What kind of service did you perform for [3845] the Marine Service Bureau after you went on leave of absence from the Police Department?

A. I don't recall the specific details as to what the service was. It was in some investigative capacity.

I know that prior to that time I had done some work for somebody else while I was on leave of absence.

But I received money—I am trying to be frank with you—I had received some money from the Marine Service Bureau during the course of the strike to cover the expenses of maintaining the officers down there at the harbor. That amount was rather a substantial amount, running into—I didn't receive it all—I mean it was paid by way of check and money, drawn by way of check, to pay for the maintenance of the police on the basis of around $2.50 or $3.00 a day.

Q. I am referring now, Mr. Hynes, to income which you personally received?

A. I said I received some income from them.

Q. From the Marine Service Bureau?

A. Yes.

Q. This income you received, or some of it, during the 1934 strike? A. No, sir.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. It couldn't be if the Marine Strike was from the period you said it was. You said the Marine Strike took place, [3846] the general strike down at the harbor, and on the coast, rather, took place between June and July the 19th, or something like.

Q. May 9th to July 31st.

A. No, no. I received money from them during the period of that strike, but not for services.

Q. Did you receive—then, do I understand you to say that you received about $2000 from the Marine Service Bureau for services that you rendered for them after you went on leave of absence from the Police Department? A. Yes.

Q. What was the nature of those services?

A. I don't recall specifically as to that.

Mr. Myron: I object to this as immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Couldn't you recall the kind of investigation it was?

A. No; right after that my mind was taxed with the investigation I was handling in Sacramento in connection with the criminal syndicalism trial.

Q. Where did you conduct this investigation for the Marine Service Bureau?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question, and questions along that line.

Presiding Inspector: He may answer.

A. I don't remember the specific details of it right now. [3847]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you know, do you remember in what city you were conducting this investigation?

A. It was probably in and around Los Angeles, and maybe up and down the coast. I don't recall at this time.

Q. Do you recall with what industry your investigation was concerned?

A. Probably the Marine Industry; that was what they were interested in.

Q. Don't you know?

A. It was the Marine industry because that was the one that they were interested in.

Q. You said "probably." Don't you know?

A. To the best of my recollection I would say it was the Marine industry.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Q. In what form were these payments made to you? A. I think by check.

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to the question.

He answered. He said he believes by check.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Were these checks made out to you?

A. Undoubtedly so. There is nothing to hide about it—it was open and aboveboard.

Mr. Gladstein: I move that the last part of the answer be stricken. [3848]

Mr. Del Guercio: It left an implication and the witness should be permitted to put one in there too.

Presiding Inspector: I will strike it out.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Do you recall who issued those checks?

A. No, I don't right now.

Q. Was it the Marine Service Bureau?

A. Well, I imagine—I don't recall the printed matter on the check or anything. I know I had some money coming and I got it. What that amount was is reported on my income tax.

Q. Now, how long did you say you were on leave of absence?

A. Why, I think about a period of nine months or maybe a little longer, nine months and a half, maybe less.

Q. Who else did you work for in that period besides the Marine Service Bureau?

A. I worked for the Associated Farmers in a cooperative capacity with the District of Sacramento County. I worked for a furniture group, a group of furniture manufacturers in Los Angeles. I worked for a group of store fixture people manufacturing store fixture equipment. During that period I was on leave of absence. I think I worked, done a little work for the American Meat Packers Association.

(Testimony of William E. Hynes.)

Q. When you say you worked for these people you mean that [3849] you rendered services for which they paid you? A. That is right.

Q. Did you also work for the Los Angeles Railway Company?

A. Yes, that is the work I wanted, I think for a period of twenty-one days. However——

Q. (Interposing): You weren't working for all of these—excuse me.

A. However, I didn't complete my service with them at all. We had some sort of disagreement and I left.

Q. Now, you weren't working for all of these various organizations or employers at the same time, were you?

A. Well, there may have been a time when I had two jobs at one time or——

Q. (Interposing): Well, give us your best recollection, if you will, Mr. Hynes, as to the order in which these employments occurred.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, that is going into——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): I will take it.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. Well, I would say that my first employment was at the L. A. Railway Company making a survey of their properties, a prospective survey of their properties for a period of twenty-one days. My next employment was with the Associated Farmers in the County of Sacramento in connection with the criminal syndicalism trial up there which lasted a [3850] period of four months. Following that I returned to Los Angeles, I think in April some time, and I was employed by, I think, this cabinet and store fixture group, then by this furniture group, or maybe both of them interlocking at the same time, to the best of my memory, and I don't know whether it was in the interval before that employment or after the furniture employment that I done some work for the American Meat Packers.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. When did you do the work for the Marine Service Bureau?

A. That was in between the period that I was on leave of absence, probably in August until the time I was in Sacramento, because I have a hazy recollection of receiving a check from them while I was in Sacramento.

Q. For how long did you work for the Marine Service Bureau?

A. Oh, I don't know how many—what period of time that was.

Q. Your best recollection.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. Well, I think I hired some other people in connection with that work. I don't know whether it was a period of four or five months or what.

Q. Could you, Mr. Hynes, get from your department records the exact dates of your leave of absence? [3851] A. Yes, I think I could.

Q. Would you have any objection to doing that and sending them up here?

A. No, I would gladly do that.

Q. Before you leave we will make arrangements for that, if you don't mind. A. Yes.

Q. One more question on that.

The money you received from the Marine Service Bureau, that was money that you earned for services performed in 1934 and was so reported by you in your income tax; isn't that correct?

A. If that is true I received it in 1934.

Q. Now——

A. (Interposing): Of course, however, that doesn't mean the whole amount was paid to me. There may have been employment of other people in connection with that work; there may have been. That don't mean that I derived the whole amount.

Q. Do you mean to say you reported in your income tax amounts you received not as income for yourself but for others?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, that isn't what the witness said at all. Counsel knows it isn't.

Mr. Gladstein: I want to ask him——

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

The Witness (Interposing): Well, if I received, as you [3852] say, $2100.00 from the Marine Bureau I would show as receiving that and show how I disbursed it, if I spent any of it, and take credit on my return for it.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Well, no; in your personal income tax——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): For expenses.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. But you would report only——

A. (Interposing): That is what I mean.

Q. (Continuing): ——that which came to you and was used by you personally, would you not?

Presiding Inspector: Why get into a dispute on this? I don't think that would be the proper way, would it?

Mr. Gladstein: What is that?

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that would be the proper way if he employed other persons. It would be a sort of business of his. He would have gross receipts and expenses.

Mr. Grossman: If he did that.

Presiding Inspector: That is what he said he did, as I understood him.

The Witness: That is my best recollection of it.

Presiding Inspector: Of course, it is so long ago.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes—— [3853]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. (Interposing) However, there is a point there that may come up later on, the matter of this employment with the Associated Farmers, being that you have gone into it. I was never paid up in full for those services at the time that my employment terminated.

Q. I didn't ask for that.

A. I received—well, I know that the LaFollette Committee has those records and I didn't want you to make an issue out of it later on after I am gone, that I received money during 1936, which had already been——

Q. (Interposing) I promise you I won't make an issue of the fact that the Associated——

Mr. Del Guercio: Well——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Just a moment, please. That the Associated Farmers did not pay you.

Mr. Myron: There is no question.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, that is clearly out of order for counsel to make a remark of that kind.

Mr. Myron: I think he has been given plenty of opportunity to make speeches in this Court right up to now.

Presiding Inspector: You have all taken advantage of that, even the Presiding Inspector. I don't know whether the question was answered or not. I think it was a statement, a voluntary statement. [3854]

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, did you ever suggest to either Mr. Chase or to the Immigration Department that Mr. Chase go to the Immigration Department, or that he give to the Immigration Department whatever information he might have on Harry Bridges?

A. No, I don't think I ever have suggested that.

Q. Did you advise the Immigration Department that there was a man named Ezra Chase who claimed to know, or to have certain information concerning Bridges?

A. No, I don't think I did. However, if they had asked me I would have told them.

Q. Were you not working with, corresponding with Mr. Bonham and Mr. Norene in connection with the Bridges' case?

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, if your Honor please——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) How is that material?

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, may I say this: There are some general rules of law about a person's failing to do certain things that are the nominal things to do, for example, failing to deny, if the occasion calls for a denial, and so on.

Presiding Inspector: That is true.

Mr. Grossman: Now, if Captain Hynes was working, as he began to admit before, on the Bridges' case, and if he had [3855] information, that would tend to prove that Bridges was a Communist, or affiliated with the Communist Party, it would be reasonable to assume that as part of that investigation or cooperation on the case he would turn that over or make it available. Now, if he did, for example, he has referred here to certain statements that he said Mr. Chase made to him over the telephone about Bridges going to lay down the Communist Party line—not that I say that is any evidence—at least the Government thought in this case it was evidence enough to produce. Now, if Captain Hynes did not even bring that to the attention of the Government before the last hearing it has some significance as to whether or not he actually ever heard such a thing or not.

Mr. Gladstein: Or having heard it, whether he ever believed it or not.

Mr. Grossman: Or believed it.

Presiding Inspector: We don't care whether he believed it or not. That is not material.

Mr. Grossman: If he, knowing Chase, didn't believe Chase, I think that is material.

Presiding Inspector: No, no, that is not material at all. We can't go and ask whether everyone about here believed any particular witness with whom they have had some talk. He takes the information for what it is worth; that is all there is about it. He doesn't necessarily believe it or dis- [3856] believe it. I think his beliefs are very remote from this question that we are examining. Now, I don't know any compulsion that requires persons to give information about anything in a deportation case.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Grossman: No, but I say if he was working with him, preparing evidence, giving evidence, and failed to give this particular item of evidence——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) If he was working with him in what respect?

Mr. Grossman: If he was preparing, or attempting to prepare or send to the Immigration Service evidence against Harry Bridges, and a certain item of evidence—— Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't know whether Mr. Norene had that job.

Mr. Grossman: Well, this witness has indicated that. We can prove that he was working with him, preparing, trying to get evidence on Harry Bridges.

Presiding Inspector: What do you want to show about this?

Mr. Grossman: Because this witness volunteered that Ezra Chase had told him over the telephone that Bridges was going to lay down the party line at this meeting we say the fact he didn't report it is conclusive proof he never heard such a thing at that time. [3857]

Mr. Del Guercio: Before counsel's remark is forgotten, and we might go on to some other matter, I would like his statement that frankly we don't believe him ought to be stricken out of the record, or he should be required to explain why he brought the witness here.

Presiding Inspector: Oh, no, no; that is one of those remarks made in the heat of this trial.

Mr. Grossman: I will explain it.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that amounts to much.

Mr. Gladstein: I want to say this: I don't intend to go very deeply into this subject.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: So the Court will understand exactly what is involved, in the last hearing we were required to extract at great pains and great difficulty as much as we could from the unwilling lips of men like Harper Knowles and Captain John J. Keegan of the Portland Police Department, information concerning the character and nature of their activities in efforts to secure evidence to deport Harry Bridges, and in that case, as a result of the testimony given by those witnesses, the name of Captain Hynes was clearly placed in the record as one of the men who, through correspondence with Harper Knowles and through correspondence with Captain John J. Keegan, was involved in this joint effort to obtain evidence against Harry Bridges. [3858]

Now, Mr. Hynes already has said in this case that he was—I am not trying to change his testimony by this statement—this is just my recollection—that he was engaged in attempting to get evidence on Mr. Bridges, something of that sort.

Now, I simply ask him now whether it isn't a fact that in connection with those efforts on his part he was corresponding with Mr. Bonham and Mr. Norene or Captain John J. Keegan or Mr. Harper Knowles. I think we are entitled to answers on those things.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: How about Miss Perkins?

Mr. Gladstein: Or with Miss Perkins; I haven't any objection to that, or you can bring it out.

Presiding Inspector: All right, we will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mr. Hynes, isn't it true that you were corresponding with Harper Knowles in connection with your efforts to obtain evidence for the purpose of deporting Harry Bridges?

Mr. Myron: I object to that question, entirely immaterial, and it is an obvious attempt on the part of the Alien's counsel to raise a new issue in this case, to manufacture a new issue which is not present in the case.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. I think it is just the reverse. Harper Knowles [3859] communicated with me.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Well, was there correspondence?

A. There was correspondence, yes.

Q. That is, letters back and forth between the two of you?

A. Yes, not only concerning Mr. Bridges, but other Communists.

Q. How about correspondence between you and Captain Keegan on the subject of——

A. (Interposing) I think two letters.

Q. (Continuing) ——Just a moment, please. On the subject of trying to deport Mr. Bridges?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that on the same ground.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. No, I don't know whether the letters discussed the deportation of Harry Bridges.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I want to show you a photostatic copy of an Exhibit which was introduced in evidence in the previous case—it was there Alien's Exhibit 58—and it purports to be a copy of a letter from you to Captain Keegan under date of September 12, 1938. Please examine that.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to any [3860] reference to the document. Because it was introduced in the last hearing doesn't give any——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I think that was improper.

Mr. Gladstein: I beg your pardon?

Presiding Inspector: I think that was improper. We don't care whether it was introduced in some other case or not. That doesn't identify it.

Mr. Gladstein: That is for the purpose of identifying the document. It has that identification on the top of it.

Presiding Inspector: It can be identified in other ways than that.

Mr. Gladstein: If the witness can identify it, that will be sufficient.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you have it marked for identification now, then show it to him?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I am willing to do that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Strike out the offer at the present time.

Mr. Gladstein: It wasn't an offer.

Presiding Inspector: Well, strike out your identification of it.

Mr. Gladstein: Very well. Would you mark this?

Presiding Inspector: Have it marked for identification and show it to the witness, that is the proper way. Counsel [3861] for the Government is objecting to it. I wouldn't think it was very material how you identified it, myself, but I am not trying this case.

(The document referred to was marked Alien's Exhibit No. 18 for identification.)

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, do you want to look at it again, Mr. Hynes? I am showing you Alien's Exhibit No. 18 for identification.

A. (Examining document) Mr. Gladstein, is this a photostat of the Los Angeles Police Department?

Q. I would rather you just examined it.

Presiding Inspector: See whether you recognize it.

A. Yes, I recognize it as a letter I had written. It looks to me like a photostat of our Los Angeles Police Department. That is one of those documents I was talking about from the LaFollette Committee.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: No; this is a copy of such a document.

The Witness: It looks like it is a photostat, and it is one of our documents. I would like to know——

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. (Interposing) Do you recognize it as a copy of a letter you sent?

A. I recognize as a copy of a letter I sent. I also recognize it as a photostat of a copy from our Police Department. I would like to know where you got it from? [3862]

Q. You put me on the stand and ask me.

A. I would like to——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If the Court please——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Just a moment. I will listen to Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, counsel has been permitted great latitude in making his charges, implications, and what-not. Now, one is made against him. The witness here has asked him where he got the original of that, and if the original of that was the Los Angeles Police Department property counsel should get on the stand here and testify under oath where he got that original, and how he got possession of it.

Presiding Inspector: This isn't the original.

Mr. Gladstein: It obviously isn't.

Mr. Del Guercio: A photostat of the original.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes, but this has been in Court before.

Mr. Gladstein. This is a copy, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: We don't care anything about that.

Mr. Gladstein: I can state very briefly——

Presiding Inspector: (Intervening) Oh, no.

Mr. Gladstein: Mr. Del Guercio asked for an explanation.

Mr. Del Guercio: Under oath, I asked for an explanation under oath. [3863]

Presiding Inspector: I don't care for it.

Mr. Gladstein: All right.

Presiding Inspector: I haven't been able to read this. There has been so much argument.

Mr. Del Guercio: I haven't even seen it.

Presiding Inspector: (Examining document) Now, what do you want to do? He says that he recalls writing this.

Mr. Gladstein: Then, I think there is a paragraph in there which shows that Mr. Hynes was—do you want to look at it again?

(Whereupon, document was handed to witness.)

Presiding Inspector: Perhaps, you can tell me this,—it is already in the record—if you can't, someone else can: When was the first warrant issued against Harry Bridges?

Mrs. King: If your Honor please, it was, I believe,——

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) It was in Dean Landis' report almost at the start.

Mrs. King: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I asked this question before, Mrs. King, and you reported——

Mrs. King: (Interposing) March 2, 1938.

Presiding Inspector: March.

Mrs. King: Was the original warrant of arrest.

Presiding Inspector: March 7th?

Mrs. King: March 2, 1938. [3864]

Mr. Gladstein: 1938.

Mrs. King: It was amended on June 12, 1939.

The Witness: Yes, I recognize this. There was another letter too from Mr. Keegan that I was referring to also.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Well, now, in this letter, Alien's——

Oh, you want to see this?

(The document referred to was handed to Mr. Del Guercio.)

Mr. Del Guercio: There has been shown to me a letter marked "confidential" and so far as I can see—the Court has read it also—there is nothing in here that has to do with anything at issue in this case.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know whether it has or not.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I want to read your Honor just this portion, only this portion.

Presiding Inspector: I read it all.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I want to read this into the record in view of the statement——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) You haven't offered it yet. Why do you read it until you offer it?

Mr. Gladstein: I will offer it in evidence.

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object.

Presiding Inspector: I will receive it.

(The document referred to was received in evidence and marked Alien's Exhibit No. 18.) [3865]

Mr. Grossman: May we be permitted to withdraw this and substitute a photostat?

Presiding Inspector: Substitute a photostat of the photostat?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: So we can retain a copy.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, do you know a man named William Shirley?

A. Yes, he is an officer that worked for me.

Q. And didn't you have Mr. Shirley——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Now, just a moment. Before we go into this, who is this man Keegan?

Mr. Gladstein: All right, we will have that identification.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you state who Captain John J. Keegan is?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

A. I think he is Captain of Detectives of the Portland Police Department.

Q. Now, Mr. Shirley, you say, was working for you?

A. He was a Police Officer, yes.

Q. Working under your charge?

A. Under my charge.

Q. During the year 1937?

A. Yes, sir. [3866]

Q. Did you not have Mr. Shirley cooperate with Mr. Stanley M. Doyle in an effort to obtain John L. Leech as a witness in the deportation case against Harry Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) What do you want this for?

Mr. Gladstein: To show the connection of the present witness with the efforts to obtain the deportation of Mr. Bridges, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, but those were efforts of various Police Departments. They don't reflect upon the Government or the Department of Immigration and Naturalization.

Mr. Grossman: This is relevant to lay the basis, your Honor, for his failure to communicate with the Immigration and Naturalization Service. This alleged telephone call——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Why don't you ask him that, then?

Mr. Grossman: We have to lay a basis that it would be reasonable to expect him to do that before we ask him whether he did do that.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: But you haven't got any communication with the Government at all in yet.

Mr. Gladstein: I have already asked him whether he ever communicated with him, discussed with Mr. Chase or with the Immigration Department that Mr. Chase should supply any [3867] information or whatever information he might have to them.

Presiding Inspector: He said he didn't.

Mr. Gladstein: He said he didn't. That is precisely the point.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: All right. Now we want to show exactly what the relationship of Mr. Hynes was, however, at this time, to the question of the Bridges' case. It follows from that, your Honor, as Mr. Grossman has said——

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) After counsel catch their breath I will continue.

Presiding Inspector: No, I think not. Now, when you have finished talking, both of you, I will say something. I don't see how that is material.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor, Mr. Hynes——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) If they employed him to give them information, if it was something that he naturally would give, the fact that he didn't give it might have some significance in relation to whether he had that information. Now, in that way I can see the relevancy, perhaps, of this, but you are getting into something in relation to communications within the departments of the Police of the State of California and the State of Oregon.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: That was the letter that was already in [3868] evidence.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I don't know why that was admissible, but you wanted it so much I let you have it.

Mr. Gladstein: But the question I am now asking concerning Mr. Hynes and an officer who was under Mr. Hyne's direction, according to his testimony, and a man named Stanley M. Doyle whose connection with the Bridges' case is discussed by Dean Landis in his report——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Yes. He didn't testify, did he?

Mr. Gladstein: No, he didn't testify.

Presiding Inspector: No, we won't receive it. We don't know anything about Mr. Doyle.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, he didn't——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Now, we can't re-try the Landis hearing.

Mr. Gladstein: We are not attempting to. I am simply trying to show what connection Mr. Hynes had with the effort of trying to obtain the deportation of Mr. Bridges. I think in view of what we can establish first through the letter that is already in evidence, and secondly through this other subject —and I only had this other one in mind—that his testimony concerning the testimony of Chase should be considered in the light of the connection that Mr. Hynes had with the case and the fact that, as he has testified, he never told [3869] Chase to go to the Immigration Department and he never told the Immigration Department that Chase had any information for them on the Bridges' case.

Presiding Inspector: You got all that, haven't you?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, the latter part he has testified to, that is true.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: But, I think, we are entitled to show what his relationship was.

Presiding Inspector: You may show that he did give any information to the Federal Investigators, if you wish, if he had any employment or anything of that kind.

Mr. Gladstein: All right, I will ask it.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) It is very remote. People don't give every bit of information. They, perhaps, wouldn't think that was material; I don't know. That is something for the trier of the fact. It may be pertinent so far as evidence is concerned.

Mr. Del Guercio: But, as an aid to the Court in determining this matter, permit me to say now that these alleged matters which counsel is seeking now are matters that occurred prior to the last deportation hearing.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: There has been no evidence introduced [3870] here of this prior trial to show that anybody—of course, we are permitted, and the Government would go to any source for any information—we don't question that or do we state that we don't go to any source, that we want to go to, but this case, this new case here, the evidence upon which we are proceeding in this hearing is the evidence that has been developed by the FBI.

Now, counsel, not even counsel here for the Alien would go so far as to say that there has been any employment by the FBI of Police officers or others or anybody else in investigating this case.

Presiding Inspector: I haven't any such——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) Now, why don't they come out and say that?

Presiding Inspector: There hasn't been any claim to the contrary so far.

Mr. Gladstein: There doesn't have to be any employment shown, your Honor. We don't go into that matter at all. There doesn't have to——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) They are going into the matters that occurred before the last deportation hearing. That isn't in issue in this case.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, what is the last question?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as follows: [3871]

"Q. Did you not have Mr. Shirley cooperate with Mr. Stanley M. Doyle in an effort to obtain John L. Leech as a witness in the deportation case against Harry Bridges?"

Presiding Inspector: Well, now, I don't see how we can go to individuals. I said I would take it but I had forgotten that Mr. Leech and Mr. Doyle came into this matter. I don't see what they have to do with it.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: Well, Mr. Leech——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I don't even know who they are except for reading something about them in the Landis case.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I can say this:——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) I know Mr. Doyle didn't testify.

Mr. Gladstein: No. We sought——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) There was some trouble about it.

Mr. Gladstein: He didn't respond.

Presiding Inspector: Well, he finally responded but there was some trouble about his fees.

Mr. Gladstein: He wouldn't testify when he responded finally.

Presiding Inspector: Not until he got some additional sum that he, perhaps was not entitled to.

Mr. Gladstein: When he got paid, your Honor, then he [3872] refused to answer questions.

Presiding Inspector: Yes, on advice of counsel and so on.

Mr. Gladstein: Yes, I know. That was Mr. Doyle. Then, Mr. Leech actually did testify at great length in the case.

Now, the affidavit——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Was Leech an employee of the Department of Labor?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: No; he was a witness in the case.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. Well, I don't believe we better go into that.

Mr. Gladstein: But Mr. Hynes made an affidavit in the last case which became a part of the evidence, in which he said, that is, Mr. Hynes said that he had received a letter from Stanley M. Doyle, and a copy of that letter was set forth in the affidavit of Mr. Hynes, and that affidavit, that letter made reference to Mr. Hynes—no, to William C. Shirley.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. By the way, was that his name, William C. Shirley? Yes, sir.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, here is counsel arguing and asking questions at the same time. I suppose he will be answering himself next.

Presiding Inspector: If he would be allowed to he [3873] probably would. I would if I were in his place.

Now, go on. I want to hear this.

Mr. Gladstein: And this letter from Mr. Doyle to Captain Hynes refers to the matter that William C. Shirley and Mr. Doyle investigated, and that reference, although there is no express mention of Leeuch, is in view of the context of the letter, the references made in it and the other testimony given in the previous Bridges' deportation case, a clear reference to Mr. John L. Leech, in addition to which, Mr. Doyle in the letter to Mr. Hynes stated that both he and Harper Knowles wanted to express their grateful thanks and appreciation for the courtesy received.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, he is reading from the letter I think you just prohibited him from reading.

Presiding Inspector: He shouldn't read the letter. Perhaps, you can show it to me. Do you want to introduce the letter?

Mr. Gladstein: I believe so, yes.

Presiding Inspector: (Examining document) I don't see that that is material at all; I don't see that this is material at all, but you haven't offered it yet, so I am——

Mr. Gladstein: (Interposing) Has it been offered for indentification in this case?

Presiding Inspector: No, I think not.

Mr. Gladstein: Did I show it to Mr. Hynes?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, I think you did; I am not [3874] sure.

The Witness: Yesterday, I think, I saw it.

Mr. Gladstein: You better look at it for just a moment.

Mr. Del Guercio: Has the Court ruled it is immaterial?

Presiding Inspector: I just made a voluntary statement without any reason to do so.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. I show you what purports to be a photostat of an affidavit by you, Mr. Hynes, and ask you if you can identify it as such?

A. (Examining document) Yes.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: This affidavit which has just been referred to in my last question should be marked for identification.

Would you be good enough to do that?

Presiding Inspector: Mr. Gladstein, aren't you trying to do something here, by referring to these letters which are really not at all—bringing in something which is really not at all pertinent to the matter of Mr. Chase?

Mr. Gladstein: No. I would answer that this way:——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Aren't you attempting to show something in relation to the general investigation of the Bridges' case which is not in any way before us now?

Mr. Gladstein: No; I am now trying to establish that Mr. [3875] Chase did not tell——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Well, he said he didn't. He said this man didn't tell the Government officials. Now, what more do you want?

Mr. Gladstein: Well, I want to establish that the reason that he didn't was either because Mr. Chase never made any statement to Mr. Hynes to the effect that Mr. Hynes has testified to the contrary, or that if he did make any such statement, that statement was not believed by Mr. Hynes and, therefore, not reported to the Immigration authorities.

Presiding Inspector: He might have thought it was not important enough to tell it and it might have slipped his mind.

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Mr. Gladstein: I want to show, your Honor——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) It doesn't seem to me it was a very important matter in the work of the Police.

Mr. Gladstein: Well, that may well be.

Presiding Inspector: That, of course, has got to be determined ultimately if this question arises.

Mr. Gladstein: It is true that in the ordinary case of, let us say, the average Police Officer who has no special interest in Mr. Harry Bridges, what your Honor says is true, but we wish to show, and, I think, the letter which is in evidence plus the testimony given by Mr. Hynes plus this affidavit show that there was more than an ordinary interest dis- [3876] played and more than an ordinary scope of activity indulged in by Mr. Hynes with respect to the question of deporting Mr. Bridges and, therefore, in the light of those special circumstances the question of what he did or what he didn't do with this alleged information from Chase becomes important because, you see, it is our position, your Honor, that Mr. Hynes for a long time has been working together with Captain John J. Keegan and Mr. Harper Knowles and certain others to bring about the deportation of Mr. Bridges, and you must consider, in the light of those facts you must consider his testimony that he didn't communicate to the Immigration Department this alleged statement of Chase, because he communicated a lot of other things to the Immigration Department.

Presiding Inspector: As an answer to this, I would say, or in explanation of this matter I would say that I can't help haivng in my mind some things that are in Dean Landis' report about Mr. Leech and the office in that city. It looks to me as though you were trying to get that into the present record.

Mr. Myron: I think that is very obvious, your Honor.

Mr. Gladstein: I am not interested in getting that into the record at this point; your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I think you should avoid the appearance of doing that at this time.

Now, if you want to ask this witness whether he was in- [3877] terested in helping the Naturalization and Immigration Department, whether he made reports to them, I will take that. I will let you have that.

Mr. Gladstein: All right, I will go into that.

Mr. Del Guercio: In answer——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) No. I don't think you need if you want to object on this you may object.

Mr. Del Guercio: I do object, your Honor.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, did you ever give the Immigration and Naturalization Department information for the purpose of assisting or enabling that department to bring about a hearing against, or hte deportation of Mr. Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: Your Honor, I object to that question as being improper, immaterial and irrelevant.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. It is on the basis that Mr. Gladstein stated, that he wants to show why there was some reason that he would naturally have told them about this report from Mr. Chase, and from his failure to make that report. Under those circumstances he seeks to draw or have the trier of the fact draw the inference that no such statement was made by Mr. Chase.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, I have a confession to make then, your Honor. I have had a lot of witnesses here that have information, given me by the FBI, information against [3878] Bridges htat I haven't produced here.

Presiding Inspector: Undoubtedly that is always so, but he says under the particular circumstances here he argues that if it had occurred it would have been reported. Now, I am going to let him show what his relations were with the department so as to form some judgment upon that matter. It may be that it never would have been reported, even if it would have occurred, we don't know. Let Mr. Gladstein try to establish this. Go ahead.

Mr. Gladstein: Do you want the question read to you, Mr. Hynes?

The Witness: I think I understand the general question.

I think—I don't know what time it came to my attention—I had knowledge of the fact that, I think,

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Chase had made some sort of statement to the Immigration authorities. That was through talking to somebody in the Immigration Service, that he had made some statement. I don't recall just the date or when it was.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. No; I asked you, Mr. Hynes, whether you ever did. Now, this is——

A. (Interposing) Well——

Q. (Interposing) Just a minute.

Mr. Del Guercio: Is this an answer to your last question?

The Witness: It is an answer to the same question. [3879]

Mr. Del Guercio: Then, I suggest the witness be permitted to answer the question before another question is asked.

The Witness: It is in relation to why I didn't report it.

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment. That has nothing to do with Mr. Chase as such, your Honor. I want simply the general question.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Mr. Hynes, did you ever—this is without regard to Mr. Chase, regardless of him—in the years, let us say, of 1937 and 1938 did you ever at any time give information to the Immigration and Naturalization Department of the United States Government for——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) I object to the question as improper and not material under the issues of this case.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it.

Mr. Gladstein: Let me finish the question, then.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. (Continuing) Of the United States Government for the purpose of assisting or enabling that department to have a hearing against, or bring about the deportation of Mr. Bridges?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to it as being ambiguous. Which [3880] hearing? This hearing here or the last hearing?

Mr. Grossman: '37 and '38.

Mr. Gladstein: The question specifies it.

Mr. Del Guercio: What?

Presiding Inspector: He says that the question specifies it.

Mr. Grossman: It specifies '37 and '38.

Presiding Inspector: '37 and '38.

A. I recall discussing the case generally with Inspector Bonham in Seattle, when I was assisting the Dies Committee, generally as to witnesses, possibly witnesses and things like that that may be used. That was in Seattle when I was assisting the Dies Committee.

Presiding Inspector: When was that?

The Witness: That was in '37; I think it was in July of '37.

Mr. Gladstein: There were parts of the answer I couldn't hear. Could I have the reporter read it to me?

(Testimony of William F. Hynes.)

Presiding Inspector: Certainly; read the answer.

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.) [3881]

Mr. Gladstein: I think that is all, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: You may examine.

Mr. Del Guercio: We are taken a little by surprise. May we have a recess now, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes; certainly.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

Presiding Inspector: Now, Mr. Del Guercio; all right.

Mr. Gladstein, you know you didn't introduce any of that package of letters that were brought up, except the small one signed by Catherman?

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: I merely call that to your attention.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, we are not going to take this as an opportunity to make a speech. There is no cross examination.

Presiding Inspector: You are excused.

Mr. Gladstein: Before you go, Mr. Hynes, can we have this understanding——

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment.

Presiding Inspector: This is in relation to those complimentary letters, that is, the so-called complimentary letters?

Mr. Gladstein: No, no.

You brought certain papers here, marked for identification, which neither side has offered in evidence. As far as we are [3882] concerned you can take those back with you. You said you wanted them.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: There is one memorandum which was introduced in evidence. You said you would like to have that back, of course?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Now, I would like this understanding: That the reporter, who has it, may have a photostat made of it and as soon as that is done may it be understood that the photostat can be substituted for the original? Then, if you will leave your address with the Court reporter would it be satisfactory for him to mail the original back to you?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: One more thing. You promised, during the course of your examination, that you would send to Judge Sears the date of your leave of absence in 1934 and 1935. Will you be good enough to do that?

The Witness: Yes.

How about these other documents?

Mr. Gladstein: You may take those with you.

(Whereupon Alien's Exhibit No. 16 for identification was returned to the witness.)

Presiding Inspector: That is all.

(Witness excused.) [3883]

Presiding Inspector: Call your next witness.

Mr. Grossman: He is being called, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Stand up and raise your right hand.

CHARLES YOEMAN

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: Give your name and address to the reporter.

The Witness: Charles Yoeman—Y-o-e-m-a-n—Merchant seaman.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is your address?

A. I have no permanent address. I am using my mother's address, 3282½ Twentieth Street, Frisco.

Mr. Del Guercio: I didn't get the name.

Presiding Inspector: Charles Y[illegible]man—merchant seaman, I understood him to say.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Are you a member of any union?

A. Marine Cooks and Stewards Association of the Pacific Coast.

Q. And you are now working, are you, as a member of that union? A. I am. [3884]

Q. Did you ever live in Portland, Oregon?

A. On several different occasions.

Q. Did you live in Portland, Oregon, last year, 1940, at all? A. I did.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. Were you married in 1940 to a woman named Margaret Nelson?

A. I was.

Q. Do you know a man named Dick Lovelace?

A. I did.

Q. Will you tell me when you first heard the name of Dick Lovelace?

A. Shortly after I married Margaret Nelson she told me that a former boy friend of hers was continuing to write letters to her and call her up and——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) That is not responsive to the question—what was the last question, if your Honor please?

Mr. Grossman: I think it is responsive.

Presiding Inspector: The answer was somewhat confused.

Mr. Grossman: Suppose I ask what the circumstances were?

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What were the circumstances surrounding your hearing the name of Dick Lovelace for the first time?

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, I object to that. [3885]

Presiding Inspector: I don't suppose we need that. It was shortly after he married this woman.

Mr. Grossman: I want to know the circumstances. Otherwise there will be an objection that I am leading the witness.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Mr. Grossman: That is why I am asking for the circumstances.

Presiding Inspector: From whom did you learn his name?

The Witness: From my wife.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What happened at that time? How did you learn it, what did she say about Dick Lovelace?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that as being immaterial to anything in this case. It calls for hearsay on a matter that, of course, we don't know what it is.

Presiding Inspector: We have a suspicion.

Mr. Del Guercio: Counsel knows, of course.

Presiding Inspector: We have heard something about this. Have you got the letters?

Mr. Grossman: I don't think we have to answer that question at this time.

Presiding Inspector: No, you don't; quite true.

In a general way, your wife mentioned the name and said that she was receiving communications from him, or something of that nature?

The Witness: That is right. [3886]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: This witness is offered apparently in support of the testimony of Mr. MacMickle——

Presiding Inspector: No, I don't——

Mr. Del Guercio: Continuing) ——who was on the stand a few days ago.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Presiding Inspector: I think, before we get through with this witness he will be a character witness. Isn't this a character witness?

Mr. Grossman: Not in the sense that you are using it. It does go to his character, but not as a character witness. It is definitely relevant. I can explain the entire thing, but I don't think it is necessary on preliminary questions. I think we are wasting a lot of time on questions that are obviously preliminary. I can explain it if you want to take the time for it.

Presiding Inspector: I think I understand it.

Mr. Grossman: I submit it is the usual way to get this testimony.

Presiding Inspector: I don't suppose what his wife told him is really competent.

Mr. Grossman: I think it is part of the circumstances because at the same time——

Presiding Inspector: We are not interested in those. [3887]

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did your wife show you any letters?

A. She did.

Q. At the time of this discussion? A. Yes.

Q. At that time what did she tell you about the letters, or anything?

Mr. Del Guercio: I object to that, your Honor, as not being material to any issue in this case.

Presiding Inspector: If it is merely from whom they came I will take it.

Mr. Grossman: That is sufficient.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did she tell you from whom they came?

A. Yes.

Q. From whom did she say they had come?

A. Dick Lovelace.

Q. How many letters did she show you this first time that she mentioned the name of Dick Lovelace?

A. The best I can recall, three or four.

Q. Did you read the letters? A. I did.

Q. At any future time were you given any other letters by your wife which purported to be from Dick Lovelace?

A. Yes; from that time on I received them.

[3888]

Q. When she gave you these letters, other letters, did she state they were from Dick Lovelace also? A. She did.

Q. Do you happen to know how she got these letters, whether they were delivered personally or in the mail, or what?

A. She received them in the mail addressed to her office that she was working at.

Q. Do you happen to know how often she received these letters?

A. At first it was pretty regular and then it dwindled down to about one a week; something like that.

Q. Did your wife state to you that she received communications in any other form except letters from Dick Lovelace at about that time?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. Yes. He used to call her at the office pretty often.

Q. Did she tell you that? A. Yes.

Q. Were his telephone conversations substantially the same as the contents of the letters?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, if your Honor please.

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. Are you going to produce the letters?

Mr. Grossman: No.

Mr. Del Guercio: Where are the letters? [3889]

Presiding Inspector: I think we will find out what became of the letters first.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What became of the letters?

A. To the best of my knowledge my ex-wife still has them.

Mr. Del Guercio: If your Honor please, in view of that statement I think they should not have produced this man but should have produced his wife, or former wife, who has the letters.

Presiding Inspector: Perhaps he had a conversation with Mr. Lovelace about this, and this may be preliminary.

Mr. Myron: If the letters are available they are the best evidence. Certainly any conversation concerning the same are not admissible.

Presiding Inspector: They are not the best evidence of the conversation that he may have had with this man, Lovelace.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Mr. Myron: About the letters which are available.

Mr. Grossman: First, there is no evidence at the present time that these letters are available; second, I don't think it is fair to distort the chronology of this presentation. When this witness has finished it will be clear why the letters and how the letters got where they are, and out of his possession, and the fact that they are not available, and so on.

This is also subject to a motion to strike if it is not tied [3890] up.

I prefer to follow this in a chronological way, and I assure you that there were conversations with Lovelace about them.

Mr. Myron: The statements of counsel are also objectionable.

Mr. Grossman: I think we should be allowed to proceed along a chronological line.

Presiding Inspector: You may do that, of course.

Without telling what the contents of the letters were I will allow you to ask whether his wife at the time told him that the conversations were on the same lines of the letters.

Mr. Grossman: All right.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did your wife tell you whether the conversations over the telephone with Lovelace were substantially the same, rather, the statements of Lovelace over the telephone were substantially the same as the statements in the letters?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. I think in most cases, yes.

Q. Do you recall any substantial differences—do you remember what the substantial differences were in any cases if there were any? A. Yes.

Q. Can you state what the differences were?

Mr. Myron: I object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think that is very material. [3891]

Mr. Grossman: If your Honor please, I think it is going to appear, as soon as this story is complete, that the telephone conversations were material as were the contents of the letters. I recognize this is hearsay as to the telephone conversations. I think, considering the entire story and the connections and the proof of the story as it will appear, that it becomes, and generally ties up either with the doctrine of res gestae, or just as an exception to the hearsay rule, that we should be permitted to go into the substance of the telephone conversations even though, as I say, it is hearsay as to this witness.

Presiding Inspector: Why couldn't you produce the woman?

Mr. Grossman: We are not prepared at this time to do so. But I still think we should be permitted to go into this. I would like a ruling on it at this time.

Mr. Del Guercio: This is all on a collateral matter.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Presiding Inspector: I understand that. Of course, the rule of secondary evidence don't apply with the same rigidity on a collateral matter.

Mr. Myron: Certainly the best evidence is available, apparently so, and if there is no explanation for its absence, it should be produced.

Mr. Grossman: The best evidence rule——

Presiding Inspector: The best evidence rule isn't strictly applicable on collateral matters. [3892]

Mr. Myron: I am talking about the contents of the letters. They are asking the witness to differentiate between conversations and the contents of the letters.

Mr. Grossman: I intend——

Presiding Inspector: We have already had in the record something of what is contained in the letters. I don't believe I would go any further in that respect.

Mr. Grossman: I was asking the question at this juncture about the telephone conversation.

Presiding Inspector: I think I will exclude that because you haven't shown that you cannot produce Mrs., the lady in question—I don't remember what the name is.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. After reading some of these letters did you attempt to—withdraw that. Did you have a conversation with Dr. MacMickle about them?

A. I did.

Q. Will you describe the circumstances surrounding your conversation with Dr. MacMickle about these letters?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. Well, I wanted Lovelace to stop writing and bothering my wife. I didn't care to take it to Court because the law becomes very messy. So I asked—she told me MacMickle was a personal friend of his. I went to him and asked him if he would be so good as to kindly see Lovelace and tell him, for his own interest, it would be better if he did stop bothering [3893] her through letters or otherwise.

Q. At the time you went to see Dr. MacMickle what did you believe as to the competency of Dick Lovelace?

Mr. Myron: I object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I will exclude that.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. From reading the letters did you draw any conclusions as to the sanity or competence of, or the normalcy of Dick Lovelace?

Mr. Myron: I object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: He can ask the rational or irrational character of the act of the writing of these letters. That I will take from a lay witness.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. From reading the letters, and from the circumstances surrounding the writing or the receiving of the letters, did you form any opinion as to the rationality——

Presiding Inspector: ——of the act of writing such letters? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What conclusion did you reach?

A. That the man was screwy.

Q. Was that your state of mind when you went to see Dr. MacMickle? [3894] A. It was.

Q. Did that influence what you told Dr. MacMickle? A. It did.

Q. Did you have any discussion with Dr. MacMickle about the sanity, or competency, or rationality of Dick Lovelace?

Mr. Myron: I object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Didn't MacMickle testify to that?

Mr. Grossman: Yes. He testified to the general discussion with this man. I am not certain whether he testified to a specific discussion on this question or not. I don't recall. I don't think it makes any difference. It is a part of the general conversation and I think we are entitled to go into it for that reason.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow him to—MacMickle is gone, I suppose—I will allow him to state that he did express the view that he has expressed here to Dr. MacMickle.

That is all you want, isn't it?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Did you express the same view that you have expressed here to Dr. MacMickle about his conduct, I mean, in respect to his being what you called "screwy"?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

The Witness: Well, I didn't really draw that conclusion, just partly, until he told me he had been shell-shocked and it gave me the reason for believing the man might really be [3895] that way.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did Dr. MacMickle make any statement as to whether Dick Lovelace was rational or mentally normal?

A. He told me at that time that he definitely wasn't.

Q. Was not normal? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember what he said in that respect at that time?

Presiding Inspector: Give your best recollection; not the words, unless you can give them.

A. He said that he would appreciate it, if I am not mistaken, being a friend of his, that he would talk to him and try to get him to stop writing these letters because he didn't want to see him get into any trouble.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did he say any more with respect to the mental condition of Dick Lovelace, any more than you have stated?

A. That he wasn't responsible for things that he wrote or said because he wasn't thinking clear, or words to that effect. I don't know exactly what they were.

Q. Did he suggest that you do anything with respect to these letters, or with respect to Dick Lovelace?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. He referred me to the United States Veterans—whoever it is that gives the money, the checks to the Veterans of the [3896] World War. I forget who it was.

Q. Did you shortly after that go to see the man who was, to whom you were referred by him?

A. I did.

Q. Do you recall that man's name?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you remember where his office was?

A. Yes. It is in the county courthouse at Portland.

Q. And did you have a conversation with that man? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What was the substance of that conversation?

Mr. Myron: I object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: That is pretty far afield, but it is just the history of it.

Mr. Grossman: Correct.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow it.

Mr. Grossman: It is the history of what he did in connection with the letters.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. I showed him the letters, told him what the trouble was, and asked him if there was any way he could see this Lovelace and talk to him to try to get him straightened out.

He said that the only way that he could act upon it, being the man had been in the hospital several times before, was for me to swear out a warrant for his arrest and after that then the [3897] proper authorities would handle him.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Was there anything more in the conversation between you and him at that time?

A. I believe he was the one that referred me to the Postal authorities, but I am not sure.

Q. Did you subsequently go to the Postal authorities?

A. Not for a period of time. I imagine it was about three weeks; something like that.

Q. And which of the Postal authorities did you speak to, if any?

A. I don't remember his name, but he was a Postal Inspector, United States Postal Inspector, if I am not mistaken, in the old Post Office Building in Portland?

Q. Did you show him the letters?

A. I did.

Q. What was the conversation between you and him——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) I object to this, your Honor.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. (Continuing) ——with respect to the letters?

Presiding Inspector: It is part of the history and has no other value.

A. He said that there was nothing that he could do unless I would swear out a warrant for his arrest to these letters, because there wasn't quite enough in them to be a violation of [3898] the mailing laws.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Subsequent to this did you see Dick Lovelace? A. I did.

Q. How did you happen to go to see—excuse me—did you go to see Dick Lovelace?

A. I did.

Q. How did you happen to go to see Dick Lovelace?

A. Well, he was still writing letters, making calls, and I still wanted him to stop, so I went up to where he lived the first time.

Q. What happened?

A. Well, his wife answered the door, and she called him to the door, and he came to the door and I told him who I was and asked him to step outside, that I would like to speak to him.

He immediately slammed the door and ran back into the house.

I think it was about a day after that, or two days, that I went back out there to try to see him.

In the meanwhile he had called my wife, at that time, up again.

I got there just as he was coming home from the grocery store. I told him that I was married to the young lady; that I couldn't understand how he could feel the way he did, and he [3899] would have to stop molesting her and pestering her in any way.

He said he didn't believe until then that she was really married, and he promised very faithfully that he would cease all correspondence with her.

Q. Is that the last time you ever saw him?

A. It was.

Q. About how many letters all told did you see that Dick Lovelace had written your wife?

A. I would say around ten or twelve; I don't remember exactly.

Q. How did these letters—withdraw that. Are these letters now out of your possession?

A. They are.

Q. How did they get out of your possession?

Mr. Myron: Now, apparently, your Honor, they were never in his possession.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Were these letters ever in your possession?

A. Yes.

Q. Until when, approximately?

A. Oh, approximately the 15th of May.

Presiding Inspector: When?

The Witness: Last year.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. How did they get out of your possession?

[3900]

A. I gave them to a friend of mine to hold for me.

Q. Do you know what he did with them?

A. He gave them back to my ex-wife.

Q. You are not married to your wife?

A. No.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. When were you divorced from her?

A. September 13, 1940.

Q. Did she ever refuse to give you those letters back? A. She did.

Mr. Del Guercio: There is no evidence here that he knows that his wife, or ex-wife, has those letters.

Mr. Grossman: We don't know whether she has or not.

Mr. Del Guercio: Then how can she refuse to give them back?

Mr. Myron: Weren't the letters written to his wife?

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Myron: I don't know what right he would have to them.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Did she ever tell you whether the letters were in existence or not after they were given to her?

A. She told me she destroyed them.

Q. When did she tell you that, approximately?

A. On the 17th or 18th of August, '40.

Q. Of 1940? A. Yes. [3901]

Q. Have you ever been convicted of any crime?

A. I have.

Q. Would you give us—withdraw that. When was the first time that you were convicted of any crime, and what was the nature of the crime?

A. It was in 1935.

Q. Where was it? A. Portland.

Q. What was the crime?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. Petty larceny.

Q. Were you given any sentence?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the sentence? A. A year.

Q. Where was the year to be spent?

A. On the rock pile.

Q. In the County or State Jail?

A. County Jail.

Q. Were there any other convictions or arrests?

A. Just one.

Q. Where was that? A. Los Angeles.

Q. What was the charge? A. Vag.

Q. What was the date? [3902]

A. In the latter part of September.

Q. What year? A. '39.

Q. What was the sentence, if any, in this case?

A. The sentence was six months; five months and ten days were suspended, and two years probation, and that I would stay out of the County of Los Angeles.

Q. Did you serve any time? A. Ten days.

Q. The rest was suspended? A. Pardon?

Q. And the rest was suspended?

A. Right.

Q. Have you ever been convicted of anything else? A. No; never been arrested.

Q. Are you a citizen? A. I am.

Q. By birth? A. Right.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

Presiding Inspector: Cross examination?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where were you married?

A. St. Helens, Oregon. [3903]

Q. When? A. February 23 or 24, 1940.

Q. 19— What? A. 1940.

Q. That is your present wife?

A. That is my last wife, ex-wife.

Q. How many times have you been married?

A. Twice.

Q. You hesitated. Is there some question about how many times you have been married?

A. No sir; no question.

Q. When was the first time you were married?

A. 1934.

Q. 1934? A. Uh huh.

Q. What month was that? A. August.

Q. August what? A. I don't remember.

Q. Where were you married?

A. In Vancouver, Washington.

Q. To whom? A. A girl.

Q. A girl? A. Yes.

Q. You are sure about that? [3905]

A. Definitely.

Q. What was her name?

Mr. Grossman: I think that is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Del Guercio: In view of the answer——

Presiding Inspector: You mean the answer he made?

Mr. Grossman: No; the next question.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Presiding Inspector: I think I will take it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What was her name?

A. Catherine Yates.

Q. Did that marriage terminate?

A. It did.

Q. How? A. She divorced me.

Q. She sued you for divorce? A. She did.

Q. On what grounds?

Mr. Grossman: I am going to object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't think so. It goes to the character of this witness, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think so.

Mr. Grossman: We can take judicial notice of the [3906] practice of obtaining divorces.

Presiding Inspector: Divorces, I don't think——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) It is a public record, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I know. It isn't a commission of a crime, you know.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. When did she divorce you? A. When?

Q. Yes. A. I think it was 1936.

Q. 1936?

A. Yes—no, wait a minute. It was either the latter part of 1936 or the first part of 1937.

Q. And when were you married again?

A. February 23 or 24, 1940.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. February '34?

A. I said February 23 or 24, 1940.

Q. 1940? A. Yes.

Q. And you have never been married more than twice? A. Not to my knowledge.

Presiding Inspector: Why don't you ask him if he had been married at other times whether he thinks he would remember it? [3907]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were you married to Catherine Yates at the time of these alleged letters that you say your wife received from Dick Lovelace?

A. No. That was a different wife?

Q. That was a different wife?

A. Yes.

Q. What wife was that?

A. Which one?

Presiding Inspector: I think he is confused about this.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Let me ask you this question again: When were you married the last time?

A. February 23 or 24—I might be mistaken on the date—but approximately in there,—1940.

Q. 1940? A. Yes.

Q. And you were divorced from your first wife when?

A. I am not quite clear just when that divorce was granted to her. I know she filed it while I was in jail. But it was granted at a later date. I believe it was the latter part of 1936 or the first part of 1937.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. Have you ever seen her since the decree of divorce? A. Once, yes.

Q. Where did you see her?

A. I saw her in a little town called Chickasha, Oklahoma. [3908]

Q. Is that where the divorce was granted?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Was the divorce action instituted in the State of Oregon?

A. No; it was instituted in Oklahoma.

Q. You say you have no fixed place of residence at the present time?

A. I am a merchant seaman.

Q. On what ship are you employed?

A. The SS Alvarado, Moore Wood and Lumber Company.

Q. Aldorado? A. Alvarado.

Q. Alvarado. Do you know the name of the company that owns that boat?

A. Here in Frisco it is Moore Steamship Company.

Q. Moore.

A. In Bandon and Marshfield it is the Moore Mill and Lumber Company.

Q. And how long have you been employed on that ship?

A. I caught her in Bandon, Oregon, last Thursday.

Q. Since last Thursday?

A. I caught her last Thursday, yes.

Q. What were you doing before that?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. I was preparing to go to Alaska.

Q. Preparing to go? [3909] A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, where were you before you were preparing to go to Alaska? A. In Portland.

Q. In Portland? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were you doing there?

A. I was doing what was called laying on the beach.

Q. Literally or——

A. Perhaps I can explain it to his Honor.

Presiding Inspector: That is a seaman's phrase.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How long were you gone?

A. I returned from China in February.

Q. You returned from China February what?

A. That is right.

Q. February what?

A. Well, I paid off the SS Colbrook February 17, at Portland, Oregon.

Q. What year? A. 1941.

Q. 1941? A. Yes.

Q. What was the name of that ship?

A. Colbrook, C-o-l-b-r-o-o-k. [3910]

Q. And you were discharged where?

A. Portland, Oregon.

Q. Then, from February 17, 1941, to the time that you were preparing to go to Alaska you were unemployed? A. Not all the time.

Q. Well, were you employed during that period of time? A. I did occasional work.

Q. With whom?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. Longshoring, warehousing.

Q. Warehousemen?

A. Warehousing and longshoring.

Q. Where? A. In Portland.

Q. Portland, Oregon? A. Uh huh.

Q. Now, before you went to China on the SS Colbrook where did you sign on the ship?

A. On the Colbrook?

Q. On the Colbrook.

A. In Portland, Oregon. Just a minute, and I can tell you. (Examining documents) October 29, 1940.

Q. Do you have your seamen's discharge book?

A. I don't carry a Fink book; I carry papers.

Q. What?

A. I have my seamen's papers.

Q. May I see them? [3911]

A. Certainly. (Handing documents to Mr. Del Guercio). Don't run off with that.

Q. What?

Presiding Inspector: He will let you have them back.

Mr. Del Guercio: Oh, yes, of course.

Presiding Inspector: They are important to him, of course.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, you have here a seaman's certificate of identification dated at Los Angeles, California, on November 8, 1937, giving your address at 660 Spruce Street, Berkeley, California.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. That is right.

Q. Were you residing at that address at that time?

A. My mother was the housekeeper for the people who lived there.

Q. Well, were you living there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever lived at that address?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, when you made application to the Shipping Commissioner for this seaman's certificate——

A. (Interposing): The only address——

Q. (Interposing): Did you make your application under oath? [3912]

A. Oh, absolutely.

Q. And you gave this address, 660 Spruce Street, Berkeley, California, as being your place of residence?

A. It was my place of residence; that was my mailing address.

Q. But you never lived there? A. Never.

Q. Now, where were you born?

A. Portland, Oregon.

Q. In what year? A. 1916.

Q. What month? A. February.

Q. February what? A. 24th.

Q. Do you have a birth certificate?

A. Right in there (indicating).

Q. (Examining documents.)

A. That is it.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. This seaman's certificate is numbered B-91532; is that correct? A. I can't see it.

Q. (Handing document to the witness.)

A. (Examining document): That is correct. That is the life boat ticket; it isn't a seaman's certificate. [3913]

Q. That is what?

A. That is a life boat ticket there.

Presiding Inspector: A life boat ticket. It isn't a seaman's.

Mr. Del Guercio: I thought I saw it on the seaman's——

The Witness (Interposing): It is with that. That is a different number.

Mr. Del Guercio: Z-1676.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, what were you doing before you signed on the Colbrook?

A. Laying on the beach.

Q. What?

A. I was laying on the beach.

Q. For how long a period?

A. I come back from Alaska August the 15th.

Q. August the 15th? A. Yes.

Q. What year? A. 1940.

Q. 1940? A. Yes.

Q. And on what ship?

A. On the SS W. L. Thompson. [3914]

Q. W. L. Thompson. Now, when did you sign on the W. L. Thompson?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. On June the 1st, 1940.

Q. June 1, 1940. Where?

A. Astoria, Oregon.

Q. Astoria, Oregon. Were you continuously employed on the W. L. Thompson from June 1, 1940, to August 15, 1940? A. I was.

Q. How many voyages did the W. L. Thompson make from June 1, 1940, to August 15, 1940, if it made more than one?

A. That is a fishing vessel. She goes up there and lays in the Bering Sea for two and a half months. She doesn't make any voyages.

Q. Well, now, from June 1, 1940 until your discharge on August 15, 1940, you were continuously on that ship? A. That is right.

Q. Was there a time in between that you were laying on the beach again?

A. Yes, sir, there was.

Q. And what was the ship which you were on?

A. I come back from S. A. on the intercoastal run, on the Forbes-Hauptmann. I paid off in Portland, Oregon, on January the 29th, 1940.

Q. That was on what ship?

A. Forbes-Hauptmann. [3915]

Q. Forbes-Hauptmann. And when did you sign on that vessel?

A. (Examining documents): October the 3rd, 1939.

Q. October 3, 1939? A. That is right.

Q. Now, were you continuously employed on the

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Forbes-Hauptmann from October 3, 1939 until the time of your discharge on January 29, 1940?

A. I was.

Q. You say that vessel was engaged in the coastwise trade? A. The Intercoastal trade.

Q. Between what points?

A. Well, she made Seattle, Fort Gamble, Frisco, Pedro, Marquesas, Ponce and San Juan.

Q. Did you have any shore leave at any time between October 3, 1939 and June 29, 1940?

A. Huh! Once in a while.

Q. What? A. Once in a while.

Q. At every port? A. No, no.

Q. Did it ever touch at Portland?

A. Beg pardon?

Q. Did that vessel ever touch at Portland?

[3916]

A. I told you before that is where I paid off.

Q. Well, did it touch at Portland at any time other than the time you were paid off?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times?

A. Once, twice; twice.

Q. When was the first time that it touched at Portland? A. I can't remember that.

Q. Signed on there October 3, 1939?

A. Well, I got the discharges here. I can——

Q. (Interposing): Well, can you look at the discharge?

A. And tell when she hit Portland?

Q. Yes. A. No.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. Can you tell——

Presiding Inspector (Interposing): It doesn't show all the ports.

The Witness: Just signed on and paid off.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Can you tell me the approximate time it touched Portland after you signed on October 3, 1939?

A. I am not—I don't clearly remember but I believe it did. I don't clearly remember, though.

Q. You can't clearly remember what?

A. Whether it hit Portland or not. [3917]

Q. During any time between October 3, 1939?

A. Yes, it did hit Portland coming south, I know, but whether she hit Portland on the loop going north or not I can't remember.

Q. Then, your testimony is that she may only have hit Portland once?

A. Once until I paid off of her, yes, sir.

Q. Until you were paid off? A. Yes.

Q. How long did you remain ashore when you hit Portland that one time?

A. Well, you see, on a ship you work out your relief with whoever you are working with.

Q. Yes.

A. Now, one port you might go ashore and be off the whole day or a day and a half or two days.

Q. Well, what did you have? Did you have more than one day off? A. I believe I did.

Q. Well, you are not sure? It might have been less than one day?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. No, not in my home port; I would take more. I would take a day off.

Q. Would you have any record of that?

A. Not very well. [3918]

Q. The ship's log would, though? A. No.

Q. What? A. No, no, sir.

Q. Wouldn't the Master have a record of it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Who gives you shore leave?

A. The Chief Steward.

Q. You make a request of the Chief Steward?

A. That is right.

Q. And he permits you to go ashore?

A. That is right, if it is possible.

Q. What? A. If it is possible.

Q. Well, could the Chief Steward give you more than a day off?

A. Well, that is possible, but improbable.

Q. What?

Presiding Inspector: Possible but improbable.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Possible but improbable. So, then, it is improbable that you got a day off, is that it?

A. Oh, no. You see I might go all the way down the east coast and not have a day off, New York, Baltimore, Newport News, Philadelphia. The other fellows would take the days off. Then, [3919] when the ship got into my home port, whichever I want to designate as it, they will cover up for me while I go ashore and have my time off.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. What port do you designate as your home port? A. Usually Portland.

Q. Not always? A. Not always.

Q. You have designated other ports?

A. Uh huh.

Q. Which other ports? A. Frisco.

Q. Frisco? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, how long were you unemployed prior to October 3, 1939, before you signed on the Forbes-Hauptmann?

A. (Examining documents): I got off the Timber Rush September 11, 1939.

Q. September 11, 1939. I didn't get the name.

A. The Timber Rush, T-i-m-b-e-r R-u-s-h.

Q. At what city? A. In San Francisco.

Q. At San Francisco. Where did you sign on that vessel?

A. I signed on her May the 20th, 1939, Portland, Oregon.

Q. Is that engaged in the intercoastal trade?

A. It was. I think they sold her to the British. I don't [3920] know where she is now.

Q. Were you continuously employed on that vessel from May 20, 1939 to September 11, 1939?

A. I was.

Q. Did you get any shore leave at any time between those periods? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Where, at what ports?

A. Oh, I remember distinctly the Fourth of July in New York.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. July in New York? A. Yes, uh huh.

Presiding Inspector: The Fourth of July.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Any other ports?

A. I had the fifth of July off in New York City also.

Q. Not the Fourth?

Presiding Inspector: "Also", he said. He dropped his voice.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you have shore leave at any ports between the period from May 20, 1939, to September 11, 1939?

A. Yes, I had—well, you see, on any trip in the Steward's Department from 6:00 o'clock in the evening until 6:00 o'clock the following morning you are on your own time. [3921] Those are not your working hours; you are free to go ashore without —in an American port without the permission of the Captain or anyone else; at least, it has never been questioned.

Q. Is that also the case on vessels engaged in foreign trade? A. Not in foreign trade.

Q. What?

A. The Master can restrict shore leave at any time in foreign trade, in foreign ports.

Q. Can the Master tell you, give you permission to get off the ship at any time on a vessel——

A. (Interposing): I don't quite clearly understand you.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. Can the Master tell you, give you permission to get off the ship at any time at any United States port coming from a foreign port, when the vessel is coming from a foreign port?

A. I don't quite understand his question.

Q. Well, never mind. What is your designation on the vessels? What kind of work do you do?

A. I am a cook, waiter, messman, galleyman.

Q. Anything else?

A. Bedroom steward; that is enough, I think.

Q. You have never been a seaman, have you, signed on as able seaman? A. No, sir.

Q. What? A. No, sir. [3922]

Mr. Del Guercio: Do you want to continue? I don't believe we will be able to get through.

Presiding Inspector: Can't you finish with him?

Mr. Del Guercio: No.

Presiding Inspector: Tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 4:20 o'clock P.M. an adjournment was taken until Thursday, May 15, 1941, at 10:00 o'clock A. M.) [3923]

Court Room 276,

Proceedings

Presiding Inspector: We will proceed with the hearing. Mr. Del Guercio?

CHARLES YEOMAN

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How do you spell your name?

A. Y-e-o-m-a-n.

Q. I believe you testified yesterday that you were married twice? A. That is right.

Q. Will you give again the date of your second marriage?

A. It was either February 23 or 24, right in there, 1940, St. Helens, Oregon.

Q. How long did you live with your second wife?

Mr. Grossman: May I have the question, please?

(The question referred to was read by the reporter as above recorded.)

A. From that date until May 20.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. May 20? A. Approximately May 20.

Q. What happened on May 20, 1940? [3925]

A. I came to 'Frisco.

Q. You came to 'Frisco? A. Yes.

Q. Did you separate from your wife?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. That was a tentative agreement between her and I at that time that we would separate.

Q. You are divorced from your second wife?

A. I am.

Q. Who instituted the divorce proceedings?

A. She did.

Q. Did you contest it? A. No.

Q. Where were the divorce proceedings instituted?

A. Multnomah County, Portland, Oregon.

Q. Now, these letters that you talked about, how did they come into your possession?

A. She gave them to me.

Q. When did she give them to you?

A. Not long after we were married.

Q. You mean sometime after February 23, or 24, 1940? A. That is right.

Q. How long after that?

A. I don't remember just how long after that it was.

Q. Was it a week?

A. If I am not mistaken she gave me what letters she had received quite shortly after we were married .[3926]

Q. "Shortly." By shortly what do you mean now? Do you mean less than a week?

A. It might have been a couple of days, it might have been a week.

Q. Not more than a week?

A. It might have been; I don't believe it was.

Q. Could it have been more than two weeks?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. I don't think so.

Q. Now, were these letters in envelopes?

A. The letters were in envelopes.

Q. How many letters did your wife give you?

A. At that time?

Q. Yes. A. Approximately four or five.

Q. Now, had you asked for them?

A. When she gave them to me——

Q. (Interposing): Or did she just give them to you?

A. When she gave them to me, I think, it was mutually agreed at that time between her and I when she gave me the letters that I would try to stop him from corresponding with her either by telephone or by writing.

Q. Now, you say you went to Mr. MacMickle about when? A. (No response.)

Q. May 15th, I believe, you testified yesterday, 1940; is that correct?

A. I believe it was around there. [3927]

Q. Then that is the first time you went to Mr MacMickle? A. Beg pardon?

Q. Had you known Mr. MacMickle prior to that time? A. I had not.

Q. Never met him? A. Never had.

Q. Did you become very friendly with Mr. MacMickle after you met him?

A. We had, perhaps, an hour's discussion in his office.

Q. An hour's discussion. Were you alone?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. No; I had a friend with me.

Q. You had a friend with you. Were you ever alone with Mr. MacMickle?

A. I was not.

Q. At any time after that? A. No.

Q. And is that the first time you took any action on the letters? A. Yes, it was.

Q. You didn't correspond or talk to Mr. Lovelace from the time you got the letters up until the time you saw Mr. MacMickle?

A. I never talked to Lovelace until after I had saw MacMickle. [3928]

Q. How many times did you see Mr. MacMickle?

A. One time.

Q. And that was when?

A. That was around—well, I am not sure of the date, just when it was.

Q. Well, it was in May, wasn't it, sometime?

A. It might have been in May; it might have been in March.

Q. Well, now, you testified yesterday it was in May. Do you want to change your testimony?

A. No; I would like for you to read that, though, if I did.

Q. These letters that you say your wife gave you shortly after you were married, were they written before your marriage to her?

A. There was a couple of them that were.

Q. And the others, when were they written?

A. After we were married.

Q. After you were married? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. How long afterward?

A. I don't remember the exact dates, but she had received some letters prior to our marriage from Lovelace and she concealed them from me until after we were married. Then she continued to receive these letters; how long and how [3929] many I can't really remember.

Q. You say you got about four letters shortly after you were married? Did you get more later?

A. More letters came later; yes.

Q. Did you get them?

A. Yes; she gave them to me.

Q. She gave them to you how long afterwards?

A. I believe—that question is kind of hard to remember—I believe they came about one a week.

Q. One a week? A. Yes.

Q. Did that continue during the time you were married?

A. That continued up until the time I saw Lovelace.

Q. Were you living at home at the time these last letters came?

A. We had an apartment.

Q. What?

A. We had an apartment; we were living together.

Q. You were out to sea part of the time, weren't you? A. Fifteen days, I believe.

Q. Now, what was the name of your friend that went with you to see Mr. MacMickle?

A. Melvin Gravon—G-r-a-v-o-n.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. And tell us what happened, what did you say to Mr. MacMickle? [3930]

A. My wife had told me that MacMickle was a very good friend of Lovelace's, so we went up to see him, Mr. Gravon and I.

Q. What did you tell him?

A. I introduced myself, told him who I was, and told him that this man continued to write letters to my wife, and that he also owed her some money.

Q. He also what?

A. Owed her some money.

Q. Owed your wife some money? A. Yes.

Q. Did you show Mr. MacMickle the letters?

A. I did.

Q. Did he ask you to show them to him?

A. I don't remember whether he asked me or not.

Q. You showed him the letters?

A. I showed him the letters.

Q. You had never seen him before that time?

A. Mr. MacMickle?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Mr. Grossman: I am going to object to this. Obviously this witness hasn't indicated he had any way of knowing whether Dr. MacMickle had seen the letters before.

Presiding Inspector: I don't see what that adds. [3931]

Mr. Del Guercio: It will be brought out later, if your Honor please. I have a purpose.

Presiding Inspector: Very well. I will take it, although we have been along that line.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Mr. Grossman: If Dr. MacMickle mentioned it I have no objection, but asking it without such a basis being laid I think it is improper.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did you tell Mr. MacMickle you were going to kill Lovelace?

A. I certainly didn't.

Q. Did you tell Mr. MacMickle if he didn't do something you would do something very violent?

A. I certainly didn't.

Q. You are sure about that?

Presiding Inspector: He has testified to it. It don't add anything to ask whether he is sure about it, when there is no question about it and he has answered.

That is with the purpose of expedition merely.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I believe you testified that Mr. MacMickle suggested that you go to see somebody in the U. S. Veterans Bureau? A. He did.

Q. Did he give you the name of the person he wanted you to see? [3932] A. He did.

Q. What was his name?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did Mr. MacMickle suggest that you see any authorities, civil authorities?

A. No, he didn't.

Q. And I believe you testified that you did go to see someone in the Veterans Department in the courthouse building in Portland?

A. I went to the proper authorities. First, I went to the new post office building, and the Post Office Inspector there, if I am not mistaken, he referred me down to the old Government building, down at Third and Gleason, I think is it, so I went down there.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. And that is the Postal Inspector you saw?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Did you show him the letters? A. I did.

Q. What did he tell you?

A. He told me that there wasn't quite enough contained in the letters which could be constituted as a violation of the mail code for the Government to prosecute on its own behalf; that I would have to prefer charges against him.

Q. Did you prefer any charges against Lovelace? A. I did not. [3933]

Q. Now, you have testified also that your wife got possession of the letters. A. She did.

Q. Later? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did she get possession of them?

A. This Melvin Gravon gave them back to her.

Q. What?

A. A friend of mine gave them back to her.

Q. Did you give them to a friend of yours?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. To this same Gravon? A. Gravon.

Q. When did you give them to him?

A. I don't remember the exact date.

Q. About? A. Beg your pardon?

Q. About when?

A. I believe it was around the first part of May.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. The first part of May? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you give them to him before you went to see MacMickle? A. No.

Q. After? A. Afterward. [3934]

Q. How long after?

A. That is hard to tell; I haven't a very good memory.

Q. Well, no, I see that. When you gave your friend these letters did you give him any instructions what he was to do with them?

A. I told him to keep them for me.

Q. You say he gave them to your wife?

A. He did.

Q. How do you know

A. He told me he did.

Q. When did he tell you he gave them to your wife? A. Beg pardon?

Q. When did he tell you he gave those letters back?

A. When I returned from Alaska August 15, 1940.

Q. Did he tell you why he gave them back to your wife?

A. I don't believe he clearly stated why.

Q. Did you ask him? A. I did.

Q. And he didn't clearly state?

A. That is right.

Q. Are you a friend of Harry Bridges?

Presiding Inspector: Of whom?

Mr. Del Guercio: Harry Bridges.

A. We are both members of the CIO.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Well, are you friendly with him? [3935]

A. I never met the man before yesterday personally.

Q. I believe, you testified yesterday that you were arrested twice; is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Once in Portland? A. Right.

Q. For petty theft? A. Right.

Presiding Inspector: You have been all over that, haven't you?

Mr. Del Guercio: No, your Honor; I have another purpose.

Presiding Inspector: Very well.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. The second time? A. In Los Angeles.

Q. What was that for? A. Vag.

Q. Was this in connection with a Communistic Demonstration? A. No.

Q. Was it for loitering?

A. Well, I was drunk.

Q. You were drunk? A. Yes, sir. [3936]

Q. And you were picked up for being drunk?

A. No.

Q. What were you picked up for?

A. Vag.

Q. Well, what is that "vag"?

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment, your Honor. First, because that is a legal question, second also,

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

because the law is so unsettled on what vagrancy is, I don't think the witness should be asked——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) He was picked up. The charge was vagrancy. I suppose when he was arrested, if he was arrested, he was told that he was arrested for vagrancy. You asked him what he was picked up for.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, as a matter of fact,——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) So that is all you want to ask on that.

Mr. Del Guercio: No.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Yeoman, you were picked up, arrested in the commission of lewd and lascivious acts, were you not?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Not to your knowledge. And you were charged with vag.-lewd under Section 288-A of the California Penal Code, [3937] is that right?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember?

A. About any of that 288-A, that stuff.

Q. You were arrested at San Pedro on September the 19th, 1939 were you not?

A. I believe that is the date; I am not sure.

Q. I will show you an arrest report here.

Mr. Grossman: May I see it, Mr. Del Guercio?

Mr. Del Guercio: I haven't introduced it yet.

Presiding Inspector: Don't answer the question. Just look at it.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. (Examining document.)

Presiding Inspector: I don't know if there is any question.

Better show it to counsel.

(The document referred to was handed to other counsel by Mr. Del Guercio.)

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor. I wish to point this out: Insofar as this completely states this situation it appears very clearly here that the booking which is the legal effect of the charge, I assume, at that stage before any complaint has been filed, and the only charge officially, was for Section 647 Subdivision 5 vag.-lewd, which is not the other Section. I think from now on, any questions that are [3938] asked should definitely refer to—otherwise they mislead the witness—should definitely refer to—so far as I know, this is an official document. As a matter of law, I believe the booking, at least, until there is a complaint, is the legal basis for the arrest and the charge.

Presiding Inspector: He admitted it.

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: Is that the whole transcript of the record?

Mr. Grossman: This is only the officer's report, arrest report which, I think, is immaterial, in any event. I think the only material thing is the charge on which the arrest——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) This is offered to refresh his recollection.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: I mean, any questions from now on should refer to the fact that the booking was for an arrest under the vag-lewd Section 647.

Presiding Inspector: It doesn't matter much what the arrest was for——

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. (Interposing) This recites correctly the circumstances under which you were arrested on September 19, 1939, at San Pedro?

A. You are asking me? [3939]

Q. Yes.

A. It does not.

Q. What is incorrect about it?

Presiding Inspector: No, no, no.

Mr. Grossman: Just a moment. I am going to object to this as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. We have no objection whatsoever to showing the charge and the conviction or the plea.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were you arrested again?

Presiding Inspector: Ask what were the circumstances. If you want, you can lead him.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes. Well, I can ask him that, your Honor.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were you arrested again on September 29, 1939?

A. I was only arrested one time in San Pedro. What the particular date was I don't remember, but I was arrested once.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman:)

Mr. Grossman: Could I look at the other a moment, please, the one you showed me before?

(Whereupon the document was handed to Mr. Grossman.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. I will show you what purports to be an arrest report for September 29, 1939 at San Pedro, California, person [3940] arrested, Charles Yeoman, age 23, occupation seaman, race Scotch, Address SS President Cleveland——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) I am going to object to any reading of the arrest report.

Mr. Del Guercio: Just for identification.

Presiding Inspector: This is merely to identify it.

Mr. Grossman: Oh!

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. (Continuing) Arrested by Von Wiedenfield, and ask you if this report relates to your arrest on that date?

A. Can I see that one?

Q. Yes. (Handing document to witness.)

A. (Examining document) I only know one thing; I was only arrested one time in Pedro.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, let me introduce this first report of the date September 19, 1939.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor, I am going to object.

Mr. Del Guercio: For identification.

Mr. Grossman: Even for identification.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Presiding Inspector: Have it marked for identification.

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

(The document referred to was marked Government's Exhibit No. 264 for identification.)

Mr. Del Guercio: And I ask that the second arrest report dated September 21, 1939, be also marked for identification.

Presiding Inspector: I will allow the second paper to be [3941] marked for identification too as you have shown it to the witness.

(The document referred to was marked Government's Exhibit No. 265 for identification.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. How many persons were arrested with you?

A. Two.

Q. What were their names?

A. One of them's name was Dick Butler; the other one I don't remember.

Q. Was Dick Butler a shipmate?

A. He was.

Q. You were employed on the SS Cleveland at that time, is that right? A. I was.

Q. Was the other party also employed on the Cleveland? A. He was.

Q. You were all shipmates?

A. That is right. [3942]

Q. And where were you when you were arrested?

A. In San Pedro.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. Well, in what part—were you in a house, or a hallway, or what?

A. I was drunk and I don't really remember where we were arrested.

Q. You were all together, weren't you?

A. We were, I believe.

Q. You were all arrested together?

A. Well, we all ended up in the can together the next morning.

Q. Who was with you at the time you were arrested, Butler or the other fellow?

A. I think they were both with me?

Q. What?

A. I am not sure, but I think we all three went together.

Q. Wasn't one of those persons acting as a lookout? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you make a statement to the police officer after your arrest? A. I probably did.

Q. Did you admit to the police that you were committing an act of,—committing a lewd and lascivious act at the time of your arrest?

A. I don't believe so. [3943]

Q. Were you arrested in the commission of a lewd and lascivious act?

A. I wouldn't call it that.

Q. What?

A. I wouldn't call it that.

Q. What would you call it?

A. That all depends on which version you want.

Q. Give me your version?

A. Well what your version is, it is clearly what the arresting officers stated in San Pedro.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Q. What was that?

A. What you have got there.

Q. What is your version?

A. My version is entirely different.

Q. What is it?

A. Well, I might explain that more clearly to the court.

Q. Very well. You mean privately?

A. Your Honor, at times in San Pedro when the officers arrest a seaman, he hasn't no home and very few friends. It is a common practice, whenever they arrest you for any charge, be it so minor, to try to make a felony out of that crime, whatever it is; and afterward they will reduce this charge, naturally, if you will go down and plead guilty, which usually a seaman will do for more than one reason. He has no money to hire a lawyer. [3944] Nine times out of ten his home is somewhere else, so to get out of laying in jail 30, 60 or 90 days waiting for a court trial, he will go down and plead guilty and do 10 days to get out of jail. They reduce the charge from the greater charge they always slap on you to a minor charge so you will do that.

That is clearly a case of what happened at that time. The crime that I was charged with, and supposed to be charged with, never was presented to me at first.

After I had been in jail two days a guy came to me and said, "You are in an awful jam."

I asked him why.

"Well," he said, "you did this, you did that."

I said, "Well, you are clearly wrong; I didn't."

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

"Well," he said, "You are in a bad way for it."

So a couple of days went by. I couldn't hire a lawyer, I didn't have any money.

Then either a court man, or the Chief of Detectives, or a detective there, came up and said, "How would you like to go down and plead guilty to a reduced charge and do 30 days?"

I said, "Look, I still didn't do what you are telling me I did. I don't want to plead guilty to anything that pertains to that."

So he said, "Well, if you don't do it you know that you can lay around here a long time before you ever do go to trial."

So I asked another officer there by the name of Thompson, [3945] day jailer—and a fine fellow too—and he told me if I did not follow down the wishes of the Police Department that it was likely that I would be transferred to Lincoln Heights and would stay there for a period of maybe a month or two months awaiting for a court trial before I could ever appear and plead not guilty.

So naturally, under the circumstances, it was far better for me to go down and plead guilty to something. It was clearly arranged beforehand that all we would do would be to do ten days. That is all that we would do. That was set, cut and dried, before we ever went to the court room, that we would do ten days and would be turned loose.

So it was far better for me to plead guilty to this vag.-lewd and do those ten days than to be milled around by justice for ninety days waiting to clear myself completely for being not guilty.

What you are trying to bring out here is what the Police Department filed. I can tell you truthfully, from a personal standpoint, I am glad at this time that I can state why I went down to San Pedro and plead guilty. And that is that so I would be able to do ten days and go back to work, instead of staying in jail 90 days waiting for trial to prove that I didn't do an act they said I did do.

Q. Then that is your version of it?

A. Yes. [3946]

Q. You do recall that you were charged with a felony, vag.-lewd, for a lewd and lascivious act?

Mr. Grossman: It appears clearly, if those reports are correctly reporting the situation, that this witness has never been charged with any felony. I call your Honor's attention to this arrest report and suggest that you look at it.

He obviously was booked for a violation of 647, which is a misdemeanor, which is vagrancy.

I happen to know there was never any felony charge, and that these reports do not indicate any felony charge. I think it is, therefore, improper for any suggestion to be made in the question that he was charged with any felony.

Presiding Inspector: It went to a court proceeding.

Mr. Grossman: I am here to definitely state, and Mr. Del Guercio knows, he was never charged with a felony and that these arrest reports indicate that.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Presiding Inspector: Do you know what he was charged with?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Presiding Inspector: When he was first arraigned?

Mr. Grossman: I know this much: That I called up and had the records checked, and they show a charge only of a violation of 647. The arrest reports show he was booked for a violation of 647 of the Penal Code which is vagrancy. There is no indication in the arrest reports that he was [3947] booked or charged with a felony.

I thing it is completely unfair to the witness to say that, and any such statement is designed to falsely prejudice anyone who hears this to say that the arrest reports indicate that he was charged with a felony. I submit, if you will look at the arrest reports they show the booking——

Presiding Inspector: Do you think this is consistent with the statement which has been made here about the reduced charge?

Mr. Grossman: As to whether there was a charge, yes. In other words, the witness—various code sections may be involved, but all I say is there never was any felony charge.

The reason I say that—we opened this up and he has a right to go into what he was charged with. That becomes material. Therefore, I am concerned that the record should clearly show what he was charged with.

Presiding Inspector: I am not familiar enough with your terminology to know what you mean by "charges." A man is arrested and brought before a magistrate, I suppose.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Mr. Grossman: Before that, your Honor, as I understand it, he is booked in the police station for something.

Presiding Inspector: He is held and then brought before a magistrate. He must, under the Constitution, I suppose, be immediately brought before a magistrate?

Mr. Grossman: Correct. [3948]

Presiding Inspector: When he is brought before a magistrate there is some information or charge held against him. Now, if that is what you mean by "charge" in the first instance——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) I mean both, not only that official charge, your Honor, which was a misdemeanor, vagrancy, but even on the booking at the police station, there would be a charge for the purpose of bail, until he is brought before a magistrate; and even that is also for a misdemeanor. That is according to the reports of the arresting officers.

Presiding Inspector: You mean to inform me as to the practice?

Mr. Grossman: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: Let me see if the reports bear out counsel's statement.

Mr. Grossman: I think your Honor should look at the reports.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Mr. Del Guercio: Just a moment. I didn't say anything while you were talking.

Here is the report and counsel says he was not charged with a felony.

Presiding Inspector: We are not very much interested in some kind of a paper that you have in your hand, which has never been offered for evidence, but merely marked for identification. I don't see what it has to do with the case. [3949]

Mr. Del Guercio: Counsel has stated that these reports that I have show that he was charged with a misdemeanor.

Presiding Inspector: Supposing he has? What counsel says isn't evidence.

Mr. Del Guercio: Very well. I offer this to show that the arrest report shows that the witness here was charged with a felony, suspicion 288 P. C.

(The document referred to was passed to the Presiding Inspector.)

Presiding Inspector: What were you going to ask?

Mr. Del Guercio: In view of the explanation of the version this witness has given of this arrest, I don't like to go into it, of course.

Presiding Inspector: The only thing here that I suppose is pertinent, without some witness other than a piece of paper, is that the charge is "Susp. 288 P. C."

Mr. Del Guercio: Penal code.

Presiding Inspector: I don't know what that is.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

Mr. Del Guercio: I don't want to, of course, go into the details if the witness denies it.

Presiding Inspector: No. I don't know what 288 P. C. is.

Mr. Grossman: I would like to say we absolutely have no objection to what the court records show. We would be willing to subpoena them ourselves to have them go in because we think they might be considered relevant; but something an [3950] officer might or might not say, which is not a charge and something, incidentally, that he is not willing to back up by a charge, either by booking or by any other kind of charges, we think is irrelevant in this proceeding; unless, as I say, if he were charged with that, and the Court records show it, we have no objection to going into it.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, this charge here was reduced to vag.-lewd, was it not? A. I believe it was.

Q. And that is under Section 647, subdivision 5, of the California Penal Code? A. It is.

Q. And you pleaded guilty to that?

A. I did.

Mr. Grossman: 647.

Mr. Del Guercio: 647, Subdivision 5.

Mr. Grossman: Excuse me—vag.-lewd. That is not the legal definition, but it is all right.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, this arrest up at Portland, you say you were arrested and convicted for petty larceny?

(Testimony of Charles Yeeman.)

A. I was arrested and I was convicted of petty larceny.

Q. Are you sure it wasn't grand larceny?

A. I might have been arrested for grand larceny, but I [3951] was convicted of petty largency.

Q. Weren't you convicted of grand larceny?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. What did you steal?

A. I believe I stole a bunch of suitcases.

Q. Of what value?

A. I don't remember what the value was. Maybe you have got it there, you probably have, and you can tell me.

Q. What were the circumstances surrounding your arrest for stealing the suitcases?

Mr. Grossman: I am going to object to this as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Del Guercio: I believe we have a right to go into this. They brought it out.

Presiding Inspector: You showed this conviction, or did you? I have forgotten.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Grossman: What I am objecting to particularly are the circumstances surrounding the arrest.

Presiding Inspector: I don't think we are interested in that.

I suppose you meant the commission of a crime.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What were you charged with when you were arrested?

A. Well, I believe when I was first arrested I was [3952] held for approximately 72 hours and charged with suspicion of theft, grand theft, or grand larceny.

Q. You were charged with grand larceny?

A. I was held—what do you call it?

Q. Didn't the grand jury indict you for grand larceny? A. They did.

Q. Were you tried on that charge?

A. No. The grand jury did not indict me for grand larceny.

Q. Which is correct?

A. No. I waived the preliminary hearing—isn't that the "procedure"?

Presiding Inspector: You waived your examination and it went to the grand jury?

The Witness: They just passed on it, I guess. I don't know the procedure.

Presiding Inspector: It goes to the grand jury and they make a finding and present a bill.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Was the indictment read to you in court?

A. It was.

Q. It wasn't an information?

A. Pardon?

Mr. Del Guercio: Withdraw it.

Mr. Grossman: I don't think the witness knows the dif- [3953] ference.

Presiding Inspector: Probably doesn't.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What did you plead?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. I plead guilty.

Q. To what charge, to the charge in the indictment? A. I don't understand you.

Q. What did you plead guilty to?

A. Whatever I was charged with.

Q. And what sentence were you given?

A. I was sentenced to a year in the county jail.

Q. To go back to this arrest in Los Angeles. I believe you testified yesterday that you were given ten days?

A. I don't believe I did. I said I did ten days.

Q. What sentence was given?

A. I was sentenced to, I believe it was, six months—I believe that I said that yesterday—to six months, with five months and twenty days suspended, with two years' probation.

Q. I believe you also said you were told to keep out of Los Angeles County?

A. That was the terms of the probation, that I not come off the ship when she docked in San Pedro. That is a common practice in the courts of San Pedro.

Q. Have you ever been arrested at any other times? [3954] A. I have not.

Q. Do you know a John Oliver Yeoman?

A. My brother; yes.

Q. Was he ever in the Navy? A. He was.

Mr. Grossman: What was the last question?

The Witness: He asked me if my brother was ever in the Navy and I told him he was. He was given a tropical survey out of Guam after a couple of years over there in the service, medical discharge.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Were you ever in the Navy?

A. I tried twice, but they wouldn't have me.

Q. How did you happen to come down here to testify?

A. I didn't happen to come down here to testify?

Q. Did anyone get in touch with you?

A. I understood you to mean that I came down from Portland to testify.

Q. Did you, or do you live here in San Francisco?

A. No. I was on board a ship, the SS Alvarado.

Q. Did anyone come over to see you on the ship?

A. Yes. My mother came down and met the ship when it got in.

Q. I mean anyone connected with this case here, counsel for the defendant. [3955] A. Yes.

Q. Who did? A. Mr. Margolis.

Q. Mr. Margolis? A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?

A. He asked me if I knew anything about Nick Lovelace.

Q. What did you tell him?

A. I told him what I knew.

Q. Did you tell him what you knew?

A. Pardon?

Presiding Inspector: He said he did.

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Did Mr. Margolis say anything else?

A. He asked me if I would be willing to testify to what I knew of the letters that were written between Dick Lovelace and my former wife.

Q. And you said——

A. (Interposing) I said I probably couldn't do any good, but in the cause of justice I was willing.

Q. Did you tell him of your arrest in Los Angeles? A. I did.

Q. Did you tell him it was for vag.-lewd?

A. I did.

Q. Did you tell him the circumstances under which you [3956] were arrested?

A. I certainly did.

Q. What? A. I certainly did.

Q. Did you see anyone else connected with the defense, other than Mr. Margolis?

A. I talked to Aubrey the next morning, I believe it was, or maybe that night.

Q. Aubrey?

A. Mr. Grossman. I don't know all these people's names.

Q. When did you talk to him?

A. I believe I talked to him a few minutes that evening, and just about five minutes the following morning.

Q. At his office or on the ship?

A. Pardon?

Q. At his office or on the ship?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. At his office.

Q. How long did you talk to him?

A. Just a short time.

Q. Did you talk to anyone else before you appeared here? A. In regard to the case?

Q. Yes. A. My mother.

Q. Other than your mother, Mr. Grossman and Mr. Margolis? A. No, I didn't. [3957]

Q. Did you receive any letters from Mr. Lovelace?

A. Now, I will tell you—I have been trying to remember clearly whether he wrote me a letters direct or not, and I am not sure. One time—I really have tried to remember whether he wrote me letters addressed to me.

Q. Did he write you a twelve page letter one time?

A. I believe that was addressed to my wife, but it was intended for me.

Q. Isn't it a fact that he wrote you a letter in which, among other things, he called you a "dirty dog"? A. He might have.

Q. He might have? A. Yes. [3958]

Q. Do you have that letter?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. What did you do with it?

A. I believe that was among the letters that was returned to my wife, former wife.

Q. By you? A. Not by me.

Q. What did you do with this letter that Mr. Lovelace wrote in which he called you a dirty liar?

(Testimony of Charles Yoeman.)

A. I am not sure that he wrote me that letter. You are trying to mislead me.

Presiding Inspector: He says he isn't sure. He has said it several times that he isn't sure that there was a letter to him.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. And you gave those letters also to your friend?

Presiding Inspector: What do you mean by "those letters?"

Mr. Del Guercio: All of the letters including the ones written to his wife.

Presiding Inspector: He has already testified that he gave all the letters to this Mr.——

The Witness: (Interposing) Gravon.

Presiding Inspector: Gravon.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, you testified yesterday that you tried to get the letters back from your ex-wife? [3959]

A. I did.

Q. Did you ask her for them?

A. I believe I did.

Q. When did you ask for them?

A. Beg pardon?

Q. When did you ask for them and where?

A. After I returned from Alaska.

Q. And what did you want with the letters?

A. Well, we were—we had pretty well mutually agreed—I had anyway—that there would be a divorce directly upon my return from Alaska. I didn't want to incur any trouble getting it. With these letters it was a cinch. Without them there might have been a little trouble. That is why I wanted the letters.

Q. You didn't sue for a divorce?

A. No. To keep other people from being involved in a nasty mess I was willing to pay for it and let her get it.

Q. Well, you mean you didn't sue for divorce because you didn't want other people to get into a nasty mess? A. That is true.

Q. You appeared here to testify to that against her? A. Beg pardon?

Q. Never mind. I withdraw the question.

What were the grounds for the divorce?

Presiding Inspector: Haven't we had enough about all this?

Mr. Del Guercio: Oh, well, all right. [3960]

Presiding Inspector: If you want to go into it you may.

Mr. Del Guercio: No, I don't think it is necessary.

Presiding Inspector: It seems to me we have gone pretty far.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all, I believe.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: Next witness.

Mr. Grossman: He will be here in a moment. He is in our witness room.

Mr. Del Guercio: May we have a short recess?

Presiding Inspector: Yes, we will take a short recess.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

Presiding Inspector: Raise your right hand.

MORRIS F. WALES

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. What is your name?

A. Morris F. Wales, W-a-l-e-s.

Q. Are you here in response to a subpoena directed to the Southern California Gas & Electric Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the correct name of the company? [3961]

A. Southern California Gas Company.

Q. What position to you hold with that company?

A. I am supervisor of meter reading and collections of the Los Angeles district.

Q. Would you mind reading the portions of that subpoena that indicate what documents or papers you were to bring with you?

Presiding Inspector: Well, has he brought them?

Mr. Grossman: Yes, sir.

Presiding Inspector: Well, then, why——

(Testimony of Morris F. Wales)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. (Interposing) Have you brought all the papers called for by the subpoena?

A. Yes sir; all we could find.

Q. Now, what are these documents that you have brought with you in response to the subpoena? Could you describe each of them separately?

A. The large one——

Mr. Del Guercio: (Interposing) If your Honor please, there is no foundation laid for their introduction so why describe them. Describe them completely? Read them?

Mr. Grossman: I don't want them read. I want to know what kind of records they are.

Presiding Inspector: He wants to know what they are in a general way to identify them. [3962]

The Witness: I have two photostatic copies of the meter deposit sheet, or book, rather, in which deposits are entered.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Deposits, you mean, that are given by a person who wishes service with your company to guarantee the payment of his bill?

A. Who wishes service, yes.

Q. These deposits are given at a time when a person signs up for service with your company?

A. At the time of service.

Q. What kind of a book is it that these records that you have photostatic copies of are kept in?

A. It is a large bound book in which the deposit slips are entered in numerical order. There are probably 50 of these books two or three inches thick, and I took the photostatic copy of the one sheet on which this name appeared.

Q. Now, what are the other documents or papers that you have brought with you?

A. The next is the application for gas and electric service signed by this party.

Q. Now, is that the application that is normally or was normally, in the course of your business, filled out whenever a person applied for service in 1934? A. Yes, that is the fact.

Q. All right. Now, have you got anything else with you? [3963]

A. I have the original ledger card on which this account was kept while this person lived at this particular address.

Q. Is that the usual card, ledger card that was used to cover the service of a person in 1934?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, will you state what those records show with respect to when a Mr. Laurence, Thomas Laurence applied for service with your company in 1934?

A. To take them in order, the customer first signs the application, which, in this case, was signed on May the 18th, 1934, to have service turned on May the 19th, 1934.

Q. At what address?

A. At 1114 Bellevue Avenue, the basement, north side.

(Testimony of Morris F. Wales)

Q. And do the records that you have brought with you show when that service was turned on?

A. The ledger card shows the service was turned on May the 19th, both gas and electricity, 1934.

Q. And that large sheet that you brought with you does that confirm any of these other items or add anything to them?

A. That confirms the fact that the customer put up a deposit, although it is also shown, indicated on the ledger sheet; and the deposit was entered on the book, next to the last item on the sheet.

Q. Do the documents that you have brought with you show for how long this service continued being furnished to Mr. [3964] Laurence at this address?

A. Yes, sir. The ledger card shows the service was closed on September the 28th, 1934.

Q. Have you brought with you photostatic copies of each of these documents?

A. Two copies of each.

Q. May I have them, please?

A. (Handing documents to Mr. Grossman)

(Whereupon the documents were handed to Mr. Del Guercio.)

Mr. Grossman: Have you finished with those?

Mr. Del Guercio: Yes.

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Do these documents that you have brought represent all the documents in your files showing service to Thomas Laurence during the year of 1934? A. No, only at that address.

(Testimony of Morris F. Wales)

Q. At this address?

A. Only at that address. The rest are destroyed.

Q. I big your pardon?

A. The other records are all destroyed.

Q. But these records show all the service furnished to Thomas Laurence during the year of 1934 at this address? A. Correct.

Mr. Grossman: I now offer these in evidence, your Honor, and ask that the photostatic copies may be introduced and the originals given back to this gentleman. [3965]

Mr. Del Guercio: I object on the following grounds: I not only object to the introduction of the evidence but I move to strike all of this witness' testimony as it neither adds anything nor detracts, nor contradicts any testimony previously given. The testimony of Thomas Laurence shows he testified that this meeting at which Harry Bridges was present at Los Angeles, California, occurred between May 9, between the period from May 9, 1934 to July 31, 1934.

That is reported, if your Honor please, on page 949 and 950 of the transcript.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: As a matter of fact, this witness' testimony confirms Thomas Laurence's testimony.

Mr. Grossman: Your Honor——

(Testimony of Morris F. Wales)

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) It may be relative; it may be confirmatory or not.

Mr. Grossman: We don't say it is inconsistent with Mr. Laurence. It tends to further fix the time at which this meeting took place, your Honor. I am not stating it is in conflict at all with Mr. Laurence's testimony.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it. It may be necessary for you to show—I don't remember what the testimony of Mr. Laurence was—as to whether he had just moved in.

Did he?

Mr. Grossman: He stated the meeting was about two months—he may have said approximately, he may have said [3966] about, he may have said just two months after he moved in.

Presiding Inspector: After he moved in?

Mr. Grossman: Yes. Now, I realize, your Honor, this isn't conclusive proof of when he moved in. It is some evidence of when he moved in.

Presiding Inspector: He may have moved in——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) He may have moved in; he may have had no gas or lights, it is possible.

Presiding Inspector: He may have taken over arrangements by a previous outfit; we don't know.

Mr. Gladstein: I say it is prima facie.

Mr. Del Guercio: Or his wife may have taken out service, Mr. Laurence's wife.

Presiding Inspector: Yes. I don't remember the testimony about the occupancy of the apartment with sufficient accuracy to remember those matters.

(Testimony of Morris F. Wales)

By Mr. Grossman:

Q. Now, may I ask you one more question, that is, whether you desire the return of any of these documents except the two originals?

A. The two originals only.

Q. You don't require the return of the photostatic copy? A. No.

Mr. Grossman: I assume, your Honor, I have the right— [3967] I don't know—to take the extra photostatic copy. That won't have to be introduced.

Presiding Inspector: We don't care——

Mr. Grossman: (Interposing) I say that because there isn't one for Mr. Del Guercio. There is only one. The question is whether I have a right to it or not. I don't know. If the witness brings it and is willing to leave it here——

Presiding Inspector: All you want to introduce is one photostat?

Mr. Grossman: The question is whether I can take——

Presiding Inspector: (Interposing) Why can't you take anything that the witness will give you?

Mr. Grossman: I assume that, but I wanted to be sure.

Presiding Inspector: It hasn't anything to do with this hearing.

Mr. Grossman: Then, I ask that these three documents be given separate numbers, the three next in order.

(Testimony of Morris F. Wales)

Presiding Inspector: It may be done, and you may, in the case of the originals, substitute the photostatic copies.

Have the originals marked too.

(The documents referred to were received in evidence and marked Alien's Exhibits, Nos. 19, 20 and 21.)

Mr. Grossman: No more questions.

Mr. Del Guercio: Are you ready? [3968]

Mr. Gladstein: Yes.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Mr. Wales, were you asked in the subpoena to make a search for application for service at 1114 Bellevue Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the name of Mrs. Thomas Laurence? Were you asked in the subpoena to make a search of your records, in the application for service at 1114 Bellevue Avenue, in the name of Mrs. Thomas Laurence? A. Just Thomas Laurence.

Q. And did you make a search of all of your records? A. Yes.

Q. In regards to Mr. Thomas Laurence?

A. Yes.

Mr. Del Guercio: That is all.

Mr. Grossman: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Presiding Inspector: The next witness.

Mr. Gladstein: He is being called, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: Raise your right hand.

RUTH E. GIVAN

called as a witness on behalf of the Alien, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Presiding Inspector: Give your name and address to the [3969] reporter.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you please state your full name?

A. Ruth E. Givan, G-i-v-a-n.

Q. Mrs. Ruth E. Givan, is that right?

A. Right.

Q. Where do you live, please?

A. In Seattle.

Q. Would you give the address?

A. 6520 Fauntleroy Avenue.

Q. Would you spell that for the reporter?

A. F-a-u-n-t-l-e-r-o-y.

Q. Do you live there with your husband?

A. I do.

Q. Are you employed, Mrs. Givan?

A. Yes, I am employed.

Q. Where are you employed?

A. The Post-Intelligencer.

Q. How long have you been employed with the Seattle Post-Intelligencer? A. Since 1923.

Q. In what department of that newspaper?

A. In the classified advertising department.

Q. The Post-Intelligencer is a Seattle newspaper, [3970] is it not? A. It is.

Q. Are you acquainted with a man named Nat Honig? A. Yes, I am.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Q. Do you know that he works on the staff of the Post-Intelligencer?

A. Yes, part of the time.

Q. Calling your attention to a recent period in the latter part of March of this year were you a witness to an incident at a book store?

A. I was a witness to an incident at a department store.

Q. In a department store? A. Yes.

Q. Did that incident involve Mr. Nat Honig?

A. Yes, it did.

Mr. Del Guercio: Now, if your Honor please, I object to this line of questioning.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it so far; I will take it so far.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. About what time of day did this incident occur, Mrs. Givan?

Mr. Del Guercio: Object to that.

Presiding Inspector: Just a moment. I think I will have [3971] to have Mr. Honig's testimony. I have sent for it.

As I recall, this was brought out by you, Mr. Del Guercio.

Mr. Gladstein: That is my recollection.

Mr. Del Guercio: Well, I won't state either one way or the other. I don't know at this time.

Presiding Inspector: Well, I have just sent for the testimony.

Mr. Gladstein: Page 1493, your Honor.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Presiding Inspector: Yes, Mr. Gaiser just told me. (Examining transcript) I will take it.

Mr. Del Guercio: If the Court please, before we consider that, the Court will recall that this was not an arrest in any sense of the word, no charge.

Presiding Inspector: It has not been described as an arrest, I don't think.

Mr. Gladstein: Your Honor is correct.

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. I will let this witness tell what the incident was.

Mr. Gladstein: I think the last question was what time of the day did the incident occur.

Presiding Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Gladstein: Would you answer that, Mrs. Givan?

A. Yes, it was in the middle of the afternoon.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Where were you at the time it began? [3972]

A. Seated at my desk.

Q. Your desk where?

A. In my office in the Post-Intelligencer, in the P.I. Building.

Q. When you refer to "P.I." you refer to the Post-Intelligencer?

A. P.I. and Post-Intelligencer are synonymous.

Q. Now, would you describe just briefly what your office is like with respect to your ability to see across the street?

A. My office is on a balcony which is really a second floor and the entire rear wall of the office is windows which face out on 6th Avenue, windows which go entirely to the floor so that the wall behind my desk is all glass.

Q. And on the opposite of the street is there a department store? A. There is.

Q. What is the name of that store?

A. Frederick & Nelson.

Q. Now, will you describe what incident occurred that you saw involving Mr. Honig at the time you have stated?

Mr. Del Guercio: I will object to that, your Honor.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. I was looking out of the window, with a telephone in my hand, and I observed Mr. Honig, running out of one of the [3973] 6th Avenue entrances of the department store, pursued by two women who seized his arms as soon as he was out on the sidewalk and held him, and Mr. Honig struggled rather wildly, flung his arms up and seemed to try to get away, seemed to be talking. I could see his mouth moving very fast. They held him. They finally led him away, after he had quieted down, down toward the rear of the building where there was an automobile concourse which goes through and they led him in there off the street. [3974]

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Now, Mrs. Givan, have you had occasion to discuss with other employees on the staff of the

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Post-Intelligencer the reputation of Mr. Nat Honig for truth and veracity?

A. Yes; the matter has been discussed.

Q. Do you know what the reputation for truth and veracity of Mr. Honig, among the staff employees of the Post-Intelligencer, is?

Mr. Myron: I object to that.

Presiding Inspector: "Yes" or "No". I will take it.

A. Yes. I know what——

Mr. Myron: (Interposing) You were asked for a "Yes" or "No" answer. A. Yes.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Will you please state whether that reputation for truth and veracity of Mr. Honig is good or bad?

Mr. Myron: I object.

Presiding Inspector: I will take it.

A. Bad.

By Mr. Gladstein:

Q. Based on that reputation, Mrs. Givan, would you believe Mr. Honig under oath?

A. No, I would not.

Mr. Gladstein: You may cross examine. [3975]

Cross Examination

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Now, Mrs. Honig—excuse me—Mrs. Givan, is it? A. Givan.

Q. How wide is this street on which the building is located?

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

A. It is an average width of a street in Seattle; I suppose about 80 feet wide, including sidewalks.

Q. Including the sidewalks? A. Yes.

Q. From building to building? A. Yes.

Q. And you are on the second floor?

A. I am on the balcony. There is a second floor above the floor I am on.

Q. What do you mean by "balcony"—your office is on a balcony?

A. Yes; my office is on the balcony.

Q. Is the balcony enclosed or open?

A. Closed with glass on the inside of the building side.

Q. How high is the glass?

A. Mostly all the way to the ceiling of the room; it separates it from the room below.

Q. From the ceiling to the floor?

A. That is right. [3976]

Q. All in glass? A. Yes.

Q. And your desk is where?

A. My desk is along the wall of the room, which is the exterior wall.

Q. The exterior wall—that is opposite the wall from where the windows are?

A. No; the same wall where the windows are.

Q. Is there a wall where the windows are?

A. The entire room is surrounded by glass, both the exterior and the interior side, and my desk is on the exterior side with an entire wall of windows behind me.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Q. What were you doing at the time that this incident occurred?

A. I was turned around in my swivel chair looking out of the window holding a telephone.

Q. You were working?

A. I was at my desk at work; yes.

Q. You were holding a telephone? A. Yes.

Q. Were you holding a telephone conversation?

A. I was probably waiting for somebody to answer. I wasn't talking to anybody at the moment.

Q. For how long were you talking when this incident you spoke about occurred? [3977]

A. I hung up the phone and watched out the window.

Q. The party had called you?

A. I think it was somebody I had called. I don't definitely recall who I was talking to.

Q. You hung up, you say? A. Yes.

Q. Without talking to the party?

A. Yes. I was so interested in what I saw.

Q. You were interested. Where did Honig run to?

A. He ran out of the building, which is down a flight of steps within the building, and through the doors and out on to the sidewalk.

Q. You saw him run down a flight of steps?

A. Yes; it is quite possible from my desk.

Q. I didn't ask you that. I said you saw him run down a flight of steps?

Presiding Inspector: That is natural remark.

A. Yes, I did.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where are the steps in the department store?

A. Just inside the entrance.

Q. Just inside the entrance. What entrance?

A. Just inside the Sixth Avenue entrance to the store.

Q. Could you see all the steps from where you work? A. That is right, I could. [3978]

Q. From top to bottom?

A. Yes. There are about six of them.

Q. Where did the steps lead to?

A. From the main floor of the store down to the street level where the doorway opens.

Q. How can you observe these steps?

A. Through the wide open doors.

Q. Through the windows also?

A. Through my windows; yes.

Q. And through the windows of the department store?

A. Not the windows of the department store; the windows in my office. The doors of the department store were wide open.

Q. Did you observe anybody else go in or out of those doors other than these people you have described?

A. Yes; I observed the two women who came down after him.

Q. Where did they come from?

A. Within the store, immediately following behind him.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Q. They also came down the steps?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Did you see them? A. Yes, I did.

Q. How long did it take for all this to happen?

A. I would say about three or four minutes; possibly five. [3979]

Q. Were the windows of your office opened, or could they open?

A. Yes, they could open. The upper windows were open; the lower weren't.

Q. The lower windows were closed?

A. Yes.

Q. How far away were you from the window?

A. From the window, about as close as I am from the Judge's desk here.

Q. With your back towards the window?

A. With my face towards the window.

Mr. Gladstein: Just so the record may show it, the distance referred to is a matter of a foot or two, is it, your Honor?

Presiding Inspector: Yes; one to three feet.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Where did you say that Mr. Honig went after he came out of the store?

A. On to the sidewalk, running out.

Q. In which direction?

A. He came running across the width of the sidewalk toward the P.-I. Building.

Q. Toward the P.-I. Building? A. Yes.

Q. About how far did he run?

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

A. About ten feet out on the sidewalk. [3980]

Q. How wide is the sidewalk?

A. About ten feet wide. He ran out to the curb.

Q. Did he get to the curb? A. Almost.

Q. How high is the Post-Intelligencer Building?

A. Three stories.

Q. Three stories? A. Yes.

Q. You are on the second floor?

A. I am on the balcony floor.

Q. Balcony floor? A. Yes.

Q. How high is the balcony floor from the street?

A. It is probably about 15 feet high.

Q. 15 feet high? A. Yes.

Q. You say from building to building, you say that is about 80 feet?

A. In my judgment—I am not certain of the width of the street—but I would say 80 feet; that would be my best judgment.

Q. You weren't leaning out of the window?

A. No. I couldn't. It isn't that kind of a window.

Q. Both sidewalks on each side of the street, you say, are how many feet?

A. I think about ten feet wide. [3981]

Q. So that the street is about 60 feet wide?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there any cars parked on the street?

A. Yes; there were several cars parked.

Q. On which side of the street?

A. I couldn't see down on my own side of the street, but on the Frederick & Nelson side there were probably one or two cars parked over there.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Q. You were sitting down all the time?

A. I was sitting down all the while.

Q. How many cars were parked in front of the department store?

A. There weren't very many because it is a zone where they are not allowed to park. There were probably one or two cars.

Q. Were any cars parked immediately in front of the entrance to the store?

A. No. They are not allowed to park there. That is a pedestrian zone crossing on Sixth Avenue and there is no parking in that area.

Q. You said you observed two cars parked there?

A. In front of the department store; yes.

Q. How near the entrance were they to the department store?

A. They weren't near the entrance. They were up along- [3982] side the building further up. There were none in front of the immediate entrance to the department store.

Q. In which direction did you observe Mr. Honig running? A. Running directly toward me.

Q. Toward you? A. Yes.

Q. In a straight line?

A. Very nearly a straight line. He was coming out of the entrance and across the sidewalk.

Q. Is your office immediately opposite the entrance to the department store?

A. Almost directly opposite.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Q. And you say you observed him running almost to the curb? A. Right.

Q. And what happened when he got to the curb?

A. The women seized his arms and held him.

Q. Did you see them seize his arms?

A. Yes.

Q. Which arms? A. Both arms.

Q. Both women or one woman?

A. Two women; each one seized an arm.

Q. Were they together at the time they approached him?

A. They came out immediately behind him and rushed up to [3983] him on each side.

Q. They got there at the same time.

A. Yes.

Q. One got on one side and one on the other?

A. Right.

Q. What was Honig doing?

A. Then he threw up his arms wildly and gave evidence of some effort to break away.

Q. Did he stop running? A. Yes.

Q. Why did he stop?

A. Because they were holding him, evidently.

Q. Did they catch him from behind?

A. They caught his arms from behind, and they were alongside of him, each one hanging on tightly to an arm.

Q. And you say he threw up his hands?

A. He endeavored to struggle and tried to.

Q. I understood you to say they were holding his arms? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Q. Then he didn't throw his hands up in the air?

A. He threw one hand in the air before the woman caught it evidently. I saw the gesture as he tried to escape her grasp.

Q. You testified they were holding both arms?

A. After they seized him they were holding both arms; yes. [3984]

Q. When did he throw up his hands, after being seized? A. As he was being seized.

Q. Then they didn't catch him from behind, did they? A. Yes.

Q. By both arms?

A. Yes; caught both arms from behind.

Q. They did? A. Yes.

Q. At the same time he threw his arms up in the air? A. Before they were seized.

Q. You mean before he was stopped or caught?

A. Oh, no.

Q. When?

A. Just at that moment he threw up his arms and they were seized from behind.

Q. Which occurred first, the throwing up of his arms of the seizure of his arms by the two women?

A. Probably he was shaking off the first grasp and tried to throw up his arms to escape.

Q. I am asking you what you know, and not "probably".

Presiding Inspector: Go ahead. Ask your next question.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. Which occurred first?

Presiding Inspector: If you can tell.

A. I saw the motion of his arm going up in the air and [3985] then I saw the women each grasp an arm and hold on to it tightly, and I saw her hold it down with her weight.

Q. Was he on the sidewalk at that time?

A. On the edge of the sidewalk, on the curb.

Q. And what occurred after that?

A. He struggled for a moment, then seemed to cease struggling. I observed his apparent conversation with them. I saw his mouth moving, and I saw his head shaking, and he was trying to say something loudly. I didn't hear the words. They led him away.

Q. You didn't hear a word?

A. I couldn't hear the words.

Q. Do you know it was loud?

A. I saw his mouth moving, saw his head shaking, and saw him seeming to argue with them.

Q. And he was speaking loudly?

A. Apparently; yes.

Q. You didn't hear a word he said?

A. Not across the street.

Presiding Inspector: She testified to that. Let's go on. Every question is repeated and every answer is repeated. That isn't the proper way to examine a witness. Ask the question, get the answer and then ask another question.

Now go on, Mr. Del Guercio.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

I think you have made it very clear as to what happened. Go ahead. [3986]

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. What happened after that?

A. The women led him away down the street to the entrance to the automobile concourse and I saw them turn in there with them.

Q. Now, you say they led him away. Were they holding on to him?

A. They hung to him tightly.

Q. Did you see anything else?

A. No. I saw nothing else. They disappeared in the automobile concourse.

Q. Did you tell anybody about this incident?

A. Well, I wasn't the only observer. There were at least eight or nine observing it behind my back. We discussed it.

Q. Did you tell anyone about this incident immediately after it occurred? A. Yes.

Q. Who did you tell?

A. I discussed it with three or four girls standing alongside of me who also saw it.

Q. What are their names?

A. Miss Lee—L-e-e.

Q. Who else?

A. Miss Bertucci—B-e-r-t-u-c-c-i.

Q. Who else? [3987] A. Miss Hoover.

Q. Did you discuss this with any of the officers of the Post-Intelligencer?

A. Officers? Who do you mean by "officers"?

Q. Your employer.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

A. My employer—no, I don't think so.

Q. Are you a member of the Newspaper Guild?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is Mr. Honig a member of that newspaper guild? A. Yes, he is.

Q. In good standing?

A. I wouldn't know that.

Q. Do you attend meetings of this newspaper Guild? A. Regularly.

Q. Does Mr. Honig? [3988]

A. Most of the time.

Q. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Honig has been very active in this newspaper Guild in exposing Communist members?

A. Yes, Mr. Honig has been very active.

Q. Do you know Robert Camozzi—C-a-m-o-z-z-i?

A. Yes, I know him.

Q. Is he a friend of yours, socially?

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

A. He works with me. I know him.

Q. He works in what capacity?

A. In the Post-Intelligencer Building in the Circulation Department.

Q. In the Circulation Department?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you on friendly terms with him?

A. Yes, I am on friendly terms with him.

Q. Socially? A. No.

Q. Does he visit at your home?

A. He never has.

Q. Have you or your husband ever visited at his home? A. No.

Q. Is Mr. Camozzi married? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know his wife?

A. Yes, I do. [3989]

Q. Have you ever visited with her?

A. Not in her home.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Camozzi?

A. Oh, since about 1936, I would say.

Q. 1936. Is he also a member of the Newspaper Guild? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you discuss this matter with Mr. Camozzi? A. This particular matter?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, we all discussed it together. I believe I mentioned it to him in the course of the general conversation around the building.

Q. Did you discuss this with him in particular?

A. No, not particularly; no more than with anybody else. We were all discussing it.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Q. Well, now, do you know if Robert Camozzi is a member of the Communist Party?

Presiding Inspector: Who?

Mr. Del Guercio: Robert Camozzi.

A. No, I don't.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. Hasn't he been exposed in the Newspaper Guild as a Communist?

A. He has been accused of it, but it has never been [3990] proven.

Q. It has never been proven? You never heard about him being a member of the Communist Party?

Mr. Gladstein: Just a moment.

By Mr. Del Guercio:

Q. You have never heard that?

A. I have heard him accused of being a member of the Communist Party.

Q. Who did you hear accuse him?

A. Nat Honig.

Q. How many times did Nat Honig accuse him of being a member of the Communist Party?

A. I heard him say it twice; maybe he said it more often than that.

Q. Did he ever accuse you being a member of the Communist Party?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Wasn't Mr. Camozzi thrown out of the Newspaper Guild because he was a member of the Communist Party? A. I should say not.

(Testimony of Ruth E. Givan.)

Q. Is he still working in the Post-Intelligencer Building? A, Yes.

Q. Did you ever belong to the Socialist Party?

A. To the Socialist Party? [3991]

Q. Yes. A. No, I never did.

Q. Were you active in Socialist Party matters?

A. No.

Q. Were you ever discharged from the Post-Intelligencer?

A. Yes; I was discharged in the summer of 1937.

Q. When was that? A. When was that?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, I think that was some time about 1938 or 1939. I couldn't be exactly sure. Probably it was in the summer of 1938.

Q. Where did this occur?

A. At the home of one of the Newspaper Guild members.

Q. Whose home?

A. Mr. Claude Smith.

Q. And who were present?
